Homilies.] Theſe Homilies are two Books of plain Sermons, ſet out by Publick Authority, one whereof is to be read upon Sundays or Holidays, when there is no Sermon. The firſt Volume of them was ſet out in the beginning of Edward the Sixth's Reign, and were of excellent uſe in the beginning of the Reformation, when a competent number of Proteſtant Miniſters, of ſufficient Abilities to preach in a publick Congregation, was not to be found. They are ſuppoſed to be compoſed by Archbiſhop Cranmer, Biſhop Ridley and Latimer. The ſecond Volume was ſet out in Queen Elizabeth's Time, by Order of Convocation, A. D. 1563. That Homilies were formerly read in the Church, is plain from the forecited Council of Vaiſon, which was held in the Year A. D. 442. Si Presbyter aliquâ infirmitate prohibente, per ſeipſum non potuerit prædicare, ſanctorum Patrum Homiliæ à Diaconis recitentur. If the Prieſt be ſo ſick that he cannot preach by himſelf, let the Homilies compoſed by the Holy Fathers be read by the Deacons. But, however, in this Age it being ſo ſtrange a thing for Deacons to do any thing in the Church, but only to aſſiſt the Prieſt in Officiating, and to read the Goſpel, the Council is forced to guard this Sanction by a Reaſon: Si enim digni ſunt Diaconi, quæ Chriſtus in Evangelio locutus eſt legere; quare indigni judicentur ſanctorum Patrum expoſitiones publicè recitare. For if the Deacons are worthy to read the Words which Chriſt ſpoke, why ſhould they be judged unworthy to read the publick Expoſitions of the Holy Fathers, Conc. Vaſ. cap. 4. And I take that Paſſage of Epiphanius, Lib. 3. of the Ἑρμηνευτὰς ἐν ταῖς ὁμιλίαις, The Interpreters of Homilies, to be Perſons who tranſlated the Latin Homilies into Greek, for the uſe of the Eaſtern Churches.

NOTES.

(i) Offertory.] Iſidorus Hiſpalenſis, Lib. 6. Etymol. gives this Derivation of the Word Offertorium, that it comes from the Latin fertum, which ſignifies a ſort of Libation uſed in the Heathen Sacrifices. Hence that of Perſius —— opimo vincere ferto. And that of Cato, in his Book de re Ruſticâ, Jupiter te hoc ferto admovendo bona preces precor. But after all, this Derivation is but Fantaſtical; for Offertorium comes ab offerendo, as Portitorium à Portitando. It ſignifies that part of the Communion-Service in which the Offerings are made. The Cuſtom of making Oblations at the Communion is certainly Apoſtolical, as appears from 1 Cor. xvi. 2. On the firſt day of the week let every one lay by him in ſtore as God hath proſpered him. Which Cuſtom continued down to the following Ages, as is plain from that of Juſtin Martyr: Οἱ εὐποροῦντες καὶ ὁι βουλόμενοι κατὰ προαίρεσιν ἕκαστος ἃ ἑαυτῷ ὁ βούλεται δίδωσι. καὶ τὸ συλλεγόμενον παρὰ τοῦ προεστῶτος ἀποτίθεται, καὶ αὐτὸς ἐπικουρεῖ ὀρφανοῖς καὶ χήραις καὶ τοῖς διὰ νόσον, ἢ διὰ ἄλλην αἰτίαν λειπομένοις, καὶ τοῖς ἐν δεσμοῖς οὖσι, καὶ τοῖς παρεπιδήμοις οὖσι ξένοις. They who are in good Circumſtances, and willing to contribute, according to every ones good pleaſure, give what they think fit. And what is ſo collected is lodged with the Biſhop or Preſident, and with this he aſſiſts the Orphans and Widows, the Sick, or thoſe who are under any other Misfortune, thoſe who are in Priſon, or Strangers upon the Road, Juſt. Apol. 2. To the ſame purpoſe Tertullian: Modicam unuſquiſque ſtipem menſtruâ die, vel cum velit & ſi modo poſſit apponit, &c. Some moderate Portion or other of his Goods every one lays aſide, either once a Month, or oftner, if he pleaſes, and be able. Theſe are Pledges of his Piety, which we do not ſpend in eating and drinking, but in feeding the Poor and handſomely burying them, in maintaining fatherleſs Boys and Girls, aged and ſhipwrecked Perſons, thoſe who are condemned to the Mines, thoſe who are in Priſon, or under Baniſhment for Chriſt's ſake, Tertul. Apol. cap. 4. For violation of this Pious Uſage St. Cyprian chides very ſeverely a Rich Widow of his Time: Locuples & dives & Dominicam celebrare te credis, quæ Corbonam omnino non reſpicis, quæ in Dominicum ſine Sacrificio venis, &c. You are Rich and Wealthy, and do you think that you celebrate the Lord's-day as you ought to do, when you have no regard to the Corban, who come into the Church without a Sacrifice? Cyp. Lib. de Op. & Eleemoſ. So St. Ambroſe, Ser. 34. Omnes Chriſtiani omni Dominicâ debent offere & communicare. All Chriſtians ought to Offer and Communicate every Sunday. Theſe being mentioned by the Writer of the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions, Lib. 2. cap. 26. are called προσφοραὶ; by the Synod of Gangra, καρποφορίαι Ἐκκλησιαστικαὶ, The Produce of the Church; by other Greek Writers, τὰ δῶρα The Gifts; τὰ ἅγια δῶρα, The Holy Gifts; τὰ προκείμενα δῶρα, The Gifts laid down; καρπώματα, The Fruits, &c. Out of theſe Offerings, which were not always in Money, but in Bread, Wine, Corn, &c. were taken as much Bread and Wine as ſerved for the celebrating the preſent Communion; as is plain from what St. Cyprian writes to the Rich Widow beforementioned: An tu quod pauper obtulit ſumis? Do you communicate of that which a Poor Perſon has offered? But if any Perſons were under Publick Infamy, by reaſon of any ill Actions by them committed, their Offerings were not to be received, Conc. Ilerd. Can. 13. Conc. Carthag. iv. Can. 93. Theſe Offerings, in the Primitive Times, were ſo conſiderable, that they were divided into four Portions: one which was before mention'd was for the Relief of the Poor, the ſecond the Biſhop retain'd for his Maintenance, the third was for the Maintenance of the Church and its Ornaments, and the fourth for the Clergy, Cypr. Ep. 34. Ep. 36. Vid. Selden of Tythes, and Father Paul of Beneficiary Matters. The Office of the Offertory was uſed in Walafrid Strabo's Time, who lived in the middle of the Ninth Century; and was ſo long before his Time, that he cannot tell to whom to aſcribe its Original; De Eccl. Off. cap. 21.

PARAPHRASE.

I. Let the Light of you Chriſtians, ſhine forth ſo bright in the Eyes of all that behold you, by ſetting before them an excellent Example of Holineſs, Charity, and other good Actions; that they may be ſo wonderfully pleaſed with the Goodneſs of your Religion, as to be forced to aſcribe its original to God, and to glorifie him by their Converſion to the Faith.

II. You muſt not hoard up, as the Men of the World do, earthly Treaſures, ſuch as Money and rich Clothes, one of which is cankered by Ruſt, the other eaten up by Moths, and both of them lyable to be ſtolen by Thieves: But lay up for your ſelves heavenly Treaſures, ſuch as holy and charitable Actions are, which are not lyable to any of theſe Misfortunes, and which will ſtand you in ſtead at the laſt day, when the other Treaſures ſhall be periſhed and loſt for ever.

III. Let all your Actions which you do, with relation to other Men, be done with as much Juſtice and Charity, as we could reaſonably wiſh they ſhould be done to ourſelves: And this is the Sum of the whole ſecond Table in the Moſaick Law, and of what is ſaid concerning Social Duties, in all the Writings of the Prophets.

IV. Men ſhall not be admitted into eternal Glory, only for their believing in Chriſt, and calling upon him, Lord, Lord, in the Language of his Diſciples? but unleſs they do likewiſe what God has commanded them, and ſincerely obey his Laws, they ſhall never enter into that happy State.

declared his reſolved Obedience to his Laws in this manner; Lord, tho' other Perſons think they have ſufficiently fulfilled the Rule of Charity, by ſeparating a fifth part of their Incom for Alms, behold I am ready to give half of what I am poſſeſſed of to the Poor: And if I have defrauded any one, I do not ſtay to be convicted before a Judge, and to be forced to a fourfold Reſtitution, according to Moſes's Law, Num. 5. 7. but in Obedience to thy improved Law, I voluntarily offer it.

VI. What Soldier goes out to fight, who has not his Pay allotted him by thoſe whom he ventures his Life for? What Labourer works and toils in a Vineyard, and is not allowed to pluck a few of the Grapes? What Shepherd looks after a Flock or Herd of Cattle, and is not permitted to taſte of the Milk which they yield?

VII. If we, by our Labour in the Miniſtry, have ſown among you the Spiritual Riches of the Goſpel, is it any great matter, if, for a Recompence of our Trouble, we reap from you ſuch a ſmall Proportion of your worldly things, as will juſt provide us Food and Raiment, and other Neceſſaries of Life?

VIII. Do not they who, under the Judaical Law, miniſter in the killing and offering the Sacrifices, gain a Livelihood out of them? Do not they who in that Service attend at the Altar, retain a Portion of the Sacrifices for their own uſe? as we read Deut. 18. 1. In like manner our bleſſed Lord has ordained, that thoſe who are the Preachers of his Goſpel, ſhould gain a Maintenance by it, having declared that the Workman is worthy of his Meat, Matt. 10. 10.

IX. As a ſparing Sower of Corn ſhall have a little Crop; ſo a niggardly Charity ſhall have a leſs plentiful Reward. But however in your Contributions in the Church, I would have you give as before-hand you deſigned to do, not to give more than you were willing, and to grudge at it when it is done, being forced to it by the Example of others, or the Sollicitation of Superiors; for God approves of Cheerfulneſs in Charity, as of one of the beſt parts in it.

X. Let him that is inſtructed in the Goſpel, contribute all good things and Neceſſaries of Life, to him who inſtructeth him. Let no Man deceive himſelf by any vain Excuſes, whereby he may pretend to be exempted from this Charge; ſaying, I have little enough for myſelf; why ſhould I work to maintain another Man in Preaching and Praying? Theſe Pretences may paſs well enough with ſome Men; but God will not be mocked, he will keep ſteddy to his Reſolution of his Reward of Charity. And if a Man ſows with a ſparing Hand, he ſhall reap as little Increaſe.

XI. Whilſt God affords us Life and Abilities to do good, let us endeavour to do kind and charitable Actions when it lies in our Power, to all Perſons of whatſoever Religion and Perſwaſion; but eſpecially to our Chriſtian Brethren, who are God's Houſhold, Eph. 2. 19.

XII. To live a Holy Life, is a good Eſtate to a Man, for the Contentedneſs of Mind which this brings along with it, does overballance all the Satisfactions which wicked Men can enjoy, from their moſt flowing Income: But Covetouſneſs in all Men, is a very ridiculous Folly, eſpecially when they know, That they ſhall go as naked out of the World as they came into it, and that they do but heap and ſcrape up thoſe Riches, of which they cannot carry one Farthing along with them when they die.

XIII. Give a ſtrict Charge to them, who abound with the Riches of this World, That they be readily diſpoſed to relieve any diſtreſſed Object; That they be glad of a good Occaſion to exerciſe their Charity; by which they may raiſe to themſelves a good Spiritual Fund for their Souls, which may greatly further them in their Attainment of everlaſting Life.

XIV. God is a very juſt Maſter, and will not forget the Services of his faithful Servants; viz. Thoſe loving and kind Offices which they have ſhewed to his poor Members, in relieving their Wants, and miniſtring to their Neceſſities.

XV. Do not forget to do good and friendly Offices, and to diſtribute your Charity to thoſe Perſons who want it: for God is pleaſed with that Offering, more than with the legal Sacrifices.

XVI. If a Man have plenty of the good things of this World, and has no Compaſſion to relieve his poor Chriſtian Brother, whom he ſees in want; How can ſuch a Man be ſaid to love God, that is ſo cruel to one of his Creatures?

XVII. When a poor Man in his diſtreſs, begs to be relieved by thee, do not deny him his Requeſt, unleſs it be very unreaſonable and above thy Abilities: And if thou doſt ſo, God will not deny thee what thou ſhalt ask of him.

XVIII. XIX. Money beſtowed in Charity is not loſt, but only lent to God: And thou may'ſt reſt ſatisfied, that he keeps an exact Account of what thou layeſt out upon that Head, and will pay it thee again, with Intereſt.

XX. That Man is in a very happy Condition, to whom God gives a Heart to be charitable, who provides the Sick and Poor with Neceſſaries: For, whenever he falls into Trouble, he may be ſure of Deliverance from God's Hand.

NOTES.

(k) The Prieſt ſhall then place upon the Table.] The Rule which our Church here lays down (if it were duly obſerved) keeps a juſt mean between a careleſs diſregard ſhewn to the Elements, and a pompous and ceremonious offering up of them, as a true and proper Sacrifice. 'Tis certain that our Church orders them to be placed upon the Table by the Prieſt, and by the Connection which ſeems to be between this and the former Rubrick, it ought to be humbly preſented and placed; for it is not to be thought, that the Alms for the Poor ſhould be preſented with greater Reverence than the Bread and Wine, which are brought thither for ſo divine a uſe. Therefore I cannot imagine, how ſo bold an Innovation has obtain'd, for the Bread and Wine to be placed on the Lord's-Table by Churchwardens, Clerks, Sextons, or any body, beſides the Perſon whom the Church has obliged to do it. Without doubt, both the Greek and Latin Churches performed this Action with greater Decency and Solemnity; tho' perhaps they mixed more of a ſacrificial Nature therein than we are willing to allow. In the Latin Church, when the Deacon delivers the Paten, he offers it up with this Prayer: Suſcipe ſancte Pater, omnipotens æterne Deus, hanc immaculatam Hoſtiam, quam ego indignus famulus tuus offero Tibi Deo meo

Let us †† pray for the whole ſtate of Chriſt's Church militant here in earth.

Rom. in Ord. Miſs. Whatever is to be blamed in the Matter of theſe Petitions, the ſolemn Preſentation of the Elements, and the addreſs to Almighty God thereupon are not amiſs. In the Greek Church there is a double Offertory, the firſt is when the Δῶρα or Elements are ſolemnly preſented or offered at a Side-Table near the Altar, which they call the Προθεσις, and then this Prayer is ſaid: Ὁ Θεὸς, Ὁ Θεὸς ἡμῶν, &c. O God, our God, who didſt ſend Jeſus Chriſt (our Lord and God, our Saviour, our Redeemer and Benefactor, who hath alſo bleſſed us and ſanctified us) to be the heavenly Bread to nouriſh the whole World; bleſs this Προθεσις [i. e. what is here ſet upon this Table] *and receive it to thy heavenly Altar. And ſo the Elements lay, till the firſt part of the Communion-Service was ſaid, and at which the Catechumens were allowed to be preſent; but after they were gone, then came on the Ἀπόθεσις or removing them from the Side-Table to the Altar. And that Action was devoutly performed by this Prayer, Κύριε ὁ Θεὸς ὁ παντοκράτωρ, &c. O Lord almighty God, who alone art Holy, and receiveſt the Sacrifice of Praiſe from them who call upon thee with their whole heart, receive the Supplication of us Sinners, and offer it at thy Holy Altar: and render us fit to offer to thee Spiritual Gifts and Sacrifices for our Sins, and for the Ignorances of the People: and grant that we may find grace in thy ſight, that our Sacrifice may be well-pleaſing unto thee, that the good Spirit of thy Grace may dwell in us, and in the Gifts before us, and in all thy People. Chryſ. Lit. Now tho' our Church has not ordered any particular Prayer for this Action of the Prieſt, he ought not to neglect the Action itſelf, which he is enjoin'd to do, nor ſuffer it to be done by any other. And ſince the Rubrick has not authorized the ſetting up a Side-Table, the Prieſt muſt be content either himſelf to go into the Veſtry to fetch the Elements, or he muſt receive them at the hands of his Deacon or Clerk, and then place them upon the Table; for place them there he muſt, and no one elſe, tho' it be not ſaid where they are to be ſet, before they are ſo placed.

I. O All-powerful and everlaſting God, who haſt by thy holy Apoſtle St. Paul, exhorted us, that Supplications, Prayers, Interceſſions and giving of Thanks, be made for all Men, 1 Tim. 2. 1. we therefore, in compliance with this Divine Injunction, do in the firſt place offer up our Prayers, which we deſire thee out of thy great Mercy to receive, in behalf of thy holy Catholick Church, which does conſiſt of all the faithful Believers in Jeſus Chriſt, whereſoever diſperſed over the different Nations of the World; moſt humbly beſeeching thee to inſpire them with the Spirit of Truth, John 14. 17. which may defend them from all falſe Doctrine and Errors in matters of Faith: To give them Grace, that they may keep the Unity of the Spirit, in the Bond of Peace, Eph. 4. 3. and that they may not diſturb the Quiet of the Church by Schiſms and unlawful Separations: And to grant that all thoſe, who continue within the Boſom of the Church, do not interrupt its Tranquillity, either by Hereſie or Schiſm; That they alſo may not be guilty of any mutual Unkindneſs to each other, but according to our Saviour's Commands, have Peace one with another, Matt. 9. 50. So that all Chriſtian People every-where may embrace the ſame Confeſſion of Faith, rightly examined according to thy holy Word, which is Truth, John 17. 17. and is the only Rule thou haſt left us to judge by; That all true Believers may be conjoyned in an Uniformity of Worſhip and Communion with one another: and, That all Chriſtians, of what Denomination ſoever, may live together in that godly Love which their holy Religion recommends.

II. Next we offer up our Prayers (as thou in thy word haſt commanded us, 1 Tim. 2. 2.) for Kings and all that are in Authority; but eſpecially for thy Servant Queen ANNE, under whoſe gracious Government we in this Nation live; that through her vigilant Care and Conduct, we may lead quiet and peaceable Lives, in all Goodneſs and Honeſty, ib. beſeeching thee likewiſe to confer thy Grace upon all her Counſellors, whether they be her more publick Adviſers in the two Houſes of Parliament, or her more private ones at the Council-board; As alſo upon all her ſubordinate Magiſtrates the Judges and Juſtices of the Realm; that they may adminiſter Juſtice truly and without miſtake, and indifferently with an impartial Hand, and without reſpect of Perſons: That by inflicting the Penalties denounced by the Laws againſt Vice and Wickedneſs, they may anſwer the end of that Office which God has raiſed them up unto, to be for the Puniſhment of evil Doers; and by the Encouragement of Vertue, and the Maintenance of the true Religion eſtabliſhed among us, they may be for the Praiſe of them that do well, 1 Pet. 2. 14.

III. We beſeech thee, likewiſe, to extend thy Grace to all the Paſtors of thy Church, whether they be Biſhops or inferior Miniſters of the Goſpel, that by the Piety of their Lives, and the Orthodoxy of their Doctrine, they may interpret the Word of God, according to the Truth in the Goſpel, Gal. 2. 14. and in Conformity to the holy Scriptures, thoſe lively Oracles of God, Acts 7. 38. and that they may adminiſter the Holy Sacraments, not by mangling them, and defrauding the People of their Share thereof, or by mixing with them vain and ſuperſtitious Ceremonies, but rightly and duly, as thou in thy holy Inſtitution thereof haſt preſcribed. And we enlarge our Prayers likewiſe for the Chriſtian People heavenly grace; and eſpecially to this Congregation here preſent, that with meek heart and due reverence they may hear and receive thy holy Word, truly ſerving thee in holineſs and righteouſneſs all the days of their life. IV. And we moſt humbly beſeech thee of thy goodneſs, O Lord, to comfort and ſuccour all them, who in this tranſitory life, are in trouble, ſorrow, need, ſickneſs, or any other adverſity. V. And † we alſo bleſs thy holy Name, for all thy ſervants departed this life in thy faith and fear; beſeeching thee to give us grace ſo to follow their good examples, that with them we may be partakers of thy heavenly kingdom. Grant this, O Father, for Jeſus Chriſts ſake, our only Mediator and Advocate. Amen.

¶ When the Miniſter giveth warning for the celebration of the holy Communion, (which he ſhall always do upon the Sunday, or ſome Holy-day immediately preceding) After the Sermon, or Homily ended, he ſhall read this Exhortation following.

DEarly beloved, on ---------- day next I purpoſe, through God's aſſiſtance to adminiſter to all ſuch as ſhall be religiouſly and devoutly diſpoſed, the moſt comfortable Sacrament of the body and bloud of Chriſt, to be by them received in remembrance of his meritorious croſs and paſſion, whereby alone we obtain remiſſion of our ſins, and are made partakers of the kingdom of heaven. Wherefore it is our duty to render moſt humble and hearty thanks to Almighty God our heavenly Father, for that he hath given his Son our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, not only to die for us, but alſo to be our Spi-

People whoſe Souls are committed to their Care, eſpecially for this preſent Congregation here met together for thy Worſhip; that they may at all times hear thy holy Word, which ſhall be read or preached unto them in the Church, with due Reverence and Attention; and that they may receive it like the Seed falling on the good Ground, Luke 8. 15. with an honeſt and good Heart, and having heard the Word may keep it, not only for a while, and then in time of Temptation fall away, but that they may grow into a ſettled Habit of Goodneſs and Piety, and may perſevere in Goodneſs and Piety to their Lives end.

IV. We extend our Petitions further in behalf of all our afflicted Brethren, beſeeching thee, that out of thy gracious Diſpoſition who art the God of all Comforts, 2 Cor. 1. 3. thou wouldſt extend thy Conſolation and Succour, to all Perſons who, in this tranſitory Life, which is a Scene of Changeableneſs and Misfortune, do labour under any trouble either of Body or Mind; who are oppreſſed with Sorrow; or pine under Want; or languiſh under Sickneſs, or laſtly, who are afflicted by any other Adverſity.

V. With theſe our Petitions we offer up our Thankſgivings to thee, for the good Examples which thou haſt been pleaſed to ſet before us, of ſo many brave Martyrs and Confeſſors, and other eminently pious Perſons, whoſe Faith and Piety were remarkable whilſt they ſtaid in this World, but are now departed to a better; beſeeching thee to give us Grace, that we, treading in the ſame Steps of Vertue and Holineſs which they did, may hereafter, together with them, be made Partakers of thoſe glorious Joys in thy heavenly Kingdom, which they are already poſſeſſed of. And this, O gracious Father, we thy poor Children do beg of thee to grant, for the ſake of Jeſus Chriſt, beſides whom we do acknowledge no other Advocate or Mediator in Heaven. Amen.

VARIOUS READINGS.

† All this Clauſe was added in the laſt Review, to make the latter part of the Prayer agree with the former, which it did not after the Clauſe of King Edward's Book was expunged. In the firſt Book of Edw. VI. the Thankſgiving ran in theſe words: And here we do give unto thee moſt high praiſe, and hearty thanks, for thy wonderful Grace and Vertue declared in all thy Saints, from the beginning of the World. And chiefly in the glorious and moſt bleſſed Virgin Mary, Mother of thy Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord and God, and in thy Holy Patriarchs, Prophets, Apoſtles, and Martyrs, whoſe Examples (O Lord) and ſtedfaſtneſs in thy Faith, and keeping thy holy Commandments, grant us to follow. We commend unto thy Mercy (O Lord) all other thy Servants, which are departed from us with the Sign of Faith, and now reſt in the ſleep of Peace: Grant unto them, we beſeech thee, thy mercy and everlaſting Peace, and that at the Day of the general Reſurrection, we and all they which be of the myſtical Body of thy Son, may all together be ſet on his right hand, and hear his moſt joyful Voice, Come ye bleſſed of my Father, and poſſeſs the Kingdom which is prepared for you from the beginning of the World. 1 B. Ed. 6.

In the Scotch Liturgy the Thankſgiving in the Offertory is expreſſed thus: And we alſo bleſs thy Holy Name, for all theſe thy Servants, who having finiſhed their Courſe in Faith, do now reſt from their Labours. And we yield unto thee moſt high Praiſe and hearty Thanks, for the wonderful Grace and Vertue declared in all thy Saints, who have been the choſen Veſſels of thy Grace, and the Lights of the World, in their ſeveral Generations; moſt humbly beſeeching thee, that we may have Grace, to follow the example of their ſtedfaſtneſs in thy Faith, and obedience to thy holy Commandments; that at the Day of the general Reſurrection, we, and all they that are of the myſtical Body of thy Son, may be ſet on his right hand, and hear his moſt joyful Voice, Come ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the World. *S. Theſe two exhortations in the old Common-Prayer-Book, ſtood thus.

1 Exhortation.

Then ſhall follow this exhortation at certain times, when the Curate ſhall ſee the people negligent to come to the holy Communion.

We be come together at this time (dearly beloved brethren) to feed at the Lord's Supper, unto the which in God's behalf, I bid you all that be here preſent, and beſeech you for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's Sake, that ye will not refuſe to come thereto, being ſo lovingly called and bidden of God himſelf. Ye know how grievous and unkind a thing it is when a Man hath prepared a Rich Feaſt, decked his table with all kind of Proviſion, ſo that there lacketh nothing but the gueſts to ſit down, and yet they which be called, without any cauſe, moſt unthankfully refuſe to come. Which of you in ſuch a caſe would not be moved? who would not think a great injury and wrong done unto him? Wherefore, moſt dearly beloved in Chriſt, take ye good heed, leſt the withdrawing yourſelves from this holy ſupper, provoke God's indignation againſt you. It is an eaſy matter for a Man to ſay, I will not Communicate, becauſe I am otherwiſe letted by worldly buſineſs: but ſuch excuſes be not ſo eaſily accepted and allowed before God. If any Man ſay, I am a grievous Sinner, and therefore am afraid to come: Wherefore then do not you repent and amend? when God calleth you, be not you aſhamed to ſay you will not come? when you ſhould return to God, will you excuſe yourſelf and ſay, that you be not ready? Conſider earneſtly with yourſelves, how little ſuch feigned excuſes will avail before God. They that refuſed the Feaſt in the Goſpel, becauſe they had bought a Farm, or would try their yokes of Oxen, or becauſe they were married, were not ſo excuſed, but counted unworthy of the heavenly Feaſt. I, for my part, am here preſent, and, according to mine office, I bid you in the name of God, I call you in Chriſt's behalf, I exhort you as love your own ſalvation, that ye will be partakers of this holy Communion. And as the Son of God did vouchſafe to yield up his Soul by death upon the Croſs for your ſpiritual food and ſuſtenance in that holy Sacrament. Which being ſo (l) divine and comfortable a thing to them who receive it worthily, and ſo dangerous to them that will preſume to receive it unworthily; my duty is to exhort you in the mean ſeaſon to conſider the dignity of that holy Myſtery, and the great peril of the unworthy receiving thereof, and ſearch and examine your own conſciences, (and that not lightly and after the manner of diſſemblers with God; but ſo) that ye may come holy and clean to ſuch a heavenly feaſt, in the marriage-garment, required by God in holy Scripture, and be received as worthy partakers of that holy Table.

health; even ſo it is your Duty to receive the Communion together, in the remembrance of his Death, as he himſelf commanded. Now if ye will in no ways thus do, conſider with yourſelves how great injury you do unto God, and how ſore puniſhment hangeth over your Heads for the ſame. And whereas you offend God ſo ſore in refuſing this holy banquet I admoniſh, exhort, and beſeech you, that unto this unkindneſs ye will not add any more; which thing ye ſhall do, if ye ſtand by as gazers and lookers on them that do Communicate, and be not partakers of the ſame yourſelves. For what thing can this be accounted elſe, than a further contempt and unkindneſs unto God? Truly it is a great unthankfulneſs to ſay nay, when ye be called: but the fault is much greater, when men ſtand by, and yet will neither eat nor drink this holy Communion with other. I pray you what can this be elſe but even to have the Myſteries of Chriſt in deriſion? It is ſaid unto all, Take ye and eat, take and drink ye all of this, do this in remembrance of me. With what face then, or with what countenance ſhall ye hear theſe words? What will this be elſe, but a neglecting, a deſpiſing and mocking of the Teſtament of Chriſt? Wherefore rather than ye ſhould ſo do, depart you hence, and give place to them that be godly diſpoſed. But when you depart, I beſeech you, ponder with yourſelves from whom you depart. Ye depart from the Lord's Table, ye depart from your Brethren, and from the Banquet of moſt heavenly food. Theſe things if ye earneſtly conſider, ye ſhall by God's Grace return to a better Mind. For the obtaining whereof we ſhall make our humble petitions, while we ſhall receive the holy Communion. O. C. P.

2 Exhortation.

Dearly beloved, foraſmuch as our duty is to render to Almighty God our heavenly Father, moſt hearty thanks, for that he hath given his Son our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, not only to die for us, but alſo to be our Spiritual Food and Suſtenance, as it is declared unto us, as well by God's word, as by the holy Sacrament of his bleſſed Body and Blood, the which being ſo comfortable a thing to them which receive it worthily, and ſo dangerous to them that will preſume to receive it unworthily: My duty is to exhort you to conſider the Dignity of the Holy Myſtery, and the great peril of the unworthy receiving thereof, and ſo to ſearch and examine your own Conſciences, as you ſhould come holy and clean to a moſt godly and heavenly Feaſt, ſo that in no wiſe you come but in the marriage-garment required of God in holy Scripture, and ſo come and be received as worthy partakers of ſuch a heavenly Table. The way and means thereto, is: Firſt, to examine your lives and converſation, by the rule of God's commandments, and wherein ſoever ye ſhall perceive yourſelves to have offended, either by will, word, or deed, there bewail your own ſinful lives, and confeſs yourſelves to Almighty God, with full purpoſe of amendment of life: And if ye ſhall perceive your offences to be ſuch, as be not only againſt God, but alſo againſt your neighbours; then ye ſhall reconcile yourſelves unto them, ready to make reſtitution and ſatisfaction, according to the uttermoſt of your powers, for all injuries and wrongs done by you to any other; and likewiſe being ready to forgive other that have offended you, as you would have forgiveneſs of your offences at God's hand: For otherwiſe the receiving of the holy Communion, doeth nothing elſe but increaſe your Damnation. And becauſe it is requiſite that no man ſhould come to the holy Communion, but with a full truſt in God's mercy, and with a quiet conſcience: therefore if there be any of you, which by the means aforeſaid, cannot quiet his own conſcience, but requireth further comfort or counſel, then let him come to me, or ſome other diſcreet and learned Miniſter of God's Word, and open his grief, that he may receive ſuch ghoſtly counſel, advice and comfort, as his conſcience may be relieved, and that by the miniſtery of God's word he may receive comfort, and the benefit of Abſolution, to the quieting of his conſcience, and avoiding of all ſcruple and doubtfulneſs.

The former part of this laſt Exhortation is thus worded in the Firſt Book of Edw. VI.

And if upon the Sunday or Holiday the People be negligent to come to the Communion, then ſhall the Prieſt earneſtly exhort his Pariſhioners, to diſpoſe themſelves to the receiving the Holy Communion more diligently, ſaying theſe or the like words

Dear Friends, and you eſpecially upon whoſe Souls I have Cure and Charge, on next ——— I do intend by God's Grace to offer to all ſuch as ſhall be godly diſpoſed, the moſt comfortable Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Chriſt, to be taken of them in remembrance of his moſt fruitful and glorious Paſſion, by the which Paſſion we have obtained remiſſion of our Sins, and be made Partakers of the Kingdom of Heaven; whereof we be well aſſured and aſcertained, if we come to the ſaid Sacrament, with hearty repentance for our Offences, ſtedfaſt faith in Gods mercy, and earneſt mind to obey Gods will, and to offend no more: wherefore our Duty is to come to theſe holy myſteries, with moſt hearty thanks to be given to Almighty God, for his infinite mercy, and benefits given and beſtowed upon us his unworthy Servants, for whom he hath not only given his Body unto Death, and ſhed his Blood, but alſo doth vouchſafe, in a Sacrament or Myſtery to give us his ſaid Body and Blood, to feed us ſpiritually. The which Sacrament being ſo divine and holy a thing, and ſo comfortable to them which receive it worthily, &c.

Requiring ſuch as ſhall be ſatisfied with a general Confeſſion, not to be offended with them that do uſe, to their farther ſatisfying, the Auricular and Secret Confeſſion to the Prieſt; nor thoſe alſo which think needful or convenient, for the Quietneſs of their own Conſciences, particularly to open their Sins to the Prieſt, to be offended with them that are ſatisfied with their humble Confeſſion to God, and the general Confeſſion to the Church; but in all things to follow the Rule of Charity, and every Man to be ſatisfied with his own Conſcience, nor judging of other Mens Minds or Conſciences, whereas he hath no Warrant of God's Word for the ſame.

NOTES.

(l) Divine and comfortable a thing.] It is not eaſy to recount the many divine and admirable Effects which the ancient Church did attribute to a devout and pious reception of this Holy Sacrament. St. Ignatius ſpeaks thus concerning the Effects thereof: Ἕνα ἄξιον κλῶντες, ὅς ἐστι φάρμακον ἀθανασίας, ἀντίδοτος τοῦ μὴ ἀποθανεῖν, ἀλλὰ ζῆν ἐν Ἰησοῦ Χριστῷ διὰπαντός. We breaking the one Bread, which is the Phyſick of Immortality, the Antidote againſt dying, and which makes men to live in Chriſt Jeſus for ever. Ign. Epiſt. ad Eph. The Interpolated Ignatius calls it, Καθαρτήριον ἀλεξίφαρμακον: A Purgative that expels Evil. St. Irenæus ſpeaking of the excellent Effects of this Bleſſed Sacrament, expreſſes himſelf thus: Εὐχαριστία, ἐκ δύο πραγμάτων συνεστηκυῖα, ἐπιγείου τε καὶ οὐρανίου· οὕτως καὶ τὰ σώματα ἡμῶν μεταλαμβάνοντα τῆς εὐχαριστίας, μηκέτι εἶναι φθαρτὰ, τὴν ἐλπίδα τῆς εἰς αἰῶνας ἀναστάσεως ἔχοντα. As the Euchariſt doth conſiſt of two things, an earthly and an heavenly; ſo our Bodies partaking of it, are not any longer corruptible, but have thereby the hope of a Reſurrection to eternity. Iren. adv. Hær. Lib. IV. Tertullian ſays, Caro corpore & ſanguine Chriſti veſcitur, ut & Anima de Deo ſaginetur. The Fleſh feeds upon the Body and Blood of Chriſt, that the Soul may thrive from God. Tert. de Reſ. Carnis. Apollinarius in the Catena calls it, the ζωοποιὸν σάρξ πρόφθασε εἰς ζωὴν, &c. The quickning Spirit which nouriſhes to Life eternal. Vid. Greg. Nyſ. in Orat. Catech. c. 38. Cyr. Alexd. Lib. IV. Com. in Joh. c. 14, 15. & Lib. X. c. 13. From all which it is plain, that theſe ancient Writers did not only hold, that much Chriſtian Grace, and Spiritual Aſſiſtance, was conveyed by a due receiving this Holy Sacrament; but that this was a ſort of Seed ſown in them, which, by a preternatural Virtue contain'd in it, would raiſe them up to eternal Life. Nay, it was a common Opinion among them, that this was a ſovereign Remedy for ſuch Diſtempers which had baffled the Power of Medicine. Upon which Account St. Chryſoſtom, on Mat. 24. ſpeaking of the Woman who was cured by touching the Hem of Chriſt's Garment, ſays, If thoſe who touched the Hem of his Garment were healed, how much more ſhall we who touch the Body of Chriſt? And Gregory Nazianzen relates of his Siſter Gorgonia, in his Funeral Oration upon her, how that by touching the Euchariſt ſhe was cured of a grievous Diſtemper.

(m) To

The way and means thereto is: Firſt, to (m) examine your lives and converſations by the rule of God's commandments; and wherein ſoever ye ſhall perceive your ſelves to have offended, either by will, word, or deed, there to bewail your own ſinfulneſs, and to confeſs your ſelves to Almighty God, with full purpoſe of amendment of life. And if ye ſhall perceive your offences to be ſuch as are not only againſt God, but alſo againſt your neighbours, then ye ſhall reconcile your ſelves unto them, being ready to make reſtitution and ſatisfaction according to the uttermoſt of your powers, for all injuries and wrongs done by you to any other; and being likewiſe ready to forgive others that have offended you, as ye would have forgiveneſs of your offences at God's hand: for otherwiſe the receiving of the holy Communion doth nothing elſe but increaſe your damnation. Therefore if any of you be a (n) blaſphemer of God, an hinderer or ſlanderer of his Word, an adulterer, or be in malice, or envie, or in any other grievous crime; Repent you of your ſins, or elſe come not to that holy Table, leſt after the taking of that holy Sacrament, the devil enter into you, as he entred into Judas, and fill you full of all iniquities, and bring you to deſtruction both of body and ſoul.

And becauſe it is requiſite, that no man ſhould come to the holy Communion, but with a full truſt in God's mercy, and with a quiet conſcience; therefore if there be any of you, who by this means cannot quiet his own conſcience herein, but requireth further comfort or counſel; let him come to me, or to ſome other diſcreet and learned Miniſter of God's word, and open his grief, that by the miniſtery of God's holy word he may receive the (o) benefit of abſolution, together with ghoſtly counſel and advice, to the quieting of his conſcience, and avoiding of all ſcruple and doubtfulneſs.

¶ Or in caſe he ſhall ſee the people negligent to come to the holy Communion, in ſtead of the former, he ſhall uſe this Exhortation.

DEarly beloved brethren, on ------- I intend, by God's grace, to celebrate the Lord's Supper: unto which in God's behalf I bid you all that are here preſent, and beſeech you for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, that ye will not refuſe to come thereto, being ſo lovingly called and bidden by God himſelf. Ye know how grievous and unkind a thing it is, when a man hath prepared a rich feaſt, decked his table with all kind of proviſion, ſo that there lacketh nothing but the gueſts to ſit down, and yet they who are called (without any cauſe) moſt unthankfully refuſe to come. Which of you in ſuch a caſe would not be moved? Who would not think a great injury and wrong

NOTES.

(m) To examine your Lives and Converſations.] A due Preparation before the receiving the Holy Sacrament was a thing which the ancient Fathers, both in their Writings and Homilies frequently inculcated to the People. The Care of ſeeing this done well being left to the Miniſter, was called by the Greek Fathers, μωμοσκοπία, or the Inſpection, by a Metaphor taken from the ancient Sacrifices, in which the Prieſt was to take a ſpecial Care, that what was offered might be without Blemiſh. Thus St. Chryſoſtom, Διὸ χρὴ πανταχόθεν μωμοσκοπεῖσθαι τὸ σῶμα τὸ ἡμέτερον. εἰ γὰρ ὁι τὰς παλαιὰς ἀναφέρηλας θυσίας ἐκελεύοντο πάντα πειμοσκοπεῖν, καὶ ὅτε ωτίτμητον ἔτε κολόβοκερων, ὅτε χοιραχιῶντα ἢ λειχῆνα ἔχοντα ὀπτᾶπτοντο ἀναφέρειν, πολλῷ μᾶλλον ἡμᾶς, τὸν ὑ πρόβατα ἄλογα ἀλλ' ἑαυτὸν ἀναφέροντας, πλέονα ἀκρίβειαν ὀφείλειν καὶ κίνδυνος χρὴ, καὶ πάντοθεν εἶ) καθαρὸν, &c. Wherefore we ought to inſpect ourſelves all about us. For if under the old Law they were obliged nicely to look upon every Offering, and did not ſuffer them to bring a Sacrifice with a torn Ear, or without a Tail, or one that had a foul Ulcer, or that was Leprous; how much more ſhould we that do not offer up inanimate Creatures, but ourſelves, be diligent to be pure. Chryſ. Hom. 20. Ep. ad Rom. And ſo elſewhere: Διὰ τοῦτο καὶ ὁ ἱερεὺς ὑπὲρφωνεῖ τότε τὸν ἀγῶνα καλῶν, καὶ διὰ τ φωνῆς ταύτης μωμοσκοπῶν ἅπαντας, ὥστε μὴ φησιλθεῖν ἵνα ἀπερόσκευον, &c. For this reaſon the Prieſt cries out, calling the Saints, and with the ſame Voice, having inſpected all the Aſſembly, exhorting none to come unprepared, &c.

(n) A blaſphemer of God, &c.] Ecce qualem ſententiam merebitur audire, qui ad Convivium Nuptiale, (i. e.) Altare Domini, aut Ebrioſus, aut Adulter, aut odium in Corde retinens præſumit accedere? What Doom ſhall he deſerve who ſhall preſume to come to the Nuptial Feaſt, (i. e.) the Altar of the Lord, either being a Drunkard, or an Adulterer, or retaining hatred in his Heart? 1 Aug. in Ann. Dec. Temp. Serm. 1. And to the like purport S. Chryſoſtom ſpeaks: Διὰ τοῦτο κὰ αὐτὸς ἐνηχοῦμεν ἤδη βοῶ λαμπρᾷ τῇ φωνῇ, καὶ διαμαρτύρομαι, καὶ ἱκετεύω, μὴ μετὰ κηλῆδος, μηδὲ μετὰ πονηρᾶ συνειδότος τῇ ἱερᾷ τάυτη προσιέναι τραπέζῃ, &c. For this reaſon I call upon you with a loud Voice, and beg of you, and beſeech you, that you do not come with a Blemiſh upon you, and with an evil Conſcience to this Holy Table; for this would not be the Communion, tho' you ſhould a thouſand times over touch Chriſt's Body, but it would be our Judgment and Condemnation, and an increaſe of our Puniſhment. Μηδεὶς οὖν ἀμάρτωλος, &c. Let therefore no Sinner come, (but I muſt not ſay no Sinner, for then I ſhould drive away myſelf from this Holy Table) but let no one who continues a Sinner come.

(o) Benefit of Abſolution.] It is very plain from this Paſſage, that our Church does not condemn Private Confeſſion and Abſolution, tho' ſhe does not univerſally require them (as the Church of Rome does) as being neceſſary for the Pardon of all Sins. She only recommends them as things very convenient to be put in practice, when Perſons cannot quiet their own Conſciences otherwiſe; but ſtill leaves them at their Liberty whether they will make uſe of this means or no.

wrong done unto him? Wherefore, moſt dearly beloved in Chriſt, take ye good heed, leſt ye withdrawing your ſelves from this holy Supper, provoke Gods indignation againſt you. It is an eaſie matter for a man to ſay, I will not communicate, becauſe I am otherwiſe hindred with worldly buſineſs. But ſuch excuſes are not ſo eaſily accepted and allowed before God. If any man ſay, I am a grievous ſinner, and therefore am afraid to come: wherefore then do ye not repent and amend? When God calleth you, are ye not aſhamed to ſay you will not come? when ye ſhould return to God, will ye excuſe your ſelves, and ſay ye are not ready? Conſider earneſtly with your ſelves, how little ſuch feigned excuſes will avail before God. They that refuſed the feaſt in the Goſpel, becauſe they had bought a farm, or would try their yokes of oxen, or becauſe they were married, were not ſo excuſed, but counted unworthy of the heavenly feaſt. I for my part ſhall be ready, and, according to mine office, I bid you in the name of God, I call you in Chriſt's behalf, I exhort you, as you love your own ſalvation, that ye will be partakers of this holy Communion. And as the Son of God did vouchſafe to yield up his ſoul by death upon the croſs for your ſalvation; ſo it is your duty to receive the Communion, in remembrance of the ſacrifice of his death, as he himſelf hath commanded: Which if ye ſhall neglect to do, conſider with your ſelves, how great injury ye do unto God, and how ſore puniſhment hangeth over your heads for the ſame; when ye wilfully abſtain from the Lords Table, and ſeparate from your brethren, who come to feed on the banquet of that moſt heavenly food. Theſe things if ye earneſtly conſider, ye will by God's grace return to a better mind: for the obtaining whereof we ſhall not ceaſe to make our humble petitions unto Almighty God our heavenly Father.

¶ At the time of the Celebration of the Communion, the Communicants being conveniently placed for the Receiving of the Holy Sacrament, the Prieſt ſhall ſay this Exhortation.

I. DEarly beloved in the Lord, ye that mind to come to the holy Communion of the Body and Blood of our Saviour Chriſt, muſt conſider how St. Paul exhorteth all Perſons diligently to try and examine themſelves, before they preſume to eat of that Bread, and drink of that Cup. II. For as the Benefit is great, if with a true penitent Heart and lively Faith, we receive that holy Sacrament, (for then we ſpiritually eat the Fleſh of Chriſt, and drink his Blood; then we dwell in Chriſt, and Chriſt in us; we are one with Chriſt, and Chriſt with us:) III. So is the Danger great, if we receive the ſame unworthily. For then we are guilty of the Body and Blood of Chriſt our Saviour; we eat and drink our own Damnation, not conſidering the Lord's Body; we kindle God's Wrath againſt us; we provoke him to plague us with divers Diſ-

* After the Creed ended ſhall follow the Sermon or Homily, or ſome other Portion of the Homilies, as they ſhall be hereafter divided; wherein if the People be not exhorted to the worthy receiving of the Holy Sacrament of the Body and Blood of our Saviour Chriſt, then ſhall the Curate give this Exhortation, to thoſe that be minded to receive the ſame. 1 B. Edw. VI.

PARAPHRASE.

I. Dearly beloved Chriſtians, you that deſign to partake of the Lord's-Supper, which is here to be adminiſtred, ought duly to have prepared your ſelves (as I hope you have) thereunto, by a diligent Examination into the State of your Souls. Which Duty of Self-examination is earneſtly exhorted to by St. Paul, who, 1 Cor. 11. 28. gives this Direction, Let a Man examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat of that Bread, and drink of that Cup. Now there are two principal Motives which do recommend this Duty of Self-examination, which is ſo neceſſary a Preparation to the Holy Sacrament; the firſt is, The Benefit received by it; the ſecond, The Danger which accrues by the Neglect of it.

The Motives to Examination, or Preparation to the Sacrament, drawn,

1ſt, From the Benefit;

II. We reap great Benefit by receiving this holy Sacrament, if we come well prepar'd to partake of it. For then, as our Saviour tells us, John 6. 56. We, in a Spiritual manner, eat his Fleſh, and drink his Blood, Chriſt dwelleth in us, and we in him. And then we ſhall have a Title to that Bleſſing of our Saviour, obtained in his Petition, John 17. That they all may be one, as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, v. 21. I in them, and thou in me, &c. v. 23.

III. We incur a very great Danger to our Souls, in coming unprepar'd and without Examination of ourſelves, to this Spiritual Feaſt. For by this Contempt, as the ſame Apoſtle tells us, We are guilty of the Body and Blood of the Lord, 1 Cor. 11. 27. we do in ſome meaſure partake of the Sin of the Jews, who crucified our bleſſed Lord, when we irreverently approach and make bold with theſe holy Myſteries, which repreſent his meritorious Death and Paſſion; for Chriſt takes ſuch an undervaluing and ſlighting of his Sufferings, almoſt as heinous as our Hands, as he did the Spite and Malice of his moſt cruel Perſecutors. Nay, the ſame Apoſtle farther tells us, that We thereby eat and drink Damnation to our ſelves, not diſcerning the Lord's Body: That is, By ſuch an irreverent Approach to this holy Table, and by not diſcerning, or conſidering the difference between this ſacred Banquet and an ordinary Meal, we eat

Diſeaſes, and ſundry kinds of Death. IV. Judge therefore your ſelves, Brethren, that ye be not judged of the Lord; Repent you truly for your Sins paſt; Have a lively and ſtedfaſt Faith in Chriſt our Saviour; Amend your Lives, and be in perfect Charity with all Men, ſo ſhall ye be meet partakers of thoſe holy Myſteries. V. And above all things, ye muſt give moſt humble and hearty Thanks to God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoſt, for the Redemption of the World by the Death and Paſſion of our Saviour Chriſt, both God and man, who did humble himſelf even to the Death upon the Croſs, for us miſerable Sinners, who lay in darkneſs and the ſhadow of death, that he might make us the Children of God, and exalt us to everlaſting Life. VI. And to the end that we ſhould alway remember the exceeding great Love of our Maſter, and only Saviour, Jeſus Chriſt, thus dying for us, and the innumerable Benefits which by his precious bloud-ſhedding he hath obtained to us; he hath inſtituted and ordained holy Myſteries, as Pledges of his Love, and for a continual remembrance of his Death, to our great and endleſs Comfort. VII. To him therefore with the Father, and the Holy Ghoſt, let us give (as we are moſt bounden) continual Thanks, ſubmitting our ſelves wholly to his holy Will and Pleaſure, and ſtudying to ſerve him in true Holineſs and Righteouſneſs all the days of our Life. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay to them that come to receive the holy Communion *,

YE that do truly and earneſtly repent you of your ſins, and are in love and charity with your neighbours, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, and walking from henceforth in his holy ways; Draw near with Faith eat and drink our own Condemnation; by this ſo high a Provocation of bringing very great Puniſhments upon ourſelves. For St. Paul ſays, that, for this Fault committed by the Corinthians, many Temporal Calamities had befaln them; For this cauſe many are weak and ſickly among you, and many ſleep, 1 Cor. 11. 29. Nay, if we die upon the Commiſſion of this Sin unrepented of, we cannot expect any thing leſs than our eternal Condemnation; for this Sin (as all other wilful ſins are) is in its own nature damnable.

The Particulars of Preparation.

IV. Let me therefore my Chriſtian Brethren, give you this Admonition in the Apoſtle's words, If we would judge ourſelves, we ſhould not be judged, 1 Cor. 11. 31. that is, If we would diligently judge and examine our ſelves before we come to the Sacrament, Acts 26. 18. 3. Ye muſt amend your Lives, not only repent of your Sins, and reſolve upon a better Courſe, but enter upon an actual Amendment, for tho' ye may not perhaps yet arrive to an habitual Courſe of Vertue, yet ye muſt enter upon ſome competent Degree of it. 4. Ye muſt be in perfect Charity with all Men; for our Saviour tells us, that when we bring our Gift to the Altar, we muſt firſt be reconciled to our Brother, and then come and offer our Gift, Matt. 5. 23, 24.

Thankfulneſs for Chriſt's Merits.

V. Theſe Qualifications we muſt have, before we come to this Sacrament. But there is yet another moſt principal Qualification which is to be exerciſed, as at other times, ſo more eſpecially in this moſt religious part of our Devotion; and that is a hearty Thankfulneſs for our Redemption by the Death and Paſſion of our bleſſed Lord, who for our ſakes humbled himſelf, and became obedient unto Death, even the Death of the Croſs, Phil. 2. 8. who lay for ſome time, in the dark and doleſom Shadow of the Grave; that we by our Reſurrection might be the Children of God, Luke 20. 36. and, that we believing on him, might have everlaſting Life, John 6. 47.

VI. And indeed it was one of the principal Ends of our Lord's inſtituting the Lord's Supper, that we ſhould exerciſe this Act of Gratitude. For he inſtituted theſe holy Myſteries to be a Pledge or Token to put us in mind of the Benefits which by his Paſſion he has conferred upon us, commanding us to do this in remembrance of him, Luke 22. 19. which indeed ſignifie no more to him, than a bare keeping the Remembrance of his Favours, but confer many Spiritual Graces upon us, which unleſs forfeited and cancelled by our ſubſequent Sins, will tend to our endleſs Comfort and Happineſs in Heaven.

VII. Let us therefore continually pay our moſt humble Thanks (as 'tis our bounden Duty to do after ſo high Obligations received) to our bleſſed Lord, who with the Father and the Holy Ghoſt is one God; by conforming our Lives according to his holy Will, which in the Goſpel is revealed to us; and by bending our whole Minds and Reſolutions to ſerve him, in living holy and godly Lives, not only for a ſhort ſpace of time after this holy Exerciſe, but by perſevering therein conſtantly to our Death.

PARAPHRASE.

Ye that do truly and earneſtly, out of an hearty Senſe of the Anger of God, and the Sadneſs of your Condition, repent you of your Sins, and not Hypocritically, or to ſerve any unworthy Deſign, pretend to do it; who are in Charity with your Neighbours, and do from your Heart forgive every one who has offended you; who, for the future, reſolve to lead a better Life, than you have done, keeping God's Commandments, 1 Cor. 7. 19. and walking in his way, Pſal. 119. 3. do you draw near with Faith in our bleſſed Saviour's Merits, and receive this holy Sacrament, which will bring the greateſt Comfort to you, by Sealing the Pardon of your Sins, and beſtowing the Graces of God's holy Spirit upon you: Therefore to qualifie you the better to partake of theſe Benefits, and to denote the Sincerity of your Repentance, make a publick Confeſſion of your Sins to Almighty God, addreſſing yourſelves to him, in the humbleſt of Poſtures, upon your Knees.

faith, and take this holy Sacrament to your comfort; and make your humble confeſſion to Almighty God, meekly kneeling upon your knees.

¶ Then ſhall this general Confeſſion be made, in the name of all thoſe that are minded to receive the holy Communion, by † one of the Miniſters,  both he and all the people kneeling humbly upon their knees, and ſaying,

I. ALmighty God, Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Maker of all things, Judge of all men; We acknowledge and bewail our manifold ſins and wickedneſs, which we from time to time moſt grievouſly have committed, By thought, word, and deed, Againſt thy divine Majeſty, Provoking moſt juſtly thy wrath and indignation againſt us. II. We do earneſtly repent, And are heartily ſorry for theſe our miſdoings; The remembrance of them is grievous unto us; The burthen of them is intolerable. III. Have mercy upon us, Have mercy upon us, moſt merciful Father; For thy Son our Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, Forgive us all that is paſt, And grant that we may ever hereafter Serve and pleaſe thee In newneſs of life, To the honour and glory of thy Name, Through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

¶ ‡ *Then ſhall the Prieſt ( or the Biſhop being preſent) ſtand up, and turning himſelf to the People, pronounce this Abſolution.

ALmighty God our heavenly Father, who of his great mercy hath promiſed forgiveneſs of ſins to all them that with hearty repentance and true faith turn unto him; Have mercy upon you, pardon and deliver you from all your ſins, confirm and ſtrengthen you in all goodneſs, and bring you to everlaſting life, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay,

I. Hear what comfortable words our Saviour Chriſt ſaith unto all that truly turn to him.

I. O Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, Rom. 15. 6. who madeſt the World, and all things therein, Acts 17. 24. and who hereafter ſhalt judge the World, Rom. 3. 6. We confeſs our Wickedneſſes, and are ſorry for our Sins, Pſal. 38. 18, which by long continuance and frequent Repetition, we have committed againſt thee, in a moſt heinous and aggravating manner. We have by our Thoughts, Words and Actions, provoked thy diſpleaſure; tho' at the ſame time we knew thou wouldſt bring us into Judgment, not only for every evil Deed, 2 Cor. 5. 10. but for every idle Word, Matt. 12. 36. and for every ſecret Thought, Eccl. 12. 14.

II. We paſſionately wiſh and deſire, that we had never been guilty of this Folly and Wickedneſs: we from the bottom of our Hearts are ſorry for our tranſgreſſing thy Laws, and diſobeying thy Will; we cannot endure to think, how we have offended ſo good a God; and the Senſe of ſo many Sins, lies an inſupportable weight upon our Conſciences.

III. But O thou, who art our merciful Father, and full of Bowels and Compaſſion to thy poor Children, have Mercy upon us, have Mercy upon us, Pſal. 57. 1. For thy dear Son's ſake, forgive us all our former Tranſgreſſions, and give us Grace for the future to live a better Life, and with more conformity to thy good Pleaſure; and that this happy Alteration may redound, to thy Honour and Glory. We do not preſume to take upon us the great Honour of being admitted to thy Table, truſting in any Righteouſneſs or Merit which we can pretend to, but only in the many and great Inſtances of thy Mercy ſhewn to thy poor Creatures. Alas! we are ſo far from ſetting any Value, or Worth upon our ſelves, as to think our ſelves Gueſts ſufficiently qualified to come to our Lord's Table, that, with the Syrophænician Woman, we do not think our ſelves worthy, to gather up the Crums under our Maſter's Table, Matt. 15. 27. ## NOTES.

(p) Standing before the Table.] 'Tis quæried by ſome, Whether the Prieſt is to ſay the Conſecration-Prayer ſtanding before the Table, by this Rubrick; or, Whether after having prepared the Elements ſo ſtanding, he is to return to the uſual Place of ſaying the Communion-Service with us, viz. to the North-ſide of the Table? I anſwer, That according to the Rules of Grammar, the Participle ſtanding, muſt refer to the Verb ordered, and not to ſay: ſo that the Prieſt muſt order ſtanding before, &c. and not ſay ſtanding.

But this will be yet clearer, if we conſider, firſt, What the former Rubricks were, before the making of this; and, ſecondly, The Reaſon which is given in this Rubrick.

1. To conſider what the former Rubricks were before the making of this.

In the Miſſale Romanum, from whence a conſiderable part of the Communion-Service is taken, the Prieſt is obliged, almoſt during the whole Service, to turn his Face towards the Altar, ſtanding in the midſt thereof. At his firſt entrance within the Rails, he is obliged by the Popiſh Rubrick, facere debitam reverentiam, with his Face towards it, and ſo to continue till he comes to the Dominus vobiſcum, &c. which Verſicles are to be ſaid by the Prieſt, Verſus in Populum, and no more. Afterwards when the Prefaces are read, he is to lay both Hands upon the Altar, with his Back to the People, Præfatio incipitur ambabus manibus poſitis hinc inde ſuper altare.

And when the Commemorations are made, he is extendere manus & elevare ad cœlum oculos, & ſtatim demittens profundè inclinatus ante altare, which ſtill implies the ſame Poſture, viz. his Face towards the Altar.

When he ſays the Benediction Prayer, he is to tenere manus expanſas ſuper oblata, which muſt be with his Face towards the Altar.

And in this Poſture he is to tenere ambabus manibus hoſtiam inter indices & pollices, when he pronounces the Conſecration words; and ſo likewiſe to adore it after Conſecration. And in this poſture he was to lift it up above his Forehead to be ſeen by the People.

So that from hence it is plain, that the greateſt part of the Romiſh Service was performed with the Prieſt's Face turned to the Altar.

Now our Reformers conceiv'd a diſlike of this Practice, upon ſeveral Accounts; for if the People had underſtood the Language of the Maſs, they could not have heard the Voice of the Prieſt in this Poſture, being directed quite from them.

2. And now let us conſider what they Subſtituted inſtead of this Poſture of celebrating the Communion, in the firſt Book of Edw. VI.

At the beginning of the Communion-Service, Almighty God, to whom all hearts are open, &c. is to be ſaid by the Prieſt humbly ſtanding before the middle of the Altar, without any Poſture mentioned either to the Altar or towards the People.

The General Confeſſion was to be repeated with the Miniſter's Face towards the Table, becauſe the Rubrick before the Abſolution which immediately follows, ſays, Then ſhall the Miniſter ſtand up, and turning himſelf towards the People. When he is to ſay the Prayer next to the Conſecration, We do not preſume, &c. he is, turning himſelf to God's Board, to kneel down.

And how the Conſecration Prayer was recited, is evident from the Rubrick which follows after it: Theſe words before rehearſed (viz. the Conſecration-Prayer) are to be ſaid, turning ſtill to the Altar, without any elevation, or ſhewing the Sacrament to the People.

So that upon the whole, beſides compoſing many new Prayers, and the expunging ſeveral others out of the Miſſale, and the laying aſide many Ceremonies therein, theſe things in particular were exploded: 1. Reverence towards the Altar, there being no Rubrick for it in King Edward's firſt Book. 2. Elevation of the Sacrament. 3. Oſtenſion.

After this Book was eſtabliſhed, the firſt thing moved for, to be altered therein, was to have Altars changed into Tables. Biſhop Hooper firſt motion'd this in a Sermon at Court, ſaying, that as long as Altars remained, ignorant People, and Prieſts, would dream of Sacrifice. Thus an Order of Council was iſſued out for changing Altars into Tables, Anno Edw. VI. 4. 1550. And after that 1551, there was a Review of the Common-Prayer, in which the Rubricks were altered, and the Prieſt, inſtead of performing the Commu-

and take the Cup into his hands, he ſhall ſay the (q) Prayer of Conſecration, as follo-weth.

* ALmighty God, our heavenly Father, who of thy tender mercy didſt give thine only Son Jeſus Chriſt, to ſuffer death, upon the croſs for our redemption, who made there (by his one oblation of himſelf once offered) a full, perfect, and ſufficient ſacrifice, oblation and ſatisfaction for the ſins of the whole world, and did inſtitute, and in his holy Goſpel command us to continue a perpetual memory of that his precious death, until his coming again; † Hear us, O merciful Father, we ‡ moſt hum-

nion-Service ſtanding before the middle of the Altar, was enjoined to perform it ſtanding on the North-ſide of the Table. The preſent Rubrick was likewiſe ſet down in the ſame words we have it, in the laſt Review of the Common-Prayer.

II. But in the next place, I think this Matter will be out of all doubt, if we conſider the Reaſon given in this Rubrick, why the Prieſt ſhould ſtand, at this particular time, before the Altar or Table. The Papiſts had their particular Reaſons, why they ſtood before the Altar, during the time of Conſecration; which was, not to let the People be Eyewitneſſes of their Operation in working their pretended wondrous Miracle: For they would be apt to have leſſer eſteem thereof, whilſt they looked on and ſaw what was done; and therefore they thought it the beſt way to skreen it from the People's Eyes, by the Intervention of the Prieſt's Body. But our Church enjoins the direct contrary, and that for a direct contrary Reaſon. He is to ſtand before the Table indeed, juſt ſo long as he is ordering the Bread and Wine; but after that, he is to go to ſome place where he may break the Bread before the People, which muſt be the North-ſide of the Table, there being, in our preſent Rubrick, no other place mention'd for performing any part of this Sacrament. But to ſay the Conſecration-Prayer (in the recital of which the Bread is broke) ſtanding before the Table, is not to break the Bread before the People; for then the People cannot have a View thereof, which our wiſe Reformers, upon very good Reaſons, ordered they ſhould.

But then again it may be Quæried, Whether the Prieſt muſt ſay the Conſecration Prayer ſtanding or kneeling. I anſwer, Our Church has determined neither. The Scotch Liturgy indeed ſays, The Prieſt ſtanding up ſhall ſay the Prayer of Conſecration; and the Old Common-Prayer-Book, The Prieſt ſtanding up ſhall ſay: but our preſent Common-Prayer-Book obliges the Prieſt only to ſtand whilſt he is ordering the Bread and Wine, but not to ſtand whilſt he is ſaying the Prayer. Now, ſince this is a Prayer, and not a bare Repetition of the words of the Inſtitution, in the Popiſh way, the Poſture of Kneeling is the moſt proper. If it be ſaid, That ſince the Church does not oblige the Miniſter to kneel, it ſuppoſes him to ſtand. I anſwer, That is no Conſequence; for there is not one Rubrick which obliges the Miniſter to kneel in all the Poſt-Communion-Service, and yet I do not know any one that has contended for the Poſture of ſtanding in performance of that part of the Service. However, they are not to be condemned that ſay the Prayer ſtanding, the Rubrick leaving them at liberty, and they having the ancient Rubrick of Queen Elizabeth's Book to countenance them therein. But whenever the Government pleaſes to call for another Review, this Matter would do well to be clearly ſettled, to avoid all Diſputes, and that Miniſters may be obliged to an exact Uniformity.

(q) Prayer of Conſecration.] The Wiſdom of our Reformers, as in other parts of our Liturgy, ſo particularly in drawing up this Service of our Communion, is very remarkable; they keeping from all Extreams of Contending Parties, and adhering to the ancient Practice of the Church. Although the Act of hallowing the Elements is in Scripture-Language called εὐλογία, Bleſſing, Mat. 26. 26. Mar. 14. 2. 1 Cor. 10. 16. and εὐχαριστία, Giving of Thanks, Mat. 26. 27. Luke 22. 19. 1 Cor. 11. 24. but withal, ſince theſe Expreſſions had not for many Ages obtain'd in the Church, and were generally applied to ſignify other things; They thought fit to retain the word Conſecration, it being anciently uſed. And, on the other ſide, They avoid every other word of Antiquity, which had and might be again perverted to a wrong Meaning; ſuch as Mutation, Converſion, Transformation, and the Greek words not unlike theſe, μεταβολὴ, μεταποίησις, μετατοιχείωσις, &c. And ſo again, whereas there was a Contention, what it was that made the change in Elements; whether, as the Roman Church would have it, the bare pronouncing of the Words, This is my Body, or, whether, as ſome Proteſtants ſay, only the Prayer to God to ſanctify them for a Spiritual uſe: Our Church has ordered both a Prayer to God, and alſo the Words of the Inſtitution to be repeated. And for both theſe, ſhe has the Practice of the ancient Church on her ſide. For, as for Prayer, That the Elements were conſecrated with it, and not only by the bare repeating the Inſtitution Words, we have the Teſtimony of Juſtin Martyr, who ſays, that the Bread was εὐχαριστηθὲν διὰ εὐχῆς made the Sacrament or Euchariſt by Prayer. Juſt. Mart. Ap. II. And alſo of Origen, προσαγόμενος ἄρτος εὐχόμεθα, σῶμα γινόμενος διὰ τὴν εὐχὴν. We eat the Bread which is offered, being made a Body by Prayer. Orig. cont. Cel. Lib. 8. And St. Ambroſe, Quotieſcunque Sacramenta ſumimus, quæ per Sacræ Orationis myſterium in carnem transfigurantur. When we eat the Sacrament, which by the Myſtery of Prayer is transfigured into Chriſt's Body. Ambr. de fide. And ſo St. Jerom, Ad Presbyterorum, &c. At the Prayers of the Preſbyters the Body and Blood of Chriſt are made, Ep. 83. Which Paſſages, and many other in ancient Writers of the like kind, ſhew, that the Real Preſence of Chriſt's Body and Blood, was owing chiefly to the Prayer of the Church. But beſides the Prayer, there was added in the Primitive Church, the Words of the Inſtitution of this Sacrament, as is clear from the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions, Lib. VIII. cap. 12. where not only the words of the Inſtitution, but the Conſecration Prayer is expreſſed almoſt exactly as ours is. The words of the Inſtitution are recited likewiſe in the Liturgies of St. James and St. Mark, Chryſoſtom and Baſil. St. Ambroſe, in anſwer to the Queſtion, Cujus Sermone benedictio fiat? By whoſe words is the Conſecration made? ſays, Verbis & Sermone Domini Jeſu, By the Words and Speech of Jeſus Chriſt. By which, and many other Paſſages of Antiquity, is to be underſtood all the Evangelical Hiſtory of the Inſtitution, accompanied with the Prayers of the Church, and not the Words, This is my Body, as the Papiſts do pretend: For in the Romiſh Miſſal all the other parts of the Inſtitution have little or nothing to do in the Conſecration; which, as Bellarmin ſays, Utiliter adhibentur, but that they have no force in them to make it a Sacrament, Bell. Lib. 4. de Miſſ. cap. 12.

It is likewiſe further to be obſerved, that our Church has avoided here the Cuſtom which has prevailed in the Romiſh Church, that contrary to all ancient Practice has enjoined, the pronouncing the Inſtitution with a low Voice, which is not to be heard of the People; for all the ancient Liturgies order it to be ſaid, ἐκφώνως, with a loud Voice. And Juſtinian, in his Novels, orders it to be read not in ſilence, and in a low manner, but with a clear Voice, as all the Faithful People may hear the ſacred Oblation. Nov. 133.

* Note, This Prayer is continued with the Prayer for the whole State of Chriſt's Church, in the firſt Book of Edw. VI.

NOTES.

(r) The Paten.] The Paten is the Plate in which the Sacred Bread is laid. The Original Word, which is Patena, ſignifies a wide open Diſh. Thus Columella ſpeaks of lata vaſa in modum patenarum, Lib. I. And its diminutive Patella is of more common uſe. In the more Primitive Times, when the Chriſtians were but of mean Condition, and their State of Perſecution would not allow them to pretend to any thing that was Magnificent, the Sacramental Bread was laid only upon a Plate made of Oſiers or Wood. Thus St. Jerom ſpeaks of Ruſticus, as one too Parſimonious for the Plenty of that Time: Nihil illo ditius, qui Corpus Domini caniſtro vimineo, ſanguinem portat in vitro. No one richer than he; and yet he carries the Lord's Body on a Wickow Plate, and his Blood in a Glaſs Cup. Ep. IV. ad Ruſt. After this (as Walafridus Strabo writes, and the Council of Tribur witneſſes) Pope Zephirinus, about the Year 230, brought in the uſe of Glaſs Patens, de Reb. Eccl. cap. 14. But in the Council of Rhemes, which was held in the Year 813, as 'tis quoted by Gratian, Can. ut Calix. de Conſecr. Diſt. 1. 'tis ordered, that Patens and Chalices ſhould be made either of Gold or Silver. But this was the Cuſtom before in the Churches of wealthy Cities. Vid. Chryſ. Hom. 16. ad Eph. & 61 ad Pop. Ant. S. Aug. Con. 2. in Pſal. 113.

(ſ) Break the Bread.] Before the uſe of Wafers was brought into the Church, breaking the Bread was uſed, as more agreeable to our Saviour's Practice, and an apter Repreſentation of his Sufferings. Hence thoſe frequent Expreſſions in uſe among the ancient Greek Writers of κλάσματα, the broken Pieces of the Bread, μερίδες, the ſmall Parts or Bits. Irenæus ſays, Quando mixtus calix & fractus panis, &c. When the mingled Cup and the broken Bread does perceive the Word of God, it is made the Euchariſt of the Body and Blood of Chriſt. Iren. Lib. V. cap. 4. So St. Auſtin, Serm. CXL. de Tempore, Ubi voluit Chriſtus agnoſci in fractione panis, ſecuti ſumus: panem fregimus & Dominum agnoſcimus. Whereas Chriſt was pleaſed to let himſelf be known in breaking of Bread, we follow his Example; we break Bread and acknowledge Chriſt. To the like purpoſe, Clemens Alexandrinus, Strom. Lib. I. Τὴν εὐχαριστίαν τινὲς διανέμαντες, ὡς ἔθος, ἀνὰ ἕκαστον τῶ λαῶ λαβεῖν τὴν μοῖραν ὑπερέπεσον. When the Prieſts, as the Cuſtom is, have divided the Sacramental Bread, they ſuffer every one of the People to take a piece. As alſo St. Chryſoſtom, Ὃ γὰρ οὐκ ἔπαθεν ὑπὲρ τοῦ σταυροῦ, τοῦτο πάσχει ὑπὲρ τῆς προσφορᾶς διά σε καὶ ἀνέχεται διακλώμενος ἵνα πάντας ἐμπλήσῃ. What he did not ſuffer on the Croſs, he does for thy ſake ſuffer in the Oblation; and permits himſelf to be broken that he may fill us all. Chryſ. Hom. XXIV. in 1 Ep. ad Cor. St. Cyprian in his Book on the Lord's-Supper ſays, Hæc quoties agimus non dentes ad mordendum acuimus, ſed fide ſincerâ panem ſanctum frangimus & partimur. As oft as we do this Action, we do not ſo much whet our Teeth to bite, as by Faith we break and divide it. Which tho' perhaps meant of the breaking between the Teeth, (i. e.) Eating, is nevertheleſs an Alluſion to the Cuſtom of Breaking and Dividing the Sacramental Bread. This ancient Uſage of breaking the Bread, was firſt altered by the Greeks, who brought in a way of Cutting it; for which purpoſe they provided an Iron Inſtrument called λογχὴ, or the Spear, being ſomething like a Chiſſel, with a long handle, by which they chopped a flat Cake of Bread into pieces; hereby pretending to exhibit a Repreſentation, of our Saviour's Side being pierced by the Soldier's Spear. Vid. Cabaſil. de Sacr. Euch. in VI. Tom. Bibl. Patr. But in the Church of Rome the Breaking of the Bread, in order to communicate it among the Faithful, is quite vaniſhed; the Prieſt only divides the Sacrificial Wafer, in a Superſtitious way, into three Parts, which he eats up himſelf; but the Wafers which are deliver'd to the Communicants are all entire.

(t) Chalice.] The Cup, which the Conſecrated Wine is deliver'd in, is call'd by this Name. That in the earlier Times of Chriſtianity the Chalices were made of Wood, is evident from that remarkable Paſſage in the Council of Tribur, as 'tis mention'd in Gratian. Decr. de Conſecr. Diſt. 1. cap. 44. Vaſa in quibus, &c. The Veſſels in which the Holy Myſteries are performed are Chalices and Patens, of which Boniface, Martyr and Biſhop, being once asked, if it were lawful to conſecrate in wooden Chalices, he made this Anſwer; Formerly Golden Prieſts made uſe of Wooden Chalices, but now Wooden Prieſts do conſecrate in Gold. About the ſecond Century they began to leave off the Wooden Chalices, unleſs in very poor Churches, and to uſe Glaſs ones, or ſome finely cut out of Marble; this uſe is ſaid to be brought in by Zephirinus, Biſhop of Rome, after the Year 200. Of theſe Glaſs Chalices Tertullian, in his Book de Pudicitia, takes notice. And of this ſort muſt that Chalice be which Athanaſius was accuſed to have broken in his Paſſion. Ath. Apol. 2. Upon theſe Glaſs Chalices in Tertullian's Time, which was the beginning of the Third Century, there ſeems to have been Engraved or Painted, the Picture of our Saviour, or the Good Shepherd carrying his Lamb upon his Shoulders, as Pamelius interprets the Place, Procedant ipſæ Picturæ calicum veſtrorum, &c. And I dont' ſee what Le Prieur, and others have ſaid againſt this Interpretation to diſprove it. When the Government became Chriſtian, Golden and Silver Chalices came in uſe. Anaſtaſius, in the Life of Silveſter, ſays, That to the Church which Conſtantine built at Rome, he gave a Silver Paten weighing twenty Pound, and twenty Miniſterial Chalices to deliver the Wine in, weighing three

¶ † Then ſhall the Miniſter firſt receive the Communion in both kinds himſelf, and then proceed to (u) deliver the ſame to the Biſhops, Prieſts, and Deacons in like manner (if any be preſent) and after that to the people alſo in order, (w) into their hands, (x) all meekly kneeling. * And when he delivereth the bread to any one, he ſhall ſay, three Pounds a piece. And the ſame Writer, in the Life of Adrian, ſays, That he gave a Paten and a Chalice to St. Peter's of Rome, made of pure Gold, weighing together twenty four Pounds. And indeed the Furniture of the Altars in thoſe Times was ſo pompous, that it drew the Envy of the Heathen upon the Chriſtians, and occaſioned that Remark of the Quæſtor Felix recorded in Theodoret Eccl. Hiſt. Lib. III. cap. 12. who ſeeing ſo many coſtly Veſſels of Silver and Gold in the Temple of Antioch, cried out, With what ſumptuous Veſſels do they miniſter to the Son of Mary! By a Canon of the Council of Rhemes, in Charles the Great's Time, all Churches were obliged to have Chalices of ſome purer Metal. Wooden Cups are forbid becauſe of their Poroſity, Glaſs ones becauſe they are ſo liable to be broken, Brazen ones becauſe of their ill ſmell; therefore this Council enjoins, That every Paten and Chalice, if it be not of Gold, muſt be at leaſt of Silver or Tin. Conc. Rhemenſ. Can. 6. The ancient Chalices were of two kinds, the Greater, which were in the nature of our Flagons, containing a large quantity of Wine, which was all conſecrated in them together; and the Leſſer, which were otherwiſe called Miniſteriales, becauſe the Prieſt delivered the Wine to be drank out of them: For Communion in one kind was not then invented by the Romiſh Church; for thoſe twenty Miniſterial Chalices, which Conſtantine gave to the Church that he built at Rome, were ſomething too many for the Prieſts, who officiated in that Church to drink out of; but were few enough for ſo vaſt a Communion as there muſt be in that populous City.

hibits Laymen receiving within the Rails, and appeals to ancient Canons for this Prohibition. By the Fourth Council of Toledo, A.D. 633. it was ordered, that Prieſt and Deacons ſhould communicate in the Place of the Altar, the reſt of the Church-Officers in the Quire, and the Laity in the Body of the Church. Conc. Tol. IV. Can. 17. This gave the occaſion to the Diſtinction between Eccleſiaſtical and Lay-Communion, the one whereof was within the Precincts of the Altar, the other within the Body of the Church; which the Papiſts have ridiculouſly perverted, to denote Communion in one and both kinds, without any Ground, and contrary to innumerable Teſtimonies of Antiquity; and which at laſt the faireſt of their Writers have been forced to give up. Albaſp. Obſerv. Eccl. Lib. I. cap. 2. Pamel. in Cypr. Ep. 52. Lorin. in Act. Apoſt. cap. 2.

(w) Into their hands] Tho' it had been a Cuſtom for a conſiderable time, in the corrupter Ages of Chriſtianity, to have the Prieſt put the Bread or Wafer into the Mouths of the Communicants; yet it being otherwiſe in the Primitive Times, our Reformers thought fit to reduce the manner of Adminiſtration to the ancient Practice. For we read in Euſebius, Eccl. Hiſt. Lib. VII. cap. 9. that Dionyſius of Alexandria, who flouriſhed in the Year of our Lord 250, ſpeaking of one that received the Holy Sacrament, ſays, that he was τραπέζῃ παρατιθεὶς, καὶ χεῖρας εἰς ὑποδοχὴν ἑτοίμας τεθῆναι προτείνοντα, καὶ τάυτην καλαδεξάμενον, &c. That he ſtood at the Table, reaching out his hand to receive the ſacred Food, and taking it, &c. The like is confirm'd by that of St. Cyprian, who in his Treatiſe de Lapſis, ſpeaking of an unworthy Communicant, ſays, Quod non ſtatim Domini Corpus inquinatis manibus accipiat. That he may not immediately take the Lord's Body into his defiled hands. St. Gregory Nazianzen, ſpeaking of Julian the Apoſtate, ſays, that by the Idol-Sacrifices he did ἰδίας χεῖρας ἀφαγίοις, pollute thoſe hands which he had formerly received the Euchariſt in. Orat. I. in Julianum. St. Ambroſe asketh Theodoſius after his great Crime, Πῶς ἰδίας χεῖρας ἐκτενεῖς, &c. How will you ſtretch out thoſe hands which are yet reaking with innocent Blood? How will you with thoſe hands receive the ſacred Body of our Lord? Theod. Lib. V. cap. 17. About the Year 600 of Chriſt, the ἐγχείρησις, or putting the Sacrament into the hand of the Communicant, began to be left off, and the μετάδοσις, or putting into the Mouth to take place, as the Adoration of the Sacrament, and other Superſtitious Regards paid thereunto came in vogue. But however this was only a voluntary uſe in ſome Churches, it not having any Countenance from Synodical Authority till the Council of Roan, which was held A.D. 895, which expreſly enjoins, Cap. 2. Nulli Laico aut Fœminæ Euchariſtiam in manus ponendam, ſed tantum in os ejus. The Euchariſt is not to be put into the hand of any Laick or Woman, but only into their Mouth.

(x) All meekly kneeling.] This Injunction of our Church is oppoſed by ſome Perſons, who have the unhappineſs to diſſent from us, with greater vehemency than any part almoſt of our Conſtitution beſides; it having frequently no better Name given it than Popiſh Idolatry, and Antichriſtian Superſtition. But ſuch Objectors ſhould do well to obſerve, that our Saviour has no where in his Goſpel eſtabliſhed any particular Poſture of receiving this Holy Sacrament in, but has left it entirely to be ſettled by the Governours of his Church. He has indeed commanded us to eat and drink this in remembrance of him; but whether we ſhould do this either lying down, or ſtanding, or ſitting, there is no foorſteps of any Command in the Holy Scriptures. Our Oppoſers indeed pretend, that we ought, as they do, to conform ourſelves to the Pattern of Chriſt, in his adminiſtration of the Sacrament to the Apoſtles. But this they themſelves do not do; for our Saviour, according to the Cuſtom which then obtained, did not ſit but lie along. And by the ſame reaſon, the number of the Communicants ſhould be preciſely Twelve, and they ſhould celebrate only in an upper Room. Now if They have Authority to change the Poſture of Lying into Sitting, why may not We as well change it into Kneeling. But they tell us, that ſuch a Poſture ought only to be uſed, as is proper to a Meal or a Banquet. And we ſay, that there are many Poſtures and ways of Behaviour, which do very well become a Meal, but would very ill become the Holy Communion. For that Mirth and Jollity, and pleaſantneſs of Converſation, which are uſual in Feaſts, would be very Profane at the Adminiſtration of this bleſſed Sacrament. And if we do with good reaſon baniſh ſuch Actions from this Sacred Feaſt, why may we not lay aſide Sitting likewiſe, as too bold and confident a Poſture, or at leaſt not humble enough to preſent ourſelves in before God? But beſides this, they ſhould obſerve, That this Sacrament is not only a Feaſt, but a Federal Rite to receive us into Grace with God, after having violated our Baptiſmal Vow; and, That it is a Token or Pledge, whereby we teſtifie our Union with Chriſt our Head, and our Brotherly Charity to our Fellow-Chriſtians; which ought to be reſembled by other Marks than barely that of a Table-Poſture, which which has relation only to the Commemorative Part of this Sacrament. Now ſince, at this time, we are ſorrowing for our Sins, and earneſtly deſiring Pardon for them, methinks the familiar Poſture which we uſe at the Merriment of a Feaſt, ſhould little become a Soul weighed down with the Senſe of having offended ſo gracious a God. For what Poſture of Body can be too humble, to be uſed by a Perſon under thoſe Thoughts? Certainly, whilſt God is reaching forth our Pardon to us, after ſuch Provocation, we ought not to receive it with ſuch an undecent and unregardleſs Poſture, as that of Sitting. If our Prince, after being Rebels to him, ſhould think fit to hold out a Pardon to us, we ſhould receive it upon our Knees, at leaſt in a more becoming manner, than without any outward ſign of Reverence to take it from our Seat. And if a Man ſhould refuſe to kneel before his Prince in ſuch a caſe, for fear of Idolizing him, his Execution would be little pitied which he ſhould bring upon himſelf, by ſuch an unreaſonable Scrupuloſity. Now can any one think that as much Reſpect is not owing to Almighty God, whilſt he is conveying to us our Pardon of eternal Puniſhment, as to a worldly Prince, whilſt he is remitting a temporary Penalty? Add to this, That the Poſture of ſitting at the Sacrament was never heard of, in all the Primitive Ages; for they either receiv'd it Standing or Kneeling, but as for Sitting it was never dreamed of by any of them: for if any Heretick had introduced this, they would have avoided him, and cried out againſt him as the greateſt of Monſters. Nay, there are ſome probable Reaſons to perſwade us, that Kneeling was uſed in the moſt ancient Times; for elſe what can be the meaning of that Injunction of the Council of Nice, Ἐπειδήν τίνες ἐισὶν ἐν τῇ Κυριακῇ γόνυ κλίνοντες καὶ ἐν ταῖς τῆς Πεντηκοστῆς ἡμέραις, ἵνα πάντα ἐν πάσῃ παροικίᾳ, φυλάττεσθαι, ἔδοξε τῇ ἁγίᾳ συνόδῳ τὰς εὐχὰς ἀνατείνειν τῷ Θεῷ. Becauſe ſome on the Lord's-Day, within the time of Pentecoſt do kneel; That there may be the ſame uniform order obſerved in all Dioceſes, it has pleaſed the Holy Synod to enjoin, that in all Dioceſes every one ſhould pray ſtanding during that time. Con. Nic. Can. 20. So Tertullian, Die Dominico jejunium neſas ducimus, vel de Geniculis adorare. We think it a great Crime to keep a Faſt on Sunday, or to pray to God kneeling. Tert. de Cor. Mil. cap. 3. Now what other reaſon can there be, that among the Ancients, when the Sacrament was celebrated every Day, upon Sundays and the Days between Eaſter and Whitſuntide, it ſhould be ordered for them to ſtand in their Aſſemblies, unleſs at other times they kneel'd? 'Tis reported of Gorgonia, Siſter to Gregory Nazianzen, that ſhe did τῷ δυπαστείῳ προσπίπτειν, fall down devoutly at the Altar; which would hardly have been ſaid of her, unleſs that Poſture had been commonly uſed at the Communion. Nor, laſtly, is Kneeling ſo much Popiſh, and ſitting ſo little ſo, as ſome Imagine; for to ſit at the Sacrament is the Poſture of the Pope himſelf, when he communicates. Durandus de Div. Off. Lib. IV. cap. 54. and if Kneeling muſt be laid aſide, becauſe the ordinary Papiſts uſe it, methinks Sitting ſhould rather be aboliſhed, which is defiled by the practice of the Man of Sin himſelf.

And the ſame Order ſhall be uſed all other days, whenſoever the People be accuſtomably aſſembled to pray in the Church, and none diſpoſed to communicate with him.* 1 E. Edw. VI.

PARAPHRASE.

O All-powerful God, who art the Giver of all Wiſdom, Prov. 2. 6. who art able to do exceeding abundantly more than we can ask or think, Eph. 3. 20. who knoweſt our Wants before we ask them, and our want of Prudence to ask thoſe things that are fitting for us: We beſeech thee to Forgive the Infirmities and Imperfections, which we diſcover in our Devotions, and to ſupply us with ſeveral good things, which out of a Senſe of our Sins, and unworthy Behaviour towards thee, we dare not have the Confidence and Preſumption to requeſt of thee; and to beſtow upon us other Favours, which out of our Forgetfulneſs and Spiritual Blindneſs, we cannot think to call upon thee for; not denying them to us, upon account of our Unworthineſs to receive them, but granting them for the Worthineſs and ineſtimable Merits of our Bleſſed Lord and Saviour. Amen.

PARAPHRASE.

O God, of infinite Power and Goodneſs, who in thy holy Word haſt promiſed that, whatever we ſhall ask in Chriſt's Name, thou wilt give us, John 16. 23. We beſeech thee, out of thy great Mercy, favourably to hear us, who have this day, in the publick Congregation of thy holy People, offered up our Prayers to thee; and to grant, that what we have asked in this days Devotions (agreeable to the neceſſary Qualifications of acceptable Prayer with an hearty Faith, Matt. 21. 22. and with a Reſignation to thy Will, 1 John 5. 14.) we may have it by thy Goodneſs beſtowed upon us; that our Wants thereby may be relieved, and the Glory of thy Bounty may be further diſplayed. And this we beg for Jeſus Chriſt his ſake. Amen.

NOTES.

(a) Sundays and other Holidays.] It muſt be obſerved, that in the moſt early Times of Chriſtianity, the Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper was celebrated every Day. For this may be gathered from the ſecond Chapter of the Acts, where it is ſaid, that thoſe firſt Chriſtians continued ſtedfaſtly in the Apoſtles doctrine and fellowſhip, and in breaking of bread and in prayers. They continued daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from houſe to houſe, v. 46. Which breaking of bread, the Syriack and Arabick Tranſlations interpret the Euchariſt. This Cuſtom continued for ſeveral Ages in the Primitive Church; for being then under a State of Perſecution, they uſed this as a heavenly Comfort and Support under their Perils, and as a Viaticum, as they called it, to ſubſiſt upon in their Journey to Heaven. Therefore St. Cyprian ſays, Euchariſtiam quotidie ad cibum ſalutis accipimus. We daily receive the Euchariſt for the food of our Salvation. Cyp. de Or. Dom. So Euſebius, Demonſt. Evang. Lib. I. cap. 10. Εἰκότως γε τῦ σώμα[Θ] αὐτῦ καὶ τῦ αἵμα[Θ] τὴν ὑπόμνησιν ὀσημέραι ἐπιτελῦμεν. We do very well in every day celebrating the Commemoration of Chriſt's Body and Blood. Which Uſage was continued down in many Places, to the Time of St. Auſtin, Jerom, and Chryſoſtom. St. Auſtin ſays, Sacramentum ſanguinis & Corporis Chriſti alicubi quotidiè fieri. The Sacrament of Chriſt's Body and Blood is in ſome places every day received. Aug. Ep. 118. So St. Jerom writes, Scio Romæ hanc eſſe conſuetudinem, ut fideles ſemper Chriſti corpus accipiant, quod nec reprehendo nec probo. I know it to be the Cuſtom at Rome for the faithful to receive the Sacrament every day, which Cuſtom I neither blame nor commend. Hier. Ep. 50. Which Cuſtom, by the way, the good Man would have blamed, if he had foreſeen that the Church of Rome would have brought in, as they have done ſince, ſolitary Communion, and all the extravagant Practices and Opinions which depend upon it. The like Practice is obſerved by St. Chryſoſtom, in his Time: Τί; ἡμεῖς καθ' ἑκάστην ἡμέραν οὐ προσφέρομεν; προσφέρομεν μέν, ἀλλ' ἀνάμνησιν ποιύμενοι τῦ θανάτυ χρισῦ. What? don't we offer every day? we do offer, in making remembrance of the Death of Chriſt. Chryſ. Hom. 13. Heb. In later Ages the daily Communion was leſs frequent, and in ſome places they communicated four Days in a Week; which was a Cuſtom in St. Baſil's Time; Baſil. Ep. ad Cæſar. In Epiphanius's Time the Communion was on Wedneſdays, Fridays, and Sundays; for which Uſage he pretends to vouch Apoſtolical Practice: Συνάξεις ὁπτελύμεναι παρὰ ἡμῖν εἰσιν ἀπὸ τῶν Ἀποστόλων, τετράδι καὶ παρασκευῇ καὶ κυριακῇ. Our Communions are celebrated by Apoſtolical appointment, on the fourth Day of the Week, on the Eve of the Sabbath, and on the Lord's-day. Epiph. Brevii Expoſ. Fidei. Afterwards we find that the Euchariſt was celebrated only on Sundays, unleſs upon Saints-days, which might happen upon ſome other Day in the Week. For this appears to be the Practice of the Churches of Spain, at leaſt when the fourth Council of Toledo was held, viz. A. D. 681. But there was a Sacrament upon Saint's-days in St. Baſil's Time, when Communions were oftner in the Week: Ἡμεῖς μὲν τοίνυν τέτταρσιν καθ' ἑκάστην ἑβδομάδα κοινωνῦμεν ἐν τῇ κυριακῇ, ἐν τῇ τετράδι, καὶ ἐν τῇ παρασκευῇ, καὶ τῷ σαββάτῳ, καὶ ἐν ταῖς ἄλλαις ἡμέραις, ἐὰν ἡ μνήμη μάρτυρός τινος. We Communicate every Week, upon the Lord's-Day, on the fourth Day, on the Preparation, and the Sabbath, and on other Days when a Martyr is commemorated. Baſ. Ep. ad Cæſ. Sundays, however, in thoſe middle Ages, being the moſt uſual Day for the Communion, it was decreed by the Councils of Trullo

¶ ‡ And there ſhall be no celebration of the Lord's Supper, except there be a convenient number to communicate with the Prieſt, according to his diſcretion.

¶ † And if there be not above twenty perſons in the Pariſh of diſcretion to receive the Communion; yet there ſhall be no Communion, except (b) four (or three at the leaſt) communicate with the Prieſt.

¶ And in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches and Colledges, where there are many Prieſts and Deacons, they ſhall all receive the Communion with the Prieſt every Sunday at the leaſt, except they have a reaſonable cauſe to the contrary.

¶ * And to take away all occaſion of diſſenſion, and ſuperſtition, which any Perſon hath or might have concerning the Bread and Wine, it ſhall ſuffice that the Bread be ſuch as (c) is uſual to be eaten; but the beſt and pureſt Wheat Bread that conveniently may be gotten.

¶ † And

and Antioch, That thoſe who paſſed over three Sundays together, without receiving the Euchariſt, ſhould be Excommunicated. Vid. Wal. Strab. de reb. Eccl. cap. 20. It muſt be ſaid that the Latin Church, in ſeveral places, kept up the daily Communion, when it was laid down by the Greeks, tho' they laboured oftentimes under great Difficulties to get Communicants to them. Hence that Expoſtulation of St. Ambroſe, if that Book be his: Quotidianus eſt panis, cur poſt annum illum ſumis quemadmodum Græci in oriente facere conſueverunt? Accipe quotidie, quod quotidie tibi proſit. Sic vive ut quotidie merearis accipere. If the Bread, (i. e. the Sacrament) be daily, why doſt thou receive it once a Year, as the Greeks in the Eaſt have gotten a Cuſtom to do? Take that every Day, which every Day will profit thee. Live ſuch a Life, as that thou mayſt be fit to receive every Day. Ambr. de Sacram. Lib. V. cap. 4. Before the Year 700, daily Communions being ſtill kept up in the Latin Church, the practice of Solitary Maſſes began; the Prieſt then communicating himſelf, without a Congregation, a new Doctrine being invented of the Sacrifice of the Maſs, and the Abſents partaking of the Benefit of that Sacrifice. Our Reformers laying aſide theſe Abuſes, were willing to adapt their new Liturgy to the ancient Uſages of the Church, as much, at leaſt, as the latter Ages could well bear, reduced the number of Communion-days to that of Sundays and Holy-days, drawing up a Service for every one of them, to be uſed entirely upon thoſe Days, when a ſufficient number of Communicants could be had; or only part thereof, when there were few or no Communicants. I know this part of our Service is objected againſt by our Adverſaries, as a Mock-Communion, and a ſhew of Adminiſtring the Sacrament without any deſign of doing it. But it ſhould be conſidered, That the Framers of our Liturgy had no reaſon to lay aſide this part of the Communion-Service, when the Sacrament was omitted, upon account of the Peoples not coming to it; They did with greater Prudence enjoin the reading ſome part of it, that the Miniſter might ſhew his Readineſs to do his Duty, if the People were not forward to do theirs. Beſides, this part of the Service reſpects the Non-Communicants, as well as thoſe who do receive.

This Service was called in the ancient Liturgies the Miſſa Catechumenorum, that part of the Communion Service which the Catechumens, who were not admitted to the Reception of the Euchariſt, were allowed to be at: and why it ſhould not now be a part of the Devotion of thoſe who do not Communicate, I think it cannot by any good Argument be proved. The recital of the Ten Commandments is ſuch an excellent part of Admonition and help to Contrition for all devout Minds, nay, ſuch an excellent Bar againſt Popery, that the reading them once a Sunday, or now and then upon an Holy-day, ſhould be grudged by no one. The Goſpels give an entire Account of our Saviour's Life, and being read upon ſtated Days, and once over every Year, imprint the Sacred Hiſtory more firmly on the Minds of People, than when they are read in Chapters. The Epiſtles are ſome choice part of the Apoſtolical Writings, containing ſome remarkable Doctrine, fitted for the Edification of the People. The Prayer for the Queen, and the Nicene Creed, I hope have no harm in them. And to take them all together, they are excellently ſuited to Devotion and Edification. So that, in ſhort, if this part of the Service were omitted upon ordinary Sundays and Holy-days, our Liturgy would not be ſo perfect, by many degrees, as it is. But, however, this is not a Practice of our Church alone, both Greek and Latin Churches affording warrant therein. Socrates relates it as an ancient Cuſtom of the Church of Alexandria to do the ſame: ἀυθις δὲ ἐν Ἀλεξανδρείᾳ τῇ πεῤάδι καὶ τῇ λεγομένῃ παρασκευῇ χαφάϊδες ἀναγινώσκονται, καὶ οἱ διδάσκαλοι ταῦτα ἑρμηνέυουσι, πάντα δὲ τὰ συνάξεως γίνεται, δίχα τῆς μυςηίων τελευτῆς. Καὶ τοῦτο ἐςὶν ἐν Ἀλεξανδρείᾳ ἔθος ἀρχαῖον. In Alexandria upon Wedneſdays and Fridays, the Scriptures are read, and our Teachers expound them, and all things are done as in the Communion, but only conſecrating the Myſteries. Socr. Hiſt. Lib. V. cap. 21. The like was the Practice of the Latin Church; for Durandus, Lib. 4. cap. 1. gives direction how the Miſſa Sicca, i. e. the Communion-Service, without any Communion is to be read: Poteſt Epiſtolam, &c. He may read the Epiſtle and Goſpel, and Lord's-Prayer, and give the Bleſſing.

Edw. VI.

† Alſo that the receiving of the Sacrament of the bleſſed Body and Blood of Chriſt may be moſt agreeable to the Inſtitution thereof, and to the uſage of the Primitive Church, in all Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, there ſhall always ſome communicate with the Prieſt that miniſtreth. And that the ſame may be alſo obſerved every where abroad in the Country, ſome one at leaſt of that Houſe in every Pariſh, to whom by courſe, after the Ordinance herein made, it appertains to offer for the charges of the Communion, or ſome other whom they ſhall provide to offer for them, ſhall receive the Holy Communion with the Prieſt; the which may be better done, for that they know before when their courſe cometh, and may therefore diſpoſe themſelves to the worthy receiving of the Sacrament. And with him or them, who doth ſo offer the Charges of the Communion, all others, who be then godly diſpoſed thereunto, ſhall likewiſe receive the Communion. And by this means the Miniſter, having always ſome to communicate with him, may accordingly ſolemnize ſo high and holy Myſteries, with all the Suffrages and due Order appointed for the ſame. And the Prieſt, in the Week-day ſhall forbear to celebrate the Communion, except he have ſome that will communicate with him. 1 B. Ed. VI.

* For avoiding all matters and occaſion of diſſenſion, it is meet that the Bread prepared for the Communion be made, through all this Realm, after one ſort and faſhion, that is to ſay, unleavened and round, as it was afore, but without all manner of print, and ſomething more large and thicker than it was, ſo that it may be aptly divided into divers pieces; and every one ſhall be divided into two pieces at the leaſt, or more, by the diſcretion of the Miniſter, and ſo diſtributed. And men muſt not think leſs to be received in part, than in the whole, but in each of them the whole Body of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. 1 B. Edw. VI.

NOTES.

(b) Or three at the leaſt.] Our Church being willing to keep off every thing which might contribute to bringing in uſe of private Maſs again, and withal deſirous that good diſpoſed Perſons might have the Comfort of receiving the Holy Communion as frequently as may be, has allowed the Congregation in which it may be received, to be as ſmall as can make a Publick Aſſembly, and that is three or four; that is, three at leaſt. Herein having regard to thoſe words of our Saviour, Where two or three are gathered together in my Name, there I am in the midſt of them. Mat. 18. 20.

(c) Bread be ſuch as is uſual to be eaten.] This Rubrick is ſet down in oppoſition to the Practice of Roman and Greek Churches, in late Ages, to uſe Wafers. For it is certain that our Saviour, in delivering the Sacrament to his Diſciples, uſed the common Bread. And there is no trace in Antiquity, of Wafers being uſed, till the Eleventh Century. We meet with them indeed in Durandus his Rationale, written about the Year 1280. But they were not not all ſtamped with Crucifixes as they are now. All of them, he ſays, were formâ rotundâ, round like a Peny; on ſome of them were printed forma & Nomen Imperatoris noſtri, i. e. Chriſt's Image and Name; others, agnum figurare, had the Holy Lamb upon them; but he allows the ancient Cuſtom to be otherways, cap. 25. Honorius Auguſtodunenſis, who lived towards the beginning of that Century, in his Book de Gemmâ animæ, mentions theſe in modum denarii formari, to be made ſmall like a Peny. This indeed had been in faſhion in many places a good while before that time; but was oppoſed at the firſt coming in by wiſe Men. Bertoldus Conſtantienſis, who wrote his Book de Ordine Romano, about the Year 1077, ſaw this fooliſh Cuſtom of Wafers a creeping in his Time, but ſpeaks of them with a great deal of Contempt, as very ridiculous things: Si nihil omnino fieri debet intra vel extra Templum Domini abſque menſurâ & ratione, videntur oblatarum minutiæ, ad Chriſtum & Eccleſiam nihil pertinere, quia ſunt abſque menſurâ & ratione. If nothing ought to be done in the Temple of God without Meaſure and Reaſon, theſe little Pittances of offering Cakes have nothing to do with Chriſt and his Church, becauſe they are without Meaſure and Reaſon. When our Reformation was firſt made, the Biſhops thought fit to redreſs as much of this Innovation as the Times would then bear; and therefore in the firſt Book of Edward VI. it was ordered, That the Bread ordered for the Communion ſhould be of one ſort and faſhion, that is to ſay, unleavened Bread, as it was before, but without all manner of Print, and ſomewhat more large and thicker than it was, ſo that it may be aptly divided into two pieces. But in the following Reformation it was altered into ſuch as is uſual to be eaten at the Table with other Meats. In the Review 1662, into ſuch Bread as is uſual to be eaten.

ſtles Time, or a great while afterwards. Indeed, in the beginning of the Third Century, there ſtarted up an odd Cuſtom among ſeveral of the Laity, to carry out of the Church with them ſome part of the Conſecrated Bread and Wine; which they kept by them, to be a Preſervative to them in any extraordinary Trial which might befal them, many of which they were conſtantly ſubject to in that time of Perſecution. This Cuſtom Tertullian refers to: Non Sciat Maritus (i. e. Gentilis) quid ſecretò ante omnem cibum guſtes. Et ſi ſciverit panem, non illum credit eſſe, qui dicitur. Don't let your Gentile Husband know, what it is which you ſecretly taſte, before you receive any other Food. And if he know it to be Bread, he does not believe it to be what it is called. Tert. Lib. II. ad Ux. The ſame Practice is acknowledged by St. Cyprian, de Lapſis; by St. Ambroſe, de ob. Fratris; by St. Baſil, Ep. ad Cæſ. But this private Reſervation of the Euchariſt giving Birth to ſeveral bad and ſuperſtitious Practices, it was decreed by the Council of Saragoſſa, which was held A.D. 381, That if it could be proved upon any one, that he had taken the Euchariſt, and not ſwallowed it, he ſhould be perpetually Excommunicated. The ſame Canon was inforced by the firſt Council of Toledo, about thirty or forty Years after; and laſtly, by the Capitulars of Charles the Great. And thus this private Reſervation of the Elements vaniſhed.

Another ſort of Reſervation of the Elements very anciently obtained, and that was by Publick Order, for the Benefit of ſick and other abſent Perſons, who could not be preſent at the Publick Communion. This Practice was as ancient as Juſtin Martyr's Time, who, in his ſecond Apology has theſe words: Ἡ διάδοσις καὶ ἡ μετάληψις ἀπὸ τοῦ εὐχαριστηθέντων ἑκάστῳ γίνεται, καὶ τοῖς οὐ παροῦσι διὰ τῶν διακόνων πέμπεται. Every one does partake of the conſecrated Elements, and to thoſe who are not preſent it is carried by the Deacons. Thus we read of Dionyſius Alexandrinus ſending the conſecrated Euchariſt to Serapion, when he was dying. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl. Lib. VI. cap. 44.

But the Reſervation which is practiſed by the Roman Church is moſt intolerable, and tends to little elſe but to increaſe Superſtition, and to profane the Holy Elements; for they keep the Sacrament in the Pix upon the Altar, becauſe God (as they term the Hoſt) may be preſent there; and that i may be worſhipped by the People: They reſerve it for Proceſſions, to be adored as 'tis carried along the Streets: They reſerve it as a Charm to put out Fires, and to be a ſort of Mace, and a Guard likewiſe to be carried before the Pope when he goes a Journey. But becauſe theſe Abuſes have happened, and may again, by the Reſervation of the Elements, our Church has prudently ordered, that as for what remains thereof, the Miniſter and the Communicants ſhall reverently eat and drink the ſame. And tho' the Council of Trent, Can. VII. out of their Tenderneſs, do Excommunicate us for it, yet we have the ancient Canons of the Church of our Side: Τὰ προσφερόμενα εἰς λόγον θυσίας, μετὰ τὰ ἀναλισκόμενα εἰς τὴν μυσηείων χρείαν ὅσα κλειεικοὶ διανεμέθωσαν, καὶ μήτε κατηχούμενος ἐκ τούτων ἐδέτω, ἢ πιέτω, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον οἱ κλειεικοὶ, καὶ σὺν αὐτοῖς πιοὶ τῶν ἀδελφῶν. As to what is conſecrated out of the Offering, let the Clergy diſtribute, and let not a Catechumen eat or drink of them, but rather the Clergy and the faithful Brethren who communicate with them. Can. VII. Theoph. Alex. apud Balſ.

NOTES.

(d) Remain unconſecrated.] We have ſhewn before, that in the Primitive Times the Bread and Wine deſigned for the Conſecration, were a part of the Offerings, which the Clergy likewiſe had a ſhare in; therefore our Church has reſtored the remaining part of them to the ancient Proprietors thereof, by ordering the Curate to have it to his own uſe. And this is no more than what was in particular enjoined by the old Canons of the Church. The Conſtitutions of Clement enjoin, That τὰς ἀδιαφόρους ἐν τοῖς μυστικοῖς εὐλογίαις, καὶ χώμην τοῦ Ἐπισκόπου ἢ τῶν Πρεσβυτέρων οἱ Διάκονοι διανεμέτωσαν τῷ κλήρῳ. That the remainder of the Bread and Wine ſhould, according to the direction of the Biſhop or Presbyters, be divided among the Clergy. Conſt. Apoſt. Lib. VIII. cap. 31.

(e) It ſhall not be carried out of the Church.] Our Church enjoins this latter part of the Rubrick, in oppoſition to ſome Errors, which formerly did obtain, in ſome early Ages of the Church, and do ſtill in the Roman; concerning the Aſſervation of the Elements. But this is contrary to our Saviour's Practice in the Inſtitution of the Sacrament, who took Bread and bleſſed it, and brake it, and gave it to his Diſciples, who eat it; but there is not a word of reſerving it, Mat. 16. 26. Mark 14. 22. Luke 22. 19. 1 Cor. 11. 23. WHereas * it is ordained in this Office for the Administration of the Lord's Supper, that the Communicants should receive the same Kneeling; (which Order is well meant, for a signification of our humble and grateful acknowledgement of the benefits of Christ therein given to all worthy Receivers, and for the avoiding of such profanation, and disorder in the holy Communion, as might otherwise ensue) Yet, lest the same Kneeling should by any persons, either out of ignorance and infirmity, or out of malice and obstinacy, be misconstrued and depraved; It is here declared, that thereby no Adoration is intended, or ought to be done, either unto the Sacramental bread and wine, there bodily received, or unto any Corporal Presence of Christ's natural Flesh, and Blood. For the Sacramental bread and wine remain still in their very Natural Substances, and therefore may not be adored, (for that were Idolatry, to be abhorred of all faithful Christians) And the Natural body and blood of our Saviour Christ are in Heaven, and not here; it being against the truth of Christ's Natural body to be at one time in more places than one.

And whosoever willingly, upon no just Cause, do absent themselves, or do ungodly in the Parish-Church occupy themselves, upon Proof thereof, by the Ecclesiastical Laws of the Realm, to be Excommunicated, or suffer other Punishment, as shall to the Ecclesiastical Judge (according to his Discretion) seem convenient.*

And although it be read in ancient Writers, that the People many Years past, received at the Priest's hands the Sacrament of the Body of Christ, in their own hands, and no commandment of Christ to the contrary; yet, forasmuch, as they many times conveyed the same secretly away, kept it with them, and diversely abused it to Superstition and Wickedness: lest any such thing hereafter should be attempted, and that an Uniformity might be used throughout the whole Realm, it is thought convenient, the People commonly receive the Sacrament of Christ's Body in their Mouths, at the Priest's hands. 1 E. Edw. VI.

* Although no Order can be so perfectly devised, but that it may be of some, either for their Ignorance or Infirmity, or else for Malice or Obstinacy, misconstrued, depraved, and interpreted in a wrong part; and yet because brotherly Charity willeth that, so much as conveniently may be, Offences should be taken away; therefore We willing to do the same: Whereas it is ordained in the Book of Common-Prayer, in the Administration of the Lord's-Supper, that the Communicants kneeling should receive the same, which thing being well meant for a Signification of the humble and grateful acknowledging of the Benefits of Christ, given unto the Worthy Receiver, and to avoid the Profanation and Disorder, which about the Holy Communion might else ensue: Lest yet the same Kneeling might be thought or taken otherwise, We do declare, that it is not meant thereby that any Adoration is done, either unto the Sacramental Bread or Wine there bodily received, or unto any Real and Essential Presence there being of Christ's natural Flesh and Blood. For as concerning the Sacramental Bread and Wine, thay remain still in their very natural Substances, and therefore may not be adored, for that were Idolatry to be abhorred of all Faithful Christians. And as concerning the natural Body and Blood of our Saviour Christ, they are in Heaven, and not here, for it is against the Truth of Christ's true natural Body, to be in more places than one. Second Book of Edward VI.

THE MINISTRATION OF Publick (g) Baptiſm of (h) Infants To

(g) Baptiſm.] The word Baptiſm comes from the Greek Verb βάπτω, or βαπτίζω, which ſignifies to dip or plunge any thing into Water, or other Liquid; and anſwers to the Hebrew Tabal, which ſignifies the ſame. Some Learned Men, as particularly Grotius, Com. on Mat. cap. 3. are of Opinion, that the way of dipping into Water, or ſprinkling by it, was uſed as a Religious Rite ever ſince the Deluge, to denote that the World was purged from the Wickedneſs of the Antediluvians, by that terrible Judgment by Water; and was delivered down to all the Deſcendants of Noah, as a Branch of the Patriarchal Religion. And except this were ſo, the univerſal prevalency of this Cuſtom, both among Jews and Gentiles, could hardly be accounted for. For we find Baptiſm uſed by the Jews, even in the Times of the firſt Patriarchs; as may be proved by that of Gen. 35. 2. Jacob ſaid unto his Family, and to all that were with him, Put away from you the ſtrange gods, and be clean, and change your garments. Where the hittaharu, be ye clean, Abenezra, in his Notes upon the Place, explains to be Shirchatzou ha geve, having your Bodies waſhed. Theſe Waſhings were afterwards incorporated into the Moſaical Inſtitutions: Thus Moſes, when he was to prepare the People for a Reception of the Law, ſaid, that he ſanctified the people, and they waſhed their cloaths, Exod. 19. 14. From which Paſſage Maimonides concludes, that Baptiſm was inſtituted in the Wilderneſs before the Law. Thus the Prieſts, when they entred into the Temple, after having been converſant in Secular Affairs, were to be purified by waſhing, in the Laver erected for that purpoſe, Exod. 30. 20. So thoſe that were to be cleanſed from a Leproſy were to be waſhed, Lev. 14. 8. In which Waſhings, the Superſtition of that People adding many things to their Founder's Precepts, they grew ſo very numerous, as to deſerve that Reprehenſion of our Saviour, mentioned in the ſeventh of Saint Mark; where he blames the βαπτισμὸς ποτηρίων, &c. the Baptiſms or Waſhings of Cups and Pots, brazen Veſſels, and of Tables. The Gentiles likewiſe tranſcribed into their Worſhip, the way of Waſhing with Water, as a Religious Rite; ſome think in imitation of the Jews, but moſt probably it was handed down to them by ancient Tradition, from the Noachical Times. To this refers that of Homer, Iliad. I.

λαὸς δ' Ἀτρείδης ἀπολυμαίνεσθαι ἄνωγεν.

Atrides commanded the People to be purified.

And ſo likewiſe Virgil. Æn. Lib. VI.

Idem ter ſocios purâ circumtulit undâ,
Spargens rore levi, & ramo felicis olivæ,
Luſtravitque viros ———

Three times went round his Friends with limpid Water,
Sprinkling the gentle Dew with th'peaceful Olive-Branch,
He gave them all Luſtration ———

Upon this Account Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus ſays, That the Ancients did, τὰ ἱερὰ καθαρῷ ὕδατι ῥαντίζειν, ſanctify the ſacred things with Water. Dion. Hal. Lib. VII. Nor would they venture to offer a Sacrifice, without a previous Waſhing. Hence that Perſon in Plautus ſays, Lavabo, ut rem divinam faciam; I will waſh that I may be prepared to Sacrifice. Nay, it was a vulgar Opinion, That the Waſhing with Water took away the Guilt of a Crime; which Fancy is expoſed by the Poet:

Ah! nimium faciles, qui triſtia crimina cædis
Tolli flumineâ poſſe putatis aquâ. Ovid Triſt. Lib. V.

Ah! eaſy Men! to think the ſtain of Blood
Can be waſht off by any Rivers Flood.

But the Jews had another ſolemn uſe of Baptiſm obtaining among them, and that was to initiate Proſelytes into their Religion. Hence it came to grow into a Maxim among the Jews, that No one was a Jew or a Proſelyte till he was not only circumciſed, but Baptiz'd. Vid. Lightfoot in Mat. 3. 6. This ancient uſe of Baptiſm among the Jews, occaſion'd them to receive the Baptiſm of John with greater readineſs, than they would otherwiſe have done; and the Baptiſm of John pav'd a way to the reception of the Goſpel, which was preach'd by our bleſſed Lord, the initiatory Rite into whoſe Religion he was pleaſed to order to be this ſame Rite of Baptiſm; enjoining his Diſciples and their Succeſſors, to make uſe thereof in all Nations, Mat. 28. 18.

(h) Of Infants.] It has been a very ancient Uſage in the Church, derived, as there is all the reaſon to think, from the Apoſtolical times, that the Children of believing Parents ſhould receive the Benefit of Chriſtian Baptiſm. Origen makes this to be a part of Apoſtolical Tradition: Pro hoc, &c. For this, the Church received it as a Tradition from the Apoſtles, viz. to give Baptiſm to Infants, Orig. Hom. in Rom. 6. The Writings of Clement, Ignatius, Polycarp, and ſuch other very early Chriſtian Writers are ſo ſhort, that one cannot expect to find every Chriſtian Uſage therein; but I think that Pædobaptiſm could be hardly ſo generally uſed in the ſecond and third Century, unleſs it had been a Cuſtom in the former Ages, nay from the beginning of Chriſtianity; for if it had been a Cuſtom which gradually grown up, ſome of thoſe ancient Writers would ſome where or other in their works have oppoſed it. There is not indeed any thing in the Holy Scriptures, which does in expreſs Terms command it. But yet there do not want probable Arguments drawn from thence, which do evince the Truth thereof. For, ſince the Goſpel is ſaid to be a Better Covenant than the Jewiſh Law, Heb. 8. 6. we cannot think, that an injunction to admit Members into the Church, only after years of diſcretion, ſhould be ſo good a one, as that which allows them to come into itthe eighth day after their Birth. Heb. 17. 12. When Lydia was baptized and her houſhold, Act. 16. 15. and when Paul baptized the houſhold of Stephanas, it is hard to be believed that there was never a Child in thoſe Families. When the Apoſtles are commanded to baptize all Nations, Matt. 28, 19. it is not to be ſuppoſed, but that the Children therein were to be baptized as well as the perſons of riper Age; unleſs a particular Reſtriction had gone along with the Command. Since the Apoſtle aſſures us, That they which are of the Faith, i. e. all Chriſtians, are Children of Abraham, Gal. 3. 7. then ſurely their Offspring have as good a Title to partake of the Federal Rite of Baptiſm, whereby they may enter into the Chriſtian Covenant as the Carnal Progeny of Abraham had to enter into the Jewiſh Covenant by Circumciſion. When the Apoſtle declares that the Children of a believing Parent are holy, 1 Cor. 7. 14. it cannot be denied, but that, either they were actually entered into the Chriſtian Covenant, or that, at leaſt, they had a title thereunto. But when we come to the ancient Fathers who lived nigheſt to the Apoſtolical Times, and were the beſt Judges both what was the Practice of the very firſt Ages, and how they underſtood the words of holy Writ, when it was firſt delivered to the Church; they do uniformly declare in favour of Infant-Baptiſm. Irenæus who lived 180 Years after Chriſt, ſays, Omnes venit Chriſtus per ſemetipſum ſalvare; omnes, inquam, qui per eum renaſcuntur ad Deum, Infantes & Parvulos, & Pueros, & Juvenes, & ſeniores. Our Saviour Chriſt came into the world to ſave all by himſelf; I ſay all who are born again by him to God, Infants, and Children, and Boys, and Young men and old men. Lib. II. Cap. 29. Now as by being born again can be meant nothing elſe but Baptiſm, tis plain from this Writer that the Children, which in his time were ſaid to be born again, were baptized. Tertullian, who lived about the year 203 after Chriſt, allows Infant-Baptiſm to be the general practice of his Time; tho' by the Heretical Notions which he had imbibed, he thought the Deferring of it was more profitable, Cunctatio Baptiſmi utilior eſt, præcipuè circa puerulos. Becauſe by the Sacrament of Baptiſm the Soils of our Nativity are laid aſide, therefore Children are baptized. In Luc. Hom. 8. That this Practice was univerſal in St. Cyprian's Time is plain, from the Queſtion which then aroſe, Whether Children were not to be Baptized upon the Eighth Day, as they were formerly Circumciſed upon, under the Jewiſh Law? St. Cyprian ſays, That a Synod in his Dioceſe had reſolved this Queſtion in the Negative. Cyp. Ep. 58. And in another place he is more expreſs: Quantum ad cauſam infantium pertinet, judicavimus, nulli hominum nato miſericordiam & gratiam denegandam. As to the cauſe of Infants we have judged, that to no one that is born of human Race, the Mercy and Grace of God is to be denied. Ep. 59. To the like purpoſe St. Ambroſe: Nec ſenex Proſelytus, nec infans vernaculus excipitur, quia omnis ætas peccato obnoxia & omnis ætas Sacramento idonea. Neither an old Proſelyte nor an infant Slave is excepted; for as every Age is obnoxious to Sin, ſo every Age is capable of the Sacrament. Lib. II. de Abr. So St. Jerom: Niſi fortè exiſtimas, &c. Unleſs perhaps you think that the Children of Chriſtians, if they do not receive Baptiſm, are themſelves only guilty of Sin, and that the Guilt ought not to lie at their doors who would not preſent them to Baptiſm. Hier. Ep. ad Lætam. St. Auſtin declares his Opinion as to this Point: Quod traditum tenet univerſitas Eccleſiæ, cum parvuli Infantes baptizantur, qui certè nondum poſſunt corde credere, &c. & tamen nullus Chriſtianorum dixerit, eos inaniter baptizari. What the Univerſal Church by Tradition holds, when little Children are baptized, who as yet cannot believe with their Heart, &c. and yet no Chriſtian will ſay that they are baptized in vain. Aug. cont. Don. Lib. IV. cap. 23. And again, in another place, Conſuetudo Matris Eccleſiæ in baptizandis parvulis, nequaquam ſpernenda eſt, neque ullo modo ſuperflua deputanda; neque ullo modo credenda, niſi Apoſtolica eſſet Traditio. The Cuſtom of our Mother the Church, in baptizing Infants is not to be deſpiſed, or by any means to be thought ſuperfluous; neither were it to be believed, unleſs it were an Apoſtolical Tradition. Lib. X. de Gen. ad Lit. cap. 23. Nor were the Greek Fathers of a different Mind. St. Athanaſius asks the Queſtion: Πόθεν ἐπιγνώσεταί τις ἄνθρωπος, ὅτι ὅλως ἐβαπτίσθη, καὶ πνεῦμα ἅγιον ἔλαβεν, ὃς ἦν νήπιος ἐν τῷ βαπτίσματι. How ſhall a Man know that he was at all baptized, and received the Holy Ghoſt, who was an Infant when he was baptized? Athan. Q. II. ad Antioch. The Apoſtolical Conſtitutions order thus; Βαπτίζετε ὑμῶν καὶ τὰ νήπια. Baptize alſo your Infants. Lib. VI. cap. 15. St. Chryſoſtom asks a Parent who had lately loſt a Child, Τίνος ἕνεκεν πενθεῖς ἄνθρωπε; τί τὸ νεοφωτίστου. Why do you mourn for this Babe? Why for one that is lately baptized? Chryſ. Hom. XXI. in Act. The like may be proved from Gregory Nazianzen: Τί ἐροῦμεν περὶ τῶν νηπίων, ἢ καὶ ταῦτα βαπτίσομεν, πάντως ἐπὶ τοῖς ἐπίσης κίνδυνος, κρεῖσσον καὶ ἀναδήτως ἁγιασθῆναι, ἢ ἀπιλθεῖν ἀσφράγιστα. What ſhall we ſay to the Caſe of Infants? Shall we baptize them? Yea, indeed, eſpecially if there be any Danger; for it is better, that they be ſanctified without knowing of it, than to die without the Seal, and Initiation of Baptiſm. Greg. Naz. Or. XL. Indeed about the Year 400, there were ſome who entertained ſome Heterodox Notions concerning the Baptiſm of Infants, but they were condemn'd by a Canon of the Council of Milevis, which was held A. D. 418. Whoſoever ſhall deny that Children may be baptized, as ſoon as they are born, let him be Anathema. 'Tis endleſs to reckon up the Authorities of later Writers in the Church, who do unanimouſly confirm the uſe of Infant-Baptiſm: So that the Anabaptiſts Plea muſt be chiefly grounded upon ſome Scripture-Paſſages, which mentioning Repentance and Faith, together with Baptiſm, they fancy they cannot be disjoined; but it muſt be conſidered, that theſe Qualifications are only antecedently required in adult Perſons, to whom thoſe Exhortations in Scripture are addreſſed; but, as for Children, it is ſufficient if they have them ſubſequently.

VARIOUS READINGS.

* It appeareth by ancient writers that the Sacrament of Baptiſm in the old time, was not commonly adminiſtred but at two times in the year; As Eaſter and Whitſuntide: At which times it was openly miniſtred in the preſence of all the Congregation: Which cuſtom now being grown out of uſe (although it cannot for many conſiderations be well reſtored again) it is thought good to follow the ſame, as near as conveniently may be. Wherefore the people are to be admoniſhed, that it is moſt convenient that Baptiſm ſhould not be miniſtred but upon Sundays and other Holy-days, when the moſt number of people may come together, as well for that the Congregation there preſent may teſtifie the receiving of them that be newly baptized into the number of Chriſts Church, as alſo becauſe by the Baptiſm of Infants, every man preſent may be put in remembrance of his own profeſſion made to God in his Baptiſm. For which cauſe alſo it is expedient that Baptiſm be miniſtred in the Engliſh tongue. Nevertheleſs (if neceſſity ſo require) children may at all times be baptized at home. O. C. P.

NOTES.

(i) In the Church.] In the very early Times of Chriſtianity, whilſt the Faithful were under a State of Perſecution, there was no ſettled place of Adminiſtring the Rite of Baptiſm. The Apoſtles baptized in Ponds and Rivers, and in any other place, where there was convenience of Water. Thus Philip Baptized the Eunuch in a watery place; which they met with accidentally in the Road, Acts viii. 38. Hence that of Tertullian: Nulla diſtinctio eſt, marí quis an ſtagno, flumine, an fonte, lacu, an alveo delnatur: nec quicquam refert inter eos, quos Johannes in Jordane, & quos Petrus in Tiberi tinxit. There is no diſtinction whether one be baptized in a Pool, or a River, or a Well, or a Lake, or a Brook; for there is no difference between thoſe whom John dipped in Jordan, and thoſe whom Peter dipped in the Tiber. Tert. de Bapt. cap. 4. But the Apoſtles likewiſe began a Cuſtom in their Time of baptizing in Houſes; and ſo it ſhould ſeem that Paul was baptized, Acts ix. 17. there being no mention of any River; probably the Water which was about the Houſe ſerving for that occaſion. The ſame ſeems to be the caſe of the Jaylor, who was converted by St. Paul, and was baptized he and all his, ſtraitway, Acts xvi. 33. This Cuſtom of baptizing in Houſes (i. e. where the Congregations of the Faithful met) continued for the firſt Ages, when the Perſecution obliged them to perform all Religious Acts with as much privacy as might be. Thus Baſilides, the Confeſſor and Martyr, is recorded by Euſebius to have receiv'd the σφραγίδα, the Seal of Baptiſm in the Priſon. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl. Lib. VI. cap. 5. But it was probable, that the Chriſtian Aſſembly was held in the Priſon at that time, as they uſually were, when an eminent Confeſſor was there; for during the Times of Perſecution in thoſe private Houſes, where they held their Aſſemblies, there they baptized likewiſe; the Aſſembly at the ſame time putting up their Prayers to God for the Perſons to be baptized; which Tertullian means when he ſays, Manu factâ ambire gratiam pro baptizando fructuoſius poſſumus. We can with greater profit beg the divine Grace upon the baptized Perſon, when there is a number preſent in the publick Congregation. Tert. de Bapt. Nay, the Author of the Life of Marcellus, Biſhop of Rome, informs us, That during the time of the Perſecution, Baptiſteries were erected in thoſe places where they held their Aſſemblies, which is not improbable, eſpecially in wealthy Towns. After the Empire became Chriſtian, and Temples were every-where erected, a Baptiſtery, or Room to baptize Perſons in, was joined to the Church, where the Perſons who were baptized had the Prayers of the Congregation for God's Bleſſing upon them. This being neglected by ſome Perſons, who performed the Baptiſmal Rites in private Houſes and Oratories, they thereby ſeeming to ſlight the publick Baptiſteries, occaſion'd the 59th Canon of the Conſtantinopolitan Council under Juſtinian, junior: Μυσαμοῦς ἐν ἰδιωτικῷ οἴκῳ ἔνδον οἰκίας ἰσχέτωσαν, βαπτίσμα ἐπιτελείσθω· ἀλλὰ οἱ μέλλοντες ἀξιοῦσθαι τῷ ἀχράντῳ φωτίσματι, ταῖς καθολικαῖς προσερχέσθωσαν ἐκκλησίαις, κἀκεῖσε ἡ δωρεὰ ἰάσεως ἀπολαυέτωσαν. Εἰ δέ τις ἄλλο τι παρ' ἡμῶν διαδήλα μὴ φυλάττων, εἰς μὴ κληρικὸν ᾖ, καθαιρείσθω· εἰ δὲ λαϊκὸς, ἀφορισθήτω. Let not Baptiſm be celebrated in any Oratory within a private Houſe; but they that would partake of an undefiled Baptiſm, let them go to the publick Churches, and there let them enjoy this Gift. But if it ſhall be proved againſt any one, that he has tranſgreſſed this our Ordinance, if he be a Clergy-man, let him be depoſed; and if he be a Lay-man, let him be excommunicated. Indeed there were ſome Reſtrictions to limit this Canon, as in the caſe of Clinicks; but this muſt be with leave of the Biſhop, Conc. Conſt. Can. 33. and one of the Novels of the Emperor Leo, Nov. XV. allows Baptiſm to be performed in private Chappels: But this, Balſamon ſays, was to be with the Licenſe of the Biſhop. Indeed our Church has not been ſo ſevere as to run to Excommunications and Depoſitions, upon the breaking in upon this Duty; but it orders, That it ſhould be adminiſtred at Church, in the publick Congregation; and, That the Congregation may teſtify the receiving of them that be newly baptized into the number of Chriſt's Church. And it is pity that ſo wholſom a Conſtitution ſhould be trampled under foot by the Vanity of ſome, and the Compliance of others, tho' there be not ſo great a Penalty annex'd to it, as formerly was.

(k) Upon Sundays and other Holy-days.] There was a Cuſtom which obtain'd in the ancient Church, taking its riſe from an extraordinary number of people come together: as well for that the Congregation there preſent may teſtifie the receiving of them that be newly baptized into the number of Chriſt's Church; as alſo becauſe in the Baptiſm of Infants, every man preſent may be put in remembrance of his own profeſſion made to God in his Baptiſm. For which cauſe alſo it is expedient that Baptiſm be miniſtred in the vulgar tongue. Nevertheleſs (if neceſſity ſo require) children may be baptized upon any other day.

¶* And

traordinary reſpect which was thereby thought to be paid to the Day of our Saviour's Reſurrection, viz. That no Baptiſms were to be performed, unleſs in caſe of abſolute neceſſity, but only at Eaſter. And this not upon the Feaſt-day itſelf, but upon the Eve or Vigil thereof. One reaſon for which Cuſtom Zonaras, upon the XLV Canon of the Council of Laodicea, gives, Ἐν τῷ μεγάλῳ σαββάτῳ δὲ ἔθος ἐστὶ τῇ Ἐκκλησίᾳ ποιεῖν βαπτίσματα, ὅτι τὸ βάπτισμα τύπος ἐστὶ τοῦ ἁγίου καὶ σωτηρίου πάθους τοῦ Κυρίου τύπος ἐστίν. On the Saturday in the Great Week the Church of Cuſtom performs her Baptiſms; becauſe Baptiſm is a Figure of the Death and Reſurrection of our Lord. But in the African Church Baptiſms were celebrated twice in a Year, at Eaſter and Whitſuntide; as is plain from that of Tertullian: Diem Baptiſmo ſolenniorem Paſcha præſtat, cum & paſſio Domini in quem tingimur adimpleta eſt. Eaſter affords the moſt ſolemn time of Baptiſm, when our Lord underwent his Paſſion, into which we are baptized. And not long after he has theſe words: Exinde Pentecoſte ordinandis lavacris latiſſimum ſpacium eſt, quo & Domini Reſurrectio inter Diſcipulos frequentata eſt, & gratia ſpiritûs dedicata. After this is Pentecoſt, (containing the time from Eaſter to Whitſunday) a large ſpace of time to make preparation for the Baptiſms, when our Saviour, after his Reſurrection, frequently converſed with his Diſciples, and the Grace of the Holy Ghoſt ſolemnly deſcended upon the Apoſtles. Tertul. de Bapt. Theſe two ſolemn Seaſons of Baptizing were uſed in St. Ambroſe's Time, as appears by his Book de Myſteriis Paſchæ: and alſo in the Time of St. Auſtin, in his Sermons on the Octaves of Eaſter, in the Tenth Volume of his Works. In the time of Pope Leo, who lived in 440, there was a Cuſtom in Sicily to have a ſolemn Baptiſm upon the Feaſt of Epiphany, which he ſays did Apoſtolicæ Inſtitutionis conſuetudine diſcrepare, diſſent from the Cuſtom which had Apoſtolical Inſtitution for its Original. Vid. Leonis Epiſt. apud Grat. Diſt. 4. But before his Time the Baptiſms were performed, not only at the Epiphany, but upon Chriſtmas-day likewiſe, and other Feſtivals; as is evinced by that Paſſage of Syricius, who was Biſhop of Rome in 384, in his Epiſtle to Himerius, Biſhop of Arragon: Paſſim & liberè Natalitiis Chriſti, ſeu Apparitione, necnon Apoſtolorum ſeu Martyrum Feſtivitatibus innumeris, ut aſſeris, plebes Baptiſmi myſterium conſequuntur. I find by your Account, that a great number of the People are baptized on Chriſtmas-day, and the Epiphany, and alſo upon the Feſtivals of the Apoſtles and Martyrs: But this Uſage he condemns in theſe words; Cum hoc ſibi privilegium, & apud Nos & apud omnes Eccleſias Dominium ſpecialiter Paſchæ defendat, cum ſuam Pentecoſte. Whereas both among us, and all others, this Privilege belongs only to Eaſter-Sunday and Whitſunday. But tho' the Latin Churches, eſpecially thoſe in Italy, kept to the two great Solemnities of Eaſter and Whitſuntide, for celebrating the Baptiſms, yet the Greek Church, and ſeveral other Churches, baptized upon other Days. It is plain that the Greek Church baptized on the Day of Epiphany (which they called the ἅγια φῶτα, the Holy Lights) from the Orations of Gregory Nazianzen upon that Day; for in his Fortieth Oration, in which he is obviating the Excuſes ſome Perſons of that Time, made uſe of for the delaying their Baptiſm: he ſpeaks thus, Μένω τὰ φῶτα, τὸ πάθος μοὶ πμώμενον, ἢ πνίγομαι ἐνδήμως. One ſays, I wait for the Epiphany; another ſays, I have a particular honour for Eaſter; another ſays, I will ſtay for Pentecoſt. And Victor Uticenſis, in his Book de Perſecutione Vandalorum ſays, That the Church of Africa, about the Year 484, did perform a ſolemn Baptiſm, not only at Eaſter and Whitſuntide, but alſo upon the Epiphany, after the manner of the Greeks. Vict. Utic. Lib. II. And Walafridus Strabo writes, That during the Sixth Century the Spaniards had a Publick Baptiſm at Chriſtmas: Tempora baptizandi legitima Paſcha & Pentecoſte præfiguntur ſecundùm Decreta Siricii, Leonis & Gelaſii Epiſcoporum. They obſerve the uſual Times of baptizing at Eaſter and Whitſuntide, according to the Decrees of Syricius, Leo, and Gelaſius, Biſhops. Wal. Strab. Eccl. Off. cap. 26. The French Church likewiſe celebrated a ſolemn Baptiſm upon Chriſtmas-day, as appears by the Epiſtles of Alcimus Avitus, who declares that Clodoveus, King of France, was baptized at a publick Baptiſm upon that Day: which Cuſtom Menardus, in his Notes upon Gregory's Sacramentary, proves, did obtain in that Country, down from Conſtantius's Time. The ſame Cuſtom obtained in England in Gregory the Great's Time, as appears by one of his Letters; In ſolennitate Dominicæ nativitatis pluſquam decem mille Angli, ab eodem nunciati ſunt Fratre & coepiſcopo noſtro, baptizati. Upon the ſolemn Feaſt of Chriſtmas-day more than Twelve Thouſand Engliſh, upon the report of [Auſtin] our Brother Biſhop, were baptized. Greg. Lib. VII. Ep. 30.

About the Eighth or ninth Century the Time for ſolemn Baptiſm was enlarged, even in the Latin Church who ſeem'd all along to have bound it up into the narroweſt Compaſs, eſpecially in Italy, and the adjacent Provinces. For by order of Pope Victor, Baptiſm was enjoyned to be celebrated all the Eaſter-Week. A quarta decimâ verò Lunâ primi Menſis usque ad XXI ejuſdem menſis diem eadem celebretur feſtivitas, eodem verò baptiſmus celebrandus eſt Catholicus. From the Fourteenth moon of the firſt month, to the twenty firſt day of the ſame month, let the ſame Feſtival be celebrated; and at the ſame time Catholick Baptiſm muſt be celebrated. Vict. Ep. ad Theoph. Alex. Agreeable to this was that Canon of the Council of Tribur held A. D. 895. Usque ad octavum diem regeneratio ſacra ab omni populo Chriſtiano celebrabitur. To the eighth day after Eaſter Baptiſm ſhall be celebrated by all Chriſtian people. But Gregory Turonenſis ſays, that this was an Uſage long before this time in the French Church, when he writes that in the fourth Century, amplius quam mille homines ſacra innovatione Lavacri renatos intra ſeptem illos dies, more than a thouſand perſons were baptized within thoſe ſeven days. Lib. de glor. Conf. cap. 12. The ſame perſon likewiſe writes, that Baptiſm was celebrated in France upon St. John Baptiſt's Day, Hiſt. Fr. Lib. 8. But after all this, in the ninth Century the Italick uſage of baptizing only at Eaſter and Whitſuntide, was ſupported by the Authority of Charles the Great. Cap. Car. Lib V. and by the fourth Canon of the Council of Mentz; yet I cannot find that theſe Injunctions were much obſerved, for the Reſtriction of the Council of Tribur took away the Force of them. Periculo quocunque modo præoccupatis, & deſperatis, omni tempore ſubveniendum, & baptiſmi ſacramentum eſt tribuendum, quia neceſſitas vix habet legem. But as for perſons who are in danger, or who are given over, they muſt be aſſiſted at any time, and muſt have the Sacrament of Baptiſm given them, becauſe neceſſity has no Law. Con. Trib. Can. 12. But before the twelfth Century without any Council or Decree, the Paſchal and Pentecoſtal Baptiſms vaniſhed, all Churches, moved by the reaſon of the thing, going into frequent Baptiſms at other times. So that Rupertus de div. Off. Lib. IV who wrote about that time, ſays, Viſum eſt S. Eccleſiæ, paſſim indulgentiâ baptizandi conceſſâ, cuncta antevenire pericula. Baptiſmi tamen ſolennitatem vel in paucis cum Dominicâ Reſurrectionis, cui ſimilis eſt, reſervare. But it ſeem'd good to the Church, by granting an univerſal indulgence of baptizing, to prevent all dangers, as alſo to reſerve the ſolemnity of Baptiſm upon the Sunday of the Reſurrection, which it is a figure of, by a few perſons being baptized at that time. But by the way by an Indulgence of the Church, our Author muſt not mean the Church of Rome; for ſhe for ſeveral Ages together did all ſhe could to hinder frequent Baptiſms. After this time particular Churches made what Orders they thought fit, to ſettle the times of baptizing. Indeed here in England, Othobon, in his Conſtitutions, made 1236, orders that Baptiſms ſhould be performed after the Roman Method, ad duo tempora ſabbatorum ſc. Sabbatum ante Reſurrectionem Domini & Sabbatum ante Pentecoſtem; upon the Saturday before Eaſter and the Saturday before Whitſunday, Conſt. Oth. de Bapt. & ejus formâ. But the Synod under Archbiſhop Peckam takes notice of this Order, quod hactenus videtur fuiſſe neglectum, that from the time of its making to that time, viz A.D. 1281 it was neglected: and for the future enjoins, That, juxta vetuſtam conſuetudinem, vel ex incontinenti cum nati fuerint, vel poſtea, prout placuerit ipſis Parentibus baptizentur: according to the ancient Cuſtom here in England, the Parents ſhould be at liberty to have their Children baptized as ſoon as they were born, or afterwards (i. e. the next Eaſter) as they ſhould think fit. This was a home-ſtroke at the Roman Court, to diſpenſe with one of their Decretal Laws, and which was ſo lately inforced by a Conſtitution of one of their Legates. And therefore Dr. Linwood, when he gloſſes upon it, would neither queſtion, nor aſſert ſuch a power of a Provincial Synod, nor yet condemn the Roman Uſage; and therefore cautiouſly reſolves all into the force of an Engliſh Cuſtom, quæ eſt optima Legum interpres, which is the beſt Interpreter of the Laws. But our Gloſſer is a little too ſubtile; for our Engliſh Council did not pretend to interpret the Roman Law, but enacts one directly contrary to it.

The wiſe Reformers of our Liturgy thought it too great a Liberty, to be left to the Parents to keep their Children from Baptiſm, from the time of their Birth to the following Eaſter, (which was indulged by the Provincial Council, only a little to comply with the See of Rome, who tenaciouſly adhered to an old Cuſtom the reaſon of which was vaniſhed) and therefore very prudently order, that the people ſhould be admoniſhed, to bring their Children to Church for Baptiſm upon Sundays only and Holidays, and that in any time of the year; not with any particular regard to thoſe Sundays or Holy-days, but becauſe the largeſt Congregations then meet at Church, who may be Witneſſes of their Reception into the Church,

NOTES.

(l) Ready at the Font.] It has been obſerved before, That in the earlieſt time of Chriſtianity, Baptiſms were performed in Ponds and Rivers and other Convenient Places for Water: That, afterwards, the Baptiſms were celebrated in the places where the Congregations were held. But after the Empire became Chriſtian, and the Faithful had a free exerciſe of their Religion, they had publick places for the celebrating their Baptiſms erected. Theſe Edifices were called Baptiſteries, which at firſt were only one publick one in each City, adjoyning to the great Church thereof, Cyril. Catech. Myſt. 1. ſome of which are to be yet ſeen in the Cities of Italy, at Piſa, Florence, Bononia, Parma, &c. wherein formerly adult and infants, rich and poor were promiſcuouſly baptized together. Greg. Naz. Orat. XL. Some of the Latin and Greek Writers ſpeak of a ſtupendous Baptiſtery built by Conſtantine the Great of Porphyry-Stone: the Baſin in the Middle being of ſilver from the middle of which, a Porphyry-Pillar riſing up ſupported a Golden Cup of 50 pound weight, filled always with fragrant perfume: over this Stood a holy Lamb of pure Gold, out of whoſe Mouth the Water was ſpouted; on the right hand ſtood the Statue of our Saviour, on the left, another of St. John the Baptiſt, both of Silver. Dam. in vita Sylv. Theophanis Hiſt. ab. Orb. Cond. in Conſtant. Afterwards as this part of the world became generally Chriſtian, the Baptiſm of Adults became leſs frequent; and therefore the building Baptiſteries as diſtinct Rooms from the Church, with large Ciſterns to receive the Bodies of full-grown perſons, began to be left off, and ſmaller Fonts of the preſent Faſhion grew into uſe. Gregorius Turonenſis relates of Clodovæus King of the Franks, in the VI Century that he put out an Edict, that Fonts ſhould be erected with the Church, upon the left hand of the going into it. De Mir. S. Mart. Lib. II. And the Council of Ilerdo, which was held A. D. 524, (as 'tis quoted by Ivo) decreed, Omnis Presbyter qui fontem lapideum habere nequiverit, vas conveniens ad hoc ſolummodo baptizandi Officium habeat, quod extra Eccleſiam non deportetur. Every Prieſt who cannot procure a Font of Stone, let him have a convenient Veſſel, which he may uſe only for the Office of baptizing, and which may not be carried out of the Church.

They choſe to have the Font made of a hard ſolid Stone, and not of a brittle and ſpungy one; partly, that it might not be ſo liable to break, and partly, that it might not ſuck up the Conſecrated Water.

(m) The Prieſt coming to the Font.] Our Church, in theſe words, does declare who is the proper and ordinary Miniſter of Baptiſm. The Commiſſion to baptize was given to the Apoſtles and their Succeſſors, and other Perſons whom they ſhould appoint for that Office. Hence it was a Maxim in the Primitive Church, that the Biſhop had the ſole original Right of baptizing veſted in him. So Tertullian de Baptiſmo, cap. 17. Dandi jus habet ſummus ſacerdos, qui eſt Epiſcopus; dehinc Presbyteri & Diaconi, non tamen ſine Epiſcopi authoritate. The Chief Prieſt, who is the Biſhop, has the proper right of conferring Baptiſm; and from him Presbyters and Deacons, but yet not without his Authority. And before him St. Ignatius, in his Epiſtle to the Smyrneſians, writes, Ὁυκ ἐξὸν ἐστιν χωρὶς τοῦ Ἐπισκόπου, ἐυτε βαπτίζειν, &c. Without the leave of the Biſhop, it is not lawful ſo much as to baptize. So St. Jerom, in his Dialogue againſt the Luciferians, tho' he had not the higheſt regard to the Epiſcopal Authority, lets fall theſe words; Unde venit, ut, ſine Epiſcopi juſſione, neque Presbyter, neque Diaconus jus habet baptizandi. Hence it comes to paſs, that, without the Licence of the Biſhop, neither Presbyter nor Deacon, hath any right to baptize. But theſe Expreſſions muſt be underſtood only to hold in the Biſhop's own Church, where he is uſually reſident; but as for other Rural Churches, where Presbyters were ſettled, they did confer Baptiſm by virtue of their own Office. But as a Presbyter, in a Biſhop's Cathedral-Church, muſt not adminiſter Baptiſm in his preſence, nor in his Abſence without Permiſſion from him; ſo in Rural Congregations, a Deacon muſt not perform it in the preſence of the Presbyter, nor in his Abſence, unleſs he had a Licence thereunto from the Biſhop. But as Voſſius, Tract. de Baptiſ. very well obſerves, thoſe Deacons who were not only ableſt to be aſſiſtant to the Presbyter, but had likewiſe a Licence to preach the Word of God, had alſo Authority afforded them to baptize. Tho' this was only in the Abſence of the Prieſt, and when ſome kind of Neceſſity exacted it, as we may learn from Theodoret, Πρεσβυτέρου ὐ παρόντος, καὶ τῆς χρείας καταπεπτώκυίας, ἀναγκάζεται ὁ Διάκονος παρέχειν τῷ δεομένῳ τὸ βάπτισμα. The Prieſt being abſent, and neceſſity requiring it, the Deacon muſt adminiſter Baptiſm to him who wants it. Theodoret Qu. I. in Paral. To the ſame purpoſe St. Chryſoſtom; Ἐὰν γένηται ἀνάγκη, καὶ ἐυρεθῇ παιδίον ἀβάπτιστον, καὶ μέλλη τελευτᾶν, ἔξὸν τὸν Διάκονον βαπτίσαι. If neceſſity be, and there be a Child unbaptized, who is like to die, it is then lawful for the Deacon to baptize it. Chryſ. Hom. 61. Tom. VII. Nay, the caſe of extraordinary Neceſſity moved the former Ages to allow a larger Diſpenſation, even for Lay-Perſons to adminiſter Baptiſm; which was allowed as anciently as Tertullian's Time: Alioqui etiam Laicis jus eſt baptizandi. But in caſes of neceſſity Lay-Perſons may baptize. Tertul. de Bap. cap. 17. So St. Jerom, Si neceſſitas cogit, ſcimus etiam licere Laicis baptizare. If neceſſity compels, we know it is lawful for Lay-Perſons to baptize. Hier. Dial. contra Lucif. Which Cuſtom obtain'd in our Church till the Conference at Hampton-Court; when, to ſatisfy the Scruples which ſome had raiſed againſt it, it was judged fit, by the King and Biſhops, that it ſhould be laid aſide. But in common Caſes our Church has, in this Rubrick, declared who is the ordinary Miniſter of Baptiſm, namely, the Prieſt; liberty being ſtill allowed in extraordinary Caſes, or in the Abſence of the Prieſt, (as it was in the Primitive Church) for a Deacon to baptize.

(n) Already baptized.] The Miniſter is enjoined to ask this Queſtion, that he may not unawares baptize a Child which has been baptized before, which is contrary both to the Word of God, and to the Uſage and Laws of the Church in all Ages; for tho' ſeveral Perſons are recorded in Scripture to be baptized, there is no mention of any one that was ever re-baptized, tho' they were to receive the Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper often, 1 Cor. xi. 24, &c. And ſince Baptiſm ſucceeded in the place of Circumciſion, the latter being never reiterated in the Jewiſh Church, ſo neither ought the former; for ſince this Sacred Rite is the initiatory one, whereby we are admitted into our Holy Religion, it ought not to be repeated; for ſince we enter into our Religion but once, to reiterate the Form were only to make Sport with, or at leaſt to pervert the Intent of the Sacred Myſtery. And to this probably relate, the one Faith, one Baptiſm, &c. Eph. iv. 5. and the ἅπαξ φωτισθέντας, Heb. vi. 4. is not unlikely to be underſtood of the ſame, It is impoſſible for them which were once enlightned, i.e. baptized, &c. But the whole current of Antiquity runs againſt the Repetition of Baptiſm: The XLVII. Canon of the Apoſtles expreſly forbids it: Ἐπίσκοπος ἢ Πρεσβύτερος ἢ καθ' ὁλήυτιαν ἔχοντα βάπτισμα, ἐὰν ἄνωθεν βαπτίσῃ, καθαιρείσθω ὡς γελῶν ἢ σταυρὸν, καὶ τοῦ Κυρίου θάνατον. If a Biſhop or a Presbyter ſhould rebaptize one who has had a true Baptiſm before, let him be depoſed, as making a Mock of the Croſs and Death of Chriſt. Tertullian declares it as the ſettled Doctrine of his Time, viz. A. D. Denuo ablui non licet.

PARAPHRASE on the GOSPEL.

* There was an ancient Cuſtom among the Jews, for Parents to bring their Children before ſome holy and extraordinary Man to receive his Bleſſing. In obſervation of which Cuſtom, our Saviour being in one of the Towns beyond Jordan, and highly renowned there for his Miracles, and excellent Preaching, the Parents of ſeveral Children about that Country, brought them to him, that he might lay his Hands upon them, and to give them his Bleſſing. But his Diſciples judging that this was only a fond Impertinence of thoſe who brought them, or came along with them, and tended to give their Maſter an unneceſſary Trouble, by diverting him from more proper Buſineſs, gave them a Check, and would have kept them at a diſtance from our Saviour's Perſon. Which our bleſſed Lord obſerving, He was not a little diſpleaſed thereat, returning them this Reply: You do not well, my Friends, in driving away theſe good People, who bring their Children to me, to receive my Bleſſing; you fancying that God takes no care to confer any Spiritual Benefits upon them: But I muſt tell you, that their Souls are as dear to God as thoſe of full-grown Perſons; nay, I muſt obſerve to you further, that God's Kingdom in Heaven, the everlaſting ſtate of Happineſs in the other World, will chiefly be poſſeſſed by Perſons of the like Innocency and Simplicity with theſe Children. Nay, beſides all this I will aſſure you, That as for God's Kingdom of Grace, and the Goſpel preached by me the Meſſias, there ſhall no one be admitted a Member thereof, but who ſhall be as free from all Malice and Diſſimulation, Guile and Hypocriſy, as theſe poor Children. And with this, he took them one by one into his Arms, and laying his Hand upon each of their Heads, He, by a ſhort Prayer, recommended them to God's Bleſſing.

give unto him the bleſſing of eternal life, and make him partaker of his everlaſting kingdom. Wherefore we being thus perſwaded of the good will of our heavenly Father towards this infant, declared by his Son Jeſus Chriſt, and nothing doubting but that he favourably alloweth this charitable work of ours, in bringing this Infant to his holy baptiſm, let us faithfully and devoutly give thanks unto him, and * ſay,

ALmighty and everlaſting God, heavenly Father, we give thee humble thanks, that thou haſt vouchſafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace and faith in thee: Increaſe this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to this Infant, that he may be born again, and be made an heir of everlaſting ſalvation, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the holy Spirit, now and for ever. Amen.

NOTES.

(o) Godfathers.] The Cuſtom of Godfathers and Godmothers ſeems to have had its Original from a like Practice among the Jews; for 'tis probable, that the two faithful Witneſſes, mentioned Iſaiah viii. 2. which the Prophet took to him at the naming of his Son, were not of a different Nature. The modern Jews (as Buxtorf informs us, Syn. Jud. cap. 2.) have always a Sponſor or Suſceptor at the Circumciſion of the Child. But the uſe of them in the Chriſtian Church is of ſo ancient a date, that they are mentioned by ſome of the moſt early Writers of our Religion. Juſtin Martyr, or whoever was the Writer of Anſwers to the Orthodox, mentions them, Ἀξιοῦμαι δὲ ἡμᾶς διὰ τὸ βαπτίσματος ἀγαθὸν τὸ βρέφη ἢ παῖδας τῶν προσφερόντων. Children partake of the Benefits of Baptiſm, by the Faith of their Sureties. Tertullian ſays, Pro cujuſque perſonæ conditione, ac diſpoſitione, etiam ætate, cunctatio Baptiſmi utilior eſt: præcipuè autem circa parentes. Quid enim neceſſe eſt, ſi non tam neceſſe ſponſores etiam periculo ingeri? qui & ipſi per mortalitatem deſtituere promiſſiones ſuas poſſunt, & proventu mala indolis falli. Lib. de Bap. cap. 18. For the Condition, Diſpoſition, and Age of every Perſon, the delay of Baptiſm is more profitable. For what neceſſity is there that the Sponſors ſhould be expoſed to ſo much hazard? who may either die before they can make their Promiſe good, or be deceived by the Child's Apoſtacy or ill courſes. This Paſſage, tho' it ſhews Tertullian's Opinion to be againſt Infant-Baptiſm, yet it plainly demonſtrates, that both Infant-Baptiſm and Godfathers were uſed in his Time. St. Cyril of Alexandria ſays, Ὁ προσάγων ὑπὲρ αὐτὸς τὸ Ἀμὴν ἀναφωνεῖ. The Godfather anſwers aloud for the Infant, Amen. Cyr. Alex. in XII. Joh. St. Auſtin ſpeaks of the ſame when he ſays, Offeruntur quidem parvuli, ad percipiendam ſpiritualem gratiam, non tam ab iis quorum geſtantur manibus, quam ab univerſâ ſocietate ſanctorum atque fidelium. Children are brought to partake of the ſpiritual Grace, not ſo much by their Sureties who carry them, as by all the Society of the Saints and the Faithful. Ep. 23. And again, Ubi parvulos ponimus baptizatos, niſi inter fideles? hoc enim iis acquiritur per virtutem ſacramenti & offerentium reſponſionem? Where ſhall we place the baptized Infants, but among the Faithful? For this Privilege they have acquired, by virtue of the Sacrament, and by their Sureties anſwering for them. De peccat. mer. Lib. I. cap. 33.

But if there were nothing of Antiquity in favour of this Uſage of our Church, yet methinks the Benefits thereof, to common Chriſtianity, ſhould skreen it from thoſe furious Aſſaults which are too frequently made againſt it; for what an excellent Security is it to the Church, that ſeveral Chriſtian Men and Women paſs their Word, that the Child ſhall be inſtructed in the Chriſtian Faith; that they will take this Duty upon themſelves in caſe the Parents of it chance to die, or be negligent of it?

(p) Doſt thou in the Name of this Child.] Theſe Queſtions put to the Sureties, in behalf of the Child, have been very much cenſured by thoſe of the Diſſent from the Church; and expoſed with an Air of too much Scorn, as a very ſenſeleſs and ridiculous Inſtitution, to put theſe Queſtions to Children, which were formerly only put to Perſons grown up. But ſuch Perſons ſhould be pleas'd to conſider, that if all the ancient legal Forms were brought to a rigid Examination, there would a great many hard and improper

And that he was conceived by the holy Ghoſt; born of the Virgin Mary; that he ſuffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down into hell, and alſo did riſe again the third day; that he aſcended into heaven, and ſitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; and from thence ſhall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

And doſt thou believe in the holy Ghoſt; the holy Catholick Church, the Communion of ſaints; the remiſſion of ſins; the reſurrection of the fleſh; and everlaſting life after death?

per Expreſſions be found among them, which we could not eaſily reconcile our Minds to, but only that their Antiquity affords us a venerable agreeableneſs. Upon this account, our Legiſlature does not think fit, to alter many of the wiſe Conſtitutions of their Reverend Forefathers, retaining them with a religious Obſervation, tho' under ſome ſmall miſuſe of the Words; notwithſtanding Grammar-Criticks may object ſome Soleciſms therein. Now, if in our Civil Conſtitution, we think it very laudable to retain ſome very ancient Uſages, which ſome nice Men may find fault with; I know no reaſon why the Church ſhould be blamed, for keeping to ſome ancient Uſages, which, in all probability, may be as old as the Apoſtolical Times. For ſome of the moſt ancient Writers of the Church do make mention of the Baptiſmal Interrogations, not only as a Cuſtom received in their Time, but in that of their Forefathers, which was next to that of the Apoſtles. Juſtin Martyr makes mention of theſe Interrogatories, as propoſed to all Perſons who were baptized; Ὅσοι ἂν πεισθῶσι καὶ πιστεύσωσιν ἀληθῆ ταῦτα τὰ ἀφ' ἡμῶν διδασκόμενα καὶ λεγόμενα εἶναι, καὶ ζῆν ὡς δύνανται ὑποσχῆσθαι —— ἄγονται ἐφ' ἡμῶν ἔνθα ὕδωρ ἐστὶ &c. All that believe the Doctrines of our Religion, and promiſe that they will live accordingly —— are brought to the Water and are baptized. Juſt. Mart. Ap. II. They are mention'd more expreſly by the Author of the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions; Ἀποτάσσομαι τῷ Σατανᾷ, καὶ τοῖς ἔργοις αὐτοῦ, καὶ ταῖς πόμπαις αὐτοῦ, καὶ ταῖς λατρείαις αὐτοῦ, καὶ τοῖς ἀγγέλοις αὐτοῦ. I renounce Satan and his Works, and his Pomps, and his Worſhips, and his Angels. And again, συντάσσομαι τῷ Χριστῷ, καὶ πιστεύω καὶ βαπτίζομαι εἰς ἕνα ἀγέννητον, &c. I am join'd myſelf to Chriſt, I believe in, and am baptized into one eternal God, &c. Conſt. Apoſt. Lib. VII. Now when Boniface asked St. Auſtin, why theſe Queſtions were asked of Infants, the Holy Father gave this Anſwer, Sicut credere reſpondetur, ita etiam fidelis vocatur: non rem ipſâ mente annuendo, ſed ipſius rei Sacramentum percipiendo. When 'tis anſwered in the Infants behalf, that I believe, he is eſteemed one of the Faithful: not by giving an aſſent of the mind, but by participation of the Sacrament.

But it muſt further be conſidered, that theſe Queſtions are not put to the Children themſelves, but to their Sureties in their Names: Doſt thou, in the Name of this Child, renounce the Devil and all his Works? Doſt thou believe in God Almighty, &c.? Wilt thou be baptized in this Faith? For my part, I know not what Interrogations can be more proper. There is not any thing in this Stipulation, but what is agreeable to other ſtipulative Forms. According to the ancient Roman Laws, the Ædilis was obliged to take an Oath to obſerve the Laws of Rome, within five Days after his admiſſion to that Office. And we find a Preſident in Livy, that Valerius Flaccus being elected to that Office, but being hindred from taking the Oath himſelf, his Brother ſwore for him; and it was judged, that the Oath was as Obligatory, as if he had ſworn himſelf.

Don't Princes ſwear to Leagues by their Embaſſadors? And don't Orphans make Agreements by their Guardians, which, when they come to Age, they ſtand obliged to ratify? Now ſince all Nations, and all Orders of Men make uſe of Agreements and Stipulations by Proxy; why ſhould it be thought ſuch an unpardonable Fault in our Church, for the Sureties to enter into an Engagement, which is ſo unſpeakably profitable for the Souls of thoſe they are engaged for, in their Names?

NOTES.

(q) Grant that the old Adam in this child.] There was a Cuſtom that obtained in early Ages of the Church, which was to Exorciſe the baptized Perſon, or to caſt Satan out of him, who was ſuppoſed to have taken poſſeſſion of his Body, in his unregenerate State. It cannot be denied, but that Poſſeſſions by Evil Spirits were very frequent before the ſpreading of the Goſpel, and that the firſt Chriſtians ejected many of them by the Name of Chriſt. To theſe Exorciſms of Energumens, and not of Catechumens (as ſome have miſtaken) St. Cyprian refers, when he ſays, O ſi audire eos & videre velles, quando a nobis adjurantur & torquentur, ſpiritualibus flagris, & orationis flagellis exire coguntur. O that you would hear and ſee theſe evil Spirits, when they are exorciſed and tortured by us, with ſpiritual Whips and Laſhes of Prayer, Cypr. in Lib. ad Demet. And of the ſame Prudentius, in thoſe excellent Verſes:

——— torquetur Apollo
Nomine percuſſus Chriſti, nec fulmina Verbi
Ferre poteſt:
Intonat Antiſtes Domini, fuge callide ſerpens,
Exue te membris, & ſpiras ſolve latentes.
Hæc inter voces medius Cyllenius ardens
Ejulat, & motos ſuſpirat Jupiter ignes:
——— Torments Apollo's Limbs do tear,
The Thunder of Chriſt's Name he cannot bear.
The Prieſt cries out, Thou crafty Serpent fly,
This Body quit, thy crooked folds unty.
Burnt Phœbus yells, and Coals around him blown,
Great Jove himſelf, for Pain, is forc'd to groan.
Prudent. in Apotheoſi contra Jud.

Afterwards they came to be uſed as an ordinary Rite in the adminiſtration of Baptiſm, to denote, that Perſons before they were regenerate by Baptiſm, are under the Kingdom of Darkneſs, held by the Power of Sin and the Devil, and to manifeſt the ſingular benefit we receive, by being freed from the Dominion of his Kingdom, and by being adopted Children of God, by entring into the Baptiſmal Covenant. It is of this Baptiſmal Exorciſm that Gregory Nazianzen ſpeaks, Μὴ διαπύσῃς ἐξορκισμῶ διακρίσεως, ἐάπαν & τοῦτο ἐν ἄυτῃ τὸ περὶ τὸ χάρισμα γνησιότητος. Do not deſpiſe the Miniſtry of the Exorciſm, for it is a touchſtone to try, whether or no one comes with ſincerity to Baptiſm. Greg. Naz. Orat. XL. St. Cyril of Jeruſalem ſpeaks of the ſame, Τὰς ἐπορκισμὰς λέχε μετὰ σπουδῆς. Cyr. Hier. in Præf. ad Catech. And again, Τῶν ἐπορκιζόντων, διὰ πνεύματος & Θεῖα ἐμβαλλόντων τὸν φόβον, φεύγει μὲν ὁ ἐχθρὸς δειλιῶν, παραμένει δὲ ἡ σωτηρία, καὶ παραμένει ἡ ἐλπὶς τῆς αἰωνίου ζωῆς. When the Exorciſt, by virtue of the Holy Ghoſt, ſtrikes fear, the Enemy the Devil flies away, but there remains ſalvation and hope of eternal Life. Nay, this Cuſtom, in the adminiſtration of Baptiſm was ſo univerſal in St. Auſtin's Time, that this Father founds an Argument upon it to confute the Pelagians: Vellem (ſays he) aliqui iſtorum qui contraria ſapiunt, mihi baptizandum parvulum afferret. Quid in illo aget Exorciſmus meus, ſi in familia Diaboli non tenetur? I wiſh that any Pelagian would offer me a Child to baptize. Now what will my Exorciſm ſignify to him, if he be not then of the Family of the Devil? Auſt. Lib. I. de Pecc. Mer. cap. 34. And again, Accuſat Eccleſiam toto orbe diffuſam, &c. The Pelagians accuſe the whole Catholick Church, wherein Infants every-where are for no other Reaſons exorciſed but becauſe the Prince of this World may be ſent out of them.

But becauſe, in proceſs of Time, many Superſtitions and unwarrantable Practices, mixed with this ancient Rite, eſpecially in the Roman Church, our wiſe Reformers thought fit to lay it quite aſide, and to ſubſtitute in lieu of it theſe ſhort excellent Prayers; wherein the Miniſter and the Congregation put up their Petitions to Almighty God, that the Child may be delivered from the Power of the Devil, and receive all the Benefits of the Divine Grace and Protection, without that ancient Ceremony attending it.

(r) Sanctifie this Water.] By a Paſſage of St. Cyprian it ſhould ſeem, that the ancient Chriſtians had a Cuſtom in their Baptiſm, to have a Conſecratory Prayer for the dedicating the Baptiſmal Water, to the ſacred uſe it was deſigned for: Oportet mundari & ſanctificari aquam priùs a ſacerdote, ut poſſit baptiſmo ſuo peccata hominis baptized therein, may receive the fulneſs of thy grace, and ever remain in the number of thy faithful and elect children, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

¶ † Then the Prieſt ſhall take the child into his hands, and ſhall ſay to the Godfathers and Godmothers.

(ſ) Name this child.

*And then naming it after them (if they ſhall * certifie him that the child may well endure it) he ſhall* (t) dip it in the water diſcreetly and warily, ſaying,

N. I baptize thee in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghoſt. Amen.

¶ But

minis qui baptizatur abluere. The Water ought to be made clean, and ſanctified firſt by the Prieſt, that it may be made uſeful by Baptiſm, to waſh away the Sins of Men. Cypr. Ep. 70. But the Roman Church afterwards added to this ſeveral odd and Superſtitious Rites; breathing into it, making Croſſes over it, quenching in it a Wax-Candle, mixing Chriſm in it, and this to be done only upon a certain Day of the Year, and kept afterwards for uſe. Nay, in every particular Baptiſm, the Sacerdotale Romanum enjoins, that the Water muſt be mixed with new Chriſm, unleſs in a caſe of extraordinary neceſſity: Et contrarium faciens mortaliter peccat. And he that acts contrary to this ſins a deadly ſin, Sac. Rom. Tract. I. cap. 2. But our Church has reduced all to primitive Practice, being content only with Prayer, to ſeparate the Water from a vulgar to a ſacred uſe.

NOTES.

(ſ) Name the Child.] There was an ancient Uſage in the Church, for the baptized Perſon to have a Name given him upon his receiving that Sacrament. This indeed did not univerſally obtain as to adult Perſons; but when Infants have been baptized it has conſtantly been obſerved in the Church, that they ſhould take their Names at their Baptiſm: The reaſon whereof was, that whereas Baptiſm ſucceeded in the place of Circumciſion, at the partaking of which Ceremony the Jews received their Names; it was thought by the firſt Chriſtians, that they would not do leſs than this, in honour of this new Rite, which our Saviour had inſtituted for their uſe. As to adult Perſons they did not more, than ſome little time before their Baptiſm, give in their Name, which they would be called by, to the Biſhop or Prieſt, which was generally their old Name, and this, unleſs a very Heatheniſh one, was retained; as is plain in the Caſe of St. Auſtin, and others, who being baptized when Adults retained their Names: But if the Name was ſuch an one as reflected any diſhonour upon the Chriſtian Religion, they took another, viz. that of Peter, Paul, or of ſome other Holy Perſon in Scripture. This was called the Nominis Datio, and was enjoined by a Canon of the Church, about the Year 398. Conc. IV. Carth. cap. 85. And by the XXX Canon of the Council of Nice, in the Arabick, Chriſtians are commanded not to give the Gentile Names to their Children in Baptiſm, but Chriſtian. Our Church has thought fit to retain this ancient Practice of the Church; and therefore has ordered, that the Name ſhould be given to the Child at the time of its Baptiſm.

(t) Shall dip it in the Water.] I think it can hardly be queſtioned, but that dipping or plunging into the Water was the more uſual practice in the Primitive Times; for the Baptiſm of John, from which the Chriſtian Baptiſm took its riſe, was performed in a place where there was much Water, John iii. 23. Which is further confirmed by Philip and the Eunuch's going into the Water, Acts viii. 38. and alſo by Alluſions in Scripture to Baptiſm, as when St. Paul ſpeaks of our being buried with Chriſt in baptiſm, Rom. vi. 4. and ſo Col. ii. 12. buried with him in baptiſm, wherein alſo you are riſen with him: which are Metaphors clearly taken from the then common uſe of Baptiſm, to be plunged over Head and Ears in the Water, and then to be raiſed up again. Which Cuſtom was retained in the Church for many Centuries. Tertullian ſpeaking of the Baptiſms of his Time, about the Year 200, ſays, Hominem in aquam dimiſſum & tinctum eſſe; the baptized Perſon was put into the Water, and dipped in it. Tert. de Bapt. Gregory Nazianzen ſpeaking of the Baptiſm of his Father, which was about the beginning of the Fourth Century, relates the manner of his going out of the Water after his Baptiſm, Greg. Naz. in Orat. de laudibus Patris. But beſides infinite Authorities, which might be cited for this Practice, the Form of the ancient Baptiſteries, (wherein the κολυμβήθρα, or the Baſin, was made large and deep enough to cover the Bodies of grown Perſons, who were plunged into it) is ſufficient Evidence thereof. But beſides the bare dipping under Water, there was a Cuſtom which obtained during the very firſt Ages of Chriſtianity, and that was the Trine Immerſion, or dipping three times under Water; once at the Name of God the Father, the ſecond time at the Name of God the Son, and the third time when the Holy Ghoſt was named. This is mentioned by Tertullian, in his Book de Corona: Debinc ter mergimur; after this we are dipped three times under Water. This he ſpeaks of again in his Book againſt Praxeas: Ter ad ſingula nomina, in perſonas ſingulas tingimur. We are three times dipped in Water, for every Perſon in the Trinity, once at the naming each of them, Tert. adv. Prax. cap. 26. But this Cuſtom is moſt particularly deſcribed by the Author of the Book of the Sacraments, commonly attributed to St. Ambroſe: Interrogatus, &c. You are asked the Queſtion, Whether you believe in God the Father Almighty? and you anſwer, I believe; and with that you are dipped in the Water. Again, you are asked, Do you believe in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt? and you anſwer, I believe; and are dipped again. Then you are asked, Do you believe in the Holy Ghoſt? and you are dipped a third time. This St. Jerom will have to be an Apoſtolical Tradition: Multa quæ per traditionem in Eccleſiis obſervantur, authoritatem ſibi ſcriptæ legis uſurpârunt, velut in Lavacro ter mergitari. There are many things, which by Tradition being obſerved in the Church, have gained to themſelves the authority of a written Law, as to be plunged into the Water three times in Baptiſm. Hier. Dial. contr. Lucif.

But, however, about the latter-end of the Sixth Century, the Trine Immerſion began to be left off in Spain, becauſe the Arians uſed it. And this was approved by Gregory the Great, in one of his Epiſtles; for he ſays, That there is not leſs Myſtery in one Immerſion than in three; for one Immerſion is rightly uſed to ſignify the Oneneſs of the Deity, as the Trine Immerſion is to ſignify the Three Perſons. And this Opinion of Gregory was afterwards affirmed by the Fourth Council of Toledo, which was held A. D. 633. The ſingle dipping being now ſettled in Spain, the Trine Immerſion loſt Ground in other Places, tho' it was a great while after faintly uſed; for we find ſome Traces of it in the Eighth Century, when Alcuinus wrote, who mentions it, Tit. de Bapt. Dom.; and in the Time when the Ordo Romanus was compiled. But I cannot find that the Trine Immerſion was uſed in our Nation, ſince there is nothing in the Provincial Conſtitutions, nor in thoſe of Otho and

Ottobon

¶ But if they certifie, that the child is weak, it ſhall (u) ſuffice to pour water upon it, ſaying the foreſaid words,

Amen.

¶ * Then

Ottobon concerning it. Indeed Lyndwood ſays, Licet Immerſio poſſit eſſe una, probabilior tamen eſt Conſuetudo quæ ter immergit, Tit. de Bapt. verb. vas illud. But this I take only to be a Point of Superconformity, and a good liking of an ancient Uſage, ſet down in the Ritual Books; and not a declaration of the practice of the Church which he lived in.

(u) It ſhall ſuffice to pour Water upon it.] Altho' dipping or plunging into the Water were the more ancient practice, and more univerſal in the primitive times; yet ſprinkling or pouring Water on the Head of the baptized perſon was of great Antiquity in the Church likewiſe. It had its beginning in the caſes of Clinicks or ſick Perſons chiefly, who could not come to the publick Baptiſtery, nor would the weakneſs of their Conſtitution admit of their being dipped all over in the Water, and therefore the ſprinkling, or pouring a ſmall quantity of Water upon their face or head, was judged ſufficient for their due undergoing the Sacrament of Baptiſm. Indeed there were ſome Perſons in former times, who were of opinion, that this way of adminiſtring Baptiſm was not valid, in caſe the Infirm perſon recovered, but that he was to be baptized again by way of Immerſion. But St. Cyprian in his LXXVI Epiſtle to Magnus, defends the Legitimacy of this way of adminiſtring Baptiſm in ſuch caſe of Neceſſity, and that it ought not to be reiterated. In the Fourth and Fifth Century Aſperſion was more common: for St. Auſtin ſpeaks of it as an ordinary way of baptizing in his Time, poſt Confeſſionem aſpergitur aquâ vel intingitur, de Eccl. Dogm. cap. 74; if St. Auſtin were the Author of that Book: However it was ancient. Walafridus Strabo wrote in the IX Century: And he ſays, Notandum, non ſolum mergendo, ſed etiam deſuper fundendo multos baptizatos fuiſſe, & adhuc poſſe baptizari. We muſt take notice that many were formerly baptized, and may be ſo now, not only by dipping, but alſo by pouring water upon them. De Off. Eccl. cap. de Bapt. So that after the Heathen Nations were converted to Chriſtianity, and by that means the Baptiſms of Adult were leſs frequent, the tenderneſs of Childrens Bodies, eſpecially in the colder Countries, not enduring to be dipped into the Water, the uſe of ſprinkling generally ſucceeded in the Church, in ſtead of that of dipping. And indeed during the more early Ages of the Church, and when Adults were frequently baptized, there were ſome particular Caſes, when Aſperſion was uſed in lieu of Immerſion. As in the caſe of the Baſhfulneſs of ſome young Women, who could not endure to appear naked before a Presbyter; which St. Chryſoſtom takes notice of in his Letter to Innocent III. Our Church with great moderation neither totally lays aſide Immerſion, if the ſtrength of the Child will bear it, as indeed it ſeldom will without danger in our cold Country; or otherways ſhe admits only Aſperſion, rather than occaſion any injury to the Body of a Tender babe; wiſely conſidering that in the eye of God, Mercy is better than ſacrifice.

(w) In the name of the Father.] As this Form of Baptiſm was given us by our bleſſed Lord, ſo the Catholick Church has in all Ages been very careful not to vary in the leaſt from it. And therefore would never allow Baptiſms which were performed by any other form of Words. Tertullian ſays, Lex tingendi impoſita eſt & forma præſcripta; Docete nationes, tingentes eos in nomine Patris & Filii & Spiritus Sancti, We have a preſcribed Law and ſet Form of Baptizing, Go teach all nations, Baptizing them, In the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoſt. Tertul. de Bapt. Cap. 13. Juſtin Martyr, when he deſcribes the Chriſtian Baptiſm, ſays, Ἐν ὀνόματι τῦ Πατρὸς τῶν ὅλων, καὶ Δεσπότου Θεῦ, καὶ τῦ σωτῆρος ἡμῶν Ἰησῦ Χριστῦ, καὶ πνεύματος ἁγίου, τὸ ἐν ὕδατι τότε λοῦτρον ποιῦνται. The Chriſtians are baptized in the Name of God the Creator and Lord of all things, of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, and the Holy Ghoſt. Not that the holy Martyr means, that this was juſt the form which the Chriſtians uſed, but only he paraphraſes one part of it, for the information of the Heathens. However this is clear from the words, that the Chriſtians of his time were careful to baptize, in the name of every one of the perſons of the ever-bleſſed Trinity diſtinctly. Therefore the Orthodox very deſervedly found fault with the Arian Form, as it is ſet down in St. Jerom, Cont. Lucif. Ego baptizo te in ſolo vero Deo, in Jeſu Chriſto ſervatore & Creaturâ, & in Spiritu Sancto utriusque ſervo. I baptize thee in the name of the one true God, in Jeſus Chriſt the ſaviour and a Creature, and in the Holy Ghoſt the Servant of both. The Form of the Eunomians was much the ſame as it is ſet down by Epiphanius, Hæreſ. 76. I baptize thee in the Name of the uncreated God, and in the Name of the created Son, and the ſanctifying Holy Ghoſt, created by the created Son. The Greek Church in latter times run into a Form which, tho' it was not Heretical as the former was, yet it gave great offence to the Latin Church. For they pronounced the Form paſſively in the third perſon. If the perſon to be baptized was a Male they ſaid, Βαπτίζεται ὁ δῦλος, &c. if it was a female, Βαπτίζεται ἡ δύλη τῦ Θεῦ, &c. The Servant of God is baptized in the Name, &c. The handmaid of God is baptized in the Name, &c. Our Church has enjoyned the Form in the firſt perſon, both as being more ancient, and leſs lyable to exception. And that this Form of baptizing in the firſt perſon was uſed in the Engliſh Church, even before the Reformation, may be ſeen in an Article of the Conſtitutions under Arch. Peckam in the Council at Lambeth 1281. Dicatur autem ſic taliter baptizantibus: Ich chriſtine the in the Name of ye fadere, &c. Conc. Lamb. Cap. de Baptiſm.

(x) Here the Prieſt ſhall make a Croſs.] This Ceremony, which our Church has thought fit to retain, has met with more exclamations from her Adverſaries, than any other ancient Uſage which in her Rubricks ſhe has enjoyned. In this we are arraigned, not only of being guilty of Popiſh ſuperſtition, but for profanely inſtituting a new Sacrament. But it muſt be obſerved, Firſt, That this Ceremony was uſed in Baptiſm, before the Church was infected with the Romiſh Errors. For Tertullian mentions it as uſed in his time. Ad omnem progreſſum atque promotum, ad omnem aditum & exitum, ad veſtitum & calciatum, ad Lavacra, ad menſas, &c. frontem Crucis ſignaculo terimus. At every Step or Motion we make, at every going out or coming in, when we Cloath ourſelves, or put on our Shoes, at the Fonts, at our Tables, &c. we mark our forehead with the ſign of the Croſs. Tert. de Coronâ. So again Caro abluitur ut anima emaculetur, Caro ungitur ut Anima conſecretur, Caro Signatur ut Anima muniatur. The Body is waſhed that the Soul may be cleanſed; the Body is anointed that the Soul may be conſecrated; the Body is Signed, that the Soul may be ſtrengthened. Tert. de Reſ. Carn. St. Cyprian writes, that Signo Domini omnes ſignantur. All Chriſtians are ſigned by the ſign of the Lord. Cypr. ad Jud. Lactantius ſays, Chriſtus immolatus ſaluti eſt omnibus, qui ſignum ſanguinis i. e. Crucis quâ ſanguinem fudit, ſua in fronte conſcripſerunt. Chriſt being ſacrificed wrought Salvation for all thoſe who carry the ſign of his Blood, i. e. of the Croſs on which he ſhed his Blood, in their foreheads. Lact. Lib. 4. de ver. ſap. Prudentius refers to this, in theſe Verſes.

Hujus adoratis altaribus, & cruce fronti
Inſcriptâ, cecinere Tubæ —— Prud. Lib. II. cont. Sym.

The Altars being ador'd, and on his Front
A Croſs inſcrib'd, the Trumpets ſound ——

So Paulinus, another ancient Chriſtian Poet, in the following Verſes;

SEeing now, dearly beloved brethren, (y) that this child is regenerate and grafted into the body of Chriſts Church, let us give thanks unto Almighty God for theſe benefits, and with one accord make our prayers unto him, that this child may lead the reſt of his life according to this beginning.

St. Baſil informs us, Τῷ τύπῳ τῦ σαυρῦ εἰς τὸ ὄνομα τῦ κυρίου ἡμῶν Ἰησῦ Χριστῦ ἀλεπικόπους καταπαλαίει. That thoſe who believe in the Name of Chriſt, are ſigned with the Sign of the Croſs. Baſ. de Spir. Sanct. Cap. 27. St. Chryſoſtom makes it the Glory of us Chriſtians, that we, πάντες ἐπὶ μετώπου σαυρὸν φερόμεν; all carry in our foreheads the Croſs of Chriſt. Chryſ. in Pſal. cx. St. Auſtin ſpeaks to one to be baptized, Paſſionis & Crucis ſigno in fronte bodiè ſignandus es, omneſque Chriſtiani ſignantur. You are to be ſigned to day with the ſign of the Croſs, as all Chriſtians are ſigned with. And again Ut Dæmones quibus Crux Chriſti inviſa eſt, a tentando ceſſarent, et hoc quaſi charactere, alligarentur, propterea imprimebant Catechumeno ſignaculum Crucis. As the Devils who hate the Croſs of Chriſt, do ceaſe from temptation, and are bound up by this Rite; for this Reaſon the Church ſigns Catechumens with the ſign of the Croſs, Aug. de Catech. Rudibus cap. 20. Now I cannot ſee any Reaſon why a venerable and ancient Rite ſhould be laid aſide, only becauſe ſome perſons among us are pleaſed to find fault with it; when at the ſame time, moſt of our eſtabliſhed Communion ſet the higheſt value upon it, as a very commendable and ancient Rite. And ſhould the Church out of compliance to the Objectors, abrogate this Ceremony; 'tis much to be doubted whether they would for that Conceſſion reconcile themſelves to our Church; but perhaps at the ſame time it would put ſome others under a temptation of judging our Baptiſm without it invalid, and ſome perſons chooſe to have their Children rather baptized by Popiſh Prieſts, than to go without. For Parker in his Latin Treatiſe of the Croſs, ſaid this was the caſe of ſome ſtiff Conformiſts, in Queen Elizabeth's and King James the Firſt's Time, when ſome Puritan Miniſters of Pariſhes refuſed to baptize with the ſign of the Croſs. I don't ſay this to excuſe this practice; but however from hence we may gather, that 'tis no ways expedient to lay aſide an ancient Ceremony, the abolition of which wou'd bring no body into the Church, and perhaps would drive away ſeveral from it. All the Superſtitious Uſes of the Croſs, retained among the Papiſts, are abrogated by our Reformers We do not croſs our ſelves, as they do at every little apprehenſion of danger; we don't as they do adore it and burn incenſe to it; we do not carry it about the ſtreet, making people to kneel down before it; we only make a ſign of it in the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm. And methinks we could not do leſs than this; unleſs we would lay aſide all honourable regards to our Saviours Sufferings, out of Complaiſance to Heathens and Mahometans. As to our inſtituting a new Sacrament in enjoyning this Rite, I think our Adverſaries are hardly ſerious, when they talk it. They know well enough, that we as well as they allow nothing to be a Sacrament but what is inſtituted by Chriſt himſelf. If there be here any external ſign of a Sacrament, where is the inviſible grace which we attribute to it? Did ever any one of us make it a Means either of Grace or Salvation? We retain it only as an Initiatory Ceremony of Receiving a new Member into the Church. And we cannot ſee that there is more ſuperſtition in this, than when the Independents receive any one new Member into their Congregation, by holding up of the Hand. Why ſhould it be eſteemed more Popiſh and Idolatrous to admit one into our Church Memberſhip, by one Finger moved in a Croſs, than by holding five Fingers upright? All Societies have ſome particular Ceremonial Uſages in admitting new Members into their Body, which yet no one blames them for: and methinks we have the leaſt reaſon to be faulted, for making uſe of a Ceremony, which not only pays ſuch an honourable Regard to our bleſſed Lord, but has been uſed for ſo many Ages in the Chriſtian Church.

NOTES.

(y) That this Child is regenerate.] There have been ſome very unreaſonable Exceptions taken againſt this Expreſſion; as if all Perſons who are baptized were truly Regenerate, whereas ſeveral of them prove afterwards very wicked. But this Objection is grounded upon a modern Notion of the Word Regeneration, which neither the ancient Fathers of the Church, nor the Compilers of our Liturgy knew any thing of. Indeed ſome Writers of the laſt Century run into this newfangled Phraſe, to denote Converſion, or a returning from a lapſed State, after a notorious violation of the Baptiſmal Covenant, to an habitual ſtate of Holineſs. But no ancient Writer, that I know of, ever expreſſed this by the Word Regeneration. Regeneration, as often as 'tis uſed in the Scripture Books ſignifies the Baptiſmal Regeneration. There is but one Word which anſwers to this in the New-Teſtament, and that is παλιγγενεσία; and that παλιγγενεσία refers to Baptiſm, is plain, by having the Word λυτρὸν joined with it: According to his mercy has ſaved us, διὰ λυτροῦ παλιγγενεσίας. by the waſhing of Regeneration, Tit. iii. 5. Our Saviour indeed made uſe of the like Expreſſion, before the Apoſtle, to Nicodemus, Except a Man, γεννηθῇ ἄνωθεν, be born again he cannot ſee the kingdom of God, John iii. 3. But what he means by being born again he explains, ver. 5. by directing it poſitively to Baptiſm, Except a Man be born of Water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Regeneration, in the Language of the Fathers, conſtantly ſignifies the participation of the Sacrament of Baptiſm. The Greeks have variety of Words to expreſs Regeneration by, not only ἀναγέννησις, which is an exact Tranſlation of it, but ἀνακάινισμὸς, Renovation; ἀνάπλασις, Recreation; ἀνανέωσις, Renewing; ἀνάστασις, Reſurrection; μεταβολὴ, the Change; μεταποίησις, the Refitting; παλιγγενεσία, the being born again; παλινσοκία, the begetting again: All which Expreſſions are uſed of Baptiſm, and ſeldom or never of the Riſe after a Lapſe. The Language of the Latin Fathers is the ſame. The Latin Tranſlator of Irenæus, which undoubtedly is very ancient, expreſſes the Greek, ἀναγέννησις, by Regeneratio: Baptiſmatis ejus quæ eſt in Deum Regeneratio. Baptiſm, which is a Regeneration unto God. Iren. adv. Hær. Lib. I. cap. 18. and ſo likewiſe calls the ἀναγενήμενοι, the baptized Regenerati; the Regenerate, ib. St. Ambroſe, ſpeaking of Baptiſm, expreſſes himſelf thus, Per lavacrum enim renovamur, per quod renaſcimur. By Baptiſm we are renewed, by which alſo we are born again, Ambr. de Pœn. Lib. II. cap. 1. St. Auſtin, beſides innumerable other Paſſages, within the compaſs of a few Lines, has ſeveral Expreſſions all to this purpoſe. He calls Baptiſm Regeneratio ſpiritualis, the ſpiritual Regeneration. He ſays the baptized Perſon, Renaſcitur quia regeneratur, is born again, becauſe he is regenerated: and laſtly, calls Baptiſm, Sacramentum regenerationis, Aug. cont. Jul. Lib. VI. And in another place he moves a Queſtion, whether the Baptiſm of the Schiſmatical Donatiſts does confer Regeneration or no, Aug. cont. Donat. Lib. I. but never doubted whether that of the Catholicks did ſo. But when any of the Ancients have occaſion to expreſs a Returning to God after a ſtate of ſin; the Greeks uſe the word μεταμέλεια, μετάνοια, &c. The Latins, Pœnitentia, Converſio. The Language of the Schools is exactly that of the Latin Fathers in this point; they make the effect of Baptiſm to be Generatio ad vitam Spiritualem, viz. a Regeneration, or a Generation to a Spiritual Life. Aquin. Sum. III. qu. 69: But the turning to God after a Courſe of ſin they call either Pœnitentia, Penitence; or Converſio ad Deum. Aquin. Sum. I. q. 62. art. 2, 3. ib. art. 4. 1. The moſt eminent Divines of the Reformation uſe theſe words in the ancient ſenſe. Peter Martyr uſes Regeneratio for Baptiſm. Loc. Com. Claſ. IV. cap. 8. ib. c. 3. and calls the turning to God, after a State of Sin, Converſio & Mutatio hominis. Loc. Com. Claſ. I. cap. 15. Id. Claſſ. II. cap. 2. Mr. Calvin, where he deſigns to ſpeak with exactneſs, uſes Regeneration for the Baptiſmal Renovation, as in his Catechiſm. cap. de Sacramentis; tho' ſometimes he uſes it to ſignify Converſion, as in his Book, Hic eſt Regenerationis Ordo, &c. but this is but ſeldom, he generally, with the ancient Latin Writers, expreſſing this by Converſio. When the Quinquarticular Controverſy came afoot, and long Treatiſes were written about the Methods of Converting Grace, the Divines who managed them, being willing ſometimes to vary their Expreſſions, to make theſe Diſcourſes, dry enough in themſelves, thereby ſomething more pleaſant, began to uſe Regeneratio as a ſynonymous Word, with Converſio. But in the Synod of Dort itſelf, tho' in ſome of the particular Declarations of the Divines of the ſeveral Countries, Regeneratio and Converſio are uſed reciprocally, Act. Syn. Dor. p. 178. 194. yet in the Synodical Reſolutions the Word Converſio is always uſed. In the Sermons and Books written about the beginning of the late Civil Wars, Regeneration for Repentance or Converſion became a very faſhionable Word; but ſometimes oddly expreſſing it by Regeneration-Work, &c. they made ſport for vain People. However, by frequent uſe, the Word has come

And that he may know theſe things the better, ye ſhall call upon him to hear Sermons, and chiefly ye ſhall provide that he may learn the Creed, the Lords Prayer, and the ten Commandments in the vulgar tongue, and all other things which a Chriſtian ought to know and believe to his ſouls health; and that this child may be vertuouſly brought up to lead a godly and a Chriſtian life; remembring always that baptiſm doth repreſent unto us our profeſſion, which is, to follow the example of our Saviour Chriſt, and to be made like unto him; that as he died and roſe again for us; ſo ſhould we who are baptized, die from ſin, and riſe again unto righteouſneſs, continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all vertue and godlineſs of living.

¶ * Then ſhall he add and ſay,

PARAPHRASE on the GOSPEL.

There was an ancient Cuſtom among the Jews, for Parents to bring their Children before any extraordinary holy Man to receive his Bleſſing. In obſervation of which Cuſtom, our Saviour being in one of the Towns beyond Jordan, and highly renowned there for his Miracles, and excellent Preaching, the Parents and Nurſes of ſeveral Children about that Country, brought them to him, that he might lay his Hands upon them, and give them his Bleſſing. But his Diſciples judging that this was only a fond Impertinence of thoſe who brought them, or came along with them, and tended to give their Maſter an unneceſſary Trouble, by diverting him from more proper Buſineſs, gave them a Check, and would have kept them at a diſtance from our Saviour's Perſon. Which our bleſſed Lord obſerving, He was not a little diſpleaſed thereat, returning them this Reply: You do not well, my Friends, in driving away theſe good People, who bring their Children to me, to receive my Bleſſing; you fancying that God takes no care to confer any Spiritual Benefits upon them: But I muſt tell you, that their Souls are as dear to God as thoſe of full-grown Perſons; nay, I muſt obſerve to you further, that God's Kingdom in Heaven, the everlaſting ſtate of Happineſs in the other World, will chiefly be poſſeſſed by Perſons of the like Innocency and Simplicity with theſe Children. Nay, beſides all this I aſſure you, That as for God's Kingdom of Grace, and the Goſpel preached by me the Meſſias, there ſhall no one be admitted a Member thereof, but who ſhall be as free from all Malice and Diſſimulation, Guile and Hypocriſy, as theſe poor Children. And with this, he took them one by one into his Arms, and laying his Hand upon each of their Heads, He, by a ſhort Prayer, recommended them to God's Bleſſing.

¶ After the Goſpel is read, the Miniſter ſhall make this brief exhortation upon the words of the Goſpel.

*BEloved, ye hear in this Goſpel the words of our Saviour Chriſt, that he commanded the children to be brought unto him; how he blamed thoſe that would have kept them from him; how he exhorted all men to follow their innocency. Ye perceive how by his outward geſture and deed he declared his good will toward them; for he embraced them in his arms, he laid his hands upon them, and bleſſed them. Doubt ye not therefore, but earneſtly believe, that he hath likewiſe favourably received this preſent Infant, that he hath embraced him with the arms of his mercy, and † (as he hath promiſed in his holy word) ‡ will give unto him the bleſſing of eternal life, and make him partaker of his everlaſting kingdom. Wherefore we being thus perſwaded of the good will of our heavenly Father, declared by his Son Jeſus Chriſt towards this infant, let us faithfully and devoutly give thanks unto him, and ſay the Prayer which the Lord himſelf taught us.

OUr Father which art in heaven; Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our treſpaſſes, As we forgive them that treſpaſs againſt us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

ALmighty ‖ and everlaſting God, heavenly Father, we give thee humble thanks, that thou haſt vouchſafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace and faith in thee: Increaſe this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to this Infant, that he being born again, and being made an heir of everlaſting ſalvation, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, may continue thy ſervant, and attain thy promiſe, through the ſame our Lord Jeſus Chriſt thy Son, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the holy Spirit, now and for ever. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt demand the Name of the child, which being by the Godfathers and Godmothers pronounced, the Miniſter ſhall ſay,

DOſt thou in the name of this child renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous deſires of the ſame, and the carnal deſires of the fleſh, ſo that thou wilt not follow nor be led by them?

Anſwer.

I renounce them all.

DOſt thou believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth? And in Jeſus Chriſt his only begotten Son our Lord? And that he was conceived by the holy Ghoſt; born of the Virgin Mary; that he ſuffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down into hell, and alſo did riſe again the third day; that he aſcended into heaven, and ſitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; and from thence ſhall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

And doſt thou believe in the holy Ghoſt; the holy Catholick Church, the Communion of ſaints; the remiſſion of ſins; the reſurrection of the fleſh; and everlaſting life after death?

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay,

SEeing now, dearly beloved brethren, that this child is by Baptiſm regenerate and grafted into the body of Chriſts Church, let us give thanks unto Almighty God for theſe benefits, and with one accord make our prayers unto him, that he may lead the reſt of his life according to this beginning.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay,

WE yield thee moſt hearty thanks, moſt merciful Father, that it hath pleaſed thee to † regenerate this infant with thy holy Spirit, * to receive him for thine own child by adoption, and to ‡ incorporate him into thy holy Church. And humbly we beſeech thee to grant, that he being dead unto ſin, and living unto righteouſneſs, and being buried with Chriſt in his death, may crucifie the old man, and utterly aboliſh the whole body of ſin, and that as he is made partaker of the death of thy Son, he may alſo be partaker of his reſurrection; ſo that finally with the reſidue of thy holy Church, he may be an inheritor of thine everlaſting kingdom, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

And that he may know theſe things the better, ye ſhall call upon him to hear Sermons, and chiefly ye ſhall provide that he may learn the Creed, the Lords Prayer, and the ten Commandments in the vulgar tongue, and all other things which a Chriſtian ought to know and believe to his ſouls health; and that this child may be vertuouſly brought up to lead a godly and a Chriſtian life; remembring always that baptiſm doth repreſent unto us our profeſſion, which is, to follow the example of our Saviour Chriſt, and be made like unto him; that as he died and roſe again for us; ſo ſhould we who are baptized, die from ſin, and riſe again unto righteouſneſs, continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections, and daily proceeding in all vertue and godlineſs of living **.

THE MINISTRATION OF BAPTISM

To such as are of ‖ RIPER YEARS, and able to answer for themselves.

¶ When any such persons as are of riper years are to be baptized, timely notice shall be given to the Bishop, or whom he shall appoint for that purpose, a week before at the least, by the Parents, or some other discreet persons; that so due care may be taken for their examination, whether they be sufficiently instructed in the principles of the Christian Religion; and that they may be exhorted to prepare themselves with prayers and fasting for the receiving of this holy Sacrament.

¶ And if they shall be found fit, then the Godfathers and Godmothers (the people being assembled upon the Sunday or Holy-day appointed) shall be ready to present them at the Font immediately after the second Lesson, either at Morning or Evening Prayer, as the Curate in his discretion shall think fit.

¶ And standing there, the Priest shall ask whether any of the persons here presented be baptized or no: If they shall answer, No: then shall the Priest say thus,

DEarly beloved, forasmuch as * all men are conceived and born in sin, (and that which is born of the flesh is flesh,) and they that are in the flesh cannot please God, but live in sin, committing many actual transgressions; and that our Saviour Christ saith, None can enter into the kingdom of God, except he be regenerate and † born anew of water and of the holy Ghost; I beseech you to call upon God the Father, through our Lord Jesus Christ, that of his bounteous goodness he will grant to these persons that which by nature they cannot have, that they may be baptized with water and the holy Ghost, and received into Christ's holy Church, and be made lively members of the same.

¶ Then shall the Priest say,

Let us pray.

(¶ And here all the Congregation shall kneel.)

ALmighty and everlasting God, who of thy great mercy didst save Noah and his family ∴ in the ark from perishing by water, and also didst safely lead the children of Israel thy people through the red sea, figuring thereby thy holy baptism; and by the baptism of thy wel-beloved Son Jesus Christ in the river Jordan didst sanctifie the element of water to the mystical washing away of sin: We beseech thee for thine infinite mercies that thou wilt mercifully look upon these thy servants; wash

waſh them and ſanctifie them with the holy Ghoſt, that they being delivered from thy wrath, may be received into the ark of Chriſt's Church; and being ſtedfaſt in faith, joyful through hope, and rooted in charity, may ſo paſs the waves of this troubleſom world, that finally they may come to the land of everlaſting life; there to reign with thee world without end, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

ALmighty and immortal God, the † aid of all that need, the helper of all that flee to thee for ſuccour, ·.· the life of them that believe, and * the reſurrection of the dead; We call upon thee for theſe perſons, that they coming to thy holy baptiſm, may receive remiſſion of their ſins by ſpiritual regeneration. Receive them, O Lord, and as thou haſt promiſed by thy wel-beloved Son, ſaying, ‡ Aſk, and ye ſhall receive; ſeek, and ye ſhall find; knock, and it ſhall be opened unto you: So give now unto us that aſk; let us that ſeek find; open the gate unto us that knock; that theſe perſons may enjoy the everlaſting benediction of thy heavenly waſhing, and may come to the eternal kingdom which thou haſt promiſed, by Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the people ſtand up, and the Prieſt ſhall ſay,

Hear the words of the Goſpel written by Saint John, in the third Chapter beginning at the firſt verſe.

I. THere was a man of the Phariſees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews. The ſame came to Jeſus by night, and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do theſe miracles that thou doſt, except God be with him. II. Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the kingdom of God. Nicodemus ſaith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter the ſecond time into his mothers womb, and be born: III. Jeſus anſwered, Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the fleſh is fleſh; and that which is born of the Spirit is ſpirit. Marvel not that I ſaid unto thee, Ye muſt be born again. The wind bloweth where it liſteth, and thou heareſt the ſound thereof; but canſt not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: ſo is every one that is born of the Spirit.

PARAPHRASE on the GOSPEL.

I. There was a certain Perſon, called in the Syriack Nicdimmon which being tranſlated into a Greek name of the like Sound is rendred Nicodemus; a Man of the Sect of the Phariſees, an Order of Men among the Jews, who pretended to a ſtricter Piety and to a nicer Obſervation of all the Punctilio's of the Moſaical written Law and oral Traditions among them, than other Men; being alſo a Member of the Sanhedrim, or Jewiſh Eccleſiaſtical Synod. This perſon to avoid a reflection on himſelf, upon being taken notice of by his Brethren the Phariſees for converſing with our Saviour, whom they had conceived a great diſguſt againſt, came privately to him by night to ask him ſome queſtions, which he had a mind to be reſolved of by him; particularly concerning the Kingdom of God, which he had heard that in his Sermons he had Preached up. And having thus gained an opportunity of privately ſeeing him, he accoſts him in this manner: Sir (ſays he) I am fully convinced, by the many miracles which I have heard inconteſtably proved to be done by you, that you are a great Prophet, whoſe Miſſion God by his Omnipotent Authority does countenance; now I deſire to know the Methods of purchaſing a ſhare in this kingdom of God, that you ſpeak of. II. Our Saviour returned him only this ſhort Anſwer. No man can pretend to any title of entering into this Kingdom, unleſs he be born again. Nicodemus not underſtanding the meaning of this Figurative expreſſion, replied in a ſomewhat ſcornful manner. I, whoſe Age entitles me to be one of the Fathers of the Sanhedrim, am a little too old ever to think of being born as a Child is. How ſhould theſe full-grown Limbs ever be able to enter into a Mother's belly, to be born again? III. Our Saviour then told him, that he took his words in too groſs a meaning, that he ought to underſtand this of the ſpiritual regeneration of Baptiſm, which conſiſted not only of a bare waſhing by Water the outward ſign thereof, but likewiſe of an inward inviſible Grace of Gods holy Spirit attending it: Now this Spiritual Waſhing, or holy Rite of Baptiſm, duly adminiſtred, is the proper Method of entering into this Kingdom of God, which you are enquiring about. This is what I call being born again; but that muſt be taken in a ſpiritual way. For every thing produces ſomething of its own kind and like itſelf: Animals, and all Corporeal Vital Subſtances, produce corporeal Subſtances like themſelves; therefore you may expect that what is produced by the holy Spirit muſt be likewiſe of a ſpiritual nature, and not think, That that which which is born of the Spirit muſt anſwer in all points to Carnal Births. And now I have thus explained my meaning you have no reaſon to think, that there is ſuch abſurdity in my words, in ſaying that no man could pretend to any title of entering into the kingdom of heaven, unleſs he were born again. This Spiritual Birth, that goes along with the outward waſhing of Baptiſm, I find you are backward to underſtand and credit, for no other reaſon but becauſe you do not ſee it with your eyes: But yet there are ſeveral other Exiſtences and Effects of nature, which you do not ſee, and yet you cannot disbelieve; as for Inſtance, the Wind, that blows ſometimes from this, and ſometimes from another quarter, and which, tho' we cannot ſee, yet we know it is there. In like manner is the ſpiritual Birth; we can feel the Effects of it, tho' we cannot ſee the workings thereof, nor by what methods it proceeds.

Publick Baptiſm of ſuch as are of riper Years.

BEloved, ye hear in this Goſpel the expreſs words of our Saviour Chriſt, that except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. Whereby ye may perceive the great neceſſity of this Sacrament, where it may be had. Likewiſe immediately before his aſcenſion into heaven (as we read in the laſt Chapter of Saint Marks Goſpel,) he gave command to his diſciples, ſaying, Go ye into all the world, and preach the Goſpel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized ſhall be ſaved; but he that believeth not ſhall be damned. Which alſo ſheweth unto us the great benefit we reap thereby. For which cauſe Saint Peter the Apoſtle, when upon his firſt preaching of the Goſpel many were pricked at the heart, and ſaid to him and the reſt of the Apoſtles, Men and brethren, what ſhall we do? replyed and ſaid unto them, Repent and be baptized every one of you for the remiſſion of ſins, and ye ſhall receive the gift of the holy Ghoſt. For the promiſe is to you and your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God ſhall call. And with many other words exhorted he them, ſaying, Save your ſelves from this untoward generation. For (as the ſame Apoſtle teſtifieth in another place) even Baptiſm doth alſo now ſave us, (not the putting away of the filth of the fleſh, but the anſwer of a good conſcience towards God) by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt. Doubt ye not therefore, but earneſtly believe that he will favourably receive theſe preſent perſons, truly repenting and coming unto him by faith, that he will grant them remiſſion of their ſins, and beſtow upon them the holy Ghoſt; that he will give them the bleſſing of eternal life, and make them partakers of his everlaſting kingdom.

Wherefore we being thus perſwaded of the good will of our heavenly Father towards theſe perſons, declared by his Son Jeſus Chriſt; let us faithfully and devoutly give thanks to him and ſay,

ALmighty and everlaſting God, heavenly Father, we give thee humble thanks, for that thou haſt vouchſafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace and faith in thee: Increaſe this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to theſe perſons, that they may be born again and be made heirs of everlaſting ſalvation, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the holy Spirit, now and for ever. Amen.

WEll beloved, who are come hither deſiring to receive holy Baptiſm, ye have heard how the congregation hath prayed that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt would vouchſafe to receive you and bleſs you, to releaſe you of your ſins, to give you the kingdom of heaven and everlaſting life. Ye have heard alſo that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath promiſed in his holy word to grant all thoſe things that we have prayed for; which promiſe he for his part will moſt ſurely keep and perform.

Wherefore after this promiſe made by Chriſt, ye muſt alſo faithfully for your part promiſe in the preſence of theſe your witneſſes, and this whole congregation, that ye will renounce the devil and all his works, and conſtantly believe Gods holy word, and obediently keep his commandments.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt demand of each of the perſons to be baptized ſeverally theſe queſtions following.

Queſtion.

DOſt thou renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous deſires of the ſame, and the carnal deſires of the fleſh, ſo that thou wilt not follow nor be led by them?

Anſwer.

Anſwer.

I renounce them all.

Queſtion.

DOſt thou believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth? And in Jeſus Chriſt his only begotten Son our Lord? And that he was conceived by the holy Ghoſt; born of the Virgin Mary; that he ſuffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried; that he went down into hell, and alſo did riſe again the third day; that he aſcended into heaven, and ſitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; and from thence ſhall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead?

And doſt thou believe in the holy Ghoſt; the holy Catholick Church, the Communion of ſaints; the remiſſion of ſins; the reſurrection of the fleſh; and everlaſting life after death?

Anſwer.

All this I ſtedfaſtly believe.

Queſtion.

WIlt thou be baptized in this faith?

Anſwer.

That is my deſire.

Queſtion.

WIlt thou then obediently keep Gods holy will and commandments, and walk in the ſame all the days of thy life?

Anſwer.

I will endeavour ſo to do, God being my helper.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay,

OMerciful God, grant that the † old Adam in theſe perſons may be ſo buried, that the new man may be raiſed up in them. Amen.

Grant that all carnal affections may die in them, and that all things belonging to the Spirit, may live and grow in them. Amen.

Grant that they may have power and ſtrength to have victory, and to triumph againſt the devil, the world, and the fleſh. Amen.

Grant that they being here dedicated to thee by our office and miniſtry, may alſo be indued with heavenly vertues, and everlaſtingly rewarded, through thy mercy, O bleſſed Lord God, who doſt live and govern all things, world without end. Amen.

ALmighty everliving God, whoſe moſt dearly beloved Son Jeſus Chriſt, for the forgiveneſs of our ſins, did ſhed out of his moſt precious ſide both water and bloud, and gave commandment to his diſciples, that they ſhould go teach all nations, and baptize them in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghoſt; Regard, we beſeech thee, the ſupplications of this congregation; ſanctifie this water to the myſtical waſhing away of ſin: and grant that the perſons now to be baptized therein, may receive the fulneſs of thy grace, and ever remain in the number of thy faithful and elect children, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt take each perſon to be baptized by the right hand, and placing him conveniently by the Font, according to his diſcretion, ſhall ask the Godfathers and Godmothers the Name; and then ſhall dip him in the water, or pour water upon him, ſaying,

N. I baptize thee in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghoſt. Amen.

† See notes on Publick Baptiſm of Infants.

Publick Baptiſm of ſuch as are of riper Years.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay,

† Here the Prieſt ſhall make a croſs upon the perſons forehead.

WE receive this perſon into the congregation of Chriſts flock, and † do ſign him with the ſign of the croſs, in token that hereafter he ſhall not be aſhamed to confeſs the faith of Chriſt crucified, and manfully to fight under his banner againſt ſin, the world, and the devil; and to continue Chriſts faithful ſouldier and ſervant unto his lives end. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay,

SEeing now, dearly beloved brethren, that theſe perſons are regenerate and grafted into the body of Chriſts Church, let us give thanks unto Almighty God for theſe benefits, and with one accord make our prayers unto him, that they may lead the reſt of their life according to this beginning.

¶ Then ſhall be ſaid the Lord's Prayer, all kneeling.

OUr Father which art in heaven; Hallowed be thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our treſpaſſes, As we forgive them that treſpaſs againſt us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil. Amen.

WE yield thee humble thanks, O heavenly Father, that thou haſt vouchſafed to call us to the knowledge of thy grace and faith in thee; Increaſe this knowledge, and confirm this faith in us evermore. Give thy holy Spirit to theſe perſons, that † being now born again, and made * heirs of everlaſting ſalvation through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, they may continue thy ſervants, and attain thy promiſes, through the ſame Lord Jeſus Chriſt thy Son, who liveth and reigneth with thee in the unity of the ſame holy Spirit everlaſtingly. Amen.

FOraſmuch as theſe perſons have promiſed in your preſence to renounce the devil and all his works, to believe in God, and to ſerve him; ye muſt remember that it is your part and duty to put them in mind what a ſolemn vow, promiſe and profeſſion they have now made before this congregation, and eſpecially before you their choſen witneſſes. And ye are alſo to call upon them to uſe all diligence to be rightly inſtructed in Gods holy word, that ſo they may grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and live godly, righteouſly and ſoberly in this preſent world.

(¶ And then, ſpeaking to the new baptized perſons, he ſhall proceed, and ſay,)

AND as for you, who have now by Baptiſm put on Chriſt, it is your part and duty alſo, being made the children of God, and of the light by faith in Jeſus Chriſt, to walk anſwerably to your Chriſtian calling, and as becometh the children of light: remembring always that Baptiſm repreſenteth unto us our profeſſion; which is, to follow the example of our Saviour Chriſt, and to be made like unto him; that as he died, and roſe again for us; ſo ſhould we who are baptized, die from ſin, and riſe again unto righteouſneſs, continually mortifying all our evil and corrupt affections. and daily proceeding in all vertue and godlineſs of living.

¶ It is expedient that every perſon thus baptized ſhould be confirmed by the Biſhop ſo ſoon after his Baptiſm as conveniently may be; that ſo he may be admitted to the holy Communion.

¶ If any perſons not baptized in their infancy ſhall be brought to be baptized before they come to years of diſcretion to anſwer for themſelves; it may ſuffice to uſe the Office for Publick Baptiſm of infants, or (in caſe of extreme danger) the Office for Private Baptiſm, only changing the word [Infant] for [Child or Perſon] as occaſion requireth.

A CATE-

(a) CATECHISM,

That is to say,

An Instruction (b) to be learned of every Person, (c) before he be brought (d) to be confirmed by the Bishop.

Question.

WHat is (e) your name?

Answer.

N. or M.

Question.

Who gave you this Name?

Answer.

My (f) Godfathers and Godmothers in my Baptism, wherein

(a) Catechism.] Catechism is derived from a Greek Word, which signifies to Inculcate, to Sound with vehemence, or by frequent Repetition to beat it into the Head of the Person to be Instructed; and therefore it has been used by the earliest Ages of the (1) Church, to denote the Instruction of those (who are willing to embrace the Faith of Christ) in the fundamental Points of Christianity.

(b) To be learned.] Catechism is necessary to be learned, by every Person who designs to take upon him the Profession of the Christian Religion; because without understanding This, which teaches the Fundamental Doctrines of the Christian Religion, a Christian would profess he knew not what; which would be as unreasonable, as for a Man to profess himself a Soldier, without understanding any thing of the Art of War; or pretend to be an Artificer in any particular Trade, which he was wholly ignorant of.

(c) Before he be brought.] But this is particularly necessary to be learned by every Person, before he be brought to be Confirmed by the Bishop; because that is a time which the Church of God has set aside for those who believe the Doctrine of Jesus Christ, solemnly to take the profession of it upon themselves: and therefore it is requisite they should before that time, be well instructed in that Religion, which in so publick and solemn a manner they then engage themselves to profess.

(d) To be confirmed by the Bishop.] This Rite of Confirmation is very useful, not only by making Christians circumspect and careful how they violate the Rules of that Holy Religion, which in so solemn a manner they had declared to observe: But it is more especially so in conveying to us a Blessing, by the laying on of the (2) hands of our Spiritual Parent; which was the way of conveying God's heavenly Benediction in the (3) Jewish Church of old, and was the practice, in a like case with ours, of our (4) Lord himself, and was used (5) by the Apostles in conferring the Gifts of the Holy Ghost upon those who had been already baptized.

(e) Your Name.] The reason of asking the Name of the Person here is, Because it is a leading Question, to put the Person to be instructed in mind of his Baptism, when his Christian Name was given him; at which Sacred Ordinance he entred into Covenant with God, the explication of the Conditions of which Covenant is the principal design of Catechism. The Reason why we have Christian Names given us is, Because the Church is willing to have us imitate the Virtues of the Holy Apostles, or those other good Persons recorded in Scripture, or eminent in History, whose Names we bear. The Reason why the Christian Name is given us at the time of Baptism is, Because we are then dedicated to Christ, we enter into Covenant with God, and become his (6) Subjects and Servants, and so take upon us a Name, as was usual among the Ancients, when new Servants came into any great Family; and because this was a laudable Custom in the Jewish Church, when they entred into Covenant with God in Circumcision; for we read that (7) Isaac, (8) John the Baptist, and our blessed Lord himself took their Names at the performance of that Ceremony.

(f) My Godfathers.] Our Christian Name is given by our Godfathers; Because Baptism being a new and spiritual Birth, which has no relation to our natural Parents, it is not without Prudence ordained by our Church, that our Name, (9) which we receive then, should be given us by our Godfathers, who do, as it were, supply God's stead, and are his Instruments to make us partake of this new Birth. The reason why the Church requires Godfathers and Godmothers in Baptism is, Partly to conform herself to the usage of God's Church, not only in the earliest Ages of Christianity, but even among the ancient Jews, who had their Witnesses of the Covenant in (10) Circumcision; but chiefly to be Sureties or Vouchers for the Children that are to be baptized, to transact that momentary Business of entering into Covenant with God in their Names, which, by reason of their Infancy they cannot perform themselves; and to promise for them, that when they come to Years of Discretion they shall be instructed in, and make profession of that Holy Religion, which, through their Engagement, they are admitted into. The Reason why the Church does not think Parents so proper to do this is, Because that in case the Parents should either die before the Children are brought up, or if they should apostatize from the Christian Faith, or be negligent in the Education of their Children, the Suretiship of several other good Persons will, in all probability, supply the Part which the Parents should have taken.

wherein I was made a (g) member of Chriſt, the (h) child of God, and an (i) inheritor of the Kingdom of heaven.

Queſtion.

What did your Godfathers and Godmothers then for you?

Anſwer.

They (k) did promiſe and vow three things in my name.

(g) Member of Chriſt.] Baptiſm being a Covenant or Stipulation between God and us; God, on his part of the Agreement, when we are initiated into his Church by this Sacrament, does immediately veſt us with ſeveral Privileges: The firſt is to be a Member of Chriſt. Now the meaning of being a Member of Chriſt is, to be a Member of Chriſt's myſtical Body, whereof he is Head. And the Advantages we have by being Members of Chriſt's Church, are theſe; We have the Advantage of profeſſing the moſt (11) excellent Religion that ever was in the World, whoſe Doctrine is more exact and good than either the (12) Pagan or Jewiſh Religion could ever pretend to; and whoſe Motives to a good Life, viz. future (13) Rewards and (14) Puniſhments, are the moſt proper that can be imagined. We have likewiſe, by this, the Advantage of the Chriſtian Ordinances, viz. the Benefits of the Holy (15) Sacraments, (16) Preaching, (17) Prayer, (18) Abſolution and other ſpecial Comforts and Aſſiſtances, which none but Chriſtians do partake of. And laſtly, We have the Aſſiſtance of the (19) Divine Grace to keep us from Temptations, (19) to put into our Minds good Deſires and holy Reſolutions, to (20) quicken our Devotions, and to aſſiſt us in every good Work.

(h) Child of God.] By being a Child of God is not underſtood, One that is ſo by God's Creation of him, for by virtue of that Relation he is the common (21) Father of all Mankind; nor yet one who is a Child of God by ſpiritual (22) Regeneration and actual Holineſs: But one who is a Child of God by (23) Covenant and Adoption; and ſo are (24) all ſuch who are baptized into the Faith of Chriſt. The Advantages which we receive by being the Children of God, are theſe; By this we are aſſured of all the Kindneſſes, which an indulgent Father can grant unto his (25) beloved Children: That we ſhall obtain (26) pardon for our Sins, upon a ſincere Repentance: That he will not take any Advantage againſt us for our Sins of Ignorance or Weakneſs: and, That in all our Neceſſities we may have free (27) acceſs to the Throne of his Grace, by devout Prayer.

(i) Inheritor of the Kingdom of Heaven.] By being an inheritor of the Kingdom of Heaven is meant, One who by the Promiſe of our Saviour has a legal Title to the Joys of the other World, in caſe he performs the Conditions which are required by the Goſpel in order to it; and ſuch every Chriſtian has by virtue of his Baptiſm. The Advantages of being an Inheritor of the Kingdom of Heaven are theſe, (28) A firm Expectation, at preſent, and a full Poſſeſſion hereafter, of Joys of an unſpeakable nature; which the Holy Scripture, in condeſcenſion to our Capacities, does explain by a (29) Marriage-Feaſt, by (30) Crowns, (31) Thrones, and other the moſt pompous things of this World, as Emblems of that Immortal Glory; all which we by Covenant with God in (32) Baptiſm have a right to, whilſt (33) others (tho' good moral Perſons) who have lived out of Chriſt's Church, have had little or no expectation of, and no Promiſe at all concerning them.

(k) Did Promiſe and Vow.] Our Godfathers are ſaid to Promiſe and Vow, Becauſe in every Covenant and Agreement, it is requiſite that the Party obliged therein, do expreſly Promiſe what he on his part is to perform; and when this Agreement is made with God, then ſuch Promiſe is properly termed (34) a Vow. The nature of this Covenant which they promiſe and vow to is this; God, on his ſide, promiſes all that we have been ſpeaking of before, viz. That he will make us Members of Chriſt's Church, and inſtate us in all the Privileges thereunto belonging: That he will allow us the favour and advantage of being deemed his Sons in this World; and that he will entitle us to the Inheritance of eternal Glory in the next. So we, on our ſides, do Covenant with God to forſake all Sin, with the whole Empire of the Devil; and to believe and practiſe all that our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt has commanded us. Now this Covenant is ſolemnly ratified in our Baptiſm between the Miniſter, as Agent for God Almighty, and the Sureties, as Proxies for the Child to be baptized.

name. First, that I ſhould (l) renounce the devil and all his works, the (m) pomps and vanity of this wicked world, and all (n) the ſinful luſts of the fleſh. Secondly, that I ſhould believe all the articles of the Chriſtian faith. And thirdly, that I ſhould keep Gods holy will and commandments, and walk in the ſame all the days of my life.

Queſtion.

Doſt thou not think that thou art bound (o) to believe, and to do, as they have promiſed for thee?

Anſwer.

Yes verily; and by Gods help ſo I will. And I heartily thank our heavenly Father, that he hath (p) called me

Of our Vows to God in Baptiſm, or what we on our part engage to perform in this Covenant.

(l) Renounce the Devil.] By renouncing the Devil is meant, The declaring a defiance to, and utterly forſaking of the Cauſe and Empire of that wicked Spirit, the (35) Prince of the Fallen Angels, and the (36) declared Enemy of God, and all good Men, who has (37) ſet up a Kingdom (38) of Wicked Men and Unbelievers, and which it is the Deſign of the Religion of Jeſus Chriſt (39) to overthrow. By the Works of the Devil is underſtood, 1. All thoſe horrible Sins which the Devil makes thoſe poor Unbelievers, who are under his Vaſſalage, ſlaves to; ſuch as (40) Idolatry, (41) Witchcraft, (42) abominable Superſtitions. 2. Thoſe Sins of a Spiritual nature, which the Devils are moſt prone to, ſuch as (43) Falſhood, Pride, Envy, Malice, &c. 3. All other wicked Practices, which ill Men commit through the (44) Inſtigation of the Devil.

(m) Pomps and Vanity.] By renouncing the Pomps and Vanity of the World is meant, (45) Not to ſet our Hearts upon any of the fine things which this World affords, ſuch as (46) Riches, Honours, and ſenſual Pleaſures; not to be eager in the purſuit of them; but if it ſhall pleaſe God to give us a greater Share of them, to uſe them ſparingly and with humility; and when it ſhall pleaſe God to take them from us, to (47) bear the loſs with Patience, and with a modeſt Reſignation to his divine Will and Pleaſure. It is called this wicked world, Becauſe the generality of the World (48) are wicked, and we Chriſtians (49) are elected out of the reſt of the World, to be a choſen Generation, and a peculiar People.

(n) The ſinful Luſts.] The ſinful Luſts of the fleſh, which we here renounce, are, All (50) ſinful Pleaſures which we are enclined to by our deprav'd Nature, and which our ſinful Appetites are continually prompting us to. We came to be ſubject to theſe ſinful Luſts, Becauſe by the Sin (51) of our firſt Parents, the original Frame and Conſtitution of our Nature was ſpoiled and corrupted, and our ſinful Appetites ſince have grown ſo headſtrong, that they are with great difficulty to be (52) governed by Reaſon, and are not to be ſubdued but only by the Grace of God, (53) which is promiſed by the Goſpel. Now theſe ſinful deſires are to be renounced, By (54) conſtant Prayer for God's Grace, and by our own (55) diligent Endeavours, to better our corrupted Nature, and to renew it after the Image of God; reſolving never to give way to any vicious Inclinations, but by (56) mortifying our Affections, and reſiſting the firſt motions to Sin, ſo inuring our Souls by a conſtant habit of Vertue, that at laſt they may have (57) little or no tendency to Evil. We are obliged to renounce all the Devil's Works, and all the ſinful luſts of the Fleſh, Becauſe the Goſpel does accept of none but a (58) compleat Obedience; ſo that we do not perform our part of the Covenant with God, if we allow ourſelves in any known Sin.

(o) To believe and do as they have promiſed.] We are bound by our Sureties Promiſe, Becauſe they were our Proxies or Agents, who acted in our ſtead, ſo that what they did on our behalf we are obliged to ſtand to, eſpecially when the Promiſe is in itſelf ſo reaſonable, and ſo highly beneficial to us.

(p) Called me to this ſtate of Salvation.] By calling us to a ſtate of Salvation is meant, God's admitting us at our Baptiſm

Baptiſm into that (59) Holy Religion which we profeſs, and by which we enjoy all the neceſſary means of Salvation.

(q) Through Jeſus Chriſt.] We are ſaid to be called to a ſtate of ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt, Becauſe, unleſs it were for the Merits and Interceſſion of Jeſus Chriſt, we could not be ſaved; for it is his (61) Blood alone which has made an infinite Satisfaction for the Sins of the (62) whole World, that we are redeemed from everlaſting Puniſhment; and it is by his (63) pleading his Merits on our behalf, with the Father, that we are capable of being made Partakers of eternal Happineſs.

(r) I pray to God to give me his Grace.] By the Grace of God, which we here pray for, is meant, That Influence and Aſſiſtance of God's Holy Spirit, which he has promiſed to give us, upon our devout Prayer to him for it; which Grace concurring with our own diligent Endeavours, doth render the Conditions of the Goſpel not only poſſible, but in ſome meaſure eaſy to perform. We pray for God's Grace to continue in the ſtate of Salvation, Becauſe unleſs God's Grace doth remain with us, we may fall into a total Apoſtacy and Unbelief of our Saviour, and ſo be debarred even of the means of Salvation; or if he doth not afford us Grace to perform the Conditions required by the Goſpel, we can have no pretence to the Promiſes of it.

me to this ſtate of ſalvation, (q) through Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour. And (r) I pray unto God to give me his grace, that I may continue in the ſame unto my lives end.

That

Who was VIII. conceived by the holy Ghoſt, Born of the *Virgin Mary, IX. Suffered under Pontius Pilate, Was crucified dead and buried, X. He deſcended into hell, XI. The third day he roſe again from the dead, XII. He aſcended into Heaven, And XIII. ſitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty; from thence he ſhall come to XIV. judge the quick and the dead. I believe in XV. the holy Ghoſt; The XVI. holy Catholick Church; XVII. The Communion, by redeeming us from the (18) Power of the Devil, who before had got the Maſtery over us: by (19) purchaſing us by his Blood: by our voluntary becoming his (20) Servants and Scholars by Baptiſm. VIII. By our Saviour's being conceived of the Holy Ghoſt, we underſtand, That tho' he was (21) true Man, yet he was not produced after the ordinary manner of human Conception, but by the (22) overſhadowing of the Holy Ghoſt. * He was born of the Virgin Mary, a poor Maid of the Lineage of David, who continued a (23) Virgin, notwithſtanding that miraculous Birth. IX. By Chriſt's Suffering and being Crucified, we underſtand, That He ſuffered an ignominious Death, (24) as was foretold, and this at the time when (25) Pontius Pilate was Governour under the Romans in Judea; was nailed to the Croſs, a terrible and ſcandalous Puniſhment, which the Romans uſed to put their wicked Slaves to Death by: That under this grievous Torture he (26) really died, and after that, by a kind Diſciple, was (27) buried. X. By Chriſt deſcending into Hell, we mean, That He went to the Repoſitory, or Place of (28) ſeparate Souls. XI. And that the third day after his Crucifixion, He roſe again, as He did (29) foretel. XII. After that, in the ſight of a great many credible Witneſſes, He, in a moſt glorious manner, (30) aſcended up into Heaven, (31) as the Prophets had long before predicted. XIII. And was ſhortly after advanced to a more eſpecial Honour, (32) which was never vouchſafed to any Perſon before, to ſit on the right hand of God, which is a Place of the (33) greateſt Dignity in Heaven; where He has begun his Spiritual Kingdom, and treads upon the Necks of the great Enemies of his Juriſdiction, (34) Sin, (35) Satan, and (36) Death. IV. Who, at the End of the World, ſhall come in a triumphant and glorious Proceſſion, attended with the (37) Angels, and ſhall have all Power committed to him, (38) to judge thoſe who ſhall then be (39) alive, and thoſe who ſhall be (40) raiſed from their Graves. XV. By believing in the Holy Ghoſt, we profeſs him to be very God, and the Third Perſon of the bleſſed Trinity, that He is not a Virtue, or a Grace, as ſome fondly imagine, but (41) a Perſon who is called frequently (42) the Comforter, and is expreſly named (43) God. XVI. From the Article of the Catholick Church we believe, That there is a number of Men ſequeſtred from the reſt of the World by Faith in Chriſt, that have continued throughout all Ages from the Apoſtles Time, and ſhall do ſo to the coming of Chriſt, which we call the Catholick Church; which is (44) Holy, by reaſon of the Holy Profeſſion which they are called to, tho' all the particular Members thereof (45) are not ſo. It is likewiſe Catholick, or Univerſal, becauſe of its diffuſiveneſs throughout the World. XVII. By the Article of the Communion of Saints, we believe, That there is a Communion of the (46) Saints and Elect People of God, united with (47) God the Father, with (48) God the Son, and with God

(18) That thro' Death he might deſtroy him who hath the power of Death, that is, the Devil, Heb. ii. 14. And having ſpoiled principalities and powers, he made ſhew of them openly, triumphing over them in his Croſs, Col. ii. 15.

Firſt, I learn to believe in God the Father, who hath made me, and all the world.

II. Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelf any graven image, nor the likeneſs of any thing that is in heaven above, or in the earth beneath, or in the water under the earth. Thou ſhalt not bow down to them, nor worſhip them. For I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, and viſit the ſins of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me, and ſhew mercy unto thouſands in them that love me, and keep my commandments.

III. Thou ſhalt not take the Name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord will not hold him guiltleſs that taketh his Name in vain.

IV. Remember that thou keep holy the Sabbath day. Six days ſhalt thou labour, and do all that thou haſt to do; but the ſeventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou ſhalt do no manner of work, thou, and thy ſon, and thy daughter, thy man-ſervant, and thy maid-ſervant, thy cattel, and the ſtranger that is within thy gates. For in ſix days the Lord made heaven and earth, the ſea, and all that in them is, and reſted the ſeventh day; wherefore the Lord bleſſed the ſeventh day, and hallowed it.

(8) Idolatry, (9) Sorcery, and (10) Idolizing of Riches.

II. The purport of the ſecond Commandment is, Firſt, That we ſhould not worſhip God after the Pagan way of (11) Images; That we ſhould not pay any worſhip either to the (12) Angels or the Celeſtial Bodies, as Sun, Moon, or Stars; or to the Inhabitants of the Earth, as (13) Men or Beaſts, &c. or to the Fiſhes in the Water. We muſt not pay any manner of Worſhip to them, either by bowing to them, or kneeling, or by ſhewing any token of Religious Regard; ſince God declares himſelf very Jealous of his Honour in this reſpect, aſſuring us, that any that ſhall be guilty of this Fault, He will not only puniſh him in his own Perſon, but in his Family likewiſe, for ſeveral Generations. But, Secondly, That we muſt pay him his Worſhip in the way which he ſhall (14) direct; by (15) Praying to Him, by (16) Praiſing Him, by (17) Hearing his Holy Word, by frequenting the (18) publick Congregation aſſembled for his Worſhip.

III. The purport of this Commandment is, That we ſhould not make uſe of (19) God's Name in an Oath, to atteſt (20) a falſe matter; nor upon any (21) trivial occaſion; nor ſpeak of his (22) Attributes; or his Holy (23) Word irreverently: and that we ſhould not make a Vow, which is an inferior kind of Oath, (24) raſhly, (25) inſincerely, nor without ſufficient (26) Authority, nor upon any but a very (27) weighty occaſion, and when made we ſhould carefully and religiouſly (28) perform it. But, contrariwiſe, that we ſhould honour God, by ſwearing truly and (29) reverently by his Name; eſpecially if it be on a charitable Deſign, in (30) deciding Differences: if we ſhall at any time ſpeak of Him, it muſt be with (31 reverence, and an awful Admiration of his Being; and if we reaſon out of his revealed Word, it muſt not be out of Wantonneſs, but for (32) Edification. If we ſhall make a Vow upon any (33) laudable Account, we muſt perform it (34) conſcientiouſly. Now for a Man to be faulty in any of theſe Particulars, is to commit a great Sin againſt God, for which He will moſt ſeverely puniſh him.

IV. The Duties contain'd in the fourth Commandment are theſe, That we ſhould take care to obſerve religiouſly the Sabbath-Day, i. e. one Day in the Week, which God has eſpecially ſet aſide for his Worſhip, in remembrance of his Creation of the Univerſe: That we ſhould keep Holy this Day, by our own abſtaining, and of all that belongs to us, from Work,

(21) But I ſay unto you, ſwear not at all, neither by heaven, &c. Mat. v. 34. But above all things, my Brethren ſwear not, neither by heaven, neither by Earth, neither by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay nay; leſt you fall into condemnation, Jam. v. 12.

V. The purport of this Commandment is, That we ſhould take care to perform our Duties, as well to our Political Parent, the Prince, who governs us; to our Domeſtick Parent, our Maſter, who feeds and cloathes us; as to our Natural Father and Mother who begat us. If we are Subjects we muſt honour the Prince, whom God has ſet over us; we muſt (44) ſtand in awe of him, and (45) obey him in all things not forbid by God, and contrary to National Conſtitutions, and the Liberties of a Free People: We muſt ſubmit to his Correction and Puniſhment, and (46) aſſiſt him with our Perſons or our Money, in his juſt Wars, or Maintenance of the Royal Dignity. And, on the other ſide, God will require of him to govern us according to the Rules (47) of Juſtice and Piety, that he ſhall ſeek ours and all his (48) Peoples Good. 2. If we be Servants we muſt (49) reverence, and (50) honour our Maſters, we muſt (51) fear to diſpleaſe them, we muſt obey their Commands: be (52) patient under their Corrections, be (53) diligent in our Callings, (54) ſtudying in all things to pleaſe them. As, on the other ſide, God requires, for our ſakes, of our Maſters, that they ſhould not behave themſelves (55) peeviſhly and perverſely towards us; but that they ſhall be gentle and kind, as they ſhall expect to find favour with God (56): and ſhall provide for us in our Old Age, if we ſpend our whole time in their (57) Service. 3. If we are Lay-Perſons, we muſt love our Paſtors who have the (58) care over us; we muſt pay them (59) juſt Reverence and Reſpect; we muſt ſubmit ourſelves to their Directions in (60) Spiritual Matters, and we muſt contribute to make them up a (61) handſome and liberal Maintenance. And, on the other ſide, God requires of the Paſtor, that he ſhall look upon his Flock as his (62) Children; that, by his Holy Life and Converſation, he ſhall ſet an (63) Example for them to copy by; that he ſhall be diligent in (64) preaching the Word in Seaſon, and out of Seaſon; and laſtly, that he ſhall be (65) meek, peaceable, and courteous. 4. If we are Sons or Daughters, we muſt reverence and reſpect our Parents, tho' they happen to be in a (66) mean Condition; we muſt (67) obey them in all lawful things which they command; we muſt relieve them (68) when in Want; ſubmit ourſelves to their (69) Inſtructions; and, when we are young, to their (70) Correction; and, when we are grown up, we muſt take their Advice, in every (71) important Affair of Life. Now, to anſwer this, God expects, on

Queſtion.

What doſt thou chiefly learn by theſe commandments?

Anſwer.

I learn two things: my duty towards God, and my duty toward my neighbour.

Queſtion.

What is thy duty towards God?

Anſwer.

My duty towards God, I, II. is to believe in him, to fear him, and to love him with all my heart, with all my mind, with all my ſoul, and with all my ſtrength; to worſhip him, to give him thanks, to put my whole truſt in him, to call upon him, III. to honour his holy Name and his Word; IV. and to ſerve him truly all the days of my life.

Queſtion.

What is thy duty towards thy neighbour?

Anſwer.

My duty towards my neighbour, is to love him as my ſelf, and to do to all men, as I would they ſhould do unto me. V. To love, honour and ſuccour my father and mother. To honour and obey the King, and all that are put in authority under him. To ſubmit my ſelf to all my governours, teachers, ſpiritual paſtours and maſters. To order my ſelf lowly and reverently to all my betters. VI. To hurt no body by word, or deed. To be true and juſt in all my dealing. To bear no malice nor hatred in my heart. VIII. To keep my hands from picking and ſtealing, and IX. my tongue from

Catechiſt.

My good child, know this, that thou art not able to do theſe things of thy ſelf, nor to walk in the commandments of God, and to ſerve him without his ſpecial grace, which thou muſt learn at all times to call for by diligent prayer. Let me hear therefore if thou canſt ſay the Lords prayer.

Anſwer.

I. OUr Father II. which art in heaven; III. Hallowed be thy Name. IV. Thy kingdom come. V. Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven. VI. Give us this day our daily bread. VII. And forgive us our treſpaſſes, As we forgive them that treſpaſs againſt us. VIII. And lead us not into temptation; IX. But deliver us from evil. [X. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the Glory, for ever and ever.] Amen.

Queſtion.

I. We addreſs ourſelves to God, in this Prayer, under the Title of Father, Becauſe He is the Father of all Mankind, by (1) Creation, but eſpecially the Father of us Chriſtians, by (2) Adoption. II. We add the words, which art in heaven, Becauſe God's eſpecial Place of Reſidence is in the (3) higheſt Heavens. III. By the words, Hallowed be thy name, we mean, That we deſire, and will endeavour that God's (4) Name, and whatſoever belongs to him, may be hallowed, and kept from any manner of Contempt, and alſo be honoured with diſtinguiſhing Marks of Eſteem. IV. By praying the words, Thy kingdom come, we mean, That we earneſtly deſire and long for the (5) Time, when God's Kingdom of Glory ſhall begin, which (6) Fleſh and Blood cannot inherit, and which all (7) good Chriſtians ſhall, after the General Reſurrection, enter into. V. By ſaying, God's will be done, &c. we deſire, That we Chriſtians here upon Earth may perform the (8) Will of God manifeſted unto us by the preaching of the Goſpel, with as much readineſs and exactneſs, as the (9) Angels in Heaven perform it. VI. By praying for daily bread, we beg a ſufficiency of Bread, i. e. Food, Raiment, and (10) other Neceſſaries of Life, in ſuch Proportion as God is pleaſed to deal out to us. VII. By praying to God to forgive us our treſpaſſes, &c. we beg of Him to forgive us our Sins (11) ſmall and great, both of which make us liable to God's eternal Vengeance: As we, on our parts, own, that we freely forgive all that have offended againſt us, knowing that God will pardon our Sins, upon (13) no other Condition. VIII. By praying to God, not to lead us into Temptation, we deſire of Him, That He would be pleaſed to hinder any ſtrong Temptation, which it is not likely we ſhall have Power to (14) overcome, from being laid in our way, or if it be, to give us ſuch a powerful Aſſiſtance (15) of his Grace, as may enable us to overcome it. IX. When we pray to God to deliver us from Evil, we deſire of Him, That He would defend us from all Evil, as well that of (16) Sin, as that of (17) Misfortune, and that ariſing from the Malice of (18) Evil Spirits. X. The Concluſion of this Prayer contains, a Doxology, or ſhort Hymn of Praiſe to God, drawn from ſeveral of his moſt glorious Attributes; for the ſake of which we truſt that God will grant us the forementioned Bleſſings, theſe adorable Perfections giving us encouragement to expect them from Him: For ſince God has the (19) Kingdom, and Sovereign Dominion of all things, he has no one to controul him in the beſtowing them: He is endowed with infinite (20) Power, and hath nothing to withſtand Him: And his own (21) Glory is manifeſted in making us happy.

Of the SACRAMENTS in general.

(a) Sacraments.] For explaining the meaning of the Word Sacrament, in the larger ſenſe, it muſt be known, That tho' the Word Sacrament does not occur in Scripture, yet it is an ancient Eccleſiaſtical Word, in a large ſenſe applied, to denote a Federal Rite between God and us, uſed in Religion. It was called a Sacrament, from the Sacramentum, or Soldiers Oath, which all that were liſted into the Roman Army, were obliged to take to their General, the better to encourage them to Valour and Fidelity. And thus, under our Chriſtian Warfare, it is neceſſary that we ſhould have ſome Federal Tie, as well at our Initiation into Chriſtianity, to continue (as our Church expreſſes it) Chriſt's faithful Soldiers unto our Lives end, as to remind us of our former Obligation, and to fix and eſtabliſh our Reſolutions with new and repeated Vows. Now the Word Sacrament is uſually applied to ſignify, not the Oath or Covenant itſelf, which is made between God and us, but only that outward and viſible Sign which does uſually attend it: For of Old Time there were always ſome viſible Tokens, or outward Rites and Ceremonies, which went along with the Covenants. Thus it was the Cuſtom among the Romans, for the Herald to throw a Stone violently out of his Hand, wiſhing, that if he, or the People whom he repreſented, acted treacherouſly, and violated the League, the Gods would deal with him as with that Stone. So Gen. xv. 10. Abraham made a Covenant with God, by dividing the Bodies of an Heifer, She-Goat, and a Ram, into two Parts. The like Ceremonies have been univerſally uſed in private Contracts, as in ſelling of Eſtates, the Delivery of Writings; in Matrimony, the Delivery of a Ring, or the joining of Hands. Now, tho' our bleſſed Lord deſigned to inſtitute a Religion of the greateſt Simplicity, conſiſting of a Collection of profitable Inſtructions, and true Notions concerning the Divine Nature, of the choiceſt Moral Precepts, and the beſt Motives to a good Life, viz. the Revelation of everlaſting Rewards and Puniſhments; yet He was pleaſed himſelf to appoint theſe two Rites, becauſe of their extraordinary uſefulneſs to his Church. For tho' they are not Actions, like Moral Duties, good in their own Nature, and therefore commanded, becauſe they are ſuch (they being only for that reaſon, good Actions, and our Duty, becauſe commanded;) yet by virtue of God's Grace and Bleſſing going along with them, they make us better by the doing them.

(b) Generally neceſſary.] By generally neceſſary we underſtand, That (1) all Perſons, of what Rank and Quality ſoever, are obliged to the Performance of them, unleſs they labour under an Incapacity, by reaſon of their Age or otherwiſe, or are hindred therefrom by an invincible Neceſſity.

(c) I mean an outward and viſible Sign.] That we may better underſtand the nature of a Sacrament in a ſtricter ſenſe, it is neceſſary that we take notice of the following Particulars:

1. That there is in them an outward Sign openly viſible to Beholders, which does repreſent and denote the Conveyance to us of ſome ſpiritual and inward thing, which is unſeen by us. Now it is requiſite that the Sign ſhould be ſomething like, and ſomething unlike to the thing which it repreſents: If it were in nothing unlike, it would be the ſame, and then it could not properly repreſent itſelf; if it were in nothing like, there would be no ground of Repreſentation, which is always founded in Similitude: For a Picture, or Image does repreſent a Man, becauſe it is of like Lineaments with him; a Judge repreſents a Prince, becauſe he does the ſame Juſtice which the Prince, were he there himſelf, would do. Upon which Ground, our Saviour appointed Waſhing with with Water, to denote a Purgation from Sin; for as the Water waſhes off the Soil and Filth which the Body has contracted, ſo does the Holy Ghoſt in Baptiſm, operating in our Hearts, purify our Souls from all original Guilt propagated with our Nature, and from all actual Sin committed by our own ſelves. Upon the like account, He has appointed the Breaking and Eating of a Piece of Bread, and the drinking a Cup of Wine, to repreſent his Suffering on the Croſs for our ſakes, viz. the Wounding of his Body, and the Pouring out of his Blood.

2. That there is an inward and ſpiritual Grace repreſented by this Sign, and conveyed in it. Which ſhall be more fully explain'd hereafter.

3. That this muſt be inſtituted by Chriſt himſelf. And herein lies the difference between the two Sacred Rites of Baptiſm and the Lord's-Supper, and other Rites which may be obſerved in Religion: That the latter were inſtituted by the Apoſtles, in the firſt Times, or by the Church of God in later Ages; but theſe two Rites were appointed by our bleſſed Lord himſelf. Thus, tho' Confirmation be a very ancient Rite, yet becauſe it was not enjoined by our bleſſed Lord himſelf, we do not allow it to be a Sacrament, at leaſt in the ſtrict ſenſe of the Word.

4. That theſe Holy Rites are not only Pledges, that God will afford his Grace to us, as the ſhaking of Hands, or ſubſcribing of Names, are Pledges or Tokens of making good a Bargain; but they are likewiſe Means, which God Almighty is pleaſed to make uſe of, to convey thoſe Graces to us; ſo that they who do worthily, and with a true Faith receive them, do actually receive with them many Spiritual Comforts and Aſſiſtances.

OF BAPTISM.

Spiritual Graces conferred in Baptiſm.

(d) Death unto Sin.] By dying unto Sin (which is the great Benefit which Baptiſm confers) in the Scripture (2) Language is underſtood, That Baptiſm does free us from the Guilt and Puniſhment of Sin, and confers good Diſpoſitions and Tendencies to live better for the future.

(e) By nature born in Sin.] Sin being of two ſorts, one Original and the other Actual; Baptiſm doth free the Infants of Believing Parents, from the Guilt and Stain of Original Sin, and Adult perſons both from Original and Actual Sin. 1 Baptiſm frees from the Guilt and Stain of Original Sin. That there is a ſort of Original Corruption in our Nature, altogether independent of our Wills, and born with us into the World, is plain, not only from the Complaints of obſerving Heathens themſelves, and every Man's own Experience; but particularly from the Holy (3) Scripture, which does ſo frequently aſſert it. Which Original Stain is not any actual Depravation of our Natures, in their firſt make, but only a Deprivation or Loſs of ſupernatural Grace, which our firſt Parents were endowed with, whereby they were enabled, if they had ſtood, to have eaſily conquered any Temptation, and to have perſevered in an unblemiſh'd Piety, and unſinning Obedience: but, upon their Fall, this Grace was taken from them, their Obedience being the Condition of its Continuance to them and their poſterity. Now Infants being born of this depraved Stock, and being void of that original Goodneſs which God's ſupernatural Grace preſerved our firſt Parents in, they are not pure in the ſight of God, unleſs this Stain be waſhed away by Baptiſm; but by the Benefit of this Sacrament they are veſted again with the Original Righteouſneſs; or with ſuch a meaſure of it as is ſuitable to the Terms of the Goſpel-Obedience. From hence, in Scripture-Expreſſion, we are ſaid to be born again, and to be buried with Chriſt by Baptiſm, and to be quickned together with him. 4. So likewiſe Baptiſm frees us from the Guilt and Puniſhment of all Actual Sins: And this was the moſt principal Benefit conferred by Baptiſm in the Primitive Times, when moſt of the Baptized Perſons were converted Jews or Heathens; for their Actual Sins were the greateſt Stains which they had to be waſhed off, and to which their original Corruption was nothing comparable. Upon which conſideration, thoſe frequent Exhortations to Baptiſm in (4) Scripture, are chiefly founded.

(f) Children of Grace.] By being made Children of Grace we underſtand, That by Baptiſm, as an initiatory Rite, we enter into Covenant with God, are Members of Chriſt's Myſtical Body the Church, are Partakers of all his gracious Promiſes, and alſo do thereby receive ſufficient Strength to enable us to perform the Precepts of the Goſpel. For, Firſt, This is the (5) Federal Rite by which we are initiated into the Chriſtian Body or Society, and by which, from Strangers and Aliens to God, we become (6) Members bers of the Family of Chriſt, and enter into the (7) Communion of the Saints. Hereby we are freed from the Empire of the Devil, and the Society of wicked Men; we are liſted under Chriſt's Banner, and are made Deniſons of his Kingdom; are Fellow-Subjects with all the great Apoſtles and glorious Martyrs in Chriſt's Kingdom; and have a Title to all his (8) glorious Promiſes, if we ſquare our Lives according to his Laws. Secondly, By Baptiſm we have ſufficient Strength afforded us, to practiſe the Rules of the Goſpel, by the Grace of God's Holy Spirit then conveyed to us, working in us. This is clear from many Paſſages in Scripture, which mention our being (9) born again of Water, our being (10) renewed by the Holy Ghoſt, our walking (11) in newneſs of life, and (12) our being freed from Sin. By all which it is plain, That by Baptiſm we do receive the Advantage and Aſſiſtance of God's Holy Spirit, to enable us to encounter with all the Wiles and Malice of the Devil, and with the ſtrongeſt Temptations which the World can preſent before us; and have Courage afforded us manfully to diſcharge our Duty, whatever Difficulties and Dangers do beſet us in the Performance of it.

(g) Repentance whereby.] The firſt Qualification (which every Perſon, who is to be partaker of the Rite of Baptiſm, ought to be endowed with) is Repentance. For ſuch Perſon muſt engage to forſake (13) every known Sin, however near and dear to him; to ſuffer no (14) vicious Habit to remain within him, or any thing elſe that is contrary to the Commands of his deareſt Lord, whoſe Religion he doth then ſolemnly eſpouſe, reſolving wholly to give himſelf up to his Directions.

(h) And Faith.] The ſecond Qualification is Faith: And that is to (15) believe all that God has expreſly revealed to us in his Holy Word. And upon this Account it is, that the Church has all along required of Perſons to be Baptized, to give an Aſſent to all the Articles of the Chriſtian Faith, by repeating the Creed at the time of their Baptiſm.

(i) Why then are Infants.] Obj. But there is an Objection againſt Faith and Repentance being Qualifications for Baptiſm: For we allow Children to be baptized, and yet it is very plain that they neither Believe nor Repent. Sol. To this we anſwer, That the Sureties of the Children promiſe, that they ſhall diſcharge both theſe Duties when they come to a competent Age: And this they are obliged to, tho' they do not actually conſent to their Sureties Promiſe; which, as a Beneficial Act, binds them, as the Acts of a Guardian, for the Good of his Ward binds ſuch an Orphan; and, by being brought into the Chriſtian Covenant, by this Stipulation of the Sureties, they are as much obliged to the Performance of the Articles of it, as the (16) Jewiſh Children, who were admitted by Circumciſion into the Moſaical Covenant at Eight Days old, were tied up to perform the Precepts of that Law.

(m) Bread and Wine.] Our Saviour hath appointed Bread and Wine to be the Outward Part of this Sacrament, as is plain by the Relation of the Inſtitution made by all the Evangeliſts. Therefore this Holy Sacrament is not duly adminiſtred in the Church of Rome, where only Bread is adminiſtred to the Laity, our Saviour having appointed both Bread and Wine: Nor when Bread is made of Superſtitious Ingredients; nor in the Form of Wafers, with Crucifixes, or other Pictures upon them, our Saviour having adminiſtred with ſuch Bread as was commonly eaten at Meals.

Of the Inward Part of the Lord's-Supper.

(n) Body and Blood of Chriſt.] When the Bread and Wine are ſaid, by our Saviour, to be his Body and Blood, it muſt not be thought that there is a ſubſtantial Change of the Elements, as the Papiſts pretend. For our Saviour's Words, This is my Body, &c. muſt chiefly be underſtood in a figurative Senſe, to mean, This is the Sign of my Body, or, This does repreſent it; which metaphorical way of ſpeaking, as it is common to all Languages, ſo 'tis eſpecially uſed in the Scriptural; where the (22) ſeven Kine are ſaid to be ſeven Years; (23) dead Mens Bones to be the Houſe of Iſrael; the (24) golden Head to be Nebuchadnezzar; (25) ten Horns to be ten Kings; and yet no one ever dreamt of a real Change, but only a Repreſentation, by theſe Expreſſions. Add to this, That in the very Inſtitution of the Jewiſh Paſſover, which the Lord's-Supper, in the Chriſtian Diſpenſation is inſtituted in lieu of, the ſame metaphorical Expreſſion is uſed, (26) This is the Lord's Paſſover, the eating this (i. e. the Paſchal Lamb) doth repreſent the Lord's paſſing over the firſt-born of the Iſraelites. To omit the great unreaſonableneſs of having Men to disbelieve their Senſes, which God has given them to examine the Ground, not only of all natural Truth by, but alſo of Religion itſelf, by appealing to them by Miracles done for the ſupport of it: Nor to inſiſt upon the monſtrous Abſurdities of this Doctrine; for Chriſt's Body to be, at the ſame time, in Heaven and Earth; to be of the dimenſions of a human Body, and of that of a Wafer; to be broken in one Place, and entire in another; upon the Altar, and in the Bodies of the Faithful; moved at the ſame time Eaſt, Weſt, North, and South, according as 'tis carried towards the ſeveral Communicants differently Sited.

(o) Verily and indeed taken by the Faithful.] But as we * Proteſtants do avoid the groſs Errors of the Popiſh Doctrine of Tranſubſtantiation, yet we do allow, That our Saviour's Body is really received by all Faithful Communicants. The Elements do not only barely repreſent our Lord's Body, with his Death and Paſſion; but whilſt we are performing this Action, our Saviour's Body, in ſome inexplicable manner, which we do not preſume to define, is exhibited to us, if we come to this Sacrament with a true Faith and pious Reſolutions; for † wicked Unbelievers (as our Church teaches) do not eat the Body of Chriſt in the Lord's Supper.

Of the Benefits of the Lord's-Supper.

(p) The ſtrengthning and refreſhing of our Souls.] Now our Souls are ſtrengthned and refreſhed by the Sacrament four ſeveral ways. 1. By pardon of our Sins: Which beneficial Effect is not a Phyſical and neceſſary one, as thoſe of natural Agents are; but a Spiritual and Moral one: The natural effect of Bread and Wine being to nouriſh our Bodies, but the ſupernatural Grace of God's Holy Spirit, cooperating with theſe means, doth procure the Pardon of our Sins, which the Elements, in their own nature, could never do. Nor is the effect of this bleſſed Sacrament ſo neceſſary, as to exclude all operation and concurrence of our own Will, as if our Sins could be pardoned upon the bare receiving of the Elements, or that the Effects naturally followed upon the pure opus operatum of this Sacrament; but it always requires a previous Repentance and reſolution of Amendment, which St. Paul calls a Judging and Examining ourſelves: For, without this, it will do us no more good, than our ordinary eating and drinking; nay, will rather turn to our Miſchief and Deſtruction. But if we truly repent us of our Sins, this Sacrament is a Seal of the full Pardon of them: and if we take care not to break again this ſolemn Vow, we need no more fear Puniſhment for our former Sins, than if we had never committed them. For ſince our Saviour has declared, that this is his Body and Blood, the meaneſt Senſe that can be put upon the Words is this, That we receive thereby all the Benefits of his Body and Blood, that is, whatever Benefits accrued to the World by his Sufferings, are all conveyed to thoſe that are worthy Receivers of this Holy Sacrament. 2. By renewing our Covenant in Baptiſm. For tho' our Sins after Baptiſm ſhould be pardoned, had we totally loſt all our Title to eternal Rewards, our Condition would be deplorable. But this Sacrament renews again our Baptiſmal Covenant with God, making up again the Articles we had broken, and reſtoring us to our former Condition which we ſtood in, before we had forfeited the Rewards that we had covenanted for. And upon this Account our Saviour ſays, This is my Blood of the new Covenant which is ſhed for many for the remiſſion of ſins, Mat. xxvi. 28. by which is meant, That in this Sacrament we do covenant again with God, as we formerly did in Baptiſm, to perform all the Articles of the new Covenant. Which is a wonderful Benefit of the Chriſtian Diſpenſation, that we have always Means left to partake of the Benefits of this Covenant; unleſs by a total Impenitence we debar ourſelves of them, and perfectly ſhut ourſelves out from the Throne of Grace. 3. By affording us greater meaſures of God's aſſiſting Grace. When we are aſſured in Scripture, that God will give his Holy Spirit to thoſe that ask it, and that he will endue us with Grace ſufficient, upon our Requeſts in our ordinary Devotion, we need not doubt, but, by reaſon of this ordinary and ſolemn Devotion, we ſhall attain ſuch an Aſſiſtance of God's God's Holy Spirit, as will enable us the better to perform our Duty for the future. But we have further confirmation thereof by conſidering the extraordinary Effects (which our Saviour Attributes to the ſpiritual eating and drinking his Blood; by ſaying this will occaſion Men (27) never to hunger, but (28) to live for ever; that this is given (29) for the Life of the World, that by this (30) we dwell in Chriſt and Chriſt in us. By which Expreſſions the leaſt that can be underſtood is, That our Souls are invigorated by the lively Influence of God's Holy Spirit conveyed in this Sacrament, that they are quicken'd by his Grace, that they are render'd more inclinable to walk according to God's Laws, are better enabled to conquer Luſts and Temptations, and are endowed with Strength chearfully to undergo Afflictions. 4. By affording a ſpiritual Comfort. It being an unſpeakable Satisfaction to a Penitent Sinner, after being ſo long eſtranged from God, to be admitted a Gueſt at his Table, and into a ſtricter Union with Chriſt, and the Holy Members of his Church; to have all the Burden of his Sins removed, which ſate ſo heavy upon his Conſcience, and to have the Pardon of them ſealed in this bleſſed Sacrament, being aſſured thereby that God will remember them no more. But this Sacrament is then more eſpecially a mighty Comfort and Satisfaction under afflictions, for when we are deprived of all outward bleſſings, when Friends deceive us and Enemies oppreſs us, here we find a ſure Anchor of Hope and a Refuge for our Trouble, ariſing not only from the wonderful example of Patience of our bleſſed Lord in his ſufferings then ſet before us, but by the operation, of God's holy Spirit then working in us, to produce our extraordinary Joy and Comfort.

Of the Qualifications for thoſe who are to receive the Lords-Supper.

(p) To Examine themſelves.] Whenever we are to receive this bleſſed Sacrament, we ought to ſet aſide ſome ſpace of time longer or ſhorter according to our reſpective conditions, to (31) enquire into the State of our ſouls, and to know what is amiſs in our Lives, that we may beg God's pardon for it, and make reſolutions of amendment.

(q) Repent them truly.] When by examination of our Conſciences we have found out, wherein we have been delinquent, and diſcovered thoſe Sins which have put us out of Gods favour; we ought to be heartily ſorry for them, not only becauſe we are thereby liable to puniſhment, but becauſe we have offended ſo good and gracious a God after his abundant mercies to us, and his ſo long ſparing us after ſuch repeated provocations.

(r) Stedfaſtly purpoſing.] But to compleat our Repentance we muſt add a Reſolution of future Obedience, which ought not to be faint and ill-grounded, nor haſtily taken up upon ſome ſhort Religious Diſpoſition and then laid aſide as our Temper alters; but upon a deep ſenſe and well-weighed conſideration of the miſery and danger of our Condition. Nor muſt we reſolve only againſt Sin in general, but we muſt reſolve againſt every particular Sin, eſpecially thoſe which we find our ſelves moſt inclined to, redoubling our Vows and Reſolutions againſt them; and uſing all poſſible endeavours, to gain an Habit of the contrary Vertues.

(ſ) Have a lively faith.] We muſt give an undoubted Aſſent to all the divine Truths which are clearly revealed to us in Gods word; and to the Miracles by which they were confirmed. But more eſpecially, we muſt have a ſtedfaſt Belief that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt (32) came to die for the ſins of the world; ſo that if we forſake our ſins and (33) rely upon his Merits for the pardon of them, and for the future diligently walk after the Commands of his holy Religion, we ſhall never have them any more imputed to us, but that the Guilt of them ſhall be waſhed away by his blood in this world, and the puniſhment of them cancelled in the other.

(t) Thankful remembrance of his Death.] We muſt not only barely commemorate our Saviour's Sufferings and Death for our ſakes; but we muſt come to pay this acknowledgment with (34) thankfulneſs, and hearts brim-full of Reſpect and Love to him for conferring ſuch an ineſtimable benefit upon us; for having our loſt Souls redeemed by his alſufficient Merits, and the hopes of everlaſting happineſs purchaſed for us.

(u) Be in Charity.] Before we come to partake of this holy Sacrament, we muſt reſtore every one that have done us any wrong to our good-will and opinion, paſſing a perfect Amneſty upon their former ill-treatment of us, and being ſo far from revenging it, as never after to reſent it. And if we have injured any one elſe, we muſt make a juſt Reſtitution, and deſire them to be reconciled to us.

(a) The Curate of every Pariſh.] Our Church here orders that the Prieſt, who officiates divine ſervice in the publick Congregation, ſhould inſtruct Novices in the fundamental Points of Religion; but this was in former times a diſtinct Office. Therefore I ſhall ſay ſomething, firſt of the Perſon catechiſing, or the Catechiſt, ſecondly of the Perſons Catechiſed, or the Catechumens.

Of the CATECHIST.

That there were ſome ſelect Perſons who particularly appli'd themſelves to this Office, even from the earlieſt Times of Chriſtianity, is manifeſt from the Scriptural Books: For the Apoſtles themſelves, and other Converters to Chriſtianity, were Catechiſts, as appears by their inſtructing the Perſons whom they deſigned to convert, or had in ſome meaſure converted, in the principal Points of the Chriſtian Religion. Hence St. Paul calls himſelf, διδάσκαλον ἐθνῶν, a Teacher of the Gentiles, 1 Tim. ii. 7. It was ſuch Catechetical Inſtruction which they received gladly who were baptized, Acts ii. 41. and in which Theophilus, κατηχήθη, had been Catechiſed, Luk. i. 4. And 'tis, in all probability, this Inſtruction which the Apoſtles refers to, Heb. vi. 2. when he calls it βαπτισμῶν διδαχὴν, the doctrine of Baptiſms. This Office, in the primitive Times, was not diſtinguiſhed from that of the Evangeliſt; the Converſion and the Inſtruction of the Proſelite, for the moſt part, going on together. But, in the following Times, the Office of the Catechiſt was entirely diſtinct; for oftentimes the Perſon ſet aſide for that Office was a Lay-Perſon, or one of a lower Order among the Clergy. St. Cyprian ſpeaks of his making a Catechiſt of one who was only a Reader in his Church; Optatum inter Lectores doctorem audientium conſtituimus. We have made Optatus, who is one of the Readers, a Catechiſt or Teacher of the Catechumens, Cyp. Ep. 24. The like is affirmed by the Author of the Apoſtolical Conſtitutions, Ὁ διδάσκων, εἰ καὶ λαϊκὸς ἦ, ἔμπειρος δὲ τοῦ λόγου καὶ τὸν τρόπον σεμνὸς, διδασκέτω. A Catechiſt, tho' he be a Lay-man, yet if he be skilful in the Points of Chriſtianity, and be prudent in his Converſation, let him continue in that Profeſſion, Conſt. Ap. Lib. 8. cap. 32. St. Auſtin writes of a Deacon who exerciſed this Office at Carthage, in his Time,

(33) Neither is there ſalvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we muſt be ſaved, Act. iv. 12.

(34) For as often as ye eat this Bread and drink this Cup, ye do ſhew forth the Lord's death till he come, 1 Cor. xi. 26. This do in remembrance of me.

A CATECHISM.

(b) the second Lesson at Evening Prayer, openly in the Church instruct and examine so many children of his Parish sent unto him, as he shall think convenient, in some part of this Catechism.

¶ And

Time, Petis à me, Frater, &c. You desire of me that I should give you an account of the Method of Catechising, which might be of use to you: For you say, that at Carthage, where you are Deacon, that there are several brought to you to be instructed in the Principles of Christianity, Aug. de Catech. rudibus. But the Catechist's Office at Alexandria happens to be more taken norice of in Antiquity than any other, there being a succession of Catechists from St. Mark's Time, who himself was the first who exercised that Office there; and indeed all this Succession were Men of very great Abilities and Learning; for Eusebius writes, Eccl. Hist. Lib. V. cap. 10. that when the famous Pantænus was Catechist, which was A. D. 181. the School had flourished there long before. Pantænus was succeeded by Clement of Alexandria, and his Learned Book now extant, under the Title of his Pædagogus, was a course of Catechetical Lectures read in that School. After Clement, the Learned Origen succeeded in the Catechist's Place of that City. 'Tis uncertain, whether any of these Persons were in Holy Orders, during the whole Time of their executing this Office; but 'tis certain some of them were not, for Origen entered upon his Office of Catechist in the eighteenth Year of his Age, before he was capable of entering into Holy Orders.

Nay, further, the Office of Catechising was sometimes committed to Women. These were generally of the number of the Deaconesses, as long as that Female Order in the Church was kept up. This is testified by the Writer of the Apostolical Constitutions: Ἐὰν δ' ὁπότε ἐν ποιν οἰκίαις ἄνδρα διάκονον γυναιξὶν ἁγνὰς πέμπειν διὰ τοὺς ἀπίστους, ἀποστελεῖς ἐν γυναῖκα διάκονον. It happens in some Houses sometimes, that you cannot send a Deacon to Women, without giving Scandal to Unbelievers, and therefore, in such case, you shall send a Deaconess, Const. Ap. Lib. III. cap. 15. That such Women were sent to instruct other Women, who were, but as yet, imperfect Converts in the second Century, and, perhaps, in the Apostolical Times, is plain, from a Passage in Clement of Alexandria; Strom. Lib. III. where he explains the συνδιακόνους καὶ ἀγαπητὰς γυναῖκας, as he calls them, that is, those which St. Paul speaks of, 1 Cor. ix. 5. (viz. the Sister, or a Wife) to be such Persons, Δι' ὧν εἰς τὸν γυναικωνίτιν ἀδιαβλήτως παρεισδύετο ἡ τοῦ κυρίου διδασκαλία. By whom the Doctrine of Christ may be conveyed into the Womens Apartments, without censure. These Women-Catechists are called, by the Fourth Council of Carthage, Sanctimoniales: Sanctimoniales, quæ ad ministerium baptizandarum mulierum eliguntur, instructæ sint ad officium, ut possint apto & sancto sermone docere imperitas & rusticas mulieres, tempore quo baptizandæ sunt, qualiter Baptizatui interrogatæ respondeant. The Sanctimonials who are chosen to attend upon the Women to be baptized, let them be so instructed in their Office, that they may be able to instruct the ignorant Country-Women in wholsome and sound Doctrine; so that when they come to be baptized they may return proper Answers to the Questions which are proposed to them by the Baptizer. The Matter of the Catechists Discourses was, for the most part, an Exposition upon the Creed and the Lord's-Prayer; both which the Catechised Persons must learn by Heart, before Baptism, if they were Adults. This, as to the Creed, the Council of Laodicea obliges, Δεῖ τοὺς φωτιζομένους τὴν πίστιν ἐκμανθάνειν. They that are to be baptized must learn their Creed, Conc. Laod. Can. 46. To the like purpose, the Second Council of Bracara: Baptizandi discant Symbolum Apostolicum, quod in Baptismo illis erat recitandum. Those who are to be baptized must learn the Apostles Creed, which is to be repeated by them in their Baptism. St. Austin speaks the same of the Catechumens of his Time, Ideo prius Symbolum didicistis, ubi est regula fidei vestræ brevis & grandis; brevis numero verborum, grandis pondere sententiarum. Therefore you in the first place learn your Creed, which is the short and the great Rule of your Faith: short indeed as to the number of the words, but great as to the weight of the Matter therein contained, Aug. Ser 135. de Temp. The like St. Austin, in the forementioned Place, says of the Lord's-Prayer; Oratio autem Dominica, quam hodiè accepistis tenendam, & ad octo dies reddendam. The Lord's-Prayer, which to day you have heard, is to be got by heart, and to be repeated by you for eight days together, Aug. ib. And in his Forty second Homily he commands the Competentes, or Persons who were shortly to be baptized, to get the Lord's-Prayer without Book, that they might be able to repeat it the two following Saturdays after their Baptism. And both these are enjoined by an ancient Canon of our own Church, in the Saxon-Times, viz. that of Cloveshoe, Ut Dominicam orationem & Symbolum Presbyteri discant. That the Priests should learn and teach the Lord's-Prayer, and the Apostles Creed, Syn. Clov. Can. 10. These two afforded Subject Matter for the Expositions and Discourses of the ancient Catechists: nor were they tied down just to a literal Exposition of them; but they took occasion from some Hints therein, to discourse more largely of other Theological Points: As may be seen in the Pædagogus of St. Clement of Alexandria, and the Catechetical Readings of St. Cyril, who exercised the Office of a Catechist at Hierusalem. And that this was the usual Practice in the Third or Fourth Century, is plain from that Passage in the Writer of the Apostolical Constitutions; Ὁ μέλλων κατηχεῖσθαι τὸν λόγον τῆς εὐσεβείας, &c. He that is to be catechised in the Principles of the Christian Religion, let him be before Baptism, instructed in the Knowledge of the unbegotten, in the knowledge of his only begotten Son, and the fulness of the Holy Ghost. Let him learn the various Order of the Creation, the Series of God's Providence, and his various Dispensations. Lee him be instructed why the World was made, and why Man was made a Citizen of the World. Let him know what kind of Nature he is made of: How God has punished the Wicked with Water and Fire; and, How he has glorified his Saints in every Generation. Καὶ μετὰ τὴν εὐχαριστίαν, &c. And after the Thanksgiving-Prayer, [or the Eucharist] let him teach the Catechumen those things which concern the Incarnation of the Lord, of his Passion, of his Resurrection from the Dead, and his Ascension.

Of the CATECHUMENS, or Persons Catechised.

In the early Times of Christianity, whilst our Holy Religion was growing upon the Heathen Superstition, the Baptisms were chiefly of Adults, who became Proselites to the Faith of Jesus Christ; and were therefore willing, as soon as might be, to partake of that Sacred Rite, which initiated them Members of his Church. Now this would not be allowed to any Person, till he were sufficiently instructed in the Principles of that Religion which he was to profess. Therefore there was a considerable time enjoined before Baptism, for these Persons to gain such a competent Knowledge of the chief Points of Christianity, as was requisite to render them meet Partakers of that Sacrament. Now these, whilst they were in this learning Capacity, were called Catechumens. Of which there were two Ranks; the one were called, ἀκροώμενοι, by the Greeks, and Audientes by the Latins, i. e. Hearers; in which Order they continued, as long as they were learning the Principles of their Religion. The second were called by the Greeks, συναιτοῦντες, by the Latins, Competentes, i. e. Candidates or Competitors for Baptism; and did consist of such as having made a sufficient Progress in Christian Knowledge, were judged ripe for Baptism, and were appointed to be baptized the next publick Administration of that Sacrament.

Of the Order of the Audientes, or Hearers, mention is made in the Fourteenth Canon of the Council of Nice, and ordered, That such of them that fell in a Lapse, τριῶν ἐτῶν αὐτοὺς ἀκροωμένους μόνον, should be only Hearers for three Years. The same Rank of Catechumens is mentioned by Tertullian, Lib. de pœn. cap. 6. Nemo ergo Sibi aduletur, quia inter Auditorum Tyrocinia deputatur. Let no one flatter himself because he is doing his Exercise among the Hearers. They are likewise spoken of by St. Cyprian, when he says, Audientibus etiam, siqui fuerint periculo preventi, & in exitu constituti, vigilantia vestra non desit. Let not your Vigilance be wanting, even to the Hearers, if they be in any danger, or nigh their End. Cyp. Ep. XIII. These Persons were to hear the Scriptures read in the Publick Congregation standing, according to Zonaras his Explication of the Fourth Canon of Ancyra: Τούτους δὲ ἐνιαυτὸν ἀκροᾶσθαι καλύνει, ἐν τῷ νάρθηκι ἑστῶτας καὶ ἀκούοντας τῶν γραφῶν. This Canon commands them to be Hearers for a Year, standing in the Narthex, or outward Isle of the Church, and Hearing the Scriptures.

The second Rank of Catechumens, were those who were ready for Baptism, called the συναιτοῦντες, or Competentes. St. Ambrose mentions those in these Words; Symbolum aliquibus Competentibus, in Baptisteriis tradebam Basilicæ. I gave a Copy of the Creed to some of the Competentes, in the Baptisteries of the Church, Ambr. Ep. 33. And St. Austin, Cum fontis illius Sacramenta peteremus, atque ab hoc Competentes etiam vocaremur. Whilst we ourselves, Peteremus, did earnestly sue for the Sacrament of this Font, and for that reason were called Competentes, Aug. Lib. de Fid. & Op. cap. 6.

Now it must be further observed, That neither of these two Orders of Catechumens had liberty granted them to stay in the Church whilst the Communion-Service was performing. To this Usage St. Chrysostom refers, in his Seventeenth Homily upon the Hebrews; Ὁ διάκονος ὑψηλοῦ ἑστὼς μεγάλῃ τῇ φωνῇ καὶ φοβερᾷ κελεύει, καθάπερ τὶς κήρυξ τὴν χεῖρα ἄνω εἰς τὸ ὕψος, τοὺς μὲν καλεῖ, τοὺς δὲ ἀπείργει, τοὺς μὲν ἐκβάλλει, τοὺς δὲ εἰσάγει. The Deacon standing up on a place higher than ordinary, with a great Voice, and a terrible cry, lifting up his Hand on high, calls some, drives others back, some he gives admittance to, and others he keeps out. Nay, the very Forms which the Deacons used are still preserved in the ancient Greek Liturgies; Μὴτις τῶν κατηχουμένων. Let none of the Catechumens come in. Ὅσοι πιστοὶ ἔτι ἐν εἰρήνῃ τοῦ κυρίου δηθῶμεν. Let as many of us as are faithful, and in the peace of the Lord join in Prayer.

(b) After the second Lesson.] This Rubrick was altered upon the Review of the Common-Prayer 1662, it being in the former Rubrick

A CATECHISM.

¶ And all Fathers, Mothers, Maſters and Dames, ſhall cauſe their children, ſervants and prentices (which have not learned their Catechiſm) to come to the Church at the time appointed, and obediently to hear, and be ordered by the Curate, until ſuch time as they have learned all that is here appointed for them to learn.

¶ * So ſoon as Children are come to a competent age, and can ſay in their Mother-tongue the Creed, the Lords Prayer, and the ten Commandments; and alſo can anſwer to the other queſtions of this ſhort Catechiſm; they ſhall be brought to the Biſhop. And every one ſhall have a Godfather, or a Godmother, as a witneſs of their Confirmation.

¶ And whenſoever the Biſhop ſhall give knowledge for children to be brought unto him for their Confirmation, the Curate of every Pariſh ſhall either bring or ſend in writing, with his hand ſubſcribed thereunto, the names of all ſuch perſons within his Pariſh, as he ſhall think fit to be preſented to the Biſhop to be confirmed. And, if the Biſhop approve of them, he ſhall confirm them in manner following.

Rubrick half an hour after Evenſong, &c. The Reaſon of the Alteration, I preſume, was, That Catechiſm being performed in the midſt of Divine Service, the Elder Perſons, as well as the Younger, might receive Benefit by the Miniſters Expoſitions, and that the Preſence of Maſters and Parents, might be an Encouragement to their Servants and Children, to a diligent Performance of their Duty therein. But the worthy Perſons who made this Alteration, have been miſerably diſappointed in their good Intentions; for this very thing has drove Catechiſm almoſt out of the Church: For now if Miniſters Catechiſe in Prayer-time, they will drive away their Congregations, in moſt places. So that there being no other Time appointed by the Rubrick, the exerciſe thereof is moſt ſhamefully neglected; and the Nation feels the diſmal Effects thereof, by the looſe Principles of ſome Perſons, and the Ignorance of others. Happy would it be were the Rubrick altered to what it was before, and the Cuſtom which obtained before the Wars revived; which was, That the Children were Catechiſed on Saturday in the Afternoon (when there was always publick Prayers) and the Servants and Apprentices after Evening Prayer on Sundays. For if there were a ſeparate Time allotted for Catechiſm, as formerly, the Elder People would not be tired as they pretend to be, with this Exerciſe; and younger People being only among themſelves, and the Miniſter, would not be under that great Concern, as we frequently obſerve them to be in the midſt of a full Congregation.

The (a) Order of CONFIRMATION, or Laying on of hands upon thoſe that are baptized, and come to (b) years of diſcretion.

Note, That our Church has much improved the Adminiſtration of this Sacred Rite, over what it was before the Reformation; for the Papiſts had mixed ſeveral Uſages, which were unwarranted both by Scripture and Antiquity; and thoſe which were ancient they had ſo ſuperſtitiouſly abuſed, that it was fitter they ſhould be laid aſide. For firſt of all, they had made this a Sacrament in the ſtricteſt ſenſe of the Word, tho' they cannot ſay it was ordained by Chriſt himſelf: or if they do, they cannot vouch any Scripture for it, and are forced to fly to their Tradition for the ſupport of it. Secondly, They account Chriſm or Unction, with a particular ſort of Oil, a neceſſary part of this Rite, which, tho' it were anciently uſed, yet there is no conſtat that it was uſed in the Apoſtolical Times; and ſince they have abuſed it by their Superſtitions, it has been deſervedly exploded by our Church. Thirdly, In the uſe of this Chriſm they have mixed many Superſtitious Ceremonies, which the Ancients, when they made uſe of the ſame, knew nothing of: As the Biſhop's breathing into the Vial of Chriſm, which is to be conſecrated; and after the Conſecration, his ſaluting the Oil in theſe Words, Ave ſanctum Chriſma, Hail ſacred Chriſm: That the Biſhop muſt give the Confirmed Perſon a gentle Stroke: That he muſt bind a Cloth over his Forehead, which he muſt wear ſeven Days afterwards; all which time he muſt not waſh his Face: That the Party muſt be confirmed Faſting. Fourthly, They oblige the confirmed Party to have Godfathers, which being a ſpiritual Kindred, they muſt not marry with, without Diſpenſation. Theſe particulars were, with great Wiſdom, laid aſide by our Reformers. And as to the laſt of theſe the Church of Rome itſelf was weary of it, as appears by that Canon of the Council of Mentz: Non raro ex impedimentis cognationum ſpiritualium, difficultates & pericula ſolent evenire: ad quæ cohibenda decernimus, ne cuiquam, ſive ex ſacro fonte levando, ſive ad ſacram confirmationem tenendo, plures quam unum Patrinum, liceat adhibere, Conc. Prov. Mentz. cap. 19. Nay, they had turned the very uſe of Godfathers and Godmothers, not only in Confirmation, but even in Baptiſm itſelf, into great Superſtition; and to Ends very different from their firſt Inſtitution, which we retain, as appears by the Old Form of Exhortation to the Godfathers and Godmothers uſed here in England: Godfathers and Godmothers of this Child, we charge you, that you charge the Father and Mother to keep it from Fire and Water, and other Perils, to the Age of ſeven Years; and that you teach, or ſee it to be taught the Pater noſter, Ave Maria, and Credo, according to the Law of Holy Church; and with convenient ſpeed to be Confirmed, of my Lord of the Dioceſs, or his Deputy; and that the Mother bring again the Chriſom at his Purification. And waſh your Hands e're you depart the Church.

(a) The order of Confirmation.] This ancient Rite of the Chriſtian Church ſeems to have taken its Original, from a like Uſage among the Jews. For, as Buxtorf informs us, Lyn. Jud. cap. 3. Children at the Age of thirteen years are publickly preſented before the Congregation, and make a ſolemn promiſe that they will faithfully obſerve the Law of Moſes. And then follows thereupon the Prayers of the Congregation, for a bleſſing upon them, that they may be enabled to make good that ſolemn Promiſe. But for the uſe of this Ceremony in the Chriſtian Church, we have no leſs Authority, than that of the Apoſtles themſelves. For, when the Apoſtles at Jeruſalem had received Advice, that the Samaritans had embraced the Goſpel, they ſent unto them Peter and John, two of the Principal Apoſtles, to pray for them, that they might receive the holy Ghoſt, Act. viii. 14. Which, upon laying hands on them, they received, v. 17. If it be ſaid, as it is by ſome, that theſe gifts of the Holy Ghoſt were the extraordinary ones, which were common in thoſe Times: I would deſire ſuch perſons to give an account, how it is any ways probable, that ſuch miraculous gifts ſhould be offered to a whole Nation. For St. Paul asks a queſtion, as concerning a very abſurd and impoſſible thing, Do all ſpeak with tongues? 1 Cor. xii. 30. Was, I pray, it worth while for the whole Apoſtolical College at Jeruſalem, to ſend two ſuch honourable perſons of their ſacred Body, to confer the extraordinary Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, which were no neceſſary parts of Religion, nor which tended to promote holineſs of Life, which was the principal Aim of Chriſtianity, upon a whole Nation, good and bad? For it could hardly be ſuppoſed, that all of them would make the beſt uſe of this miraculous power; but ſome of them would certainly be for exerciſing it for mere oſtentation ſake. However it is certain that the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt went along with the laying-on of hands, which was ſubſequent upon Baptiſm; as we find, in the Inſtance of thoſe baptized by St. Paul, Act. xix. 2. And 'tis plain, that the Apoſtle, Heb. vi. 2. mentions Baptiſm and laying on of hands together, as initiatory Rites, by which new Members were entered into the Chriſtian ſociety. Neither is this holy Rite eſtabliſhed only by the uſage of the Apoſtles, but by the conſtant practice of the Church throughout all Ages. It would be almoſt infinite to produce all the Authorities, which might be alledged to this purpoſe. I ſhall content myſelf with bringing together ſome few. The Council of Eliberis, held A. D. 305. Speaking of the Baptiſm of a Clinick ſays, Si ſupervixerit ad Epiſcopum eum perducat, ut per manûs Impoſitionem proficere poſſit. That in caſe of neceſſity he may be baptized by any one who has perfect Baptiſm himſelf, but yet, if he happen to outlive his Diſtemper, he be brought to the Biſhop for Impoſition of Hands to be perfected, Con. Elib. Can. 38. The firſt Council of Arles treating of Arian Baptiſm, has theſe words; Et ſi perviderint in Patre & Filio & Spiritu Sancto eos baptizatos, manus iis tantum imponatur, ut accipiant Spiritum Sanctum. If they ſhall find that the Perſons baptized by them, have been baptized in the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, let only Hands be laid upon them, that they may receive the Holy Ghoſt, Conc. Arl. I. Can. 8. The ſecond Council of Arles, held A. D. 390, ſpeaking of ſome others who were baptized by Hereticks, ſays, Dum interrogati fidem noſtram ex toto corde confeſſi fuerint, cum Chriſmate & manûs impoſitione in Eccleſiam recipi ſufficit. If upon Examination, they ſhall make a ſincere confeſſion of the Catholick Faith, it ſuffices that they be received into the Church by Chriſm, and Impoſition of Hands. II. Conc. Arl. Can. 17. Tertullian, ſpeaking of baptized Perſons, ſays, That after Baptiſm Dehinc manus imponitur, per benedictionem advocans, & invitans Spiritum Sanctum. Afterwards Hands are laid upon them, by benediction, deſiring and inviting the Holy Ghoſt, Tertul. de Bapt. cap 8. And, in his Book of the Reſurrection of the Fleſh he has theſe words, Caro manûs impoſitione adumbratur, ut & animâ & ſpiritu illuminetur. The Fleſh is overſhadowed by the Impoſition of Hands, that it may be enlightened by the Mind and Spirit. St. Cyprian likewiſe affords us his Teſtimony, as to the uſe of this ſacred Rite in his Time; Illi qui in Samariâ crediderunt, &c. They who believed in Samaria, becauſe they believed with a true Faith, and were baptized into the Church, which was but one, and therefore had been partakers of a lawful and Eccleſiaſtical Baptiſm, ought not to be baptized again, but only that which was wanting was ſupplied by Peter and John; ſo that Prayer being ſaid over them, and hands laid upon them, that the Holy Ghoſt might be invoked and poured upon them: which is ſtill the Cuſtom with us, that they who are baptized into the Church, ſhould be ſolemnly dedicated by the Biſhops of the Church, and may receive the Holy Ghoſt by the Impoſition of Hands, Cypr. ad Jub. Ep. 73. St. Jerom is a further Evidence of the uſe thereof in his Time, in his Dialogue between the Orthodox and the Luciferian; where the Luciferian ſpeaks thus: An neſcis Eccleſiarum hunc morem eſſe, &c. Do not you know this to be the Cuſtom of the Churches, that after Baptiſm Hands are impoſed on the baptized Perſons, and that the Holy Spirit is invoked upon them? You ask where this is written? in the Acts of the Apoſtles? nay, tho' there were no Authority for this in Scripture, the conſent of the whole World, as to this matter, would be a ſufficient Precept thereof. To which the Orthodox makes anſwer, Non quidem abnuo, hanc eſſe Eccleſiarum conſuetudinem, &c. I do not deny this to be the Cuſtom of the Churches, that, as for them who are baptized afar off, in the leſſer Towns, by Presbyters and Deacons, the Biſhop travels out to them, to lay his hands upon them, and to invoke the Holy Spirit. To the like purpoſe St. Auſtin, Spiritus autem Sanctus, quod in ſolâ Catholicâ Eccleſiâ per manûs impoſitionem dari dicitur. The Holy Ghoſt, which is only in the Catholick Church given by impoſition of Hands, Aug. de Bapt. cont. Don. Lib. III. This is a Matter ſo plain, that the Adverſaries of this ſacred Rite are forced to aſſert, either that this Ceremony was not uſed before Tertullian's Time, or that it was only a ſmall Ceremony uſed in Baptiſm, and not any Rite diſtinct from it. But both theſe are Miſtakes: For Irenæus, who lived before Tertullian, makes mention of the Rite of Confirmation. He in relating the Myſteries of the Valentinians, which they had borrowed from the Orthodox, mentions the ἀπολύτρωσις εἰς πλέωσιν, a Redemption to Perfection; as alſo ἐγχρίσμα, λελύτρωμαι, &c. which are the Expreſſions that the ancient Church uſes, with relation to this Rite of Confirmation, and preſently after he adds, ἔπειτα μυείξουσι τὸ τελεσούμενον τῷ ὀπῷ βαλσάμῳ. Afterwards they anoint the Confirmed Perſon with Balſam. And again, ἔνιοι δὲ αὐτῶν —— μίξαντες ἔλαιον καὶ ὕδωρ ὅπι τὸ αὐτὸ ὑποβάλλουσιν τῇ κεφαλῇ τῶν χριομένων. Some of them mixing Oil and Water together, pour it upon the Head of thoſe who are Confirmed, Iren. cont. Hær. Lib. 4. cap. 10. And Theophilus Antiochenus, who was an earlier Writer than Irenæus, takes notice of the Chriſm uſed in the Adminiſtration of this Rite: Τὸς δ' ἀνθρώπου ἐσερχομένου εἰς πύξ ἢ βίον ἢ ἀθλῶν ὁ χρίεται τῷ ἐλαίῳ. What Man entering into the conflict of this Life, is not anointed with Oil? Theoph. Lib. ad Autol. And that Confirmation was not eſteemed a Concomitant Ceremony of Baptiſm, may be evinced by this Paſſage of St. Cyprian: Eo quod parum ſit eis manum imponere ad accipiendum Spiritum Sanctum, niſi accipiant & Eccleſiæ Baptiſmum. Tunc enim demùm plenè ſanctificari, & eſſe Filii Dei poſſunt, ſi Sacramento utroque naſcuntur. For it is not enough for them to receive the Holy Ghoſt by Impoſition of Hands, but they muſt likewiſe receive the Baptiſm of the Church. For then they are truly ſanctified, and become the Sons of God, when they are born of both theſe Sacraments. You may ſee here, that tho' St. Cyprian be maintaining his particular Opinion of the Rebaptization of Hereticks, and oppoſing the ordinary uſage of admitting them only by Confirmation; yet he declares that Confirmation is ſo far from being eſteem'd a Ceremony of Baptiſm, that he makes that and Baptiſm to be two Sacraments, in the Language of thoſe Times.

(b) Years of Diſcretion.] Before the Reformation here in England Parents might have their Children confirmed at ſeven Years old; for Lynwood, in his Gloſs upon thoſe Words of the Council of Oxford, Ad Confirmationem nullus puer teneatur, ſays, that this is to be underſtood of one that was major ſeptennio & minor 14 annis: Above ſeven and leſs than fourteen Years old. Our Church has not ſettled any particular Time, but only limits it to Years of Diſcretion, which, in ſeveral Perſons, are ſooner or later.

CONFIRMATION.

¶* Upon the day appointed all that are to be then confirmed, being placed, and (c) ſtanding in Order before the Biſhop; he (or ſome other Miniſter appointed by him) ſhall read this Preface following.

TO the end that Confirmation may be miniſtred to the more edifying of ſuch as ſhall receive it, the Church hath thought good to order, That none hereafter ſhall be Confirmed, but ſuch as can ſay the Creed, the Lords Prayer, and the ten Commandments; and can alſo anſwer to ſuch other queſtions, as in the ſhort Catechiſm are contained: Which Order is (d) very convenient to be obſerved, to the end, that children being now come to the years of diſcretion, and having learned what their Godfathers and Godmothers promiſed for them in Baptiſm, they may themſelves with their own mouth and conſent openly before the Church ratifie and confirm the ſame; and alſo promiſe that by the grace of God they will evermore endeavour themſelves faithfully to obſerve ſuch things as they by their own confeſſion have aſſented unto.

† The Catechiſm and the Order of Confirmation being joined together, in the Old Common-Prayer-Books, the following Rubricks ſerved for both, and were ſet before the beginning of the Catechiſm.

¶ The order of Confirmation, or laying on of hands upon children baptized, and able to render an account of their Faith according to the Catechiſm following.

To the end that Confirmation may be miniſtred to the more edifying of ſuch as ſhall receive it, (according to Saint Paul's doctrine, who teacheth all things ſhould be done in the Church, to the edification of the ſame) it is thought good that none hereafter ſhall be confirmed, but ſuch as can ſay in their mother-tongue the Articles of the faith, the Lords prayer, and the ten Commandments, and can alſo anſwer to ſuch queſtions of this ſhort Catechiſm, as the Biſhop (or ſuch as he ſhall appoint) ſhall by his diſcretion appoſe him in. And this order is moſt convenient to be obſerved for divers conſiderations.

Firſt, becauſe that when children come to the years of diſcretion, and have learned what their Godfathers and Godmothers promiſed for them in Baptiſm, they may then themſelves with their own mouth, and with their own conſent, openly before the Church, ratifie and confirm the ſame, and alſo promiſe that by the grace of God, they will evermore endeavour themſelves faithfully to obſerve and keep ſuch things, as they by their own mouth and confeſſion have aſſented unto.

Secondly, foraſmuch as Confirmation is miniſtred unto them that be baptized, that by impoſition of hands and prayer they may receive ſtrength and defence againſt all temptations to ſin, and the aſſaults of the world and the devil, it is moſt meet to be miniſtred when children come to that age, that partly by the frailty of their own fleſh, partly by the aſſaults of the world and the devil, they begin to be in danger to fall into ſundry kinds of ſin.

Thirdly, for that it is agreeable with the uſage of the Church in times paſt, whereby it was ordained that Confirmation ſhould be miniſtred to them that were of perfect age, that they being inſtructed in Chriſt's religion, ſhould openly profeſs their own faith and promiſe to be obedient unto the will of God.

And that no man ſhall think that any detriment ſhall come to the children by deferring of their Confirmation, he ſhall know for truth, that it is certain by Gods word, that children being baptized, have all things neceſſary for their ſalvation, and be undoubtedly ſaved. O. C. P.

—— That Children being baptized, if they depart out of this Life in their Infancy, have all things neceſſary for their Salvation, and are undoubtedly ſaved. 1 B. Edw. VI.

NOTES.

(c) Standing in order before the Biſhop.] Before the Reformation all Confirmed Perſons were obliged to have a Godfather, Decret. de Conſ. diſt. 4. Linw. Prov. Lib. I. cap. 6. But as there was not the like Reaſon for this, and it gave the Parents an unneceſſary Trouble in procuring them, our wiſe Reformers have laid that uſage aſide; and ordered only, that being preſented by the Miniſter of the Pariſh, either himſelf bringing them, or ſending in Writing under his Hand ſubſcribed thereunto, Rubr. after the Catech. they ſhall ſtand in order before the Biſhop.

(d) Very convenient to be obſerved.] Methinks no one that has a Concern for the improvement of Chriſtian Piety, ſhould be againſt the continuance of an ancient and Apoſtolical Rite, which carries with it ſo many Advantages, both to the whole Chriſtian Community, and to every Chriſtian in particular. For what can be more wiſely ſettled, than that every Chriſtian, when he comes to Years of Diſcretion, ſhould make a publick profeſſion of his Religion, which his Sureties promiſed he ſhould take upon him; and not let the Vow, which they made in his Name, perpetually reſt upon them? What can be a more uſeful Inſtitution, than that the Novices in the Chriſtian Religion, when they are ſufficiently Inſtructed and Exerciſed in the Art of their Chriſtian Warfare, ſhould at length try their own Skill, in fighting againſt the World, the Fleſh, and the Devil? By this excellent Order we learn the freedom of the Chriſtian Service, and that the Church would not have us obliged by any Oath, but what we give our own full conſent to; leaving us at liberty, either to ratify what our Sureties have promiſed for us, or to diſanul it; and whether, after we come to Age, we had rather live the Lives of Chriſtians or Pagans. By this Rite we not only acknowledge we have been baptized into the Chriſtian Faith, but bind our Baptiſmal Oath ſtronger upon us, by promiſing in our own Names, before a Reverend Perſon, that we will obſerve all the Commands of our bleſſed Lord, as our Sureties engaged we ſhould. Add to this, That it has been the conſtant Belief of the Chriſtian Church, in all Ages, that God's Holy Spirit is in a peculiar manner beſtowed upon us, in the partaking of this Holy Rite; not as heretofore for the ſake of working Miracles, but for the ſupplying us with Grace and Spiritual Aſſiſtance. In a word, whatever may be defective in Infant-Baptiſm, is made good by Confirmation: And either Baptiſm muſt be deferred till baptized Perſons can anſwer for themſelves in the Adminiſtration of that Sacrament, or this, or ſome other ſolemn Cuſtom, muſt be made uſe of, bywhich the Promiſes made in their Names, whether by their Parents or Suſceptors, may be ratified by thoſe Perſons who are baptized in their Infancy. The Reaſon of this carries ſo much Force and Conviction with it, that notwithſtanding our Confirmation is ſo much cried out againſt by ſome at home, ſeveral of the moſt eminent Foreign Divines, who otherwiſe had not the greateſt favour for the Rites of our Church, have given their Teſtimony in approbation of this: For thus Mr. Calvin ſpeaks; Ita Puer, fide ſuâ approbatâ, cum ſolenni Benedictione dimittebatur. Hujus moris ſæpè mentionem faciunt Veteres. Talem enim manuum impoſitionem, quæ ſimpliciter loco benedictionis fiat, laudo, & reſtitutam hodie in publicum uſum velim. Hæc diſciplina ſi hodie valeret, profectò Parentum quorundam ignavia acueretur. So the young Perſon, his Faith which he gave account of being approved, was diſmiſſed with a ſolemn Bleſſing. Such an Impoſition of Hands, which may be only in the place of a ſimple Bleſſing, I do approve of, and wiſh it were, at this Day, reſtored in the Church. For if this Diſcipline were in force, it would quicken the Negligence of ſome Parents, Calv. Inſt. Lib. IV. cap. 19. And again, in another place, Pueri, tranſactâ infantiâ, poſtquam inſtituti erant in fide, ſe quoque ad Catecheſin offerebant, quæ illu Baptiſmo erat poſterior; ſed aliud ſymbolum adhibebatur, nempe manuum impoſitio. Young Perſons, (i.e. the Children of Believing Parents) when their Infancy was paſt, and they had been inſtructed in their Faith, they offered themſelves to be Catechiſed, which they had after Baptiſm, another Rite was adhibited, viz. Impoſition of Hands, Com. in Heb. cap. 6. v. 2. This Rite is likewiſe acknowledged by the famous Mr. Beza, to be of Apoſtolical Inſtitution: For in his Comment upon the fixth of the Hebrews, he writes thus; Apoſtolus quinque capita Catechiſmi numerat, nempe

Profeſſionem: Emendationem vitæ: fidei ſummam de Deo: Doctrinæ explicationem Compendiariam, quæ in Baptiſmis & Impoſitione manuum tradi rudibus præſertim ſolebat. The Apoſtle here reckons up five Branches of Catechiſm; Profeſſion of Faith, Emendation of Life, a ſhort account of the Divine Nature, a Compendiary Explication of Doctrine, which was delivered to the Catechumens in Baptiſm and Impoſition of Hands.

(e) Kneeling before the Biſhop.] That the Biſhop was the ſole Adminiſtrator of the Rite of Confirmation, is plain from the Records of Antiquity. This is plainly affirmed by St. Cyprian, when he ſays, Quod nunc apud nos geritur, & qui in Eccleſia baptizantur, Præpoſitis Eccleſiæ offerantur, & per noſtram Orationem & manûs Impoſitionem, Spiritum Sanctum conſequantur. Which is a Cuſtom that obtains among us, that they who are baptized into the Church, ſhould, by our Prayer and Impoſition of Hand, receive the Holy Ghoſt, Cypr. Ep. 73. St. Ambroſe affirms, Ad confirmationem unitatis in Eccleſiâ Chriſti, à Pontificibus fieri ſolet. Becauſe there ſhould be an uniformity in adminiſtring the Rite of Confirmation, it is the Uſage of the Church that it ſhould be performed by Biſhops, Ambr. in Ep. ad Heb. The Pſeudo-Dionyſius ſays, Χρεία τῆς Ἀρχιερέως ἔστι, αὐτὴ γὰρ ἡ ἀρχαία συνήθεια. Confirmation is only to be performed by the Biſhop; for this is the ancient Cuſtom, Dionyſ. Ar. Eccl. Hier. cap. 5. To omit innumerable other Authorities, let it be ſufficient to mention one more, which is that of St. Jerom, a Perſon not over-full of Regards to the Epiſcopal Authority; and he tells us, Epiſcopus ad invocationem Sancti Spiritûs, manum impoſiturus excurrit. The Biſhop goes into the Country Town to lay on his Hand, for the Invocation of the Holy Spirit, Hier. Dial. inter Orth. & Lucif. But we have a greater Authority than any of theſe, in the Holy Scriptures themſelves; for there it is expreſly recorded, That Philip, an eminent Perſon in the Apoſtolical Church, and honoured with the Title of an Evangeliſt, having converted the Samaritans to the Chriſtian Faith; the good Man he made a ſtop, not being willing to exceed the bounds of his Commiſſion, nor to break in upon the Epiſcopal Province; he only makes report of the Succeſs of his Miniſtry to the Apoſtles or Biſhops who were at Jeruſalem; which they had no ſooner heard, but they ſent two Apoſtles to lay Hands upon the new-Converts. Now if Philip had had a competent Authority to have Confirmed them, by laying Hands on them, as he had to baptize them, what Reaſon was there that two Apoſtles ſhould be ſent from Jeruſalem to a remote Province, on a Concern, which, upon the Suppoſition of our Adverſaries, either Philip himſelf, or any other inferior Miniſter might have performed.

At the day appointed for ſolemnization of Matrimonie, the perſons to be married, ſhall come into the Body of the Church, with their friends and neighbours, and there the Prieſt ſhall ſay thus. O. C. P.

NOTES.

(f) Matrimony.] That this Holy State was inſtituted by God, is evident from the Hiſtory of Geneſis, where we find that God ordered a Wife for Adam, whilſt he continued in his unlapſed Condition, And the Lord ſaid it is not good that the man ſhould be alone: I will make a meet help for him, Gen. 2. 18. And again, Therefore ſhall a Man leave his Father and his Mother, and ſhall cleave unto his Wife: and they ſhall be one fleſh, Gen. 2. 24. Hence it has come to paſs, that among the numerous Deſcendants from this firſt Original Couple, the Inhabitants of the different Nations of the World, there has been ſome Religious Way of entering into this State in Teſtimony of its Divine Inſtitution. Among the Jews, the Religious Way of ſolemnizing a Marriage, which they pretend they have handed down to them by their ancient Progenitors, is, that the Rabbin or Chief-Elder of the Congregation, preſent a Cup of Wine to the married Perſons, with this Prayer, Bleſſed be the Lord God, the Governor of the World, who has created Man after his Image, and has prepared for himſelf a houſe for ever, after the Image of his likeneſs. And again, Bleſſed art thou, O Lord God, who haſt created Joy and Gladneſs, the Bridegroom and the Bride, Charity and Brotherly Love, Recreation and Delight, Peace and Society: I pray thee, O Lord, that there may continually be heard in the Cities of Judea, and the Streets of Jeruſalem, the Voice of Joy and Gladneſs, the Voice of the Bridegroom and the Bride: The Voice of exultation in the Bride-chamber, which is ſweeter than any Feaſt; and Children, which are ſweeter than the ſweetneſs of a ſong, vid. Geneb. de Rit. Jud. & Buxt. Synag. Jud. Among the Ægyptians, the Couple to be married were brought to the Temple of Iſis, and the Man ſwore, that he did ἀγαπᾶειν ἀδόλως. love the Woman chaſtily; and the Woman, that ſhe made the Man her Husband, and Lord of whatever ſhe was inſtituted to. The Greeks, upon this Occaſion, paid a great many Rites to the γαμήλιοι θεοὶ, thoſe Gods or Goddeſſes, which they thought had a particular concern in Marriage; innumerable Inſtances of which, may be ſeen in their ancient Writers. The Roman Confarreatio, was a ſort of Religious Rite, by which, by the Mediation of the Prieſt, the married Perſons were joyned together. This Servius ſays, in Virg. Geo. Lib. I. was done per Pontificem Maximum & Flaminem Dialem. And Pliny ſpeaking of it, ſays, in ſacris nihil religioſius Confarreationis vinculo novaque nupta farreum præferebant. Among the Sacred Rites, there is none of them which is more Religious, than the Confarreation, when the Brides ſolemnly carry Wheaten Cakes in their Hands. And of this Ulpian ſpeaks, Farre Convenitur in manum certis verbis, & teſtibus 10 præſentibus, ſolemniq; ſacrificio facto, in quo panis quoque farreus adhibetur. The way of the Marriage-Stipulation by the Farr or Cakes of Wheat or any Bread-Corn, is, when the Farr is put into the Woman's Hand, with certain ſolemn Words, and 10 Witneſſes preſent, a ſolemn Sacrifice being made upon that Occaſion, in which Cakes made of the Farr are likewiſe offered, Ulp. Hiſt. Lib. 10. When Chriſtianity prevailed, the Perſons who were Married, after they had made profeſſion of that Religion, were ſolemnly joyned together by an Eccleſiaſtical Perſon; and this in the very earlieſt times. For Ignatius, who wrote in the Year of Chriſt 120, ſaith, Πρέπει δὲ τοῖς γαμοῦσι, καὶ ταῖς γαμουσαις, μετὰ γνώμης τοῦ Ἐπισκόπου συνάπτεσθαι, ἵνα ὁ γάμος ᾖ κατὰ Κύριον, καὶ μὴ κατ' ἐπιθυμίαν. All Men and Women who are to be married, ought to be joined together by the Order of the Biſhop, that the Marriage may be according to the Lord, and not according to Carnal deſire, Ign. Ep. ad Polyp. Tertullian ſpeaks of Marriages in his time, A. D. 200. at leaſt confirmed, if not celebrated by the Miniſter in the publick Congregation. Unde ſufficiam, ad enarrandam felicitatem ejus matrimonii, quod Eccleſiæ conciliat & obfirmat Oblatio, & obſignat Benedictio. How ſhall I be able to ſpeak of the Happineſs of that Matrimony, which the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper makes and confirms, and the Miniſters Bleſſing ſeals, Tertul. ad Ux. Lib. 2. By the Fourth Council of Carthage held A. D. 398. it is enjoyned, that after Contract, Sponſus & ſponſa, cum benedicendi ſunt à ſacerdote à Parentibus ſuis vel Paranymphis offerantur. When the Bridegroom and Bride go to to the Church for the Prieſts Bleſſing, let them be preſented to him by the Parents or the Paranymphs, or the Bride-men, Con. Cart. IV. Can. 13. Upon this account, both in the Greek and the Latin Liturgies, Offices were drawn for the Religious Celebration of this Ordinance in the Church; which in proceſs of time being mixed with ſome ſuperſtitious Rites, our Church upon the Reformation, has thought fit to lay them aſide, and to draw a Form, which is conſonant to God's Word, and agreeable to the uſage of the pureſt State of the Church.

(g) The Banns of all that are to be married together.] The Bann comes from the barbarous Latin Word, Bannum, Bandum or Bannire, which ſignifies to put out ſuch an Edict or Proclamation. It came into uſe about the Seventh or Eighth Century, when the Latin Tongue was vitiated by an intermixture of a number of Gothick, Teutonick and Gauliſh Words. For we find the uſe of it in the Capitulars of Charles the Great, A. D. 802. Bannimus firmiter, ut nemo amplius faciat, &c. We publiſh it as a Ban, that no one hereafter, &c. Cap. Car. M. cap. 39. If it be asked, how a Proclamation come to be called Bannum, or Bandum; I take this to be the Reaſon. The Germans called the Colours in their Armies Bands, Du Fren. Gloſ. in voc. Bandum; and the Scholiaſt, upon Nazianzens Julian ſays, Τὰ καλούμενα παρὰ Ῥωμαίοις σήγνα ἢ βάνδα, ταῦτα ὁ Ἀπολινάριος συνθήματα καὶ σημεῖα καλεῖ. What the Latins call Signa & Banda, the Greeks call, &c. Now this Band or Enſign was a ſlip of Cloth tied to a Pikes head, which being waved by the Wind, and diſtinguiſhed by ſeveral Marks and Colours, gave direction to the Soldiers, to what

Matrimony betwixt them, without a Certificate of (h) the Banns being thrice asked, from the Curate of the other Pariſh.

¶ At the day and (i) time appointed for ſolemnization of Matrimony, the perſons to be married (k) ſhall come into the body of the Church with their (*) friends and neighbours:

Company they ſhould repair. This ancient Senſe of the Word Band, to ſignifie a Slip of Cloth, is ſtill preſerved in ſeveral Words of our Northern Languages; as Bands for Cords, Withs, Bandage, Ribband, &c. When any of theſe Northern Princes or Generals had a mind to publiſh an Order to be obſerved in their Armies, or among their Subjects, they put it into Writing and affixed it to the principal Ban or Enſign, which hung out at the Princes Palace, or the Chief Commanders Tent. Hence the Edict itſelf gained the Name of the Band. In like manner, Penalties upon Deſerters from the Army, and other Perſons who had fled from Publick Juſtice, were notified; and therefore thoſe, who were under ſuch a Proſcription, were ſaid to be under the Band, i. e. their Names were affixed to the Enſign. After this the Word came to be uſe in the Canon-Law. And our Provincial Conſtitutions enjoyn: Quibuſvis ſacerdotibus, etiam non Parochialibus, qui Contractibus Matrimonialibus ante ſolemnem editionem Bannorum nuptis præſumpſerint interesſe; panam ſuſpenſionis ab Officio per triennium infligimus, &c. To any Prieſts, tho' not Pariſh ones, who ſhall preſume to be preſent at Marriage-Contracts, before the ſolemn Publication of the Banns be made, we inflict the Puniſhment of Suſpenſion for three Years, Prov. Conſt. Cap. de cland. Deſponſ.

(h) The Banns being thrice asked] The Reaſon of this is to avoid clandeſtine Marriages, which are generally a great injury to Families, and a diſhonour to the Church. This the Chriſtians were diligent in avoiding, in the earlieſt times of Chriſtianity. For Tertullian ſays, Apud nos occultæ Conjunctiones, id eſt, non prius apud Eccleſiam profeſſæ, juxta mœchiam et fornicationem, judicari periclitentur. Among us clandeſtine Marriages, which are not firſt declared in the Church, are lyable to be judged Adultery and Fornication, Tert. de Pud. Therefore the old Canon-Law enjoyns it, and that as an ancient Cuſtom, ut cum Matrimonia fuerint contrahenda, in Eccleſiis per Presbyteros publicè proponantur. That when Marriages are to be contracted, they are to be propoſed publickly by the Presbyters in the Churches, Decretal. Lib. 4. de Clan Deſp. Tit. 3. This Decretal Law our Provincial Injunctions order the Biſhops to explain to their Clergy in the Vulgar Tongue, that none of them might, thro' Ignorance, offend againſt it, Prov. Conſt. Lib. 4. Tit. 3. And Lyndwood in his Gloſs upon this Provincial Decree, tells us, in what Churches the Banns muſt be publiſhed, Debent proponi in omnibus Eccleſiis illius Loci, ubi contrahere volentes habitant, vel ſaltem in pluribus earum, quod maximè ſervari debet, quando ſunt diverſarum Parochiarum. They ought to be publiſhed in all Churches of thoſe Places, where thoſe who have any concern in the Contract live, which ought chiefly to be obſerved, when they are of divers Pariſhes. This he quotes as the Law, from the Authority of Innocentius: But he ſays, ſed non ſervatur, but 'tis not obſerved; and that was no wonder, for Canoniſts Gloſſes, corrupt Practices, and Diſpenſations, had ſpoiled a Number of good and wholſome Laws. Our wiſe Reformers have reſtored all to the ancient Rule, and ordered, not only the Banns thrice to be publiſhed, but that too in in both Pariſhes, if the Parties live in ſeveral.

(i) At the time appointed.] It has been uſual among ſeveral Nations, to have ſome certain times exempted from the celebration of Marriages thereupon; ſome upon account of the extraordinary Sacredneſs of thoſe times, they being particularly ſet aſide for Religion and Devotion, and others upon differerent Views. 'Tis recorded of the Ægyptians, Ἐν ἱεροῖς μὴ συνοικοῦσι γυναιξὶν, That they did not conſort with their Wives on the Sacred Days, Clem. Alex. Lib. 4. A like Precept God enjoyned the Jews after their coming out of Ægypt, Exod. 19. 15. Plutarch in his Problems writes, that the Romans were wont to abſtain from Marriage during the whole Month of May, Probl. Rom. 86. But Ovid underſtands this only of the Lemuralia, i. e. 9, 10, & 11. of May. which were ominous, according to the Rules of Heathenſh Superſtition.

Tempora, quæ nupſit non diuturna fuit, Faſt. 5.

The Jews, as Mr. Selden in his Uxor Hebraica ſhews, had their ſeveral Days of Abſtinence from Marriage; as particularly, the Paſchal-Week, and that of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, Seld. Ux. Heb. Lib. 2. The Reaſon which governed the Jews in prohibiting Marriage at theſe times, was the extraordinary Solemnity of them, they being ſet aſide for the higheſt Acts of their Religion. And after this Part of the World became Chriſtian, the Church has guided herſelf by the ſame Rules, on the like Occaſions. St. Paul's Advice to the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 7. 5. Defraud not one the other, except it be with conſent for a time, that ye may give your ſelves to Faſting and Prayer, has been the Foundation for all the Canons of the Church, concerning the prohibition of certain times of Marriage. The moſt early that we meet with, is that of the Council of Laodicea, held A. D. 365. Ὅτι δεῖ ἐν τεσσαρακοστῇ γάμους ἢ γενθλια ἄγεσθαι. It is not not lawful to celebrate Marriages, or to keep Birth-Day-Feaſts in the time of Lent, Con. Laod. Can. 52. After this a Canon of the Council of Lerida, held A. D. 524. prohibits Marriage from Septuageſima, to the Octaves of Eaſter, as likewiſe the three Weeks before the Feaſt of St. John Baptiſt, and from the beginning of Advent till Epiphany, Conc. Ilerd. apud Grat. 1 qu. 3 non oportet. The ancient Canons of our own National Councils enjoyn the like. In the Excerpta of Egbert Arch-biſhop of York, A. D. 750. there is a Prohibition under a Penalty, that Marriages be not celebrated either upon Sundays, or upon Wedneſdays or Fridays, or in Lent, Spel. Con. Tom. 1. In the old Saxon Council of Æthan held A. D. 1010. the Prohibition of Marriage is from Advent to Epiphany, and from Septuageſima to the fifteenth Day after Pentecoſt, Spel. ib. Lyndwood in his Notes upon the Provincial Conſtitutions, ſets down what were the times of Prohibition in his time, Non poteſt fieri, &c. Marriages muſt not be made from the firſt Sunday of Advent, to the Octaves of Epiphany excluſively, and from Septuageſima-Sunday, to the firſt Sunday after Eaſter incluſively, and from the firſt Day of the Rogations, to the ſeventh Day after the Feaſt of Pentecoſt incluſively, Lib. 4. Tit. 3. cap. Quia. v. Solen. And this being a part of the Canon-Law anciently received among us, and not contrary to the Laws of this Realm, it is ſtill obligatory here, 25 Hen. 8. Cap. 19. Our Canons of 1603. have limited the time of Marriage to the Morning only. No Miniſter, upon pain of Suſpenſion for three Years, ſhall under any pretence whatſoever, joyn any Perſons in Marriage at any unſeaſonable times, but only between the Hours of Eight and Twelve, in the Forenoon, Can. 62. And this I believe, not with any regard to any ancient Conſtitution, as that of the Council of Winc. A. D. 1308. which prohibits all Marriages, that are not jejunâ ſalivâ celebrated, i. e. whilſt both Perſons are Faſting; but only, by reaſon this being generally the moſt buſie time of the Day, Clandeſtine Marriages might thereby be the better diſcovered.

(k) Shall come into the Body of the Church, Our Church orders the Perſons that are to be married, to come into the Body of the Church, partly that the Office may be performed in a viſible Place, and not in any By-Corner of it, wherein Marriages may be clancularly celebrated, and partly in imitation of Antiquity; for in the ancient Church, Marriages were ſolemnized in this Place. By the Greek Euchology, the Perſons who are preſented to be married, are to ſtand πρὸς τὰς ἁγίας θύρας, before the ſacred Doors; that is, on the out-ſide of the Cancelli or Rails, which divide the Chancel from the reſt of the Church. Euchol. Rubric. in Off Sponſ.

(*) Friends.] It may not be improbable, that by the Word Friends in this Place, is not underſtood ſo much the Relations of the Parties which we generally now call Friends, but ſome choice Friends or Acquaintance, which the young Perſons have choſen to go along with them; and which the Ancients called Paranymphi. And to have ſuch Perſons one or more attending each of the married Couple, being of their own Sex, was a Cuſtom uſed not only by the ancient Chriſtians and Heathens, but by the Jews, from whom it was handed to the Chriſtians: For we find ſome Traces of this Cuſtom as old as the time of Sampſon, whoſe Wife was delivered to his Companion whom he had uſed as his Friend, Jud. 14. 20. The Hebrew Lemerengebou his Companion; the Septuagint tranſlate τῷ Νυμφαγῷ αὐτοῦ, His Brideman, and ſo does the Syriack. The Chaldee Paraphraſe explains it by Shoſhibeni, his Brideman, which is the very Word the modern Jews uſe to ſignifie a Brideman. And very probably the Title of the 45th Pſalm, which is an Epithalamium, was not gnal Shoſhanim, to the Tune of the Lillies, as we now read it; but gnal Shoſhavim, to the Tune of the Bridemen; and the Words which follow Shir Jeditboth, is not a Song of Loves as we tranſlate it; (it being Feminine Subſtantive) and therefore ought to be rendered a Song of the Beloved or Favourite-women, or Companions, i. e. the Bridemaids. That this was an uſage among the Jews in our Saviour's time, I think is very clear from that Expreſſion of the Baptiſt, Joh. 3. 29. He that hath the Bride is the Bridegroom, but the Friend of the Bridegroom, which ſtandeth and hareth him, rejoiceth greatly, becauſe of the Bridegroom's Voice. Wherein the Baptiſt compares himſelf to a Brideman who attended and waited upon his Friend during that Solemnity, and was pleaſed with the Satisfactions which he received. The Chriſtians received this uſage from the Jews, uſing it rather as a civil Cuſtom, and ſomething that added to the Solemnity of that Occaſion, than as a Religious Rite. But afterwards in latter Ages it became ſo; for when the Decretal Epiſtles were written, the Compoſer was of this Opinion. For the Epiſtle attributed to Evariſtus, ſays, Legitimum non ſit Conjugium, &c. That it is not a lawful Marriage, when the Bride, a Paranymphis, ut conſuetudo docet, &c. is not preſented at Church by Paranymphs or Bridemen. But by the Fourth Council of Carthage, which was held about the Year 390. this uſage is countenanced, and made a part of the Sacred Solemnity. Sponſus & ſponſa cum benedicendi ſunt à ſacerdote, à parentibus ſuis, vel PARANYMPHIS, offerantur. When the Bridegroom and Bride are to receive Benediction from the Prieſt, let them be preſented to him either by the Parents or the PARA-neighbours: And there ſtanding together, the man on the right hand, and the woman on the left, the Prieſt ſhall ſay,

* DEarly beloved, we are gathered together here in the ſight of God, and in the face of this congregation, to joyn together this man and this woman in holy matrimony, which is an honourable eſtate inſtituted of God in the time of mans innocency, ſignifying unto us the myſtical union that is betwixt Chriſt and his Church; which holy eſtate Chriſt adorned and beautified with his preſence, and firſt miracle that he wrought in Cana of Galilee, and is commended of Saint Paul to be honourable among all men; and therefore is not by any to be enterprized, nor taken in hand unadviſedly, lightly, or wantonly, to ſatisfie mens carnal luſts and appetites, like brute beaſts that have no underſtanding; but reverently, diſcreetly, adviſedly, ſoberly, and in the fear of God, duly conſidering the cauſes for which matrimony was ordained.

Firſt, it was ordained for the procreation of children, to be brought up in the fear and nurture of the Lord, and to the praiſe of his holy Name.

Secondly, it was ordained for a remedy againſt ſin, and to avoid fornication, that ſuch perſons as have not the gift of continency, might marry, and keep themſelves undefiled members of Chriſts body.

Thirdly, it was ordained for the mutual ſociety, help and comfort that the one ought to have of the other, both in proſperity and adverſity: Into which holy eſtate theſe two perſons preſent come now to be joyned. Therefore if any man can ſhew any juſt cauſe why they may not lawfully be joyned together, let him now ſpeak, or elſe hereafter for ever hold his peace.

I Require and charge you both (as ye will anſwer at the dreadful day of judgement, when the ſecrets of all hearts ſhall be diſcloſed) that if either of you know any impediment, why ye may not be lawfully joyned together in matrimony, ye do now confeſs it. For be ye well aſſured, that ſo many as are coupled together otherwiſe than Gods Word doth allow, are not joyned together by God, neither is their matrimony lawful.

¶ At which day of marriage, if any man do alledge and declare (1) any impediment why they may not be coupled together in matrimony, by Gods Law, or the Laws of this Realm,

NOTES.

NYMPHS, Conc. Carth. 4. cap. 13. Our Church has neither countenanced, nor diſcountenanced the Uſage, but left it as a thing indifferent.

(1) Any Impediment whereby they may not be coupled together.] There are ſeveral Impediments which put a Bar to Perſons being married together; ſo that when theſe happen, they either diſſolve the Marriage-Bond, or lay thoſe, who enter into the Marriage State, notwithſtanding theſe Incapacities, under great Sin. Therefore our Church has uſed all imaginable Caution, to prevent theſe Abuſes in Wedlock, whereby any Injuries may be offered to private Families, or Sins may be committed againſt Almighty God. Now theſe Impediments are of ſeveral kinds; but the Principal of them, are theſe following,

1. The marrying without the Conſent of the Parents. It cannot be denied, but that the Parents have a natural Right over their Children, eſpecially whilſt they live under their Care; and ought to diſpoſe of them in what Way of living they ſhall think fit.: Therefore it is a great Act of Undutifulneſs, and a Violation of that natural Reverence which is owing to a Parent; for Children who are under Age, and remain ſtill a part of their Fathers Family, to diſpoſe of themſelves in Marriage without his Conſent; and thoſe who marry ſuch Perſons, or give their Advice towards the carrying on ſuch a Match, are guilty of a high Act of Injuſtice. The Holy Scriptures do in ſeveral Inſtances inform us of this Paternal Right, and that the Conſent of the Parents is required in the matching their Children. Iſaac and Rebecca were joyned together by the mutual Conſent of both their Parents, Gen. 24. Leah and Rachel were both given in Marriage by their Father Laban, Gen. 29. To omit innumerable other Inſtances, thoſe uſual Scriptural Phraſes in the Old Teſtament, to give a Daughter in Marriage, and to take a Wife for a Son, do ſuppoſe the Parent's Right to diſpoſe of his Daughter in Marriage, or at leaſt imply his Conſent thereunto.

Nor do we find, that the New Teſtament makes any Alteration in this Right; for the Apoſtle ſuppoſes this Paternal Power, when he gives his Advice in that Heat of Perſecution, which the Church was then under, He that giveth his Daughter in Marriage, doth well: But he that giveth her not in Marriage, doth better, 1 Cor. 7. 38. Indeed the Roman Laws were ſo ſevere, upon the Violation of this Parental Right, that they declared a Marriage Null, which was made without Conſent of the Parents, and baſtardized the Children; for the Words of the Law run thus, In poteſtate manente filiâ, pater ſponſo nuncium remittere poteſt, & ſponſalia diſſolvere; Whilſt the Daughter remains in the Power of the Father, the Father may have a Writ of Divorce againſt the Eſpouſer, and diſſolve the Contract, Dig. Lib. 23. Tit. And ſo as for the Marriage, Nuptiæ conſiſtere non poſſunt, niſi conſentiant omnes, i. e. qui coeunt, quorumque in poteſtate ſunt, No Marriages are valid, without the Conſent of all, i. e. both of thoſe who are coupled together, and thoſe in whoſe Power they are, Dig. Lib. 23. Tit. 2. Qui. vivente patre, & ignorante de conjunctione filiæ conce-

Realm, and will be bound, and ſufficient ſureties with him, to the parties, or elſe put in a caution (to the full value of ſuch charges as the perſons to be married do thereby ſuſtain) to prove his allegation: Then the ſolemnization muſt be deferred until ſuch time as the truth be tryed.

¶ If no impediment be alleadged, then ſhall the curate ſay unto the man.

(m)N. WIlt thou have this woman to thy wedded wife, to live together after † Gods ordinance, in the holy eſtate of matrimony? Wilt thou * love her, ‖ comfort her,  honour and †† keep her in ſickneſs and in health? and forſaking all other,  keep thee only unto her, ſo long as ye both ſhall live?

I will.

¶ Then ſhall the Prieſt ſay unto the woman.

N. WIlt thou have this man to thy wedded husband, to live together after Gods ordinance, in the holy eſtate of matrimony? Wilt thou † obey him, ſerve him, love, honour and keep him in ſickneſs and in health, and forſaking all other, keep thee only unto him, ſo long as ye both ſhall live?

tus eſt, juſtum filium ei ex quo conceptus eſt non videri, He that is born of a Daughter, who married without her Fathers Knowledge, doth not ſeem to be a lawful Son even of him, who begat him, Dig. Lib. 1. Tit. 5. §. 11. So likewiſe the Chriſtian Laws, after the Empire embraced the Goſpel, did to their utmoſt endeavour to ſupport the Paternal Right, and to hinder ſuch Matches as ſhould be made without the Conſent of the Parents. By the Fourth Council of Carthage, the Bridegroom and the Bride are to be preſented in the Church to be married by their Parents, or the Paranymphs who are ſuppoſed to be delegated by them, Con. 4. Carth. Can. 13. And the Greek Church declares, that thoſe Perſons, who being under their Parents Charge, ſhall preſume to marry without their Conſent, their Marriage is no better than Fornication, Mat. Blaſt. Syntag. Lit. Other later Councils of the Latin Church have determined the like; They that ſhall marry without the Conſent of Parents, ad Epiſcopalem authoritatem puniendi ſecundum Juris Diſpoſitionem remittuntur, are to be puniſhed by the Biſhop, according to the Determination of the Law, Conc. Saliſb. Can. 12. And both the Canon-Law, Decret. de Cland. Deſponſ. cap. cum inhib. and our own Provincial Conſtitutions, Linw. Prov. Lib. 4. Tit. 3. inflict ſevere Puniſhments on thoſe who ſhall ſolemnize ſuch clandeſtine Marriages, as are made without the conſent of Parents, Decretal. de cland. Deſp. cap. cum inhib.

2. Another Impediment of Matrimony. is Pre-contract, or former Marriage with any other. God Almighty by making only one Original Pair of Humane kind in the Creation, did plainly thereby ſet the Pattern of ſingle Marriage. And the Parity of the Number of Males and Females, which are born in every Country, do plainly ſhew, that by the Law of Nature, one Man ſhould have but one Wife. Indeed it was indulged to the ancient Inhabitants of the World, for the better Peopling thereof, (when probably there was a greater Superfœtation of Females than now,) that they might have a Plurality of Wives; but when moſt Countries were conſiderably ſtocked with Inhabitants, this Reaſon ceaſing, the former Indulgence was of Courſe annulled. It muſt be ſaid that Polygamy was in Practice among the Jews, but God rather connived at this, as he did at Divorces among them, for the hardneſs of their Hearts, Mat. 19. 8. The generality of the Jewiſh Writers allow, that a Man may have a Hundred Wives, if he can maintain them, Maim. Hal. Iſnoch. But others are of Opinion, that this was not lawful by the Law of Moſes, and Rabbi Ammi, quoted by Mr. Selden out of the Gemara, declares his Opinion, that before a new Wife be brought into the Family, the old one muſt be ſent away with all her Dowry. But the Chriſtian Law given by our Bleſſed Saviour, reduced Marriage to its Primitive Inſtitution. He declares plainly, that the Divorce and Plurality of Wives practiſed ſo much in ſome Ages of the World, from the beginning was not ſo, Mat. 19. 8. and that the twain ought to be one Fleſh, i. e. Marriage to be ſingle, v. 5. The Apoſtle ſpeaks the ſame Doctrine, let every Man have his own Wife, and every Woman her own Husband, 1 Cor. 7. 1. Tho' Divorces were too frequent among the Romans upon trivial Cauſes, and they did thereby very much prejudice the Cauſe of ſingle Marriage; yet they always had an abhorrence to a Plurality of Wives; and their Laws were very ſevere againſt thoſe who ſhould marry another Wife or Husband, when their former were not Dead or Divorced, L. 1. in fin. L. quid ergo 13. §. 1. D. de his qui notant inf. l. 18. & ad L. Jul. de Adult. As for the Chriſtian Canons, they are ſo far from allowing Polygamy, that they ſpeak very hardly of Second Marriages, Con. Neocæſar Can. 3. and prohibit ſuch as contract them, from entering into Holy Orders, 3 Conc. Arl. Can. 2. Conc. Rom. Can. 2. Now whereas a ſolemn Contract and Promiſe of Marriage is in the ſight of God, and the Parties own Conſciences, as binding as the Publick Solemnization of it in the Church; therefore the Compilers of our Liturgy, have uſed all poſſible caution to ſift out, if any Impediment of this kind be in either of the Parties, who offer themſelves to be Married, to prevent a great Sin againſt God, and an Affront to the Publick Service of the Church. Nor was the ancient Church wanting in this Point, for the Council of Trullo decrees, Ὁ τὴν ἤδη μνηστευθεῖσαν, ἐν τῷ δεῖ ζῶντος, ἑτέρῳ γάμου ἐναγόμενος, τῷ τῆς μοιχείας ὑποκείσθω ἐγκλήματι. He that ſhall marry a Woman who is betrothed to another Man, whilſt that Man lives, let him lie under the Imputation of Adultery, Con. Trull. Can. 98.

3. Another Impediment is nearneſs of kindred. That the Marriage with nigh Relations, is a Violation of the Law of Nature, as well as that of God, is evident from the Practice of all civilized Nations, who have induſtriouſly avoided it. Other Arguments there are to prove it, drawn from the natural Averſion which moſt Perſons find in themſelves to ſuch Commixtures; from the horrible Confuſion of Relative Diſtinctions which this would occaſion; from the inconvenience of hindring Alliances with other Families, and ſhutting up one Breed of People only among themſelves, which would for many Reaſons be inconvenient to the Publick. But it is ſufficient to oblige the Conformity of Duty thereunto, to conſider that Matches within ſeveral particular Degrees of Conſanguinity and Affinity are prohibited by God's Word. See Levit. 18. which being a Moral Part of the Judaical Law, doth oblige under Chriſtianity. And when one of the firſt Chriſtians had made a Marriage contrary to one of the Prohibitions there ſpecified; we may take notice, with what ſharpneſs the Apoſtle animadverts upon that Practice. It is reported commonly, that there is a Fornication among you, and ſuch a Fornication as is not ſo much as named among the Gentiles, that one ſhould have his Fathers Wife. The good Apoſtle would not vouchſafe it the Name of Marriage; and yet it probably was ſo; but calls it worſe than Heatheniſh Fornication. Wherefore the Church uſes all prudent Care, that no Perſons might cover any Inceſtuous Amours under the Sacred Name of Marriage.

4. There are other Impediments ariſing from Natural Incapacity of Body in either Sex, whereby Matrimony cannot be compleated, nor the ends thereof attained; therefore ſuch Perſons, if they be Conſcious of their own Incapacity ought to abſtain from Marriage.

(m) Wilt thou have this Woman.] Our Church has ordered the Conſents of the Perſons, that are to be married, to be asked; becauſe, without a mutual Conſent of the Parties themſelves, however their Parents or Tutors have agreed, it cannot be a lawful Marriage. For this the ſtanding Rules of Law and Equity require, Matrimonium debet eſſe liberum, Marriage ought to be free, L. neq; ab iniquis. C. de nuptiis. Conſenſu, matrimonia contrahuntur, Matrimonies are contracted by Conſent, L. conſenſu C. de repudiis. Nuptias non concubitus, ſed conſenſus facit. L. 15 F. de Condit. And therefore our Church has ordered that each of the Perſons ſhould be asked, whether they gave their Conſent to the deſigned Marriage; and in this ſhe follows the ancient Forms of the Liturgies, not only of the Latin Churches, but the Greek likewiſe, Euchol. p. 384.

(n) In ſickneſs and in health.] In the Office of Sarum, there followed after theſe Words, ſicut ſponſus debet ſponſam; which ſeems to be an odd Reſtriction, and capable of a bad Interpretation, and therefore was left out by our Reformers.

NOTES.

(o) Who giveth this Woman.] The natural Modeſty of the Female-Sex being greater than that of Men, and the Daughters of Families continuing in their Fathers Houſes, and under their Care till the time of their Marriage; it has been a Cuſtom in all Ages, that the Woman, upon her Marriage, ſhould not go to meet the Man with any degree of readineſs, but ſhould ſeem to be brought to her Compartener with a ſort of Reluctancy and Compulſion; and rather to be beſtowed upon him by her Father, or other nigh Relation, or Friend, than voluntarily to beſtow herſelf. Which Cuſtom has very great Antiquity on its Side, we reading in the Old Teſtament frequently, of a Daughter given in Marriage by their Father, Gen. 24. 16. Joſh. 15. 16. 1 Sam. 27. 25. The Romans in their Marriages had an Auctor, who either was the Father or Guardian, who gave the Woman to the Man, Cic. Orat. pro Flac. Which Cuſtom continued after the Empire became Chriſtian: For St. Auſtin in his Comment upon Geneſis mentions it, Sponſa à patre tradenda, The Bride muſt be given by her Father, Aug. Gen. ad lit. Lib. 11. c. 41.

(p) Give their Troth.] This old Engliſh Expreſſion of giving Troth, anſwers exactly to the Latin fidem dare, to promiſe faithfully; this was the old uſual Form of ſpeaking in Stipulations, and making Bargains. As is plain, by that of Terence, Ph. ſi mihi FIDEM DAS ut taciturum, dicam. Pa. FIDEM DO, loquere. Ph. If you will give your Troth, that you will not ſpeak of it: I will tell you. Pa. I give you my Troth, tell me, Ter. in Hecyra. Act. 1. Sc. 2. So again in Phormio, Non mihi credis? ſin fidem do, What don't you believe me? I give you my honeſt Word upon it; this the Civil-Law otherways expreſſes, by fidem ſuam aſtringere, L. 27. F. de uſuris; and fidem bonam præſtare, L. 3. in fin. pro Soc. And in this Senſe the Canon-Law uſes it, quidam cuidam mulieri de contrahendo matrimonio fidem dedit, Decr. Lib. 4. Tit. 1. So that when the Church requires of the Perſons to be married, that they ſhall give each other their Troth; her meaning is, that they ſhall make a ſolemn Aſſurance to each other, that they deſign to be Husband and Wife, and to live together in a Faithful Diſcharge of thoſe Rules and Obligations, which God's Law requires in that State.

——— So ſpeaking, in his Right-hand he took

Innectens manibus, tecta ulteriora ad aulæ
Progreditur ———

———Thus having ſpoken, both his Friends
Knitting within his Hands, he leads them on
To th' further part of th'Court ———

But, beſides the being the Token of love and Friendſhip, the joyning Right-hands has in all Ages and Nations too, been a Token of Conſent to a Covenant or Agreement. And in this Senſe Virgil takes it, when he gives an account of the ſeveral wicked Perſons who are puniſhed in Hell.

Quique ob Adulterium Cæſi, quique arma ſecuti
Impia, nec veriti dominorum fallere dextras.

Thoſe in Adultery kill'd, and thoſe who took Up impious Arms againſt their Sovereign Lord,
Being bold to violate the Allegiance-Oath,
Plighted by Right-hands joyn'd —— Virg. Æn. Lib. 6.

So the Perſon in Ovid, upbraiding an unfaithful Lover, ſays,

Heus, ubi pacta fides, commiſſaque dextera dextræ?

Where is the plighted Faith, and Right-hands joyn'd?
Ovid. Ep.

So that the Church, upon Conſideration that ſuch joyning of Hands has been looked on as a natural Token of Love and Fidelity in all Ages of the World, has thought fit to retain it in the Publick Solemnization of Marriage.

Take the Woman by the Right-hand.] In the Office of Sarum it is enjoyned, Quod ſi puella ſit, diſcoopertam habeat manum, ſi vidua tectam: If ſhe be a Maid ſhe muſt have her Glove off, if a Widow her Glove on, which being but a Superſtitious Ceremony, was well laid-aſide when our Rubrick was made.

(r) I N. take the N.] This mutual Stipulation in expreſs Words of both the Parties, is enjoyned, in compliance with the Rules of the Civil and the Canon-Law: Stipulatio eſt Conventio, ſolennibus verbis ex interrogatione & reſponſione confecta, A Stipulation is an Agreement, made by ſolemn Words, conſiſting of an Interrogation and Anſwer, Tit. de verb. oblig. Inſt. in princ. But in this the Stipulation is not expreſſed, but only ſuppoſed; and is as much as if the Woman ſhould ask, Do you take me to your wedded Wife, &c. And the Man anſwers, I do take thee to my wedded Wife, &c. Now it is ſufficient for the Eſpouſals, that the Man declares this de futuro; but for a compleat Marriage, it is requiſite, that he make the acknowledgment de præſenti. And this the Canon-Law declares: In veritate contrahitur matrimonium, per legitimum viri & mulieris conſenſum; ſed neceſſaria ſunt (quantum ad Eccleſiam) verba conſenſum exprimentia de præſenti: In reality Matrimony is contracted by the lawful Conſent of the Man and Woman, that they ſhall hereafter Marry, but it is neceſſary (as to the Church) to expreſs their Conſent by Words, in the Preſent, Decretal. Tit. 1 cap. 25.

(ſ) According to Gods holy Ordinance.] Theſe Words were put in, in lieu of thoſe Words in the Office of Sarum, if holie Churche will it permit: And if we conſider the Tenor of Papal Diſpenſations of unlawful Marriages, and the voiding lawful ones, we muſt grant that this Change was made upon very good grounds.

(t) Plight thee my Troth.] The Word Plight, anſwers to our Latin Law-Word Plegio, which is uſed by our old Engliſh Lawyers, to denote what the Civilians expreſs by Vador and fide-Jubeo, to engage to make an Appearance at the Court: For by our ancient Engliſh Conſtitution, every one at Twelve Years of Age, was obliged twice a Year, after Eaſter and Michaelmaſs, (unleſs exempted by ſpecial Privilledge,) to make his Appearance in the Sheriff's Court. The entering into this Recognizance, was called Plegiare, or the plighting their Troth that they would appear, Lib. 2. Monaſt. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 310. Spelm. Gloſſ. p. 462. Now the meaning of the Word in this Place, is, that the married Perſon enters into a ſolemn Pledge and Engagement, that he will make all good that he has before promiſed.

NOTES.

(u) To love, cheriſh, and obey. ] These Words were placed here in the Form of the Woman's Stipulation or Contract, in lieu of thoſe Words in the Office of Sarum, to be bonair and burſom in bed and at board, which were capable of a wanton meaning.

(x) Give unto the Woman a Ring. ] This Ceremony which the Church has enjoined to be uſed in the Office of Matrimony, has been the Occaſion of great Clamours againſt her from her Adverſaries; for by Reaſon of this, ſhe has been arraigned for making Marriage a Sacrament, eſpecially ſince the Words, In the Name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghoſt, are pronounced upon the putting it on. But how unreaſonably do ſuch People act with Relation to this Matter? Do they really think, that every Solemn Action is preſently made a Sacrament, at which the Names of the Perſons of the Bleſſed Trinity are uſed? Men's laſt Wills or Teſtaments uſually begin ſo, and yet no one ever ſaid, that, when a Man was making a Will, he was celebrating a Sacrament? The Uſe of it hath been very ancient in Eſpouſals and Marriages. That the Romans uſed it, is beyond Exception; and for that Reaſon we are blamed, for making Uſe of an Heathenish Rite. This is plainly aſſerted by Juvenal,

Conventum tamen & Pactum, & Sponſalia, noſtrâ
Tempeſtate paras, jamque a Tonſore magiſtro
Pectoris, & digito pignus fortaſſe dediſti.

Yet in this Age you Marriage-Pacts and Covenants
Prepare, by ſome Court-Barber neatly trim'd;
And put the Ring upon the Spouſes Finger. Juven. Sat. 6.

This Ring was an Iron one, which in ancient Times the Romans uſed: For Pliny ſpeaking of this Cuſtom among them, ſays, Etiam nunc ſponſæ annulus ferreus mittitur, iſque ſine gemmâ, Even at this day, an Iron-Ring is given to the Bride, and that without any Jewel in it, Plin. Nat. Hiſt. Lib. 33. Cap. 1. The Uſe of the Ring, as it was unknown to the ancient Greeks, ſo the old Romans made uſe of it for a Seal, and an Iron one generally ſerved their turn for that Uſe: For Pliny relates, that for a long time in that State, no Senator uſed a Gold-Ring, that Marius during his firſt two Conſulſhips uſed only an Iron-Ring; and when he was the third time Conſul, was the firſt who uſed a Gold one. Hi quoque, qui ob legationem acceperunt aureos, in publico tantum utebantur eis, intra domos verò ferreis, They alſo who on account of a publick Embaſſy, had a Gold one given them, made uſe of the Iron-Ring at Home: And then ſubjoins, Quo argumento et am nunc ſponſæ, &c. His meaning I take to be, that the Marriage-Ring took its Original from this Seal-Ring, which was anciently made of Iron; and that this was a Symbol to denote the Wife being made a Compartener in her Husbands Affairs. But this was not only a bare Heathen Cuſtom, but has been long in uſe among the Jews: For Buxtorf in his Jewiſh Synagogue, mentions as a Cuſtom among the Jews in their Marriages, to put a Gold-Ring upon the Bride's Finger, and then to read the Letters of Marriage, Syn. Jud. cap. 28. And the Tebaugath Keduſhin, the Ring of Eſpouſing, is mention'd in the Talmud, Buxt. Lex. Rab. in קדש. Tertullian ſpeaks of it as uſed in his time among the Chriſtians, Neque Annulus, neque Conjunctio maritalis de alicujus Idoli honore deſcendit, Neither the Ring, nor the joyning together in Marriage, does proceed from any honour paid to an Idol, Tert. de Idol. Cap. 16. St. Auſtin ſpeaks thus concerning it, Gradiuntur cum domino filii ſponſi pignus accepturi Spiritus Sancti: Levans autem manus ſuas benedixit eos, dedit in arrham ſponſalem muneris pretioſam, non ex auro gemmiſque diſtinctam, ſed charitatis anſulis contextam Catenam, quâ alligati ſequuntur eum ad ſponſam Agni Jeruſalem, patriam ſempiternam. There the Children of the Bride-chamber go with the Bride to receive the Pledge of the Holy Ghoſt. And he lifted up his Hands and Bleſſed them, that is, he gave them the Pledge of the Eſpouſals, a precious Gift, not ſtudded with Gold and precious Stones, but a Chain whoſe Links are made of Charity, with which they that are encircled, follow him to the Lamb's Spouſe, the Heavenly Jeruſalem, Aug. Serm. de Temp. Serm. 199.

But beſides, by this Ceremony of the Ring, the Wife is admitted into a Partenerſhip of her Husband's Goods, the Man at the ſame time pronouncing theſe Words, With this Ring I thee wed. Now, when any one parts with a Poſſeſſion, there is always ſome Ceremony or other attends the Alienation; in ſome Places it has been by the ſealing and delivering of a Writing. Now why ſhould it be eſteemed ſo great a Fault in our Church, that, according to an ancient received Cuſtom, we make the admitting the Wife into a Share of of the Husband's Goods, to be performed by the Ceremony of the Delivery of a Ring? The Church might, of her own Authority, have eſtabliſhed what Ceremony ſhe had thought fit, for the performing this; but however, ſhe has thought it more proper to retain an ancient Rite, which has been uſed in the Church, on this account, for ſo many Ages.

Give unto the Woman a Ring. ] In the Order of Sarum there was a formal Benediction of the Ring; which was performed by two ſolemn Prayers, the firſt whereof was this;

Creator & Conſervator humani generis, dator gratiæ ſpiritualis, largitor eternæ ſalutis, tu domine mitte benedictionem tuam ſuper hunc annulum, ut quæcunque illum geſtaverit ſit armata virtute cæleſtis defenſionis, & ſufficiat illi ad ſalutem æternam. Per Chriſtum Dominum noſtrum. Amen.

The Second was thus,

Bene Chriſte dic Domine hunc annulum, quem nos in tuo ſancto nomine benedicimus, ut quacunque eum portaverit in tua pace conſiſtat, & in tua voluntate permaneat, & in tuo amore vivat & creſcat, & ſeneſcat, & multiplicetur in longitudinem dierum. Per Dominum noſtrum Jeſum Chriſtum. Amen.

After which Prayer, the Ring was ſprinkled with Holy-water.

All which ſuperſtitious Practice was deſervedly omitted by our Reformers.

(y) With my Body I thee worſhip. ] These Words are objected by our Adverſaries, as a great Crime in our Church, for obliging the Bridegroom to make a Idol of his Bride, and to declare in the moſt extravagant ſtrain of all Complements, that he worſhips her. But this Imputation is owing to a not juſt Conſideration of the purport of the Old Engliſh Word Worſhip, which ſignifies an Honourable regard, as is yet to be ſeen in our uſual Expreſſions ſtill retained in common Diſcourſe, as your Worſhip, Worſhipful, &c. And ſo King James in the Conference at Hampton-Court told Dr. Reynolds, who made

¶ Then the man leaving the ring upon the fourth finger of the womans left hand, they ſhall both kneel down, and the Miniſter ſhall ſay;

Let us pray,

made this Objection: For our Church is not only content, that the Wife ſhould be endowed with a ſhare of the Husband's Goods, but that the Husband ſhould oblige himſelf to promote his Spouſe, to the Dignity of the Uxorial Honour; for ſhe would not have the Men joyned to Concubines by this religious Solemnity; and therefore ties the Man to make Profeſſion, that he is willing to have the Perſon he marries, not only to be a Partener in his Bed, but ſhe ſhould have all the Dignity of a Wife allowed her: And that is the meaning of theſe words, with my Body I thee worſhip, I not only give you a Right in my Body, but that in the honourable and worſhipful way of a Wife. For by the old Roman Law, this was the difference between a Wife and a Concubine; that the Husband before Marriage, promiſed that he deſigned to promote the Woman he was married to, to the Honour of the Mater-familias, or Miſtreſs of the Family, *D.  ¶ (b) After which, if there be no Sermon declaring the duties of man and wife, the Miniſter ſhall read as followeth.

ALL ye that are married, or that intend to take the holy eſtate of matrimony upon you, hear what the holy Scripture doth ſay as touching the duty of Husbands towards their wives, and wives towards their husbands.

Saint Paul in his Epiſtle to the Epheſians, the fifth Chapter, doth give this commandment to all married men, Husbands, love your wives, even as Chriſt alſo loved the Church, and gave himſelf for it, that he might ſanctifie and cleanſe it with the waſhing of water, by the word; that he might preſent it to himſelf a glorious Church, not having ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; but that it ſhould be holy and without blemiſh. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies: He that loveth his wife, loveth himſelf. For no man ever yet hated his own fleſh, but nouriſheth and cheriſheth it, even as the Lord the Church: For we are members of his body, of his fleſh, and of his bones. For this cauſe ſhall a man leave his father and mother, and ſhall be joyned unto his wife, and they two ſhall be one fleſh. This is a great myſtery; but I ſpeak concerning Chriſt and the Church. Nevertheleſs, let every one of you in particular, ſo love his wife, even as himſelf.

Likewiſe the ſame Saint Paul writing to the Coloſſians, ſpeaketh thus to all men that are married, Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter againſt them.

Hear alſo what Saint Peter the Apoſtle of Chriſt, who was himſelf a married man, ſaith unto them that are married, Ye husbands, dwell with your wives according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife, as unto the weaker veſſel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindred.

Of MATRIMONY.

Hitherto ye have heard the duty of the husband toward the wife. Now likewiſe, ye wives, hear and learn your duties toward your husbands, even as it is plainly ſet forth in holy Scripture.

Saint Paul in the aforenamed Epiſtle to the Epheſians, teacheth you thus; Wives, ſubmit your ſelves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Chriſt is the head of the Church: and he is the Saviour of the body. Therefore as the Church is ſubject unto Chriſt, ſo let the wives be to their own husbands in every thing. And again he ſaith, Let the wife ſee that ſhe reverence her husband.

And in his Epiſtle to the Coloſſians, Saint Paul giveth you this ſhort leſſon, Wives, ſubmit your ſelves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord.

Saint Peter alſo doth inſtruct you * very well, thus ſaying, Ye wives, be in ſubjection to your own husbands; that if any obey not the word, they alſo may without the word be won by the converſation of the wives; while they behold your chaſt converſation coupled with fear. Whoſe adorning let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet ſpirit, which is in the ſight of God of great price. For after this manner in the old time, the holy women alſo who truſted in God, adorned themſelves, being in ſubjection unto their own husbands; even as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him Lord; whoſe daughters ye are as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.

VARIOUS READINGS.

* And the Communion of the same. 1 B. Edw. 6.

NOTES.

(a) Visitation.] The kind and civil Custom of visiting Friends and Acquaintance, when they sie sick, is a natural Duty, arising partly from the tenderness of Human Nature, and Love to our Fellow-Creatures; and partly from those Rules of Equity imprinted in our Minds, which incline us to afford Assistance to those, who are not in a Condition to help themselves, and to administer Comfort to those who want it. Such a friendly Visit, we read in Scripture, was made by Ahaziah the Son of Jehoram King of Judah; who went down to see Joram the Son of Ahab in Jezreel, because he was sick, 2 King. 8. 29. It was for the greater Solemnity of such Visits, when David's Friends were sick, that his clothing was sackcloth, and that he humbled himself with fasting, Psal. 35. 13. It was to this kind officiousness of a tender Friend, that David compares the Goodness of God shewn to his Faithful Servants: The Lord will strengthen him upon his Bed of languishing, and make all his Bed in his sickness, Psal. 41. 3. To be wanting in these kind Offices to our Friends, our Blessed Saviour remarks, as a Note of Unmercifulness and Cruelty, I was sick and ye visited me not, Mat. 25. 36. But besides this Duty of one Friend's visiting the other, we find a particular Injunction in Scripture, for the Ministers of God's Church to attend upon Sick Persons; to pray with them, and to afford them Spiritual Comfort and Advice. Is any sick among you, let him call for the Elders of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with Oil in the Name of the Lord, and the Prayer of Faith shall save the Sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and, if he have committed Sins, they shall be forgiven him, Jam. 5. 14, 15. Now indeed, part of this Injunction relates only to the Primitive Times of Christianity, whilst many Christians, especially the Clergy, enjoyed the Charismata or Power of working Miracles. For tho' many of the Ecclesiastical Writers mention this Unction of the sick, yet they relate it as an extraordinary Method of curing them. Thus Tertullian mentions, how Severus the Emperor was cured of a Distemper, by one Proculus a Christian, anointing him with Oil, Tert. ad Scap. cap. 4. St. Jerom relates, in the Life of Hilarion, how the Shepherds and Husbandmen flocked to this Saint, when they were bit by Serpents to be cured by the Holy-Oil; and how he saved the Lives of several of Constantia's Relations, by this Method. Sulpitius Severus reports of Martin Bishop of Tours, that he cured a Paralytick Maid by Prayer and the Holy-Oil, in Vit. Mart. But in process of time, it came to pass, that though the miraculous Effects of this Unction ceased, yet the Unction itself was continued; till about the Tenth Century in the Latin Church, it was a made Sacrament to convey Spiritual Grace, and necessary to Salvation. Tho' the Greeks used it chiefly as a means for Recovery of Health; as is plain by many Petitions in the Euchology, to this purpose, p. 408, 411, 412. Upon the whole therefore, we may conclude, that, tho' one part of the Apostle's Order is to be laid aside, upon alteration of the Circumstances of Time, and the failing of the Miraculous Powers which the Apostles, and other of the Clergy, in the Primitive Times were vested with; yet the other Part thereof remains in full force; viz. that the Presbyters of the Church are to be called to pray over sick Persons; and if they have committed Sins, they shall be forgiven them, the sick Persons receiving Absolutions from their Hands. Now that this Apostolical Order, for the Clergy to visit the Sick, was derived from a like Practice among the Jews, is not improbable; especially, if the modern Practice now in use among them, be derived from their ancient Forefathers, as they pretend: For when any one is Sick of a dangerous Distemper, some learned and godly Rabbi is sent for, exhorting him to be constant in the Jewish Faith, and to expect the coming of the Messiah. Some of their Litanies enjoyn the 20th, 38th, and 91st Psalms to be repeated, and then the Form of Absolution to follow, wherein he is absolved from all the Curses which may be incumbent upon him or his House: But their ordinary Book of Prayers, enjoyns this Prayer to be repeated by the sick Man, מודה אני, &c. I acknowledge and confess before thee, O Lord, my God, and the God of my Fathers, the God of the Spirits of all Flesh, that both my Health and my Death, is in thy hands. Restore me, I beseech thee, unto my former Health, remember me and hear my Prayers, as thou didst Hezekiah's in his time when he was sick: But if the time of my Visitation draweth near wherein I must die, let my Death be punishment sufficient for all my Sins and Offences, which I have ignorantly or knowingly committed from the first Day that I drew my Breath. Grant I beseech thee, that I may have a Share in Paradise and the World to come, which is prepared for the Righteous; satisfie me with the joy of thy glorious Countenance, at thy Right-hand for evermore. Blessed art thou, O Lord, who hearest the Prayer, Buxt. Syn. Jud. Cap. 35. That the Primitive Clergy lookt upon Visiting the Sick, as an especial Part of their Duty, may be seen from several Passages of ancient Writers. Polycarp gives it as Advice to the Presbyters, that they should ἐπισκοπεῖν τοὺς ἀσθενεῖς, Visit the Sick, Poly. Epist. ad Phil. Possidonius relates it in the Life of St. Austin, that this Holy Man, as soon as he heard any one was sick, he immediately went to him, Pos. in Vit. Aug. cap. 27. Some are of Opinion, that St. Austin wrote his Treatise de Visitatione Infirmorum, which is in the Tenth Volume of his Works, for the use of those he could not come to; but that Book is not written well enough for St. Austin, as Erasmus well observes: But however it is certain that the Clergy were obliged to visit the Sick under their Care, whenever they were called for; nay the Council of Milain, says, etiamsi non vocati invisant, Let them visit tho' they be not called, Conc. 1. Mil. Conc. Tom. 4. And our own Provincial Constitutions, oblige the Rectors and Vicars of Parishes, ut quoties fuerint accersiti celeriter accedant & hilariter ad ægrotos: That when-ever they are called, they go with quickness and readiness to sick Persons. Linw. Prov. Lib. 1. Cap. 11.

(b) The Sick.] The Ancients called sick Persons, who were under such a dangerous Illness, as confined them to the Bed or Couch, by the Name of Clinicks: So St. Hierom, speaking of the good Works of Fabiola, says, Quem nudum, & clinicum, non Fabiola vestimenta texerunt, What naked Person, what Clinick, is not covered with Clothes that Fabiola gave, Hier. in Epitath. Fab. The like he speaks of Paula, Quis inopum moriens, non illius vestimentis obvolutus est? quis Clinicorum non ejus facultatibus sustentatus est? What poor Person dies, and is not wrapped up in Grave-Clothes, which she provides? What Clinick is not maintained out out of her Estate? In the Life of Pope Cornelius, there is mention made of a sick Woman unbaptized, who cried to him; Baptiza me, per Christum te conjuro, & currens qua erat Clinica, implevit vas aquâ & attulit ei, Baptize me, I beseech you for Christ's sake; and, tho' she before lay sick on her Bed, she ran and filled a Vessel with Water, and brought it to him. Neither is this an Ecclesiastical Word, only used by Christian Writers; but 'tis used in this Sense by Pliny in his Natural History: Where speaking of a certain Medicine, he says, it did mederi Melancholicis, Stomachicis, Spasticis, Clinicis, Give relief to Melancholy Persons, to those who had a bad Stomach, to those who had Convulsions, and to Clinicks, or those who were forced to keep their Bed, Plin. Nat. Hist. Lib. 25. Cap. 5. vid. Salmasii ad Ælian. Spartianum Notas, p. 57. verb. in morbum incidit lethalem.

But besides this general Notion of Clinicks, the ancient Ecclesiastical Writers used the Word Clinick in a more particular Sense, to denote such as received Baptism in their Sick-bed, when they were in danger of Dying. Now these were of two Sorts, The first of Catechumens, who having become sincere Believers of the Gospel, and having been considerably instructed in the Principles of the Christian Religion, were designed for Baptism the next solemn time of the Administration thereof; but in the mean time, being seized by a dangerous Distemper, they were baptized upon their Sick-bed, and were upon that account called Clinicks. To the Baptism of such Persons, the ancient Church never shewed any disgust, as not being sought by the Parties themselves to be administred at that time, but they only desiring it as a Case of Necessity, which their unforeseen Sickness had put them upon, they designing otherways to stay till the proper time of the Celebration of it. 'Tis of these that St. Cyprian speaks, Audientes siqui fuerint periculo preventi & in exitu constituti, vigilantia vestra non desit, implorantibus divinam gratiam, misericordia Domini non denegetur. If there be any Catechumens of the number of the Hearers, overtaken by Sickness and in Danger of Dying, let not your Diligence be wanting to assist them; and if they desire the Divine Grace of Baptism, let it not be denied them, Cyp. Ep. 13. The Pious Emperor Theodosius was thus baptized, by Acholius Bishop of Thessalonica, being a Catechumen; he falling into a dangerous Distemper, tho it proved not mortal, Ambr. Orat. de ejus obitu. Socr. Eccl. Hist. Lib. 5.

Another Sort of Clinicks, were such who deferred their Baptism on purpose till their Death; either as having a Touch of the Novatian Heresy, and fancying that Sins committed after Baptism were irremissible, or out of a fond Persuasion that Baptism at Death, would wash away all the Stains of their Life, however gross soever. Some eminent Instances we have of Clinicks, who deferred their Baptism upon one or both of these Accounts; in the Great Emperor Constantine

But the ancient Fathers always cenſured very ſeverely ſuch a voluntary deferring of Baptiſm. They argue againſt this, from the uncertainty of procuring a Miniſter at that extraordinary Exigence; as Gregory Nyſſen does, when he ſpeaks of that young Man, who in great Agony of Mind, cried out, Ὄρη καὶ πέτραι καὶ πηγαὶ ἄνατε τὴν χάριν. Ye Mountains and ye Woods baptize me, ye trees and Rocks and Fountains confer Grace upon me, Greg. Nyſſ. Tom. 2. p. 215. ed. Par. It is of ſuch Clinicks that Nazianzen ſpeaks, when he calls them χειροτόνητοι καὶ χειροβάπτιστοι, Men that are Huckſters of Chriſt, that drive a cunning Trade upon his Religion, Greg. Naz. Orat. 40. Of theſe, St. Chryſoſtom ſays, Τί τὸν ἐγκαταλειφθέντα ἀναμένεις; οὐ δραπέτην, οὐκ ἀνδροφόνον, οὐκ ἐπίλοιπον τῷ Θεῷ ζῶντα; Why doſt thou wait for Baptiſm till thou draweſt thy laſt Breath as a Run-away Slave, as a Maleſactor, and doſt not act like one who ought to live to God? Chryſ. Hom. 23. in Act. And ſo again, πῶς δ' ἀκροᾶται ἔτι λέγω τοῦ τὰς ψυχορραγούσας ἀναπνοὰς, καὶ μηδὲ βαπτίζειν σπεύδοντος; It grieves me, when I ſee People breathing their laſt, and yet are ſo fooliſh to put off their Baptiſm ſtill, Hom. 1. in Act. Nay, the Church was ſo ſevere againſt ſuch Clinicks, that in Caſe they ſurvived the Diſtemper, under which they were baptized, they were not ſuffered afterwards to take upon them the Order of the Prieſthood, Εἰ τοίνυν τὸν βαπτισθέντα, διὰ τὴν προσδοκίαν ἀγαθοῦ τοῦ θανάτου, If any one be Baptized when he was Sick, he cannot be ordained a Presbyter, Conc. Neocæſ. Can. 12. This Cornelius Biſhop of Rome, in his Letter to Fabius, extant in Euſebius, Hiſt. Eccl. Lib. 6. cap. 43. extends to every Degree of the Clergy, μὴ ἐξὸν εἶναι τὸν ἐν κλίνῃ διὰ νόσον προσχυθέντα εἰς κλῆρον παραγενέσθαι, It is not lawful for any one, who has been Baptized as a Clinick to be taken into the Clergy. But however earneſtly the Ancients preſſed all, to avoid deferring Baptiſm to their Sick-bed, yet they would not ſuffer any Believers to die without it. The Fourth Council of Carthage, Can. 34. decrees, Ut ægrotantes, ſi pro ſe reſpondere non poſſint, eum voluntatis eorum teſtimonium ſui periculo proprio dixerint, baptizentur, If Sick-perſons are ſo weak, that they cannot anſwer for themſelves to the Interrogatories, if they have given any Teſtimony of their expreſs deſire of Baptiſm, let them be baptized. Nor did they totally exclude thoſe from Baptiſm, who firſt embraced the Faith in the time of their Sickneſs; only they obliged them, if they recovered to learn afterwards all the Points of Faith, which the Catechumens were inſtructed in before Baptiſm: As we learn from the Council of Laodicea, Τοὺς ἐν νόσῳ παραλαμβάνοντας τὸ φωτισμα, καὶ ὑπὸ ἀνάγκης ἐκμανθάνειν τὴν πίστιν, καὶ γνωσκειν, ὅτι θείας δωρεᾶς κατηξιώθησαν, They obliged who receive Baptiſm in their Sickneſs, in caſe they recover, they to learn the Faith, and to know what renders them fit Partakers of the Divine Gift, Conc. Laod. Can. 47.

(c) When any perſon is ſick.] By the Order of Sarum, when the Prieſt was to perform this Office, he was to habit himſelf, and with the Clerks going along the Street or the Way which leads to the Houſe, ſing the Seven Penitential Pſalms; Imprimis induat ſe ſacerdos ſuperpelliceo cum ſtola, & in eundo dicat cum ſuis Miniſtris ſeptem Pſalmos Penitentiales, cum Gloria Patri & cum Antiphona; which, looking too Pompous and Theatrical, was laid aſide in our Reformation.

(d) When he comes into the ſick-mans preſence.] According to the Order of Sarum, the firſt thing which was to be done, was to erect a Crucifix in the direct view of the Sick-man; Offerenda eſt ei imago Crucifixi & ante conſpectum ejus ſtatuenda, ut redemptorem ſuum in imagine Crucifixi adoret, & paſſionis ejus, quam pro peccatorum ſalute ſuſtinuit, recordetur. And in the next Place he is to be ſprinkled with Holy-Water, Deinde inſpergat infirmum aquâ Benedictâ. Theſe ſilly ſuperſtitious Practices were, upon very good ground, omitted,

‖HEAR us, Almighty and moſt merciful God and Saviour; extend thy accuſtomed goodneſs to this thy ſervant who is grieved with ſickneſs. † Sanctifie, we beſeech thee, this thy fatherly correction to him; that the ſenſe of his weakneſs may add ſtrength to his faith, and ſeriouſneſs to his repentance. That if it ſhall be thy good pleaſure to reſtore him to his former health, he may lead the reſidue of his Life in thy fear, and to thy glory: or elſe give him grace ſo to take thy viſitation, that after this painful life ended he may dwell with thee in life everlaſting, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Amen.

¶ Then ſhall the Miniſter exhort the ſick perſon after this form, or other like.

DEarly beloved, know this, that Almighty God is the Lord of life and death, and of all things to them pertaining, as youth, ſtrength, health, age, weakneſs, and ſickneſs. Wherefore, whatſoever your ſickneſs is, know you certainly that it is Gods viſitation. And for what cauſe ſoever this ſickneſs is ſent unto you, whether it be to try your patience for the example of others, and that your faith may be found in the day of the Lord, laudable, glorious and honourable, to the increaſe of glory and endleſs felicity; or elſe it be ſent unto you, to correct and amend in you whatſoever doth offend the eyes of your heavenly Father; know you certainly that if you truly repent you of your ſins, and bear your ſickneſs patiently, truſting in Gods mercy, for his dear Son Jeſus Chriſts ſake, and render unto him humble thanks for his fatherly viſitation, ſubmitting your ſelf wholly unto his will, it ſhall turn to your profit, and help you forward in the right way that leadeth unto everlaſting life.

chaſtning, God dealeth with you as with ſons; for what ſon is he whom the father chaſtneth not? But if ye be without chaſtiſement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye baſtards, and not ſons. Furthermore, we have had fathers of our fleſh, which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: ſhall we not much rather be in ſubjection unto the Father of Spirits, and live? For they verily for a few days chaſtned us after their own pleaſure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holineſs. Theſe words, good brother, are written in holy Scripture for our comfort and inſtruction, that we ſhould patiently, and with thankſgiving bear our heavenly Fathers correction, whenſoever by any manner of adverſity it ſhould pleaſe his gracious goodneſs to viſit us. And there ſhould be no greater comfort to Chriſtian perſons, than to be made like unto Chriſt, by ſuffering patiently adverſities, troubles, and ſickneſſes. For he himſelf went not up to joy, but firſt he ſuffered pain; he entred not into his glory before he was crucified. So truly our way to eternal joy is to ſuffer here with Chriſt; and our door to enter into eternal life is gladly to die with Chriſt; that we may riſe again from death, and dwell with him in everlaſting life. Now therefore taking your ſickneſs, which is thus profitable for you, patiently, I exhort you in the Name of God, to remember the profeſſion which you made unto God in your baptiſm. And for as much as after this life there is an account to be given unto the righteous Judge, by whom all muſt be judged without reſpect of perſons; I require you to examine your ſelf and your eſtate, both toward God and man; ſo that accuſing and condemning your ſelf for your own faults, you may find mercy at our heavenly Fathers hand for Chriſts ſake, and not be accuſed and condemned in that fearful judgment. Therefore I ſhall rehearſe to you the Articles of our Faith, that you may know whether you do believe as a Chriſtian man ſhould, or no.

DOST thou believe in God the Father Almighty, ‖ maker of Heaven and earth? And in Jeſus Chriſt his only begotten Son our Lord? and that he was conceived by the holy Ghoſt, born of the Virgin Mary; that he ſuffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried; that he went down into hell, and alſo did riſe again the third day; that he aſcended into heaven, and ſitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, and from thence ſhall come again at the end of the world to judge the quick and the dead?

And doſt thou believe in the holy Ghoſt, the holy Catholick Church, the Communion of Saints, the remiſſion of ſins, the reſurrection of the fleſh, and everlaſting life after death?

Child, made Eliezer of Damascus, the Steward of his House, his Heir by Will, Gen. 15. 2. The ancient Way of making a Will among the Greeks, was, for the Person who designed to bequeath any thing, to make his Appearance in the κοινὴ ἐκκλησίᾳ, in the general Assembly of the Citizens, and there to declare, how he would dispose of his Goods when he died, Plut. in Alcib. The Romans in time of War used to make their Wills, in procinctu, in their Arms, before they went out to fight. In time of Peace, the ancient Way was to make a Will, per æs & libram, by a fictitious Sale of the Estate to the Person to whom he bequeathed his Estate, to which the Libripens, or Publick-Teller, and five other Roman Citizens were Witnesses. They had also a Custom to make a Will in the general Assembly of the Tribes, which were called the Comitia calata, which was taken from the Greeks, A. Gellius, Lib. 15. Cap. 27. At last, the way of Writing down the Method, in which the Testator designed to dispose of his Effects, was only used among Persons of Substance; and this either in Tables, Paper, or Parchment, with the Testator's Hand, and the Witnesses subscribed, Inst. Lib. 2. Tit. 10. §. 3. Other poorer Persons made a nuncupatory Will, which answered to the old way of bequeathing by the Brass-money and the Scales, which if declared before seven Witnesses, was valid, Inst. Lib. 2. Tit. 10. §. 14. Now tho' the making of a Will be a secular Matter, which doth not relate to those spiritual Concerns, which the Minister comes to the Sick-man about; yet, considering that the Affairs of Intestates are generally left in so confused a manner, that great Strifes and Contests are raised in Families upon that Occasion, and some Branches of the Family left unprovided for; it is very prudently enjoyned by the Church, that the Minister should mind every one of his settling his Affairs before he dies, as he would avoid not only the embezelling his Effects in expensive Law-suits; but chiefly, that he may not be the Occasion of the Dis-union of the Affections of his dearest Relations.

(g) Such Sick-persons as are of ability to be liberal to the Poor.] By the Canon-Law, every person was obliged to leave such a Proportion of his Estate to charitable Uses, as he bequeathed to each of his Children; hence Christ was esteemed the Second Son, if the Man had but One; the Third Son if he had Two, the Fourth if he had Three, &c. Decret. Part. 2. Caus. 13. Q. 2. This Moiety which belonged to the Church was repositted in the Bishops Hand, and went to the Maintenance of the Clergy of the Church, the Repair of the Fabrick, &c. Our Church has not thought fit, to order the sick rich Person to be moved to give any thing to the Religious Uses, which the Popish Curates for many Ages together chiefly busied themselves about in these Attendances; she only enjoyns him to be put in Mind of the Poor, that out of his abundance which he is now going to leave, he should bestow some liberal Largess on them.

(h) Moved to make a special Confession of his Sins.] Our Church here having considered, That most Men's Consciences are very tender under the fear of approaching Death; that the Reflection on their former Sins, do then most sensibly affect them, and that withal many Scruples do arise in their mind, either concerning some Acts of Injustice, they may in the course of their Lives have committed, and may be at a loss, how to find out proper Methods of Restitution, or concerning some other Sins of a more heinous Nature, which they are not certain they have pursued the most proper Methods in repenting of; I say our Church, upon these Considerations, has ordered that the Sick-person, when he is visited by the Minister, may be moved to make Confession of such Sins, as he finds do trouble his Conscience; to the end, that by the spiritual Advice and Comfort, which he may receive from him, his Mind may be eased. Now it is to be observed, that our Church herein acts very differently from the Church of Rome: For that Church has adjudged it, necessarium jure divino confiteri omnia & singula peccata mortalia, quo tum memoriâ cum debitâ & diligenti præmeditatione habeatur, necessary by the Divine Law, to confess all and single mortal Sins, which any one does remember or can recollect, by due and diligent premeditation, Con. Trid. Can. 7. Our Church only orders Persons to be moved to it; that Church requires it, as necessary for the forgiveness of Sins. Our Church motions special Confession, with relation only to such Sins as disquiet the Person's Mind; that Church absolutely demands it, upon account of all Sins whatsoever. Our Church does this, only with a view of instructing and comforting the Sick-person; but the Church of Rome anathematizes all them who say so? Si quis dixerit, Confessionem tantum esse utilem ad erudiendum & consolandum Pœnitentem, Anathema sit; If any one shall say, that Confession is only profitable for the Instruction and Consolation of the Penitent, let him be accursed, Con. Trid. ib. But, as the Auricular Confession of the Papists, which they hold necessary for all Penitents, and have enjoined to be performed by a particular enumeration of all Sins which can be remembred, is a Doctrine which was never known in the Christian World, till very late Ages of it; so the special Confession of some very affecting Sins, which disquiet the Mind, to be made to the Minister, as a spiritual Physician or Counsellor, (as our Church enjoyns) was practised by the purest Ages of Christianity. In the Latin Church, St. Cyprian says, Peccatores per confessionem, animi sui pondus sacerdotibus exponere, salutarem medelam, parvis scilicet & modicis vulneribus exquirere; That Sinners by Confession, do lay the weight of their Consciences before the Priests, and obtain from them a Cure for little and greater Wounds, Cypr. Ser. de Lapsi. St. Jerom, speaking of such special Confession in case of any Sin that troubles the Conscience, says, Si erubescat ægrotus, vulnus Medico confiteri, quod ignorat medicina non curat, If the Sick-person be ashamed to lay open his Wound before his Physician, it is beyond the Power of Physick to cure that which it does not know, Hier. in 16 Mat. And to the same purpose is that passage of St. Austin, Sacerdos, ut sapiens medicus, sciat curare peccata sua, & posteà aliena vulnera detergere & sanare, non publicare; Let the Priest as a wise Physician, know how to cure his own Sins, and after that, to heal other Men's Wounds, and not to divulge them, ep. ad Jul. If we consult the Writers of the Greek Church, we shall find them delivering the same Doctrine. Origen in several Places says the like; viz. That we must try the Physician, before whom we must lay open the Causes of our Malady; that we should do what he bids us, and follow what he advises, Orig. Psal. 57. That Christ is the Chief Physician, and that the Ministers of the Word are Operators under him, to whom is committed the Discipline of curing Wounds, id. in Psal. 37. Tho' St. Chrysostom does frequently declare, against the necessity of making Secret-Confession, and all Persons being obliged to it, the allowing it in some Cases being sufficient, Ἐνδὸν τὸ συνειδὸς, μόνῳ σοὶ καὶ τῷ πάντα ὁρῶντι Θεῷ, σοῦν τὸν κριτὴν, To take the judgment of our own Conscience, no one being present but the All-seeing God; but in other Cases, he approves of particular Confession, Ἔδωκε τὸ τῆς μετανοίας φάρμακον, &c. God has given us the Physick of Penitence, which is sufficient to blot and wipe out all our Sins, if we know what the Physick is, and how it is to be applied. Now what is the Physick of Penitence, and how is it prepared? First, by a detestation of our Sins, and a Confession of them, Chrys. Hom. 9. in Heb. And in another Place, There is a great deal of need for Christians who are Sick in their Consciences, to submit themselves to the cure of the Priests, that they may be indebted to them for their Recovery, id. de Sacerd. So Gregory Nazianzen, Μὴ ἀναξιοῖς ἐξαγορεύειν σὺ τὴν ἁμαρτίαν, Do not think it much to confess thy Sin, Greg. Naz. Orat. 40. From all which, and many more Passages of Antiquity, it is manifest, that special Confession is not required absolutely as necessary for the forgiveness of Sins, but is only advised, (as our Church does) to receive the spiritual Advice of the Minister, for easing the Conscience in some particular Cases, and for the more profitable performing of Repentance.

(i) Shall absolve him if he humbly and heartily desire it.] Our Church here, in appointing the Absolution to be given to Sick-Persons, has shewed a great deal of Wisdom and Moderation; neither laying aside an ancient Usage, so very comfortable to the Souls of Men, nor yet retaining those Corruptions, which the Romish Church had introduced into it: For it must be observed, that our Church does not look upon the Absolution of the Priest, to be absolutely necessary for the forgiveness of Sins, as the Church of Rome does; which, as being a part of the Sacrament of Penance they hold

(k) OUR Lord Jesus Christ, who hath left power to his Church to absolve all sinners who truly repent and believe in him, of his great mercy forgive thee thine offences: And by his authority committed to me, I absolve thee from all thy sins, In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the holy Ghost. Amen.

Let us pray.

O Most merciful God, who according to the multitude of thy mercies, dost so put away the sins of those who truly repent, that thou remembrest them no more; Open thine eye of mercy upon this thy servant, who most earnestly desireth pardon and forgiveness. Renew in him (most loving Father) whatsoever hath been decayed by the fraud and malice of the devil, or by his own carnal will and frailness; preserve and continue this sick member in the unity of the Church; consider his contrition, accept his tears, assuage his pain, as shall seem to thee most expedient for him. And forasmuch as he putteth his full trust only in thy mercy, impute not unto him his former sins; but strengthen him with thy blessed Spirit, and when thou art pleased to take him hence, take him unto thy favour, through the merits of thy most dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen

¶ Then shall the Minister say this Psalm.

In te Domine speravi. Psal. LXXI.

1. IN thee, O Lord, have I put my trust, let me never be put to confusion: but rid me and deliver me in thy righteousness; incline thine ear unto me, and save me.

2 Be thou my strong hold, whereunto I may alway resort: thou hast promised to help me, for thou art my house of defence, and my castle.

3 Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the ungodly: out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.

4 For thou, O Lord God, art the thing that I long for: thou art my hope even from my youth.

hold necessary, fidelibus quoties post Baptismum in peccata labuntur, for the Faithful as often as they fall into Sin after Baptism, Conc. Trid. sess. 14. Can. 1. Our Church here by the former part of the Absolution-Form, which is precatory; and by addressing to Almighty God for pardon, declares that the Priest does not act judicially and authoritatively: But the Romish Church is of an Opinion directly opposite to this, and has declared our Sense of giving Absolution Heretical; Siquis dixerit Absolutionem Sacramentalem sacerdotis non esse actum judicialem, sed nudum ministerium pronunciandi & declarandi remissa esse peccata confitenti, &c. Anathema sit: If any one shall say, that the Sacramental Absolution of the Priest, is not a Judicial Act, but only a bare Ministerial one, in declaring that the Sins of the Person who confesses are pardoned, &c. Let him be accursed, Conc. Trid. sess. 14. Can. 9. Now this Notion does betoken a great Degree of Arrogance in the maintainers of it, to think that God Almighty should divest himself of his inherent Right of Forgiveness of Sins, which the Scripture says belongs to him alone, Mar. 2. 7. and confer it upon one of his Creatures. But the Constitution of the Church of England, in ordering the Priest to pronounce the Absolution ministerially, and to specifie by whose Authority he pronounces it; and withal, beginning the Absolution-Form with a Prayer to invoke God's Forgiveness, does with a due Submission and Humility, recognize that omnipotent Authority on which it is founded.

(k) Our Lord Jesus Christ.] In stead of the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Form before the Reformation, run in the Name of St. Peter; Absolvimus te, vice Petri Apostolorum Principis, cui Dominus potestatem ligandi atque solvendi dedit, &c. Which being both Superstitious and Blasphemous, was well changed to the Form which we have.

After the Absolution, in the old Popish Form, the Sick-person was enjoyned to kiss the Cross, and then the Priest and all the Company round: Deinde infirmus osculetur Crucem, & Sacerdotem & postea omnes alios per ordinem. Which tending to no good Account, was by our Reformers, with Prudence laid aside.

PARAPHRASE

1. O Lord, thou knowest, that I never reposed any trust, or expectation of deliverance, in any one but thee, let not therefore my hopes be shamefully disappointed; but out of thy love to Justice, deliver me from my cruel Oppressors; hear my humble address to thee, and preserve me from mine Enemies.

2. Be thou my strong Citadel to which I may betake myself, in time of extreme danger; according to the promise which thou hast made to me, to preserve me in my Distress.

3. I beseech thee, O my gracious God, to interpose thy particular Providence, in rescuing me from my unjust and cruel Adversaries.

4. For thou art the object of my hope and most ardent desire; from my youth to this very time, my dependence has always been upon thee.

5 Through thee have I been holden up ever ſince I was born: thou art he that took me out of my mothers womb; my praiſe ſhall alway be of thee.

6 I am become as it were a monſter unto many: but my ſure truſt is in thee.

7 O let my mouth be filled with thy praiſe: that I may ſing of thy glory and honour all the day long.

8 Caſt me not away in the time of age: forſake me not when my ſtrength faileth me.

9 For mine enemies ſpeak againſt me, and they that lay wait for my ſoul, take their counſel together, ſaying: God hath forſaken him, perſecute him, and take him; for there is none to deliver him.

10 Go not far from me, O God: my God, haſte thee to help me.

11 Let them be confounded and periſh that are againſt my ſoul: let them be covered with ſhame and diſhonour, that ſeek to do me evil.

12 As for me I will patiently abide alway: and will praiſe thee more and more.

13 My mouth ſhall daily ſpeak of thy righteouſneſs and ſalvation: for I know no end thereof.

14 I will go forth in the ſtrength of the Lord God: and will make mention of thy righteouſneſs only.

15 Thou, O God, haſt taught me from my youth up until now: therefore will I tell of thy wondrous works.

16 Forſake me not, O God, in mine old age, when I am gray-headed: until I have ſhewed thy ſtrength unto this generation, and thy power to all them that are yet for to come.

17 Thy righteouſneſs, O God, is very high, and great things are they that thou haſt done: O God, who is like unto thee?

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the holy Ghoſt;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever ſhall be: world without end. Amen.

¶ † Adding this.

O Saviour of the world, who by thy croſs and precious bloud haſt redeemed us, ſave us and help us, we humbly beſeech thee, O Lord.

¶ Then

5. Thou haſt ſupported me under all the Dangers and Calamities, which have befallen me ever ſince my Childhood; and ſince thou didſt take me into thy hands to nurſe and cheriſh me, when firſt I came out of my mothers womb, and haſt by thy wonderful providence preſerved me ever ſince, I make no doubt but thou wilt extend the ſame gracious Goodneſs to me, now in my old Age; for all which favours I am eternally obliged to praiſe thee.

6. I am become a frightful ſpectacle to a great many, who are afraid to come near me; but, notwithſtanding this, I will not ceaſe to expect deliverance out of my troubles from thy hand again.

7. O give me once more an opportunity of ſinging praiſes to thee, in the publick Congregation; that I may ſpend the day in the devout worſhip of thee.

8. Thou who haſt vouchſafed me ſo many wonderful deliverances from my troubles, in my younger time; O do not thou throw me out of thy Protection in my old Age, when I have leſs Abilities than I had formerly, to help myſelf.

9. For the mouths of my enemies are open againſt me, by conſtant revilings and calumnies, they are always Bandying together in Plots and Conſpiracies againſt me; they giving out that God my wonted Protector has diſclaimed any farther care of me, by reaſon of my Sins; and that now is the favourable opportunity of getting the Maſtery over me, ſince no one is likely to interpoſe to reſcue me from them.

10. Therefore, O my gracious God, be not thou backward to aſſiſt me, in this extremity of Danger; leave me not without thy care for a minute; but make all imaginable haſte to ſuccour me.

11. Let thoſe that are embarked in this wicked deſign againſt my Soul; be ſo routed and ſhamefully defeated, that they may not be able to attempt the like againſt me for the future.

12. But however thy good Providence ſhall think fit to diſpoſe of me, I will continually perſiſt to truſt in thee; and I doubt not but that thou wilt in thy good time (if thou ſhalt think it beſt for me) give me an opportunity by a freſh Deliverance, to praiſe thy goodneſs as much as I have done heretofore.

13. Thy Juſtice in vindicating the cauſe of thy Servants, ſhall be the continual Theme of my Song; that Juſtice which is ſo boundleſs an Attribute of thine, that no mortal Intellect can fathom, and no Tongue can expreſs.

14. I will now muſter up all my ſtrength, under the conduct of God's Almighty Name, which aſſiſts me and will rely only upon his Goodneſs.

15. Thou, O God, haſt been my Tutor, and the Defender of my weakneſs ever ſince I was a Child, and therefore I ſhall always bear in mind the grateful remembrance of thoſe many miraculous preſervations which thou haſt afforded me.

16. Therefore, O my God, I beſeech thee not to caſt off the care of me, in my declining years, when I have moſt occaſion for thy Protection; but afford me an opportunity of letting the People of this Generation and likewiſe Poſterity, ſee of how extenſive a greatneſs thy goodneſs is.

17. For thy gracious Deliverances of thy Servants are very remarkable, and every one who recounts them, will be neceſſitated to cry out, who is to be compared to our God!

For-

VARIOUS READINGS.

* The Celebration of the Holy Communion for the Sick, 1 B. Ed. 6. where this Title is placed after the Preface, and the Title, The Communion for the Sick, after it.

NOTES.

(a) Communion of the Sick. It has been the conſtant uſage of the Church, in all probability derived from the Apoſtolical times, for Perſons dangerouſly Sick, to receive the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper, for their Spiritual Comfort and Aſſiſtance. Hence this private Communion obtained the Name of ἐφόδιον among the Greeks, and Viaticum among the Latins, i. e. Proviſion as it were laid in, to ſuſtain them in their Journey to the other World. Where the Synaxes, or Communions of the Primitive Chriſtians, were celebrated every Day; thoſe, who by reaſon of their neceſſary Occaſions, or chiefly by Sickneſs, were abſent from the Aſſembly, had the Sacred Elements brought to them. This is plain from Juſtin Martyr, οἱ καλούμενοι παρ' ἡμῖν Διάκονοι, δίδασιν ἑκάστῳ τῶν παρόντων, μεταλαβεῖν ἀπὸ τῆς εὐχαριστηθέντος ἄρτου καὶ οἴνου καὶ ὕδατος, καὶ τοῖς οὐ παροῦσι ἀποφέρουσι. Thoſe who are called Deacons among us, diſtribute to every one of them who are preſent, the conſecrated Bread and Wine mingled with Water, and they carry likewiſe the ſame to thoſe that are abſent, Juſt. Apol. 2. By which Abſents muſt be principally underſtood the Sick, Sickneſs being the moſt reaſonable Excuſe for Abſence. And moreover, ſince the very early Ages of the Church thought, that to partake of the Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper, was abſolutely neceſſary for Salvation, from thoſe Words of our Saviour, Except ye eat the Fleſh of the Son, and drink his Blood, ye have no Life in you, Joh. 6. 53. They were for improving all Opportunities for thoſe Sick-perſons, who never received the Euchariſt at all, as the Catechumens, or thoſe, who had been long excluded from it, as the Excommunicates, might that they partake of it before they went out of the World. Upon which Account the Firſt Council of Orange, held 441. Decrees, that thoſe Perſons who were under Publick Penance, might receive the Lord's-Supper without a Solemn Abſolution, this ſufficing for a Reconciliation Secundum Definitiones Patrum, qui hujuſmodi Communionem congruenter Viaticum nominaverunt, according to the Decrees of the Fathers, who very properly have named this Communion the Viaticum, Conc. Arauſ. 1. Can. 3. And ſo likewiſe the Council of Agatha, held A. D. 506. Viaticum tamen omnibus in mortem poſitis non eſt denegandum. The Viaticum is not to be denied to any at the Point of Death, Conc. Aq. Can. 11. But before theſe Councils the Great Council of Nice Decrees thus in this Affair. Περὶ τῶν ἐξοδευόντων ὁ παλαιὸς καὶ κανονικὸς νόμος φυλαχθήσεται καὶ νῦν, ὥστε, εἴ τις ἐξοδεύοι, τὸν τελευταῖον καὶ ἀναγκαιότατον ἐφόδιον μὴ ἀποστερεῖσθαι. As for thoſe that are going out of the World the old Canon of the Church is to be obſerved ſtill, that the Dying Perſon ſhould not be kept from the laſt and the neceſſary Viaticum. And afterwards adds, That if any Sick-Perſons under Cenſure do receive the Sacrament in their Sickneſs, and afterwards recover, they muſt even then be among the number of thoſe who Communicate only in Prayer, and not in the Sacrament, Conc. Nic. 1. Can. 13. Where we may obſerve, Firſt, That the former part of this Canon ſpeaks generally of all Perſons who are dangerouſly Sick, εἴ τις ἐξοδεύοι, and not only of Perſons under Cenſure, as ſome underſtand it. Secondly, That it is called, ἀναγκαιότατον ἐφόδιον the neceſſary Viaticum, which no one ſhould go out of the World without. Thirdly, This is ſaid to be παλαιὸς καὶ κανονικὸς νόμος an ancient Conſtitution of the Church long before the holding of that Council. Indeed about the Fifth Century the abſolute neceſſity of the Viaticum became to be eſteemed ſo neceſſary for all ſort of Perſons, that many run into ſome wild Conceits in the ſupport of it. Some were for giving the Euchariſt to Perſons after they were dead, cramming it into their Mouths. Which Prophane Abuſe of the Sacred Elements was prohibited by ſeveral Councils. As particularly that of Carthage, Placuit, ut Corporibus defunctorum Euchariſtia non detur, dictum enim eſt a domino, accipite & edite. Cadavera autem nec recipere nec edere poſſunt. It has pleaſed us, That the Euchariſt ſhould not be given to the Bodies of Dead Perſons. For it was ſaid by our Lord, Take and eat. But dead Bodies can neither take nor eat. Conc. Carth. 3. Can. 6. To the ſame purpoſe, and almoſt in the ſame words, ſpeaks the Council of Trullo, Μηδεὶς τοῖς σώμασι τῶν τελευτώντων τὴν Εὐχαριστίαν μεταδιδότω, μήτε λαβέτω φαγέτω, ταῦτα γὰρ νεκρῶν σώματα οὐκ ἀκόλουθον λαβεῖν ἐστιν, οὐδὲ φαγεῖν. Let no one communicate the Bodies of the Dead with the Euchariſt; for it is written, Take eat, but the Bodies of the Dead can neither take nor eat. Conc. Trul. Can. 83. The Notion of the neceſſity of Children's receiving the Lord's-Supper, prevailed moſt in the Fifth Century, after the Publiſhing of the Pelagian Doctrines; and then the Fathers, eſpecially St. Auſtin, vigorouſly maintained this Opinion in oppoſition to thoſe Hereticks. Vid. Aug. contr. duas. Pelag. Epiſt. Op. Tom. 7. Contr. Jul. Lib. 1. De peccat. mer. & remiſſ. Lib. 1. Contr. Pelag. Hypog. Lib. 5. Not but that the Communicating them was ancienter: For St. Ambroſe mentions this in his Book, De his qui myſteriis initiantur; and in his Third Book of the Sacraments, if that Work be his. But then I do not think, that they gave the Sacrament to them as Clinicks, but as to Baptized Perſons: For it was an ancient Practice of the Church, derived probably from the Apoſtolical Times, for Perſons immediately to receive the Sacrament upon their Baptiſm, as is clear from Tertullian, Adv. Marc. Lib. 4. and St. Jerome in his Book againſt the Luciferians. And this is underſtood to be the meaning of being Partakers of the Kingdom of Chriſt in the 48th Canon of Laodicea. δεῖ τοὺς φωτιζομένους μετὰ τὸ βάπτισμα χείρας χείσμασι ἐπιφέρειν, καὶ μετέχειν αὐτοὺς τῆς βασιλείας τοῦ Χριστοῦ. Thoſe that are Baptized ought to receive the Rite of Confirmation, and to be made Partakers of the Kingdom of Chriſt. Conc. Laod. Can. 48. Now when the Children of Believing Parents were Baptized, they received this Sacrament with all the uſual Forms which attended it in Adult Perſons; one of which was to receive the Euchariſt preſently upon it. This Cuſtom of Communicating Children at their Baptiſm, laſted till the Ninth or Tenth Century in the Latin Church: For it is enjoyned by the Ordo Romanus; and Alcuinus, who wrote about the Year 800, in his Book, De Divinis Officiis, cap. de Sabb. Sanct. lays down this fanciful Rule to be obſerved, That Children muſt not ſuck that Morning wherein they are Communicated, but muſt be made to obſerve the Canons which oblige all to Communicate Faſting. But ſoon after the Cuſtom for Infants to receive wore away, as the World became generally Chriſtian, and the Baptiſm of Adults was leſs frequent; for the ſake of whom the Receiving the Euchariſt became an Attendant upon Baptiſm. But to return to the Communion of Clinicks or Infirm Perſons. The Church has eſteemed the Benefit of Receiving the Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper, in the laſt Sickneſs, to be very great. St. Chryſoſtome was of Opinion, that this was a means to procure the Aſſiſtance of the Angels to be ready to waft the good Man's Soul to Heaven. Chryſ. Lib. 6. de Sacr. And we read of ſeveral good Perſons, who were unwilling to depart this Life without the Viaticum. As of Serapion, who deſired a Prieſt in his Sickneſs to give him the Communion; but the Prieſt himſelf being Sick likewiſe, ſent him the Conſecrated Elements by a Lad, which having taken he died in quiet. Lib. 6. Cap. 36. This was about the Year of Chriſt 250. Paulinus in the Life of St. Ambroſe ſays, That one Honoratus was call'd upon by a Divine Voice, to go and give the Sacrament to St. Ambroſe before he died, which was about the Year 397. But in the Capitulars of Charles the Great, there is an expreſs Canon Ut Presbyter ſemper Euchariſtiam, &c. That a Presbyter ſhould always have the Euchariſt prepared, that when any one was Sick, or a Child Weak, he might Communicate him, and that he might not die without the Communion. Lib. 1. c. 161. Our Church in this Affair purſuing her juſt Rules of Moderation, has neither laid aſide the Communion of Clinicks, as ſome have done; nor has laid down, That the Receiving the Sacrament in time of Sickneſs is a thing abſolutely neceſſary, nor yet enjoyned the Prieſt to preſs it upon Sick Perſons; ſhe has only commanded him to be ready to Celebrate a Communion in the Houſe of the Sick Perſon, if he ſhall deſire it, he giving timely notice thereof.

The ORDER for the

(a) Burial of the Dead.

NOTES.

(a) Burial.] To want a decent Burial of the Body, after God has been pleased to call the Soul into a separate State, has been accounted among all Nations a great Mark of Dishonour to the deceased Party. Which occasioned that Remark of the Historian, upon the Great Pompey who was deprived of it. In tantum in illo Viro discordante fortunâ, ut cui multâ victoriâm terra defuerat, deesset ad Sepulturam. He ran such different Courses of Fortune, that, when lately the Earth did not afford room enough for his Conquests, he should not have enough of it to bury him. Vel. Paterc. Hist. Lib. III. This made Cimon the Athenian choose to go to Prison, to satisfie a publick Debt which his Father Miltiades had contracted, that his Body might be interred; which otherways, by the Laws of Athens, it could not. Val. Max. Lib. v. Cap. 4. In like manner the Holy Scriptures do note this, as a very heavy Judgment of God; as for Instance upon Jesabel. And the Dogs shall eat Jesabel in the Portion of Jesreel, and there shall be none to bury her, 2 Kings 9. 10. The same Thing God Almighty threatens, as a very great Calamity, which shall befal the Jews. They shall not be gathered, nor buried, they shall be for Dung upon the Face of the Earth, Jerem. 8. 2. Thou shalt fall upon the open Fields, thou shalt not be brought together, nor gathered, Ezek. 39. 5. Upon this Account, the Relations and Friends of a deceased Person have always looked upon it, as a part of their Duty, decently to dispose of his Body with some solemn Rites, according to the Customs of several Countries, attending it. Thus we read very early in the Sacred History, of Abraham's solemnly interring his Wife Sarah, in a burying-Place which he purchased near Hebron, Gen. xxiii. 19. where he likewise himself was buried, Gen. xxv. 9. as also his Son Isaac: Ibid. Rebecca and Leah, Gen. xliv. 31. and Jacob, Gen. l. 13. Gen. xlviii. 30. Gen. xlix. 39.

But the Hopes of a blessed Immortality, which the Principles of Christianity animate its Professors with, have been the Occasion, that Christians in all Ages have taken a particular care, in shewing all decent Regards to the Body of the Deceased, which they expect to be a sharer with the Soul, in the Happiness of another World. Which Observation is made by Prudentius, according to his Custom, with a most excellent Degree of Spirit and Eloquence.

Now, because a great deal of Affection to deceased Relations, and Zeal for the Christian Religion, in maintaining a principal Article of Faith in opposition to the Scoffs of the Heathen, was demonstrated in celebrating the Funeral-Rites of their departed Friends; I shall set down the most remarkable Customs, which were observed by the Primitive Christians, in the Burial of their Friends.

The first was, for the nigheſt Relation to close the Eyes of the deceased. This is mentioned by St. Chysostom de Prov. Lib. 10. Οὐκ ὁρῶσα ἑστῶσαν τὸν παῖδα παρεστῶτα, καὶ δακρύουσα, καὶ καθαιροῦσα τὰς ὀφθαλμούς, Not seeing her Son standing by her, and weeping, and closing her Eyes. Gregory Nyssen observes it of his Sister Macrina: Οὐδὲ γὰρ ἔδει ἐπιστοφθόνων οἱ ὀφθαλμοὶ χρῄζοντο, Her Eyes did not want any to close them, Greg. Nyss. Prov. Tom. ii. And Dionysius relates it, as a Custom observed in the burial of the Dead among others, καθαιρεῖν τοὺς ὀφθαλμούς: To close the Eyes, Hist. Eccl. Lib. vii. cap. 22. Which indeed was but an ancient Usage of the Grecians, even before Christianity. As is plain by those Verses of Homer, Closing the Eyes.

Ἆ δειλ' ἐ μοὶ σοίγε πάλιν καὶ πότνια μήτηρ
Ὄσσε καθαιρήσουσι θανόντι πέρ.

Unhappy Youth who hadst not, at thy dying,
Father or Mother, to close thy Eyes—— Hom. Il. Λ.

And which is imitated by Virgil,

——— Nec te tua funera Mater
Prodaxi, pressive oculos. ——— Æn. Lib. 9.

Another Custom used by the Ancients in the burial of the Dead was washing the Body. This Custom is recorded in Scripture in the Instance of Tabitha, whom when they had washed they laid in an upper Chamber, Acts 9. 37. And is mentioned by many of the Fathers, as an ancient Usage in the Church. Dionysius of Alexandria speaks of it, where he describes the Persons who took care of Burials which were at Alexandria; λουτροῖς καθαιρομένους Washing the Body.

μᾶσιν, washing them clean, Euseb. Lib. vii. cap. 22. So Tertullian says, Rigere & pallere post lavacrum mortuos; The Bodies of the Dead are cold and stiff after their Washing. Tertul. Apol. Cap. 42. But we must not think that this Custom of Washing took its rise from the Christian Times, for we find it in Use among the Greeks in the time of Socrates. For Plato makes him speak thus before he took his Poison: Δοκεῖ μοι ἤδη βέλτιον εἶναι λουσάμενον πιεῖν τὸ φάρμακον, καὶ μὴ παρέχειν ταῖς γυναιξὶ παρέχειν, νεκρὸν λούειν. I think it is better to wash before I drink my Poison, to save the good Women the labour of Washing me after I am dead. Plat. Phæd.

Embalming with fragrant Oils and Spices.

Another Custom used by the Primitive Christians was, in anointing the Dead with some fragrant Oils and Spices. This they derived from the Jews, and other Asiaticks. For our Saviour interpreted the pouring the Box of Ointment upon his Head to be πρὸς τὸ ἐνταφιάσαι for his Burial, Mark 14. 8. And after his Crucifixion, we find that the Women of Galilee prepared Spices and Ointments, for the embalming his Body. This Example was copied by the Christians in the most early Ages. For Tertullian writes thus of the Christians of his Time. Proinde enim & corpora medicata condimentis Sepulturæ Mausoleis & Monumentis jequestrantur. They prepare the Bodies embalmed with Spices for the Tombs. Tert. Apol. Cap. 42. And to the like purpose Minucius Fælix, makes his Adversary object to the Christians as a Crime, for being too profuse in embalming their Corpses, Non floribus caput nectitis, non Corpus odoribus non statis, reservatis unguenta funeribus. You do not indeed wear Garlands of Flowers upon your Heads; you do not adorn your Bodies with Odors, you reserve all these Perfumes for your Funerals. Cæcil. in Minuc. Fæl.

Wrapping in fine Linnen.

Another Usage among them was, to wrap them in fine White Linnen. This was derived from the Jews, concerning whom Buxtorf writes, "They put upon the dead Man's Body a White "Linnen-Garment, and commonly that which the Person "wore upon the Feast of Expiation, and so lay it upon the "Bier. For 'tis an ancient Custom among the Jews, to "enrobe their Dead in White. But as for other precious "Garments, it is not lawful even for the Kings of Israel "to be buried in them. Buxt. Syn. Jud. Cap. 35. This Custom was followed by those kind Friends who buried our Saviour's Body: And they took the Body of Jesus, and wound it in Linnen-Clothes, John 19. 40. This was imitated by the first Christians, as appears by that of Prudentius,

Candore nitentia claro
Prætendere linea mos est.
'Tis this the Faithful doth excite,
To wrap in Linnens purest White.

And by that Passage of St. Jerom in his Epistle to Innocentius, of the Woman who was seven times struck by the Executioner, Clerici quibus id officium erat, cruentum Limeo Cadaver obvolvunt, & fossam humum lapidibus construentes ex more tumulum parant. Those inferior Orders of the Clergy, to whom it did belong, wrapped the bloody Carcase in Linnen, and paving the Ground which they had digged with Stones, they prepare her a burial-Place. St. Chrysostom writes concerning this, Καινοῖς ἱματίοις αὐτὸς ἀμφιέζομεν, τὸ καινὸν ἔνδυμα τῆς ἀφθαρσίας ἡμῶν μεμηνυκότες. We cloath our Dead with new Garments, which signifie the New Clothing of our incorruptible Nature. Hom. cxvi. Tom. 6.

Singing Psalms.

It was likewise a Custom among the Primitive Christians to sing Psalms at the Burial of their Friends. This is noted by the Author of the Constitutions: Καὶ ἐν ταῖς ἐξόδοις δὲ τῶν κεκοιμημένων ψάλλοντες παρέπεμπε αὐτούς, ἐὰν ὦσι πιστοὶ ὁ κύριος. When the Dead are carried out the Congregation must sing as they bring them along, in case they be Believers in the Lord. Const. Apost. Lib. 6. This Custom Gregory of Nazianzen calls παρεμψάλτεια χαρίζεσθαι: To sing the Office of carrying out the Dead. Greg. Naz. Orat. in Sorer. Of this St. Chrysostom speaks, when he says, Τί βούλονται οἱ ὕμνοι, ἐκεῖ δ' ἀγόμενον δοξάζομεν, καὶ εὐχαριστοῦμεν, ὅτι λοιπὸν ἐστεφάνωται καὶ ἀπελθόντα, ὅτι πόνων ἀπήλλαξεν, ὅτι τῆς δουλείας ἐκείνου ἔχει παρ' ἑαυτῷ, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο ὕμνοι, καὶ διὰ τοῦτο ψαλμῳδίαι, ταῦτα πάντα χαίρουσιν ὄντες; "What mean the Hymns? Do not we praise God and "give thanks unto him, that he has now for the future crowned the deceased Person? For that he has eased him from "his Labours? For that he has removed him from all Fear, "and taken him to himself? Are not the Funeral Hymns in"stituted for this Reason? Is not this the occasion of the "Psalmodies? Now are not all these Things signs of Persons who rejoyce? Chrys. Hom. iv. in Eph. ad Hebr. And he also mentions the Psalms which were used to be sung upon that Occasion. Ἐννόησον τί ψάλλεις ἐκεῖ ἢ καιρὸν ἐκεῖνον. Ἐπίστρεφον ἡ ψυχή μου εἰς τὴν ἀνάπαυσίν σου, ὅτι Κύριος εὐηργέτησέ σε, &c. Think what you sing at that time, Return thou unto thy rest, O my Soul, for the Lord hath bountifully rewarded thee, Psal. 116. 7. And again, I will not fear any Evil, for thou art with me, Psal. 23. 4. Thou art my hiding-place, thou shalt preserve me from Trouble, Psal. 32. 7. St. Jerom in the Life of Paulus Eremita says, that Anthony, Prolato foras Corpore Pauli Hymnos & Psalmos, de Christianâ traditione, decantâsse: Sung Hymns and Psalms, according to the Christian Tradition, as Paul's Body was carried out.

Carrying Lamps and Torches before the Corpse.

There was likewise another Custom which obtained in the ancient Church, and that was the lighting up Lamps and Wax-Candles, to be carried before the Corpse by the Deacons, and other Church-Officers, and sometimes by others of the superior Clergy. This is mentioned by Gregory Nyssen in his Oration at the Funeral of Macrina. Περιῆγε τὸ σῶμα ἑκάτερθεν μέρος διακόνων τε καὶ ὑπερετῶν ἐκ ὀλίγου πλήθους, σὺν ἐπὶ τοῦ σκηνώματος βεστομμένοις, τὰς δὲ κηρὸν λαμπάδας ἐχόντων ἀνδρῶν. On each side there went before a no small Number of Deacons and Church-Officers, proceeding in order, all carrying waxen-Tapers in their Hands. And it is of these which St. Chrysostom speaks, Τὰ βάλοντα αἱ λαμπάδες αἱ φαιδραί; What mean the shining Lamps? Chrys. Hom. iv. in Heb. And in another Place he gives a Rationale of this Usage. Θυμιάματα καὶ κηρίοις αὐτὸς συνοδεύομεν, δείκνυντες, ὅτι τοῦ σκότους βλυθέντες, πρὸς τὸ φῶς τὸ ἀληθινὸν ἐπορεύθησαν. We attend them with Lamps and Torches, because being delivered from this Life of Darkness, they are gone to the true Light. Hom. cxvi. Tom. 6. St. Jerom in his Epitaphium Paulæ says, Sacerdotes Lampadas cereosque præferunt funeri. The Priest's carry Lamps and Wax-Tapers before the Funeral. And in his Epistle to Eustochium de obit. Paulæ, Cum alii Pontifices Lampades Cereosque præferrent; When other of the Bishops carried Lamps and Torches.

Carrying the Body to the Grave on Mens Shoulders.

The ancient Church had likewise a Custom of carrying their Dead to the Grave upon the Shoulders, either of their Friends or of Persons particularly assign'd for that Purpose. This Custom was derived from the Jews, who very religiously observed this Custom. For Maimonides says, That they carry out their Dead upon their Shoulders, and do not suffer it to be drawn in a Hearse. Hah. Efel. Cap. 4. This Office was done by those νεανίσκοι mentioned Act. v. 6. Those young Men who arose and wound Ananias up, and carried him out and buried him. The Christians in the Ages immediately following took up the same Custom, and had Persons particularly designed for that Office in the Church; which in the Counterfeit Ignatius (however an ancient Author) are called κοπιῶντες, Epist. ad Ant. These afterwards were called κοπιατικοί, Epiph. Compend. Doct. fid. Catbol. and were formed into Corporations, at Constantinople having particular Privileges conferred upon them by Justinian. Just. Nov. 59. But sometimes the Friends of the deceased Parties would carry the Body themselves. For we read of St. Basil, that when he was buried, he was χερσὶν ἁγίων ἀνδρῶν, carried by the Hands of Holy Men, which were probably Bishops or Presbyters. Greg. Naz. Orat. xx. For Persons, who had less Relation to the Church than that famous Bishop, were carried by Bishops or Priests of prime Distinction: As for Instance, Macrina, Sister of Gregory Nyssen. For speaking of this Funeral to Olympius, he says, While these Matters were ordering with Diligence, I went under one Part of the Bier, and called to him to support the other. The other Part was sustained by two other eminent Men of the Clergy. Greg. Nyss. And St. Jerom writes, that Paula was carried to Burial by Bishops, cervicem feretro subjicientibus, Putting their Necks under the Bier. Hier. in Epitaph. Paul.

Doles to the Poor.

They had another Custom, which was, for the Poor to be present at their Funerals, who had considerable Doles given them thereat, according to the Ability of the Deceased. Orig. in Job. Ambr. Oratio fun. in mort. Satyri. Chrys. xxxii. Hom. in Mat. xxvii. Hom. in 2 Epist. ad Cor.

NOTES.

(b) Unbaptized.] Our Church prohibiting here the Burial-Office to be uſed for Perſons who Die Unbaptized, is but agreeable to ancient Practice of the Church. For the firſt Council of Bracara, which was held A. D. 563, determines the like. Item, placuit ut Catechumenis ſine Redemptione Baptiſmi defunctis, neque oblationis commemoratio, neque pſallendi impendatur officium. It ſeemeth good to us, that as for Catechumens who Die before they have Redemption of Baptiſm, there ſhould be no Oblations or Commemorations made for them, neither ſhould the Office of Singing be uſed at their Funerals. Con. 1. Brac. Can 35.

(c) Excommunicate.] What is here ordered, is likewiſe decreed by the forementioned Council of Bracara. Nulla pro illis in Oblatione Commemoratio fiat, neque cum Pſalmis ad ſepulturam eorum Cadavera deducantur, qui pro ſuis ſceleribus puniuntur. Let no Commemoration be made for them in the Oblation, nor let their Bodies be brought to the Grave with ſinging of Pſalms, who are puniſhed for their Crimes. Con. Brac. Can. 16. Which I take to relate to Spiritual Puniſhment, as well as Temporal; and to prohibit Sepulture to be given to Excommunicates as well as Malefactors. But however, the Canon-Law in this reſpect is more expreſs, and quotes the ancient Canons for it. Sacris Canonibus inſtitutum, ut quibus non communicamus vivis, non communicemus defunctis: ut careant Eccleſiaſticâ ſepultura, &c. It is enjoyned by the ancient Canons, that we ſhould not communicate with thoſe dead, with whom we did not communicate living, &c. Decretal. Lib. iii. Tit. 39. cap. 12. And again, Si ab aliorum Corporibus diſcerni poterunt exhumari debent, et procul ab Eccleſiaſticâ ſepultura jactari. If their Bodies can be diſtinguiſhed from other Perſons, they ought to be dug up, and to be thrown out of the Eccleſiaſtical Burying-Place. ib. And again, Si quos in excommunicatione defunctos in Cæmeteriis Eccleſiarum ſepelierint, eos extra Cæmeteria ejiciant. Decretal. Lib. v. Tit. 33. cap. 5.

(d) Laid violent Hands.] The denying an honourable Sepulture to Self-Murderers, has been the uſage of moſt Civilized Nations. Joſephus informs us, that it was a Cuſtom among his Country-men the Jews, Τὸν γὰρ ἀνελόντας ἑαυτοὺς, θάψαι μὲν ἀμὴν μέχρις ἡλίου δύσεως ἄταφους κρύπτειν ἔνειναν, καὶ τοι καὶ πολεμίους θάπτειν θεμιτὸν ἡγούμενοι. There is a Law among us, that thoſe who lay violent Hands upon themſelves, after Suns ſet ſhould be caſt away without Burial, tho' it be lawful among us to Bury even our Enemies, Joſep. Bell. Jud. Lib. 3. The ſame uſage was Eſtabliſhed by Law among the Romans. For Servius in his Notes upon the XII. Book of Virgils Æneis, ſays. Sane ſciendum eſt, quod cautum fuerit in Pontificalibus Libris, ut qui laqueo vitam finiſſet inſepultus abjiceretur: unde bene ait informis leti, quaſi mortis infamiſſimæ. It muſt be obſerved, that the Pontifical Books enjoin, that thoſe who hang themſelves muſt be thrown away Unburied: There the Poet well calls that INFORME LETHUM, becauſe it is a diſgraceful Death. And Pliny in his Natural Hiſtory relates it, as an ancient Law made by Tarquinius Priſcus, That the Bodies of thoſe who made away with themſelves, Crucibus, ſpectanda civibus, ſimul & feris volucribuſque devorandæ affigi, ſhould be faſtened upon Croſſes, and made a Spectacle to all the Citizens, and expoſed to be eaten by wild Beaſts and Birds. Plin. Nat. Hiſt. Lib. xxxvi. cap. 15. And by the Chriſtian Canons it was decreed, Ut qui ſibipſis aut per ferrum, aut per venenum, aut per præcipitium, aut per ſuſpendium, aut quolibet modo violentiæ inferunt mortem, nulla pro illis in oblatione commemoratio fiat, neque cum Pſalmis ad ſepulturam eorum cadavera deducantur. That they, who work their own Death either by Sword, or Poiſon, or by throwing themſelves down headlong, or by Hanging, or by any other violent Courſe, ſhould not have Commemorations of them in the Oblation, nor have their Bodies carried to the Grave with ſinging of Pſalms. Conc. Bra. Can. 34.

Theſe are the only Caſes in which our Church refuſes the Office of Burial to be read, ſo that all other Caſes in which the Canon-Law forbids Eccleſiaſtical Burial are ſuſpended: As in caſe of Hereſy tho' proved after Death, Decr. xxiv. qu. 2. Uſury Decr. ii. Conſ. 34. 42. not confeſſing once a Year, or before Death, Decr. ii. Cauſ. 13. qu. 2.

The ſame reaſon is given by St. Chryſoſtom. Διὰ τοῦτο καὶ αὐτὸ ὁ τόπος κοιμητήριον ὠνόμασαι, ἵνα μαθης τετελευτηκότες, καὶ οὐκαῦθα κείμενοι ἐ τεθνήκασιν, ἀλλὰ κοιμῶνται καὶ καθεύδουσι. For this Reaſon, the place is called a Cæmetery, that you may learn that the departed who are laid here, are not dead but ſleep and ſlumber, Hom. lxxxi. Tom 5.

(e) Church-yard.] The Church-yards were called by the ancient Chriſtians Κοιμητήρια, Cæmeteries, or Sleeping-places, from the Greek word κοιμάω, which ſignifies to ſleep, dying being called ſo in the Scripture-Language. Lazarus our Friend, κεκοίμηται ſleepeth, John 11. 11. Πάντες μὲν οὐ κοιμηθησόμεθα, We ſhall not all ſleep, 1 Cor. 15. 51. Therefore St. Jerom ſays, Eos dormientes appellari, quia certum eſt eos reſurrecturos. The Reaſon of their being ſaid to ſleep is, becauſe it is certain they muſt riſe again. Hier. ad Theſs. 4. The Jews, for the ſame Reaſon, call the Burying-place Beth Cajim, the Houſe of the Living; to demonſtrate their Aſſurance of a Reſurrection, and the Exiſtence of ſeparate Souls. Stichard de Jur. Heb. cap. 6. To ſet places aſide for this uſe is very Ancient, as appears from Abraham's purchaſing a Field of the Sichemites, to Bury his Family in, Gen. xxii. It was a publick Burying-place where Joſiah turned himſelf and ſpied the Sepulchres which were in the mount, 2 King xxiii. 16. And there is mention made of a Royal Burial-place, where Uzziah was Buried with his Fathers in the Field of the Burial, which belonged to the Kings, 2 Chron. xxvi. 23. After the Chriſtians grew numerous, they ſet aſide particular places, for the Burying their Dead. And, becauſe they would avoid the Inſults and Injuries, which might be given to the Bodies of the Perſons buried there, by the Heathens, they uſually contrived them to be great Vaults under Ground. Baronius in his Annals ſays, that he himſelf had the curioſity to go into one of them, which they called the Cæmetery of Priſcilla then lately diſcovered, 3 Miles from Rome; which he ſays, for the largeneſs of it, and its diverſe windings, he might call a ſubterraneous City. Bar. An. Tom. ii. ad an. 130. But long before him Sir Jerom has, from his own experience, likewiſe given a moſt graphical Deſcription of one of theſe ſubterraneous Cæmeteries. Dum eſſem Romæ Puer, &c. "When I was a Boy at "Rome, learning the liberal Arts, I was wont with other of my "School-fellows of the ſame Age and the ſame Religion, upon Sundays to go amongſt the Sepulchres of the Apoſtles and "Martyrs; and often to go down into the Crypts or Vaults "which were digged deep into the Earth, and had on both "ſides, as you enter in, the Bodies of the Dead placed in the "Walls: And all about was ſo dark, as if that Prophetical "Place of the Pſalmiſt was literally compleated: Let them go "down quick into Hell. A very little light let down from above "did temper the Horror of the darkneſs, ſo that you would not "take it for a Window but a Hole. But in the time of Conſtantine the Great, there was a perfect change of the face of the Chriſtian Affairs; and they, who were forced lately to lurk in their ſubterraneous Caverns to perform their Worſhip, had now the favour granted them of Building ſtately Churches, ſometimes upon the Area of their former Cæmeteries, where the Martyrs Tombs were, or if in other Places within the Cities, they had Burying-places allotted them out of the Walls, at a convenient diſtance from the Churches, *Euſeb. ## At the Burial of the Dead.

S.Joh.11.25, 26. I Am the Reſurrection and the Life, ſaith the Lord: He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet ſhall he live. And whoſoever liveth and believeth in me, ſhall never die.

Job 19.25, 26, 27. I Know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he ſhall ſtand at the latter Day upon the Earth. And though after my Skin Worms deſtroy this Body; yet in my Fleſh ſhall I ſee God: Whom I ſhall ſee for my ſelf, and mine Eyes ſhall behold, and not another.

1 Tim. 6.7. Job 1.21. WE brought nothing into this World, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; bleſſed be the Name of the Lord.

¶ After they are come into the Church, ſhall be read one or both of theſe  Pſalms following.

Dixi, cuſtodiam, Pſal. xxxix. 1. I Said I will take heed to my ways: That I offend not in my Tongue.

2. I will keep my Mouth as it were with a Bridle: while the Ungodly is in my ſight.

3. I held my Tongue, and ſpake nothing: I keep my Silence, yea even from good Words; but it was Pain and Grief to me.

4. My heart was hot within me, and while I was thus muſing, the fire kindled: and at the laſt I ſpake with my Tongue.

5. Lord,

Sepulchrorum loca ſacerdotali benedictione conſecrata fuiſſet: That the Burial places were conſecrated by the Bleſſing of the Prieſt. Greg. Tur. de gloria Conf. cap. 106. But ſtill the Cœmeteries were the only Places, where the Corpſes were Buried, no one preſuming till many Ages after to bury in the Church. The Chriſtian Emperors were only permitted to be Buried in the Church-Porch; which St. Chryſoſtom ſays was a great Honour done to Conſtantine, to be Buried at the Doors of the Temple, and to be Porter to the Fiſher. Chryſ. Hom. 66. ad Top. Ant. So were both the Theodoſius's and Arcadius Buried in the Church-Porch. It is but natural to think that when the Emperors were deſirous to be Buried in the Church-Porch; other Perſons of lower Quality would ſtrive to come as near the Church as they might. And therefore, about the beginning of the fifth Century; ſome Lay-Perſons were permitted to be Buried in the Court, which was before the Church, (or as it was in ſome places) round it. But this was to be obtained only by leaving ſomething to the Church: As is plain by the Council of Vaiſon held A. D. 442. De ſepulchris et hominibus ſepeliendis nihil muneris exigant, niſi fortè qui ſepelitur vivens juſſerit Eccleſiæ in cujus atrio ſepelitur. Let nothing be demanded for Graves or for Burying, unleſs a Perſon leaves ſomething to the Church, for being Buried in its Court. Con. Vaſ. Can. 3. But after this the Laws both Spiritual and Civil run againſt Burying within the Church. The Council of Bracara held A. 563, Decrees. Ne Corpora defunctorum intra Baſilicas ſanctorum tumulentur, ſed fiant omnes ſepulturæ extra Civitatem, vel etiam ſi neceſſe ſit deforis circa murum Baſilicæ: That the Bodies of the Dead ſhould not be buried within the Churches of the Saints, but that all Buryings ſhould be without the City, or if need be, abroad about the Wall of the Church, Con. Brac. Can. 36. To the like Purpoſe the Council of Tribur held, A. D. 895. Can. 17. But there being before that time ſeveral Perſons who had obtained to be buried in the Church, This Council enjoins, that all the Tombs be levelled with a ſmooth Pavement over them, ſo that no ſign of a Grave may appear; but however ſpares the caſting out the Bodies. There was a Law publiſhed in the Theodoſian Code. Nemo Apoſtolorum vel Martyrum ſedem humanis Corporibus exiſtimet eſſe conceſſam. Let no one think, That the Seat of the Apoſtles and Martyrs is granted for the burying of humane Bodies, 1 Cod. Tit. 1. And it is further enjoined by Charles the Great in the firſt Book of his Capitulars, Nullus deinceps in Eccleſiâ mortuum ſepeliat. Let no one hereafter bury any Dead in the Church. But ſoon after this, the Doctrine of the Sacrifice of the Maſs coming in Vogue, and the Pope's Power increaſing, theſe Laws loſt their Force; every one then being deſirous to have his dead Body laid as nigh the Altar as he could where the Maſs was performed; and the Popo and other Officers under him having the Diſpenſing Power over the Canons in their Hands, any one might be buried in the Church or Chancel, who would pay for it. This made all the remote Cemeteries to be deſerted; for then People of the ordinarieſt Quality would be Buried in the Atrium Baſilicæ, the Court about the Church; ſo that all Churches which were Erected in the Ninth or Tenth Centuries and afterwards, had the Cemeteries on courſe cloſe to the Church. The Fees too for Licenſe to Bury within the Church being but ſmall, made all Perſons of tolerable Quality to be Interred there; ſo that, for theſe many Ages, the Place of Chriſtian Worſhip has been a Charnel-houſe again; not out of neceſſity, as was the caſe of the firſt Chriſtians, but out of a fooliſh Superſtition which Popery firſt began, and Proteſtantiſm, in ſo conſiderable a ſucceſſion of time, has not been able to root out of the Minds of Men.

VARIOUS READINGS.

 Theſe Pſalms were inſerted in the laſt Review.

PARAPHRASE on Pſal. 39.

1. I Made a Reſolution to uſe all the Circumſpection I poſſibly could in my Life and Converſation; eſpecially to take care that I might not, by any imprudent Word, which might drop from me in haſte, give my Adverſary occaſion againſt me.

2. Nay, I was reſolved to be as ſparing of every Word I ſaid, whilſt my wicked Enemies were by, as if I had put a Bridle upon my Tongue.

3. And for a conſiderable time I did not utter one Syllable; I was ſo obſtinately reſolved to be ſilent, that I refrained not only from making Reflections upon my Enemies, but from my uſual religious Diſcourſe, and the Vindication of my righteous Cauſe: But this keeping my Sorrow to my ſelf was ſo far from eaſing it, that it did greatly increaſe it.

4. For my Grief being thus pent up within me, and no Vent allowed it, and being moreover chafed by my Reflections it blazed out into ſuch a Flame within my Breaſt, as forced me to break my deſigned Silence in theſe Words;

5. Lord,

5. Lord, let me know mine end, and the number of my days: that I may be certified how long I have to live.

6. Behold, thou haſt made my days as it were a ſpan long: and mine age is even as nothing in reſpect of thee, and verily every Man living is altogether vanity.

7. For Man walketh in a vain ſhadow, and diſquieteth himſelf in vain: he heapeth up riches, and cannot tell who ſhall gather them.

8. And now, Lord, what is my hope: truly my hope is even in thee.

9. Deliver me from all mine offences: and make me not a rebuke unto the foolish.

10. I became dumb and opened not my mouth: for it was thy doing.

11. Take thy plague away from me: I am even conſumed by means of thy heavy hand.

12. When thou with rebukes doſt chaſten Man for Sin, thou makeſt his beauty to conſume away, like as it were a moth fretting a garment: every man therefore is but vanity.

13. Hear my prayer, O Lord, and with thine ears conſider my calling: hold not thy peace at my tears.

14. For I am a ſtranger with thee: and a ſojourner as all my fathers were.

15. O ſpare me a little, that I may recover my ſtrength: before I go hence, and be no more ſeen.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghoſt;
As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever ſhall be: world without end. Amen.

Domine, refugium. Pſal. XC.

1. LOrd, thou haſt been our refuge: from one generation to another.

2. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever the earth and the world were made: thou art God from everlaſting, and world without end.

3. Thou turneſt Man to deſtruction: again thou ſaiſt, Come again, ye children of men.

4. For

PARAPHRASE.

5. Lord, I beſeech thee to give me Grace to make ſober Reflections upon the ſhortneſs of humane Life, and that applying this to wiſe Purpoſes, I may fit and prepare myſelf for a better and a more durable State.

6. Nay, I am already taught by my own Experience, that my Life is ſo ſhort a Duration, that it need not be meaſured by Reeds or Cubits, for a Span or Palm, the ſhorteſt of Meaſures, will over-mete it: But if we compare it with the Eternity of thy Duration, O God, it is but a mere nothing, ſuch a poor, frail and empty thing is Man.

7. Nay ſo great a degree of Vanity and Emptineſs is there in human Nature, that our Life ſeems to be nothing elſe but a mock-ſhew, without any thing of Reality, or the leaſt Solidity in it; and it is to no Purpoſe, that Men fatigue and torment themſelves in the purſuit of ſuch airy Bubbles, and drudge and tormoil all their Life, to get an Eſtate to be enjoy'd by they know not who.

8. Since therefore the Vanity of human Life is ſo great, our Time ſo ſhort, our Enjoyments ſo empty, and the attaining of them ſo laborious, there is no hopes to find Happineſs here, or to expect Deliverance from Things ſo uncertain; the only firm Foundation of Hope, which I can find, is in thee, O God.

9. O Lord I beſeech thee to pardon thoſe many Violations of thy holy Laws, that I have been guilty of, which have expoſed me to the Puniſhment thou haſt been pleaſed to lay upon me, and let not my irreligious Enemies take occaſion from my Sufferings, to make wrong Reflections upon thy Judgments.

10. I have not repined, nor made any indecent Reflections upon my Sufferings: For I know that they were ſent me by thy Directions, all thoſe providential Diſpenſations were moſt Wiſe and Good.

11. O Lord, I beſeech thee do not lay ſuch ſevere Strokes upon me; as thou haſt done by this Affliction, for thy Hand is ſo heavy, that I am almoſt killed by the Blows given by it.

12. For when thou, by ſending a violent Diſtemper, doſt chaſten a Man for his Sins, thou makeſt the Comelineſs of his Perſonage, tho' never ſo grateful, to decay and to look as unſightly as a Moth-eaten Garment. This is another Argument, to ſhew the Vanity of human Nature.

13. Now ſince, O Lord, I patiently ſubmit to thy moſt juſt Correction, I with Tears beſeech thee at length to ſpare me, and to remove them from me.

14. For though I may ſeem a conſiderable Perſon in this World, yet I poſſeſs nothing but what I hold of thee. For as the holy Prophet Moſes ſays, The Land is thine, and we are but Strangers and Sojourners with thee, Lev. 25. 23. As was the Caſe of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob.

15. O therefore I pray thee, grant ſome ſhort Relaxation of my Puniſhment, that during that Reſpite I may have an Opportunity of recovering my Strength, which is now almoſt entirely decay'd and ſpent; for if thou continueſt upon me thy uninterrupted Puniſhment, thou wilt kill me, and ſend me out of the World.

PARAPHRASE on Pſal. 90.

1. O Lord, we addreſs ourſelves to thee under all our Misfortunes and Sufferings, in Conſideration that thou haſt always been as it were a Caſtle, and a Place of Retreat from Danger to us and all our Predeceſſors.

2. But why do I ſpeak what thou haſt been within the Compaſs of a few Years, or a ſhort Hiſtory of Time, ſince thou art the Eternal God who hadſt a Being infinitely before the Creation of the World, long before the Mountains put their Heads from out the circumfuſed Ocean, and diſcovered dry Land, when there was nothing appearing but Water; before the Creation, even of the very Chaotick Maſs of Earth and Water, thou didſt enjoy eternal Exiſtence.

3. As thou by thy creative Power doſt give a Being to all Things, and diſtribute Life and Motion, as to what Degrees and Extent thy Wiſdom doth think fit; ſo as ſoon as thou ſpeakeſt the Word their Breath is extinguiſhed, and thou takeſt back thoſe Souls to thyſelf, which thou didſt before unite with human Bodies.

4. For a thouſand years in thy ſight are but as yeſterday: ſeeing that is paſt as a watch in the night.

5. Aſſoon as thou ſcattereſt them, they are even as a ſleep: and fade away ſuddenly like the graſs.

6. In the morning it is green, and groweth up: but in the evening it is cut down, dried up, and withered.

7. For we conſume away in thy diſpleaſure: and are afraid at thy wrathful Indignation.

8. Thou haſt ſet our miſdeeds before thee: and our ſecret ſins in the light of thy countenance.

9. For when thou art angry all our days are gone: we bring our years to an end, as it were a tale that is told.

10. The days of our age are threeſcore years and ten, and though Men be ſo ſtrong that they come to fourſcore years: yet is their ſtrength then but labour and ſorrow, ſo ſoon paſſeth it away, and we are gone.

11. But who regardeth the power of thy wrath: for even thereafter as a Man feareth, ſo is thy diſpleaſure.

12. So teach us to number our days: that we may apply our hearts unto wiſdom.

13. Turn thee again, O Lord, at the laſt: and be gracious unto thy ſervants.

14. O ſatisfie us with thy mercy, and that ſoon: ſo ſhall we rejoice and be glad all the days of our life.

15. Comfort us again, now after the time that thou haſt plagued us: and for the years wherein we have ſuffered adverſity.

16. Shew thy ſervants thy work: and their children thy glory.

17. And the glorious Majeſty of the Lord our God be upon us: proſper thou the work of our hands upon us, O proſper thou our handy work.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the Holy Ghoſt;

As it was in the beginning, is now and ever ſhall be: world without end. Amen.

¶ Then

PARAPHRASE.

4. It muſt be confeſſed, that our preſent Life is miſerably ſhort: But tho' Men ſhould live as long as they did formerly before the Flood, to the Extent of near a Thouſand Years, yet this long Life would be but a Point of Time in Compariſon of thy eternal Duration, and when it ſhould be worn out, it would look no longer a Tract of Time than Yeſterday, or the three Hours of the laſt Nights Watch.

5. When thou calleſt them off the Stage of Life, all the time of their being here, will ſeem to have been but a Dream, of which there is nothing ſubſtantial remaining, and which they can carry along with them; nay the Graſs of the Field is not a more tranſitory Thing than human Life, which it is a juſt Reſemblance of.

6. Which flouriſhes in the Morning with a delightful Verdure, but being cut down by the Mower's Sythe, before the Evening is grown withered and dry.

7. And this is our Condition: We might by the Courſe of Nature, many of us, live a conſiderable Number of Years; but yet we have ſo provoked thee by our Sins as to cut us off in the prime of our Age, and not ſuffer any of us to live to enter into Canaan.

8. By this juſt Puniſhment of thine thou makeſt us to have a due Senſe of our Guilt, and to ſee how highly we have provoked thee, bringing to our Remembrance many ſecret Sins, which we had forgotten, by ſending to us this awakening Judgment.

9. For this Anger of thine which we have provoked, by our murmuring and repining at the Diſpenſations of thy Providence, has cut off out Lives which might have continued for many Years, and are now at an End, as a Story told, or the Word which a Man has ſpoke, that vaniſhes into the Air, and never returns again.

10. But tho' thou ſhouldeſt have ſuffered us to have lived to the ordinary extent of human Life, this would have been but about Seventy Years, or if thou hadſt ſuffered us to have run out our Time to the Age of Fourſcore Years; yet ſo many Pains and Infirmities would have attended that Age of Life, that it would have been but an uncomfortable Condition to have lived in it: Nay, that in a very little time would have come to an end too, and we muſt ſhortly have paſſed off to another World, for all the Addition of thoſe few Years.

11. But notwithſtanding theſe awakening Judgments which God has inflicted upon us, Numb. 25. 1, 2. Who is the Man amongſt us that makes a right Uſe of, and is inſtructed by his Sufferings, to take warning againſt Sin for the future? and yet it is very certain, that God's Vengeance will be yet ſeverer againſt thoſe who are Incorrigible under their Sufferings, and do not learn to reverence and obey him under his Chaſtiſement.

12. Wherefore we beſeech thee, O Lord, to give us Grace that we may make a proper Uſe of this Puniſhment of the ſhortening of our Lives, which thou haſt been pleaſed to lay upon us, that we conſidering how little a time we have to ſtay in this World, by doing our Duty in the Performance of all due Acts of Vertue and Piety, may wiſely make Proviſion for the next.

13. But if it be thy good Pleaſure to reverſe this ſevere Sentence which is going out againſt us, look upon us with thy former favourable Aſpect, and let us partake of the ancient Benefits and Favours thou waſt wont to beſtow upon us.

14. Let thy bountiful Goodneſs afford us a ſpeedy and extraordinary Act of Kindneſs; that as we have hitherto lived Lives of great Affliction, we may ſpend the remaining part of them in Pleaſure and Satisfaction:

15. And whereas hitherto thou haſt exerciſed us, under a continual ſeries of Affliction by Slavery in Egypt, and hard travelling in the Barren Wilderneſs, thou wouldeſt at laſt afford us the Satisfaction and Comfort of ſpending our declining Years, and reſting our wearied Limbs in the Promiſed Land.

16. But however, if we by our Sins have not deſerved to partake of that Bleſſing, yet we beſeech thee to finiſh the great Work which thou haſt undertaken for thy Servants, in bringing them to the Land of Canaan, and let our Children at leaſt partake of the Satisfaction of that happy Place.

17. Let the ſerene and beautiful Light of God's gracious Countenance ſhine upon us, and may he proſper our Arms, and all our other Endeavours, in getting Poſſeſſion of that pleaſant Country which he has granted to us.

¶ Then ſhall follow the Leſſon taken out of the fifteenth Chapter of the former Epiſtle of Saint Paul to the Corinthians.

1 Cor. xv. 20. I. NOW is Chriſt riſen from the dead, and become the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept. For ſince by man came death, by man came alſo the reſurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even ſo in Chriſt ſhall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Chriſt the firſt-fruits; afterward they that are Chriſt's, at his coming. II. Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he ſhall have put down all rule, and all authority and power. For he muſt reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The laſt enemy that ſhall be deſtroyed is death: For he hath put all things under his feet. But when he ſaith all things are put under him, it is manifeſt that he is excepted which did put all things under him. And when all things ſhall be ſubdued unto him, then ſhall the Son alſo himſelf be ſubject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all. III. Elſe what ſhall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead riſe not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead? And why ſtand we in jeopardy every Hour? I proteſt by your rejoycing, which I have in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, I die daily. If after the manner of men I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus, what advantageth it me, if the dead riſe not? Let us eat and drink, for to morrow we die. Be not deceived, evil communications corrupt good manners. Awake to righteouſneſs and ſin not; for ſome have not the knowledge of God. I ſpeak this to your ſhame. IV. But ſome Man will ſay, How are the dead raiſed up? and with what Body do they come? Thou fool, that which thou ſoweſt is not quickned, except it die. And that which thou ſoweſt, thou ſoweſt not that body that ſhall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of ſome other grain. But God giveth it a body, as it hath pleaſed him, and to every Seed his own body. V. All

PARAPHRASE on the Leſſon.

I. But now Chriſtians have no reaſon to be under any degree of Deſpondency, during the preſent hardſhips which they ſuſtain, as fearing they ſhall never riſe again to be rewarded for them; for Chriſt by his riſing again has given us Demonſtration, of the poſſibility of a Reſurrection: For, as by the conſecrating the firſt-Fruits under the Law, the whole Harveſt is Hallowed, ſo the Reſurrection of Chriſt is an infallible Argument, that all of us likewiſe ſhall riſe again. For as by one Man Death came into the World, ſo by another, immortal Life made its entry. As all the Progeny of Adam, by ſharing of his Nature, were involved under the Sentence of temporal Death; ſo all the true Believers on Jeſus Chriſt ſhall riſe again to immortal Life. But however, there is to be a conſiderable interval of time, betwixt the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, and that of his patient Followers; Chriſt, as being the firſt-Fruits of Immortality, ought to riſe firſt, as we ſee he has done, and then at his ſecond Coming, his pious Servants.

II. Then ſhall come on the final Diſſolution of this World, when all Powers, how great ſoever, ſhall have ſubmitted to his Authority. For it is decreed by God, Pſal. 110. that the Meſſias his Kingdom ſhall laſt, till all things be ſubjected to him. Now the laſt and moſt ſtubborn Enemy, which ſhall remain unſubdued by him, is Death; but that alſo ſhall at length give way to his Power. But it muſt always be expected, that, when it is ſaid, all things ſhall be ſubject to Chriſt, God the Father, who put thoſe things into his Power, muſt not be included among them.

III. But whereas ſome of you queſtion the real Reſurrection of the Dead, and turn it into an Allegorical riſe from Sin, how fooliſh an Opinion this is, and how directly contrary to Chriſtian Principles, be ye yourſelves judges. For to what purpoſe are all Perſons Baptized, into the Doctrine of the Reſurrection of the Dead, by being plunged into the Water, and riſing out of it again, they at the ſame time making a ſolemn Profeſſion of their Belief of this Doctrine, if there be no ſuch a thing as a Reſurrrection of the Dead? And why ſhould we Chriſtians be ſuch ſilly People, as not only by our Religion to forfeit all the ordinary Conveniences of this Life, but to undergo ſo many Hardſhips and Perſecutions for the ſake of Chriſt, if there be no Reſurrection to an happier State, where recompence may be made us for our ſufferings here? I ſolemnly proteſt by all the Joy I receive, by having made you Converts to our holy Religion, I am continually in Danger of Death for the Sake of the Goſpel of Chriſt: Why then, I am the moſt imprudent Perſon in the World, voluntarily to run myſelf into it, if I did not expect a Reward in a glorious Reſurrection. And whereas ye cannot but have heard, what a bodily Conflict I had with thoſe Beaſts of Men, the Rabble of the City of Epheſus, in their Uproar againſt me and my Companions, &c. Act. xix. Now to what purpoſe ſhould I have run my ſelf into that Danger, from which I could expect no Advantage in this World, if there were no Reſurrection to recompenſe me in the next? Unleſs I were verily perſwaded of a future State, wherein ſuffering Piety was to be rewarded, I could not ſo much blame you for taking up with that Epicurean Principle, which ſome of you have embraced; To enjoy the Satisfactions of this World to the full, ſince Death puts a Period to our Being. But this Conſequence is grounded on a wicked Opinion, taught by the worſt Sect of Men amongſt you, and I am ſorry that ſome of you lend too favourable an Ear to their Doctrines: Have a care of converſing too much with them for fear of being poiſoned by their bad Opinions; for ſimple and plain Mens Minds, are eaſily led aſide by ſuch crafty Diſputers. You that are Chriſtians ought to awake up into that Carefulneſs of Conduct, and Purity of Life, which your Religion obliges to, and not to lull your Souls aſleep with the Epicurean Sottiſhneſs and Senſuality. I ſpeak this becauſe I am ſatisfied, that ſome of you, to your Shame, have imbibed theſe lewd Principles.

IV. But poſſibly ſome of you will be apt to enquire in what manner the Reſurrection will be perform'd? Shall we (ſay you)

V. All fleſh is not the ſame fleſh, but there is one kind of fleſh of men, another fleſh of beaſts, another of fiſhes, and another of birds. There are alſo celeſtial bodies, and bodies terreſtrial; but the glory of the celeſtial is one, and the glory of the terreſtrial is another. There is one glory of the ſun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the ſtars; for one ſtar differeth from another ſtar in glory. So alſo is the reſurrection of the dead; It is ſown in corruption; it is raiſed in incorruption: It is ſown in diſhonour; it is raiſed in glory: It is ſown in weakneſs; it is raiſed in power: It is ſown a natural body; it is raiſed a ſpiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a ſpiritual Body. And ſo it is written, The firſt man Adam was made a living ſoul, the laſt Adam was made a quickning Spirit. VI. Howbeit, that was not firſt which was ſpiritual; but that which is natural, and afterward that which is ſpiritual; The firſt man is of the earth, earthy: the ſecond man is the Lord from heaven. As is the earthly, ſuch are they that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, ſuch are they alſo that are heavenly. And as we have born the image of the earthy, we ſhall alſo bear the image of the heavenly. VII. Now this I ſay, brethren, that fleſh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. Behold, I ſhew you a myſtery. We ſhall not all ſleep, but we ſhall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an Eye, at the laſt trump; (for the trumpet ſhall ſound, and the dead ſhall be raiſed incorruptible, and we ſhall be changed.) For this corruptible muſt put on incorruption, and this mortal muſt put on immortality. VIII. So when this corruptible ſhall have put on incorruption, and this mortal ſhall have put on immortality, then ſhall be brought to paſs the ſaying that is written, Death is ſwallowed up in victory. O death, where is thy ſting; O grave, where is thy victory? The ſting of death is ſin, and the ſtrength of ſin is the law. But thanks be to God which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. IX. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye ſtedfaſt, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, foraſmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

(f) ¶ When you) not have juſt ſuch Bodies as we have now? And if we have theſe, it is inconceivable how they ſhould revive out of their Aſhes. This is a fooliſh Objection. Do not you daily obſerve that it is neceſſary, that the Corn which is ſown ſhould firſt rot in the Ground, before it ſpring up again? You ſow only one ſingle Corn of Wheat or Barly, and yet it comes up again a cluſter of Bleads bearing ſeveral Ears, wonderfully unlike, taking it altogether, to what was depoſited in the Ground; God Almighty being pleaſed to give a new Body, according to his good Pleaſure, to each of theſe ſeveral Seeds.

V. Beſides, as we may obſerve that the Bodies of the ſeveral Animals are of a different kind of Subſtance, ſo likewiſe the Bodies, we carry about here, are different from the glorified Body we ſhall be arrayed with at the Reſurrection. As the Terreſtial Bodies do differ from the Celeſtial, and the Celeſtial Bodies themſelves excel one another in ſplendor, as the Sun does the Moon, and one Star ſhines brighter than another, the Caſe is the like in glorified Bodies; they ſhall be very different from our preſent ones, and alſo diſtinguiſhed in Degrees of Perfection from one another. This Body is laid in the Ground indeed a corruptible Body, but it ſhall be raiſed up an incorruptible one. Whilſt it was in this World it had many Blemiſhes in it, but then it ſhall be raiſed up in a far higher Degree of Beauty and Perfection: Here it was ſubject to many Diſeaſes, but then it ſhall endowed with an unalterable Vigor and Vivacity. The Body which is laid in the Grave had been a Natural or Animal Body, which was to be ſuſtained by Meat and Drink; but it ſhall be raiſed up a Spiritual Body, which has no need of theſe helps to ſupport it. For ye muſt know, that there is a great deal of difference between an Animal and a Spiritual Body. Now we learn from Scripture that Adam the firſt Parent was made a Living Soul, Gen. 2. 7. and thereby only conveyed to us a mortal Life; but the ſecond Adam, Jeſus Chriſt, by his Religion, has afforded us a new Nature, whereby we are capable of immortal Glory.

VI. Indeed, the Divine Wiſdom was pleaſed to order, that the natural Body in order of Time, ſhould go before the Spiritual. Our firſt Parent Adam, had a Body anſwerable to his Extraction from the Ground, of an earthly Nature; but Jeſus Chriſt the Author of our New-Birth, coming from Heaven, has provided us a Body of a Celeſtial Nature. And we, as being deſcended from Adam, have a like Earthly Body, as long as we continue in this mortal State; but hereafter we ſhall have a Heavenly Body, like that which our Saviour after his Glorification, was veſted with. And, as we have been like mortal Adam, during our ſtay in this World, we ſhall, upon our entering into the other World, after our Reſurrection, enjoy a Body faſhioned after the glorious Figure of the immortal Jeſus.

VII. And I muſt inform you further, my Chriſtian Brethren, that Bodies of our preſent Contexture, till they are further refined and purified, are not fitted for that State of unchangeable Happineſs. And give me leave to add ſomething more upon this Head, which you canot but be Strangers to: That at the general Reſurrection thoſe, who happen to be alive, ſhall undergo a Change ſomething analogous to Death, tho' not really ſo, their Bodies being inſtantaneouſly altered; when the Angel of God ſhall make a ſounding in the Skie, ſomething like the ſound of a Trumpet, ſummoning the Bodies of all that lie in their Graves, to ariſe to Judgment; and they that are dead ſhall be raiſed up with Bodies not capable of dying; and we, that ſhall happen to be alive at that time, ſhall have our Bodies only changed. For (as I obſerved before) that theſe preſent mortal Bodies are not ſuited for that immortal State.

VIII. Now when this happy Change ſhall be performed, that Paſſage of Hoſeah ſhall be literally verified, O Death, I will be thy Plague, O Grave, I will be thy Deſtruction, Hoſ. 13. 14. That which makes Death of ſo dreadful a Nature to us is Sin, and that which makes Sin ſo fatal to us is the Law which prohibits it. But God has been graciouſly pleaſed to find a way, by the Rules of our Holy Religion, to overcome the Force of both of theſe; not only by entituling us to immortal Life, but by laying before us eaſier Methods, under the Chriſtian Diſpenſation, of obtaining it.

IX. Theſe, my Chriſtian Brethren, are ſuch admirable Motives to engage you to Perſeverance in your Profeſſion, that no Afflictions or Perſecutions ſhould have force to make you fail in the diſcharge of your Duty, or to relinquiſh your Religion; ſince all, that you ſuffer in this World, will be ſo abundantly made up to you in the next.

NOTES.

(f) When they come to the Grave.] There were ſeveral ſuperſtitious Practices which were uſed in the Popiſh Office, before the Reformation, which we, upon good Grounds, have laid aſide. The Body of the deceaſed was ſeveral times to be ſprinkled with holy Water, and thurigated; the People exhorted to pray for the Soul of the departed; the Prieſt to break the Ground to the length of the deceaſed, in form of a Croſs; Deinde accipiat ſacerdos Foſſorium, vel aliud Inſtrumentum, & aperiat terram in modum Crucis, ad longitudinem & latitudinem Corporis Defuncti, dicens: Aperite mihi portas juſtitiæ, & ingreſſus in eas confitebor Domino: hæc porta Domini, juſti intrabunt in eam. After this an Anthem is to be ſung by the Prieſt and Clerks ſtanding at the head of the Corpſe.

Beſides in that Office, there is a Benediction of the Grave, and to that purpoſe this Prayer ſaid, Rogamus te Domine ſancte, Pater omnipotens, æterne Deus: ut hanc ✝ dicere & ſanctificare dignoris hoc ſepulchrum, & corpus in eo collocandum: ut ſit remedium ſalutare in eo quieſcenti, & redemptio animæ ejus, atq; Tutela, & munimen contra ſæva jacula inimici per Chriſtum Dominum noſtrum. Amen.

By the ſame Office, the Executor was to caſt Earth upon the Corpſe in the form of a Croſs, to thurifie it and caſt holy Water upon it. Finitis orationibus Executor efficii terram ſuper corpus ad modum crucis ponat, & corpus thurificet & aqua benedicta aſpergat. Theſe uſages being ſuperſtitious, were very adviſedly laid aſide at our Reformation.

Grave.] Interment, or incloſing the dead Body in a Grave, is the moſt ancient way of Burial. That this way was uſed by the Ægyptians and other Aſiaticks, is manifeſt by the Account we have of their embalming their Bodies, to preſerve them from Corruption, which we have an Account of in ancient Authors; and from the Mummies or dead Bodies which are dug out of the Graves of that Country, at this Day. That the Jews did the like is manifeſt from their own Writers, and from the Books of Holy Scripture, where the Bodies of the Dead, as for Inſtance, of Sarah, Iſaak, Joſeph, are recorded to be laid in the Ground. But in ſucceeding Ages, there aroſe a Faſhion among ſome Nations, of burning the Bodies of the Dead. Whether this Cuſtom was owing to a fear, that the Enemies might offer Injury to the dead Body when Interred, by digging it up, as was the Caſe of Sylla, who ordered his Body to be burnt, contrary to the Cuſtom of the Cornelian Family, leaſt he ſhould be ſerved as he had ſerved Marius, Plut. in vit. Syll. or whether it was begun upon the Bodies of Princes or Perſons of prime Dignity, fancying thereby that their Souls were carried up in the Flames to Conſort among the Gods: Or whether other Perſons of inferior Rank thought to get to Heaven that way, is a Matter uncertain. The Greeks uſed burning very anciently, as early as the times of the Trojan War, as appears by Homer's Deſcription of the Funeral of Patroclus.

Ἠὼς δὲ πρώϊη ἐφαίνετο, &c. Hom. Il. XXIII. Not but that they uſed Interment likewiſe, ancient Hiſtorians of that Country giving an Account of the way of placing the Body in the Grave, viz. with the Face towards the Eaſt in ſome Places, Plut. in Solon. and in other places towards the Weſt, Æl. var. Hiſt. Lib. VII. Nay the common People, who could not be at the Charge of a Funeral Pile, and the coſtly ſacrificial Rites which attended the way of Funeration by Burning, generally were buried by way of Interment. And, Cicero informs us, that in ſuch early times as thoſe of Cecrop's, Interment was altogether made uſe of by the Grecians, Cic. de Leg. Lib. II. The Romans took the Cuſtom of Burning their Dead from the Greeks, and for the moſt part uſed it till Chriſtianity prevailed in that Empire. But yet Pliny ſays expreſly, Ipſum cremare apud Romanos non fuit veteris Inſtituti: terra condebantur. At poſtquam longinquis bellis obrutos erui cognovere, tunc inſtitutum. Et tamen multæ familiæ priſcos ſervavere ritus: ſicut in Cornelia nemo ante Syllam Dictatorem traditur crematus. Idq; voluiſſe veritum talionem, eruto C. Marii Cadavere. Burning among the Romans was not the ancient Cuſtom: They were formerly Interred. But after being engaged in long Wars, they found that the dead were dug up again, they brought in this Cuſtom. Tho' many Families continued the antient way of Burial. For in the Cornelian Family, Sylla the Dictator, is ſaid to be the firſt Perſon burned. And he was willing to be ſo buried, fearing that he ſhould be ſerved, as he had ſerved Marius, in having his Corpſe dug up, Plin. Nat. Hiſt. Lib. VII. Cap. 54. But, tho' other Nations ſometimes uſed Interment, and ſometimes Burning; the Jewiſh Nation made uſe only of the former, and the Chriſtians treading in their Steps did the like. But tho' this be an evident Truth, yet the miſinterpretation of ſome places of Scripture, has given occaſion to ſome Perſons to doubt, Whether the Jews did not uſe the Rite of Burning, as well as of Interring. For the Men of Jabeſh Gilead are ſaid to burn the Bodies of Saul and his Sons, 1 Sam. xxxi. 12. It is ſaid a great Burning was made for Aſa, 2 Chron. xxvi. 14. So Jeremy tells Zedekiah, that they ſhall burn for thee, Jer. xxxiv. 5. And the ſame Cuſtom ſeems to be referred to, in Amos vi. 10. As for the Inſtance of Saul, the Caſe is very extraordinary, and the kind intention of the Gileadites might be excuſed for departing from their Country Cuſtom, to burn the Bodies of their Princes, to hinder the Enemy from inſulting them any more. But it does not appear, that this Cremation was more, than the burning Spices about their Bodies. And the Targum of Jonathan doth explain it by Ukelo gnaleh:n, they burned over them, which plainly refer to ſuch Odors. As to the Paſſage of Aſa, it is plain, that the burning there mentioned is that of the Spices and the Gums, by the Context of the Place. And they laid him in the Bed, which was filled with Odors, and diverſe kinds of Spices prepared by the Apothecaries Art, and they made a great Burning for him, i. e. of the Odors and Spices. As to the Paſſage of Jeremy, it is not to be doubted, but that refers to the Burning of the ſweet Spices likewiſe, and therefore our Tranſlation very fitly renders it, they ſhall burn Odors for thee. Thou ſhalt die in Peace and with the Burnings of thy Fathers, the former Kings which were before thee, ſo ſhall they burn Odors for thee, &c. We tranſlate it according to the common Hebrew reading, Bimſharpoth, but Pagnin read it Cimſharpoth, and tranſlated it, according to the Burnings of thy Fathers, i. e. according as they had ſweet Spices burnt for them. Which ſeems to be the ancienteſt Reading, and which Jonathan had an Eye to, when he explained the Paſſage of Saul and his Sons: That they burned for them, Cema dalchan gnal malchi tamman, according to the burning of Kings in that place, vid. Car. Pald. in 1 Sam. xxxi. 12. And ſo in that

Paſſage of Amos, And a Man's Uncle ſhall take him up umeſarpo, and he that burneth him, &c. as we tranſlate it. But umeſarpo is the ſame as um ſharephe: For Sharaph with a Shin, and Saraph with a Samech have but the ſame import. And when our Tranſlators rendered the place in Jeremy before mentioned jis repelak ſhall burn Odors for thee, whereas the literal Rendition ſhould be, ſhall burn thee; they ought by a Parity of Reaſon, to have tranſlated this place of Amos, and a Man's Uncle ſhall take him up, and he that burneth Odours for him, &c. Thus it is clear, without any Inſtance of the contrary in Scripture, that Interment was the only way of Sepulture uſed among the Jews; unleſs we will allow Druſius his Conjecture to take place, that they burned the dead Bodies in the time of a Plague, to which Cuſtom he will have the late mentioned Paſſage of Amos to refer. It has been obſerved before, that Chriſtianity taking its Original from thoſe who were by Nation Jews, the firſt Proſelytes of that Religion obſerved from them the way of Interment in their Funerals, and not that of Burning, which the Heathens, eſpecially the Greeks and Romans, generally made uſe of. And when the Empire became Chriſtian, Chriſtians of how high a quality ſoever were Interred. Thus Conſtantine the Great, was Interred in the Porch of the Church of the Apoſtles at Conſtantinople, Chryſ. Hom. LXVI. in 2 Ep. ad Cor. Euſeb. Vit. Conſt. Lib. IV. Cap. 10. And we are further informed, that the ſame Emperor in his Life inſtituted ſeveral Corporations of Men, who were to take care of the Interment of the Chriſtian Dead: which was afterwards confirmed by Anaſtaſius, Juſtin. Nov. 49. and afterwards more fully by Juſtinian. Conſt. de Off. Matters being thus ſetled in the Chriſtian Church, and the cuſtom of Burning, dying with the extirpation of Paganiſm, Interment has obtained throughout the ſeveral Ages of Chriſtianity, which have ſucceeded ever ſince.

Jud. Ant. Lib. iv. cap. 8. And in pursuance to this Rule, we find that the Israelites Mourned thirty Days for Aaron, Numb. 20. 29. and the same time for Moses, Deut. 34. 8. And therefore that passage in the Apostolical Constitutions, ἐπιτελεῖσθω, &c. πεντηκοσα καὶ ὁ παλαιὸς τόπος, must be Read τεσσαρακοσα for all that Cotelerius has advanced in favour of the common Reading; unless he will alter Josephus and the Greek and Hebrew Bibles to support it. Vid. Col. Not. in Apost. Can. xlii. lib. viii. The ancient Roman Laws which were made by Numa Pompilius, forbad any time of Mourning at all for a Child under three Years Old; other Children or grown Persons, might be Mourned for as many Months as they were Years Old, provided the time of Mourning did not exceed Ten Months in all. But Gratian, Valentinian & Theodosius, added two Months more to a Widow's Mourning for her Husband, so that she was to Mourn a whole Year, Cod. ii. de second. Nupt.

NOTES.

(a) Thankſgiving of Women after Child-Birth.] This Office in our Service-Book has had the Misfortune to be more excepted againſt and calumniated than moſt of the reſt; nay, thoſe Exceptions too began very early; for they appeared before the coming out of the Second Book of Edward the Sixth; though I think they were rather drawn from the Name than the thing. For the firſt Book of Edw. VI. kept the old Title to the Office in the Latin Service, calling it, The Order of the Purification of Women. But in compliance with the Exceptions againſt this Title, the Reviewers of the Service-Book altered it in the Second Book of that King, and entituled it as it is now, The Thankſgiving of Women after Child-birth; commonly called, the Churching of Women. And as this anſwered all Objections at that time, ſo it ought to have hindred any Exceptions that have been made ſince. For ſince our Liturgy has not ſo much as the Name of Purification retained, it is very unreaſonable to ſay that this Office is inſtituted by the Church, that the Women may receive a Purification thereby, as the Women uſed to do under the Jewiſh Law from their Legal Uncleanneſs.

It is not to be doubted, but that the Cuſtom for Women to come to Church after Child-birth, and to give Thanks there publickly for their ſafe Delivery, received its riſe from the Jewiſh Cuſtom of Purification; as many other Chriſtian Uſages did, from other Parts of the Jewiſh Oeconomy. For ſince in the Holy Scriptures the Purification of the Bleſſed Virgin, and the preſenting her Son in the Temple, is particularly recorded, the Church has from the beginning of Chriſtianity thought fit to do ſomething in Imitation of this Practice in their publick Devotions; that the World might ſee that they were not leſs backward to return God Thanks for Benefits received, than the Jews were. But ſtill in the ancient Laws which enjoyn this Practice, there is no grounding it upon any Impurity of the Woman, which ſhe is to be purged from. The moſt antient Eccleſiaſtical Law of publick Authority in the Church (for the Determination of Dionyſius of Alexandria in this Point, is but the Opinion of a private Biſhop) is the XVII. Conſtitution of the Emperor Leo, publiſhed about the Year 460. after Chriſt. But this Law ſpeaks of a præſcriptum tempus, and a præfinitum tempus, a preſcribed and determined Time, (viz. 40 Days which the Cuſtom of the Church had made.) When the Women after Child-birth were abſent from the Church, and after that admitted again; which it ſays the Church did traditionis loco ſuſcipere, receive it by Tradition. But withal further ſays, Quod profecto non tam propter muliebrem hanc immunditiem, quam ob alias cauſas in intimâ legis ratione reconditas, & veteri prohibitum eſſe lege, & gratiæ tempus traditionis loco ſuſcepiſſe puto. Which indeed I do not think ſo much for any womanly Uncleanneſs, as for other Cauſes not ſpecified in the Law, was prohibited by the Old Law, and the time of Grace (i. e. the Chriſtian Religion) received it by way of Tradition. And after him we have the Determination of Gregory the Great, in his Anſwer to Auſtin, firſt Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Si mulier eadem hora qua genuerit actura gratias intrat Eccleſiam nullo pondere peccati grauatur. —— Si itaque mulierem prohibemus intrare Eccleſiam, ipſam ejus pœnam vertimus in culpam. If a Woman enters the Church the ſame Hour that ſhe is delivered to give thanks, ſhe does not thereby commit any ſin. —— If therefore we prohibit a Woman to enter the Church, we turn her Puniſhment into a fault, Grat. Diſt. V. From which Paſſages, and others of the Ancients, Gratian has drawn this Concluſion in the Canon Law. In Lege precipiebatur, ut mulier ſi maſculum pareret quadraginta, ſi vero fœminam octoginta diebus a templi ceſſores ingreſſu: nunc autem ſtatim poſt partum Eccleſiam ingredi non prohibetur. It was commanded in the Law, that if a Woman brought forth a Male Child, ſhe ſhould abſtain forty days from entring into the Temple, if a Female, eighty days: but now ſhe is not prohibited to enter immediately after her delivery. But the Gloſs upon the Canon Law, adds, Verius credo poteſt in rare ſive ſit neceſſitas ſive non, conſuetudo tamen in contrarium ſe habet. I think it the trueſt Opinion, that ſhe may enter the Church as ſoon as ſhe will, whether there be neceſſity or no, but the Cuſtom is to the contrary. He means that Women generally ſtaid a Month as they do now before they come to Church to return Thanks, though there is no Law to oblige them to it. Neither has our Church ſince the Reformation enjoyned any ſettled time for the Woman to come to Church to perform her Thankſgiving; it only ſays, ſhe ſhall come at the uſual Time; not after 30 or 40 Days, but after ſuch a time as Women uſually take for their Lying-in, who are the beſt judges of Conveniency in thoſe Matters; which Legiſlators either are not ſufficiently appriſed of, or which they leave (as the Emperor Leo ſpeaks) in intimâ Legis ratione reconditâ.

1 It has been a wonderful Satisfaction to me, that it has pleaſed my Gracious God, to hear the Prayer which I made to him in my great Affliction.

2 That he has bowed down from his Heavenly Throne, to lend an Ear to my humble Suit; for which unmerited Favour, I will pay my bounden Thanks to him, as long as I ſhall continue in this World.

3 The Snares of Death had entangled me, and the Agonies of a Dying Perſon were upon me.

4 I found trouble and heavineſs, and I called upon the Name of the Lord: O Lord, I beſeech thee, deliver my ſoul.

5 Gracious is the Lord, and righteous: yea, our God is merciful.

6 The Lord preſerveth the ſimple: I was in miſery, and he helped me.

7 Turn again then unto thy reſt, O my ſoul: for the Lord hath rewarded thee.

8 And why? thou haſt delivered my ſoul from death: mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.

9 I will walk before the Lord: in the Land of the living.

10 I believed, and therefore will I ſpeak, but I was ſore troubled: I ſaid in my haſte, All men are lyars.

11 What reward ſhall I give unto the Lord: for all the benefits that he hath done unto me?

12 I will receive the cup of ſalvation: and call upon the Name of the Lord.

13 I will pay my vows now in the preſence of all his People: in the courts of the Lords houſe, even in the midſt of thee, O Jeruſalem. Praiſe the Lord.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the holy Ghoſt;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever ſhall be: world without end. Amen.

2 Except the Lord keep the city: the watchman waketh but in vain.

3 It is but loſt labour that ye haſte to riſe up early, and ſo late take reſt, and eat the bread of carefulneſs: for ſo he giveth his beloved ſleep.

4 Lo, children and the fruit of the womb: are an heritage and gift that cometh of the Lord.

5 Like as the arrows in the hand of the giant: even ſo are the young children.

6 Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them: they ſhall not be aſhamed when they ſpeak with their enemies in the gate.

Glory be to the Father, and to the Son: and to the holy Ghoſt;

As it was in the beginning, is now, and ever ſhall be: world without end. Amen.

¶ Then

4 And tho' I was long under the greateſt Pain, I ſought no Relief; but by addreſſing myſelf to God, in devout Prayer, beſeeching him to ſpare my Life.

5 And then I experienc'd the Lord to be a Gracious, Juſt and Merciful God.

6 For he never fails to preſerve a Good Perſon, who truſts in him for Deliverance: For he was pleaſed to remove my Afflictions from me, when I was deſtitute of all Human Aid.

7 Therefore, O my Soul, be not thou any longer diſquieted, nor be thou anxious about thy future Proſperity; for God, who has wrought ſo great a Deliverance for thee, will not fail to take all fitting Care of thee.

8 Becauſe thou haſt reſcued my Life from a very great Danger; thou haſt aſſwaged my Grief, which made mine Eyes to run down with Water; thou haſt ſtrengthned my Legs, which, thro' Weakneſs, were not able to ſupport me, and to keep me up.

9 And now I find I ſhall not die thro' this Weakneſs, but am like to live, to promote the Glory of God in this Life.

10 I firmly believed in the midſt of my great Agonies, that God would, in his good Time, work my Deliverance; tho' in the warmth of my Paſſion, no one elſe acted a ſincere part towards me.

11 How ſhall I be able to return ſufficient Thanks to my Gracious God, for ſuch an unparallel'd Benefit, which he has been pleaſed lately to confer upon me.

12 I will offer up an Euchariſtical Sacrifice to his Honour, and in a ſolemn manner drink of the Sacred Cup, which is uſual in thoſe Offerings; and will put up my Devout Prayers, to beg his further Aſſiſtance towards me.

13 I will, in the Solemn Congregation, teſtify my Gratitude to God, that I may incline them all to follow my Example; taking notice, that the Lives of all Good Perſons are ſo dear to God, that he will not ſuffer them to be loſt, unleſs his Providence doth ſee juſt Reaſon to take them to him.

14 O Lord, by this great Deliverance which thou haſt vouchſafed me, thou haſt entirely made me thine for-ever, as if I had been (as it were) a Slave, born in thy Houſe; by knocking off the Chains from my Legs, when I was lately (as it were) in a deplorable State of Captivity.

15 I will therefore offer up a Thankful Sacrifice to his Honour; and will put up my Devout Prayers, to beg his further Aſſiſtance towards me.

16 I will offer up the Euchariſtical Sacrifice, which I vowed to him in the Solemn Congregation, in the Great Temple of the Lord, in the midſt of the Holy City.

PARAPHRASE on Pſalm 127.

1 Except the Lord doth afford his Bleſſing, it is in vain that a Man is at a great Expence in Building a fair Houſe; for otherwiſe ſome unlucky Diſaſter or other happens, which ruins all the Deſigns and Hopes of the Builder.

2 Unleſs God Almighty preſerves a City from the Power of their Enemies, it is to little purpoſe that the Watch is ſet every Night for its Security.

3 And the like may be ſaid of the Inhabitants of a Town, that it little avails for all the ſeveral Artificers to riſe up ſo early in the Morning, and to ſit up ſo late at Night, working in their ſeveral Employs, feeding upon mean Diet, and defrauding themſelves of their natural Reſt; if God does not bleſs their Labours, they ſhall gain nothing by all this Toil.

4 It is not Youth, nor Strength, which will entitle married Perſons to have Children: For theſe are Bleſſings, which God only can confer.

5 And indeed a numerous Offspring is a great Advantage to a Parent, and ſerves to defend and protect him, as the Darts in the hand of a Combatant tend to protect him againſt his Antagoniſt.

6 In a happy Condition is that Man, whoſe Quiver is full of ſuch Shafts; for his Children ſhall ſtand him in ſtead to maintain his Cauſe, when he is called to appear in the Judgment-Hall over the City-gate.

NOTES.

(a) In the Primitive Church there was a Godly Diſcipline. ] Having ſpoken ſomething before of the Diſcipline, made uſe of upon Aſhwedneſday, in the Note upon the Epiſtle and Goſpel of that day, it will not be improper to obſerve ſomething of the Ancient Diſcipline or Puniſhment of Offenders here. Now all the coercive Power of the Church being ſpiritual, ſhe has in all the beſt and pureſt Ages, made uſe only of this for the reclaiming Sinners; which did conſiſt in driving them out from the Fellowſhip of the Faithful, and in denying them the Benefits and Comforts of the Publick Ordinances. This in the Jewiſh Church was called by the name Curſing, by the Chriſtians Excommunication, ἀποσυναγωγὴ, or other words of a like purport. Now for the better underſtanding of the Nature of this Spiritual Diſcipline, it will be requiſite to ſpeak, 1. Of the Original of it. 2*dly*, Of the ſeveral Kinds thereof. 3*dly*, Of the Principal Crimes which ſubjected Men to it. 4*thly*, What they muſt ſubmit to, to be freed from it. 5*thly*, The manner of their being reſtored to the Peace of the Church again.

I. Now as to the Original of Excommunication; ſeveral Learned Men are of Opinion, that it took its Riſe among the Jews, from the times of their Captivity, when the Power of Life and Death, and of inflicting all external Puniſhment, was veſted in the Perſians, who were their Temporal Governors; they being therefore forced to fly to this ſpiritual Sword of Excommunication, to reſtrain the Boldneſs of Offenders from breaking in upon the Moſaical Laws, Grot. in Neh. XIII. 25. Seld. de Synedr. But with Deference to the Opinion of theſe great Perſons, I am perſuaded that the Cuſtom of the Cherem, or Excommunication-Curſe, is much more ancient; there being ſeveral Paſſages in Scriptural Books, which being much older than theſe Times, though they do not directly aſſert this Practice, yet they do with great Probability ſeem to allude to it, or ſuppoſe it. For as to thoſe frequent Paſſages in the Moſaical Law, concerning a Soul's being cut off, it is hard to interpret all thoſe Places, of the Offenders being cut off by the hand of the Executioner; ſome of them not ſeeming to be Capital Crimes in the Eye of the Moſaical, or indeed of any other merciful Legiſlature. The Soul that doth ought preſumptuouſly, that Soul ſhall be cut off from among his People, Numb. 29. 30. Now it does not ſeem probable, that every wilful Sin was Capital. For we find, that in the caſe of very grievous preſumptuous Sins, ſuch as retaining the Depoſitum, Robbery, Perjury, &c. a Treſpaſs-Offering was accepted for Atonement, Levit. VI. 1, 2, &c. Nay, for leſſer Sins than theſe, had the Puniſhment of Exciſion threatened againſt them. Whoſoever toucheth the dead body of any man, that is dead, and purifieth not himſelf, that ſoul ſhall be cut off from Iſrael, Numb. XIX. 13. For the touching any thing uncleau, and afterwards eating of the ſacrifice of the peace-offering, any one is to be cut off, Lev. VII. 21. And ſo for the eating the fat of a Burnt-Offering, Lev. VII. 25. or the blood of any thing, Lev. VII. 2. Now there being no Account given in Scripture, of the Trial of Perſons who committed ſuch ſuppoſed Capital Offences, nor of the Execution of the Laws againſt ſuch Offenders, it is moſt reaſonable to conclude, that the Exciſion here mentioned was not an Exciſion by Death, but only a cutting off by Excommunication; and the barring thoſe who had committed theſe Offences, from the Benefit and Comfort of the Publick Sacrifices and Religious Aſſemblies, till they were reconciled again by Repentance, and by offering up an expiatory-Sacrifice. Nor are the Rabbi's, though they are forward enough on all Occaſions to enhanſe the Severities of the old Moſaical Law, over-fond of making the Chereth, or Exciſion, to extend to Capital Puniſhment for all Offences. The Guilt of Death in the Houſe of Judgment (i. e. Capital Puniſhment) they will have inflicted only, in caſe of the moſt grievous Sins, ſuch as Idolatry, Adultery, Inceſt, Murder, and the Violation of the Sabbath; but that in other Caſes the Chereth, or Exciſion, had no other Corporal Penalty attending it but Scourging, Vid. Maim. More Nevoch. Par. III. Cap XLI. Beſides, in the following times of the Jewiſh State, when the Angel of the Lord repreſented in the Song of Deborah and Barak, as curſing bitterly the inhabitants of Meroz, who ſeditiouſly divided themſelves from the reſt of their Brethren of Iſrael, in the time of Publick Danger when they were invaded by an Idolatrous Enemy; this Curſe of the Angel of God does, in my Opinion, allude manifeſtly to a ſpiritual Curſe, or Excommunication, which was then generally in uſe among them. And in that long Catalogue of Curſes, ſet down in the Twenty ſeventh Chapter of Deuteronomy, we muſt ſuppoſe, that the Curſes there mentioned were not only de-

to earneſt and true repentance, and may walk more warily in theſe dangerous days; fleeing from ſuch vices, for which ye affirm with your own mouths the curſe of God to be due.

denounced againſt Perſons who ſhould hereafter be guilty of thoſe Crimes, but alſo actually pronounced upon thoſe, who were under the Guilt of them; which was properly the Cherem, or Excommunication-Curſe, which was uſed in latter Ages. For this Curſe was to be proclaimed with as great Solemnity as any Excommunication might be. And the Levites ſhall ſpeak, and ſay unto all the men of Iſrael with a loud voice, Curſed, &c. And, after the Return from the Captivity, we find that Nehemiah inflicted the Cherem, or Excommunication-Curſe, upon the prophane Violators of the Law, Neh. XIII. 25.

II. When the Form of Eccleſiaſtical Diſcipline among the Jews, ſome conſiderable time after their Captivity, came to be ſettled, they diſtinguiſhed their Excommunication into ſeveral Species, or Degrees, each Degree thereof being proportionably heavier than the other. The Firſt was the Nidui, or the Averſion, by which a Man was marked out as an ill Perſon, and all pious Perſons were obliged to avoid Converſation with him, and not to come nigher to him than 4 Paces; and this Cenſure to remain upon him for 30 Days. However, he was allowed to come into the Synagogue, but muſt abide only in a peculiar Place there, which was allotted to ſuch in common with the Heathen-Proſelytes, Vid. Buxt. Lex. Talm. in voce Nidui. The next Degree of Excommunication was the Cherem, by which a Man was turned out of the Congregation, with the Curſes and Imprecations of the whole Aſſembly; they expecting ſome extraordinary Mark of the Divine Vengeance, in a ſhort time after that, to befal him. Now whilſt the Excommunicate was under this Cenſure, all pious Perſons were not only obliged to avoid civil Converſation with him, but they were to turn him out of the Synagogue, if he offered to preſent himſelf there. But the Third and higheſt Degree of Excommunication was the Shammatha, which is derived from two Syriack words, Sham, There, and Matha, Death; which denotes as much as if Death and Deſtruction were, where ſuch a Perſon was. This was likewiſe called Maranatha, from the Syriack, Maran, which ſignifieth the Lord, and atha, which ſignifies comes; to denote that God Almighty is coming with ſome ſignal Vengeance and Deſtruction, upon ſuch an impious Perſon. But Mr. Selden is of Opinion, that the Cherem, and the Shammatha are the ſame Degree of Excommunication, Seld. de Synedr. Lib. I. Cap. 14. De Jure Heb. IV. Cap. 7. But Elias Levita maintains the Threefold Diviſion, El. Lev. in Thiſb.

After Chriſtianity took place, many of the Jewiſh Cuſtoms were tranſplanted into it, whereof this of Excommunication was one. Now whereas the Nidui among the Jews was only a friendly Correption of the Church, they retaining ſuch an Excommunicate in the Brotherhood, ſtill making uſe only of this Severity for his good; ſo, in the Chriſtian Oeconomy they made uſe likewiſe of different ſorts of Excommunication, the one being called the Greater, the other the Leſſer Excommunication. In the Leſſer Excommunication, they only repelled the Excommunicate from the partaking of the H. Sacrament, allowing him to be preſent in the Church, and to receive the Benefits of other Chriſtian Ordinances; or, in other more grievous Crimes, from the Chriſtian Aſſemblies likewiſe; ſtill acknowledging him to be a Member of the Church, though a faulty one. But in the Greater Excommunication a Perſon was perfectly cut off from the Chriſtian Church, and deprived of all Right of Membership or Brotherhood therein, not out of any Hopes of mending the Perſon thereby, concerning whom, for his Wickedneſs, ſhe has caſt off all Care, but with a view only of purging the Church of a corrupt and ſcandalous Member. In the Apoſtolical Times, the Leſſer Excommunication was accompanied with ſeveral Torments, which the Devil was permitted to inflict upon the Bodies of the Perſons under Cenſure, that they taking warning by theſe ſevere Laſhes might have a care, for the future, how they relapſed into Sin. This is what St. Paul calls the delivering over unto Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh, that the ſpirit might be ſaved in the day of the Lord Jeſus, 1 Cor. V. 5. The ſame Power the Apoſtle ſays he exerciſed over Hymenaus and Alexander, whom he delivered over to Satan, that they might learn not to blaſpheme.

III. It muſt further be obſerved, that in the following Ages of the Church, when the miraculous Powers began to fail, that the length of the Excommunications ſupplied the place of the Severity of Puniſhment, which formerly went along with them. By the Canons of St. Baſil the Great, Can. XXII. any Perſon who was guilty of Fornication, muſt continue under Cenſure for Five Years; and by the Decree of the Council of Eliberis, for Ten Years, Con. Elib. Can. XIII. To put a way a lawful Wife, and to marry another Woman, had a Penance enjoyned of Seven Years, Con. Trull. Can. LXXXVII. Whoſoever ſhould commit wilful Murder, was to lye under Excommunication Twenty Years, Baſil. Can. LVI. And as for the Crimes of Inceſt and Beſtiality, if the Offenders were Young Perſons, a Penance of Twenty five Years was impoſed, if they were further advanced in Age, a Penance of Thirty Years; but if they were old Perſons, they muſt continue Excommunicates as long as they lived, Conc. Aquiſgr. Can. XVI. By the Firſt Canon of the Council of Eliberis, if any grown Perſon ſhould go to a Heathen-Temple and ſacrifice, he was not to be admitted to the Communion, even at the time of his Death. And by the VIIth Canon of the ſame Council, the like Puniſhment was inflicted upon thoſe who having done Penance for Adultery, ſhould fall into Fornication. But this extreme Rigor was moderated by the Council of Nice, which decreed, that the Communion or Viaticum ſhould not be denied to any Penitents at their Death, Con. Nicen. Can. XIII.

IV. Next we muſt explain what was the Courſe of Diſcipline which the Lapſed muſt run through, whilſt they continued under their Excommunication. At firſt, whilſt they were newly laid under Cenſure, and the Senſe of their Crime was freſh in their Minds, they were to be ranked among the loweſt Degrees of Penitents who were called χλαιοντες, or the Weepers. The manner of their Penance is deſcribed by Sozomen, Hiſt. Eccl. Lib. VII. Cap. 17. There is in the Churches at Rome a particular Place in publick view, for the Penitents, in which they ſtand moaning and wailing, till the Euchariſt is over, which they muſt not partake of, the pure Worſhippers of God being only to communicate of that; there they throw themſelves down upon the Ground with Groans and Lamentation. Then on the other ſide the Biſhop all in Tears and Sighs falls down upon them. And then the whole Congregation is in Tears. After this the Biſhop firſt riſes himſelf, and helps up the Penitents; and when they have ſhewn as much Sorrow as is ſufficient, he praying over them diſmiſſes them. And Euſebius deſcribes the Behaviour of Natalis under his Penance, for his lapſing into the Hereſy of Theodotus; how with Tears he bewailed his Errors, throwing himſelf at the Feet of Zepherine the Biſhop, and laying himſelf down to be trodden upon, not only by the Clergy, but even by the Laity, &c. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl. Lib. V. Cap. 28. Now the place where they were to perform their περιστασις, or Weeping, was in the Church-Porch, as Gregory Thaumaturgus informs us, ἡ περιστασις ἔξω τῆς πύλης τοῦ εὐκτηρίου ὄντων, the Weeping is performed on the outſide of the Gate of the Oratory, Greg. Thaumat. in Ep. Can. Cap. 11.

After this Diſcipline was gone over, which continued ſometimes ſeveral Years, the Penitents were raiſed to the Rank of the ἀκροώμενοι, or Hearers. Their Diſcipline Gregory Thaumaturgus ſays, was performed within the Doors of the Church. Ἡ ἀκρόασις ἔνδοθι τῆς πύλης, ἐν τῷ νάρθηκι λεγομένῳ ἔξω δὲ ἕστάναι χρὴ τὸν ἡμαρτηκότα, ἕως ἂν κατηχουμένων καὶ ἐντεῦθεν ἐξέρχηται. The Hearing was within Doors, in the place which they call the Narthex, where the Sinner was obliged to ſtand as far off as the Catechumens, and to go out from that place, Greg. Thaumat. Ep. Can. Cap XI.

After having continued ſome time in this rank of Penitents, they were removed to an higher Claſs, which was that of the Γονυκλίνοντες, or the Kneelers. The place which was allotted to them in the Church, was further from the Door than that of the Hearers. Gabriel the Metropolitan of Philadelphia, cited by Suicer in his Lexicon, ſays, Ὁ τὸ γονυπετῶσιν τόπος ὅτιν ἔνδον τοῦ ναοῦ, κατόπιν τοῦ ἄμβωνος, ἐν ᾧ ἴσαν οἱ γονυπέτοντες, ὦ πάντες μετὰ τὴν κατηχουμένων ἐξέρχοντο τοῦ ναοῦ ἡνίκα τὸι Ὅσοι κατηχούμενοι προέλθετε, ἐκήρυττε τοῦ Διακόνου ἐκφωνηθέν. The Place of Kneelers was within the Temple, behind the Pulpit, where thoſe who were under the Diſcipline of Kneeling were placed, and who were obliged to go out of the Church when the Deacon cried out, O Catechumens depart. For the ſame purpoſe he quotes Theorianus explaining γονυπετῆσαι, by ἐντὸς μὲν τῆς ἐκκλησίας εἰσέρχεσθαι ἐν ᾧ τῶν ὄπισθεν μέρει τοῦ ἄμβωνος ἴσασθαι, καὶ ἐξιέναι μετὰ τὴν κατηχουμένων. To have a Liberty to come into the Church, but to ſtand behind the Pulpit, to go out with the Catechumens. The ſame Place is attributed to them by Balſamon in his Note upon the XIth Canon of the Council of Nice. Their Diſcipline was to kneel down whilſt the Faithful were paſſing by, as that of the Weepers was to cry, and to lie groveling upon the Ground.

The laſt Stage of Diſcipline, which the Lapſed were to go through, was the Σύστασις. When the Penitents, after having gone through the former parts of their Penance, were permitted to joyn with the Faithful in the Prayers of the Congregation, but were not allowed to partake of the Euchariſt. Gregory Thaumaturgus explains this State thus, Ἡ σύστασις, ἵνα σωιστέωσι τοῖς πιστοῖς, καὶ μὴ ἐξέρχηται μετὰ τῶν κατηχουμένων; When one is placed among the Faithful, and does not go out with the Catechumens. So that Perſons in this Claſs were allowed to ſtay in the Church, after the Miſſa Catechumenorum was over, and not to go out with them; but however they were not to partake of the Sacrament, being only Spectators of thoſe who did. It is of ſuch that the

V. After having run through theſe ſeveral Stages of Penance the Penitents were admitted at laſt into the full Privileges of the Faithful again; and then they were allowed to partake of the Euchariſt, like as they were before their Lapſe. This the Greek Church called μέθεξις, or the Participation. Gregory Thaumaturgus calls it, μέθεξιν τῶν ἁγιασμάτων, the Liberty to partake of the holy Things, Ep. Can. cap. ult. And the Canons of Baſil, εἰς τὰ ἅγια δέχεσθαι, to be received to the holy Things, Can. LXXV. But, before their Admiſſion to the Communion, they were obliged to make their Exomologeſis, or Confeſſion of their Fault in publick; and then the Biſhop and Clergy, who were preſent, were to lay their Hands upon them, and abſolve them. This is plain by that of St. Cyprian, who complains, that ſeveral of the Lapſed were admitted to peace; nondum pœnitentiâ actâ, nondum exomologeſi factâ, nondum manu eis ab epiſcopo & clerico impoſitâ, Euchariſtia eis datur: Not having gone through the Courſe of their Penance, not having made their Confeſſion, and the Hands of the Biſhop and Preſbyters not being laid upon them, the Euchariſt is given to them, Cyp. Ep. X. The ſame Practice he blames, almoſt in the very ſame Words, Ep. XI. After this, they were received again as perfect Members of the Chriſtian Congregation, with the great Joy of all the Aſſembly, Cyp. Ep. 46.

It muſt be further obſerved, that, for the more regular keeping up the Diſcipline, and bringing Offenders under Penance, to a deeper ſenſe of their Sins, they avoided Converſation with them. Wherefore as ſoon as a Perſon was excommunicate, the Biſhop diſpatched his Literæ Tractatoriæ to ſignify, that ſuch a Perſon was under the publick Cenſure, and to prohibit all Perſons to communicate with him, *Aug. NOW ſeeing that all they are accurſed (as the prophet David beareth witneſs) who do err and go aſtray from the commandments of God, let us (remembring the dreadful judgment hanging over our heads, * and always ready to fall upon us) return unto our Lord God with all contrition and meekneſs of heart; bewailing and lamenting our ſinful life, acknowledging and confeſſing our offences, and ſeeking to bring forth worthy fruits of penance. For now is the ax put unto the root of the trees, ſo that every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down and caſt into the fire. It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God: He ſhall pour down rain upon the ſinners, ſnares, fire and brimſtone, ſtorm and tempeſt; this ſhall be their portion to drink. For lo, the Lord is come out of his place to viſit the wickedneſs of ſuch as dwell upon the earth. But who may abide the day of his coming? Who ſhall be able to endure when he appeareth? His fan is in his hand, and he will purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the Barn, but he will burn the chaff with unquenchable fire. The day of the Lord cometh as a thief in the night: and when men ſhall ſay, Peace, and all things are ſafe, then ſhall ſudden deſtruction come upon them, as ſorrow cometh upon a woman travelling with child, and they ſhall not eſcape. Then ſhall appear the wrath of God in the day of vengeance, which obſtinate ſinners, through the ſtubbornneſs of their heart, have heaped unto themſelves, which deſpiſed the goodneſs, patience and long-ſufferance of God, when he called them continually to repentance. Then ſhall they call upon me (ſaith the Lord) but I will not hear; they ſhall ſeek me early, but they ſhall not find me, and that becauſe they hated knowledge, and received not the fear of the Lord, but abhorred my counſel, and deſpiſed my correction. Then ſhall it be too late to knock when the door ſhall be ſhut; and too late to cry for mercy when it is the time of juſtice. O terrible voice of moſt juſt judgment which ſhall be pronounced upon them, when it ſhall be ſaid unto them, Go ye curſed into the fire everlaſting, which is prepared for the devil and his angels. Therefore, brethren, take we heed betime, while the day of ſalvation laſteth; for the night cometh, when none can work: but let us, while we have the light, believe in the light, and walk as children of the light, that we be not caſt into utter darkneſs, where is weeping and gnaſhing of teeth. Let us not abuſe the goodneſs of God, who calleth us mercifully to amendment, and of his endleſs pity promiſeth us forgiveneſs of that which is paſt, if with a perfect and true heart we return unto him. For though our ſins be as red as ſcarlet, they ſhall be made white as ſnow: and though they be like purple, yet they ſhall be made white as wooll. Turn ye (ſaith the Lord) from 1 O Gracious God, I beſeech thee to afford the utmoſt extent of Mercy to me, in pardoning thoſe great Sins which I have committed.

2 O let my Pardon be ſealed for theſe Crimes, and let me appear clear in thy ſight, when my Sins are forgiven by thee.

3 For I do not now extenuate my Faults, or hide them, but I openly acknowledge them before thee, and freely confeſs what a wretched Sinner I have been.

4 Againſt thee have I ſinned, againſt a God that is armed with eternal Vengeance to puniſh me for it; and, though by my cunning I have kept the Knowledge of many of my Sins from the Eyes of the World, yet thy Eye which ſearcheth the Heart hath ſeen all my crafty Contrivances. Wherefore whatever Puniſhment thou, by thy righteous Decrees, ſhalt lay upon me, thy Juſtice ſhall be perfectly acquitted.

5 Alas! I muſt not only acknowledge the Guilt of a late great Sin ——— but that the whole Courſe of my Life hath been defiled by many voluntary Crimes; nay, that my whole Nature is corrupted, by my Traduction from ſinful Parents, there being a Stain in my very Conception.

6 But notwithſtanding theſe great Defaults which I have made in my Duty, and the corrupt Affections of my Nature, thou requireſt a Conformity to thy Laws, not only in outward Acts, but in Will and Affections, and that all our ſeveral Thoughts ſhould be governed by a Submiſſion to the Wiſdom of thy Commands.

7 Do thou grant me thy Pardon, upon this my ſincere Repentance, and then I ſhall be more clear than a Perſon, who under a legal Defilement is ſprinkled with a Bunch of Hyſſop dipped in conſecrated Water; do thou, as it were waſh me with thy Mercy, by forgiving my Sins, and then my Soul ſhall be purer than the Fleaks of the new-fallen Snow.

8 This will turn the diſmal Sorrow of my penitent Soul into a new Scene of Joy and Satisfaction; this will be as great a Refreſhment to me, as a Pardon is to a Criminal, whoſe Bones are under the Tortures of the Rack.

9 I beſeech thee to turn away thy Face from my Sins, as being unwilling to take notice of them. Let my Offences be blotted out of thy Regiſter, where Men's Sins are recorded.

10 I beſeech thee, O Lord, by thy Grace, to expel out of my heart my former corrupt Affections, and to give it a Bent and Tendency to Goodneſs; recruit and quicken the Motions of thy Holy Spirit, which I by my Wickedneſs have ſuffered to languiſh, and grow cold within me.

11 Do not thou caſt me out of thy Preſence, as an abominable thing, refuſing to have any Spiritual Communication with me; O do not thou ſuffer thy holy Spirit to depart from me, as it does from Perſons who have long ſlighted thy Holy Suggeſtions.

12 O afford me the Satisfactions again which I formerly had in thy ſpiritual Aſſiſtances, and give me again thoſe large Meaſures of thy Grace, which heretofore thou waſt pleaſed ſo readily to deal out to me.

13 Then will I by publick Declarations ſet forth the great extent of thy Mercy; perſuading other Sinners, to turn unto thee and experience it.

14 But though I have the greateſt Senſe of thy Mercy, yet I cannot but have continually Penſive Thoughts on ——— thoſe great Sins I have committed. O deliver me from the guilt of thoſe crying Offences, and I will ſing Pſalms to celebrate thy Mercy and Goodneſs.

15 The conſideration of ſuch thy Clemency, ſhall ſet my Mouth and Lips a-ſinging in thy praiſe.

16 For 'tis not the moſt coſtly Offerings at thy Altar, which will reconcile me to thee, after the Commiſſion of ſuch heinous Offences; a Hecatomb would not waſh away theſe Stains; but as thou doſt not require this, ſo 'tis uſeleſs to apply it.

17 But the Sacrifice, which thou haſt the chiefeſt regard to, is a hearty Sorrow for Sin, and a Renovation of Mind; and, when Sinners bring theſe devout Affections to thy Altar, thou doſt not fail to give them a hearty welcome.

18 O continue thou thy Favour to the Church and People of this Nation, and let not the Guilt of me, or other ſinful Perſons, provoke thy Judgments to fall upon us: Be thou a Bulwark round about us to defend us from all our Enemies.

19 O be thou gracious to me and them, in pardoning all our Sins, in admitting us into thy Favour, and confirming us in Habits of Virtue and Piety; and then we ſhall be meet partakers of thy Sacrifice, and come with Joyfulneſs to thy Altar.

PREFACE TO THE PARAPHRASE ON THE PSALMS.

I Here preſent the Reader with a Paraphraſe upon the Pſalms, according to the Common-Prayer-Book Tranſlation; which, as many have been taught to Vilifie and Calumniate, ſo few have been inſtructed how to underſtand: And it being by the Wiſdom of the Church, thought fit to be made a part of our Publick Devotion, it will not be an improper Task to afford what Information I am able, towards the better underſtanding the Subject-Matter, the Scope and Tenour, and the many caſual Expreſſions in theſe Sacred Hymns, which may not be ſo obvious to common Underſtandings.

Many of our Diſſenting Brethren have very furiouſly attack'd this Tranſlation, for ſeveral groſs Faults contain'd therein; not that they have really prov'd them to be ſuch, but perhaps they have thought them to be ſo, becauſe they did not exactly agree with the laſt Tranſlation; which, by the way, they have as much over-valu'd, as they have under-valu'd this. For, as we muſt own there may be ſome Paſſages which are not ſo exactly done in this Old Tranſlation; ſo we may truly ſay, if one had a mind to be over-Critical, one might, by way of Reprizal, ſhew as many in the New One, I mean of the Pſalms; for I have only to do with That: For I do not take that Verſion to be the moſt exact Performance in its kind. For it carries, from the beginning to the end, one groſs Fault, and that is a Rendition too nicely literal, which makes it Hebrew ſtill, tho' in Engliſh Words, and hardly to be underſtood, without a Paraphraſe. Nay, it almoſt religiouſly follows one of the worſt Verſions, that is, Arias Montanus's Interlinear; who has only ſpoiled Pagnin's, by an affected Preciſeneſs always to Tranſlate, according to the firſt and moſt common Senſe of the Hebrew Words. Another Fault the laſt Tranſlators fell into, is, the not obſerving the Rule which was given them by the King, viz. That the Ordinary Bible, read in Engliſh, commonly called the Biſhop's Bible, ſhould be followed, and as little altered as the Original would permit. Now the Biſhop's Bible (in the Pſalms eſpecially) was little different from Coverdale's. The Reviewers in Queen Elizabeth's Time, when that Tranſlation was made, not thinking it decent to go too far from the Common-Prayer-Book Tranſlation, by which great Offences and Exceptions might be created, which they were ſo Prudent as not to go about unneceſſarily to Spirit up. But our laſt Set of Tranſlators ſeem'd reſolv'd to alter, for pure Alteration-ſake, when no manner of occaſion requir'd it, leaving out as much Engliſh Phraſe, and bringing in as much Hebrew as ever they could; whether it were to recommend their Skill in the Hebrew-Critick, or whether they had any other Deſign in View, I cannot tell. But to give the Reader a Taſte of their Performance, and how much they have mended the Old Tranſlation: It muſt be obſerved;

1ſt, That a great Number of the Alterations are only Changes of one ſynonimous Word for another, as Wicked for Ungodly: Haſten after other Gods, for run after (which, by the way, is much worſe): Too ſtrong for me, for too mighty for me: Righteouſneſs, for Righteous Dealing: Pay my Vows, for perform my Vows: Thy Rod and thy Staff they comfort me, (which is hardly Engliſh) for thy Rod and thy Staff comfort me: Learn me, for teach me: Bleſſed be the Lord, for praiſed be the Lord, &c. Now the greateſt Bulk of the Alterations are of this kind.

2dly, They oftentimes make the plain Senſe of the Old Tranſlation obſcure, by keeping to the Hebrew-Phraſe, as Pſal. 264. For where the Senſe is plain and determinate in the Old Tranſlation, I have not dwelt with vain Perſons, it is made very uncertain in the New, I have not ſat with vain Perſons: And ſo again, what the Old Tranſlation expreſſes plainly, Have fellowſhip with the Deceitful, the New makes obſcure, by rendring Go in with the Diſſemblers: And ſo again, for walk Innocently, which is a good Tranſlation and a proper Phraſe, they change, for walk in my Integrity, which is ſcarce either. The Lot is fallen to me in a fair Ground, is intelligible to an ordinary Reader, but, The Lines are fallen unto me in pleaſant Places, is not to be underſtood without a Comment.

And indeed Miſtakes of this kind, are ſo very many, that Dr. Hammond, in his Comment, has been forced to tranſlate back again the New Tranſlation into the Words of the Old, or very near it, in a hundred Places; and I could,

I could, with eaſe, double the number, upon juſt Grounds. To which, if we add, that even in thoſe places, in which the New Tranſlation has the Advantage of the Old, The Old Tranſlation is ſupported by the Authority of ſome of the beſt Hebrew Criticks, Munſter, Caſtalio, &c. (as a * Learned Gentleman has lately ſhewn ;) certainly this Verſion, which we uſe in our Service, may paſs without reprehenſion, if it may not be allowed to receive its Commendations ; which in many particulars I am ſure it may juſtly put in its Plea for. And indeed the Clamours, which have been raiſed againſt it, have been greatly owing to the indiſcretion of the Authors of the New Verſion, who unneceſſarily altered too much. For ever ſince that time, many of the People have taken the Common-Prayer-Book-Tranſlation to be only a piece of old Popiſh Trumpery, which even the Members of our own Church could not juſtify, by reaſon of their making ſuch a world of Emendations in it: Eſteeming that only to be the pure Word of God, which came out of the Mint of the laſt Tranſlators. So much for the Vindication of the old Tranſlation.

* Holy David. David and his Old Engliſh Tranſlators cleared, &c. Lond. 1706.

And now I beg leave to add a Word or two, of the Reaſons, which induced me to the Publiſhing this Paraphraſe upon it. And Firſt, I thought it would conduce to the removal of the Prejudices which have been taken up againſt this Verſion, when it ſhould be ſeen by the Paraphraſe, that the Paſſages of the old Verſion agreed as well, or better, with the Context, and the Tenor of the Pſalm, than the Alterations made in the New. Secondly, I was willing to let the Members of our own Church, (eſpecially thoſe who attend upon the Daily Service) into a better Underſtanding of theſe Sacred Hymns, which in their publick Devotion they conſtantly recite. For 'tis to be lamented, that many, who by conſtant reading of the Pſalms, have learned moſt of them by Heart, do hardly underſtand any thing, either of the Deſign of each Pſalm, or of the connection of one Verſe with the preceding or following, or of the purport of particular Expreſſions, Alluſions, &c. which yet are abſolutely neceſſary to a reaching of the true meaning thereof.

But it may be aſked, Why ſhould I attempt a new Paraphraſe on the Pſalms, after ſo great Names as Dr. Hammond, and Biſhop Patrick? I anſwer, That theſe two learned Men have laid out their Labours upon the New Tranſlation, which is not read in our Church; and therefore I have confined my Comment to the Common-Prayer-Book-Tranſlation, which every one is obliged to take a part in, in the Publick Service; upon which account, I preſume my Work may be of more general Uſe. It would be a Vanity in me, to ſay, I have ſupplied any of their Omiſſions; but having had their Comments before me, and having applied ſome diligence of my own, I may, without Arrogance, ſay, 'tis poſſible I may have contributed ſomething towards the Explication of theſe Sacred Hymns, which my Predeceſſors in this way, have not touch'd. And if I did not think ſo, I would not have troubled the World with what I here offer.

If it be aſked, What I have done particular in this Paraphraſe? I anſwer, I have commented upon the Hebrew Text, comparing it with almoſt all the ancient, and moſt of the modern Interpreters and Annotators, and given the Senſe of the Pſalmiſt as nigh as I could penetrate into it; yet ſo as not to be contrary to our Verſion, which I always have not had regard to neither, when any miſtake was manifeſt. I have endeavour'd to ſhew as much of the Beauties of the Poetry, as could ordinarily be expreſſed in modern Language, and to ſet out as much of the Grandeur of the Aſiatick Metaphor, as our Weſtern-way of ſpeaking would well bear: Keeping always to ſuch a plainneſs of Language, as might be underſtood by ordinary Readers.

I have compared our Old Tranſlation with the Hebrew Text, and mark'd the Words which are put in for Explication: ſo that every one may ſee, that we have as much Scripture here as other Tranſlations pretend to; and that ſome People need not be ſo terribly afraid, as they are taught to be, of reading I know not what for the Word of God. I have likewiſe compared the Text with two Editions of Coverdale's Bible, the firſt of his own, the ſecond of Cranmer's Edition: And have rectified the moſt material Variations from it, which have happen'd by frequent Printing, both before and ſince the laſt Review of the Common-Prayer. The Paſſages, which are different from the Sealed-Books, I have Printed in Black-Letter.

☞ I have had the Opportunity of making uſe of one Book (out of my Lord Biſhop of Ely's Library) atteſted by the Commiſſioners, for comparing the Printed Books with the Original, tho' not ſealed, which is ſomewhat different from the reſt: Wherein the Paſſages, which in the great Bible are Printed in a ſmall Letter (to denote they are taken out of the Septuagint, or are not in the Hebrew) are marked; which I conjecture being done after the Act was paſſed, occaſioned, upon ſecond Thoughts, the Books ſo marked, to be laid aſide, as not Authentick. However, this deſign being of uſe, I have incloſed the Paſſages ſo marked within Hooks.

Now, in order to reap the greater Benefit by this Paraphraſe, I would adviſe thoſe Readers who have not leiſure to read the whole Morning and Evening Service, every Day to read a Pſalm or two, with the Paraphraſe; going over the Argument, or Title of the Pſalm firſt. I would have them read the Paraphraſe entire by itſelf, which will beſt acquaint them with the Tenour and Connection of the Pſalm, and then Verſe for Verſe with the Pſalm, if they do not underſtand it before. Now the reading over the Pſalter twice or thrice in this Method, will give any Perſon of ordinary Capacity, ſuch a ſufficient Knowledge of the Senſe of the Pſalms, that he need not more; unleſs he has a Deſign to deſcend to ſome Critical Enquiries which are diſputed, without any great Advantage, among learned Men. Whatever Pains I have taken herein (which are three times more than I at firſt expected) pray God bleſs them all to the uſe of the pious Reader. Farewel.

The First DAY.

MORNING PRAYER.

The I. PSALM.

Beatus vir, qui non abiit.

¶¶ The ſubject-Matter of this Pſalm, is the different Fate of good and bad Men, both in this World and hereafter.

BLeſſed is the Man that hath not walked in the counſel of the Ungodly, nor ſtood in the way of Sinners: and hath not ſat in the Seat of the Scornful.

2. But his delight is in the Law of the LORD: and in his Law will he exerciſe himſelf day and night.

3. And he ſhall be like a Tree planted by the Water-ſide: that will bring forth his Fruit in due ſeaſon.

4. His Leaf alſo ſhall not wither: and look whatſoever he doeth, it ſhall proſper.

5. As for the Ungodly, it is not ſo with them: but they are like the Chaff which the Wind ſcattereth away [from the face of the Earth.]

6. Therefore the Ungodly ſhall not be able to ſtand in the Judgment: neither the Sinners in the Congregation of the Righteous.

7. But the LORD knoweth the way of the Righteous: and the way of the Ungodly ſhall periſh.

The II. PSALM.

Quare fremuerunt gentes?

¶¶ This Pſalm has no Title in the Original; but that it was written by David, is vouched by the Apoſtle St. Peter, Acts 4. 25. That it was a Prophecy of the Meſſias, all the ancient Jews did allow; and Rabbi Solomon Jarchi ſays plainly, Our Doctors explained the Signification of this Pſalm of King Meſſias; but that we may better anſwer the Minnim, (i. e. the Heretical Chriſtians) it is better to interpret it of David. And it ſhould ſeem moſt probable, that the former part is to be underſtood of David, and the latter part of Chriſt, which prophetical Excurſion is common in Scripture.

WHY do the Heathen ſo furiouſly rage together: and why do the People imagine a vain thing?

2. The

Paraphraſe on Pſalm I.

THAT Man is bleſſed, both with the Poſſeſſion of preſent Happineſs, and the Expectation of future; who is not led away by the ill Example of careleſs Livers; who does not copy out the Actions of lewd and flagitious Men: And laſtly, who does not take part with prophane and irreligious Perſons, who dogmatically, and as it were out of the Chair, do advance their vain Objections againſt God's Law, and give out their Taunts and prophane Jeſts againſt all that is Sacred.

2. But the greateſt deſire of his Heart is, to underſtand, and to obey the Laws of God; and to this end, he makes God's Word the continual Object of his Thoughts, meditating thereupon in every Interval of time, which he can ſequeſter from neceſſary Buſineſs and Refreſhment.

3. This Man ſhall flouriſh like a Tree planted on the brink of a Canal in an Eaſtern-Garden; where, tho' the other Trees are ſcorched by the ſtrong Heat of the Sun, this being refreſhed by the neighbouring Stream, ſhall bear the faireſt Fruit in the proper Seaſon.

4. His Leaf, like that of this pleaſant Tree, ſhall not wither or fall off, nor his Family be ſubject to thoſe Misfortunes and Decays as other Mens; and whatever Buſineſs he takes in hand, God, out of his regard to his Piety, ſhall make proſperouſly to fall out to his great Advantage.

5. But as for wicked Men, a far different Fate does attend them, they ſhall be like the light Chaff upon a Threſhing-floor, where, tho' the ſolid Grain keep its place, this is whiffled about by the Wind till it be quite loſt, and diſappears to all human ſight, as much as if it were totally deſtroyed and annihilated; ſo ſhall their Families vaniſh.

6. And moreover, when the righteous God comes to judge the World hereafter, theſe wicked Men, tho' they may have ſome ſmall ſprinkling of Proſperity here, they ſhall never be able to abide their Trial in that State; but when that great Congregation of all God's People, who have lived in all Ages of the World, ſhall appear together, to have their Reward allotted them, theſe unhappy Sinners ſhall be terribly diſappointed, when they ſhall hear their final Doom pronounced againſt them.

7. For then God ſhall take an open Cognizance, of all the vertuous Actions of good and religious Men, by an Approbation of their Courſe of Life; and then the fatal Miſchief of a vicious Courſe of Life ſhall appear too, when the Wicked ſhall be ſentenced to periſh everlaſtingly.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. II.

TO what purpoſe do ſo many Heathen-Nations, Philiſtines, Moabites, Sabeans, Ammonites, Idumeans, 2 Sam. 8. 10. run together with ſo much noiſe and tumult? and why do they lay their Heads together with ſo much Application, in a contrivance which will at laſt come to nothing?

2. The Kings of the Earth ſtand up, and the Rulers take counſel together: againſt the LORD, and againſt his anointed.

3. Let us break their Bonds aſunder: and caſt away their Cords from us.

4. He that dwelleth in Heaven, ſhall laugh them to ſcorn: the LORD ſhall have them in Deriſion.

5. Then ſhall he ſpeak unto them in his Wrath: and vex them in his ſore Diſpleaſure.

6. Yet have I ſet my King: upon my holy Hill of Sion.

7. I will preach the Law, whereof the LORD hath ſaid unto me: Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.

8. Deſire of me, and I ſhall give thee the Heathen for thine Inheritance: and the utmoſt parts of the Earth for thy Poſſeſſion.

9. Thou ſhalt bruiſe them with a Rod of Iron: and break them in pieces like a Potters Veſſel.

10. Be wiſe now therefore, O ye Kings: be learned, ye that are Judges of the Earth.

11. Serve the LORD in fear: and rejoyce [unto him] with reverence.

12. Kiſs the Son, leſt he be angry, and ſo ye periſh from the [right] way: if his Wrath be kindled, (yea but a little) bleſſed are all they that put their truſt in him.

The III. PSALM.

Domine, quid multiplicati?

¶ ¶ The Title of this Pſalm is, in the original Hebrew, A Pſalm of David when he fled before Abſalom.

LORD, how are they increaſed that trouble me: many are they that riſe againſt me.

2. Many one there be that ſay of my Soul: There is no help for him in [his] God.

3. But thou, O LORD, art my Defender: thou art my worſhip, and the lifter up of my Head.

4. I did call upon the LORD with my voice: and he heard me out of his holy Hill.

5. I laid me down and ſlept, and roſe up again: for the LORD ſuſtained me.

6. I will

2. See how many earthly Kings, and infidel Princes, have aſſociated themſelves againſt me, and ſee how their great Lords have given in their Counſel, to overthrow my Kingdom, which thou haſt anointed me to.

3. Let us no longer (ſay they) live under the Jewiſh Yoke, but let us, by a joynt Inſurrection, break aſunder the Bonds which their Conqueſts have laid upon us.

4. But in anſwer to this, let us tell theſe Kings of the Earth; that That King whoſe Throne is in Heaven, does laugh at their fooliſh Attempts, and by his Power will totally defeat them.

5. He ſhall chaſtiſe them with as much Severity, as an angry Man revenges an Affront upon his Adverſary.

6. But as to me he ſhall ſay, I have eſtabliſhed his Throne, and notwithſtanding the Power and Malice of his Enemies, he ſhall reign King in my holy City Jeruſalem.

7. But behold I am now carried off by the Impulſe of God's Holy Spirit, to ſpeak ſomething of another Prince. I will Preach out to all ſucceeding Generations, an eternal Decree of God which he has revealed to me: This Prince ſhall in future Ages (ſays Almighty God) appear in the World, and he ſhall be my only-begotten Son, whom I did not beget in any former time, but in the to-day of Eternity, before all time, in the continual preſent of an infinite Duration.

8. I have granted thee, David, the Dominion over thy own Country, and ſome few neighbouring Provinces; but, O my eternal Son, I have, upon thy requeſt, given the whole World to thy Dominion, and to be governed by thy Laws.

9. Thine, O my Son, ſhall be an Iron-Scepter, to break in Shivers (as it were an earthen Pot) the mightieſt Empires which ſhall ſupport the Heathen Idolatry.

10. Therefore I would adviſe you, O Pagan Princes, and great Men of the World, to ſubmit yourſelves to his Laws, and to inform yourſelves from his Doctrine, which alone can teach you true Wiſdom.

11. Let not the Greatneſs of your Condition keep you from being Servants to him, and Subjects of his Kingdom; but afford always a reverential Regard to his Authority.

12. Pay your Homage to him by a Kiſs, and readily accept the good Offers he makes to you; for if you and your People reject thoſe glad Tidings of Salvation, which he ſhall tender you, you will provoke his Anger, never to make the ſame good Offers to you again, but be left to yourſelves, to periſh in the way of Deſtruction. But on the other ſide, thoſe Men, who either living before his coming, do truſt in him for their Redemption, and ſtedfaſtly expect and believe his coming in the Fleſh, or who after his coming, ſhall be his faithful Diſciples and Followers; they ſhall be eternally happy.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. III.

LORD, to what a Number of Men are mine Enemies increaſed, and how great a part of my Subjects are up in Arms againſt me their lawful Sovereign?

2. Nay they are arrived to that Inſolence, as to upbraid my Misfortune, and to tell me to my Face, That as I am to expect no Aſſiſtance from them, but only their utmoſt Defiance; ſo by my unhappy Miſcarriage in the caſe of Bathſheba, I have ſo enraged God, that I muſt not expect any aſſiſtance from him neither.

3. But thou, O my God, ſhalt be my faithful Defender, tho' my ungracious Subjects, who are obliged to defend me, do deſert me; in the midſt of the Ignominy and Diſgrace, which befals me an exiled Prince: Whilſt I have thee on my ſide, I ſtill enjoy the greateſt Worſhip and Glory; and tho' my Afflictions make me ſometimes ſtoop under them, yet the Conſideration of thy Goodneſs raiſes up my Spirits, and lifts up my Head.

4. Upon this account I put up my earneſt Petitions to Almighty God, to deliver me from my ſad Misfortunes, and he heard me from his holy Hill of Sion, where his Ark is repoſited.

5. This gave me ſuch Satisfaction, that notwithſtanding the great Oppreſſion that was upon me, I compoſed myſelf to reſt; and having taken a comfortable Sleep, awaked again with great quiet of Mind; conſidering, that I could not totally fall, when the Lord held me up.

6. And

6. I will not be afraid for ten thouſands of the People: that have ſet themſelves againſt me round about.

7. Up, LORD, and help me, O my God: for thou ſmiteſt all mine Enemies upon the Cheek-bone; thou haſt broken the Teeth of the Ungodly.

8. Salvation belongeth unto the Lord: and thy Bleſſing is upon thy People.

The IV. PSALM.

Cum invocarem.

¶¶ This Pſalm is ſaid to be compoſed about the time of the former, when David was ſtill under the Troubles of Abſalom's Rebellion.

HEar me when I call, O God of my Righteouſneſs: thou haſt ſet me at liberty when I was in trouble; have mercy upon me, and hearken unto my Prayer.

2. O ye Sons of Men, how long will ye blaſpheme mine honour: and have ſuch pleaſure in Vanity, and ſeek after leaſing?

3. Know this alſo, that the LORD hath choſen to himſelf the Man that is godly: when I call upon the LORD, he will hear me.

4. Stand in awe, and Sin not: commune with your own Heart, and in your Chamber, and be ſtill.

5. Offer the Sacrifice of Righteouſneſs: and put your truſt in the LORD.

6. There be many that ſay: Who will ſhew us any good?

7. LORD, lift thou up: the light of thy Countenance upon us!

8. Thou haſt put Gladneſs in my Heart: ſince the time that their Corn and Wine [and Oyl] increaſed.

9. I will lay me down in Peace, and take my reſt: for 'tis thou, LORD, only, that makeſt me dwell in ſafety.

The V. PSALM.

Verba mea auribus.

¶¶ This Pſalm likewiſe was compoſed by David, probably about the time he fled from the Power of Abſalom.

POnder my words, O LORD: conſider my Meditation.

2. O hearken thou unto the Voice of my calling, my King and my God: for unto thee will I make my Prayer.

3. My Voice ſhalt thou hear betimes, O LORD: early in the Morning will I direct my Prayer unto thee, and will look up.

4. For

6. And now encouraged by ſo great an Aſſiſtance, I am not afraid of the ten thouſand Enemies, in Abſalom's Army, that have in an Hoſtile manner encompaſſed me round.

7. Riſe up therefore to my Aſſiſtance, O my powerful Defender, and ſit no longer a patient Beholder of my Sufferings: Nay, I ſee thee already appearing in my defence, confounding my wicked Adverſaries, and as it were ſmiting them over the Face, and beating out their Teeth.

8. For thou art the true God, to whom all Deliverance is owing; and thy People, and all that ſincerely ſerve thee, may expect thy Bleſſing.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. IV.

HEar my Prayer, O God, Thou who haſt all my Life-long been the Defender of my Right; Who haſt ſet me at liberty in my greateſt ſtraits, particularly under Saul's Reign, 1 Sam. 19. 23. favourably hear my Appeal which I put up to thee.

2. O ye Sons of Men, my Adverſaries who have nothing but a mortal Power to advance againſt me, and which God can eaſily over-rule; how long will you revile and ſpeak evil of my Regal Dignity? How long will you give out ſuch baſe Calumnies againſt me, and induſtriouſly make uſe of Lying or Leaſing to ſupport your bad Cauſe?

3. But I would have you to know, that I am not that wicked Perſon, whom by your Calumnies you repreſent me to be, for it was out of a regard to my Piety, that God called me to that high Office of my Kingdom, who to be ſure would not ſo ſolemnly have choſen a Wicked Perſon, but contrariwiſe a Godly Man; and I am ſtill confident, that God will further manifeſt his Favour to me, in hearing my Prayers, and delivering me from this Trouble.

4. Now I would have you to pay your juſt and reverential Awe, which you ought, to your Prince, and not to violate your Duty by an unnatural Rebellion; think ſeriouſly of this in your own Conſciences, when you are in private, and reſolve to ſit quiet, and to lay down your unlawful Arms.

5. Offer an Expiatory-Sacrifice to God for your heinous Sin againſt him, and your lawful Prince; and by that and your hearty Repentance ſhew, as becomes good Men, that you do not put your truſt in the Arm of Fleſh, but in God alone.

6. There are many of my Adverſaries that are wont to cry out, What good can we expect under King David's Reign?

7. O Lord, I beſeech thee to look with a favourable Aſpect upon me, and alſo upon my People, notwithſtanding their Ungratitude.

8. And I thank thee that thou haſt given me thy Grace, not to make them any ill Returns for their Unkindneſs, but haſt enabled me to be heartily glad for the Benefits which thou haſt beſtowed on them; eſpecially for the fruitful Seaſons which of late thou haſt befriended them with.

9. Therefore I will now, with great Peace of Mind compoſe myſelf, and will not give way to thoſe anxious Thoughts which uſed to diſturb my Reſt; for whilſt I am under thy Protection, who alone canſt defend me, I will not be afraid of any Advantage they can take againſt me.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. V.

O Lord, diligently weigh my humble Suit, which I put up unto thee in my vocal Prayers; and have a regard likewiſe to my private Ejaculations.

2. Thou haſt a right to me, both as thy Creature and thy Subject; upon both which accounts, I beſeech thee to hearken to my Cry in my Diſtreſs.

3. My Devotion to thee ſhall not be ſluggiſh; but very early in the Morning will I addreſs my Soul to thee, not only in private but in publick Prayer, looking up to thee for my Deliverance.

4. For thou art the God that haſt no pleaſure in Wickedneſs: neither ſhall any Evil dwell with thee.

5. Such as be fooliſh, ſhall not ſtand in thy ſight: for thou hateſt all them that work Vanity.

6. Thou ſhalt deſtroy them that ſpeak leaſing: the Lord will abhor both the blood-thirſty and deceitful Man.

7. But as for me, I will come into thine houſe, even upon the multitude of thy mercy: and in thy fear will I worſhip toward thy holy Temple.

8. Lead me, O LORD, in thy Righteouſneſs, becauſe of mine Enemies: make thy ways plain before my face.

9. For there is no Faithfulneſs in his Mouth: their inward parts are very Wickedneſs.

10. Their Throat is an open Sepulchre: they flatter with their Tongue.

11. Deſtroy thou them, O God, let them periſh through their own Imaginations: caſt them out in the multitude of their Ungodlineſs; for they have rebelled againſt thee.

12. And let all them that put their truſt in thee rejoice: they ſhall ever be giving of Thanks, becauſe thou defendeſt them; they that love thy Name ſhall be joyful in thee;

13. For thou, LORD, wilt give thy Bleſſing unto the Righteous: and with thy favourable kindneſs wilt thou defend him, as with a Shield.

EVENING PRAYER.

The VI PSALM.

Domine, ne in furore.

¶¶ This Pſalm ſeems to be written by David under a great Fit of Sickneſs, unleſs it may be thought that he ſets out his Trouble, under the Emblem of a Diſeaſe.

O LORD, rebuke me not in thine Indignation: neither chaſten me in thy diſpleaſure.

2. Have Mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am weak: O LORD, heal me, for my Bones are vexed.

3. My Soul alſo is ſore troubled: but, LORD, how long wilt thou puniſh me?

4. Turn thee, O LORD, and deliver my Soul: O ſave me for thy Mercies ſake.

5. For in Death no Man remembreth thee: and who will give thee Thanks in the Pit?

6. I am weary of my Groaning, every night waſh I my Bed: and water my Couch with my Tears.

7. My

4. But this is a Favour which thou doſt not indulge to wicked Men, whoſe bad Actions thou haſt an utter Averſion to; and upon that account doſt not vouchſafe them the Honour of dwelling, or paying conſtant Attendance at thy holy Temple, or Tabernacle.

5. Theſe mad fooliſh Rebels muſt not appear in thy ſight, at theſe Religious Aſſemblies; for thou hateſt all the Authors of ſuch falſe and malicious Calumnies.

6. Nay, thou ſhalt utterly deſtroy the Authors of thoſe Wicked Untruths, which are given out by ſuch ill Men as Achitophel, to poiſon my Subjects; and ſhalt ſignally manifeſt thy Diſpleaſure to them, who have been the cauſe of ſo much Bloodſhed.

7. But tho' theſe Wicked Men do neglect thy Worſhip, and are not qualified to partake of it, I truſting in thine infinite Mercy, will appear at thy publick Worſhip; and tho' I do not, as the Prieſts go into the Sanctuary, Deu. 1. 3. Heb. 9. 6. yet I will with the devouteſt Affection pray towards it.

8. O Lord, direct me by thy Grace, that I may lead my whole Courſe of Life, according to the exact Righteouſneſs of the Law, becauſe my Enemies are ſo watchful to obſerve every Slip I happen to make; and make me ſo perfectly to underſtand my Duty, that I cannot eaſily miſtake therein.

9. In all that they openly declare, there is not a Word of Truth; and all their ſecret Counſels and Contrivances are full of deſperate Wickedneſs and Villany.

10. Their Throat is like an uncovered Grave, to which every one that comes nigh, is in danger of being miſchiefed; they being arrived to ſuch a peſtilential Art of Flattery and Deceit.

11. But thou, O my God, ſhalt bring Deſtruction upon them, by turning their own Wicked Counſels againſt themſelves: Nay, their innumerable Sins, which they have committed, ſhall be ſo many Enemies to fight againſt them, particularly that heinous one of their Rebellion, not only againſt myſelf, but againſt Thee.

12. But as for myſelf, and all my good and faithful Subjects, who ſincerely truſt in God for our Deliverance, God in his good time, by working out our Safety, will procure for us a time of Rejoicing; after which, we that faithfully ſerve thee, ſhall be always paying our Thanks for thy defending us.

13. And this we truſt thou wilt ſhortly do, from the Goodneſs of thy Nature, by which thou art always inclined to vindicate the Cauſe of oppreſſed Piety; and to cover good Men from any fatal Miſchief, as a Shield defends the Body.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. VI.

O Lord, I beſeech thee not to lay thy Correction upon me with a furious Severity, as an angry Man uſes to take Revenge upon his Adverſary, or chaſtiſe his Servant.

2. Shew thy Mercy upon me, in ſtrengthning me under this great degree of Weakneſs; when my Pain is ſo exquiſite, that my Bones, the more inſenſible parts of my Body, are in great Torment.

3. My Mind likewiſe is under great Depreſſion; O Lord, how long wilt thou continue this mighty Affliction upon me?

4. Shew not thy Diſpleaſure any longer to me, but turn thy Face to me, and look on me again with a favourable Aſpect, by delivering my Life from the danger of this Diſeaſe; out of thy tender Mercies towards me, ſpare my Life.

5. For when my Body is laid in the Grave, it cannot join itſelf, as it now conſtantly does, in the publick Aſſemblies, to offer up Prayers and Thankſgivings to thee.

6. I am quite wearied with my Groanings, which my Pain forces from me; every night my Bed, where I lie, is bedewed with Tears.

7. The

7. My Beauty is gone for very trouble: and worn away becauſe of all mine Enemies.

8. Away from me, all ye that work Vanity: for the LORD hath heard the Voice of my Weeping.

9. The LORD hath heard my Petition: the LORD will receive my Prayer.

10. All my Enemies ſhall be confounded, and ſore vexed: they ſhall be turned back, and put to ſhame ſuddenly.

PSALM VII.

Domine, Deus meus.

¶ The Hebrew Title to this Pſalm is, A Shiggaion (that is, ſome noted kind of Tune then in uſe) of David, which he ſang unto the Lord, upon the occaſion of the words of Cuſh the Benjamite, ſome malicious Informer againſt David to Saul, whoſe Name is not elſewhere recorded in Scripture.

O LORD my God, in thee have I put my truſt: ſave me from all them that perſecute me, and deliver me;

2. Leſt he devour my Soul like a Lion, and tear it in pieces: while there is none to help.

3. O LORD my God, if I have done any ſuch thing: or if there be any Wickedneſs in my hands;

4. If I have rewarded evil unto him that dealt friendly with me: yea, I have delivered him that without any cauſe is mine Enemy;

5. Then let mine Enemy perſecute my Soul, and take me: yea, let him tread my Life down upon the Earth, and lay mine Honour in the Duſt.

6, Stand up, O LORD, in thy Wrath, and lift up thy ſelf, becauſe of the Indignation of mine Enemies: ariſe up for me in the Judgment that thou haſt commanded.

7. And ſo ſhall the Congregation of the People come about thee: for their ſakes therefore lift up thy ſelf again.

8. The LORD ſhall judge the People; give Sentence with me, O LORD: according to my Righteouſneſs, and according to the Innocency that is in me.

9. O let the Wickedneſs of the Ungodly come to an end: but guide thou the juſt.

10. For the Righteous God: trieth the very Hearts and Reins.

11. My help cometh of God: who preſerveth them that are true of Heart.

12. God is a righteous Judge, [ſtrong and patient]: and God is provoked every Day.

13. If

7. The once beautiful Luſtre of mine Eyes is vaniſhed, they being grown dim by my long Grief; the multitude of mine Enemies, which have created me likewiſe much trouble, having contributed to the decay of my Sight.

8. Be gone therefore, O mine Enemies, who have dealt ſo falſely with me, for I ſhall be no longer moleſted by you; ſince God has been pleaſed to hearken unto my Prayers and Tears, which I have ſought him with.

9. For the great Jehovah has received the Addreſs, which I have made to him; and will grant what I have requeſted from him.

10. My Rebel-Enemies ſhall have their Forces worſted, and being put to a ſudden Rout, ſhall flie away before me, with the utmoſt Confuſion and Shame.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. VII.

O Lord, my whole Truſt and Reliance is upon thee; ſave me therefore from the Hands of my Perſecutors.

2. Leſt Saul, that unmerciful Prince, tear me in pieces as a Lion does his Prey, none being able to give me aſſiſtance, and to withſtand his Power.

3. O Lord, if I am guilty of any ſuch Wickedneſs as I am accuſed of; if I have in Agitation any ſiniſter Deſigns againſt my Prince:

4. Thou knoweſt, that I have not (as I am falſely Slandered) made any ungrateful Returns to my Benefactors; but contrariwiſe I have ſpared the Life of Saul my great Enemy, when I had twice the Advantage of him, 1 Sam. 24. 7. & 26. 9, 23. and by his Deſtruction, might have wrought my own Deliverance.

5. If this which I ſay be not ſincerely true, I ſhall be willing that my cruel Perſecutor ſhould have me at his Power; that he ſhould take away my Life, and bury all my Reputation with my Body in the Grave.

6. Therefore I beſeech thee, O Lord, vigorouſly to ſtand up in my defence, and oppoſe thy Divine Wrath to the Indignation wherewith mine Enemies aſſault me; and riſe up for me in thy due time, that I may be enabled under thee, to exerciſe that Judicial or Regal Power, which thou haſt promiſed to me.

7. And when thou doſt commence this Judgment, and art as it were ſet upon thy Tribunal, all the Tribes of Iſrael ſhall be gathered together round thee; for their ſakes therefore, who are ſuffered to live in ſo much Impiety under Saul's Reign, do thou lift up thyſelf upon thy Judgment-Seat again, and rule thy People with the ſame pious Government, as when Holy Prophets were ſet Judges over them.

8. Behold, the Lord is coming to judge his People; but when, O great God, thou doſt enter upon this Act of Judgment, I beſeech thee to take cognizance of my Cauſe, and to paſs Sentence upon me according to my Innocence, and as thou knoweſt me to be free from thoſe Imputations, which are laid to my Charge.

9. And in this righteous Judgment of God, I pray that it may, and I doubt not but it will, come to paſs; that all wicked Contrivances of bad Men may be diſcovered and puniſhed according to their deſert, and good Men confirmed in their Piety by the Divine Approbation.

10. For the juſt God does not, like Men, judge according to outward appearance; for he ſees all the clancular Thoughts of Mens Hearts, and therefore cannot be deceived in his Judgment.

11. Upon theſe Conſiderations, I expect God to be my Help; or (as it is in the Hebrew) my Buckler; for he is the Defender of all that are innocent and ſincere.

12. For God is of all Judges the moſt Righteous; altho' he be ſo vaſtly Powerful, yet he is as wonderfully Patient, ſparing Sinners tho' they every day provoke him.

13. If a Man will not turn, he will whet his Sword: he hath bent his Bow, and made it ready.

14. He hath prepared for him the Instruments of Death: he ordaineth his Arrows against the Persecutors.

15. Behold, he travaileth with Mischief: he hath conceived Sorrow, and brought forth Ungodliness.

16. He hath graven and digged úp a Pit: and is fallen himself into the Destruction that he made for other.

17. For his travail shall come upon his own head: and his Wickedness shall fall on his own Pate.

18. I will give Thanks unto the LORD, according to his Righteousness: and I will praise the Name of the LORD most High.

The VIII. PSALM.

Domine, Dominus noster.

¶¶ This Psalm was composed by David, upon occasion of his Victory over Goliah.

O LORD our Governour, how excellent is thy Name in all the World: thou that hast set thy Glory above the Heavens!

2. Out of the Mouth of very Babes and Sucklings hast thou ordained Strength, because of thine Enemies: that thou mightest still the Enemy and Avenger.

3. For I will consider thy Heavens, even the Works of thy Fingers: the Moon and the Stars which thou hast ordained.

4. What is Man, that thou art mindful of him: and the Son of Man, that thou visitest him?

5. Thou madest him lower than the Angels: to crown him with Glory and Worship.

6. Thou makest him to have dominion of the Works of thy Hands: and thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet;

7. All Sheep and Oxen: yea, and the Beasts of the Field;

8. The Fowls of the Air, and the Fishes of the Sea: and whatever walketh through the Paths of the Seas.

9. O LORD our Governour: how excellent is thy Name in all the World!

13 But if a Man be obstinately wicked, and resolved not to turn to God, as Saul seems to be; God, notwithstanding his Patience, has Judgments in store for such an one, and is as much prepared to execute them, as a Soldier who has whet his Sword for the Battle, or an Archer who has drawn his Bow.

14. God has prepared against such a Man all his warlike Artillery, and Instruments of Death; he has actually directed and levelled his Arrows, against my fiery Persecutors.

15. But take notice, that, tho' my powerful Adversary be as big with Mischief, as a breeding Woman is with her Child:

16. Tho he has treacherously dug a Pit, to make an innocent Passenger fall into it; yet he himself is the likeliest Person to sustain the Mischief, which he has so fraudulently contrived.

17. Those Troubles, which he thought to involve others in, shall stick closest to the Author of them, and, like Arrows shot upwards, are most like to fall upon the Shooters Head.

18. Therefore, on Reflection upon this righteous Judgment of God, I will offer up my bounden Thanks for his admirable Justice, which I am confident he will discover on my behalf; and will praise him particularly with this Psalm, which I have now composed to his honour.

Paraphrase on Psal. VIII.

O Lord, who art the Governour, and Tutor, of us who are of the Seed of Abraham; how much celebrated art thou for thy Goodness, not only in Judea, but in some measure, through all parts of the World which acknowledge a Deity! Nay, thy Glory is extended to the highest Heavens, where it is more illustriously manifested by thy especial Presence.

2. Nay further, thou sometimes makest even Children, under thy direction, to perform noble Actions, whereby thy Honour is displayed; as enabling me, a weak young Man, to subdue this mighty Philistine Champion; thereby to confound the Enemies of the true Religion.

3. Whenever I look up to Heaven, and behold the Moon and the Stars, the glorious Furniture thereof, I cannot but make this Reflection thereupon.

4. What is frail and mortal Man, that a God of such infinite Power and Wisdom, should take cognizance of him, and visit him with such gracious Indulgences?

5. Thou hast endowed him with a rational Soul, not much inferior to the Angelick Natures, and crowned him with more Honour, than any other Creature in the Universe.

6. And hast given to him the Lordship of all the Creation, Gen. 1. 26. putting them under his Feet, as a Token of Subjection, Deut. 33. 3.

7. Not only tame Cattle, but even wild Beasts:

8. All the Fowls that fly in the Air, all the Fishes that swim in the Sea; and all the Whales and Monsters, that tread the liquid Paths of the Ocean.

9. O Lord, our Governour and Preceptor, how widely is thy Glory displayed throughout the Universe!

Pro-

MORNING PRAYER.

The IX. PSALM.

Confitebor tibi.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm likewiſe is thought to be compoſed upon occaſion of his Victory over Goliah.

I Will give Thanks unto thee, O LORD, with my whole Heart: I will ſpeak of all thy marvellous Works.

2. I will be glad and rejoyce in thee: yea, my Songs will I make of thy Name, O thou moſt Higheſt.

3. While mine Enemies are driven back: they ſhall fall and periſh at thy preſence.

4. For thou haſt maintained my Right, and my Cauſe: thou art ſet in the Throne that judgeſt right.

5. Thou haſt rebuked the Heathen, and deſtroyed the Ungodly: thou haſt put out their Name for ever and ever.

6. O thou Enemy, Deſtructions are come to a perpetual end: even as the Cities which thou haſt deſtroyed: their Memorial is periſhed with them.

7. But the LORD ſhall endure for ever: he hath alſo prepared his Seat for Judgment.

8. For he ſhall judge the World in Righteouſneſs: and miniſter true Judgment unto the People.

9. The LORD alſo will be a Defence for the Oppreſſed: even a Refuge in due time of trouble.

10. And they that know thy Name, will put their truſt in thee: for thou, LORD, haſt never failed them that ſeek thee.

11. O praiſe the LORD which dwelleth in Sion: ſhew the People of his doings.

12. For when he maketh Inquiſition for Blood, he remembreth them: and forgeteth not the Complaint of the Poor.

13. Have mercy upon me, O LORD, conſider the trouble which I ſuffer of them that hate me: thou that lifteſt me up from the Gates of Death.

14. That I may ſhew all thy Praiſes within the Ports of the Daughter of Sion: I will rejoyce in thy Salvation.

15. The Heathen are ſunk down in the Pit that they made: in the ſame Net which they hid privily, is their Foot taken.

16. The

Paraphraſe on Pſal. IX.

I Will return my Thanks to thee, O Lord, for thy Favours, with all the Powers of my Soul; I will declare what wonderful Works thou haſt done for thy Servants.

2. Whenever I recreate my ſelf with Muſick, it ſhall be with Airs compoſed to thy Honour; and JEHOVAH ſhall always be the ſubject of my Poetry.

3. Whenever mine Enemies ſhamefully run away, it is not our Valour which ſcatters them, but thy Preſence which intimidates them, making them to ſtumble in their Flight, and to be deſtroyed by us.

4. Thou by giving us this Victory over the Philiſtines, haſt openly approved the Cauſe of thy People; having declared thyſelf a moſt juſt Judge, in protecting the Innocent.

5. Thou haſt given a Check to the Inſolence of this Heathen-Nation, by this ſignal overthrow of them; thou haſt ſo leſſened them in power and Reputation, that they will never be able to make any Figure in the World again.

6. And now, O thou Enemy the Philiſtine-People, tho' thou haſt formerly made great Ravages in our Country, yet ſince we are bleſſed with this happy Victory, thoſe Deſolations are at an end: Nay, thoſe Towns, which they have reduc'd to Aſhes, are not more loſt and diſappearing, than the Philiſtines Reputation is.

7. But the God whom we worſhip endureth for ever; and that Men may be the more ſenſible of this, he has order'd the Throne of Juſtice to be got ready, and he is prepared to aſcend it.

8. He ſhall judge all the Nations of the Univerſe, according to the Rules of an exact unerring Juſtice, ſeverely puniſhing the Heathen-World for their Idolatry and Impiety; and being very faithful, in recompencing the Obedience of his Servants.

9. The Lord is a Citadel for good Men, in the time of their Sufferings; and will defend them from the Violence of the Oppreſſor.

10. Therefore we thy People, who have the Knowledge of thee the true God, will wholly rely upon thy Protection; for it was never known, that thou didſt fail thoſe who truſted in thee.

11. O therefore all ye Inhabitants of Judea, join with me in praiſing our God, whoſe particular Reſidence, here on Earth, is in his Ark in Mount Sion; tell out among the Heathen Nations, what great things he has done for us.

12. For when God makes enquiry, into the ſhedding of Innocent Blood, he remembreth what number of his Saints have been injuriouſly ſlain, taking Vengeance of their Enemies for it; nor does he neglect the complaint of poor afflicted Perſons.

13. And now, O Lord, I beſeech thee ſhew thy Mercy, in delivering me from the preſent Troubles, which mine Enemies give me; thou that didſt ſnatch me away from the very Gates of Death, when I combated with that mighty Champion Goliah.

14. Then will I in ſacred Verſe ſing out thy Praiſes, in the moſt publick Aſſemblies of the People of Jeruſalem, which uſe to be held at the Gates of the City; and thy Deliverance ſhall be the Theme of my Pſalm.

15. But to return to our Philiſtine-Conqueſt; Behold, their Stratagems are all turned upon themſelves, and (to uſe a Metaphor drawn from Hunters) they are catched in the ſame Net; and are fallen into the ſame Pit which they deſigned for others.

16. The LORD is known to execute Judgment: the ungodly is trapped in the Work of his own Hands.

17. The Wicked ſhall be turned into Hell: and all the People that forget God.

18. For the Poor ſhall not alway be forgotten: the patient abiding of the Meek ſhall not periſh for ever.

19. Up, Lord, and let not Man have the upper hand: let the Heathen be judged in thy ſight.

20. Put them in fear, O Lord: that the Heathen may know themſelves to be but Men.

The X. PSALM.

Ut quid, Domine?

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is without any Title in the Hebrew; but ſhould ſeem to be compoſed by David under ſome great Trouble, when he was perſecuted by Saul.

WHY ſtandeſt thou ſo far off, O LORD: and hideſt thy face in the needful time of trouble?

2. The Ungodly for his own Luſt doth perſecute the Poor: let them be taken in the crafty wilineſs that they have imagined.

3. For the Ungodly hath made boaſt of his own hearts deſire: and ſpeaketh good of the Covetous whom God abhorreth.

4. The Ungodly is ſo proud, that he careth not for God: neither is God in all his Thoughts.

5. His ways are always grievous: thy Judgments are far above out of his ſight, and therefore defieth he all his Enemies.

6. For he hath ſaid in his heart, Tuſh, I ſhall never be caſt down: there ſhall no harm happen unto me.

7. His mouth is full of Curſing, Deceit, and Fraud: under his Tongue is Ungodlineſs and Vanity.

8. He ſitteth lurking in the thieviſh corners of the Streets: and privily in his lurking Dens doth he murder the Innocent; his Eyes are ſet againſt the Poor.

9. For he lieth waiting ſecretly, even as a Lion lurketh he in his Den: that he may raviſh the Poor.

10. He doth raviſh the Poor: when he getteth him into his Net.

11. He falleth down and humbleth himſelf: that the Congregation of the Poor may fall into the hands of his Captains.

12. He

16. Now this is a ſingular Mark of God's wiſe and righteous Judgment, that he ſhould bring it ſo about, that wicked Men, whilſt they are projecting other Mens Ruin, ſhould work their own Deſtruction.

17. Thus other Infidel Nations, who have not the Knowledge of the true God, but oppoſe themſelves againſt his choſen People, ſhall be deſtroyed.

18. But God ſhall not forget his poor Servants, and, tho' he ſuffers them to continue ſome time under their Oppreſſion, he will come at laſt to their Relief.

19. But, O Lord, let not thy Juſtice ſeem any longer to ſleep, but vigorouſly riſe up in our defence: let not our Enemies boaſt themſelves, that they have gotten the better of thy Power; as if they little Mortals could be too hard for Omnipotence: call them before thy Judgment-Seat, to account for their Actions.

20. Teach them, by ſome very ſevere Diſpenſation, to be afraid of offending thee; that theſe prophane Idolaters may know that they are but frail Creatures, and that it is in vain for them to contend with thee, the great Creator of all things.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. X.

O Lord, why doſt thou ſtand at this diſtance from me, and ſeemeſt to hide thy Face, from ſo much as looking upon the ſad Calamity which I am under?

2. The ungodly Men (viz. Saul and his Faction) do perſecute me a poor helpleſs Perſon, for no reaſon but only to gratifie their own inſolent Temper; but let the crafty Deſigns, which they have contrived againſt me, turn upon themſelves.

3. This unrighteous Faction make great Boaſts of that ſide, which their Intereſt and Affection leads them to; and give out large Encomiums upon Extortion and Tyranny, which God, a better Judge than they, does above all things abhor.

4. They are ſo proud and haughty, that they will not vouchſafe to ſubmit to an Enquiry, of what God has declared his Will to be by his holy Prophets; and that, becauſe all things are at their Diſpoſal now, they have no thought, that God will hereafter otherwiſe order them.

5. They contrive, in the whole courſe of their Actions, to create Grief and Vexation to good Men; when we tell them, that thou, O God, wilt revenge the Injuries they do us, they think theſe Judgments of thine are a great way off out of ſight, and not much to be feared; and upon this reaſon they deſpiſe all, who do not cloſe with them.

6. They laugh at the Davidical Party, and ſay, We are in Poſſeſſion now, and are like to continue ſo; for no Harm can be expected from ſo contemptible a Faction as That.

7. Their Mouths are full of prophane Curſes, and deceitful Words.

8. They have their Agents, who lie lurking in every blind corner of the Ways, to catch innocent honeſt Men, and under pretence of being Traytors to murder them, their Eyes being upon ſuch Perſons wherever they go.

9. No Lion watches with more diligence for his Prey, than thoſe Informers do, to catch theſe poor Men.

10. And they are but too frequently ſucceſsful in this wicked Enterprize, deceiving Innocent Men by theſe Stratagems.

11. They crouch down to the Ground, that no body may obſerve them; ſo that if there happen to be any meeting of pious and well-affected Men, they are preſently taken up and put under a Guard of Soldiers.

12. They

12. He hath ſaid in his Heart, Tuſh, God hath forgotten: he hideth away his face, and he will never ſee it.
13. Ariſe, O LORD God, and lift up thine Hand: forget not the Poor.
14. Wherefore ſhould the Wicked blaſpheme God: while he doth ſay in his Heart, Tuſh, thou God careſt not for it.
15. Surely thou haſt ſeen it: for thou beholdeſt Ungodlineſs and Wrong.
16. That thou mayeſt take the matter into thy hand: the Poor committeth himſelf unto thee; for thou art the helper of the Friendleſs.
17. Break thou the Power of the ungodly and malicious: take away his Ungodlineſs, and thou ſhalt find none.
18. The LORD is King for and ever: and the Heathen are periſhed out of the Land.
19. LORD, thou haſt heard the deſire of the Poor: thou prepareſt their Heart, and thine Ear hearkeneth thereto.
20. To help the Fatherleſs and Poor unto their Right: that the Man of the Earth be no more exalted againſt them.

The XI. PSALM.

In Domino confido.

¶ ¶ This is a Pſalm of David, thought to be written during the time of his Perſecution by Saul.

IN the LORD put I my truſt: how ſay ye then to my Soul, that ſhe ſhould flee as a Bird unto the Hill?
2. For lo, the Ungodly bend their Bow, and make ready their Arrows within their Quivers: that they may privily ſhoot at them which are true of heart.
3. For the Foundations will be caſt down: and what hath the Righteous done?
4. The LORD is in his holy Temple: the LORD's Seat is in Heaven.
5. His Eyes conſider [the Poor:] and his Eye-lids try the Children of Men.
6. The LORD alloweth the Righteous: but the Ungodly, and him that delighteth in Wickedneſs, doth his Soul abhor.
7. Upon the Ungodly he ſhall rain Snares, Fire and Brimſtone, Storm and Tempeſt: this ſhall be their Portion to drink.
8. For the righteous LORD loveth Righteouſneſs: his Countenance will behold the thing that is juſt.

EVEN-

12. They ſay to themſelves, God has forgotten what he promiſed David, by his Prophet, concerning the Kingdom; and God does not take notice of what is done againſt him.
13. But I beſeech thee, O God, to riſe up in my defence, and hold up thy Hand, to confirm by Oath the Promiſe of the Kingdom made to me; and forget not thy poor Servant in diſtreſs. Vide Chaldee Paraphraſe.
14. For why ſhouldſt thou give the Wicked an Opportunity to blaſpheme thy Name, and to ſay thou doſt not take care of thy Servants, or to fulfil thy Promiſe?
15. For certain thou haſt taken notice, of the injurious Treatment which I have received; for as nothing is hid from thee, ſo thou doſt particularly behold the Wrong, that is done to innocent Perſons.
16. And I deſire thee to take my Cauſe into thy hand, which I in my diſconſolate Friendleſs Condition, entirely commit to thee; for thou art a Guardian to the Orphan.
17. Leſſen the Power of my unrighteous Adverſaries; and continually deprive them of that force, which they make uſe of to do miſchief, till it be all taken away, and there be no more of it to be found.
18. The Lord now is recognized by all to be the everlaſting King, for all the Heathen are deſtroyed out of the Territories of Iſrael.
19. Thou haſt heard the Prayer of thy poor afflicted Servants, thou haſt inclined their Hearts with Earneſtneſs and Confidence to beg thy aſſiſtance, and then doſt vouchſafe to comply with their Petition:
20. To adminiſter Juſtice to Orphans and diſtreſſed Perſons, that earthly Men may no longer oppreſs thoſe, who are protected by the God of Heaven.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XI.

SInce I have put my truſt in God, and depend upon his Protection; what ſignifie your Jeſts which you make upon me, ſaying, Fly little Bird to your Hill, where you, and your Flock of the ſame Feather are gathered? 1 Sam. 23. 14.
2. My ungodly Enemies are fitting their Arrows to their Bows, to wound me and other upright and innocent Perſons, who abet my Cauſe.
3. All the Foundations of the Laws are ſubverted, by the Tyranny of Saul; and righteous Men are ſo far from being defended, that they are cruelly perſecuted.
4. But let ſuch Perſons conſider, That there is a God, who has an eſpecial Reſidence in his Tabernacle among us, and whoſe moſt glorious Throne is in Heaven:
5. That this juſt God does vindicate the Cauſe of oppreſſed Perſons; and calls to an account every mortal Man, tho' never ſo great, for his Violence and Oppreſſion.
6. The Lord acquits good Men, and approves of their Actions; but as for thoſe who commit wicked Actions, and eſpecially thoſe who pleaſe themſelves with them, God Almighty has a great Abhorrence to them.
7. But upon wicked Men God ſhall ſhower down the greateſt Evils, ſuch as Snares, Fire, &c. forcing them with Reluctancy to bear them, as when one is compelled to drink a nauſeous Potion.
8. For God being good and righteous himſelf, loves that Qualification in others; and what is not honeſt and vertuous, he will give no Countenance to, either by approving of it, or rewarding it.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XII. PSALM.

Salvum me fac.

¶¶ A Pſalm of David. This Pſalm, probably, was compoſed, when he was betrayed by Doeg the Edomite, 1 Sam. 22. 23. and levelled againſt Saul's Courtiers, and other Informers employed by him.

HElp me, LORD, for there is not one godly Man left: for the Faithful are miniſhed from among the Children of Men.

2. They talk of Vanity every one with his Neighbour: they do but flatter with their Lips, and diſſemble in their double Heart.

3. The LORD ſhall root out all deceitful Lips: and the Tongue that ſpeaketh proud things.

4. Which have ſaid, With our Tongue will we prevail: we are they that ought to ſpeak, who is Lord over us?

5. Now for the comfortleſs troubles ſake of the Needy: and becauſe of the deep ſighing of the Poor;

6. I will up, ſaith the Lord: and will help every one from him that ſwelleth againſt him, and will ſet him at reſt.

7. The words of the Lord are pure words: even as the Silver, which from the Earth is tried, and purified ſeven times in the Fire.

8. Thou ſhalt keep them, O Lord: thou ſhalt preſerve him from this Generation for ever.

9. The Ungodly walk on every ſide: when they are exalted, the Children of Men are put to rebuke.

The XIII. PSALM.

Uſque quo, Domine?

HOW long wilt thou forget me, O LORD, for ever: how long wilt thou hide thy face from me?

2. How long ſhall I ſeek counſel in my Soul, and be ſo vexed in my Heart: how long ſhall mine Enemies triumph over me?

3. Conſider and hear me, O LORD my God: lighten my Eyes, that I ſleep not in Death.

4. Leſt mine Enemy ſay, I have prevailed againſt him: for if I be caſt down, they that trouble me will rejoyce at it.

5. But my truſt is in thy Mercy: and my Heart is joyful in thy Salvation.

6. I will

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XII.

O Lord, I beſeech thee, to give me thy Aſſiſtance, for I am betrayed by every Man whom I confide in; and I cannot find a faithful Man, whom I may rely on any-where.

2. They combine together, every-where, againſt me, eſpecially among the Abettors of Saul's Tyranny, who are ſo very numerous; and tho' they ſpeak me fair to my Face, yet they are full of Diſſimulation and Deceit.

3. But the Lord, who ſupports my Cauſe, will deſtroy ſuch falſe Diſſemblers, and likewiſe thoſe Perſons who ſpeak againſt me with ſo much pride and diſdain.

4. Thoſe Men who are wont to ſay, With our Tongues we will deſtroy David, by Informations and Satyrical Speeches againſt him; we are indulged by the Favour of the Court, a Liberty of ſpeaking what we pleaſe againſt him, and therefore who ſhall controul us?

5. But to theſe Men, the Lord himſelf is pleaſed to give an Anſwer; Conſidering what Hardſhips and Oppreſſions my poor Servants ſuſtain;

6. I will riſe up in their Defence, and will place them in Safety and Honour; to the great Grief of thoſe, who now look big and ſwoln upon them with Pride and Contempt.

7. Now this Promiſe of God, is not, like theirs, full of Diſſimulation, but pure and ſincere; and as free from all Deceit, as that Silver is free from Droſs, which is refined ſeven times over.

8. And, conſonant to this Promiſe, thou ſhalt ever hereafter keep and preſerve thy Servants from any Evil, which ſhall be contrived againſt them, by this wicked Generation.

9. But as for their ungodly Adverſaries, tho' they walk about in Power and Authority, yet even in this their ſeeming Exaltation, the Curſe of God is upon them, and the Torment of their own evil Conſciences.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XIII.

HOW long wilt thou be forgetful to deliver me from mine Enemies, O Lord? wilt thou always be ſo? wilt thou always, as a Token of thy Anger, turn thy Face from me?

2. How long ſhall I be forced to entertain ſuch penſive Thoughts and workings of my Mind, ſo many ſad and vexatious Reflections? How long wilt thou ſuffer mine Enemies to inſult and triumph over me?

3. I beſeech thee to afford a due Regard to my Requeſt I put up to thee, and in thy good time to grant it; refreſh my Eyes with vital Light, for if my Trouble much longer continues upon me, the dark Sleep of Death will overſhadow me.

4. For this will give my Enemy occaſion boaſtingly to ſay, That notwithſtanding his pretended Divine Protection, I have been too hard for him: For, if I do not partake of thy Deliverance which I have truſted in, my wicked Adverſaries will profanely mock at my downfal.

5. But I will place all my Confidence in thy Goodneſs; and my Heart, however depreſſed by Trouble, ſhall ſtill be joyful in hopes of thy Deliverance.

6. I will

6. I will ſing of the LORD, becauſe he hath dealt ſo lovingly with me: [yea, I will praiſe the Name of the Lord moſt Higheſt.]

The XIV. PSALM.

Dixit inſipiens.

¶¶ This Pſalm ſets forth an univerſal Corruption of manners, which did prevail in ſome part of David's Reign.

THE Fool hath ſaid in his Heart: There is no God.

2. They are corrupt, and become abominable in their Doings: there is none that doeth good, no not one.

3. The Lord looked down from Heaven upon the Children of Men: to ſee if there were any that would underſtand, and ſeek after God.

4. But they are all gone out of the way, they are *al*together become abominable; there is none that doeth good, [no not one.]

5. [Their Throat is an open Sepulchre, with their Tongues have they deceived: the Poiſon of Aſps is under their Lips.

6. Their Mouth is full of Curſing, and Bitterneſs: their Feet are ſwift to ſhed Blood.

7. Deſtruction and Unhappineſs is in their ways, and the way of Peace have they not known: there is no fear of God before their Eyes.]

8. Have they no knowledge, that they are all ſuch Workers of Miſchief: eating up my People as it were Bread, and call not upon the LORD?

9. There were they brought in great fear, [even where no fear was:] for God is the Generation of the Righteous.

10. As for you, ye have made mock at the Counſel of the Poor: becauſe he putteth his truſt in the LORD.

11. Who ſhall give Salvation unto Iſrael out of Sion? When the LORD turneth in the Captivity of his People: then ſhall Jacob rejoyce, and Iſrael ſhall be glad.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XV. PSALM.

Domine, quis habitabit?

¶¶ This Pſalm teaches, what Qualifications are required, to make one a True Member of the Church of God.

LORD, who ſhall dwell in thy Tabernacle: or who ſhall reſt upon thy holy Hill?

2. Even

6. I will, notwithſtanding my Afflictions, compoſe Pſalms of Praiſe in remembrance of thy former Favours, and in expectation of future; and the Theme of my Poetry ſhall be, The moſt high God.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XIV.

THE fooliſh irreligious Man has thought with himſelf, tho' he be not ſo prophane to utter it, that there is no Deity.

2. We live in a Generation, that are very corrupt in their Morals, and by their wicked Lives are become very hateful to God; and 'tis very hard to find a pious Man, eſpecially among the Abettors of Saul's Tyranny.

3. The Lord looked down from his heavenly Throne, to take a view of Mankind, to ſee if there were any that had the true Knowledge of God, and had a hearty Senſe of Religion.

4. But no ſuch were to be ſeen; there was not ſo much as one Man of Piety, and Integrity, to be found.

5. They had Mouths, which were as dangerous to entrap Men, as uncovered Graves; they had Lips as full of Poiſon, as thoſe of an Adder.

6. They make uſe of their Mouths, to vomit out bitter Curſes againſt good Men; and employ their Feet to hunt after innocent Perſons, that they may take away their Lives.

7. They are engag'd in a wicked Courſe of Life, which leads to Deſtruction and Miſery; but as for the Life of Piety, which tends to Peace and Happineſs, they are perfect Strangers to it; they have no reverential Awe upon them, of God's Providence, and future Recompence.

8. Strange! that among ſuch a number of Men, no one ſhould be endowed with a juſt Senſe of Religion! That all ſhould be ſuch Contrivers of Miſchief! That they ſhould ſet themſelves to devour good Men, with a like Greedineſs, as a hungry Man eats a piece of Bread! That they ſhould live under ſuch an univerſal Contempt, and neglect of God, and his Worſhip!

9. But ſee the Event of their Wickedneſs, and Irreligion; God Almighty has made them to fear, when there was no manner of occaſion for it; but God is among the Society of good Men, who, whilſt they have his Defence, are under no Deſpondency.

10. But as for you our Enemies, you diſavow the Divine Protection, by making a Jeſt at us diſtreſſed Perſons, for taking our Reſolutions according to the direction of God's Law, and for repoſing our Truſt in him.

11. But, under this great degree of Hardſhip and Oppreſſion, When can we expect that God, who dwells in Mount Sion, ſhall afford us a Deliverance?

We may in ſome meaſure expect it, when God ſhall deliver his People from the Slavery of Saul's Tyrannick Oppreſſion; but chiefly, when they ſhall be delivered by the Meſſias, from the Power of Satan, a greater Tyrant over the Souls of Men. That will be a time of great Joy, for the People of Iſrael.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XV.

WHat Qualifications are requiſite, to entitle a Man to be a devout frequenter of thy Tabernacle, which is placed on the holy Hill Sion?

1. He

2. Even he that leadeth an uncorrupt Life: and doeth the thing which is Right, and ſpeaketh the Truth from his Heart.

3. He that hath uſed no Deceit in his Tongue, nor done Evil to his Neighbour: and hath not ſlandered his Neighbour.

4. He that ſetteth not by himſelf, but is lowly in his own Eyes: and maketh much of them that fear the Lord.

5. He that ſweareth unto his Neighbour, and diſappointeth him not: though it were to his own hindrance.

6. He that hath not given his Money upon Uſury: nor taken Reward againſt the Innocent.

7. Whoſo doeth theſe things: ſhall never fall.

The XVI. PSALM.

Conſerva me, Domine.

¶¶ The Title of this Pſalm is, a Mictam of David, probably ſome remarkable Tune, or way of playing, then in uſe. The Chaldee-Paraphraſt interprets it, A curious piece of Engraving; and the Septuagint tranſlates it, An Inſcription on a Pillar. 'Twas wrote probably, under his Perſecution by Saul.

PReſerve me, O God: for in thee have I put my Truſt.

2. O my Soul, thou haſt ſaid unto the LORD: Thou art my GOD, my Goods are nothing unto thee.

3. All my delight is upon the Saints that are in the Earth: and upon ſuch as excel in Vertue.

4. But they that run after another God: ſhall have great Trouble.

5. Their Drink-offerings of Blood will I not offer: neither make mention of their Names within my Lips.

6. The LORD himſelf is the Portion of my Inheritance, and of mine Cup: thou ſhalt maintain my Lot.

7. The Lot is fallen unto me in a fair ground: yea, I have a goodly Heritage.

8. I will thank the LORD for giving me warning: my Reins alſo chaſten me in the night-ſeaſon.

9. I have ſet GOD always before me: for he is on my right-Hand, therefore I ſhall not fall.

10. Wherefore my Heart was glad, and my Glory rejoyced: my Fleſh alſo ſhall reſt in hope.

11. For

2. He that leadeth an innocent Life, void of any remarkable Sin; that doth all the good Actions, which he is oblig'd to perform; that is plain and ſincere, and uſes no diſſimulation in his Words or Actions:

3. That Man, who doth not accuſtom his Tongue to Falſities; who does not miſchief his Neighbour, by betraying his Secrets, or by inventing Calumnies to his Prejudice.

4. He that is endowed with the Vertue of Humility, having a modeſt Opinion of his own Qualifications; prefers others before himſelf, and pays all juſt Honour and Kindneſs to the Servants of God, though in never ſo mean a Condition.

5. He who, when he has entered into a Promiſe, or eſpecially when he has engag'd himſelf by an Oath to his Friend, will not fail him, tho' great Inconveniences to himſelf may ariſe from it.

6. He who hath not lent out his Money upon Uſury, which is ſo ſtrictly forbid in the Moſaick Law, Exod. 22. 25. Lev. 25. 36. and if he be truſted with a judicial Power, will not ſuffer himſelf to be corrupted with Bribes to betray an innocent Man's Cauſe, Deut. 27. 19.

7. The Man who ſquares his Actions by theſe Rules, need never fear miſcarrying in his Duty.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XVI.

I Being ſurrounded with many Troubles, apply my ſelf to thee, O God, beſeeching thee to deliver me from them; for I do not expect Deliverance from any other.

2. O my Soul, thou didſt very truly pronounce of Almighty God, when thou didſt ſay to him, Thou art my God, of whom I have receiv'd the greateſt Favours, which I can no ways pretend to merit of thee, or requite thee for; for all the good things which I am poſſeſs'd of, and all the good Actions I can do, ſignifie nothing to thee, that inexhauſtible Fountain both of Bounty and Holineſs.

But, though I do not pretend to merit any thing at God's Hand, yet I cannot but own, that I am not ſuch an ill Perſon, as my Adverſaries pretend; for my chief Satisfaction that I take, is, how I may reward good Men, when I am advanced to the Throne of Iſrael, and ſuch as ſhall diſtinguiſh themſelves, for any remarkable Vertue.

4. But, as for Heathen-Idolaters, and Worſhippers of ſtrange Gods, they ſhall be troubled under my Government, to their utter Extirpation.

5. I will never joyn in any of the impious Sacrifices of Blood, offered to theſe Idols; nay, I will not profane my Lips, with the mention of their accurſed Names.

6. But, Thanks be to God, in that Kingdom where I am to inherit, the Worſhip of the true God is eſtabliſhed; and I doubt not, but that God, who promiſed me this Inheritance, will ſecure it to me.

7. The Lot which, as it were by a Line or a Chain, thou haſt meaſured out for my Portion, has happened to be a very deſirable Eſtate; the Kingdom of Judea being an inheritance, which any one might covet.

8. I own it, as a great Favour and Obligation laid upon me by Almighty God, for that he has been pleaſed to be my Counſeller, by ſending theſe Afflictions upon me, which have had their proper Effect, in ſufficiently humbling me, and bringing me to an hearty truſt in him alone; and for that he gives me Grace, to be inſtructed by my Reins, (i. e. my inward Thoughts and Reflections upon myſelf) at Night, and other times of Retirement.

9. I have made God always the Object of my Thoughts; and therefore he being ſo nigh me, and as it were on my right Hand, I have no diſtruſt that my Enemies ſhall prevail againſt me.

10. Upon theſe Conſiderations my Heart was rejoyced, and my Honour, which was depreſſed very low, revived; my Body, which was, as it were, buried in Affliction, ſhall expect a glorious Reſurrection.

11. And

11. For why? thou ſhalt not leave my Soul in Hell: neither ſhall thou ſuffer thy holy One to ſee Corruption.

12. Thou ſhalt ſhew me the Path of Life; in thy preſence is the fulneſs of Joy: and at thy right Hand there is pleaſure for evermore.

The XVII. PSALM.

Exaudi Domine.

HEar the Right, O Lord, conſider my Complaint: and hearken unto my Prayer, that goeth not out of feigned Lips.

2. Let my Sentence come forth from thy preſence: and let thine Eyes look upon the thing that is equal.

3. Thou haſt proved, and viſited mine Heart in the Night-Seaſon; thou haſt tried me, and ſhalt find no Wickedneſs in me: for I am utterly purpoſed that my Mouth ſhall not offend.

4. Becauſe of Mens Works, that are done againſt the Words of my Lips, I have kept me from the ways of the Deſtroyer.

5. O hold thou up my goings in thy Paths: that my foot-ſteps ſlip not.

6. I have called upon thee, O God, for thou ſhalt hear me: incline thine Ear to me, and hearken unto my words.

7. Shew thy marvellous loving Kindneſs, thou that art the Saviour of them which put their truſt in thee: from ſuch as reſiſt thy right Hand.

8. Keep me as the Apple of an Eye: hide me under the ſhadow of thy Wings.

9. From the Ungodly that trouble me: mine Enemies compaſs me round about to take away my Soul.

10. They are incloſed in their own Fat: and their Mouth ſpeaketh proud things.

11. They lie waiting in our way on every ſide: turning their Eyes down to the ground.

12. Like as a Lion that is greedy of his Prey: and as it were a Lion's Whelp lurking in ſecret Places.

13. Up, LORD, diſappoint him, and caſt him down: deliver my Soul from the Ungodly, which is a Sword of thine.

14. From

11. And that for this Reaſon; becauſe the Meſſias, (who is to be born of me, and who liveth in me, Gal. 2. 20.) ſhall not have his Soul left in the State of the Dead; nor he, who is anointed to that ſacred Office, have his Body putrified, like ordinary Corpſes, in the Grave.

12. Nay, I have an undoubted Affiance, that, though my cruel Perſecutors ſhould deſtroy me, thou wilt direct me to the Path of Life, (as the Original expreſſes it) and bring me thro' the Merits of the Meſſias, to everlaſting Happineſs; where I, together with him, in the Divine Preſence, ſhall partake of fulneſs of Joy; and being nigh my Saviour, who ſits at the right Hand of God, ſhall enjoy everlaſting Pleaſures.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XVII.

O Lord, I appeal to thee, to hear the Right of my Cauſe, and to enquire into my Life, if I am guilty of thoſe rebellious Preparations againſt Saul, which mine Adverſaries accuſe me of; I appeal with all ſincerity to thee, who art the God of Truth, who hateſt a Lie, and all manner of Diſſimulation.

2. Do thou, from thy heavenly Tribunal, pronounce me innocent; and let thy unerring Judgment look into the Juſtice of my Cauſe.

3. For thou knoweſt exactly, not only what I have ſaid, or done, openly and in company, but the very Thoughts of my Heart, and what my Mind has ſuggeſted to itſelf, in my cloſeſt Retirement, even upon my Bed; and yet, I am ſure, thou haſt found no rebellious Purpoſe in my Heart: Nay, thou art ſo far a Witneſs for me, that I have made a Reſolution, not to give Offence to Saul, or his Adherents, by any imprudent Word.

4. By reaſon of the unwarrantable Actions of ſome Men, who have ventured upon Rebellion, notwithſtanding thy Laws, the Words of thy Lips, have forbidden it; I have kept my ſelf from any deſtructive Methods, and from making away with Saul, when it was in my Power to do it.

5. O Lord, by thy Grace direct the Courſe of my Actions that I be not provoked by Saul's ill Uſage, to do any thing unlawfully againſt him.

6. I have begged Succour of thee alone, by my earneſt Prayers put up unto thee, as well knowing that thou wilt aſſiſt me; O do thou therefore, from thy heavenly Throne, bow down thine Ear, to hearken to my Addreſs.

7. Exert thy miraculous Power in my behalf; thou, O God, who art remarkably famous, for vindicating Innocent Perſons, from the Violence of injurious Oppreſſors.

8. Since, therefore, I commit my ſelf entirely to thy Protection, I beſeech thee to preſerve me, with as much care and Choiceneſs, as the Pupil of the Eye is guarded by the Lid; and with as much Tenderneſs, as a Bird laps her Wing over her young ones, when they are in Danger.

9. In like manner, do thou defend me from thoſe ungodly Perſons, my Adverſaries in Saul's Court, who endeavour to take away my Life, and beſet me round with as much diligence, as if they were inveſting a City.

10. They take their Swinge, and are grown fat with the full Enjoyment of all Temporal Bleſſings; and this elates them to that degree of Pride, as to put them upon ſpeaking ſcornful, and contemptuous Words againſt me.

11. They lie in wait for me, having on every ſide beſet me, 2 Sam. 23. 26. turning their Eyes downwards, as Hounds and wild Beaſts do, when they hunt after their Game and Prey.

12. Nay, no hungry Lion runs after his Prey with ſo much Greedineſs, lodges himſelf with ſo much Craft, and leaps out of his lurking-hole with ſo much Nimbleneſs, as Saul's Agents do all this, to take me.

13. But do thou, O Lord, riſe up in my defence, and preſerve my Life from theſe wicked Enemies, who can do nothing without thy Permiſſion, and are but a Sword in thine Hand, which thou canſt hinder from doing Execution, at thy Pleaſure.

14. From the Men of thy Hand, O LORD, from the Men, I say, and from the evil World: which have their Portion in this Life, whose Bellies thou fillest with thy hid Treasure.

15. They have Children at their desire: and leave the rest of their substance for their Babes.

16. But as for me, I will behold thy presence in Righteousness: and when I awake up after thy likeness, I shall be satisfied with it.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XVIII. PSALM.

Deligam te, Domine.

¶ ¶ The Hebrew Title is, a Psalm of David, the Servant of the Lord, who spake unto the Lord the Words of this Song, in the day that the Lord delivered him from the Hands of all his Enemies, and from the Hand of Saul. It was probably composed, some time after he was in Possession of the Kingdom.

I Will love thee, O LORD, my strength; the LORD is my stony Rock, and my Defence: my Saviour, my God, and my Might, in whom I will trust, my Buckler, the Horn also of my Salvation, and my Refuge.

2. I will call upon the LORD, which is worthy to be praised: So shall I be safe from mine Enemies.

3. The Sorrows of Death compassed me: and the Overflowings of Ungodliness made me afraid.

4. The Pains of Hell came about me: the Snares of Death overtook me.

5. In my Trouble I will call upon the LORD: and complain unto my God.

6. So shall he hear my Voice out of his holy Temple: and my Complaint shall come before him, it shall enter even into his Ears.

7. The earth trembled and quaked: the very Foundations also of the Hills shook, and were removed, because he was wroth.

8. There went a Smoke out in his Presence: and a consuming Fire out of his Mouth, so that Coals were kindled at it.

9. He bowed the Heavens also, and came down: and it was dark under his Feet.

10. He rode upon the Cherubins, and did flie: he came flying upon the Wings of the Wind.

11. He made Darkness his secret place: his Pavilion round about him with dark Water, and thick Clouds to cover him.

12. At the brightness of his presence his Clouds removed: Hail-stones, and Coals of Fire.

13. The

14. Deliver me from these Persons, who are but Men of thy Hand, that thou canst manage as thou wilt; save me from these worldly Men, who have nothing further in their View than this Life, and expect no Portion in any other; whose Appetites thou art pleased to gratifie to the full, by affording them all the Satisfaction, which this Life affords.

15. They are gratified, in having as many Children as they please; and, when they go out of the World, they leave plentiful Estates to their Posterity.

16. But on the other side, I comfort myself; that by doing Righteous and good Actions, I shall enjoy thy Presence in a future State, which is beyond all the good things of this Life; and when I shall awake from the Grave, and be formed again after thy Image, I shall for ever enjoy the fullest Satisfaction.

Paraphrase on Psal. XVIII.

I Will always love, and pay my marks of Gratitude to thee, for thou art my Castle, and place of Strength, much more impregnable than one situate upon a craggy Rock; thou art my Preserver, and in a peculiar manner my God; thou art such a mighty and noble Defence, that I may with security trust in; thou art my Sanctuary, to whom, as to the Horns of the Altar, I flye for Refuge.

2. At any time when I am under Troubles and Difficulties, I will address myself to the celebrated JEHOVAH, and he shall deliver me from mine Enemies.

3. The Pangs of Death surrounded me; and the Wickedness of my Adversaries, which bore in upon me like a Torrent, put me in great fear.

4. Such Pains as lead to Hades, or the State of the Dead, (whither I could not but think I was going) did circle me round; and a mortal Conspiracy against me was just upon taking effect.

5. But then I flie to my wonted Remedy, which is, in the midst of my Trouble, to call upon the Lord, and to lay before him my Suffering.

6. And then he hears my Voice out of his holy Temple, the place of his Residential Presence; and there he suffers my Complaint to be brought before him.

7. And behold! I see him approaching towards my Relief; at whose presence the Ground begins to tremble, and, of a sudden, the very Foundations of the Hills shake, and are removed out of their Places, as not being able to abide the Anger of the great God.

8. There went out a Smoke before his Face, and a Fire out of his Mouth, which devoured all before him, and turned every thing about him, into Coals and Ashes.

9. He wrap'd himself in a tempestuous Cloud, which hung low, and let him down nigh to the Earth, skreening away the Sun, by the black Vapour encircling him, and making all dark below him.

10. He came riding on a Cherubin with incredible Velocity, having his Course hastened by the Wings of the Wind.

11. Darkness was spread over him as a Tent, and Clouds thick with Rain covered him.

12. Afterwards, as he began more to discover his Presence, the Darkness of the Clouds disappear'd; and Hail-stones, and red-hot Thunderbolts, like so many great fiery Coals, were shot out from him.

13. He

13. The Lord alſo thundred out of Heaven, and the Higheſt gave his thunder: hail-ſtones, and Coals of fire.

14. He ſent out his Arrows, and ſcattered them: he caſt forth Lightnings, and deſtroyed them.

15. The Springs of Waters were ſeen, and the Foundations of the round World were diſcovered at thy chiding, O LORD: at the Blaſting of the Breath of thy Diſpleaſure.

16. He ſhall ſend down from on high to fetch me: and ſhall take me out of many Waters.

17. He ſhall deliver me from my ſtrongeſt Enemy, and from them which hate me: for they are too mighty for me.

18. They prevented me in the day of my trouble: but the LORD was my Upholder.

19. He brought me forth alſo into a place of liberty: he brought me forth, even becauſe he had a Favour unto me.

20. The LORD ſhall reward me after my righteous dealing: according to the cleanneſs of my Hands ſhall he recompenſe me.

21. Becauſe I have kept the ways of the LORD: and have not forſaken my God, as the Wicked doth.

22. For I have an Eye unto all his Laws: and will not caſt out his Commandments from me.

23. I was always uncorrupt before him: and eſchewed mine own Wickedneſs.

24. Therefore ſhall the LORD reward me after my righteous dealing: and according unto the cleanneſs of my Hands in his Eye-ſight.

25. With the Holy thou ſhalt be holy: and with a perfect Man thou ſhalt be perfect.

26. With the Clean thou ſhalt be clean: and with the Froward thou ſhalt learn frowardneſs.

27. For thou ſhalt ſave the People that are in Adverſity: and ſhalt bring down the high looks of the proud.

28. Thou alſo ſhalt light my Candle: the LORD my God ſhall make my Darkneſs to be Light.

29. For

13. He then thundred from above, with ſuch a Thunder, as evinced him to be the moſt High God, and the Governour of the Univerſe; and then again his Hail-ſtones and red-hot Thunderbolts.

14. Theſe were the terrible Arrows, he ſhot out, to ſcatter his and my Enemies; adding withal, diſmal Flaſhes of Lightning to deſtroy them.

15. By the force of a dreadful Earthquake, the Bowels of the Earth were ripped up, and new Springs of Water were diſcovered; the deep Caverns of the Earth, which lay loweſt and higheſt to its Centre, were brought to light, when the great God ſhewed his Anger, and manifeſted this Hurricane of his Diſpleaſure.

16. Then God ſends an Order down from Heaven, to bring me to him, and to deliver me from the many Dangers, which, like a Deluge, were like to overwhelm me.

17. Delivering me from the Malice of Saul, my moſt powerful Enemy, and from his Adherents, which bore an implacable hatred againſt me; he being ſo kind to be aſſiſtant to me, at a time, when I was not able to encounter with them.

18. They many times ſurpriſed me unawares, in thoſe troubleſome days of my Life; but the Lord was my Staff, to ſupport me.

19. He brought me forth out of the Priſon, which my Adverſaries had ſhut me up in, into this eminent State of Freedom, which I have enjoyed, ſince I have been advanced to the Regal State: This he has vouchſafed to do, out of his great Goodneſs towards me.

20. This Favour I have received from God, as a Reward of my gentle Uſage of Saul my Enemy, in whoſe Blood I wou'd not imbrue my Hands, when I had ſo fair an Opportunity for it, and when the ill Treatment he had given me, and my own Security, pleaded ſo ſtrong for it.

21. For having gone through this Trial, I had the Advantage of no inconſiderable a Teſt, that I had a true Reverence for God's Laws, and that I would not tranſgreſs them, as wicked Men do, when they have the proſpect of reaping any conſiderable Gain by their Sin.

22. I always had in view the Obſervation of his holy Laws, not ſlighting them, and laying them aſide, as too many do.

23. I always endeavoured to be as entire and perfect in my whole Life, as ever I could, and avoided, in myſelf, every known Sin.

24. Therefore the Lord doth confer this great Favour upon me, in recompence of the Purity and Innocence of my Converſation.

25. Such, O God, are the wiſe Diſpenſations of thy Providence, that Men ſhall receive from thee Returns ſuitable to their Regards to thy Laws; To the holy Man thou ſhalt ſhew thy ſelf a holy God, by rewarding his Piety: To the perfect and upright Man thou ſhalt demonſtrate thyſelf a God of Integrity, by making good thy Promiſes to him.

26. If a Man leads a Life of Purity and Holineſs, God will declare himſelf a holy God, in rewarding every degree of it: But if a Man ſhew himſelf Froward, and diſobedient to God's Commands, God will oppoſe him with as much Stiffneſs, and will inflict a Puniſhment equal to his Obſtinacy.

27. For it is thy Nature, O God, to deliver Perſons that are in Affliction, and to quell the Confidence of their proud Adverſaries.

28. And upon this Conſideration, I always expect that God ſhould refreſh my dying Lamp, when it is going out, and turn the Darkneſs of Adverſity, into the Light of Proſperity.

29. By

29. For in thee I ſhall diſcomfit an Hoſt of Men: and with the help of my God I ſhall leap over the Wall.

30. The way of God is an undefiled way: the Word of the Lord alſo is tried in the Fire; he is the Defender of all them that put their truſt in him.

31. For who is God but the LORD: or who hath any ſtrength, except our God?

32. It is God that girdeth me with ſtrength of War: and maketh my way perfect.

33. He maketh my Feet like Harts Feet: and ſetteth me up on high.

34. He teacheth mine Hands to fight: and mine Arms ſhall break even a Bow of Steel.

35. Thou haſt given me the defence of thy Salvation: thy right Hand alſo ſhall hold me up, and thy loving Correction ſhall make me great.

36. Thou ſhalt make room enough under me for to go: that my Footſteps ſhall not ſlide.

37. I will follow upon mine Enemies, and overtake them: neither will I turn again till I have deſtroyed them.

38. I will ſmite them, that they ſhall not be able to ſtand: but fall under my Feet.

39. Thou haſt girded me with ſtrength unto the Battel: thou ſhalt throw down mine Enemies under me.

40. Thou haſt made mine Enemies alſo to turn their Backs upon me: and I ſhall deſtroy them that hate me.

41. They ſhall cry, but there ſhall be none to help them: yea, even unto the LORD ſhall they cry, but he ſhall not hear them.

42. I will beat them as ſmall as the Duſt before the Wind: I will caſt them out as the Clay in the Streets.

43. Thou ſhalt deliver me from the ſtrivings of the People: and thou ſhalt make me the Head of the Heathen.

44. A People whom I have not known: ſhall ſerve me.

45. As ſoon as they hear of me, they ſhall obey me: but the ſtrange Children ſhall diſſemble with me.

46. The ſtrange Children ſhall fail: and be afraid out of their Priſons.

47. The

29. By thy Aſſiſtance, I ſhall not doubt at any time (as I have experienced formerly in the matter of Goliah) ſingly of myſelf to rout an Army; when I have thee to help me, I would venture to leap over the Trenches, and throw myſelf ſingly among all the Enemies.

30. For indeed God's Promiſes to his faithful Servants are immutable; the purified Gold is not ſo free from Droſs, as God's Promiſes from Falſhood; for ſome time or other he will be ſure to find out a way, to ſuccour them that truſt in him.

31. For who is a true God but our JEHOVAH? What Power have the Heathen-Idols and fictitious Gods, to ſuccour their Votaries?

32. In the time of War he girdeth on my Armour, and gives me ſtrength to oppoſe my Enemies; and in the time of Peace, he inſpires me with ſuch civil Vertues, as make me perfect and accompliſhed in that State.

33. When I have occaſion to fly from mine Enemies, as in my helpleſs Condition I was forced to do from Saul, he gives my Feet the ſwiftneſs of a Hind purſued by the Dogs; he then ſets me in a place of ſafety, out of the Adverſaries reach; as when I was forced to fly to the Mountains from the Fury of Saul, 1 Sam. 27. 1.

34. He inſtructs me in the Art of War; and gives me ſtrength ſufficient, to force a Steel-Bow out of my Enemies Hand, and to break it before his Face.

35. Thou haſt given me thy Salvation for my defenſive Arms; thy right Hand is my Recruit to ſupport me when I ſhrink in the Battle; and it is thy mild Diſcipline that makes me a renowned General.

36. Formerly, I was pent up in a narrow place, under Saul's Perſecution, forced to walk upon the tops of cragged Rocks, where I could hardly ſtand; but now thou haſt given me an ample Kingdom, to entertain myſelf in.

37. Being now encouraged by this noble Aſſiſtance, afforded me by my God, I will purſue my preſent Enemies, the Moabites, Philiſtines, &c. and put them to ſuch an entire Rout, that a Man of them ſhall not eſcape.

38. I will attack them with that Fury, that they ſhall not be able to make any ſtand before me; but ſhall throw down their Arms and beg Quarter of me, upon their Knees.

39. Thou haſt harneſſed me with ſtrong and impenetrable Armour, ſo that no one can hurt me; but my flying Enemies ſhall fall before me, and I ſhall tread upon them in the Purſuit.

40. Thou ſhalt make my foreign Enemies to fly before my Army; and thou ſhalt give me power to deſtroy my Domeſtick ones, the Remnant of the Saulian Faction.

41. They ſhall call out for Succours, but no Recruits ſhall come; they ſhall call upon God likewiſe, but they have too much provoked him, to be intituled to his Aſſiſtance.

42. I ſhall beat them into as ſmall parts, as the Duſt which is driven before the Wind, and they ſhall in as little time diſappear; I ſhall tread upon them as contemptuouſly, as upon the Dirt in the Streets.

43. Beſides, I truſt that thou, O God, wilt deliver me from all Seditions and Rebellions of my own People, and that thou wilt make my neighbouring Princes Dependents upon me.

44. And that foreign Nations, who are at ſo remote a diſtance from me, that I hardly know their Names, ſhall pay Tribute to me.

45. Aſſoon as they hear of me, and the noble Victories I have gained, they ſhall ſubmit themſelves to my Government; but yet the Obedience of theſe foreign Countries, I foreſee, will be but feigned and diſſembled.

46. But however, they ſhall be forced to a Subjection unto me, and be afraid out of their lurking-places, which they ſhall hide themſelves in.

47. My

47. The LORD liveth, and bleſſed be my ſtrong helper: and praiſed be the God of my Salvation.

48. Even the God that ſeeth that I be avenged: and ſubdueth the People unto me.

49. It is he that delivereth me from my cruel Enemies, and ſetteth me up above mine Adverſaries: thou ſhall rid me from the wicked Man.

50. For this Cauſe will I give Thanks unto thee, O Lord, among the Gentiles: and ſing Praiſes unto thy Name.

51. Great Proſperity giveth he unto his King: and ſheweth loving Kindneſs unto David his Anointed, and unto his Seed for evermore.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XIX. PSALM.

Cæli enarrant.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title is, To the Maſter of the Muſick, A Pſalm of David. The Deſign of this Pſalm is, to ſhew the extraordinary Spiritual Advantage which is to be reaped, from the Contemplation of the great Works of God's Creation, viz. The Heavenly Bodies, and other Parts of Nature, but chiefly from the Conſideration of thoſe excellent Rules of Morality, which in his holy Word he has given, for the Government of our Lives.

THE Heavens declare the Glory of God: and the Firmament ſheweth his handy-work.

2. One day telleth another: and one night certifieth another.

3. There is neither Speech nor Language: but their Voices are heard among them.

4. Their ſound is gone out into all Lands: and their Words into the ends of the World.

5. In them hath he ſet a Tabernacle for the Sun: which cometh forth as a Bridegroom out of his Chamber, and rejoyceth as a Giant to run his Courſe.

6. It goeth forth from the uttermoſt part of the Heaven, and runneth about unto the end of it again: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

7. The Law of the LORD is an undefiled Law, converting the Soul: the Teſtimony of the LORD is ſure, and giveth Wiſdom unto the Simple.

8. The Statutes of the LORD are right and rejoyce the Heart: the Commandment of the LORD is pure, and giveth light unto the Eyes.

9. The

47. My truſt is in the living God, and not in any ſenſeleſs Idol, to be my mighty helper; and I will praiſe that great God who has ſaved me.

48. That God, who has enabled me to take Revenge upon my Enemies, and quelleth the Inſurrections of my rebellious Subjects, who refuſe to ſubmit to my Government.

49. He not only defends me from the wicked Deſigns of mine Enemies, but exalts me above them; delivering me from every ſuch Man of Wickedneſs and Oppreſſion as Saul was.

50. For this reaſon I will pay my publick Thanks unto thee, O Lord, among the Gentile Nations whom thou haſt ſubjected to my Dominion; and ſing Praiſes to the Honour of the great JEHOVAH's Name, that it may be renowned among them.

51. That JEHOVAH, who gives ſuch mighty Succeſſes to his King, whom, by his eſpecial Deſignation, he has raiſed to the Crown of Iſrael; that has protected David from all the Dangers he went through, before his coming to the Throne; that has given him ſuch great Victories after it, and promiſed, that the Kingdom ſhall be eſtabliſhed in his Houſe for ever, 2 Sam. 7. 16.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XIX.

THE Contexture of the Heavens, the Beauty of their Appearance, the exquiſite Order which the Celeſtial Bodies are placed in, the long Continuance and Equability of their Motions, with innumerable other moſt admirable Qualities diſcovered in them, do demonſtrate the infinite Wiſdom of the Divine Artificer, who created them.

2. Every ſingle Day telleth out the Wiſdom of God, with more Force and Rhetorick than the moſt perſwaſive Preacher; and when that Day is gone, it leaveth the Argument to the next Day, to be urged with equal Force; and ſo every Night gives Demonſtration of the ſame Almighty Wiſdom, to any one who does but look up upon the Stars, leaving the Demonſtration ſtill as cogent, to the next Night which follows it.

3. Indeed theſe glorious Bodies have not the Gift of articulate Speech, as we Men have, but they afford as excellent Leſſons, to inſtruct Men in the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of the great Creator, as if they had an hundred Tongues.

4. And yet this Speech of theirs is ſo vocal and ſounding, as to be heard by all the Nations of the World; there being no Nation ſo barbarous, but that they own a Creator of the World, forced unto this Confeſſion by the wiſe Order, and glorious Conſtruction, of theſe celeſtial Bodies.

5. Among theſe celeſtial Bodies, for the Sun the nobleſt of them all, he has prepared a Royal Manſion or Tabernacle in Heaven, the Orb wherein he moves. And he every Morning, when he riſes in the Eaſt, appears with all the Fineneſs and Jollity, as a Bridegroom comes out of his Bride-Chamber, and rejoyces with as much Alacrity and Eagerneſs, as a ſtrong Athletick to run the Race he is prepar'd for.

6. He moves with incredible Swiftneſs from the Eaſt to the Weſt, the two moſt diſtant Parts of the World, and from thence round to the Eaſtern Point again, with the ſame velocity, enlivening all things with its vigorous Heat.

7. But as God's Wiſdom is thus ſufficiently conſpicuous in the Works of Nature, ſo is it alike remarkable in the Divine Law, he has given us to govern our Actions by; a Law without any blemiſh, made up of wholſom and excellent Precepts; a Law which maketh the Soul return to God, when it is eſtranged from him by Sin; a Law, or Rule of Life, which is Sure and Infallible, and which, if Men ſquare their Lives by, they can never be miſtaken: And laſtly, a Law which does not only inſtruct wiſe and learned Men, but inſpires with Wiſdom the moſt Illiterate, and Men of the ordinarieſt Capacities.

8. Theſe Statutes which God has given us, for the Direction of our Actions, are free from all Error and Miſtake, and agreeable to the righteſt and exacteſt Reaſon; they make glad every good Man's Heart, by informing his Mind with Divine Truths, and by heartning him up with comfortable Promiſes; they convey intellectual Light to the Mind, with greater Purity, than the Sun communicates corporeal Light to the Eyes.

9. The fear of the LORD is clean, and endureth for ever: the Judgments of the LORD are true and righteous altogether.

10. More to be desired are they than Gold, yea, than much fine Gold: sweeter also than the Honey and the Honey-comb.

11. Moreover by them is thy Servant taught: and in keeping of them there is great Reward.

12. Who can tell how oft he offendeth: O cleanse thou me from [my] secret faults.

13. Keep thy Servant also from presumptuous Sins, lest they get the dominion over me: so shall I be undefiled and innocent from the great Offence.

14. Let the Words of my Mouth, and the Meditation of my Heart: be [always] acceptable in thy sight,

15. O LORD, my strength and my Redeemer.

The XX. PSALM.

Exaudiat te, Dominus.

¶¶ This is a Psalm of David, in which the People pray for their King's good Success in his Wars, most probably those he was engag'd in against the Ammonites, 2 Sam. 6. 8. I conceive it to be a Song written in Amebæic Verse, wherein David and the People answer each other.

[People.] 1. THE LORD hear thee in the Day of Trouble: the Name of the God of Jacob defend thee.

2. Send thee help from the Sanctuary: and strengthen thee out of Sion.

3. Remember all thy Offerings: and accept thy Burnt-sacrifice.

4. Grant thee thy Hearts desire: and fulfil all thy Mind.

5. We will rejoyce in thy Salvation, and triumph in the Name of the Lord our God: the Lord perform all thy Petitions.

[David.] 6. Now know I that the LORD helpeth his Anointed: and will hear him from his holy Heaven: even with the wholsome strength of his right-Hand.

[People.] 7. Some put their trust in Chariots, and some in Horses: but we will remember the Name of the LORD our God.

[David.] 8. They are brought down and faln: but we are risen and stand upright.

[People.] 9. Save, LORD, and hear us, O King of Heaven: when we call upon thee.

The

9. This sacred Law, which informs us how to worship God aright, is clean and pure, and free from the Superstition which the Gentile Worship is clogged with; and is not mutable at Man's Pleasure, as the Religion of other Countries is: This is a Law which is true, whose Sanctions are founded upon most certain Rewards and Punishments; a Law, every single Precept whereof, is Righteous and Holy.

10. A Law, more beautiful to be view'd, and richer to be possess'd, than large Heaps of refined Gold: A Law, more sweet to the Taste, than the Honey dropping from the Comb.

11. And if I thy Servant, O Lord, stand possessed of any distinguishable degrees of Wisdom, I confess I have been been taught it by the Precepts of this Law; by observance thereof, a Man shall receive an ample Reward both in this Life and the next.

12. But tho' I diligently endeavour, to the utmost of my Power, to obey this holy Law of God; yet I am conscious to myself of many Failures in my Duty, and doubt not but there are many more, which have escaped my Knowledge; I beseech thee therefore, good God, to pardon me for these unregarded Sins.

13. But more especially, I beseech thee to preserve me, who am thy poor humble Servant and Creature, from all Presumptions which are committed against Knowledge; but above all, I beseech thee, not to let any such Sin get the Dominion over me, and establish itself into a Habit; and then I shall be free from such a degree of Impiety, as will put me out of hopes of returning to thy Favonr.

14. Let the Words I have now offered up to thee in this Hymn, and every other Prayer or Meditation, I shall hereafter address myself to thee in, be continually well-pleasing to thee,

15. O God, my strong-hold and my Deliverer.

Paraphrase on Psal. XX.

WE thy faithful People, O King David, do put up our Prayers to Almighty God, that his good Providence would answer thy Desires in this time of thy Difficulty, and that the great JEHOVAH, the God of the Israelites, would defend thee from thy Enemies.

2. That he would send thee Assistance from his Sanctuary upon Mount Sion, where the Ark is lodged, and which is the more especial place of his Presence.

3. May God shew some signal Token, that he accepts thy Sacrifice and Burnt-offerings.

4. May he grant thee all the Success, which thou can'st desire, against thy Enemies.

5. Nay our Minds forbode us, that we shall return rejoycing in the Preservation, which thou shalt have procured us, triumphing in the Name of our great JEHOVAH. May God bring to pass all the good Designs of our gracious King.

David. 6. I know, O my good People, being instructed by the Experience of my whole Life, that God is always ready to assist me his Servant, whom he has anointed to be King of Israel, and that he will hear my Prayers which I put up to him, from his holy Seat in Heaven; affording Succour to me, from the salutiferous Power of his Right-Hand.

People. 7. Having therefore this Encouragement, we will not, like other Nations, depend upon Success from the number of Chariots and Horses, and other warlike Preparations; but our Reliance shall be upon our God, who fights for us.

David. 8. 'Tis true what you say; nay, I foresee, that they are already vanquished, and fall down under our Feet; but we stand upright, in the Condition of Conquerors.

People. 9. Preserve us therefore, O Lord, thou Heavenly King, and graciously hear our Prayers, that we may obtain a Victory over our Enemies.

The XXI. PSALM.

Domine, in virtute tua.

¶¶ This Psalm was composed by David in the Name of the People wishing Prosperity to their King; having in it some Expressions, which, even according to the Jews, relate to the Messias.

THe King shall rejoyce in thy strength, O Lord: exceeding glad shall he be of thy Salvation.

2. Thou hast given him his hearts desire: and hast not denied him the Request of his Lips.

3. For thou shalt prevent him with the Blessings of Goodness: and shall set a Crown of pure Gold upon his Head.

4. He asked Life of thee, and thou gavest him a long Life: even for ever and ever.

5. His Honour is great in thy Salvation: Glory and great Worship shalt thou lay upon him.

6. For thou shalt give him everlasting Felicity: and make him glad with the Joy of thy Countenance.

7. And why? because the King putteth his trust in the LORD, and in the Mercy of the most High*est* he shall not miscarry.

8. All thine Enemies shall feel thy Hand: thy right-Hand shall find out them that hate thee.

9. Thou shalt make them like a fiery Oven in time of thy Wrath: the LORD shall destroy them in his displeasure, and the Fire shall consume them.

10. Their Fruit shalt thou root out of the Earth: and their Seed from among the Children of Men.

11. For they intended Mischief against thee: and imagined such a Device as they are not able to perform.

12. Therefore shalt thou put them to flight: and the Strings of thy Bow shalt thou make ready, against the Face of them.

13. Be thou exalted, LORD, in thine own Strength: so will we sing and Praise thy Power.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XXII. PSALM.

Deus, Deus meus.

¶¶ This Psalm was composed by David, under a very great Calamity, probably, when so great a part of his Friends forsook him in the Absalomick Rebellion, many Passages whereof are applicable to the Sufferings of Christ. It is entitled, Aijeleth Shahar, The Hind of the Morning; because this good Prince was then hunted by his Subjects like a Hind.

MY God, my God, [look upon me,] why hast thou forsaken me: and art so far from my Health, and from the Words of my Complaint? 2. O

Paraphrase on Psal. XXI.

THe King shall rejoyce and triumph in the Victory, which thou shalt, by thy Power, procure for him.

2. Thou hast already hearkened unto the Prayers which he hath put up to thee, in the former glorious Successes, which by thy Protection he has obtained.

3. Nay, thou art before-hand with him, in granting him unrequested Favours, heaping new Crowns upon his Head, which he has not the Ambition to desire.

4. He asked of thee, but only just to escape with his Life from the Hands of Saul, but thou hast given him length of Days in his own Person, and hast promised that a Temporal Crown of Israel shall continue in his Family for many Ages, and afterwards the Spiritual Kingdom of the Messias, who is to descend from him, shall remain therein, 2 Sam. 7. 16.

5. Great is the Honour which thy Assistance has conferred upon him; and thou reservest for him still greater Glories in store.

6 Thou hast given him eternal Happiness in another Life, and affordest him inexpressible Joy, by suffering him to behold thy Countenance for ever.

7. And the reason of this is, because King David put his whole Trust and Confidence in Almighty God, therefore his hopes being fixed upon this Basis, shall never fail.

8. All thine Enemies shall be sensible of the Force of thy Hand, and that Power which God gives thee, shall reach all thy Opposers to their Destruction.

9. Thou shalt destroy them, with as much dispatch as a burning-Oven does the Fewel that is cast into it, when thou in thy Anger lookest upon them; they shall perish with a very sharp and certain Destruction.

10. Thou shalt destroy their Children, and extirpate their Families.

11. For they have sufficiently provoked Almighty God to be their Enemy, by their mischievous Attempts against the Life and Honour of God's Anointed, altho' they have not been able to bring their wicked Purpose to effect.

12. Therefore they shall turn their Backs upon thee by a base Flight, as soon as ever thy Bow-strings are ready to discharge a Flight of Arrows upon them.

13. Upon the whole therefore, we will ascribe the Victory to our God, by whose Power and Assistance only it shall be procured; all the part that we shall take to our selves is, to sing Praises to that Almighty Power that has given us the Victory.

Paraphrase on Psal. XXII.

MY strong God! my God who wast used to defend me! Why hast thou withdrawn thy Protection from me? Why art thou removed so far from my Assistance? Why art thou so backward to hear my Addresses to thee, for Deliverance from my Enemies?

2. O

2. O my God, I cry in the day-time, but thou heareſt not: and in the Night-ſeaſon alſo I take no reſt.

3. And thou continueſt holy: O thou worſhip of Iſrael.

4. Our Fathers hoped in thee, they truſted in thee: and thou didſt deliver them.

5. They called upon thee, and were holpen: they put their truſt in thee, and were not confounded.

6. But as for me, I am a Worm, and no Man: a very Scorn of Men, and the out-caſt of the People.

7. All they that ſee me, laugh me to ſcorn: they ſhoot out their Lips, and ſhake their Heads, ſaying,

8. He truſted in GOD, that he would deliver him: let him deliver him if he will have him.

9. But thou art he that took me out of my Mothers Womb: thou waſt my hope, when I hanged yet upon my Mothers Breaſts.

10. I have been left unto thee ever ſince I was born: thou art my God even from my Mothers Womb.

11. O go not from me, for trouble is hard at hand: and there is none to help me.

12. Many Oxen are come about me: fat Bulls of Baſan cloſe me in on every ſide.

13. They gape upon me with their Mouths: as it were a ramping and a roaring Lion.

14. I am poured out like Water, and all my Bones are out of joynt: my Heart alſo in the midſt of my Body is even like melting Wax.

15. My Strength is dried up like a Potſherd, and my Tongue cleaveth to my Gums: and thou ſhalt bring me into the Duſt of Death.

16. For many Dogs are come about me: and the Council of the Wicked layeth ſiege againſt me.

17. They pierced my Hands and my Feet, I may tell all my Bones: they ſtand ſtaring and looking upon me.

18. They part my Garments among them: and caſt Lots upon my Veſture.

19. But be not thou far from me, O LORD: thou art my Succour, haſte thee to help me.

20. De-

2. O my God! I inceſſantly call upon thee for help; In the Day-time I put up my Petitions to thee, which thou doſt not vouchſafe to hear; at night likewiſe I continue the ſame Addreſſes, notwithſtanding the great Diſcouragement.

3. But yet I cannot but acknowledge, that thou doſt ſtill remain juſt and holy, O thou, who art the God of the People of Iſrael, and their mighty Deliverer in their many Diſtreſſes.

4. And indeed this is a conſiderable Encouragement to me, in my Condition, to remark, that many of our Fore-fathers were in as forlorn a Condition as I am, and yet they truſted in God for Deliverance, and he did not fruſtrate their Expectations.

5. They put up their Prayers to thee the great JEHOVAH, not any ſtrange God, and thou didſt aſſiſt them, and kept them from being deſtroyed by their Enemies.

6. But, tho' thou mighteſt be inclined to protect ſuch great and holy Men, as the Patriarchs, Abraham, Jacob, Joſeph, &c. under their Afflictions; yet why ſhould I expect, that thou ſhouldeſt work a like Deliverance, for ſuch a Worm as I am, whom my Subjects have ſcorned, and the baſeſt of the People have thrown off, as a vile and contemptible thing? but herein I muſt conſider, that I am in my Sufferings, the forerunner of the Meſſias, who muſt ſuffer the like Calamities, which are ſhadowed out in me.

7. All they that look on me, (as they ſhall do upon the Meſſias) in a deriſive manner, pout out their Lips, and ſhake their Head, uttering theſe contemptuous and blaſphemous Words, ſaying,

8. He pretends to throw himſelf upon God for Protection, let therefore God protect him, if he have ſuch a Fondneſs for him.

9. But I have experienced thee to be my Preſerver, from my Birth, and throughout the State of my Infancy.

10. As ſoon as I was born, thou tookeſt me for thy foſter-Child; from that time to this very Moment, thou haſt cheriſhed me; and therefore I will not now deſpair of thy Aſſiſtance.

11. O therefore do not thou ſtand at a Diſtance, neglecting my Aſſiſtance, ſince my deareſt Friends deſert me, as they will do hereafter a greater Perſon than myſelf, the Meſſias upon the Croſs.

12. Many ſtrong and powerful Enemies have encompaſſed me, having the ſtrength and fierceneſs of Bulls, pamper'd in the fertile Paſture of Baſan.

13. They came roaring about me with open Mouths, and are as greedy to devour, as a hungry Lion is to fall upon their Prey.

14. I am grown as weak as Water, my Joynts have not ſtrength to ſupport my Body; and all my Vitals conſume away, as Wax melteth before the Fire.

15. All my natural Moiſture is decay'd, and I am become as dry as a broken piece of earthen Ware; my Tongue, through my continual feveriſh Draught, ſticks to the roof of my Mouth; and thou, O Lord, art juſt upon bringing me down to the Grave.

16. A Company of bloody Hounds are hunting after my Life; and there is a Confederacy of wicked Men formed againſt me; as there ſhall be hereafter againſt Chriſt, to put him to Death.

17. They have wounded my Hands and my Feet, but in a much more literal Senſe ſhall they do ſo to my Saviour Chriſt, when the Nails ſhall faſten his precious Hands and Feet to the Croſs; one may tell my Ribs by reaſon of my leanneſs, as they may hereafter do Chriſt's, by reaſon of his Diſtention under that cruel Puniſhment; my Adverſaries, in a contemptuous manner, ſtand ſtaring upon me.

18. They divide my Eſtate among them, as they ſhall do my Saviour's Garment, caſting Lots for it, John 10. 24.

19. But I beſeech thee, O Lord, do not thou remove thy ſelf afar off from me, denying me thy aſſiſtance; O make all imaginable ſpeed to my Succour.

20. Deliver my Life from periſhing by the Sword; ſave my Life, which is as it were my only darling-Child left, (every

20. Deliver my Soul from the Sword: my Darling from the Power of the Dog.
21. Save me from the Lions Mouth: thou haſt heard me alſo from among the horns of the Unicorns.
22. I will declare thy Name unto my Brethren: in the midſt of the Congregation will I praiſe thee.
23. O praiſe the LORD ye that fear him: magnifie him, all ye of the Seed of Jacob, and fear him, all ye Seed of Iſrael.
24. For he hath not deſpiſed nor abhorred the low Eſtate of the Poor: he hath not hid his Face from him, but when he called unto him, he heard him.
25. My Praiſe is of thee in the great Congregation: my Vows will I perform in the ſight of them that fear him.
26. The Poor ſhall eat and be ſatisfied: they that ſeek after the LORD ſhall praiſe him; your Heart ſhall live for ever.
27. All the ends of the World ſhall remember themſelves, and be turned unto the LORD: and all the Kindreds of the Nations ſhall worſhip before him.
28. For the Kingdom is the LORD's: and he is the Governour among the People.
29. All ſuch as be fat upon Earth: have eaten and worſhipped.
30. All they that go down into the Duſt ſhall kneel before him: and no Man hath quickened his own Soul.
31. [My] Seed ſhall ſerve him: they ſhall be counted unto the LORD for a Generation.
32. They ſhall come, and [the Heavens] ſhall declare his Righteouſneſs: unto a People that ſhall be born, whom the Lord hath made.

The XXIII. PSALM.

Dominus regit me.

¶¶ This Pſalm was written by David in a proſperous Condition, probably when he was ſetled in the Kingdom, after the Calamities he ſuſtain'd under Saul's Perſecution.

THE Lord is my Shepherd: therefore can I lack nothing.
2. He ſhall feed me in a green Paſture: and lead me forth beſide the Waters of Comfort.
3. He ſhall convert my Soul: and bring me forth in the Paths of Righteouſneſs, for his Names ſake.
4. Yea,

(every thing elſe being taken from me) ſave this from the Power of thoſe malicious Enemies, which like Dogs hunt after it.

21. Save me from the Hands of my Enemies, which are ſtrong and cruel as Lions, for thou haſt formerly preſerved me, when I was in as much Danger, as if the Horn of a fierce Unicorn was juſt upon goring me.

22. Now being certain that thou wilt procure me this Deliverance, I will ſing Praiſes to thy Name, in the preſence of my Brethren the Jews, declaring what mighty things thou haſt done for me; and this not only in private, but in the publick Congregation aſſembled for thy Worſhip.

23. O therefore, all ye the only Worſhippers of the true God, Praiſe him for his great Favour done; O all you, my Countrey-men and Kindred derived from Jacob, our common Progenitor, joyn with me in my Thankſgiving to ſo gracious a God.

24. For God hath not contemned the low Eſtate of me his poor Servant, in the time of my Affliction, he has not ſhunned and ſlighted me, as other baſe People have done; but has graciouſly heard my Prayer, and delivered me.

25. Therefore I will ſing forth thy Praiſes upon ſome ſolemn Feaſt-day, when there ſhall be an extraordinary Congregation met together for thy Worſhip, in a Pſalm purpoſely compoſed in memory of this thy Deliverance.

26, 27. And here again I ſee, that my Deliverance does prefigure the Exaltation of the Meſſias, when the Poor ſhall eat and be ſatisfied, and have the Goſpel preached to them; when all devout Perſons, of what Religion or Nation ſoever, ſhall be admitted to praiſe God in his eſtabliſhed Worſhip, and be put in a Capacity of attaining everlaſting Life.

28. For God is eſtabliſhing a Kingdom of his own, viz. that of the Meſſias of which he ſhall be immediately Governour.

29. Under this Diſpenſation, the great Men of the World, that enjoy the Fatneſs of the Earth, ſhall be admitted to partake of the Sacrifice.

30. Every poor Man, that lies in the Duſt, may kneel down before him, and enjoy the Privileges of this Sacrifice; truſting in God for Salvation, which they cannot procure themſelves.

31. My Poſterity, tho' born to Empire, ſhall ſerve this mighty Spiritual Prince; and they, by God's Favour, ſhall continue a great Family, for many Generations.

32. Several of theſe Generations ſhall come and paſs away, but at laſt God's Righteouſneſs ſhall be manifeſt in ſending the Meſſias, in his good time, thereby making happy the Generation wherein he ſhall be revealed, and other Generations which ſhall follow it.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXIII.

THE Lord feeds me, and takes care of me, as a Shepherd does of his Flock, therefore nothing can be wanting to me, which may conduce to my Happineſs, either in my Temporal or Spiritual Concerns.

2 He has inſtated me in a very happy Condition of Life, wherein my circumſtances reſemble the feeding of cattle in a fruitful green Paſture, where having fed themſelves to the full with the delicious Herbage, they are led to Water unto a clear, and cool, and comfortable Stream.

3. Nor is he a Shepherd to my Body only, but to my Soul likewiſe; when he obſerves me ſtraying from the Paths of Vertue, he turns me into the right way again, by good ſuggeſtions of his Holy Spirit; to the Praiſe and Honour of his Great Name.

4. Yea, though I walk through the Valley of the ſhadow of Death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me, thy Rod and thy Staff comfort me.

5. Thou ſhalt prepare a Table before me againſt them that trouble me: thou haſt anointed my Head with Oyl, and my Cup ſhall be full.

6. But [thy] loving Kindneſs and Mercy ſhall follow me all the days of my Life: and I will dwell in the Houſe of the LORD for ever.

The XXV. PSALM.

Ad te, Domine, levavi.

¶¶ This is a Pſalm compoſed by David, in a time of ſome great Affliction, and when his Mind was oppreſſed with the Reflection upon ſome extraordinary Sin; probably it was written in the time of Abſalom's Rebellion; and the great Sin mentioned v. 10. is that which he committed in the matter of Uriah. The Pſalm in the Original is Acroſtical, the Verſes beginning with the Letters of the Alphabet in their Order; only two or three are diſturbed, probably by the negligence of the Tranſcribers.

UNto thee, O LORD, will I lift up my Soul, my God, I have put my truſt in thee: O let me not be confounded, neither let mine Enemies triumph over me.

2. For all they that hope in thee ſhall not be aſhamed: but ſuch as tranſgreſs without a Cauſe ſhall be put to confuſion.

3. Shew me thy ways, O LORD: and teach me thy Paths.

4. Lead me forth in thy truth, and learn me: for thou art the God of my Salvation; in thee hath been my hope all the day long.

5. Call to remembrance, O LORD, thy tender Mercies: and thy loving Kindneſſes which have been ever of old.

6. O remember not the Sins, and Offences of my Youth: but according to thy Mercy think thou upon me, O LORD, for thy Goodneſs.

7. Gracious and Righteous is the LORD: therefore will he teach Sinners in the way.

8. Them that are meek, ſhall he guide in Judgment: and ſuch as are gentle, them ſhall he learn his way.

9. All the Paths of the LORD are Mercy and Truth: unto ſuch as keep his Covenant and his Teſtimonies.

10. For thy Names ſake, O LORD: be merciful unto my Sin, for it is great.

11. What Man is he that feareth the LORD: him ſhall he teach in the way that he ſhall chuſe.

12. His Soul ſhall dwell at eaſe: and his Seed ſhall inherit the Land.

13. The Secret of the LORD is among them that fear him: and he will ſhew them his Covenant.

14. Mine Eyes are ever looking unto the LORD: for he ſhall pluck my Feet out of the Net.

15. Turn thee unto me, and have Mercy upon me: for I am deſolate and in miſery.

16. The

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXV.

1 O Lord, raiſe up my Soul, in eager Expectation of Deliverance from thee, placing all my Truſt and Confidence in thy help; O therefore let me not be put to the Shame of a Diſappointment, in my hopes of thy Deliverance; neither let my Enemies revile me, for repoſing a vain Confidence in thee.

2. For thoſe that place their Truſt and Confidence in God, as I, and thoſe who eſpouſe my Cauſe do, need not fear ſuffering the Shame of a Defeat; but they, who take up Arms againſt their Sovereign without a juſt Cauſe, muſt expect the Confuſion, and Diſappointment, which attends a worſted ſide.

3. O Lord, in this caſe of Extremity, I beſeech thee, by thy holy Spirit, ſo to direct me, that I may not do any unwarrantable thing for my Security; but guide and tutor me to do all things agreeable to thy Law.

4. Do thou lead me along, as one would do a young Child, and ſhew me thoſe Paths of Vertue and Piety which thou wouldſt have me to walk in, reading thy Leſſons to me over and over again, till I have learn'd them; and this I do with the more confidence beg of thee, becauſe thou art the God who haſt formerly preſerved me, and upon whom I have my conſtant dependence.

5. I beſeech thee to deal with me according to thy former Goodneſs manifeſted to me in my deliverance from Goliah, Saul, &c. and according to thy Mercy ſhewn to thy faithful Servants Abraham, Iſaac, &c. in former days.

6. Oh! be not ſo ſevere now to call me to account, for my Sins committed in my younger Years, when the Fire of my Nature prompted me to many unwarrantable Actions; but out of thy good and merciful Diſpoſition, pardon what I then did amiſs.

7. The Lord is ſo good and gracious, that he will not immediately take Vengeance upon Sinners, but will rather give them Grace to repent, and his heavenly Illumination to inſtruct them, how to diſcharge their Duty the better, for the future.

8. For to the truly humble Penitents, God ſhall give Grace to ſquare their Lives according to his Laws; and thoſe, that are of a good and teachable Diſpoſition, he ſhall learn them what is their Duty to do.

9. The Laws of God do command with Mildneſs and Mercy, and do reward with Truth all that obey him.

10. But, leſt that great complicated Sin of mine, which was made up of Diſſimulation, Adultery and Murder, ſhould be a Bar to hinder thy Favour from reaching me, I beſeech thee to forgive it for thy Goodneſs ſake, ſince I acknowledge the Foulneſs thereof, and do heartily repent of it.

11. Whatſoever Man truly feareth God, whenſoever he is in doubt concerning his Duty, God will inſtruct him what he ought to do.

12. And, after a conſtant Exerciſe of his Duty in this World, his Soul ſhall go to reſt in the next, and leave his Poſterity here upon Earth in a flouriſhing Condition.

13. God has hidden Favours, Job 29 4. in ſtore for thoſe good Perſons who fear and honour him, and diſcovers to them, what mighty Rewards were couched in the Covenant, he made with them.

14. My Eyes are fixed upon God, in eager Expectation of the Deliverance I expect from him; not doubting but he will diſingage my Feet from thoſe Snares, which my Adverſaries have intangled me in.

15. I beſeech thee in kindneſs to turn thy Face to me, which in thy Anger thou haſt ſo long hid; let the Miſery of my Condition move thy Pity to me, being an exiled Prince, whom my moſt obliged Friends have forſaken.

16. The Sorrows of my Heart are enlarged: O bring thou me out of my Troubles.
17. Look upon my Adversity and Misery: and forgive me all my Sin.
18. Consider mine Enemies how many they are: and they bear a tyrannous hate against me.
19. O keep my Soul, and deliver me: let me not be confounded, for I have put my trust in thee.
20. Let Perfectness, and righteous Dealing wait upon me: for my hope hath been in thee.
21. Deliver Israel, O God: out of all his Troubles.

The XXVI. PSALM.

Judica me, Domine.

¶¶ This is a Psalm of David, written when the Informers in Saul's Court had brought some false Accusations against him. It gives a handsom Description of the Life of an Innocent Man, both in Thought, Word and Deed.

BE thou my Judge, O LORD, for I have walked innocently: my trust hath been also in the LORD, therefore shall I not fall.
2. Examine me, O LORD, and prove me: try out my Reins, and my Heart.
3. For thy loving Kindness is ever before mine Eyes: and I will walk in thy Truth.
4. I have not dwelt with vain Persons: neither will I have Fellowship with the Deceitful.
5. I have hated the Congregation of the Wicked: and will not sit among the Ungodly.
6. I will wash my Hands in Innocency, O LORD: and so will I go to thine Altar;
7. That I may shew the Voice of Thanksgiving: and tell of all thy wondrous Works.
8. LORD, I have loved the Habitation of thy House: and the place where thine Honour dwelleth.
9. O shut not up my Soul with the Sinners: nor my Life with the Blood-thirsty;
10. In whose Hands is Wickedness: and their right Hand is full of Gifts.
11. But as for me I will walk innocently: O deliver me, and be merciful unto me.
12. My Foot standeth right: I will praise the LORD in the Congregations.

EVEN-

16. A Torrent of Grief overflows my Heart; O do thou put an end to this my lamentable Affliction.
17. Do thou consider, what I have suffered in this unnatural Rebellion; and forgive my Sin which has been the occasion of it.
18. Be pleased to take a view of the number of mine Enemies, and, what is more grievous to me than the Greatness of their Forces, their implacable Hatred towards me.
19. O do thou guard my Life, which is sought by my Enemies, for I repose far more Confidence in thee, than in my Troops.
20. Let me be attended upon by thy faithful Integrity, which I can trust more than my Guards; let me be defended by thy Justice, which will not fail to take revenge on my faithless Rebels: And this I trust thou wilt do, because I do not confide in any thing but thee.
21. And lastly, I beseech thee, O my God, to put an end to this Civil War, for the sake of my poor Subjects, who sustain so much trouble and mischief from it.

Paraphrase on Psal. 26.

O Lord, do thou take the Cognizance of my Cause into thy Hand, be thou the Judge of my Innocency, as to what is objected against me; thou knowest, I have not used any indirect means to vindicate myself, but my whole trust has been in thee; wherefore I am still confident, thou wilt not suffer mine Enemies to prevail over me.
2. Thou, O God, who seest into the Secrets of all Mens Minds, do thou examine and try my Heart, with as much Exactness, as a Refiner does his Gold, and see if there be any of that Wickedness in me, which my Adversaries pretend.
3. Out of regard to the Favours thou hast formerly conferred upon me, and to the Rewards which thou hast promised to thy obedient Servants, I square my Life according to thy Holy Commandments.
4. I never kept up an Acquaintance with lying, false and deceitful Men.
5. And I always declined any Company, where I foresaw wicked and profane Men would be.
6. I will wash my Hands therefore, not only in token of my Innocency, as Men ordinarily do, when they have it not; but I will do it to qualifie my self to come to thy Altar, which no profane Person dares approach:
7. Not only to pray unto thee for new Favours, but to praise thee, for thy many former Benefits conferred upon me.
8. For, as I hate to frequent the Company of the Wicked, so I love to resort to thy House, where thy Glory dwelleth, and which is the more especial place of thy presence.
9. And since I have made it my Choice, to be in the Company of holy Men, at thy publick Worship, do not lay me under the Necessity of consorting with wicked, and flagitious Men.
10. Who have always some Wickedness or other in hand, to bring about by Fraud and Corruption.
11. But for my part, I am stedfastly resolved to lead an innocent Life; O therefore, I beseech thee, shew thy Mercy to me, in delivering me from the Power of those wicked Men, who are mine Enemies.
12. I have no sinister and fraudulent Designs to prosecute, I walk in the direct way of Righteousness and Integrity; which good Qualifications that I am possessed of, I acknowledge it intirely owing to thee, and therefore I will return thee my publick Thanks for it, in the Sacred Assembly.

The XXVII. PSALM.

¶¶ This Pſalm was written by David in his old Age, wherein he recounts the many Dangers God had delivered him from. Some do not improbably think it was compoſed, when he had like to have been kill'd in Battle, and the People took an Oath, he ſhould no longer go out to Battle, 2 Sam. 21. 17.

THE LORD is my Light, and my Salvation; whom then ſhall I fear: the LORD is the ſtrength of my Life; of whom then ſhall I be afraid?

2. When the Wicked, even mine Enemies, and my Foes, came upon me to eat up my Fleſh: they ſtumbled, and fell.

3. Though an Hoſt of Men were laid againſt me, yet ſhall not my Heart be afraid: and though there roſe up War againſt me, yet will I put my truſt in him.

4. One thing have I deſired of the LORD, which I will require: even that I may dwell in the Houſe of the LORD all the days of my Life, to behold the fair beauty of the LORD, and to viſit his Temple.

5. For in the time of trouble he ſhall hide me in his Tabernacle: yea in the ſecret place of his Dwelling ſhall he hide me, and ſet me up upon a Rock of Stone.

6. And now ſhall he lift up mine Head: above mine Enemies round about me.

7. Therefore will I offer in his dwelling an Oblation with great Gladneſs: I will ſing and ſpeak Praiſes unto the LORD.

8. Hearken unto my voice, O LORD, when I cry unto thee: have mercy upon me, and hear me.

9. My Heart hath talked of thee, Seek ye my Face: thy Face, LORD, will I ſeek.

10. O hide not thou thy Face from me: nor caſt thy Servant away in diſpleaſure.

11. Thou haſt been my ſuccour: leave me not, neither forſake me, O God of my Salvation.

12. When my Father and my Mother forſake me: the LORD taketh me up.

13. Teach me thy way, O LORD: and lead me in the right way, becauſe of mine Enemies.

14. Deliver me not over into the Will of mine Adverſaries: for there are falſe Witneſſes riſen up againſt me, and ſuch as ſpeak wrong.

15. I ſhould utterly have fainted: but that I believe verily to ſee the Goodneſs of the LORD in the Land of the Living.

16. O tarry thou the LORD's leiſure: be ſtrong, and he ſhall comfort thine Heart, and put thou thy truſt in the LORD.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXVII.

THE Lord is my Light, who diſpels the Darkneſs of my Afflictions, it is he who ſaves me from mine Enemies; what Power therefore is ſo great, that I need ſtand in fear of? my God defends my Life againſt my Adverſaries, what Man therefore ſhall I be afraid of?

2. When my Infidel Enemies came againſt me, like ravenous Beaſts, to devour me, they were defeated by my Forces, and fell down before me, leaving the Victory entirely to me.

3. Tho' a great Army, in an hoſtile manner, advance againſt me, I ſhall not be diſmayed; for I have confidence, that thou, whom I have experienced to have been my Deliverer from ſo many former Dangers, wilt defend me from the Power of This.

4. There is but one thing which I have earneſtly deſired of God, and which I will ſtill continue to put up my Petitions to him for, and that is, That I may have an Opportunity, of paying my conſtant Devotions to him in his publick Service, as long as I live; which is more amiable and pleaſant to me, than any thing elſe.

5. Thy Houſe ſhall be my Sanctuary in any Calamity, I ſhall happen to be under; my Devotion, which I pay to thee there, ſhall render me as ſafe, as thoſe who, in criminal caſes, fly to the ſecret places thereof for ſhelter; there I ſhall be as ſafe, as if I had a fortified Caſtle to defend me.

6. And now by a late Inſtance of thy Favour, thou doſt lift up my Head, which was depreſſed with Misfortunes before, and doſt raiſe me to a Degree of Honour and Superiority, above my neighbouring Enemies.

7. For this Cauſe I will offer at his Altar, a publick Sacrifice, attended with the ſound of the Trumpets, and the reſt of the Sacred Muſick; and, to increaſe the Solemnity, I myſelf will compoſe a Thankſgiving-Hymn to his Honour.

8. O Lord, hear my Prayer, and ſhew thy Mercy upon me, in granting my Petitions.

9. When my Heart in Meditation was talking to thee, thou didſt command me to ſeek thy Face in devout Prayer; and, in Obedience to thy Commands, I do ſeek it in that manner.

10. O therefore do not thou turn thy Face from me, as Men do when they are angry with any one; and do not, in thy Diſpleaſure, ſend me away, and refuſe me admittance to thy Preſence.

11. Thou waſt wont formerly to be my Succourer, whenſoever I was oppreſſed by any Calamity, O therefore do not now forſake me, my good Preſerver.

12. When my Father and Mother were taken away from me by Death, God took me up for his foſter-Child, to take care of me.

13. And ſince I am thy Pupil, O Lord, give me Inſtruction as thy own Child, and learn me the way of thy Commandments; for if I make any ſlip in my Duty, my Enemies will triumph at my Failure.

14. But I beſeech thee, O Lord, do not thou expoſe me to the Tyrannick Will of mine Enemies; who bear an implacable Hatred to me, throwing upon me many unjuſt Calumnies to work my Ruin.

15. I ſhould utterly have deſponded, and perfectly have ſunk down, under the Oppoſition of my many and powerful Enemies, if it were not for the firm hopes I have of a future State, and of the Rewards God has in ſtore for me in Paradiſe.

16. Therefore, O my Soul, be not thou impatient for a ſpeedy Deliverance from any impendent Trouble, wait for God's good time to work it out for thee; ſtrengthen thy hopes and confidence in him, and he will at laſt bring ſuch Comfort to thee, that thou wilt not repent of thy long Dependence.

The XXVIII. PSALM.

Ad te, Domine.

¶ ¶ This Psalm was written by David, much about the same time with the former, towards the latter end of his Reign, when his Wars were well nigh finished; but he had some Domestick Faction which still gave him Trouble, probably that of Sheba, mentioned 2 Sam. 20. which might give occasion to the writing this Psalm.

UNto thee will I cry, O LORD my strength: think no scorn of me, lest if thou make as though thou heareſt not, I become like them that go down into the Pit.

2. Hear the Voice of my humble Petitions, when I cry unto thee: when I hold up my hands towards the Mercy-seat of thy holy Temple.

3. O pluck me not away, [neither destroy me] with the Ungodly, and wicked doers: which speak friendly to their Neighbours, but imagine mischief in their Hearts.

4. Reward them according to their Deeds: and according to the Wickedness of their own Inventions.

5. Recompense them after the Work of their Hands: pay them that they have deserved.

6. For they regard not in their mind the Works of the LORD, nor the operation of his hands: therefore shall he break them down, and not build them up.

7. Praised be the LORD: for he hath heard the Voice of my humble Petitions.

8. The LORD is my Strength, and my Shield, my Heart hath trusted in him, and I am helped: therefore my Heart danceth for joy, and in my Song will I praise him.

9. The LORD is my Strength: and he is the wholsom Defence of his Anointed.

10. O save thy People, and give thy Blessing unto thine Inheritance; feed them, and set them up for ever.

The XXIX. PSALM.

Afferte Domino.

¶ ¶ A Psalm composed by David, after some great Storm of Thunder and Lightning

BRing unto the LORD, O ye mighty, [bring young Rams unto the Lord:] ascribe unto the Lord worship and strength.

2. Give the LORD the Honour due unto his Name: worship the LORD with holy worship.

3. It is the [* Voice of the] LORD that commandeth the Waters: it is the glorious God that maketh the Thunder.

* Heb. The Voice of the Lord.

4. It is the LORD that ruleth the Sea; the Voice of the LORD is mighty in operation: the Voice of the LORD is a glorious Voice.

5. The

Paraphrase on Psal. XXVIII.

O Lord, my strong Hold, I put up my Prayers to thee, do not thou with Scorn slight them, and seem not to hear them, but to be silent at them; for if thou dost so, I am a dead and undone Man.

2. But rather be pleased graciously to grant me my Petitions, especially those, that I put up to thee in thy Sacred House.

3. O do not thou drag me away to everlasting Punishment, as thou dost wicked Persons, especially those vile treacherous Men, who pretend great Friendship to their Neighbour, whilst they are plotting his Ruin.

4, 5. But God shall recompense these Persons, according as their ill Actions have deserved.

6. For they are irreligious People, who never have any devout Thoughts of God Almighty, either of the wonderful Works of his Creation, or Providence, but live sensual Lives without the Fear and Worship of God; for this reason God shall throw them down into a Destruction, from whence they shall never rise again.

7. And now I devoutly return my Praises to God, because I perceive he has heard my Prayers, and will do for me as I have desired.

8. The Lord is my Castle, and my Shield to defend me, I never trusted to any Aid besides him, never depending upon any humane Counsels to protect me, and therefore now I reap the Benefit of God's Assistance which is best; the consideration of which, makes my Heart leap for Joy, and puts me upon composing this Hymn, in acknowledgment of his Goodness.

9. The Lord is always a strong Fortress to them who trust in him; and I have always found him to be a salutary Aid to David his Anointed.

10. Be thou pleased to preserve thy People, whom thou hast chosen to be thy peculiar Inheritance, from all Dangers that may befal them; feed them as a Shepherd does his Flock, and support them and their Posterity, with Temporal and Eternal Blessings.

Paraphrase on Psal. XAIX.

O All ye Princes and mighty Men, offer to God a Sacrifice of young Rams, and make your Acknowledgment, that, tho' your Power were never so considerable, God's Power is infinitely greater.

2. Ascribe unto God such Honour, as is worthy of the Excellency of his Being, having the most reverential Thoughts of his admirable Nature; Worship him in his holy Temple.

3. The Lord, by the Thunder which is his Voice, governeth the Waters of the Clouds, and makes them break into Showers at the Concussion made by it; it is the glorious God of Heaven and Earth, and not a bare necessity of second Causes, which causes the Thunder.

4. The Lord, by the Storms which he sends, governs and turns about, at his pleasure, that great Collection of Waters the Sea: The Thunder, the Voice of God, is of incredible force, to rend and tear all things in its way: This Voice of God, attended with its constant Concomitant the Lightning, emits a shining Splendor, or Glory, wherever it comes.

5. This

5. The Voice of the LORD breaketh the Cedar-trees: yea, the LORD breaketh the Cedárs of Libanus.

6. He maketh them alſo to skip like a Calf: Libanus alſo, and Sirion like a young Unicorn.

7. The Voice of the LORD divideth the Flames of Fire, the Voice of the LORD ſhaketh the Wilderneſs: yea, the LORD ſhaketh the Wilderneſs of Cades.

8. The Voice of the LORD maketh the Hinds to bring forth Young, and diſcovereth the thick Buſhes: in his Temple doth every Man ſpeak of his Honour.

9. The LORD ſitteth above the Water-flood: and the LORD remaineth a King for ever.

10. The LORD ſhall give Strength unto his People: the LORD ſhall give his People the Bleſſing of Peace.

The XXX. PSALM.

Exaltabo te, Domine.

¶ ¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, A Pſalm, being a Song upon the Dedication of David's Houſe. It was a Precept of the Moſaical Law, That every one who built a new Houſe, ſhould dedicate it; and if he went to the War without doing it, he was to return to his Houſe, leſt he die in the Battle, Deut. 20. 5. It might be concluded, that this Pſalm refers to the Houſe built by David, 2 Sam. 5. 11. for which purpoſe Hiram ſent him Carpenters and Maſons; but in that time David was in great Proſperity, to which the Grief ſpoken of in this Pſalm does not agree. It moſt probably was occaſioned by the Dedication of his Houſe, after he was reſtored to it again, upon the Suppreſſion of Abſalom's Rebellion.

I Will magnifie thee, O LORD, for thou haſt ſet me up: and not made my Foes to triumph over me.

2. O LORD my God, I cried unto thee: and thou haſt healed me.

3. Thou, LORD haſt brought my Soul out of Hell: thou haſt kept my Life from them that go down to the Pit.

4. Sing Praiſes unto the LORD, O ye Saints of his: and give Thanks unto him for a remembrance of his Holineſs.

5. For his wrath endureth but the twinkling of an Eye, and in his Pleaſure is Life: heavineſs may endure for a Night, but joy cometh in the Morning.

6. And in my Proſperity I ſaid, I ſhall never be removed: thou, LORD, of thy goodneſs haſte made my Hill ſo ſtrong.

7. Thou didſt turn thy Face from me: and I was troubled.

8. Then cried I unto thee, O LORD: and gat me to my LORD right humbly.

9. What

5. This Thunder, the Voice of God, ſplits aſunder the Cedar-trees, even thoſe great Cedar-trees which grow upon Mount Libanus, the maſſineſs of whoſe Timber, is not able to reſiſt his Power.

6. Tho' they be ſo firm and Knotty, he tears them aſunder, and makes them leap off with a like Spring as a Calf skips, and bounds, from the Ground with; nay, when he is pleaſed to ſend an Earthquake, he makes the very Mountains themſelves, Libanus and Sirion, two of the moſt famous Mountains near Paleſtine, to dance like a young Rinoceros.

7. The Thunder, the Voice of God, ſhooteth out Flaſhes of Flame and Fire: This terrible Voice ſhaketh the Wilderneſs of Cades or Zin, Numb. 20. 16. by throwing down the Trees thereof, and rending the Rocks.

8. The Thunder, the Voice of the Lord, cauſes the Hinds, out of Fear, to calve their young ones before their time; it maketh bare the Wood of the thickeſt Buſhes by blaſting their Leaves; but, whilſt theſe Devaſtations were made in other places, the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem do with ſecurity worſhip God.

9. The Lord is the Ruler and Diſpoſer of the watery Meteors in the Air, making them fall in ſmall or fierce Rains as he pleaſes, for the Comfort or the Puniſhment of Mankind; and he ſhall always maintain this Kingdom, whilſt that of other Monarchs ſhall fail.

10. May this great God be a Defence unto his choſen People, exerting his tremendous Power for their Protection, and eſtabliſh among them a firm and laſting Peace, which, of all things in this World, is the moſt valuable Bleſſing.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXX.

I Will praiſe and extol thee, O Lord, becauſe thou haſt extolled me, raiſing me up from my late Calamities: and for not letting my Enemies triumph over me, and make Sport with me, as they deſign'd in dethroning of me.

2. O Lord, I put up my Prayers to thee, and thou waſt pleaſed to hear them, and to heal my Soul which was ſick with Grief.

3. Thou haſt recovered my Life, when I was juſt upon the brink of the Grave, when my Body was ready to be lodged among the dead Carcaſes.

4. And let me deſire all you holy Perſons, who are Friends of God and good Men, to join your Praiſes with mine, to thank him for his Goodneſs.

5. His Wrath endureth but for a Moment, whereas his good Pleaſure and Kindneſs laſts a whole Life; we may for one Night be under Diſſatisfaction, but the next Morning Joy returns again.

6. I ſaid to myſelf, whilſt I was under my proſperous State, (the Houſe of Saul being worſted, and all their Hopes extinguiſhed, and I for a long time in an entire and quiet Poſſeſſion of the Crown,) I thought then I ſhould always continue in this proſperous State, thou, O God, having made every thing ſo ſecure about me, that no Caſtle upon a Rock could be ſtronger.

7. Thou didſt but a little while withdraw thy Divine Aſſiſtance, and a new Torrent of Troubles broke in upon me.

8. But then I betook myſelf to my former Method, of addreſſing myſelf to God, in devout and humble Prayer.

9. What Profit is there in my Blood: when I go down to the Pit?
10. Shall the Duſt give Thanks unto thee: or ſhall it declare thy Truth?
11. Hear, O LORD, and have Mercy upon me: LORD, be thou my helper.
12. Thou haſt turned my heavineſs into joy: thou haſt put off my Sack-cloth, and girded me with gladneſs.
13. Therefore ſhall every good Man ſing of thy Praiſe without ceaſing: O my God, I will give Thanks unto thee for ever.

The XXXI. PSALM.

In te, Domine, ſperavi.

¶¶ This Pſalm is compoſed by David upon his Flight from Saul, 1 Sam. 23. 26. when in the Wilderneſs of Maon, he was encompaſſed by Saul's Forces

IN thee, O LORD, have I put my truſt: let me never be put to Confuſion, deliver me in thy Righteouſneſs.
2. Bow down thine Ear to me: make haſte to deliver me.
3. And be thou my ſtrong Rock, and houſe of Defence: that thou mayeſt ſave me.
4. For thou art my ſtrong Rock and my Caſtle: be thou alſo my guide, and lead me for thy Names ſake.
5. Draw me out of the Net that they have laid privily for me: for thou art my ſtrength.
6. Into thy Hands I commend my Spirit: for thou haſt redeemed me, O LORD, thou God of Truth.
7. I have hated them that hold of ſuperſtitious Vanities: and my truſt hath been in the LORD.
8. I will be glad and rejoyce in thy Mercy: for thou haſt conſidered my Trouble, and haſt known my Soul in Adverſities.
9. Thou haſt not ſhut me up into the hand of the Enemy: but haſt ſet my Feet in a large Room.
10. Have

9. O Lord (ſaid I) what will it ſignifie, that thou haſt prolonged my Life to this time, if it be now taken away by Abſalom and his Adherents, before I have fully ſetled the true Religion, to which my Life may be very ſerviceable, but my Death prejudicial.
10. When I am in the Grave, I cannot ſet ſo good an Example to Men, by Piety and good Works, as I do here.
11. Therefore, if it be thy heavenly Will, O Lord, I beſeech thee to ſhew thy merciful Kindneſs to me, in a further Prolongation of my Life, and in delivering me from my Troubles.
12. Not long after I had put up this Petition to thee, O Lord, thou waſt pleaſed to work a wonderful Change in my Condition, by turning my doleful State of Exile into a joyful Reſtoration; making me leave off my Sackcloth and my Sorrow, and to enter again upon a Life of Satisfaction and Comfort, which I am now, as it were, arrayed with, as with a Feſtival-Garment.
13. For this reaſon thy Glory ſhall be celebrated by every good Man, † who will not be ſilent in thy Praiſe for this great Mercy vouchſafed to me. And as for my part, I do ſincerely promiſe, that I will never leave off praiſing thee, for ſo great a Benefit, as long as I live.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXI.

O Lord, I have entirely put my confidence in thee for Deliverance; Oh let me not be aſhamed, at the Fruſtration of my Hopes, but do thou, who art the juſt Protector of an Innocent Cauſe, deliver me from my Enemies.
2. I beſeech thee to bend down thy Ear from thy heavenly Throne, to liſten to my Requeſt which I make to thee; and come with all the ſpeed thou can'ſt, to reſcue me from the Hand of Saul.
3. Be thou to me a Fortification upon an inacceſſible Rock, be thou my Citadel to defend me.
4. Nay, thou always haſt been, and doſt continue ſtill, my Garriſon and Caſtle; therefore I beſeech thee, in this great ſtrait, to guide and direct my Counſels, and to conduct me out of this imminent Danger, into a place of Security, that ſuch a miraculous Deliverance may tend to the Honour of thy holy Name.
5. Diſintangle me from this Net which they have drawn about me, Saul's Troops having now ſurrounded the place where I have lodged my ſelf; for all the Strength that I can pretend to, is in thee alone.
6. I become an humble Supplicant to thy Almighty Power, committing my Life into thy Hands, having had Experience of thy readineſs to deliver me from former Troubles; and whereas thou haſt promiſed me the Kingdom, thou being a God of Truth, I doubt not but thou wilt, in thy good time, make good thy Word to me.
7. I have an utter abhorrence of thoſe Men, who in their Afflictions have recourſe to Divination, Aſtrology, and other ſuperſtitious Vanities; and God knows, when I am under ſuch Circumſtances, my Truſt is ſolely in him.
8. All my delight ſhall be in the reflexion upon the former Deliverances, which thou haſt vouchſafed me: for I well remember, that thou waſt wont to take knowledge of my Affliction, and to deliver me from it.
9. Thou haſt not ſuffered mine Enemies, to environ me round in the wilderneſs of Maon to my Deſtruction, as they deſign'd to do, 1 Sam. 23. but haſt afforded me Prudence and Opportunity, to diſappoint that Stratagem, they had contrived againſt me with ſo much ſubtilty; whereby I enjoy my Liberty, to go about as I pleaſe.

10. I

† There is ſome ambiguity in the Hebrew words Lemangan jezimene recha Cevoth, which makes it uncertain whether it is to be tranſlated, for they ſhall Glory ſing to thee, or for this Cauſe ſhall one (i. e. every good Man, as this Tranſlation paraphraſes it) ſing Glory or Praiſe. Our late Verſion chooſes the former Senſe, and tranſlates it accoroingly; but are forced to explain it in the Margin by Tongue or Soul. Dr. Coverdale in the preſent Tranſlation has taken the more natural and plaineſt Senſe. For though the Aſiaticks commonly called in their Poetry, the Life or Tongue (but moſt uſually their Harp or Inſtrument, they played upon) Glory; yet it is a very harſh Metaphor, and could not be proper to be tranſlated ſo, in a Pſalm adapted for ordinary Devotion, when the words will bear another Senſe. The Chaldee Paraphraſe will have Glory here to ſignifie the glorious or honourable Worlds, i. e. the Angels, But this, though it be an ancient, is a very forc'd Interpretation; and nothing nigh ſo good as that of the Verſion before us.

10. Have Mercy upon me, O LORD, for I am in Trouble: and mine Eye is conſumed for very heavineſs; yea, my Soul, and my * Body. * Heb. Belly.

11. For my Life is waxen old with heavineſs: and my years with Mourning.

12. My Strength faileth me, becauſe of mine iniquity: and my Bones are conſumed.

13. I became a reproof among all mine Enemies, but eſpecially among my Neighbours: and they of mine acquaintance were afraid of me, and they that did ſee me without, conveyed themſelves from me.

14. I am clean forgotten as a dead Man out of mind: I am become like a broken Veſſel.

15. For I have heard the Blaſphemy of the multitude: and fear is on every ſide, while they conſpire together againſt me, and take their Counſel to take away my Life.

16. But my hope hath been in thee, O LORD: I have ſaid, Thou art my God.

17. My time is in thy hand, deliver me from the hand of mine Enemies: and from them that perſecute me.

18. Shew thy Servant the Light of thy Countenance: and ſave me for thy Mercies ſake.

19. Let me not be confounded, O LORD, for I have called upon thee: let the ungodly be put to confuſion, and be put to ſilence in the Grave.

20. Let the lying Lips be put to Silence: which cruelly, diſdainfully, and deſpitefully ſpeak againſt the Righteous.

21. O how plentiful is thy Goodneſs, which thou haſt laid up for them that fear thee: and that thou haſt prepared for them that put their Truſt in thee, even before the Sons of Men.

22. Thou ſhalt hide them privily by thine own Preſence, from the provoking of all Men: thou ſhalt keep them ſecretly in thy Tabernacle, from the ſtrife of Tongues.

23. Thanks be to the LORD: for he hath ſhewed me marvellous great Kindneſs, in a ſtrong City.

24. And when I made haſte, I ſaid: I am caſt out of the ſight of thine Eyes.

25. Nevertheleſs, thou heardeſt the Voice of my Prayer: when I cried unto thee.

26. O love the LORD, all ye his Saints: for the LORD preſerveth them that are Faithful, and plenteouſly rewardeth the proud Doer.

27. Be

10. I beſeech thee, O Lord, to ſhew thy Mercy upon me in a ſpeedy Deliverance, for my Troubles are very preſſing and ſore upon me: my Eyes are grown dim, thro' continual weeping; the natural Vigor of my Mind, and my Belly, (i. e. all my Entrails) are decay'd.

11. I am grown an old Man, by a long Series of Sorrow.

12. All my Juvenile Vigour is decay'd, by reaſon of my Sin (i. e. the Puniſhment of my Sin, Gen. 19. 5. 2 Kings 7. 9.) and I have no ſtrength in my Limbs.

13. The Miſery of my Condition makes my Enemies to revile and ſcorn at me; nay my very Friends, whom I might have expected to have been my comfort, ſeeing their conceived hopes of my riſe ſeemingly fruſtrated, joyn in the common obloquy againſt me, and are aſhamed, or afraid, to be ſeen in my Company.

14. I am as much forgotten by my former Acquaintance, as if I was actually dead; no broken piece of earthen Ware is a more deſpicable thing, in their Opinion, than I am.

15. I have heard the reproachful Speeches of the Multitude, concerning me; which way ſoever I look, I have a frightful Proſpect; I can ſee nothing but Cabals, and Conſpiracies againſt my Life.

16. But though I have never ſo many Enemies, I have a ſure Confidence in thee; as long as thou art my God, I need not fear the moſt potent Adverſaries.

17. The time of my Life is at thy diſpoſal, and not to be cut off when theſe Men think fit; therefore do thou, O Lord, who art more powerful than they, deliver me from my Tyrannical Oppreſſors.

18. Look upon me with a Serene Countenance, and preſerve me, not from the proſpect of any Merit, which I can pretend to, but out of thy merciful Goodneſs.

19. And ſince I have applied myſelf to thee for my Deliverance, let me not be ſhamefully diſappointed of my Expectations; let rather my Adverſaries take ſhame to themſelves, by the baffling of their wicked Hopes; and let them go firſt to their Graves, where their expectations ſhall be for ever ſilenced, and ſhall periſh with them.

20. Let the lying Tongues of thoſe vile Sycophants in Saul's Court be ſilenced likewiſe, who calumniate me with ſo much Malice and Spite, as to report of me, that I have a Deſign upon the Life of Saul.

21. O how manifold are the Kindneſſes, which thou doſt reſerve for thy faithful Servants, in thy good time to be conferred upon them; Kindneſſes which are ſo great and evident, that they are acknowledged by Men of none of the moſt Religious Diſpoſitions, even by Saul himſelf, 1 Sam. 24. 17.

22. Nor doſt thou only beſtow Bleſſings upon thy Servants, but doſt defend them likewiſe from Miſchiefs deſigned againſt them; thou wilt in the time of Danger defend them, as if were in thy Sanctuary, where thy Preſence is, from all the provoking Calumnies, and ill Language, which are thrown out againſt them.

23. I return hearty Thanks to Almighty God, as for other Benefits, ſo particularly for his wonderful Favour to me, in aſſiſting me, by his Providence, to beat the Philiſtines, and relieve that ſtrong City Keilah, which the Philiſtines had Inveſted, 1 Sam. 23. 5.

24. Indeed when I made my haſty Flight from Saul's Troops, which had encompaſſed me, 1 Sam. 23. 26. I ſaid I was forſaken of thee, and become one whom thou didſt no longer mind, thinking it then impoſſible that I could eſcape.

25. Yet, notwithſtanding this great Defect of my Faith and Confidence in thee, thou waſt graciouſly pleaſed to hear my Prayer, which I afterward put up to thee.

26. O therefore all ye pious Servants of God, do not mur-

27. Be ſtrong, and he ſhall eſtabliſh your Heart: all ye that put your Truſt in the LORD.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XXXII. PSALM.

Beati, quorum.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is entituled in the Hebrew, The Maſchil of David, or, David's Inſtruction. The Septuagint call it, David's Syneſis, or, His return to a right underſtanding of himſelf. Both Titles have regard to his deep Repentance expreſſed in this Pſalm, for the great complicated Sin committed by him in the Affair of Uriah; being awakened to a freſh Senſe of his Crime, by the Affliction which befel him, in his Son Abſalom's Rebellion againſt him. This Pſalm, tho' compoſed by David upon this particular occaſion, was adapted to a publick uſe by the Jewiſh Church afterwards, and was ſolemnly repeated upon the Day of Expiation.

BLeſſed is he whoſe Unrighteouſneſs is forgiven: and whoſe Sin is covered.

2. Bleſſed is the Man unto whom the LORD imputeth no Sin: and in whoſe Spirit there is no guile.

3. For while I held my Tongue: my Bones conſumed away through my daily complaining.

4. For thy Hand is heavy upon me Day and Night: and my moiſture is like the drought in Summer.

5. I will acknowledge my Sin unto thee: and mine Unrighteouſneſs have I not hid.

6. I ſaid, I will confeſs my Sins unto the LORD: and ſo thou forgaveſt the wickedneſs of my Sin.

7. For this ſhall every one that is godly, make his Prayer unto thee, in a time when thou mayeſt be found: but in the great Water-Floods they ſhall not come nigh him.

8. Thou art a place to hide me in, thou ſhalt preſerve me from Trouble: thou ſhalt compaſs me about with Songs of Deliverance.

9. I will inform thee, and teach thee in the way wherein thou ſhalt go: and I will guide thee with mine Eye.

10. Be ye not like to Horſe and Mule, which have no underſtanding: whoſe Mouths muſt be held with Bit and Bridle, leſt they fall upon thee.

11. Great Plagues remain for the Ungodly: but whoſo putteth his truſt in the LORD, Mercy embraceth him on every ſide. 12. Be mur and repine, when God viſits you with Calamities, but all the while truſt in him and love him, for he will in his good time free you from your Sufferings; as on the other ſide, he will heap Puniſhment upon the proud Oppreſſor.

27. And let me give this further Advice to you, that you do not truſt in the Arm of Fleſh, but only in God, for Deliverance; do not be dejected and tired out by long Expectations, but reſolve to go through them with Conſtancy and Cheerfulneſs, and God will give you ſuch Strength to ſupport you under them, that you will be able to bear them without Reluctancy and Repining, till he thinks fit to deliver you from them.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXII.

THat is the happy Man, not he who is advanced to the Royal Dignity, or any other great worldly Happineſs, but he whoſe Sins God Almighty pardons, and does, as it were, hide or cover them from his Eyes, and will not look upon them, ſo as to call the doers of them to a further account for them.

2. That is the happy Man, to whom God, after a true Repentance, does not impute his former Tranſgreſſion; his Sorrow for his Sins being real, and not hypocritically pretended.

3. For, O Lord, whilſt I was ſilent and did not pour out my Soul before thee in Prayer, confeſſing my Sin, and earneſtly begging Pardon of thee for it; I was under a terrible Diſorder both of Mind and Body, through exceſſive Grief, for the Miſery of my Condition.

4. The Chaſtiſement of thy Hand was very ſevere upon me, by letting my Conſcience fly in my Face, and torment me with cruel Stings and Laſhes; whereby my vital Moiſture was in a manner dried up, like a Paſture burnt up with the Summer-Sun.

5. But I forthwith reſolved to confeſs my Sin unto thee, O God, and to lay open and bare, my Conſcience before thee, accuſing myſelf for my former folly and indiſcretion.

6. I reſolved with myſelf, that I would no longer palliate my great Offence, and make faint Excuſes for, and Extenuations of it; and thereupon thou waſt graciouſly pleaſed to forgive it me.

7. For this reaſon, every Man, that has a juſt Senſe of God and Religion, ought to flie to God by Repentance, whilſt his Guilt is freſh, and God's Grace is free and open to relieve him: But he muſt have a care of ſtaying till he be deluged by a Flood of Iniquity, which will keep him at a great diſtance from God, and make his Acceptance to him very difficult, or perhaps impoſſible.

8. Now I purſuing this Method thou, O Lord, haſt been graciouſly pleaſed to reſtore me to thy Favour, nay, thou art found to be my place of Refuge, to whom I may reſort to defend me from any Trouble or Calamity; in whom I have ſo much Confidence to expect, that thou wilt bleſs me with Victory, as thou haſt done formerly, and encircle me with Congratulatory Songs and Triumphs of my People.

9. And now, O Sinner, I will addreſs myſelf to thee, and will take upon me to inſtruct thee in a Matter, which thou doſt not ſo well underſtand as myſelf, ſhewing thee how to behave thyſelf towards God, after the Commiſſion of a great Sin; I will overlook thee with my Eye, in thy tranſacting this Affair, as a Maſter does his Scholar: And the ſubſtance of my Advice is this.

10. When you recollect how you have offended God, obey the good Motions of his Grace, which lead you to Repentance, be obedient and tractable under his holy Suggeſtions; and do not be heady, precipitate, and reſolved to follow your own Courſes, like a Horſe or Mule, who if they be not bridled in, will run over People in the way.

11. Remember this likewiſe, that if you are reſolved to maintain your wicked Courſe of Life, God will ſend very ſevere Judgments upon you; the Refractory Horſe or Mule, before-mentioned, ſhall not receive half ſo many ſharp Strokes from their Rider, as you incorrigible Sinners ſhall from God; but

12. Be glad, O ye Righteous, and rejoyce in the LORD: and be joyful all ye that are true of Heart.

The XXXIII. PSALM.

Exultate, juſti.

¶ ¶ There is no Title, in the Original, to this Pſalm, to inform us, on what Occaſion it was compoſed: But the Style, and excellent Spirit of Devotion therein, ſhews it to be David's. The Subject of it is, an Acknowledgment of God's Wiſdom in the Creation, and his Goodneſs in all the Diſpenſations of his Providence; ſhewing from thoſe Topicks, that all Men ought to put their Truſt in him.

REjoyce in the LORD, O ye Righteous: for it becometh well the Juſt to be thankful.

2. Praiſe the LORD with Harp: ſing Praiſes unto him with the Lute, and Inſtrument of ten Strings.

3. Sing unto the Lord a new Song: ſing Praiſes luſtily [unto him] with a good Courage.

4. For the word of the LORD is true: and all his Works are faithful.

5. He loveth Righteouſneſs and Judgment: the Earth is full of the goodneſs of the LORD.

6. By the word of the LORD were the Heavens made: and all the Hoſts of them by the Breath of his Mouth.

7. He gathereth the Waters of the Sea together, as it were upon an heap: and layeth up the deep as in a Treaſure-houſe.

8. Let all the Earth fear the LORD: ſtand in awe of him, all ye that dwell in the World;

9. For he ſpake, and it was done: he commanded, and it ſtood faſt.

10. The LORD bringeth the Counſel of the Heathen to nought: and maketh the devices of the People to be of none effect, [and caſteth out the Counſels of Princes]

11. The Counſel of the LORD ſhall endure for ever: and the Thoughts of his Heart from Generation to Generation.

12. Bleſſed are the People whoſe God is the LORD Jehovah: and bleſſed are the Folk that he hath choſen to him, to be his Inheritance.

13. The LORD looked down from Heaven, and beheld all the Children of Men: from the habitation of his dwelling he conſidereth all them that dwell on the Earth.

14. He faſhioneth all the Hearts of them: and underſtandeth all their Works.

15. There

but if you truſt in God, obeying him, and ſubmitting yourſelves to his Direction, you ſhall be ſurrounded with a multitude of his Bleſſings.

12. Therefore, O all ye that are Good and Righteous, being encouraged by theſe Conſiderations, you may conclude yourſelves to be the truly happy Men, and that you have much more reaſon to be joyful in your Condition, whatever it be, having God for your Director, than wicked Men under the moſt proſperous Appearance of Fortune, who are out of God's Favour.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXIII.

O Ye godly and religious Perſons, rejoyce in extolling the Perfections of the great and good God; for ſuch a pious Joy doth chiefly become thoſe, to whom God has beſtowed thoſe excellent Talents of Vertue and Goodneſs, to be thankful for them.

2. Praiſe the Lord with the moſt pleaſant ſort of Inſtrumental Muſick, with the Lute, and with the Harp, not only that of the common kind, but with that of ten Strings, which having a greater variety of Notes, may celebrate his Divine Praiſe with a more tuneful Muſick.

3. Praiſe this excellent Being, not with a Pſalm ordinarily uſed in divine Service, but with a new Hymn purpoſely compoſed in his Honour; ſing Jubilees to him, not with coldneſs, or after an ordinary manner, but with a particular Diligence and Application.

4. For all that God has made by his Creative Word is good and true, and anſwers to the ſtrict Teſt of his eternal Wiſdom, and ſo are all the Promiſes and Threatnings in his written Word.

5. The Lord does inviolably obſerve Right and Equity, as well in puniſhing bad Men, as rewarding Good, but yet ſo that his Mercy is every-where conſpicuous, in the midſt of his Judgments.

6. God by his Word, the Second Perſon of the Trinity, made the Heavens; the Holy Spirit, the third Perſon of the God-head, joyning in that admirable Work.

7. He then gathered all the Waters, which at firſt overflowed the Earth, into one Body, keeping them within the Sea-Banks, as in one common Repoſitory.

8. Let therefore the whole World retain the moſt awful Reverence for this great and powerful God.

9. For he did but ſpeak, and all the diverſe Ranks and Beings were formed, and the whole Univerſe received that Firmitude and Compactneſs, as to endure for ſo many Generations.

10. Nor does his Wiſdom and Power appear more admirable, in his Creation of the World, than his Providence does in the Government thereof; for he defeats the Counſels of Heathen Princes, when they combine together againſt his Servants; he diſappoints the Plots and Rebellions of the Multitude againſt their Prince, together with all the crafty Contrivances of thoſe that head them.

11. But the Determinations of God, for the Preſervation or Deſtruction of a Government, are incapable of any ſuch Diſappointment, they ſhall for ever remain unſhaken, notwithſtanding the greateſt Oppoſition made againſt them.

12. Wonderfully happy therefore is our Jewiſh Nation, who are under the particular Conduct of Almighty God, and whom he has ſeparated from the reſt of the World, to be, as it were, his Patrimony, to cultivate and to take care of; becauſe no one can hinder what he deſigns for their Advantage.

13. For, though God's Reſidential Preſence be in Heaven, yet his Providence obſerves and takes care of all things in Earth.

14. For ſince God at firſt made the Minds of all Men, he does moſt certainly underſtand all their Actions, and Intentions, with the moſt perfect Knowledge, and over-rule them at his Pleaſure.

15. Princes

15. There is no King that can be saved by the multitude of an Host: neither is any mighty Man delivered by much strength.

15. A Horse is counted but a vain thing to save a Man: neither shall he deliver any Man by his great strength.

17. Behold the Eye of the LORD is upon them that fear him: and upon them that put their trust in his Mercy.

18. To deliver their Soul from Death: and to feed them in the time of dearth.

19. Our Soul hath patiently tarried for the LORD: for he is our Help and our Shield.

20. For our Heart shall rejoyce in him: because we have hoped in his holy Name.

21. Let thy merciful kindness, O LORD, be upon us: like as we do put our trust in thee.

The XXXIV. PSALM.

Benedicam Domino.

¶¶ The Title in the Original is, A Psalm of David, when he changed his Behaviour before Abimelech, who drove him away, and he departed. This Abimelech was Achish King of Gath, whose Kings were called Abimelechs, as the Emperors of Rome were called Cæsars, the Kings of Egypt, Ptolomies, &c. In this Princes Court David some time lived, after his Disgrace with Saul, but at last fearing to be found out by him, he feigned himself mad, and by that means escaped, 1 Sam. 21. 11. In this Psalm David thanks God, for the Success of this Innocent Fraud.

I Will alway give Thanks unto the LORD: his Praise shall ever be in my Mouth.

2. My Soul shall make her boast in the LORD: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad.

3. O Praise the LORD with me: and let us magnifie his Name together.

4. I sought the LORD, and he heard me: yea, he delivered me out of all my fear.

5. They had an Eye unto him, and were lightned: and their Faces were not ashamed.

6. Lo, the Poor crieth, and the LORD heareth him: yea, and saveth him out of all his Troubles.

7. The Angel of the LORD tarrieth round about them that fear him: and delivereth them.

8. O taste, and see, how gracious the LORD is: blessed is the Man that trusteth in him.

9. O fear the LORD, ye that are his Saints: for they that fear him, lack nothing.

10. The Lions do lack and suffer Hunger: but they who seek the LORD, shall want no manner of thing that is good.

11. Come,

15. Princes are not preserved in their Thrones by great Armies, and by Power superior to their Neighbours, but by the Providence of Almighty God.

16. For such to place their Preservation in their Horse, is to trust to a Lie; for though these be strong Animals, yet are so far from securing their Riders in a Battle, that they cannot secure themselves.

17. But as for those good Men, who serve God and trust in him, they have the watchful Eye and Providence of God, to secure them from any Calamity which may befal them.

18. To preserve them from the Sword in the time of War, from Sickness in the time of Plague, and from Hunger in the time of Famine.

19. As for us the People of Israel, who have the Honour to have God for our Governour, we with Patience expect Deliverance from him in all our Troubles; for he is our great Protector and Defender.

20. And we may be sure he will not disappoint our Expectations, but will afford us a joyful Issue out of all our Afflictions, for our faithful trusting in him, who never fails to reward his true Servants.

21. We beseech thee, to bestow the bountiful Effects of thy good Providence upon us thy Servants, who (thou knowest the Sincerity of our Hearts) do not expect Benefit or Relief from any other Person, but only from thee.

Paraphrase on Psal. XXXIV.

I Will for ever Praise God, for this extraordinary Deliverance of late vouchsafed to me.

2. I will make my Boast, of this my very successful Escape out of the Hands of Abimelech; of which all the good People of Israel, when they hear thereof, shall rejoyce, though Saul's proud Courtiers shall grieve at it.

3. And I beseech you, all my good Friends, to joyn with me in Thanksgivings to God, for this extraordinary Deliverance.

4. When I perceived the Danger I was in, after I came to be discovered in Abimelech's Court, I addressed myself to God by Prayer, to keep me from any ill Designs, which might be advanced against me upon such a Detection; and thou wast pleased to deliver me, by moving him to send me away, without offering any Violence towards me.

5. Such good Men who trust in God, and look up to him for Deliverance, enjoy their wish'd-for Success, God, by his Goodness, enlightning them, and making them of a chearful Countenance, and not suffering them to be ashamed, through the Disappointment of their Hopes.

6. When any good Man, under Affliction, prayeth unto God for his Assistance, God delivereth him, not only out of that, but out of all other Troubles.

7. The Angel of the Lord stands a Centinel, to watch about such pious Servants of God, to defend them from any Violence which may be offered to them.

8. Do yourselves Experience, trust your own Senses, do as it were Taste, and see how good and kind God is to his faithful Servants, and what Blessings he reserves for those, who rely upon him.

9. O you, that have hitherto persevered in your Obedience to God, and your reliance upon him, persist in your Vertue and pious Dependence: For God will provide them of every thing which is necessary, for their subsistence.

10. Indeed the hungry Courtiers of Saul, who like Lions and wild Beasts of Prey, worry harmless Men; they are pined by want, which their continual Luxury exposes them to; but they who seek God by Prayer, and expect their Maintenance and Security from him, shall be sufficiently supply'd by his Providence, with all necessaries of Life.

11. Come,

11. Come, ye Children, and hearken unto me: I will teach you the fear of the LORD.
12. What Man is he that luſteth to live: and would fain ſee good days?
13. Keep thy Tongue from Evil: and thy Lips, that they ſpeak no guile.
14. Eſchew evil, and do good: ſeek Peace, and enſue it.
15. The Eyes of the LORD are over the Righteous: and his Ears are open unto their Prayers.
16. The countenance of the LORD is againſt them that do evil: to root out the remembrance of them from the Earth.
17. The Righteous cry, and the LORD heareth them: and delivereth them out of all their Troubles.
18. The LORD is nigh unto them that are of a contrite Heart: and will ſave ſuch as be of an humble Spirit.
19. Great are the Troubles of the Righteous: but the LORD delivereth him out of all.
20. He keepeth all his Bones: ſo that not one of them is broken.
21. But misfortune ſhall ſlay the Ungodly: and they that hate the Righteous ſhall be deſolate.
22. The LORD delivereth the Souls of his Servants: and all they that put their truſt in him ſhall not be deſtitute.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XXXV. PSALM.

Judica me, Domine.

¶¶ This is a Pſalm of David, compoſed during his Perſecution under Saul. It is particularly levelled againſt the Informers in Saul's Court of whom he much complains, begging God's Aſſiſtance to defeat their wicked Deſigns againſt him.

PLead thou my Cauſe, O LORD, with them that ſtrive with me: and fight thou againſt them that fight againſt me.
2. Lay hand upon the Shield and Buckler: and ſtand up to help me.
3. Bring forth the Spear, and ſtop the way againſt them that Perſecute me: ſay unto my Soul, I am thy Salvation.
4. Let them be confounded and put to ſhame that ſeek after my Soul: let them be turned back, and brought to Confuſion that imagine miſchief for me.
5. Let them be as the Duſt before the Wind: and the Angel of the LORD ſcattering them.

7. For

11. Come, ye good People, who are willing to learn a pious Leſſon, you ſhall be my Scholars and I will be your Tutor, to teach you how to fear God, and to continue yourſelves in his Favour.
12. Who is the Man that is willing to live a good, a long, and a happy Life?
13. Why, the way to attain this, is to obſerve theſe Rules. Avoid all the Offences of the Tongue, eſpecially Lying, Slandering and Diſſimulation.
14. Avoid every known Sin: do as much good as thou canſt in thy Capacity; and laſtly, contribute all thou art able to promote the publick Peace, and the quiet of private Converſation.
15. The Eyes of God, like thoſe of a kind Parent over his Children, are always fixt upon good Men, to defend them from Miſchief; and he has the ſame paternal Affection, to grant what they ask of him.
16. But he ſhews a ſtern and an angry Countenance to the wicked, as a Conqueror doth to his faithleſs Enemies; and is ſo far from ſhewing them any kindneſs, that he will, in his Severity, deſtroy them and extirpate their Families.
17. When good Men put up their Prayers to God under their Afflictions, he is pleaſed graciouſly to grant their Petitions, and to deliver them, according as they deſire, from their Calamities.
18. The Lord is ready at hand to take from ſuch their Afflictions in his good time; when they have wrought his deſigned Effect upon them, by humbling them, and bringing them nearer to him.
19. Indeed God is pleaſed to ſend very ſore Afflictions to good Men; but then this is only to chaſtiſe them in order to make them better; and when he has brought this about, he never fails to remove them.
20. But even, whilſt the good Man is under Affliction, God does not ſuffer his Misfortunes to endanger his Life; he permits them to ſink no deeper into him, than the Fleſh or the out-parts of his Body; he keeps his Bones and Vitals ſtill free from any harm.
21. But the misfortunes, which fall upon wicked Men, ſhall downright kill them; and the unjuſt Perſecutors of holy Men ſhall be condemned to a like Deſtruction.
22. God reſcueth his Servants from the wicked Contrivances, which are formed againſt their Lives, and, by reaſon they rely upon his Protection, they ſhall not be diſappointed of their Hopes.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXV.

O Lord, I beſeech thee to be my Advocate, to plead my Cauſe againſt my powerful Adverſaries; and to be my Champion to fight for me againſt my Enemies.
2. Prepare thy Arms to be ready to engage in my Cauſe, and go out into the Field to encounter my Enemies for me.
3. Direct the point of thy Spear againſt my Perſecutors, ſtop them in their Paſſage as they are following me: Strengthen my Mind in a firm Confidence, that thou wilt be my Deliverer.
4. Let theſe Hunters after my Life be entirely routed, and brought to the Diſgrace of a ſhameful Defeat: let theſe contrivers of my Ruin be put to flight by thy Aſſiſtance, and fall into all the diſorder of a beaten Army.
5. Let them be driven before thee, as the Duſt is driven before a ſtrong Wind, thy victorious Angel ſo ſcattering them that they may never be able to rally again.

6. Let their way be dark and ſlippery: and let the Angel of the LORD perſecute them.

7. For they have privily laid their net to deſtroy me without a cauſe: yea, even without a Cauſe have they made a pit for my ſoul.

8. Let a ſudden Deſtruction come upon him unawares, and his Net that he hath laid privily, catch himſelf: that he may fall into his own Miſchief.

9. And, my Soul, be joyful in the LORD: it ſhall rejoyce in his Salvation.

10. All my Bones ſhall ſay, LORD, who is like unto thee, who deliverest the Poor from him that is too ſtrong for him: yea, the poor, and him that is in miſery, from him that ſpoileth him?

11. Falſe Witneſſes did riſe up: they laid to my Charge things that I knew not.

12. They rewarded me evil for good: to the great diſcomfort of my Soul.

13. Nevertheleſs, when they were ſick, I put on Sack-cloth, and humbled my Soul with Faſting: and my Prayer ſhall turn into mine own Boſom.

14. I behaved my ſelf as though it had been my Friend or my Brother: I went heavily, as one that mourneth for his Mother.

15. But in mine Adverſity they rejoyced, and gathered themſelves together: yea, the very abjects came together againſt me unawares, making Mows at me, and ceaſed not.

16. With the Flatterers were buſie Mockers: who gnaſhed upon me with their Teeth.

17. LORD, how long wilt thou look upon this: O deliver my Soul from the calamities which they bring on me, and my darling from the Lions.

18. So will I give thee Thanks in the great Congregation: I will praiſe thee among much People.

19. O let not them that are mine Enemies, Triumph over me ungodly: neither let them wink with their Eyes, that hate me without a Cauſe.

20. And why? their communing is not for Peace: but they imagine deceitful Words againſt them that are quiet in the Land.

21. They gaped upon me with their Mouths, and ſaid: Fie on thee, fie on thee, we ſaw it with our Eyes.

22. This thou haſt ſeen, O LORD, hold not thy Tongue then, go not far from me, O LORD.

23. Awake,

6. Let them not have ſo much as the Advantage of a ſafe Flight, but let the darkneſs of the Night, and the ſlipperineſs of the way they take, neceſſitate them to ſtumble, and expoſe them to the Vengeance of thy purſuing Angel.

7. For having received on provocation from me, they have laid a Snare for my Life; as Hunters dig a Pit and ſpread a Net, to take wild Beaſts with.

8. Let the Author of this miſchievous Contrivance ſuffer, by this Stratagem which he has deceitfully form'd againſt me.

9. Then ſhall my Soul conceive the higheſt Joy, and pay the profoundeſt Gratitude to Almighty God, for working my Deliverance.

10. Then ſhall all my inward Parts exult and triumph with an inſupportable Joy, and break out in an acknowledgment of thy unparallel'd Goodneſs, for protecting the helpleſs Innocent from a powerful Oppreſſor.

11. I have been bely'd by malicious Calumniators, who are guilty therein of as much villanous Perjury, as falſe Witneſſes who ſtand up in a Court of Juſtice to give in ſham-Evidence; they objecting againſt me things that I never ſo much as thought of.

12. Nay theſe Men, who have contrived ſo great a Miſchief againſt me, ſtand bound to me by many former Obligations; which was no little aggravation of my Grief, making thereby my Soul as comfortleſs as an Orphan, or a Widow.

13. But, tho' they now perſecute me with this outrageous Cruelty, when they were afflicted with a dangerous Sickneſs, I had ſuch a tender Compaſſion for them, that I put on Sack-cloth in ſtead of my uſual Apparel, and kept a Faſt to implore God's Bleſſing for their recovery; but ſince they have requited me thus, they will receive no benefit by my Prayer, but my requeſt to God, on their Behalf, ſhall ſecure a Benefit for myſelf from him.

14. I paid conſolatory Viſits to them with as much Concern, as if it were to my Brother and deareſt Friend; having as much ſorrow upon me, as if my Mother were newly dead.

15. But when my late Misfortune befel me, in my Diſgrace with Saul, they put on an unuſual Joy, and met in Cabals to triumph over my Misfortune; nay, ſome of the very Refuſe of the People publickly affronted me; for a great ſpace together following after me, as I paſs'd along, by way of Deriſion; opening their Mouths ſo wide, as if they would tear them.

16. I have been inſulted by a Tribe of ſcurrilous Buffoons, who, to flatter ſome of my powerful Enemies, made Jeſts upon me, and grinn'd at me when I paſſed by them.

17. O Lord, how long wilt thou connive at this intolerable Uſage of me? O protect my poor Life from theſe Injuries of theirs, and from the Deſtruction, which theſe devouring Lions threaten me with.

18. Which deliverance, if thou art pleaſed to favour me with, whenever I am ſo happy again to be preſent in thy Tabernacle, I will there, in the publick Congregation, make acknowledgment of thy Goodneſs, in an extraordinary Congregation, upon ſome ſolemn Feaſt-Day.

19. O let not my Enemies ſo injuriouſly inſult me; nor thoſe, who have conceived this cauſeleſs Hatred againſt me, wink their Eyes upon me in Deriſion of my Misfortune.

20. Why! do they, in their Converſation, diſcover any thing that has the look of Peace and Friendſhip? Do not they, by Deceitful Counſels, and, by Accuſations formed out of their own Imaginations, irritate the Prince againſt innocent Men, that would live peaceably and quietly in the State, if they did not force them upon other Methods for their own Security?

21. They run upon me with open Mouths, bawling out, Fie upon thee, thou Traitor! thou haſt long uſed ſpecious Arts to diſguiſe thy Treaſon againſt Saul, but now it is too apparent to be denied.

22. This, O Lord, thou haſt taken a view of by thy All-ſeeing Eye; do not therefore ſit an unconcerned Spectator at my Misfortunes, and ſay nothing in my Behalf; Do not thou go away from me, and deſert me, as my other Friends do.

23. Thou

23. Awake, and ſtand up to judge my Quarrel: avenge thou my cauſe, my God, and my LORD.

24. Judge me, O LORD my God; according to thy Righteouſneſs: and let them not Triumph over me.

25. Let them not ſay in their Hearts, There, there, ſo would we have it: neither let them ſay, We have devoured him.

26. Let them be put to Confuſion and Shame together, that rejoyce at my Trouble: let them be clothed with Rebuke and Diſhonour, that boaſt themſelves againſt me.

27. Let them be glad and rejoyce, that favour my righteous dealing, yea, let them ſay alway, Bleſſed be the LORD, who hath Pleaſure in the Proſperity of his Servant.

28. And as for my Tongue, it ſhall be talking of thy Righteouſneſs: and of thy Praiſe all the Day long.

The XXXVI. PSALM.

Dixit injuſtus.

¶ ¶ This is a Pſalm of David, compoſed, as the Arabick and Syriack Verſions inform us, during ſome time of his Perſecution under Saul. It was probably written in the beginning thereof, when Saul carried it tolerably fair towards him, though he ſecretly contriv'd his Ruin. This wicked Diſſimulation the Pſalmiſt touches upon in this Pſalm, and diſires God to deliver him from any ill Effects of it.

MY Heart ſheweth me the Wickedneſs of the Ungodly: that there is no fear of God before his Eyes.

2. For he flattereth himſelf in his own Sight: until his abominable Sin be found out.

3. The Words of his Mouth are Unrighteous and full of Deceit: he hath left off to behave himſelf wiſely, and to do good.

4. He imagineth miſchief upon his Bed, and hath ſet himſelf in no good way: neither doth he abhor any thing that is Evil.

5. Thy Mercy, O LORD, reacheth unto the Heavens: and thy Faithfulneſs unto the Clouds.

6. Thy Righteouſneſs ſtandeth like the ſtrong Mountains: thy Judgments are like the great Deep.

7. Thou, LORD, ſhalt ſave both Man and Beaſt. How excellent is thy Mercy, O God: and the Children of Men ſhall put their Truſt under the Shadow of thy Wings.

8. They ſhall be ſatisfied with the plenteouſneſs of thy Houſe: and thou ſhalt give them drink of thy Pleaſures, as out of the River.

9. For

23. Thou haſt ſeemed, for a conſiderable time, to be as regardleſs of my Defence, as a Centinel that is aſleep; but let thy Juſtice now awake, appearing vigorouſly in defence of my righteous cauſe, who art my God and my Lord, and from that Relation doſt ſtand obliged to defend thy Servant.

24. I do not beg of thee to do any thing for my ſake out of particular Favour, I only deſire thee to judge between me and my Enemies, upon the pure Merits of my Cauſe, as thy unerring Wiſdom and Juſtice ſhall direct; and let them not have any longer a Pretence, to inſult me upon theſe unjuſt Accuſations.

25. Let them not ſay to themſelves. This is well! This is well! all things go according to our Deſire; and David is manifeſtly guilty of Treaſon, and will ſhortly receive his deſerved Puniſhment for his Crime: Let them no longer make their Brags, that they by driving him to theſe Extremities, have wrought his Ruin.

26. Let thoſe that combine together, in their jolly Meetings, to Scoff at me, ſhare their deſerved Shame, by having their hopes, concerning me, fruſtrated: Let Diſgraces ſtick as cloſe to them, as a Garment, that ſpeak ſuch proud and diſdainful Words againſt me.

27. But let Joy and Proſperity attend thoſe Perſons, who are favourable Wiſhers to my Cauſe, as being conſcious of the great Juſtice of it: And let them have the Opportunity of bleſſing God, for protecting an injured good Man.

28. And as for my part, I promiſe, that being obliged by this Mercy, I ſhall continually praiſe thy Divine Goodneſs for it.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXVI.

THere is a certain Atheiſtical Irreligious Man in the World, that dares not ſpeak out what he thinks of Religion, as others dare not declare freely their Thoughts of him; but yet I am fully perſwaded in my Mind, that he has no conſcientious Regard at all of God or Religion.

2. For he flattereth himſelf, that his Sins will paſs overunregarded by any ſuperior Being, who will call him to an account for his Actions; until God finds him out, by ſending a remarkable Puniſhment upon him, to take Vengeance upon his abominable and hateful Courſe of Life.

3. His Words are void of Truth and Sincerity, being at the bottom nothing but unrighteous Craft and Fraud; he has a long time forbore to purſue any of the wiſe Methods which Religion preſcribes, and to do any vertuous Action.

4. In the Night-time, when others, even bad Men, having compoſed themſelves to ſleep, allow a Ceſſation to their Crimes, he ſtudies Wickedneſs upon his Bed; he does not ſo much as propoſe to himſelf, the doing any thing that is Vertuous; and there is nothing ſo deteſtably bad, but he has overcome the natural Averſion of committing it.

5. But, though the Wickedneſs of ſuch Perſons be never ſo great, thy Goodneſs, O Lord, is of greater extent to defend me from it; for their Tyrannick Power is limited within a ſmall part of the Earth, but thy Mercy reacheth beyond the Heavens.

6. Beſides this Juſtice, whereby thou doſt puniſh ſuch outrageous Crimes, tho' it happens ſometimes to be ſlow, is as firm and immutable, as the ſtrongeſt Mountains, and as unfathomable as the Deep.

7. Nay, thy Goodneſs is of that diffuſive Nature, that it extends itſelf to take care even of inanimate Creatures; therefore Men may with a greater Degree of Aſſurance, expect Preſervation from thee; whom thou doſt preſerve with as much Tenderneſs, as a Hen doth her Chickens under her Wing.

8. Thou doſt entertain them with the choiceſt Dainties, which thy worldly Houſe here doth afford; thou doſt make them drink large Draughts of Corporeal Pleaſure, being ſupplied by the Streams of a perpetual River, as is were, flowing in upon them.

9. For

9. For with thee is the Well of Life: and in thy Light ſhall we ſee Light.

10. O continue forth thy loving Kindneſs unto them that know thee: and thy Righteouſneſs unto them that are true of Heart.

11. O let not the foot of Pride come againſt me: and let not the Hand of the Ungodly caſt me down.

12. There are they faln, all that work Wickedneſs: they are caſt down, and ſhall not be able to ſtand.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XXXVII. PSALM.

Noli æmulari.

¶ ¶ It is not eaſie to determine when this Pſalm of David was compoſed, but moſt probably it was written in the time of his Afflictions after Saul's Reign. The Deſign hereof is, to perſwade Men to a Submiſſion to God's Diſpenſations of what kind ſoever, and not to think hard of his Providence, for letting good Men lie under Preſſures or Hardſhips, whilſt bad ones enjoy an uninterrupted Proſperity.

FRet not thy ſelf becauſe of the Ungodly: neither be thou envious againſt the evil Doers.

2. For they ſhall ſoon be cut down like the Graſs: and be withered even as the green Herb.

3. Put thou thy truſt in the LORD, and be doing good: dwell in the Land, and verily thou ſhalt be fed.

4. Delight thou in the LORD: and he ſhall give thee thy Hearts deſire.

5. Commit thy way unto the LORD, and put thy truſt in him: and he ſhall bring it to paſs.

6. He ſhall make thy Righteouſneſs as clear as the Light: and thy juſt Dealing as the Noon-day.

7. Hold thee ſtill in the LORD, and abide patiently upon him: but grieve not thy ſelf at him whoſe way doth Proſper, againſt the Man that doeth after evil Counſels.

8. Leave off from Wrath, and let go Diſpleaſure: fret not thy ſelf, elſe ſhalt thou be moved to do evil.

9. Wicked doers ſhall be rooted out: and they that patiently abide the LORD, thoſe ſhall inherit the Land.

10. Yet a little while, and the Ungodly ſhall be clean gone: thou ſhalt look after his place, and he ſhall be away.

11. But the meek-Spirited ſhall poſſeſs the Earth: and ſhall be refreſhed in the multitude of Peace.

12. The

9. For with thee there is an inexhauſtible Fountain of Pleaſure; and every Spark of Satisfaction which we enjoy, is derived from thy original Light.

10. Now ſince thou art ſo good to the Univerſality of Mankind, I beſeech thee to continue thy Goodneſs to thoſe who faithfully believe in thee, and conſcientiouſly obey thee.

11. O let me not be trampled upon by the Feet of theſe wicked Men, nor let their Hands be able to work any Miſchief againſt me.

12. Nay, now I reſt in a full Confidence of thy Deliverance; I now ſee the Ruin of my malicious Enemies: I plainly now diſcover them tumbling down from their height, unto which they ſhall never be able to riſe again.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXVII.

BE not thou diſcontented and envious at the proſperous Condition of wicked Men.

2. For their Happineſs does not promiſe to be very laſting; it is like the Greenneſs of the Graſs, which whilſt it grows upon the Ground, makes a goodly ſhew, but in a few Hours time, if cut down by the Mower, is faded and withered.

3. But do thou place thy Confidence in Almighty God, and do thy Duty in all reſpects, and he will make thee far more happy than theſe Men ſeem to be; he ſhall give thee a long Life in thy Native Country, and ſhall give thee all Neceſſaries to make it comfortable.

4. Do thou make God thy Love, and thy Delight, cauſing all thy Affections to centre in him; and he will requite thee, by ſhewing his Kindneſs to thee, and granting whatever thou doſt deſire of him, if he foreſees it will be fitting and convenient for thee.

5. Intruſt thy ſelf, and all that belongs to thee, with God; and he will grant a happy Succeſs to all thy Undertakings.

6. And if thou doſt ſo, whatever Slanders and Calumnies Men unjuſtly throw upon thee, he will vindicate thy Reputation to the World, and make it as clear as the Light, that thou art a good and vertuous Man, and not chargeable with thoſe foul Crimes which thy Enemies impute to thee.

7. Be ſtill and ſilent when thou haſt got ſo good a Portion as God is, do not be froward and complaining under his Care, but patiently wait his good time, and he will do the beſt for thee; and do not repine and vex thyſelf, to ſee many wicked Men flouriſh through a long Courſe of their Life, and to obſerve them to get great Eſtates by crafty Counſels, and indirect Means.

8. Leave off, therefore, this peeviſh Temper, of vexing at ſuch Inſtances; for if thou doſt perſiſt therein, thou thyſelf wilt be as guilty of Wickedneſs as they are whom thou taxeſt.

9. Have but Patience a little while to wait, and thou ſhalt ſee the Families of theſe ſeeming proſperous Men to be extirpated, and the pious Servants of God inheriting their Eſtates.

10. It is but a little while before theſe wicked Men, that make ſuch a Blaze in the World now, ſhall be themſelves deſtroyed, their Families loſt, and there ſhall not be the leaſt Trace of them remaining.

11. Thou ſhalt likewiſe ſee the good and humble Man, to be bleſſed with the Enjoyment of the good things of this World, and with an abundance of Proſperity.

12. The

12. The Ungodly ſeeketh Counſel againſt the Juſt: and gnaſheth upon him with his Teeth.

13. The LORD ſhall laugh him to Scorn: for he hath ſeen that his day is coming.

14. The Ungodly have drawn out the Sword, and have bent their Bow: to caſt down the Poor and Needy, and to ſlay ſuch as are of a right Converſation.

15. Their Sword ſhall go through their own Heart: and their Bow ſhall be broken.

16. A ſmall thing that the Righteous hath: is better than great Riches of the Ungodly.

17. For the Arms of the Ungodly ſhall be broken: and the LORD upholdeth the Righteous.

18. The LORD knoweth the Days of the Godly: and their Inheritance ſhall endure for ever.

19. They ſhall not be confounded in the perillous Time: and in the Days of Dearth they ſhall have enough.

20. As for the Ungodly they ſhall periſh, and the Enemies of the LORD ſhall conſume as the Fat of Lambs: yea, even as the Smoke ſhall they conſume away.

21. The Ungodly borroweth, and payeth not again: but the Righteous is merciful and liberal.

22. Such as are bleſſed of God, ſhall poſſeſs the Land: and they that are curſed of him ſhall be rooted out.

23. The LORD ordereth a good Man's going: and maketh his way acceptable to himſelf.

24. Though he fall, he ſhall not be caſt away: for the LORD upholdeth him with his Hand.

25. I have been young, and now am old: and yet ſaw I never the Righteous forſaken, nor his Seed begging their Bread.

26. The Righteous is ever merciful, and lendeth: and his Seed is bleſſed.

27. Flee from evil, and do the thing that is good: and dwell for evermore. 28. For

12. The wicked Man, indeed, is endeavouring, by all the crafty Methods he can, to miſchief the good Man, and ſhews forth the Malice he bears him, by his malicious ſcornful Behaviour.

13. But as his Scorn of the good Man can do him no harm, ſo God laughs at him to better purpoſe, when he reſolves to pull him down from his height, and does foreſee the day of his Calamity approaching near.

14. When ſuch wicked Perſons are juſt upon the Point of accompliſhing their miſchievous Deſigns, which they have projected, to the Deſtruction of their Neighbour, and have, as it were, drawn out their Sword, and bent their Bow, to do execution upon him,

15. All of a ſudden God appears, to reſcue them from their impendent Deſtruction, and turns it upon the cruel Contrivers thereof, he makes the Sword paſs through their own Heart, by the force which their own Hand had given it; he ſnaps their Bow aſunder, and makes them diſcharge their Arrows in their own Faces.

16. Beſides, thou haſt little reaſon to grudge at the great Riches which ſome wicked Men enjoy, if thou doſt conſider, that that little which the good Man has, being accompanied with Content, and God's Bleſſing, brings far more Satisfaction to him, than the wicked Man enjoys with all his Abundance, where theſe Graces are wanting.

17. Nor are their Enjoyments, whatſoever they be, like to continue long with them, for tho' they hug their Riches never ſo faſt to them, God ſhall break their Arms, and force them to let them go; but God ſhall be a great ſupport to the good Man, he ſhall hold him up, and keep him from miſcarrying in his worldly Circumſtances, and by his Bleſſing make his Affairs proſper.

18. God knows (that is, by a particular Providence, takes care, Exod. 2. 25. Pſal. 1. 6. Matt. 6. 32.) of the good Man's Life, to proſper and prolong it; and makes his Family after him, to flouriſh for many Generations.

19. When the Land groans under the Miſeries of War, they ſhall not ſuffer by the Ravages committed thereby; or when a Famine makes the generality of People pine for want of Food, no Conveniencies of Life ſhall be wanting to them.

20. But on the other ſide, as for the wicked Oppoſers of God and Religion, they ſhall fall Victims to God's Vengeance, they ſhall melt away as the Fat of Lambs does, which is laid upon the Coals of the Altar; they ſhall all go off in Smoke, and be ſeen no more.

21. Wicked Men are for the moſt part, by the Luxury of their Living, under preſſing Circumſtances to borrow Money to ſupply their Vices, which they never pay again; but the good Man has wherewithal, not only comfortably to live upon himſelf, but, by his Charity, to relieve the Neceſſities of others.

22. Add to this, that the good Man has God's Bleſſing accompanying him, which will certainly in God's own time, bring down the good things, even of this World, upon him, or his Poſterity, whilſt there is a Curſe entailed upon the Family of the Wicked.

23. Beſides, it is matter of great Conſolation to the good Man, that he is under the immediate Conduct and Guidance of Almighty God; that all his Actions are governed by his Wiſdom and Care; and that God is pleaſed with what he does.

24. And tho' he may happen ſometimes to fall into a Misfortune, yet he ſhall not be utterly undone by it; for God, who does, as it were, hold him up by his Hand, ſhall afford him Comfort ſo long as his Calamity continues; and when it has wrought that due Effect which he deſigns, ſhall remove it from him.

25. I am now arrived to a mature Age, in which I am able to make ſome wiſe Obſervations, upon the Matters of Fact which have occurred in my time, and yet I do not remember an Inſtance, of any good charitable Man's being entirely forſaken by God; or if God's Bounty was not beſtowed upon him in his Life-time, that God did not proſper the Affairs of his Children after him, and make them flouriſh in the World.

26. For that, which does chiefly incline God to be kind to his Family, is his Charity to the Poor; it is this, which entails a Bleſſing upon his Poſterity.

27. And therefore if a Man were to caſt about, to find out a certain Method to build up a laſting Family, and to have his Poſterity flouriſh for many Generations; the moſt proper Courſe which he could take, would be ſtrictly to abſtain from every known Sin, and to do all the Good which his Circumſtances will enable him to do.

28. For the LORD loveth the thing that is right: he forſaketh not his that be Godly, but they are preſerved for ever.

29. [The Unrighteous ſhall be puniſhed] as for the Seed of the Ungodly, it ſhall be rooted out.

30. The Righteous ſhall inherit the Land: and dwell therein for ever.

31. The Mouth of the Righteous is exerciſed in Wiſdom: and his Tongue will be talking of Judgment.

32. The Law of his God is in his Heart: and his goings ſhall not ſlide.

33. The Ungodly ſeeth the Righteous: and ſeeketh occaſion to ſlay him.

34. The LORD will not leave him in his Hand: nor condemn him when he is judged.

35. Hope thou in the LORD, and keep his way, and he ſhall promote thee, that thou ſhalt poſſeſs the Land: when the Ungodly ſhall Periſh thou ſhalt ſee it.

36. I my ſelf have ſeen the Ungodly in great Power: and flouriſhing like a green Bay-tree.

37. I went by, and lo, he was gone: I ſought him, but [his place] could no where be found.

38. Keep Innocency, and take heed unto the thing that is right: for that ſhall bring a Man Peace at the laſt.

39. As for the Tranſgreſſors, they ſhall Periſh together: and the end of the Ungodly is, They ſhall be rooted out at the laſt.

40. But the Salvation of the Righteous cometh of the LORD: who is alſo their Strength in the time of Trouble.

41. And the LORD ſhall ſtand by them, and ſave them: he ſhall deliver them from the Ungodly, and ſhall ſave them, becauſe they put their truſt in him.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XXXVIII. PSALM.

Domine, ne in furore.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is commonly ſuppoſed to be penned by David, whilſt he laboured under ſome very painful and noiſom Diſeaſe. Others think, with more probability, that he deſcribes his Grief for his Sin in the matter of Uriah, under the Metapherical Repreſentation of a violent Diſtemper. The Hebrew Title is, A Pſalm to bring to Remembrance; that is, One wherein David calls to mind his grievous Sin.

PUT me not to rebuke, O LORD, in thine Anger: neither chaſten me in thy heavy Diſpleaſure. 2. For

28. For the Lord has ſuch a regard for Vertue and Charity, that he will not diſappoint ſuch Perſons of his Aſſiſtance when they have need of it; he ſuccours them under the Calamities of this World, and preſerves them to eternal Life in the next, making their Families likewiſe to flouriſh after their Death.

29. But as for wicked Men, they ſhall be puniſhed in another World, and their Families, however flouriſhing they be at preſent, ſhall in a little time be totally extirpated.

30. The good and charitable Man, ſhall partake of the choiceſt Bleſſings of this World, as long as he lives; and his Poſterity after him, ſhall inherit his Happineſs, if they follow the Example of their Religious Parent.

31. The Diſcourſe of this good Man, is not taken up with prophane and worldly Matters, but he entertains his own and other Mens Thoughts with whom he converſes, with wiſe Reflections concerning God and Religion.

32. Nor does his Religion go no farther than his Lips, he not only talks piouſly, but has the Law of God deeply rooted in his Heart, which, by God's Grace, obtains ſuch an aſcendent over his Actions, that he is not ſo eaſily ſurprized into a Breach of his Duty, as other Men.

33. The wicked Man looketh out after the good and pious Man, and obſerving him to be void of all worldly Strength, watcheth all Opportunities to do him miſchief, and, if it lies in his power, to take away his Life.

34. But then on the other ſide, God interpoſeth his Power for his Relief, he reſcues him out of his enraged Adverſaries Hands; and tho' he uncharitably condemns him, by pretended Faults laid to his Charge, God not only abſolves him from his imputed Crimes, but delivers him from the Harms which were deſigned againſt him.

35. Therefore be thou ſure to continue thy Confidence and Reliance upon God, and diligently obſerve his Commandments, being reſolutely bent with Patience to bear all the Sufferings which he ſhall permit the Wicked to bring upon thee; for in ſo doing, thou wilt engage the Juſtice of God to interpoſe at laſt in thy behalf, to raiſe thee to a more fortunate Condition, even in this World, if God ſhall think it beſt for thee: And thou ſhalt live to ſee the Wicked falling from his preſent State of Proſperity, into ſuch a deplorable Condition, that thou ſhalt be ſo far from envying at, that thou ſhalt in a manner pity him.

36. I myſelf, within my Experience, have made obſervation of a certain wicked Perſon (viz. Saul) flouriſhing in a mighty Extent of Felicity and Power, not unlike a curious Bay-Tree, ſhooting out its beautiful Leaves and Branches around, and ſhining with a delicate verdure.

37. And yet of a ſudden, I perceived him to be vaniſhed away, and I could not diſcover any Tracks of him remaining, both he and his Family being entirely deſtroyed.

38. Keep thy Soul innocent and undefiled from any groſs Sin, conſcientiouſly obſerving, to the utmoſt of thy Power, all the Laws of God; and then thou ſhalt be ſure to find Peace and Happineſs at thy latter end.

39. But on the other ſide, wicked Men ſhall be deſtroyed together, every one of them without exception, altho' God be ſometimes long in deferring their Puniſhment; but at laſt his Vengeance will fall heavy upon them, and both they and their Family ſhall be extirpated.

40. But good Men have a ſure Protector under their Affliction, even the Almighty God, who as he has Power, ſo he is always ready to aſſiſt them.

41. God ſhall be always ready to exert his Omnipotence, for their Deliverance from the Outrages of the Wicked; and becauſe they ſincerely rely upon him, ſhall take them into his Protection, as if they were his Wards or Orphans.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXVIII.

O Lord, do not continue to chaſtiſe me with ſo much Severity, as thou haſt done; and be not like an angry Maſter, correcting his Servant in the height of his Fury. 2. Thou

2. For thine Arrows ſtick faſt in me: and thy Hand preſſeth me ſore.
3. There is no health in my Fleſh, becauſe of thy Diſpleaſure: neither is there any reſt in my Bones, by reaſon of my Sin.
4. For my wickedneſſes are gone over my Head: and are like a ſore Burden, too heavy for me to bear.
5. My Wounds ſtink and are corrupt: through my fooliſhneſs.
6. I am brought into ſo great Trouble and Miſery: that I go mourning all the Day long.
7. For my Loins are filled with a ſore Diſeaſe: and there is no whole part in my Body.
8. I am feeble and ſore ſmitten: I have roared for the very diſquietneſs of my Heart.
9. LORD, thou knoweſt all my deſire: and my groaning is not hid from thee.
10. My Heart panteth, my Strength hath failed me: and the ſight of mine Eyes is gone from me.
11. My Lovers and my Neighbours did ſtand looking upon my Trouble: and my Kinſmen ſtood afar off.
12. They alſo that ſought after my Life, laid Snares for me: and they that went about to do me Evil, talked of Wickedneſs, and imagined Deceit all the Day long.
13. As for me, I was like a deaf Man and heard not: and as one that is dumb, who doth not open his Mouth.
14. I became even as a Man that heareth not: and in whoſe Mouth are no reproofs.
15. For in thee, O LORD, have I put my truſt: thou ſhalt anſwer for me, O LORD my God.
16. I have required that they, [even mine Enemies,] ſhould not triumph over me: for when my Foot ſlipt, they rejoyced greatly againſt me.
17. And I truly am ſet in the Plague: and my heavineſs is ever in my ſight.
18. For I will confeſs my Wickedneſs: and be ſorry for my Sin.
19. But mine Enemies live, and are mighty: and they that hate me wrongfully, are many in number.
20. They alſo that reward Evil for Good, are againſt me: becauſe I follow the thing that good is.

21. For

2. Thou by inflicting this intolerable Grief upon me, haſt ſhot me through with thy Arrows, and I feel the weight of thy heavy Hand, by the terrible Strokes which thou haſt given me.

3. The Thoughts of thy Diſpleaſure, which thou haſt conceived againſt me for my great Sin, has created a Pain in me all over my Body, which is ſo very ſharp, that it penetrates to my very Bones and Intrails.

4. I now perceive, that my Iniquities, like a Torrent, have overwhelmed and drowned me; and, like an inſupportable Burden, bear me down under their weight.

5. I am full of putrified and corrupted Sores, which my fooliſh diſobeying of God's Commands has brought upon me.

6. Such an inexpreſſible degree of Grief has overcharged my Soul, that I continually walk by my ſelf moping and diſconſolate, like a deep Mourner in his Weeds.

7. My inward and vital Parts, nay my very Soul itſelf, is filled with Ulcers; and every part of my Body does partake of my grievous Diſeaſe.

8. I have, as it were, loſt the uſe of my Limbs (like one that is ſore beaten) by thy ſevere Chaſtiſement of me; and the Sorrow of my Heart, conceived from the Senſe of my Sin, has made me cry out with that vehemency, as if I was upon the Rack.

9. O Lord, thou canſt not but perceive, with what an earneſt deſire I long to return to thy Favour; and thou ſeeſt the violent Pangs and Convulſions of my repenting Soul.

10. I am like one that lies expiring and panting for his laſt Breath; I have no Strength left me; but my very Eye-balls are broken, as in the point of Death.

11. My Friends, Neighbours and Relations, ſtood round me to ſtare at me, as they uſe to do about a ſick Man's Bed, keeping a-loof off from me, as if they were afraid of being infected by me; but none of them affording me any comfort.

12. At the ſame time, when my Friends would do me no good, my Enemies were hatching miſchief againſt me, and were continually contriving deceitful Methods to deſtroy me.

13. I could not but take notice, how ſome ſlighted me, and others reviled me; but I returned them no anſwer, but was as ſilent as a dying Man, who had loſt his Hearing and his Speech.

14. I ſaid no more to them, than a deaf Man is wont to repartee upon thoſe, who make Reflections upon him, with a low Voice which he cannot hear.

15. But the reaſon of my ſilence was, becauſe my hope is, that thou, my God, ſhouldſt anſwer them to better purpoſe than myſelf, by inflicting upon them a deſerved Puniſhment, for their Inſolence and Treachery.

16. For I begged of thee in my Prayers, that theſe inſolent Adverſaries ſhould not inſult me, after this outragious manner; for whenever they obſerve my Foot ſlipping in any part of my Duty, they not only triumph over me, but upon Godlineſs and Religion likewiſe for my ſake.

17. I am ſet down and fix'd in Torment and Vexation for my Guilt; and my Heavineſs never removes from my Eyes.

18. I will not deny or palliate the Wickedneſs which I have committed, but will confeſs it before God, with all the aggravating Circumſtances which attended it, and will be heartily ſorry for my offending him thereby.

19. But notwithſtanding my ſincere Repentance for my having offended thee, I perceive thy Anger, O God, is not yet turned from me; when I conſider what a number of unprovoked Enemies I have, who live in a flouriſhing Condition, whilſt I am under ſo much Anguiſh and Diſconſolation.

20. For many, whom I have obliged by former Favours, are now become my enraged Adverſaries, for no other reaſon, but becauſe I ſteadily purſue the publick Intereſt of my Country.

21. But

21. Forſake me not, O LORD my God: be not thou far from me.
22. Haſte thee to help me: O LORD [God] of my Salvation.

The XXXIX. PSALM.

Dixi cuſtodiam.

¶¶ This Pſalm was compoſed when David was under a ſevere Fit of Sickneſs, as ſome think, or a great Degree of Trouble, as others. The Subject of it is not very different from that of the 37*th and* 73*d*, viz. The Scandal which good Men take, whilſt they are under Affliction, at the Proſperity of the Wicked; to which is annexed a Reflection upon the Vanity of worldly things, as a proper Argument to cure ſuch an Impatience.

I Said, I will take heed to my ways: that I offend not in my Tongue.
2. I will keep my Mouth as it were with a Bridle: while the Ungodly is in my ſight.
3. I held my Tongue, and ſpake nothing: I kept ſilence, yea, even from good Words; but it was Pain and Grief to me.
4. My Heart was hot within me, and while I was thus muſing the Fire kindled: and at laſt I ſpake with my Tongue.
5. LORD, let me know my end, and the number of my Days: that I may be certified how long I have to live.
6. Behold, thou haſt made my Days as it were a ſpan long: and mine Age is even as nothing in reſpect of thee, and verily every Man living is altogether Vanity.
7. For Man walketh in a vain ſhadow, and diſquieteth himſelf in vain: he heapeth up Riches, and cannot tell who ſhall gather them.
8. And now, LORD, what is my hope: truly my hope is even in thee.
9. Deliver me from all mine Offences: and make me not a rebuke unto the Fooliſh.
10. I became dumb, and opened not my Mouth: for it was thy doing.
11. Take thy Plague away from me: I am even conſumed by the * means of thy heavy Hand.
12. When thou with rebukes doſt chaſten Man for Sin, thou makeſt his Beauty to conſume away, like as it were a Moth fretting a Garment: every Man therefore is but Vanity.
13. Hear my Prayer, O LORD, and with thine Ears conſider my Calling: hold not thy Peace at my Tears.
14. For I am a Stranger with thee, and a ſojourner: as all my Fathers were.

15. O

21. But tho' my Friends, O Lord, forſake me, yet I am ſure thou wilt not; with thee therefore, I intruſt myſelf; O do not thou go far from me, but be ready upon all occaſions to aſſiſt me.
22. O do thou make haſte to my Succour; thou who haſt throughout the whole Courſe of my Life, been my perſerving God.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XXXIX.

I Made a Reſolution to uſe all the Circumſpection I poſſibly could, in my Life and Converſation; eſpecially to take care that I might not by any imprudent Word, which might drop from me in haſte, give my Adverſaries an Advantage againſt me.
2. Nay I was reſolved to be as ſparing of every Word I ſaid, whilſt my wicked Enemy was by, as if I had put a Bridle upon my Tongue.
3. And for a conſiderable time I did not utter one Syllable; I was ſo obſtinately reſolved to be ſilent, that I refrained, not only from making Reflections upon my Enemies, but even from my uſual Religious Diſcourſe, and the Vindication of my own righteous Cauſe; but this keeping my Sorrow to my ſelf, was ſo far from eaſing it, that it did greatly increaſe it.
4. For my Grief being thus pent up within me, and no vent allowed it, and being moreover chafed by my own Reflections, it blazed out into ſuch a Flame within my Breaſt, as forced me to break my deſigned Silence in theſe Words.
5. Lord, I beſeech thee to give me Grace, to make ſober Reflections upon the Shortneſs of Human Life, and that applying this to wiſe purpoſe, I may fit and prepare myſelf, for a better and more durable State.
6. Nay, I am already taught by my own Experience, that my Life is of ſo ſhort Duration, that it need not be meaſured by Reeds or Cubits, for a Span or Palm, the ſhorteſt of meaſures, will over-mete it: But if we compare it with the Eternity of thy Duration, O God, it is but a meer nothing; ſuch a poor, frail and empty thing is Man.
7. Nay, ſo great a Degree of Vanity and Emptineſs, is there in Human Nature, that our Life ſeems to be nothing elſe but a Mock-ſhew, without any thing of Reality, or the leaſt Solidity in it; and it is to no purpoſe, that Men fatigue and torment themſelves in the Purſuit of ſuch airy Bubbles, and drudge and turmoil all their Life to get an Eſtate, to be enjoy'd by they know not whom.
8. Since therefore the Vanity of Human Life is ſo great, our time ſo ſhort, our Enjoyments ſo empty, and the attaining of them ſo laborious: there is no hopes to find Happineſs here, or to expect Deliverance from things ſo uncertain; the only firm Foundation of Hope, which I can find, is in thee, O God.
9. O Lord, I beſeech thee to pardon thoſe many Violations of thy holy Laws, that I have been guilty of, which have expoſed me to the Puniſhment thou haſt been pleaſed to lay upon me; and let not my irreligious Enemies take occaſion, from my Sufferings, to make wrong Reflections upon thy Judgments.
10. I have not repined, nor made any indecent Reflections upon my Sufferings; for I knew that they were ſent me by thy Directions; all whoſe providential Diſpenſations are moſt wiſe and good.
11. O Lord, I beſeech thee do not lay ſuch ſevere Strokes upon me, as thou haſt done by this Affliction; for thy Hand is ſo heavy, that I am almoſt killed by the Blows given by it.
12. For when thou, by ſending a violent Diſtemper, doſt chaſtiſe a Man for his Sins, thou makeſt the comelineſs of his Perſonage, though never ſo graceful, to decay, and to look as unſightly as a moth-eaten Garment. This is another Argument, to ſhew the Vanity of Human Nature.
13. Now ſince, O Lord, I patiently ſubmit to thy moſt juſt Corrections, I with Tears beſeech thee, at length to ſpare me, and to remove them from me.
14. For tho' I may ſeem a great Prince, yet I poſſeſs nothing but what I hold of thee; for as our holy Prophet Moſes ſays, The Land is thine, and we are but Strangers and Sojourners with thee, Lev. 25. 23. as was the caſe of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, my Progenitors.

15. O

15. O ſpare me a little, that I may recover my Strength, before I go hence, and be no more ſeen.

The XL. PSALM.

Expectans expectavi.

¶¶ This is a Pſalm compoſed by David, and delivered to the Maſter of the Muſick for the uſe of the Tabernacle. It contains a Rehearſal and Acknowledgment of God's former Favours manifeſted to him, with a Prayer for future Bleſſings. Here is likewiſe a Prophetical Repreſentation of the Meſſias, and the Goſpel-Diſpenſation.

I Waited patiently for the LORD: and he inclined unto me and heard my calling.

2. He brought me alſo out of the horrible Pit, out of the Mire and Clay: and ſet my Feet upon the Rock, and ordered my goings.

3. And he hath put a new Song in my Mouth: even a Thankſgiving unto our God.

4. Many ſhall ſee it and fear: and ſhall put their Truſt in the LORD.

5. Bleſſed is the Man, that hath ſet his Hope in the LORD: and turned not unto the Proud, and to ſuch as go about with Lies.

6. O LORD my God, great are the wondrous Works, which thou haſt done, like as be alſo thy Thoughts, which are to us-ward: and yet there is no Man, that ordereth them unto thee.

7. If I ſhould declare them, and ſpeak of them: they ſhould be mo than I am able to expreſs.

8. Sacrifice and Meat-Offering thou wouldeſt not: but mine Ears haſt thou opened.

9. Burnt-Offerings, and Sacrifice for Sin haſt thou not required: then ſaid I, Lo I come.

10. In the Volume of the Book it is written of me, that I ſhould fulfil thy Will, O my God: I am content to do it, yea, thy Law is within my Heart.

11. I have declared thy Righteouſneſs in the great Congregation: lo, I will not refrain my Lips, O LORD, and that thou knoweſt.

12. I have not hid thy Righteouſneſs within my Heart: my talk hath been of thy Truth and of thy Salvation.

13. I have not kept back thy loving Mercy and Truth: from the great Congregation.

14. Withdraw not thou thy Mercy from me, O LORD: let thy loving-Kindneſs, and thy Truth alway preſerve me.

15. For

15. O therefore, I pray thee, grant ſome ſhort Relaxation of my Puniſhment, that during that Reſpite, I may have an opportunity of recovering my Strength, which is now almoſt entirely decay'd and ſpent, for if thou continueſt upon me thy uninterrupted Puniſhment, thou wilt kill me, and ſend me out of the World.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XL.

GReat is the Effect of a patient Waiting and reſolute Perſeverance in our dependence upon God, notwithſtanding his Aſſiſtance may ſeem long in coming; for I doing ſo, and waiting his due time, God has at laſt heard my Prayer, and granted me my Hearts deſire.

1. When I was overwhelmed with Afflictions, and, like a Traveller, plunged in a dirty hole of Mire and Clay, wherein I ſtuck ſo faſt I could not move; thou didſt pluck me out thereof, and direct me to proſecute my Journey in a hard champion way, where the travelling was both ſafe and pleaſant.

3. God by his late Favours vouchſafed to me, has afforded me a Subject for a new Hymn in his Praiſe, a Pſalm to the Honour of the God of Iſrael.

4. Many Perſons, who are of none of the moſt religious Diſpoſitions, when they ſee this extraordinary Inſtance of his Favour to me, ſhall learn from my Example to fear him, and to truſt in him.

5. Happy is that Man, who though under the Preſſure of many Troubles, repoſes his Truſt in God; who does not expect Deliverance from Pride and an arrogant Self-confidence, or from any lying and diſſembling Arts.

6. So many and ſo great are the wonderful Kindneſſes which thou haſt beſtowed upon thy Faithful Servants, and ſo many more are the Favours which thou thinkeſt to beſtow upon them, that no one can place them in Arithmetical Order, ſo as exactly to ſum them up.

7. If I could ſet them down in Figures, and ſhould afterwards endeavour to repeat the mighty Number in Words, I ſhould want a new Set of numeral Terms to expreſs them by.

8. Eſpecially that wonderful Benefit which thou doſt deſign to the whole World, by the Coming of the Meſſias; under whoſe Diſpenſations the Moſaical Sacrifices ſhall ceaſe, and Men ſhall ſerve him by ſuch a free and voluntary Service, as was paid by thoſe Servants, who loved their Maſters, and would not go free, and were in token thereof bored through the Ear, Exod. 21. 6. Deut. 15. 17.

9. Thou didſt declare, that thou wouldſt no longer be worſhipped by theſe legal Sacrifices; then did the Meſſias ſtipulate with his Almighty Father, that he ſhould come into the World to be the one great Sacrifice for the Sins thereof.

10. As I am ready (ſays he) to undertake this Office, O God the Father, according as we have long heretofore agreed, and has been foretold to Men by thoſe rolled-up Books of the Moſaical Law, which are read in the Synagogues; ſo in due time I do deſign to come into the World, compleatly to fulfil the Will of God, by my unſinning Obedience, and compliance with every Law of God, and thereby totally abrogate and diſanull the Moſaical Ordinances.

11. And thou, Lord, art my Witneſs, that I have not been ſparing of celebrating thy Praiſes, and declaring publickly in the religious Aſſembly of the Tabernacle, what Obligations I have received from thee; nor will I yet leave off to do the ſame.

12. Nor has it ſufficed me to meditate in my Mind upon thy great Benefits, but I have made them the Subject of my ordinary Diſcourſe.

13. And the Hymns which I have compoſed for the uſe of the Congregation, have been Acknowledgments of thy Mercy, in preſerving me from ſo many Dangers, and thy Truth in making good thy Promiſes to me.

14. Therefore let me as well in this preſent, as in the former,

15. For innumerable Troubles are come about me, my Sins have taken ſuch hold upon me, that I am not able to look up: yea, they are mo in number than the Hairs of my Head, and my Heart hath failed me.

16. O LORD, let it be thy Pleaſure to deliver me: make haſte, O LORD, to help me.

17. Let them be aſhamed and confounded together that ſeek after my Soul to deſtroy it: let them be driven backward, and put to rebuke that wiſh me Evil.

18. Let them be deſolate, and rewarded with Shame: that ſay unto me, Fie upon thee, Fie upon thee.

19. Let all thoſe that ſeek thee, be joyful and glad in thee: and let ſuch as love thy Salvation ſay alway, The LORD be Praiſed.

20. As for me, I am poor and needy: but the LORD careth for me.

21. Thou art my helper, and redeemer: make no long tarrying, O my God.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XLI. PSALM.

Beatus qui intelligit.

¶ ¶ This is a Pſalm which was compoſed by David, upon his Troubles which he underwent in Abſalom's Rebellion; at which time, it is not improbable, he might have a ſevere Fit of Sickneſs, which he here ſeems to allude to v. 3. unleſs we will have thoſe Expreſſions to be Metaphorical.

BLeſſed is he that conſidereth the poor [and needy:] the LORD ſhall deliver him in the time of Trouble.

2. The LORD preſerve him, and keep him alive, that he may be bleſſed upon Earth: and deliver not thou him into the Will of his Enemies.

3. The LORD comfort him, when he lieth ſick upon his Bed: make thou all his Bed in his Sickneſs.

4. I ſaid, LORD, be merciful unto me: heal my Soul, for I have ſinned againſt thee.

5. Mine Enemies ſpeak evil of me: When ſhall he die, and his Name periſh?

6. And if he come to ſee me, he ſpeaketh Vanity: and his Heart conceiveth falſhood within himſelf, and when he cometh forth he telleth it.

7. All mine Enemies whiſper together againſt me: even againſt me do they imagine this Evil.

8. Let

times, experience the ſolitary Effects of thoſe glorious Attributes of thine, thy Mercy, thy Goodneſs, and thy Truth.

15. For indeed, at preſent, I ſtand in great need of them, for I have a new Scene of Troubles ariſing upon me; the Puniſhments, which thou art pleaſed to inflict upon me, for my Sins do vie for number with the Hairs of my Head; and my Heart is almoſt broken, that I can ſee no end of my Misfortunes.

16. Therefore I apply myſelf to thy Fatherly Love and good-Will, to deliver me from theſe Adverſities when thou ſhalt think fit; but if thou, in thy Wiſdom, doſt judge it expedient, I beg that thou wouldſt haſten thy Aſſiſtance.

17. Let thoſe who are plotting to deſtroy my Life, and all others who are contriving Miſchief againſt me, be put to a ſhameful Flight, and precipately run away like a routed Army, all their malicious Deſigns being defeated.

18. Let thoſe my Enemies, who have the Inſolence publickly to inſult me by opprobrious Language, ſuffer Confuſion and Overthrow, and receive no other Pay, for their rebellious Service againſt their Prince, but only their own Shame.

19. But let theſe good People, who fear thee, and live quietly under my Government, praiſe and glorifie thee for thy Favour vouchſafed to me; and let all thoſe that put their Truſt in thee, and not in rebellious Arms, ſay, The Lord be Praiſed, for this late Deliverance of his anoint'd.

20. God knows, that notwithſtanding my great Dignity, I am reduced to very low Degrees of Neceſſity; but this is my Comfort, that tho' I am never ſo much deſtitute of all human Aid, I am in God's Thoughts, who takes care to do every thing that is beſt for me.

21. Thou art my Aſſiſter, thou art my Deliverer; O let it not be long before thou comeſt to my Defence.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLI.

THat Man ſhall have God's Bleſſings ſhowred down upon him, that has a tender and compaſſionate Regard to poor and ſick People, or thoſe who labour under any grievous Affliction; for God ſhall ſtand his Friend, when any Misfortune ſhall befal him.

2. The Lord ſhall preſerve him in Health to a good old Age; he will afford him the choiceſt ſatisfaction of Life; and whatever deſigns his Enemies may have againſt him, they ſhall by God's good Providence be diſappointed.

3. May the good God be his Comfort, when he falls ſick; do thou, O God, like a kind Mother, with thy own Hands, as it were, turn his Bed, and make it ſoft and eaſie to him, for the aſſwaging his Pain.

4. I put up my Prayer to God in theſe Words, 'Lord, ſhew 'thy Mercy to me in pardoning my Sins; heal my Soul, '2 Chron. 30. 20. Pſal. 147. 3. as well as my Body, of that 'Sickneſs which my Sins have brought upon me.

'5. To this affliction of Body and Mind, thou haſt been 'pleaſed to lay upon me a third, which ariſes from the evil 'Deſigns of my Enemies; who are continually ſpeaking evil 'of me, and wiſhing evil to me; their uſual way of ſpeaking 'of me is this: O that we could accompliſh his Death! O 'that we could extirpate his Memory.

'6. If any of theſe wicked Adverſaries of mine, out of 'formality ſake come to pay me a Viſit, under a pretence of 'comforting me in my illneſs, they uſe inſidious Arts in their 'Diſcourſe, to draw ſomething out of me to make advantage 'of, and when they are gone out from me, they ſpread it 'abroad among all their Faction.

'7. I can obſerve them in every corner whiſpering in Ca'bals, and plotting Miſchief againſt me, and wiſhing hurt unto 'me.

'8. That

8. Let the ſentence of Guiltineſs proceed againſt him: and now that he lieth, let him riſe up no more.

9. Yea, even mine own familiar Friend whom I truſted: who did alſo eat of my Bread, hath laid great wait for me.

10. But be thou merciful unto me, O LORD: raiſe thou me up again, and I ſhall reward them.

11. By this I know thou favoureſt me: that mine Enemy doth not triumph againſt me.

12. And when I am in my Health, thou upholdeſt me: and ſhalt ſet me before thy Face for ever.

13. Bleſſed be the LORD God of Iſrael: world without end. Amen.

The XLII. PSALM.

Quemadmodum.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title to this Pſalm is, To the chief Muſician, Maſchil, for the Sons of Corah. The Chaldee-Paraphraſe and the Septuagint Interpret, Maſchil, A Pſalm for Underſtanding. From this Inſcription may be learnt, that the Maſter of the Muſick was to order the Tune which he was to ſet to this Pſalm, that it might be accommodated to the Voices of the Corites, according to the particular way of Singing uſed by them. For the Children of Corah were not deſtroyed tho' his Adherents were, Numb. 25. 11. and their Poſterity were afterwards made Singers in the Temple, 1 Chron. 26. 7. 2 Chron. 20. 19. Tho' this Pſalm does not bear the Name of David, it was probably compoſ'd by him; for the LXX do expreſly attribute it to him. The occaſion of the Writing it was his being abſent from the Publick Service of the Temple, which he was debarred of, during his Exile in the Rebellion of Abſalom.

Like as the Hart deſireth the Water-brooks: ſo longeth my Soul after thee, O God.

2. My Soul is athirſt for God, yea, even for the living God: when ſhall I come to appear before the preſence of God?

3. My Tears have been my Meat Day and Night: while they daily ſay unto me, Where is now thy God?

4. Now when I think thereupon, I pour out my Heart by my ſelf: for I went with the multitude, and brought them forth into the Houſe of God;

5. In the Voice of Praiſe and Thankſgiving: among ſuch as keep Holy-day.

6. Why art thou ſo full of heavineſs, O my Soul: and why art thou ſo diſquieted within me?

7. Put thy truſt in God: for I will yet give him Thanks for the help of his Countenance.

8. My

'That God may revenge the miſcarriages of my Life againſt 'me by my Sufferings; and whereas I now lie Sick, that I 'may be never able to riſe up again.

'9. Yea, one (viz. Achitophel) whom I had the greateſt fa'miliarity with, one to whom I imparted all my Secrets, and 'whoſe Counſels I entirely rely'd upon, one who was main'tained by my Bounty; even this ungrateful Man has endea'voured to Supplant me, and Dethrone me.

'10. But I beſeech thee, O God, deliver me from this un'comfortable Condition which thou haſt brought me under: 'raiſe me again to my former Health and Authority, and I will 'chaſtiſe them for their Infidelity to me.

'11. And I have the better hopes of obtaining my Petition, 'becauſe I am certain, that I am under thy peculiar Care and 'watchful Providence, by thy diſappointing the Deſigns of my 'Enemies againſt me, when they have had ſo much Power and 'favourable Opportunity of deſtroying me.

'12. And when I am in my Health and Strength, thou doſt 'ſuſtain me, and keep me always in thy ſight, as a kind Parent 'does his beloved Child, that I may receive no harm.

'13. All Honour be aſcribed to the mighty JEHOVAH, 'the God of Iſrael, to all Eternity. Amen.

Here endeth the firſt Book of Pſalms, according to the Hebrew Copies.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLII.

AS a Stag, heated by the Chaſe, has a vehement longing to allay his drought at a cool Stream of Water; in like manner does my Soul long, to be preſent at the Publick Service of God, in his Tabernacle, from which I have been ſo long detained.

2. O! what a Thirſt have I upon me, to have my former converſation with God, and to appear before his holy-Ark in his Preſence, 2 Sam. 6. 7.

3. The want of this comfort has been a more cutting Grief to me, than the reſt of my Afflictions; this has made my Tears as conſtant to me, as my Meals; eſpecially when my Enemies inſulted me upon it; ſcornfully asking me, Where is my God that I us'd to pay ſuch conſtant Adoration to, and why does he not reſcue me from their Power?

4 I cannot but pour out my Soul, when I am retired to my Devotion, in Rivers of Grief; to recollect what a pleaſant Service I was formerly engaged in, to go at the head of my People to the Publick Worſhip of my God.

5. Singing Hymns to his Honour, the ſacred Muſick playing before us, upon every great Feſtival Day.

6. But, O Soul, let me reaſon with thee: What occaſion haſt thou, to be under ſo great a degree of Diſconſolation and Trouble?

7. This Affliction indeed is very grievous, but there is one thing will put a period to it, and that is, thy ſteady reliance upon God; from the aſſiſtance which his favour ſhall afford me, I expect a better poſture of Affairs than mine are at preſent in, and therefore the reflection upon the Sufferings which I am now under, ſhall not give any interruption to my Thankſgiving, and in this miſerable ſtate of Exile I will not ceaſe to praiſe my God.

8. 'Tis

8. My God, my Soul is vexed within me: therefore will I remember thee concerning the Land of Jordan, and the little hill of * Hermonim.

9. One deep calleth another, becauſe of the noiſe of the Water-Pipes: all thy Waves and Storms are gone over me.

10. The LORD hath granted his loving-Kindneſs on the Day-time: and in the Night-ſeaſon did I ſing of him, and made my Prayer unto the God of my Life.

11. I will ſay unto the God of my Strength, Why haſt thou forgotten me: why go I thus heavily, while the Enemy oppreſſeth me?

12. My Bones are ſmitten aſunder as with a Sword: while mine Enemies [that trouble me] caſt me in the Teeth.

13. Namely, while they ſay daily unto me: Where is now thy God?

14. Why art thou ſo vexed, O my Soul: and why art thou ſo diſquieted within me?

15. O put thy truſt in God: for I will yet thank him, which is the help of my Countenance, and my God.

---

* Thus Coverdale tranſlates it, agreeably to the Original, and thus it ſtill ſtands in Henry the Eighth's, or the Great Bibie. For the Hermonim, or Hermoneſe, were a People in the Transjordanian Country, where David was then baniſhed.

The XLIII. PSALM.

Judica me, Deus.

¶¶ There is no Title to this Pſalm in the Hebrew, but the LXX entitle it to David. It was very probably written upon the ſame occaſion with the former, ſeeming to be but an Appendix of That; and I fancy, that formerly they were both one Pſalm.

GIve ſentence with me, O God, and defend my Cauſe againſt the Ungodly People: O deliver me from the deceitful and wicked Man.

2. For thou art the God of my Strength, why haſt thou put me from thee: and why go I ſo heavily, while the Enemy oppreſſeth me?

3. O ſend out thy Light and thy Truth, that they may lead me: and bring me unto thy holy Hill, and to thy Dwelling.

4. And that I may go unto the Altar of God, even unto the God of my joy and gladneſs: and upon the Harp will I give Thanks unto thee, O God, my God.

5. Why art thou ſo heavy, O my Soul: and why art thou ſo diſquieted within me?

6. O

8. 'Tis true, O my God, that at preſent my Soul is much diſquieted by my Trouble, but I doubt not but thy good Providence will work my Deliverance from them, and then I ſhall thankfully remember what thou haſt done for me, in this place of my Exile the Transjordanian Regions, and the little tops of the Hills of the Hermoneſe, which I am now forced to ſecure my ſelf upon.

9. My Afflictions coming ſo thick upon me, do make me reſemble a Man drowned in a Storm; over whoſe Head firſt one great Wave rouls and then another, and, as if the Sea was not enough to diſpatch him, the Cataracts of Heaven in great ſpouts of Rain pour down upon him; ſo do thoſe Waves and Storms (as I may call them) of the Afflictions, which thou haſt ſent me, overwhelm and drown me.

10. But for all theſe Calamities, I will not forget the former favours of my God, vouchſafed to me when I had the liberty of attending upon my God, the preſerver of my Life, in his Morning and Evening Service.

11. Tho' ſtill ſometimes I cannot chuſe but expoſtulate with God, in ſuch-like Words: I took thee always for my Rock of Defence, and my ſtrong Caſtle, to defend me from all the attempts of my Enemies; why then doſt thou ſeem now at preſent to have forgotten me? why doſt thou ſuffer me thus ſadly to bemoan the want of an opportunity of Worſhipping thee in Publick, and when beſides I am forced to undergo all the Misfortunes, which the Malice of my Enemies is pleaſed to lay upon me?

12, 13. But of all, This is the moſt killing Affliction, to be forced to hear their ſcornful Reflections upon me for my Affections towards thee; it pierces like a Sword to my very Heart, when they ask me, Where is my God that I uſed to pay ſuch a conſtant Adoration to, why does not he reſcue me from their Power?

14. But, O my Soul, what occaſion haſt thou to be under ſo great a degree of Diſconſolation and Trouble?

15. This Affliction, indeed, is very grievous, but there is one thing will put a period to it, and that is, thy ſteady Reliance upon God; from the aſſiſtance which his Favour ſhall afford me, I expect a better Poſture of Affairs than mine are at preſent in, and therefore the Reflection upon the Sufferings which I am now under, ſhall not give any Interruption to my Thankſgiving, and in this miſerable State of Exile, I will not ceaſe to Praiſe my God.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLIII.

I Beſeech thee, O Lord, to take the part of a Judge upon thee, to hear the Cauſe between me and my Rebellious Subjects, and to pronounce Sentence, as I am ſure thy Juſtice will incline thee ſo to do, on my ſide.

2. O thou who waſt formerly my Protector, who waſt always wont to afford me Succour when I wanted it; How comes it to paſs now that thou haſt forſaken me, and that thou ſuffereſt me to remain in this diſconſolate State of Exile, bemoaning my want of an Opportunity of joyning in the publick Worſhip?

3. O pity my continuance in this dark State of Affliction, let thy Favour and Goodneſs ſhine upon me once more to direct my Steps, I now not knowing which way to move; but O! if it be thy heavenly Pleaſure, the firſt place that I ſhould deſire thee to bring me to, is thy holy Tabernacle upon Mount Sion.

4. And then immediately I will run to thy Altar, to offer a Sacrifice to thee for thy Favours thou haſt ſhewn me; I will likewiſe ſing a Hymn to thy Praiſe, and play on my Harp to thy Honour.

5. But, O my Soul, what occaſion haſt thou to be under ſo great a degree of Diſconſolation and Trouble?

6. This

6. O put thy truſt in God: for I will yet give him Thanks, which is the help of my Countenance, and my God.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XLIV. PSALM.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title is, A Maſchil, or Song of Inſtruction directed to the Maſter of the Muſick, and to be ſung by the Corites. It is not eaſie to learn, by whom, or upon what occaſion this Pſalm was wrote: Some attribute it to David, others to ſome holy Perſon during the Captivity; but Biſhop Patrick's Conjecture ſeems the moſt probable, that it was written by ſome inſpired Man, during the Reign of Hezekiah, when the Jews were infeſted with Sennacherib's Army, 2 Kings 18. 13.

WE have heard with our Ears, O God, our Fathers have told us: what thou haſt done in their time of Old.

2. How thou haſt driven out the Heathen with thy Hand, and planted them in: how thou haſt deſtroyed the Nations, and caſt them out.

3. For they gat not the Land in poſſeſſion through their own Sword: neither was it their own Arm that helped them.

4. But thy right Hand, and thine Arm, and the Light of thy Countenance: becauſe thou hadſt a favour unto them.

5. Thou art my King, O God: ſend help unto Jacob.

6. Through thee will we overthrow our Enemies: and in thy Name will we tread them under that riſe up againſt us.

7. For I will not truſt in my Bow: it is not my Sword that ſhall help me.

8. But it is thou that ſaveſt us from our Enemies: and putteſt them to confuſion that hate us.

9. We make our boaſt of God all Day long: and will praiſe thy Name for ever.

10. But now thou art far off, and putteſt us to Confuſion: and goeſt not forth with our Armies.

11. Thou makeſt us to turn our Backs upon our Enemies: ſo that they which hate us ſpoil our Goods.

12. Thou letteſt us be eaten up like Sheep: and haſt ſcattered us among the Heathen.

13. Thou ſelleſt thy People for nought: and takeſt no Money for them.

14. Thou makeſt us to be rebuked of our Neighbours: to be laughed to Scorn, and had in deriſion of them that are round about us.

15. Thou makeſt us to be a by-word among the Heathen: and that the People ſhake their Heads at us.

16. My

6. This Affliction, indeed, is very grievous, but there is one thing will put a period to it, and that is, my ſteady Reliance upon God; from the aſſiſtance which his Favour ſhall afford me, I expect a better Poſture of Affairs than mine are at preſent in, and therefore the Reflection upon the Sufferings which I am now under, ſhall not give any Interruption to my Thankſgiving, and in this miſerable State of Exile, I will not ceaſe to praiſe my God.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLIV.

WE have it delivered down by Tradition from Father to Son, what extraordinary things thou haſt done for our ſakes.

2. How thou didſt drive the Canaanites out of their Country of Canaan, and didſt ſettle a new Plantation of us Jews in their room.

3. But it muſt be owned, that our Fore-fathers did not win this Country by their own Proweſs, and Eminency in Military Atchievements.

4. They were ſucceſsful in this Enterprize, only from the aſſiſtance, which thou waſt pleaſed to lend them from thy omnipotent Power; thou having a Kindneſs for them, for the ſake of Abraham, Iſaac, &c. to whom thou didſt promiſe this Country, for their Poſterity.

5. Now I truſt, O God, that thou art a King to me, as well as thou waſt wont to be to our renowned Anceſtors, in proteſting and delivering them from their Oppreſſion: I beſeech thee, therefore, to interpoſe thy Regal Aſſiſtance, to deliver the People of Iſrael from the Terror and Danger of the preſent Invaſion.

6. Being aſſiſted by thy Power, we ſhall be enabled, like horned Beaſts, to puſh our Enemies down before us, and to trample them under our Feet.

7. We will not truſt in our Bows and Swords, and other warlike Preparations, for our Deliverance, entirely expecting it from thy good Providence.

8. It is thy gracious Care over us, that hath procured us ſo many Succeſſes, and hath ſo frequently defeated the much ſuperior Force of our Enemies.

9. We are continually priding ourſelves, and making our Boaſt in the very Face of our Enemies, of thy conſtant Protection of us, never ceaſing to praiſe thee for this thy Goodneſs.

10. But now, alas, we have, by our repeated Sins, ſo irritated thy Goodneſs, and long Forbearance of us, that thou ſuffereſt us to be defeated as often as our Armies engage, not heading them thyſelf, and fighting for us as thou waſt formerly wont to do.

11. But now, on the contrary, thou makeſt us to run before our Enemies with ſuch a haſty and ſhameful Flight, as to leave all our Baggage and Ammunition in their Poſſeſſion.

12. Thou ſuffereſt us not to ſell our Lives like valiant Soldiers, but tamely to have our Throats cut like Sheep under the Hands of Butchers; and thoſe of us, who are not killed by our Heathen Enemies, they take Priſoners, and ſell as Slaves in different parts of the Infidel World.

13. Nay, the Number of theſe poor Priſoners and Slaves is ſo great, that they are ſold for a very inconſiderable matter; many of theſe ſad Wretches being given away, or thrown, as things worth nothing, to make up a Bargain.

14, 15. We are become the Jeſt of our neighbouring Countries, who have an ill-natur'd Proverb upon us, This is cheap-

16. My Confusion is daily before me: and the Shame of my Face hath covered me;

17. For the Voice of the Slanderer and Blasphemer: for the Enemy and Avenger.

18. And though all this be come upon us, yet do we not forget thee: nor behave our selves frowardly in thy Covenant.

19. Our Heart is not turned back: neither our Steps gone out thy way;

20. No, not when thou hast smitten us into the place of Dragons: and covered us with the shadow of Death.

21. If we have forgotten the Name of our God, and holden up our Hands to any strange God: shall not God search it out? for he knoweth the very Secrets of the Heart.

22. For thy sake also are we killed all the Day long: and are counted as Sheep appointed to be slain.

23. Up, LORD, why sleepest thou: awake, and be not absent from us for ever?

24. Wherefore hidest thou thy Face: and forgettest our Misery and Trouble?

25. For our Soul is brought low, even unto the Dust: our Belly cleaveth unto the ground.

26. Arise, and help us: and deliver us for thy Mercies sake.

The XLV. PSALM.

Eructavit cor meum.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title is, To the chief Musician upon Shoshannim (i. e.) the Flowers, some noted Tune among the Jews, for the Sons of Korah; Maschil, a Poem of Instruction, A Song of Loves. Some of the latter Jews, and from them Grotius, Dr. Hammond, and some others, will have this Psalm to be an Epithalamium upon the Marriage of Solomon with Pharaoh's Daughter. But as there is no Authority, that this Psalm was composed upon this occasion, so the Caldee-Paraphrase on the contrary says expressly, that it was written prophetically of the Messias, and that Moses was the Author thereof. And not only the Targum, but Abenezra and Solomon Jarchi, affirm, that it was a Prophesie of the Messias. So that this Psalm is of the same nature with the Book of Canticles, describing the Union of Christ, under the Figure of a Nuptial Solemnity.

MY Heart is inditing of a good matter: I speak of the things which I have made unto the King.

2. My Tongue is the Pen: of a ready Writer.

3. Thou art fairer than the Children of Men: full of Grace are thy Lips, because God hath blessed thee for ever.

4. Gird thee with thy Sword upon thy Thigh, O thou most mighty: according to thy Worship and Renown.

5. Good

er than a Jew is sold for; the rude People in the Street make Sport with us, by shaking their Head at us, by way of Derision, as we pass along.

16. The Consideration of this abject Condition, which we are brought into, puts me all in Blushes, whenever I reflect, that God's Sacred Nation should ever become the Scorn of these profane Infidels.

17. What with their scornful Reflections on one side, and their mischievous Attempts upon me on the other, I cannot tell which way to turn me.

18. But tho' all these great Misfortunes have befaln us, yet we are not thereby tempted to fall off from the true Religion, or to worship the Gods of our more fortunate Adversaries; nor do we, for all this publick Calamity, dispense with ourselves in any thing, which the Mosaical Law has enjoyn'd us.

19. We have not had so much as a thought in our Hearts to depart from thy Worship, nor have we wilfully violated any Injunction which thy sacred Religion has laid upon us.

20. No, we have abhorred any such Disloyalty to our God as this is; even when thy Judgments were most severe upon us; when thou didst suffer our Enemies to slay our Youth in our Armies, throwing their dead Bodies into Pits, there to lie among Worms and Serpents; and when the black Shades of Death seemed to hover over our whole Nation.

21. We appeal to thy all-searching Knowledge, which seeth the Secrets of Mens Hearts, that whatever Faults we are guilty of, we are not now guilty of Idolatry, by lifting up our Hands to beg Deliverance of any foreign and false God, which our Neighbours worship.

22. Nay, rather, it is for the sake of the true Religion, that we suffer all these Misfortunes, and are killed like Sheep for the Shambles.

23. But we beseech thee, O Lord, do not thou, any longer, sit an unconcerned Spectator of these our Sufferings, seeming to neglect us, as if thou wert asleep, or hadst gone away from us; Oh rather rise up in our defence, and afford us thy speedy help.

24. O! why shouldst thou seem thus entirely to neglect our Cause, and to have no regard to the Misery of our Condition, under the Ravages of these powerful Invaders.

25. We are now sunk down to the lowest degree of Misfortune, we are like disabled Men, that being beat down to the Ground, lie groveling there, unable to get up.

26. Now is a proper Season for thee to employ thy Omnipotence in our assistance, we being in no wise able to help ourselves; O, therefore, we beseech thee, exert thy Divine Power to deliver us from this formidable Enemy, in conformity to thy accustomed Goodness to us, which we have experienced in so many former Deliverances.

Paraphrase on Psal. XLV.

MY Heart is in Conception of an extraordinary Hymn, which I am composing to the Honour of the King of Kings.

2. My Tongue does not move slowly into the Metrical Numbers, as in my ordinary Compositions; but I feel my Thoughts flow with an unusual Velocity, keeping pace with the Pen of a Short-hand Writer.

3. O thou King Messias, whose appearance in after-Ages shall bless the World, thou art of a God-like Form, far superior to any of Human Race; from thy Mouth proceed all the gracious Dispensations and Promises of thy Spiritual Government, thou being blessed from all and to all Eternity with thy Father.

4. O thou mighty Prince! do thou come invested with all the Power, which belongs to thy Spiritual Kingdom; as a great General ought to appear with a rich Sword and Belt, becoming his Honour and Quality.

5. All

5. Good luck have thou with thine Honour: ride on, becauſe of the Word of Truth, of Meekneſs and Righteouſneſs, and thy right Hand ſhall teach thee terrible Things.
6. Thy Arrows are very ſharp, and the People ſhall be ſubdued unto thee: even in the midſt among the King's Enemies.
7. Thy ſeat, O God, endureth for ever: The Sceptre of thy Kingdom is a right Sceptre.
8. Thou haſt loved Righteouſneſs, and hated Iniquity: wherefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the Oyl of gladneſs, above thy Fellows.
9. All thy Garments ſmell of Myrrhe, Aloes, and Caſſia: out of the Ivory Palaces, whereby they have made thee glad.
10. Kings Daughters were among thy honourable Women: upon thy right Hand did ſtand the Queen in a Veſture of Gold, [wrought about with divers Colours.]
11. Hearken, O Daughter, and conſider; encline thine Ear: forget alſo thine own People, and thy Father's Houſe.
12. So ſhall the King have pleaſure in thy Beauty: for he is thy LORD [God,] and worſhip thou him.
13. And the Daughter of Tyre ſhall be there with a Gift: like as the Rich alſo among the People ſhall make their Supplication before thee.
14. The King's Daughter is all glorious within: her Clothing is of wrought Gold.
15. She ſhall be brought unto the King in Raiment of Needlework: the Virgins that be her Fellows, ſhall bear her Company, and ſhall be brought unto thee.
16. With Joy and Gladneſs ſhall they be brought: and ſhall enter into the Kings Palace.
17. In ſtead of thy Fathers thou ſhalt have Children: whom thou mayeſt make Princes in all Lands.
18. I will remember thy Name from one Generation to another: therefore ſhall the People give Thanks unto thee, World without end.

The XLVI. PSALM.

Deus noſter refugium.

¶¶ This Pſalm was to be ſung by the Corites, to ſome noted Tune, called Alamoth, or, The Virgins Tune. It is not improbably thought to be written upon David's Conqueſt over the Philiſtines and Moabites, 2 Sam. 8. 1. and the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem are herein perſonated, as triumphing for that great Victory.

GOD is our hope and ſtrength: a very preſent help in Trouble.

2. There-

5. All Proſperity attend thy entring upon this honourable Meſſage; make thou a glorious Proceſſion throughout the World, teaching Men ſuch exalted Degrees of Veracity, Humility and Juſt-dealing, as they were unacquainted with before; diſcovering ſuch a miraculous Power in all thy Operations, as ſhall cauſe Fear and Aſtoniſhment in thoſe that behold them.

6. The Doctrines which thou ſhalt reveal, ſhall come with that Force and Efficacy, that like a Flight of keen Arrows, they ſhall make their way by throwing down all that oppoſe thee, and deſtroying all Idolatrous Worſhips, to make way for thy Kingdom.

7. The Royal Seat of thy Spiritual Kingdom ſhall for ever continue; thine ſhall be a Kingdom where Impartial Juſtice ſhall be adminiſtred, and every Man ſhall be rewarded according to his Works.

8. Thou, by living a Life of unſpotted Purity, and by delivering to the World the Rules of the moſt excellent Righteouſneſs and Holineſs, ſhall recommend thyſelf to God the Father, to be advanced to the higheſt Dignity in Heaven, and to be raiſed above all Angels and celeſtial Powers, Heb. 1.

9. Methinks, O great Prince, I ſmell thy Robes fragrant with Eaſtern Perfumes, coming out of the Ivory Palaces of Heaven; from whence thou ſhalt make thy Deſcent, and where thou haſt been refreſhed and exhilarated by the ſweeteſt Vertues and Graces, to be preſented as a Bridegroom to thy Spouſe the Church.

10. The Royal and Noble Perſons, who ſhall be converted to the Religion which thou ſhalt teach, ſhall be like ſo many Bride-Maids to attend at thy Nuptials; the Church, thy Spouſe, as it were, ſtanding at thy right Hand, clothed in rich Attire, denoting the flouriſhing Condition thou ſhalt advance her to.

11. And now, O thou Spiritual Bride, I beſeech thee to hear what I have to offer to thee; when thou ſhalt be joyned to Chriſt thy Spouſe, thou muſt forget the Country-Religion which thou haſt been educated in, whether it be Jewiſh or Heatheniſh.

12. So ſhall thou render thyſelf acceptable to King Meſſias; and thou haſt all the reaſon that can be to deſire this, he being not only thy Spouſe, but thy God likewiſe, whom thou art obliged to pay all Honour and Worſhip to.

13. Tyre, and other Heathen-Countries, by ſubmitting themſelves to the Doctrine of the Meſſias, ſhall, as it were, bring their Preſents to grace theſe Nuptials; and the ſeveral great Families, throughout the World, ſhall pay their Homage to this Divine Bridegroom.

14. O how glorious is this Royal Bride of the Meſſias! not ſo much with external Ornaments, as with inward Graces; a thick imbroidery of innumerable golden Vertues recommends her Beauty.

15. With theſe, and ſuch-like Ornaments, ſhall ſhe be preſented unto Chriſt her Spouſe; many foreign Countries joyning with the Jewiſh Nation, as Companions to the Bride.

16. And that ſhall be a time of great Gladneſs and Rejoycing, when the Bride, and ſo many of her Companions, ſhall be received by the Spiritual Bridegroom, within the Pale of his Church.

17. And thou, O ſacred Bride, be not diſturbed, as tho' thou ſhouldeſt loſe the Privileges thou haſt by thy great Progenitors, Abraham, Iſaac, &c. for in ſtead of theſe, thou ſhalt have a Race of noble Children born of thee, that ſhall bear rule in all parts of the World, all Chriſtian Princes and Governors owning thee for their Mother.

18. I will by this Pſalm cauſe thy Name to be remembred, O great Prince Meſſias, to ſucceeding Generations, it being to become a part of the publick Service of the Church, whereby the People ſhall continually pay thee their Thanks for the great Benefits reached out unto them by the Efficacy of thy Merits.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLVI.

OUr God JEHOVAH is the only Strong-hold we can truſt, and he is an abſolute Security to us when-ever Danger ſurrounds us.

2. Whilſt

2. Therefore will we not fear though the Earth be moved: and though the Hills be carried into the midſt of the Sea.

3. Though the Waters thereof rage and ſwell: and though the Mountains ſhake at the Tempeſt of the ſame.

4. The Rivers of the Flood thereof ſhall make glad the City of God: the Holy Place of the Tabernacle of the moſt High*eſt*.

5. God is in the midſt of her, therefore ſhall ſhe not be removed: God ſhall help her, and that right early.

6. The Heathen make much ado, and the Kingdoms are moved: but God hath ſhewed his Voice, and the Earth ſhall melt away.

7. The LORD of Hoſts is with us: the God of Jacob is our refuge.

8. O come hither, and behold the Works of the LORD: what deſtruction he hath brought upon the Earth.

9. He maketh Wars to ceaſe in all the World: he breaketh the Bow, and knappeth the Spear in ſunder, and burneth the Chariots in the Fire.

10. Be ſtill then, and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the Heathen, and I will be exalted in the Earth.

11. The LORD of Hoſts is with us: the God of Jacob is our refuge.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XLVII. PSALM.

Omnes gentes, plaudite.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm does not bear the Name of David, and therefore was probably compoſed after his time in the Reign of Solomon, at the publick Solemnity, when the Ark was brought into the Temple, after its building, 1 Kings 8. and thereupon the inſpir'd Author takes occaſion therefrom, to praiſe God for the Call of the Gentiles, which was then by the Holy Spirit of God revealed to him.

O Clap your Hands together, all ye People: O ſing unto God with the Voice of Melody.

2. For the LORD is high, and to be feared: he is the great King upon all the Earth.

3. He ſhall ſubdue the People under us: and the Nations under our Feet.

4. He ſhall chooſe out an Heritage for us: even the Worſhip of Jacob, whom he loved.

5. God is gone up with a merry Noiſe: and the LORD with the ſound of the Trump.

6. O ſing Praiſes, ſing Praiſes unto [our] God: O ſing Praiſes, ſing Praiſes, unto our King.

7. For God is the King of all the Earth: ſing ye Praiſes with Underſtanding. 8.

2. Whilſt he is on our ſide, we need not fear, tho' the whole Frame of Nature ſhould be diſordered, and the Earth ſhook with ſuch a violent Concuſſion, that the Mountains ſhould travel from their fixed Seats, and be carried into the midſt of the Ocean.

3. Tho' the Sea ſhould be all of a Foam, the Billows thereof riſing to the greateſt height, and breaking with ſuch a force againſt the neighbouring Mountains, that they make them ſhake with the violent force thereof.

4. The Inhabitants of Jeruſalem ſhall dwell in Security, and free from theſe boiſterous Storms, having the pleaſant Streams of Kidron flowing by their Walls, and almoſt ſurrounding Mount Sion, the Seat of the Tabernacle of the moſt High God.

5. The providential Care of God does provide for her Security, more than a Garriſon within her Walls, ſo that no Enemy ſhall ſurprize her; when-ever ſhe is in diſtreſs, God ſhall come with ſpeed to her Aſſiſtance.

6. The Heathen Nations, the Moabites and Philiſtines are up in Arms, and making Levies againſt us; but God ſhall ſpeak in his Voice of Thunder from Heaven, and all our Enemies ſhall melt away with fear, as Metals before the Lightning.

7. For the great God, who diſpoſes the Succeſs of the Armies, is on our ſide; that only true God which the Iſraelites worſhip, fights for us.

8. Come into the Field of Battle, and take a view of what vaſt Numbers are ſlain by our Forces, by the powerful aſſiſtance of our God, who has gained this Victory for us.

9. It is he that puts a Period to long and bloody Wars, by ſpreading a joyful Peace over the World; it is he that puts our Enemies out of Power to annoy us, by deſtroying their Arms, and burning their Chariots of War.

10. Therefore (ſays God) O ye conquered Enemies, ſit quietly under the Government which I have placed over you, without Commotion; and know that I am the God diſpoſes of the Succeſſes of Nations; and that my Honour ſtands engaged, to defend my choſen People from their Infidel Enemies.

11. The great God, who diſpoſes of the Succeſs of Armies, is on our ſide: the only true God, which the Iſraelites worſhip, fights for us.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLVII.

O All ye Nations of the World, exalt and triumph with an univerſal Thankſgiving, ſing Pſalms to God your common Creator, ſet to the moſt melodious Airs.

2. He is the great God, the ſupreme Governour of the World, to whom all Men owe Obedience, every Nation of the World being ſubject to him.

3. He ſhall bring in all the Nations of the World, to partake of our Religion, and to be ſubject to the Rules which ſhall be delivered by Perſons of our Country, the Meſſias and his Diſciples.

4. He does not ſuffer us to take up a Country to live in by chance, but by his eſpecial Forecaſt has made choice of the Land of Canaan, for us, even that honourable Country of Judea, which he has the greateſt Affection for.

5. God, whoſe eſpecial Reſidence is in his ſacred Ark, is carried into the Temple, 1 Kings 8. attended with the Melody of the Sacred Muſick, the Trumpets likewiſe ſounding before him.

6. O let all the World joyn in Praiſes to the only true God, the God of Iſrael, let them ſing Praiſes to the great God, who is pleaſed to be our peculiar Governor.

7. Nay all Men of every Country have particular Obligations to praiſe this God, for he is the Governor of the whole World; ſing Praiſes to him with ſuch an inſtructing Song, that you may underſtand the great Benefits which you receive from him.

8. Now

8. God reigneth over the Heathen: God ſitteth upon his Holy Seat.
9. The Princes of the People are joyned unto the People of the God of Abraham: for God, which is very high exalted, doth defend the Earth, as it were with a Shield.

The XLVIII. PSALM.

Magnus Dominus.

¶¶ This Pſalm ſeems to be a Thankſgiving for that wonderful Deliverance which God vouchſafed to the Jews, in the Deſtruction of Senacherib's Army, which had beſieged Jeruſalem, 2 Kings 19. more than an hundred thouſand being deſtroyed of them by a Plague miraculouſly ſent by God. This great Deliverance is very lively deſcribed by the Author of this Pſalm. This, as the Septuagint-Tranſlation informs us, was adopted for the Monday-Service in the Jewiſh Church.

GReat is the LORD and highly to be praiſed: in the City of our God, even upon his holy Hill.
2. The Hill of Sion is a fair place, and the Joy of the whole Earth: upon the North ſide lieth the City of the great King; God is well known in her Palaces as a ſure Refuge.
3. For lo, the Kings of the Earth: are gathered, and gone by together.
4. They marvelled to ſee ſuch things: they were aſtoniſhed, and ſuddenly caſt down.
5. Fear came there upon them, and Sorrow: as upon a Woman in her Travail.
6. Thou ſhalt break the Ships of the Sea: through the Eaſt-Wind.
7. Like as we have heard, ſo have we ſeen in the City of the LORD of Hoſts; in the City of our God: God upholdeth the ſame for ever.
8. We wait for thy loving Kindneſs, O God: in the midſt of thy Temple.
9. O God, according to thy Name, ſo is thy Praiſe unto the Worlds end: thy right Hand is full of Righteouſneſs.
10. Let the Mount Sion rejoyce, and the Daughter of Judah be glad: becauſe of thy Judgments.
11. Walk about Sion, and go round about her: and tell the Towers thereof.
12. Mark well her Bulwarks, * ſet up her Houſes: that ye may tell them that come after.

* Heb. Set your Heart to.

13. For this God is our God for ever and ever: he ſhall be our guide unto death.

The

8. Now God is placed upon his Sacred Throne in his Temple, he will begin to exerciſe his Juriſdiction over the Heathen.

9. The Chiefs of the Heathen Nations ſhall be ſo joyned with us Jews, that they ſhall partake of the Privileges and Bleſſings granted by God to Abraham; and the moſt high God, the common Governor, ſhall extend his Preſervation and Kindneſs both to Jews and Gentiles, defending them as carefully, as if he covered them with a Shield.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLVIII.

THe great JEHOVAH which is worſhipped by the Jews, is a God of unſpeakable Honour, he being ſolemnly adored by that whole Nation at the City of Jeruſalem, who once a Year go up thither to make their Offerings unto him.

2. The Hill of Sion, where the Ark is placed, is a place of very delightful Situation, there being no part of the Jewiſh Territories comparable to it for a pleaſant proſpect. On the North-ſide thereof there is a very curious Proſpect of the holy City Jeruſalem, which the great King of Heaven and Earth has taken to himſelf the Protection and Government of; and his holy Ark being placed here, he makes this a greater Security to his People than the ſtrongeſt Citadel.

3. And of this we have had a very late Experience, when Senacherib, and the auxiliary Princes which attended him in his Expedition, Iſa. 8. 10. united themſelves together in a Confederacy, and laid Siege to Jeruſalem.

4. They were amazed to behold the Beauty of this noble City, and to ſee how ſtrenuouſly it was defended by Almighty God, who by his miraculous Power, brought ſuch an unheard-of Deſtruction upon their whole Army, 2 Kings 19. 35.

5. Fear and Anguiſh ſurrounded them on a ſudden, when they did not expect them, and they may not improperly be compared to the Throws of a Woman in Labour.

6. Or (if I may otherwiſe liken it) not unlike a violent Storm of the Eaſt-Wind lighting among a Fleet of Merchant-Ships.

7. As we have heard from the Prediction of God's holy Prophet Iſaiah, 2 Kings 19. 20. ſo we have happily by Experience found, that God being the Guardian of our City, does particularly exert his Providence in its Preſervation.

8. For whenever we are in extreme Danger, we do not ſo much truſt in our warlike Preparations as in thy Protection; we religiouſly preſent ourſelves before thy Temple, and there earneſtly beg of thee a Deliverance, when thou in thy good time ſhalt be pleaſed to ſend it, and we never yet found our Expectation therein diſappointed.

9. As thou art infinitely ſuperior in Power and Dignity to all other Gods, who are but Idols or deified Creatures, ſo is thy Fame more widely extended than the Gods of other Nations, thou having in all times, and particularly now of late, worked ſuch wonderful Deliverances for thy People, having interpoſed thy miraculous Power in aſſerting the Juſtice of their Cauſe.

10. Let the Inhabitants of Mount Sion and Jeruſalem celebrate this wonderful Deliverance in Songs of Thankſgiving, praiſing thy infinite Juſtice in defending thy innocent Servants from the Oppreſſion of their Enemies.

11. Walk round about the Ramparts of Mount Sion, take a view of her Towers, and make your Obſervation what little Damage is done to them, by all the force of ſuch a formidable Army.

12. Take notice that all the Works round about her, and all the Houſes within her, are as entire as they were before the Siege; and this will give you an opportunity of conveying down to Poſterity, the Relation of one of the moſt miraculous Occurrences, that has been known in any Age.

13. Nor does this our God work now and then a caſual Deliverance for us, his good Providence is continually exerciſed in our defence, and all the Days of our Life he watches over us, with the ſame care as a Shepherd does over his Flock.

The XLIX. PSALM.

Audite hæc, omnes.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm in the Hebrew Title is not aſſigned to David or any other Perſon, there being no Author thereof mentioned, or occaſion of its compoſure. It contains excellent Remarks concerning the differens States of good and evil Men, and an Exhortation to perſevere in Piety.

O Hear ye this, all ye People: ponder it with your Ears, all ye that dwell in the World.

2. High, and Low, Rich, and Poor: one with another.

3. My Mouth ſhall ſpeak of Wiſdom: and my Heart ſhall muſe of Underſtanding.

4. I will incline mine Ear to the Parable: and ſhew my dark Speech upon the Harp.

5. Wherefore ſhould I fear in the Days of Wickedneſs: and when the wickedneſs of my Heels compaſſeth me round about?

6. There be ſome that put their truſt in their Goods: and boaſt themſelves in the multitude of their Riches.

7. But no Man may deliver his Brother: nor make agreement unto God for him;

8. For it coſt more to redeem their Souls: ſo that he muſt let that alone for ever.

9. Yea, though he live long: and ſee not the Grave.

10. For he ſeeth that wiſe Men alſo die, and periſh together: as well as the Ignorant and Fooliſh, and leave their Riches for other.

11. And yet they think that their Houſes ſhall continue for ever: and that their Dwelling-places ſhall endure from one Generation to another, and call the Lands after their own Names.

12. Nevertheleſs, Man will not abide in Honour: ſeeing he may be compared unto the Beaſts that periſh; this is the way of them:

13. This is their fooliſhneſs: and their Poſterity praiſe their ſaying.

14. They lie in the Hell like Sheep, death gnaweth upon them, and the Righteous ſhall have domination over them in the Morning: their Beauty ſhall conſume in the Sepulchre, out of their dwelling.

15. But God hath delivered my Soul from the place of Hell: for he ſhall receive me.

16. Be not thou afraid though one be made Rich: or if the glory of his Houſe be increaſed;

17. For

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XLIX.

O All ye Nations, not Jews only, but all other Inhabitants of the Univerſe, attend to the Leſſon which I ſhall read to you in this Hymn, you being all particularly concerned therein.

2. O all you that are dignified with honourable Titles, and you that are of mean Rank in the Common-wealth; you that have large Eſtates, and you whoſe Circumſtances are narrow; I addreſs myſelf to you all without Exception.

3. My preſent Compoſition ſhall be, upon a very wiſe and inſtructive Subject.

4. I will make it my Buſineſs, in enditing this Hymn, not to compoſe it after the manner of ordinary Songs, but to make a Wiſe and Philoſophical Lecture, like the parabolical and enigmatical Aphoriſms of wiſe and learned Men.

5. Why ſhould I be diſturbed, becauſe wicked Men flouriſh and carry the Day from the Good; becauſe my unjuſt Enemies ſo ſtraitly encompaſs me round, that they ſeem in a manner to tread upon my Heels.

6. There are ſome ſilly Men, that repoſe all their Confidence in great Eſtates, and make their Brags, that by this they are enabled to do miſchief to others of leſſer Fortunes, and procure themſelves what Happineſs they pleaſe.

7. But to convince them how much they are deceived, let them try but this ordinary Experiment; let them ſee if a Man by his Riches, can reſcue his dying Friend from the Grave, or make a Bargain with God, ſo much as to add one Day to his Life, when he determines to take it away.

8. That is a Purchaſe which all the Gold and Silver in the World is not ſufficient to make, it being in vain to attempt ſuch an unreaſonable Enterpriſe.

9. For tho' God Almighty permits him to live never ſo long, yet he muſt die at laſt.

10. For we find by common Experience, that wiſe and learned Men muſt ſubmit to this common Law of Mortality, as well as the Simple and Illiterate; and though Men have all their Lives long being progging for Riches, yet then they muſt leave all their Poſſeſſions to be enjoy'd by other Perſons, who, it may be, are entire Strangers to them.

11. And yet, notwithſtanding this, they fooliſhly preſume that they ſhall be able to build up a Family of everlaſting continuance, and that their Poſterity ſhall always inhabit the ſtately Seats which they have erected; and laſtly, that the Eſtates which they bequeath to them, ſhall for ever bear their Names.

12. But this is a very fooliſh Preſumption; for Honour is a thing which is not entail'd upon any Man or Family, eſpecially upon a wicked Perſon: For when he dies, all his Gallantry goes with him; Men then value him no more than a dead Beaſt, which no one takes the leaſt Notice of, or vouchſafes him a remembrance.

13. But as fooliſh as the truſt in Riches is, this is a Maxim which wicked Men govern themſelves by, and their Children who ſucceed them, ſubſcribe to their Opinion, by following their Examples.

14. But theſe wicked Men, for all their fond hopes in their Riches, ſhall lie in their Grave, as the Carcaſes of Sheep do in the Shambles; Death ſhall feed upon them, and devour their Bodies, and in the Morning of the Reſurrection, the righteous and good Perſons ſhall be preferr'd before them, when their different Sentences ſhall be awarded: nay, in the intermediate ſtate before that time, their Bodies, however beautiful, ſhall be eaten by Worms, being lodged in a dark Grave, and not in thoſe delightful Manſions whirh they erected for themſelves.

15. But for my part, I have a well-grounded Confidence, that God will not ſuffer the Grave to have Power over me, but that at the Reſurrection he will raiſe up my Body from the dead. and that as ſoon as I die, he will receive my Soul into his Hands.

16. Therefore I would adviſe you not to entertain any diſtruſtful Thoughts concerning God's Providence, if you ſee a wicked Man improve his Eſtate, or riſe in Honour.

17. For

17. For he ſhall carry nothing away with him when he dieth: neither ſhall his Pomp follow him.

18. For while he lived, he counted himſelf an happy Man: and ſo long as thou doeſt well unto thy ſelf, Men will ſpeak good of thee.

19. He ſhall follow the generation of his Fathers: and ſhall never ſee Light.

20. Man being in Honour, { hath / and hath } * no Underſtanding: is compared unto the Beaſts that periſh.

* First Edit. of Coverdale.

MORNING PRAYER.

The L. PSALM.

Deus deorum.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title is, A Pſalm le Aſaph, of or by Aſaph. The Caldee-Paraphraſe interprets it, A Pſalm by the Hand of Aſaph; which leaves it uncertain, whether it was compoſed by Aſaph, or whether it was, being directed to him, handed by him into the Temple. I ſhould rather think it to be, a Pſalm compoſed by David, and ordered to be delivered to Aſaph, one of the Prefects of David's Muſick, mentioned 1 Chron. 15. 16. It contains an excellent Reproof of thoſe who valued themſelves upon the exactneſs of their legal Performances under the neglect of their moral Duties.

THE LORD, even the moſt mighty God hath ſpoken: and called the World, from the riſing up of the Sun, unto the going down thereof.

2. Out of Sion hath God appeared: in perfect Beauty.

3. Our God ſhall come and ſhall not keep ſilence: there ſhall go before him a conſuming Fire, and a mighty Tempeſt ſhall be ſtirred up round about him.

4. He ſhall call the Heaven from above: and the Earth, that he may judge his People.

5. Gather my Saints together unto me: thoſe that have made a Covenant with me with Sacrifice.

6. And the Heavens ſhall declare his Righteouſneſs: for God is Judge himſelf.

7. Hear, O my People, and I will ſpeak: I my ſelf will teſtifie againſt thee, O Iſrael; for I am God, even thy God.

8. I will not reprove thee becauſe of thy Sacrifices, or for thy Burnt-Offerings: becauſe they were not always before me.

9. I will take no Bullock out of thine Houſe: nor he-Goat out of thy Folds.

10. For all the Beaſts of the Forreſt are mine: and ſo are the Cattel upon a thouſand Hills.

11. I know all the Fowls upon the Mountains: and the wild Beaſts of the Field are in my ſight.

12. If

17. For, for all his Portion in this World, he ſhall go as poor as the meaneſt Beggar out of it, and all his Worldly Splendor ſhall die with him.

18. Indeed while he lived, he reckoned his Worldly Proſperity might make him happy, but if it did, his happineſs was terminated at the Grave; and ſuch Men who were wont to applaud his happineſs, will aſcribe the ſame Felicity to thee, if thou couldſt ſubmit to indulge thyſelf in the ſame ſenſual Pleaſures, which He was wont to gratifie his Appetites with.

19. But this Man ſhall die, as all his Predeceſſors did before him; but then he ſhall never enjoy the Light of God, which the Bleſſed in another World partake of.

20. Upon the whole, we may make this very juſt Concluſion; That any rich or honourable Perſon, who is without Vertue or Religion; who does not make a good uſe of the Talents God has committed to him; who does not reflect upon the uncertainty of theſe worldly Enjoyments, nor takes care to uſe them to any good Purpoſes; This Man lives like a Brute without thinking, and at laſt dies like one without being regarded.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. L.

THe Almighty God, the Lord of Heaven and Earth, has given out a Decree, that he will come in a ſolemn manner to judge all the Nations of the World, and has ſummoned in all the Inhabitants thereof, from the Eaſt to the Weſt, to give their Attendance.

2. He has fixed his Tribunal in Mount Sion, being ſurrounded with the moſt glorious Enſigns of Majeſty.

3. He ſhall make his Entrance with triumphal Acclamations, and a devouring Fire ſhall burn before him, as when he gave the Law in Sinai, Exod. 24. 17. and a violent Storm of Wind ſhall bluſter round about him.

4. He ſhall call Heaven and Earth in, to be Witneſſes at this Great Aſſizes, Deut. 4. 26. when he comes to judge the Subjects of his Empire.

5. 'And not only the Gentile World (ſays God) muſt appear at my Judgment-Seat, but you my choſen People the 'Jews, for all your being entitled to my worſhip: Let all 'theſe from every Quarter, be ſummoned to appear be-'fore me.

6. All the Angels of Heaven ſhall be Witneſſes of the Equity of his Proceedings, for the Sentence ſhall not proceed from any ordinary Judge who may be liable to Corruption, but God Amighty, who cannot determine Wrong, is Judge himſelf, and beſpeaks us after this manner:

7. 'Come, my People, hear what a Charge I have to bring 'againſt you, I myſelf will be a Witneſs againſt you, as well 'as a Judge; I your God, who have obliged you by ſo many 'Favours, and to whom you have made ſuch ungracious Re-'turns, I will give in Evidence againſt you of your Wic-'kedneſs.

8. 'I do not call you to account for any Neglects or Omiſ-'ſions in your Sacrifices, that they were not offered up every 'Morning and Evening as the Law of Moſes requires, Numb. '28. 31. but for your Moral Obliquities and Offences, which 'are much more grievous in my ſight, than thoſe other Tranſ-'greſſions.

9. 'I do not ſtand in any need of having an Oxe, or a Goat offered to me out of thy Herds.

10. 'If I took any pleaſure in Sacrifices, I could command 'Hecatombs of the choiceſt Cattle, off of the Forreſts and 'Mountains, to be offered at my Altar.

11. 'I know diſtinctly the Neſt of every Fowl, if I had a 'mind to take them to be my Victims; the Lodge of every 'Wild Beaſt is in my Eye, if I was diſpoſed to have them, to 'be ſacrificed to me

12. 'If

12. If I be hungry, I will not tell thee: for the whole World is mine, and all that is therein.

13. Thinkeſt thou that I will eat Bulls Fleſh: and drink the Blood of Goats.

14. Offer unto God Thankſgiving: and pay thy Vows unto the moſt Higheſt.

15. And call upon me in the time of Trouble: ſo will I hear thee, and thou ſhalt praiſe me.

16. But unto the Ungodly, ſaid God: Why doſt thou Preach my Laws, and takeſt my Covenant in thy Mouth;

17. Whereas thou hateſt to be reformed: and haſt caſt my Words behind thee.

18. When thou ſaweſt a Thief, thou conſentedſt unto him: and haſt been partaker with the Adulterers.

19. Thou haſt let thy Mouth ſpeak Wickedneſs: and with thy Tongue thou haſt ſet forth Deceit.

20. Thou ſateſt and ſpakeſt againſt thy Brother: yea, and haſt ſlandered thine own Mother's Son.

21. Theſe things haſt thou done, and I held my Tongue, and thou thoughteſt [wickedly,] that I am even ſuch a one as thy ſelf: but I will reprove thee, and ſet before thee the things that thou haſt done.

22. O conſider this, ye that forget God: leſt I pluck you away, and there be none to deliver you.

23. Whoſo offereth me Thanks and Praiſe, he honoureth me: and to him that ordereth his Converſation right, will I ſhew the Salvation of God.

The LI. PSALM.

Miſerere mei, Deus.

The Hebrew Title ſhews the occaſion of writing this Pſalm, viz. A Pſalm of David, when Nathan the Prophet came unto him, after he had gone in to Bathſheba.

HAve mercy upon me, O God, after thy [great] goodneſs: according to the multitude of thy Mercies do away mine Offences.

2. Waſh me throughly from my Wickedneſs: and cleanſe me from my Sin.

3. For I acknowledge my Faults, and my Sin is ever before me.

4. Againſt

12. 'If I was hungry, and were to be fed by the Fumes of 'Sacrifices, as ſome may ſillily preſume, I would not acquaint 'thee with it; for why ſhould I be filled out of thy Penury, 'when the Abundance of the whole World is at my Com-'mand?

13. ''Tis but a fond Imagination of ſilly People to think, 'that I delight to feed upon Bulls Fleſh offer'd at the Altar, or 'to drink the Blood of Goats that are ſlain in Sacrifice.

14. 'If thou wouldſt offer to me the moſt acceptable Sacrifice, 'give devout Thanks unto me out of a pious Heart, and diſ-'charge the Obligations which thou oweſt unto me, in leading 'a vertuous and religious Life.

15. 'Whenever thou art diſtreſſed by Calamities, put up thy 'earneſt Petitions to me in devout Prayer, as well as by Of-'ferings, and then I will anſwer thy Requeſt; then I ſhall 'think myſelf much more honoured by thee, than by the moſt 'pompous Sacrifices.

16. But to thoſe wicked Men, who make a great ſtir about 'their legal Performances, and make no Conſcience of viola-'ting the Moral Duties, God, in his Diſpleaſure, asks them 'this Queſtion, Why doſt thou trouble thyſelf to talk up for 'my Ceremonial Worſhip, and buſie thy ſelf about the out-'ward Injunctions of the Covenant, I delivered to Moſes?

17. 'Whereas thou neglecteſt the moſt ſubſtantial part there-'of; the Reformation of thy Life, and all my Moral Commands 'thou haſt thrown behind thee, as contemptible things, and 'unworthy of thy Cognizance and Regard.

18. 'When thou didſt obſerve a Man to thrive by Fraud 'and Oppreſſion, thou didſt copy after his Example, and endea-'vour to gain Riches by the ſame unlawful means; and, to 'gratifie thy Luſt, didſt follow after the Pattern of the lewd 'Adulterers.

19. 'Thou haſt given thy Mouth a liberty to ſpeak obſcene 'and wicked Words, and haſt defrauded thy Neighbour by 'Flattery and Diſſimulation.

20. 'Thou neglecting the diligent, following thy own buſi-'neſs, didſt ſit idly and talk againſt thy Acquaintance, no 'Friend and Acquaintance being ſo dear to thee, but thou didſt 'reproach him by thy Calumnies.

21. 'All theſe Crimes and many more haſt thou committed, 'whilſt I out of my Mercy have forborn to take Vengeance up-'on thee for them, tho' thou ungraciouſly haſt taken occaſion 'therefrom to reproach me for my Lenity, and haſt thought 'me to be like thyſelf, taking a pleaſure in Wickedneſs: but 'now thou ſhalt find to thy great diſappointment, that I ſhall 'ſeverely chaſtiſe thee for it, and whether thou will or no, I 'will make thee ſenſible how grievouſly thou haſt offended me.

22. 'O lay this ſeriouſly to Heart, all you who are guilty of 'the foreſaid Crimes, leſt I, notwithſtanding my former for-'bearance, ſhower down my Vengeance upon you, and drag 'you away to the moſt grievous Puniſhment, which none ſhall 'be able to deliver you from.

23. 'In a word, you may take this for a ſtanding Rule, 'That I am more honoured by devout Prayer and Thankſgiv-'ing, than by the moſt coſtly Sacrifice, and that a good Life 'will more effectually draw down my Bleſſings upon thee, than 'the offering up Hecatombs at my Altar.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LI.

OGracious God, I beſeech thee to afford the utmoſt extent of Mercy to me, in pardoning thoſe two great Sins I have committed of Adultery and Murder.

2. O let my pardon be ſealed for theſe great Crimes, and let me appear clear again in thy ſight, when my Sins are forgiven by thee.

3. For I do not now, as I did before, extenuate my Faults or hide them, but I openly acknowledge them before thee, and freely confeſs what a wretched Sinner I have been.

4. In-

4. Againſt thee only have I ſinned, and done this Evil in thy ſight: that thou mighteſt be juſtified in thy Saying, and clear when thou art judged.

5. Behold, I was ſhapen in wickedneſs: and in Sin hath my Mother conceived me.

6. But lo, thou requireſt Truth in the inward Parts: and ſhalt make me to underſtand Wiſdom ſecretly.

7. Thou ſhalt purge me with Hyſſop, and I ſhall be clean: thou ſhalt waſh me, and I ſhall be whiter than Snow.

8. Thou ſhalt make me hear of joy and gladneſs: that the Bones which thou haſt broken may rejoyce.

9. Turn thy Face from my Sins: and put out all my miſdeeds.

10. Make me a clean Heart, O God: and renew a right Spirit within me.

11. Caſt me not away from thy Preſence: and take not thy Holy Spirit from me.

12. O give me the comfort of thy help again: and ſtabliſh me with thy free Spirit.

13. Then ſhall I teach thy ways unto the Wicked: and Sinners ſhall be converted unto thee.

14. Deliver me from Blood-guiltineſs, O God, thou that art the God of my Health: and my Tongue ſhall ſing of thy Righteouſneſs.

15. Thou ſhalt open my Lips, O LORD: and my Mouth ſhall ſhew thy Praiſe.

16. For thou deſireſt no Sacrifice, elſe would I give it thee: but thou delighteſt not in Burnt-Offerings.

17. The Sacrifice of God is a troubled Spirit: a broken and contrite Heart, O God, ſhalt thou not deſpiſe.

18. O be favourable and gracious unto Sion: build thou the Walls of Jeruſalem.

19. Then ſhalt thou be pleaſed with the Sacrifice of Righteouſneſs, with the Burnt-Offerings, and Oblations: then ſhall they offer young Bullocks upon thine Altar.

The LII. PSALM.

Quid gloriaris?

¶¶ The occaſion of writing this Pſalm is declared in the Title, which ſays it was written when Doeg the Edomite came and told Saul, and ſaid unto him, David is come to the Houſe of Ahimelech. The Hiſtory whereof is ſet down at large 1 Sam. 22. where it is recorded, that, upon the Information of Doeg, that Ahimelech the Prieſt had entertained David, he ordered him to ſlay Ahimelech and 83 more Prieſts; which wicked Command was accordingly executed, by that execrable Wretch.

WHY boaſteth thou thy ſelf, thou Tyrant: that thou canſt do miſchief;

2. Whereas

4. Indeed my high Station has made me to be anſwerable for my Sin to no one but thee, but againſt thee have I ſinned, and thou art armed with Eternal Vengeance to puniſh me for it; and tho' by my Unrighteous Cunning, I have kept the Knowledge of a great part of my Sin from the Eyes of the World, they not knowing but that Uriah fell by chance in the Battle; but thy Eye, which ſearcheth the Heart, ſaw with what a wicked Contrivance I placed him in that dangerous Poſt: Wherefore, whatever Puniſhment thou ſhalt by thy righteous Decree lay upon me, thy Juſtice will be perfectly acquitted.

5. Alas! I muſt not only acknowledge the Guilt of my late great Sins, but that the whole courſe of my Life has been defiled by many voluntary Crimes; nay, my whole Nature is corrupted by my Traduction from ſinful Parents, there being a Stain in my very Conception.

6. But notwithſtanding theſe great Defaults I have made in my Duty, and the corrupt Affections of my Nature, thou requireſt a Conformity to thy Laws, not only in outward Acts, but in Will and Affections, and that all our ſecret Thoughts ſhou'd be govern'd by a Submiſſion to the Wiſdom of thy Commands.

7. Do thou grant me thy Pardon upon this my ſincere Repentance, and then I ſhall be more clear than a Perſon, who, under a legal Defilement is ſprinkled by the Prieſt with a Bunch of Hyſop dip'd in conſecrated Water; do thou, as it were, waſh me, by forgiving my Sins, and then my Soul ſhall be purer than the Flakes of the new-fallen Snow.

8. This will turn the diſmal Sorrow of my penitent Soul, into a new Scene of Joy and Satisfaction; this will be as great a Refreſhment to me, as a Pardon is to a Criminal, whoſe Bones are under the Torture of the Rack.

9. I beſeech thee to turn away thy Face from my Sins, as being unwilling any more to take notice of them, or to puniſh them: Let my Offences be blotted out of thy Regiſter, where Mens Sins are recorded.

10. I beſeech thee, O Lord, by thy Grace, to expel out of my Heart, my former corrupt Affections, and give it a bent and tendency to Goodneſs; recruit and quicken the Motions of thy Holy Spirit, which I by my Wickedneſs have ſuffered to languiſh, and grow cold within me.

11. Do not thou caſt me out of thy Preſence, as an abominable thing, refuſing to have any Spiritual Communication with me; O do not thou ſuffer thy Holy Spirit to depart from me, as it did from my Predeceſſor Saul.

12. O afford me the Satisfaction again, which I formerly had in thy Spiritual Aſſiſtances, and give me again thoſe large Meaſures of thy Grace, which heretofore thou waſt pleaſed ſo readily to deal out to me.

13. Then will I by publick Hymns, compoſed in thy Honour, ſet forth the great Extent of thy Mercy, perſwading other Sinners to turn unto thee and experience it.

14. But, tho' I have the greateſt Senſe of thy Mercy, yet I cannot but have continually penſive Thoughts, when I reflect upon my great Sin of Murder in the caſe of Uriah; O deliver me from the Guilt of that crying Sin, and I will make triumphing Songs in Praiſe of thy Goodneſs.

15. The Conſideration of this thy great Mercy and Forgiveneſs, ſhall ſet my Mouth and Lips a-ſinging in thy Praiſe.

16. For 'tis not the moſt coſtly Sacrifices which will reconcile me to thee, after the commiſſion of ſuch heinous Offences; for I would not ſpare the offering up an Hecatomb, if I thought that would waſh away my Stains; but under this load of Guilt I muſt not approach thy Altar.

17. The Sacrifice, which thou haſt the chiefeſt regard to, is an hearty Sorrow for Sin, and a Renovation of mind; and when Sinners bring theſe devout Affections to thy Altar, thou giveſt them an hearty Welcome.

18. O continue thou thy Favour to thy beloved City Jeruſalem, and let not the Faults of their Prince provoke thy Judgments to fall upon the Inhabitants thereof; be thou their Gariſon to defend their Walls, againſt their Enemies.

19. And tho' at preſent thou haſt an Abhorrence of my Sacrifices, by reaſon of the foul Crimes, which I have committed; yet when I have made my Peace with thee, and have confirmed my ſelf a-new in a ſettled Habit of Piety, then will I and my People offer joyful Sacrifices unto thee, and load thy Altars with Sacrifices and Offerings.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LII.

O Thou wicked executor of Saul's Tyrannical Commands, what a valiant Action haſt thou done to boaſt thy ſelf upon; that thou wert able to cut the Throats of fourſcore unarmed Prieſts?

2. Whereas the goodneſs of God: endureth yet daily?

3. Thy Tongue imagineth Wickedneſs: and with lies thou cutteſt like a ſharp Raſour.

4. Thou haſt loved Unrighteouſneſs more than Goodneſs: and to talk of Lies more than Righteouſneſs.

5. Thou haſt loved to ſpeak all Words that may do hurt: O thou falſe Tongue.

6. Therefore ſhall God deſtroy thee for ever: he ſhall take thee and pluck thee out of thy dwelling, and root thee out of the Land of the living.

7. The Righteous alſo ſhall ſee this and fear: and ſhall laugh him to Scorn.

8. Lo, this is the Man that took not God for his Strength: but truſted unto the multitude of his Riches, and ſtrengthned himſelf in his Wickedneſs.

9. As for me, I am like a green Olive-tree in the Houſe of God: my truſt is in the tender Mercy of God for ever and ever.

10. I will always give Thanks unto thee for that thou haſt done: and I will hope in thy Name, for thy Saints like it well.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LIII. PSALM.

Dixit inſipiens.

¶ ¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, To the chief Muſician upon Mahalath, Maſchil, A Pſalm of David. This is but the XIVth Pſalm lightly varied, that it might go to the Tune Maſchil. It was to be ſung whilſt a Flute was playing, for Mahalath ſignifies ſome ſuch Inſtrument, it being derived from the Hebrew Verb Chalath, which ſignifies, To bore through.

THE fooliſh Body hath ſaid in his Heart: There is no God.

2. Corrupt are they, and become abominable in their Wickedneſs: there is none that doeth good.

3. God looked down from Heaven upon the Children of Men: to ſee if there were any that woud underſtand, and ſeek after God.

4. But they are all gone out of the way, they are altogether become abominable: there is alſo none that doeth Good, no not one.

5. Are not they without Underſtanding that work Wickedneſs: eating up my People as if they would eat Bread? they have not called upon God.

6. They were afraid where no fear was: for God hath broken the Bones of him that beſieged thee; thou haſt put them to confuſion, becauſe God hath deſpiſed them.

7. Oh

2. But, tho' my Thoughts are only bent upon Miſchief, the Goodneſs of God is as vigilant to preſerve good Men, as thou art to deſtroy them, and thou canſt have no Power over them, unleſs God for wiſe Reaſons, permit thee.

3. Thou doſt accuſtom thy Tongue to ſpeak falſe things with a premeditated Malice, and a reſolv'd Deſign to do thy Neighbour miſchief, and thy Lies cut every one they touch, like a keen Raſor.

4. When it lay in thy Power to do an Act of Juſtice, in vindicating the harmleſs Prieſts from the Power of Saul, thou madeſt it thy Choice to be inhumanely wicked, not only falſly to accuſe them, but barbarouſly to murder them by thy own Hand.

5. The miſchievous Trade of an Informer, which is ſcandalous to all the World beſides thee, is the object of thy Love; O thou perjur'd Tongue!

6. For this unparallel'd Wickedneſs of thine, God ſhall ſhower down his Vengeance upon thee, he ſhall deſtroy thy Habitation, and root out thy Family.

7. And when this remarkable Act of the Divine Juſtice ſhall be manifeſt, all good Men ſhall magnifie the Righteouſneſs of God in puniſhing notorious Offenders; and the Name of wicked Doeg ſhall be a Name of Reproach, and Infamy, to all Generations.

8. As ſoon as his Name ſhall be mentioned, Men ſhall thus remark of him, This is that Doeg who laid aſide all application to God for Aſſiſtance, and reſolved, by Money, Fraud, or any other Wickedneſs, to perpetuate his Greatneſs; but God has perfectly defeated his Deſigns, by ruining that Family which he, at the Expence of ſo much Wickedneſs, was building up.

9. But whilſt his Leaves wither, and his Family rots, I, having an opportunity again to frequent the publick Worſhip of God in his Houſe, ſhall flouriſh like a hopeful Olive-Tree, whoſe Leaf is always green; and God's Mercy and Goodneſs ſhall preſerve and ſuccour me, as long as I live.

10. For theſe, and other very remarkable Acts of God's gracious Providence, interpoſed on my behalf, I will own his Goodneſs to my Lives end; and whenever I am under Misfortune, I will place my Truſt only in God for Deliverance; for tho' ſuch a Reliance be looked upon as vain and fruitleſs by ſuch profane Wretches as Doeg, yet the Judgments of all good Men, which are much more to be valued, do highly approve it.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LIII.

THE fooliſh irreligious Man, has thought within himſelf, tho' he be not ſo profane to utter it, that there is no Deity.

2. We live in a Generation, that are very Corrupt in their Morals, and by their wicked Lives are become very hateful to God; and 'tis very hard to find a pious Man, eſpecially among the Abettors of Saul's Tyranny.

3. The Lord looked down from his heavenly Throne, to take a view of Mankind, to ſee if there were any that had the true Knowledge of God, and had a hearty Senſe of Religion.

4. But no ſuch were to be ſeen; there was not ſo much as one Man of Piety and Integrity to be found.

5. Strange! that among ſuch a number of Men, no one ſhould be endowed with a juſt Senſe of Religion! That all ſhould be ſuch Contrivers of Miſchief! That they ſhould ſet themſelves to devour good Men, with a like Greedineſs as a hungry Man eats a piece of Bread! That they ſhould live under ſuch an univerſal Contempt, and neglect of God, and his Worſhip!

6. God Almighty put them under a panick Fear, making them to fly away with great Precipitation, when there was no apparent Cauſe of Danger; thus God deſtroyed the Adverſaries of David, by obtaining an eaſie Conqueſt over them, they being diſpirited and forſaken by God.

7. But

7. Oh that the Salvation were given unto Iſrael out of Sion: Oh that the Lord would deliver his People out of Captivity!

8. Then ſhould Jacob rejoyce: and Iſrael ſhould be right glad.

The LIV. PSALM.

Deus, in Nomine.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, To the chief Muſician upon Neginoth, Maſchil, a Pſalm of David, when the Ziphims came and ſaid to Saul, Doth not David hide himſelf with us? The Hiſtory of the Matter we have 1 Sam. 23. For when David hid himſelf in the Wilderneſs of Ziph, v. 15. and Maon, v. 24. the treacherous Inhabitants of the place made a Diſcovery to Saul, of his hiding himſelf in their Quarters; upon which, he gathering conſiderable Forces together, went in purſuit of him, and had hemmed him in with his Troops; but of a ſudden, Saul being called home by an Invaſion of the Philiſtines, he was diverted from purſuing further his Attempt upon David.

SAve me, O God, for thy Names ſake: and avenge me in thy Strength.

2. Hear my Prayer, O God: and hearken unto the Words of my Mouth.

3. For ſtrangers are riſen up againſt me: and Tyrants, which have not God before their Eyes, ſeek after my Soul.

4. Behold, God is my helper: the LORD is with them that uphold my Soul.

5. He ſhall reward Evil unto mine Enemies: deſtroy thou them in thy Truth.

6. An offering of a free Heart will I give thee, and praiſe thy Name, O Lord: becauſe it is ſo comfortable.

7. For he hath delivered me out of all my Trouble: and mine Eye hath ſeen his deſire upon mine Enemies.

The LV. PSALM.

Exaudi, Deus.

¶¶ This Pſalm was compoſed by David in the the time of Abſalom's Rebellion, when Achitophel his chief Counſellor had taken a part with the Adverſaries, of whoſe Inſincerity he makes great complaint in this Pſalm.

HEar my Prayer, O God: and hide not thy ſelf from my Petition.

2. Take heed unto me, and hear me: how I mourn in my Prayer, and am vexed.

3. The Enemy crieth ſo, and the Ungodly cometh on ſo faſt: for they are minded to do me ſome miſchief, ſo maliciouſly are they ſet againſt me.

4. My Heart is diſquieted within me: and the fear of Death is fallen upon me.

5. Fearfulneſs and trembling are come upon me: and an horrible dread hath overwhelmed me.

6. And I ſaid, Oh that I had Wings like a Dove: for then would I flee away and be at reſt.

7. Lo, then would I get me away far off: and remain in the Wilderneſs. 8. I

7. But under this great degree of Hardſhip and Oppreſſion, O that God, who dwells in Mount Sion, would afford us a Deliverance.

8. We may in ſome meaſure expect this when God ſhall deliver his People from the Slavery of Saul's Tyrannick Oppreſſion; but chiefly when they ſhall be delivered by the Meſſias, from the Power of Satan, a greater Tyrant over the Souls of Men. That will be a time of great Joy, indeed, for the People of Iſrael.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LIV.

O Lord God, for the ſake of thy good and gracious Being, afford me thy help in this time of extreme Danger; employ thy Omnipotent Power, in making my poor handful of Men, to gain the better of theſe numerous Troops.

2. I beſeech thee to hearken unto my earneſt Prayer, in delivering me from this formidable Danger.

3. The Ziphites, which were perfect Strangers to me, and who could not pretend to have received any Diſobligations from me, theſe have baſely betrayed me to Saul; and that Tyrannical Prince himſelf is come out, in an hoſtile manner, to fall upon and deſtroy me.

4. But the Almighty God is my Aſſiſtant, and, as he is an Adverſary to my Enemies, ſo will he be a Frjend and an Auxiliary to thoſe, who eſpouſe my Cauſe.

5. And ſince God is my Helper, he ſhall make my Enemies dearly repent of their injurious Treatment of me; he ſhall deſtroy them, and defeat their unrighteous Deſigns, to make good his Promiſe, which he made to me of the Kingdom.

6. And, when thou haſt paved the way to my Advancement by their Deſtruction, I will offer up liberal Sacrifices at thy Altar, and ſing Praiſes unto thy holy Name, which is the moſt grateful and pleaſant Exerciſe, which I can employ myſelf in.

7. For thou, O God, haſt delivered me, out of the greateſt Danger and Strait that ever I was in, and I have ſeen the moſt deſirable ſight I could wiſh for, to behold my Enemies, whom I was in ſo great dread of, to march away from me in ſo great haſte.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LV.

I Beſeech thee, O God, to afford a favourable Ear to my Supplication, and do not thou, in thine Anger, refuſe to receive my Petition.

2. I beg of thee, to liſten with Attention to what I have to offer to thee, and to have regard to my Prayer, which I put up to thee with the greateſt Anxiety of Mind.

3. Becauſe of the clamorous Threats of my Enemies, and becauſe my wicked Oppoſers follow ſo cloſe upon me, having very miſchievous Deſigns againſt me, being madly bent to do me all the harm they can.

4. My Heart aketh, through the Extremity of the Danger I am in; I am reduced to the very Agonies of Death, which unleſs thy goodneſs prevents it, will certainly befal me.

5. The Unnaturalneſs of this Rebellon, has put me into the greateſt Conſternation; I am ſo over-charged with Fear and Amazement, that my Soul is not able to perform its ordinary Functions.

6. When firſt I was ſurprized with this ſtrange Relation, I ſaid to myſelf, O that Nature had endowed me with the ſwift Wings of a Dove, for then would I fly away to ſome place, where I might reſt in Security, and free from theſe Mens malicious Attempts.

7. I would get away far off from the Society of theſe Factious Men, and remain among the wild Beaſts in the Wilderneſs, whom I could better truſt than theſe my wicked Subjects, tho' by their Allegiance they are obliged to defend me.

8. Then

8. I would make haſte to eſcape: becauſe of the ſtormy Wind and Tempeſt.

9. Deſtroy their Tongues, O LORD, and divide them: for I have ſpied Unrighteouſneſs, and Strife in the City.

10. Day and Night they go about within the Walls thereof: Miſchief alſo, and Sorrow are in the midſt of it.

11. Wickedneſs is therein: Deceit and Guile go not out of their Streets.

12. For it is not an open Enemy that hath done me this Diſhonour: for then I could have born it.

13. Neither was it mine Adverſary that did magnifie himſelf againſt me: for then [peradventure] I would have hid my ſelf from him.

14. But it was even thou, my Companion: my Guide, and mine own familiar Friend.

15. We took ſweet Counſel together: and walked in the Houſe of God as Friends.

16. Let Death come haſtily upon them, and let them go down quick into Hell: for Wickedneſs is in their Dwellings, and among them.

17. As for me, I will call upon God: and the LORD ſhall ſave me.

18. In the Evening, and Morning, and at Noon-day will I Pray, and that inſtantly: and he ſhall hear my Voice.

19. It is he that hath delivered my Soul in Peace, from the Battle that was againſt me: for there were many with me.

20. Yea, even God that endureth for ever, ſhall hear me, and bring them down: for they will not turn, nor fear God.

21. He laid his Hands upon ſuch as be at Peace with him: and he brake his Covenant.

22. The Words of his Mouth were ſofter than Butter, having War in his Heart: his Words were ſmoother than Oyl, and yet be they very Swords.

23. O caſt thy burden upon the Lord, and he ſhall nouriſh thee: and ſhall not ſuffer the Righteous to fall for ever.

24. And as for them: thou, O God, ſhalt bring them into the Pit of Deſtruction.

25. The

8. Then, like that ſagacious Bird, I would fly away from the growing Tempeſt, and avoid the Hazards of this unhatural War.

9. O Lord, ſend Diviſion among their Counſels, that they may not be able, with ſucceſs, to form any Deſign againſt me; that they themſelves may feel the ill Effects of Faction, after they have filled all Jeruſalem with Sedition and Tumult.

10. They run about in every part of that populous City, filling Peoples Ears with Factious and Seditious Diſcourſe, till they have made the Citizens of that place, to embark in the ſame miſchievous Deſign againſt me with themſelves.

11. And indeed, there are very wicked Deſigns hatching againſt me in that City, there being hardly any Street thereof, but there are treaſonable Meetings held againſt me.

12. But that which doth moſt ſenſibly affect me, is the Defection of Achitophel from me, and his joyning with the Rebels Forces; for if this had been done by one, who had formerly ſhewed any diſlike to my Government, or had ever diſcovered a ſeditious or mutinous Spirit, I could more eaſily have digeſted the Misfortune.

13. Neither was it any of thoſe furious Men, who, for a conſiderable time before, have made very Saucy and Inſolent Demands upon me, and threatned me with an Inſurrection.

14. But it was a Friend, whom I kept in my Boſom, and to whom I unfolded all my Secrets, deſiring his Counſel and Advice upon all extraordinary Emergencies.

15. I took particular Delight in his Converſation, and loved to take his ſingle Advice upon any important Difficulty; nay, I had the greater Affection for him, becauſe he would accompany me to the publick Worſhip, which ſo few a part of my Courtiers would do.

16. But let God, by ſending ſudden Death among them, and taking away the Lives of their Ring-leaders, defeat all their treaſonable Projects; for they are always big with ſome miſchievous Deſign or other; in every Quarter they take up with, ſome new wicked Stratagem againſt me diſcovers itſelf.

17. But as for myſelf I promiſe, that I will never make uſe of ſuch unwarrantable means for the ſupport of my Cauſe; I ſhall only purſue juſt and prudent Methods, begging God's Bleſſing upon my Endeavours; and I doubt not but he will work my Deliverance.

18. If I do any thing extraordinary in this Affair, It ſhall be in the Conſtancy, the Frequency, and the Earneſtneſs of my Devotions; for I will put up my Requeſt to thee at Evening, when I go to Bed, at Morning when I riſe, and at Noon before I Dine; and this with ſuch Ardency and Importunity, as ſhall in a manner enforce thee to grant my Petition.

19. And when I ſhall fight the Army of my Rebels, I doubt not, but by God's Aſſiſtance I ſhall vanquiſh it, and thereby make my way to a quiet Settlement in my Throne again; for thy Aſſiſtance on my ſide, is equivalent to a Multitude of Auxiliary Troops.

20. But the Eternal God, who has eſpouſed my Cauſe, ſhall in anſwer to my Petition, chaſtiſe and humble them for their Inſolence and Wickedneſs; eſpecially ſince they are ſo hardned in it, that, after ſo many Intreaties and Exhortations, they will not return to their Duty which they owe both to God and me.

21. Eſpecially that perfidious Counſellor Achitophel, who has betrayed his beſt Friend and Benefactor, and violated his Oath of Truſt, which he had taken to be faithful to me.

22. The wretched Diſſembler ſpoke fairly to me, all the time he was hatching Miſchief againſt me, giving me ſmooth oily Words, at the ſame time, when by his ſecrets Plots he was ſtabbing me to the Heart.

23, 24. Therefore I would adviſe every good Man, to ſuffer himſelf to be taught by my Example, whenever he is under any Calamity, to fly to God for Succour, and he, in his good time, ſhall eaſe him of that burden of his Afflictions, which lies ſo hard upon him; for he may lay down this for an undoubted Maxim, That, tho' God for wiſe ends beſt known to himſelf, may ſuffer his pious Servants to lie for ſome time under moſt grievous Affliction, yet he will at laſt afford them a kind Deliverance.

25. And

25. The Blood-thirſty, and deceitful Men ſhall not live out half their Days: nevertheleſs my Truſt ſhall be in thee, [O Lord].

MORNING PRAYER.

The LVI. PSALM.

Miſerere mei, Deus.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, To the chief Muſician upon Jonath-elemrechokim (i. e.) To the Tune of the ſilent Dove. A Michtam of David, when the Philiſtines took him in Gath. The Hiſtory of which we have 1 Sam. 21. For after divers Wanderings about Naioth, 1 Sam. 19. 18. and Nob, 1 Sam. 21. 1. he came to Gath, where he was diſcovered and brought to Achiſh King of the place; to get out of whoſe hands he was forced to counterfeit Madneſs.

BE merciful unto me, O God, for Man goeth about to devour me: he is daily fighting and troubling me.

2. Mine Enemies are daily in hand to ſwallow me up: for they be many that fight againſt me, O thou moſt Higheſt.

3. Nevertheleſs, though I am ſometime afraid: yet put I my truſt in thee.

4. I will praiſe God, becauſe of his Word: I have put my truſt in God, and will not fear what Fleſh can do unto me.

5. They daily miſtake my Words: all that they imagine is to do me evil.

6. They hold all together, and keep themſelves cloſe: and mark my Steps, when they lay wait for my Soul.

7. Shall they eſcape for their Wickedneſs: thou, O God, in thy Diſpleaſure ſhall caſt them down.

8. Thou telleſt my flittings, put my Tears into thy Bottle: are not theſe things noted in thy Book.

9. Whenſoever I call upon thee, then ſhall mine Enemies be put to flight: this I know; for God is on my ſide.

10. In God's Word will I rejoyce: in the LORD's Word will I comfort me.

11. Yea, in God have I put my truſt: I will not be afraid what Man can do unto me.

12. Unto thee, O God, will I pay my Vows: unto thee will I give Thanks.

13. For thou haſt delivered my Soul from Death, and my Feet from falling: that I may walk before God in the light of the living.

The

25. And for theſe bloody and treacherous Rebels, that are now up in Arms againſt me, they ſhall be cut off in the Flower of their Age, by my faithful and victorious Troops: But however, tho' my Deliverance ſhould not be ſo great as I expect, this ſhall not hinder me, from ſtill continuing my reliance upon thee, O my gracious God.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LVI.

O Gracious God, I beſeech thee to interpoſe thy Almighty Power, in working my deliverance from theſe Dangers which on every ſide encompaſs me; for Saul, tho' but a Man, has taken up a Reſolution to devour me, whom thou, the great God, haſt promiſed to protect: He is continually endeavouring to take away my Life, and follows after me ſo cloſe, wherever I go, till he is out of Breath.

2. His wicked Agents are ſpread abroad every-where to work my Ruin; I cannot go to any place ſo remote, but I find Multitudes of them combining againſt me.

3. But tho' the Craft and Power of ſo many Enemies, make me ſometimes a little fearful of my Condition; yet when I reflect upon thy Almighty Protection, I have no Diſtruſt of my Deliverance.

4. I will continue to praiſe God for his wonderful Kindneſs, which he has all along vouchſafed me, particularly for his Promiſe, of bringing me in ſafety to the Crown of Iſrael 1 Sam. 16. 13. therefore ſince I have the Almighty Power of God to defend me, I will not be terrified with the weak Attempts of Man againſt me.

5. All my Expreſſions, which I occaſionally drop at any time, they pervert by malicious Interpretations to a bad meaning; and they lay out all their Thoughts to bring me into an ill Opinion with my People.

6. They meet together in ſecret Cabals to form miſchievous Deſigns againſt me; they diligently obſerve all my Actions, that they may take ſome Advantage againſt me to ruin me.

7. Wilt thou, O God, ſuffer them to go unpuniſhed, after the commiſſion of ſo much wicked Treachery? No certainly, thou wilt throw down into the Grave the Actors of ſuch Villanies.

8. Thou, O God, doſt keep an exact Reckoning of the Troubles which I have undergone; how I have been forced to wander from place to place for Security; thou doſt preſerve every Tear I have ſhed in remembrance, as carefully as if thou didſt keep them in a Viol; and thou doſt enter all my Sufferings as it were into a Regiſter.

9. Tho' my Enemies at preſent prevail againſt me, yet at laſt I ſhall find a happy Succeſs of my Prayers, when thou ſhalt bleſs me with a glorious Victory over them; for I have no doubt thereof, ſince the great God has been pleaſed to eſpouſe my Cauſe.

10, 11. I will reſt ſatisfied with the kind Promiſe which God has made me, 1 Sam. 16. 13. nothing diſtruſting, but that it will be out of the Power of Man to do any thing to invalidate it.

12. I will therefore, in acknowledgment of thy Goodneſs, offer thoſe Sacrifices and Oblations, which I have vowed to thee for my Deliverance; and will for ever bear in my mind a thankful Acknowledgment, for ſo great a Mercy.

13. For thou haſt been pleaſed to deliver me from the very Jaws of Death, and from the Brinks of ſuch a dangerous Precipice, by ſuffering this Stratagem to paſs upon the Philiſtines, that I may have a longer opportunity of living to thy Honour in this World, and doing more good in my Generation.

The LVII. PSALM.

Miserere mei, Deus.

¶ ¶ This Psalm is entituled, Al-taschith, a Michtam of David, when he fled from Saul in the Cave. Al-taschith signifies destroy not, and denotes the beginning of some known Song in those times. Michtam signifies a curious Composition. This Psalm refers to the History of David, 1 Sam. 24. when in the Cave of En-gedi he cut off Saul's Skirt, and had a fair opportunity of taking away his Life; which his Followers advised him to, but he piously refused it, Sam. 24. 6.

BE merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me, for my Soul trusteth in thee: and under the shadow of thy Wings shall be my refuge, until this Tyranny be over-past.

2. I will call unto the most high God: even unto the God that shall perform the Cause which I have in hand.

3. He shall send from Heaven: and save me from reproof of him that would eat me up.

4. God shall send forth his Mercy and Truth: my Soul is among Lions.

5. And I lie even among the Children of Men, that are set on Fire: whose Teeth are Spears and Arrows, and their Tongue a sharp Sword.

6. Set up thy self, O God, above the Heavens: and thy Glory above all the Earth.

7. They have laid a Net for my Feet, and pressed down my Soul: they have digged a Pit before me, and are fallen into the midst of it themselves.

8. My Heart is fixed, O God, my Heart is fixed: I will sing and give Praise.

9. Awake up, my Glory, awake Lute and Harp: I my self will awake right early.

10. I will give Thanks unto thee, O LORD, among the People: and I will sing unto thee among the Nations.

11. For the greatness of thy Mercy reacheth unto the Heavens: and thy Truth unto the Clouds.

12. Set up thy self, O God, above the Heavens: and thy Glory above all the Earth.

The LVIII. PSALM.

Si vere utique.

¶ ¶ This Psalm is likewise entituled, Al-taschith, a Michtam of David. It was written under the Saulian Persecution, and is chiefly levelled against some of Saul's chief Courtiers and Counsellors, who had given him Advice to destroy David.

ARE your Minds set upon Righteousness, O ye Congregation: and do ye judge the thing that is right, O ye Sons of Men? 2. Yea,

Paraphrase on Psal. LVII.

O My gracious God, shew thy pity upon me, in rescuing me from my Dangers; I put my trust entirely in thee, not reposing any confidence in the Strong-holds I am now possessed of; thou art the only Citadel that in my Extremity I can retire to, to defend me, till the Tyrannick Power of Saul be either restrained by thee, or taken from him.

2. He is the most high God, who has the sovereign Power over all things, and I cannot address myself to any superior Authority; I will therefore, in devout Prayer, apply myself to him, that he may give a quick and happy Issue to my Affairs.

3. He will send me Relief, by employing his omnipotent Power for my Preservation, which will be a better defence to me, than any Auxiliary Troops, to defend me from the number of Saul's Forces, which have now surrounded me, and do so far exceed my Guards in number, that they are enough to eat them up.

4. And I have the greatest Assurances which can be, that God will afford me this Defence, he being inclined thereunto by his Mercy and Goodness of Nature, being likewise obliged to assist me by his Veracity; he having not only promised me deliverance from this Trouble, but to give me the Kingdom likewise. But notwithstanding this, at present he is pleased to let my Life remain in as much danger, as if I was in the midst of a Den of Lions and wild Beasts.

5. I am encompassed round by Saul's Troops, in a place from whence I dare not stir; no Fire burns fiercer than their Rage against me; their Reproaches upon me are pointed with so much Malice against me, as if their Teeth were Spears, and their Tongues were Swords.

6. O Lord, shew thyself to be the Supreme God, the Governour of Heaven and Earth, in delivering me from this wonderful Danger, which nothing but thy omnipotent Arm can rescue me from; and the Glory which will accrue from such an unexpected Preservation of thy Servant, will sound thy Praise all over the World.

7. No Hunter ever more craftily drew his Net over his Prey, than my Persecutors have designed my Destruction; they were just upon the Point of taking away my Life, when, to my great Astonishment, I found that the Pit which they had dug to catch me in (as they would do a wild Beast) served only to entrap my Enemies.

8. And now, O Lord, I have as firm and fixed an Assurance of my Deliverance, as if thou hadst actually wrought it for me; and therefore I will sing a triumphant Hymn to thy Honour.

9. I will now rouse up my Musical Faculty, which, during my Danger, has been long sleeping; do you, my Instruments, that have so long hung useless by, awake; I myself will raise up all my Powers, to sing the Divine Praise.

10. I will not only sing thy Praise among the Tribes of Israel, but likewise will display it among Foreign Nations, where my Psalms shall be sung.

11. For thy Mercy and Truth are infinite in Extension, and unmeasurable, as a Line drawn from Earth, through the immense space of the Heavens.

12. O Lord, shew thyself to be the Supreme God, the Governour of Heaven and Earth, in delivering me from this wonderful Danger, which nothing but thy omnipotent Arm can rescue me from; and the Glory, which will accrue from such an unexpected Preservation of thy Servant, will sound thy Praise all over the World.

Paraphrase on Psal. LVIII.

IS this the Righteousness which you, who are the Privy-Counsellors of a King, pretend to? You that ought to have hindred the Prince from doing any Act of Violence to an innocent Person; Do you advise him to these Acts of Cruelty, O ye Sons of Men, and not Sons of God, as all good Magistrates are?

2. In

2. Yea, ye imagine Miſchief in your Heart upon the Earth: and your Hands deal with Wickedneſs.

3. The Ungodly are froward, even from their Mothers Womb: as ſoon as they are Born, they go aſtray, and ſpeak Lies.

4. They are as venomous as the Poiſon of a Serpent: even like the deaf Adder, that ſtoppeth her Ears.

5. Which refuſeth to hear the Voice of the Charmer: charm he never ſo wiſely.

6. Break their Teeth, O God, in their Mouths, ſmite the jaw-Bones of the Lions, O LORD: let them fall away like Water that runneth apace, and when they ſhoot their Arrows, let them be rooted out.

7. Let them conſume away like a Snail, and be like the untimely Fruit of a Woman: and let them not ſee the Sun.

8. Or ever your Pots be made hot with Thorns: ſo let Indignation vex him, even as a thing that is raw.

9. The Righteous ſhall rejoyce when he ſeeth the Vengeance: he ſhall waſh his Footſteps in the Blood of the Ungodly.

10. So that a Man ſhall ſay, Verily there is a reward for the Righteous: doubtleſs there is a God that judgeth the Earth.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LIX. PSALM.

Eripe me de inimicis.

¶¶ This Pſalm is likewiſe entituled, Al-taſchith, a Michtam of David, when Saul ſent, and watched the Houſe to kill him. The Hiſtory is in 1 Sam. 19. when he was delivered by the pious Fraud of Michal his Wife, who let him down through a Window, and placed an Image in the Bed where he uſed to lie.

DEliver me from mine Enemies, O God: defend me from them that riſe up againſt me.

2. O deliver me from the wicked Doers: and ſave me from the Blood-thirſty Men.

3. For lo, they lie waiting for my Soul: the mighty Men are gathered againſt me without any offence or fault of me, O LORD.

4. They run and prepare themſelves without my fault: ariſe thou therefore to help me, and behold.

5. Stand up, O LORD God of Hoſts, thou God of Iſrael, to viſit all the Heathen: and be not merciful unto them that offend of malicious Wickedneſs.

6. They

1. In ſtead of ſeriouſly ſtudying the Rules of Juſtice, you only contrive Miſchief in your Hearts; and in ſtead of weighing Matters which come before you, with impartiality between Prince and Subject, you contrive only to gratifie the Tyrannick Will of your Maſter, and do not deal out, as you ought to do, Juſtice, but Oppreſſion.

3. But 'tis no wonder, that theſe wicked Counſellors are not more impartial, in their Determinations concerning me, for they are a wicked Generation of People, whom Saul has pick'd up to ſerve his Turn, whoſe whole Lives have been remarkably flagitious from their very Childhood, they being uſed to tell Lies, before they could ſpeak plain.

4. Their Tongue contains as much Venom as that of a Snake, nay, as the Tongve of an old cunning Adder, that ſtops his Ear, and will not be inticed out of his Hole by Muſick.

5 Such an old crafty Adder that runs his head in the Ground, that he may avoid the hearing of the Airs of a tuneful Inſtrument, that is brought to charm him; tho' the Muſician plays thereon, with never ſo much Skill and Pleaſantneſs.

6. But thou, O God, whoſe Power is not to be reſiſted, do thou break out the Teeth of theſe biting Serpents, diſable the Jaw-bones of theſe devouring Lions, that tear good Men in pieces; let them run away in waſte like Water, no one valuing them; and whilſt they ſhoot out their Arrows to wound others, let them be deſtroyed themſelves.

7. Let them become like a Snail, which the further it goes, the more it waſteth of its Subſtance; Let them be deſtroyed, and their Bodies thrown into ſome dark hole, like abortive Births, and let them never more be beheld by the Eyes of Men, or ſee the Face of the Sun.

8. Without any delay, (as a Pot is ſet a-boiling by the ſtrong heat of a Fire of Thorns,) let the Divine Vengeance fret and torment them, as an Inflammation rankles a Wound.

9. This righteous Judgment of God, upon theſe wicked Counſellors, ſhall give juſt Cauſe of rejoycing to all good Men, cauſing them to triumph in the ſame manner as a Victor, whoſe Feet are dyed with Blood, as he walks over the Carcaſes of the Slain.

10. This will afford a juſt occaſion of Reflection for Men to pronounce; that God is not an idle Spectator of Human Affairs, but a juſt and righteous Judge of the World, rewarding good Men, and puniſhing the Bad, even in this Life.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LIX.

DEliver me, O God, from my malicious Enemies, and ſet me in a place of Safety, where I may be free from the wicked Deſigns of thoſe, who have combined together to take away my Life.

2. Defend me from the Contrivances of thoſe wicked Men, who make a Practice and Trade of Miſchief, and hunt after Innocent Perſons Blood, as if they were purſuing their Game.

3. They lie in Ambuſh to ſet upon me, that they may take away my Life; all the great Men in Saul's Court, are in a Conſpiracy againſt me, though I am not conſcious of any Fault I have committed againſt that Prince.

4. They run together with all haſte, every one taking their Poſt to circumvent and betray me, who am a faithful Subject, without any ſtain of Diſloyalty upon me; I beſeech thee therefore to riſe up to my Aſſiſtance, and to conſider with what danger I am ſurrounded.

5. Stand up therefore, O my God, as one awaking out of Sleep in my defence, and ſeverely chaſtiſe theſe Heatheniſh Adverſaries of mine.

6 They

6. They go to and fro in the Evening: they grin like a Dog, and run about through the City.

7. Behold, they speak with their Mouth, and Swords are in their Lips: for who doth hear?

8. But thou, O LORD, shalt have them in derision: and thou shalt laugh all the Heathen to Scorn.

9. My Strength will I ascribe unto thee: for thou art the God of my refuge.

10. God sheweth me his goodness plenteously: and God shall let me see my desire upon mine Enemies.

11. Slay them not, lest my People forget it: but scatter them abroad among the People, and put them down, O LORD, our Defence.

12. For the Sin of their Mouth, and for the Words of their Lips they shall be taken in their Pride: and why? their Preaching is of Cursing and Lies.

13. Consume them in thy Wrath, consume them, that they may perish: and know that it is God that ruleth in Jacob, and unto the ends of the World.

14. And in the Evening they will return: grin like a Dog, and will go about the City.

15. They will run here and there for Meat: and grudge if they be not satisfied.

16. As for me, I will sing of thy Power, and will praise thy Mercy betimes in the Morning: for thou hast been my Defence and Refuge, in the Day of my Trouble.

17. Unto thee, O my Strength, will I sing: for thou, O God, art my Refuge and my merciful God.

The LX. PSALM.

Deus, repulisti nos.

¶¶ The Hebr w Title to this Psalm is, To the chief Musician upon Shushan Eduth, a Michtam of David to teach, when he strove with Aram Naharim, and with Aram Zobah, when Joab returned, and smote of Edom in the Valley of Salt 12000. The particulars of these Victories are recorded in the Books of Samuel and Chronicles, where are related his Successes in Mesopotomia, and particularly in Zobah, 2 Sam. 8. 3, 5. as also in Idumea, 1 Chron. 18. 5, 6, 7. how that Abishai slew 18000. in the Valley of Salt, 1 Chron. 18. 12. and upon their Insurrection afterwards, Joab slew 12000 more in the same Valley, and reduced almost all Edom to David's Government, 1 Chron. 18. 13. It is called A Michtam, or Jewel-Psalm of David, to be sung upon the Hexacord or Instrument of six Strings in the Sanctuary. This Psalm was not Penned after the Victories, but whilst David was preparing for this Expedition, or whilst he strove, as the Title expresses it.

O God, thou hast cast us out, and scatter'd us abroad: thou hast also been displeased, O turn thee unto us again.

2. Thou hast moved the Land, and divided it: heal the Sores thereof, for it shaketh.

3. Thou

6. They go backwards and forwards in the dusk of the Evening, to prosecute their Villanous Contrivances, they run growling and barking at me throughout the City, as a Hound does after a Beast of Game.

7. They throw out of their Mouths Curses and Threats against me; the Words which proceed out of their Lips cut like Swords, and they think with themselves, that God does not make any observation upon their Injustice, and Violence.

8. But they shall know, that thou, O Lord, shall disappoint all their wicked Practices against me, making them asham'd of their successless Attempts; for thou, who by thy watchful Providence dost defeat such wicked Designs, all over the World, shall particularly interpose thy Providence, in behalf of me thy faithful Servant.

9. All the opportunities, and ways of escaping my Dangers, I do not ascribe to my own sagacity, but to thy Goodness, which hast put them into my Hands; for thou art my refuge in all my distresses.

10. God so plentifully showers down his Mercies upon me, that they prevent my asking; and I do not doubt, but God in a little time, will give me the Satisfaction, of seeing my Enemies, in a more forlorn Condition than I am now in.

11. I do not desire, that thou shouldst slay them by an universal Destruction, lest the People should forget in a little time the severity of thy Justice, but now and then pick out one of the most remarkable Offenders, and make him a Monument of thy Vengeance: Do thou, O God my Defender, scatter them among the Heathen Nations, and throw them down from the height of Honour, which they now pride themselves in.

12. And this they have very deservedly brought upon themselves, by reason of their Pride and Treachery; for their whole Conversation is nothing but Lying and Calumny.

13. Therefore, if they will not be bettered by thy former Chastisements, destroy them in thy Anger, till they be quite perished; and that in so remarkable a manner, that all foreign Nations may take Notice, with how signal a Providence thou dost govern the World.

14. And since they like the imitating of a Dog so well, let them run about like a starving Dog, growling through the City.

15. Let them run from this House to that, hunting for a bit of Meat, and murmuring that they cannot fill their Bellies.

16. But as for my part, since thou hast delivered me from this impendent Danger, my first Addresses in the Morning shall be made to thee, to praise thy Goodness for so great a Deliverance.

17. Thou, O my God, who hast defended me by thy Almighty Power, shall be the subject of my Hymns: Thou, who dost not only employ thy Omnipotence in rescuing me, but who dost vouchsafe to discover, in so many particulars, thy infinite Mercy towards me.

Paraphrase on Psal. LX.

O Lord thou didst suffer us to be shametully defeated by our Heathen Neighbours the Philistines, in our last Battle with them, under Saul's Reign, 1 Sam. 31. but tho' thy Displeasure against us was then very great, we beseech thee to return to thy usual Favour, which thou wast wont to bear to us.

2. Thou hast been pleased to suffer very great Commotions, and intestine Divisions, to be in our Country, and which do, even to this Day, wofully distract it: O be thou pleased to lend thy Hand to heal these dismal Wounds, which do more threaten our Destruction, than the force of our Enemies abroad.

3. Thou

3. Thou haſt ſhewed thy People heavy things: thou haſt given us a drink of deadly Wine.

4. Thou haſt given a Token for ſuch as fear thee: that they may triumph because of the Truth.

5. Therefore were thy beloved delivered: help me with thy right Hand, and hear me.

6. God hath ſpoken in his Holineſs, I will rejoyce and divide Sichem: and mete out the Valley of Succoth.

7. Gilead is mine, and Mannaſſes is mine: Ephraim alſo is the ſtrength of my Head; Juda is my Law-giver,

8. Moab is my Waſh-pot, over Edom will I caſt out my Shoe: Philiſtia be thou glad of me.

9. Who will lead me into the ſtrong City: who will bring me into Edom?

10. Haſt not thou caſt us out, O God? wilt not thou, O God, go out with our Hoſts?

11. O be thou our help in trouble: for vain is the help of Man.

12. Through God will we do great Acts: for it is he that ſhall tread down our Enemies.

The LXI. PSALM.

Exaudi, Deus.

¶¶ This Pſalm was written by David, moſt probably, in the time of Abſalom's Rebellion, when he was driven, by the prevailing Power of his Rebel Son, beyond Jordan, to the Extremities of Judæa; and this is the Ends of the Earth, he mentions Verſe 2.

HEar my crying, O God: give ear unto my Prayer.

2. From the ends of the Earth will I call upon thee: when my Heart is in heavineſs.

3. O ſet me up upon the Rock that is higher than I: for thou haſt been my hope, and a ſtrong Tower for me againſt the Enemy.

4. I will dwell in thy Tabernacle for ever: and my truſt ſhall be under the covering of thy Wings.

5. For thou, O Lord, haſt heard my Deſires: and haſt given an heritage unto thoſe that fear thy Name.

6. Thou ſhalt grant the King a long Life: that his Years may endure throughout all Generations.

7. He

3. Thou haſt exerciſed thy choſen People with very hard Diſpenſations, making them to partake of a very bitter Cup, having Wars with their Neighbouring-Nations, and very dangerous Factions among themſelves.

4. Thou haſt given Trophies, or Tokens of Victory, to us thy faithful Servants who truſted in thee; of having Conquered and Triumphed over the Adherents of Saul's Houſe, as thy Word, which is Truth, did engage that I ſhould do.

5. And that deliverance of me and my Friends from the Saulian Party, I gratefully acknowledge to be a great Inſtance of thy Love to us; and therefore I beſeech thee at this juncture to be as ready to aſſiſt us, and to hear my Prayers, which I put up for my People, now engaged in this dangerous War.

6. In anſwer to this Prayer of mine, God has given this Oracular Reſponſe out of his Sanctuary, the Subſtance whereof is this, 'That I ſhall conquer and triumph over the 'Infidel Army, which is now advancing againſt me; and that 'the Country of the Sichemites ſhall be divided out among the 'Soldiers of my Victorious Army; and that all the great 'Valley of Succoth ſhall be meaſured out into Parcels, and be 'choſen by Lots among the Conquerors.

7. 'That Gilead, and that part of the Tribe of Manaſſes, 'which is beyond Jordan, tho' for a time they were ſubject 'to Iſhboſheth Saul's Son, 2 Sam. 2. 8, 9. yet for the future they 'ſhall be entirely under my Government. Ephraim, which was 'under the ſame Defection from me, ſhall hereafter be a main 'Support of my Kingdom; Judah, the principal Tribe of all 'my Subjects, according to Jacob's Prediction, Gen. 48. 19. is 'my Law-giver, out of which I chooſe my chief ſubordinate 'Magiſtrates and Miniſters of State.

8. 'The Moabites, after they are conquered by me, ſhall 'be reduced to a ſervile Condition, whom I ſhall make 'Slaves of to waſh my Feet, or to do ſuch other mean Drudge-'ries: And thou, O Philiſtia, be thou full of triumphal Ac-'clamations, to receive me as thy Lord and Conqueror.

9. Who will attend me, in my triumphal Entry, into Rabba that ſtrong City of the Ammonites, 2 Sam. 12. 25. who will joyn in my Cavalcade, when I go to take Poſſeſſion of Edom?

10. Certainly, O Lord, thou haſt not laid aſide thy uſual Protection of us; Wilt not thou, in thy former manner, head our Armies?

11. We beſeech thee, to vouchſafe us thy Aſſiſtance in all our Extremities; for we look upon all Human Aid to ſignifie nothing, in reſpect of thine.

12. For, whilſt we are ſo happy as to have the Divine Aſſiſtance, we doubt not, but we ſhall perform noble Exploits; 'tis his Power only, that can enable us to gain a Victory over our Enemies.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXI.

O Gracious Lord, I beſeech thee to lend a favourable Ear to my Prayer, which I put up to thee in my great Diſtreſs.

2. Altho' I am forced to take Shelter in the remote parts of my Kingdom, 2 Sam. 17. 22. yet thy omnipotent Power can afford me relief in this forlorn place, and tho' I be in never ſo diſconſolate a Condition.

3. Tho' my Misfortunes depreſs me never ſo low, yet thou art an impregnable Fortreſs to ſecure me againſt any Attempts, which ſhall be made againſt me; for, when I formerly truſted in thee, I always experienced thy Aſſiſtance for my Deliverance.

4. And tho' to my great Grief, in this time of my Exile, I am forced to be abſent from the publick place of thy Worſhip; yet after thou ſhalt be pleaſed to reſtore me, I will be ſo conſtant in my publick Devotions, that I may be ſaid to dwell in that ſacred Place: I will truſt to thee only for Succour, as Chickens do to the Wings of a Hen.

5. For I have always experienced thy Favour to me, in hearing the Requeſts of thy devout Servant, having formerly given to me the Inheritance of this Kingdom which I was not born unto.

6. And I doubt not, but, tho' I now live in Exile, thou wilt work my Reſtoration, and grant me a long and proſperous Reign afterwards.

7. He ſhall dwell before God for ever: O prepare thy loving Mercy and Faithfulneſs, that they may preſerve him.

8. So will I always ſing Praiſe unto thy Name: that I may daily perform my Vows.

MORNING PRAYER.

The LXII PSALM.

Nonne Deo.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm ſeems to be compoſed in the beginning of Abſalom's Rebellion, whilſt his Seditious Subjects were combining againſt him.

MY Soul truly waiteth ſtill upon God: for of him cometh my Salvation.

2. He verily is my Strength and my Salvation: he is my defence, ſo that I ſhall not greatly fall.

3. How long will ye imagine miſchief againſt every Man: ye ſhall be ſlain all the ſort of you: yea, as a tottering Wall ſhall ye be, and like a broken Hedge.

4. Their device is only how to put him out whom God will exalt: their delight is in Lies, they give good Words with their Mouth, but curſe with their Heart.

5. Nevertheleſs, my Soul, wait thou ſtill upon God: for my hope is in him.

6. He truly is my Strength and my Salvation: he is my Defence, ſo that I ſhall not fall.

7. In God is my Health and my Glory: the Rock of my Might, and in God is my Truſt.

8. O put your Truſt in him alway, ye People: pour out your Hearts before him, for God is our hope.

9. As for the Children of Men, they are but vanity: the Children of Men are deceitful upon the weights, they are altogether lighter than vanity it ſelf.

10. O truſt not in Wrong and Robbery, give not your ſelves unto vanity: if Riches increaſe, ſet not your Heart upon them.

11. God ſpake once, and twice I have alſo heard the ſame: That Power belongeth unto God;

12. And that thou, LORD, art merciful: for thou rewardeſt every Man according to his Work.

The

7. And that I may have again an opportunity of frequenting thy publick Worſhip, as long as I live; be pleaſed plentifully to beſtow thy Mercy upon me, and make good thy Promiſe to me for my Preſervation, and re-inſtating me in my Kingdom.

8. And this will be a freſh Obligation upon me, to praiſe thy gracious Majeſty, and to offer up thoſe Sacrifices and Oblations, which I have vowed unto thee upon my Reſtitution.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXII.

ALL my Expectations are grounded upon God alone, I expecting no Deliverance but from his Almighty Aid.

2. He is my Caſtle, to which I can with ſafety retire; whilſt he is pleaſed to take me into his Protection, tho' I may be expoſed to ſome ſmall Misfortunes, I do not fear any great Defeat by my Enemies.

3. How long will ye be contriving miſchievous Deſigns againſt good Men? God will not ſuffer you long to perſiſt in this Violence, for he ſhall bring you to as ſpeedy a Deſtruction, as a tottering Wall that ſhall ſoon fall down, and a broken Hedge which ſhall quickly be pulled up, and burnt.

4. Their only Aim is, to deprive me of the Regal Dignity, which God Almighty, notwithſtanding their ſpiteful Endeavours, will moſt certainly preſerve unto me; they gloſſing over their villanous Deſigns with plauſible Pretences, and under a ſhew of meaning me no harm.

5. But, O my Soul, do thou with ſilence wait for God's good time of Deliverance; for I have a good ground of hope in him, for Deliverance.

6. He is my Caſtle, to which I can with ſafety retire, whilſt he is pleaſed to take me into his Protection; tho' I may be expoſed to ſome ſmall Misfortunes, I do not fear any great Defeat from mine Enemies.

7. From God I expect my Deliverance and future Advancement; he is my Caſtle of defence, to ſecure me from any Aſſaults of mine Enemies.

8. And therefore I exhort all you good People, who have eſpouſed my Cauſe; do you, after my Example, renounce all Confidence in Secular Strength, and relie only upon the Divine Aid; beg his Aſſiſtance by devout Prayer, and he will not fail to afford us Relief.

9. Quit not your Intereſt with God, who is the trueſt Friend in the World, to depend upon the Aſſiſtance of Men, who are for the moſt part as deceitful, as a falſe pair of Scales; nay, if the lighteſt thing in the World were thrown into the Balance againſt them, it would be more weighty than they.

10. If you are deſtitute of the ordinary Conveniencies of Life, do not think to mend your Circumſtances by Fraud, Oppreſſion and Lying; or, tho' you are poſſeſſed of great Eſtates by honeſt means, you muſt not let them get poſſeſſion of your Affections, but be ready to part with them, when God calls for them back again.

11. God has frequently declared, as well by the courſe of his Providence, as by the Writings of his Prophets; That by his Power he diſpoſes of Human Affairs, contrary to Mens ordinary Expectations, and That future Events will come to paſs, not as they project, but as he pleaſes.

12. And That thou art not only a powerful God, to free good Men from the Oppreſſions which lie hard upon them, but That thou art likewiſe a merciful God, by laying up Rewards in ſtore for thy faithful Servants.

The LXIII. PSALM.

Deus, Deus meus.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title is, A Pſalm of David, when he was in the Wilderneſs of Judah. The Hiſtory of his Flight thither, under Saul's Perſecution, is recorded of him 1 Sam. 22. 5. where the Prophet Gad adviſes him, for his ſafety, to get him into the Land of Judah, and he departed and came into the Foreſt of Hareth.

O God, thou art my God: early will I ſeek thee.

2. My Soul thirſteth for thee, my Fleſh alſo longeth after thee: in a barren and dry Land where no Water is.

3. Thus have I looked for thee in Holineſs: that I might behold thy Power and Glory.

4. For thy loving Kindneſs is better than the Life it ſelf: my Lips ſhall praiſe thee.

5. As long as I live will I magnifie thee on this manner: and lift up my Hands in thy Name.

6. My Soul ſhall be ſatisfied, even as it were with marrow and fatneſs: when my Mouth praiſeth thee with joyful Lips.

7. Have I not remembred thee in my Bed: and thought upon thee when I was waking?

8. Becauſe thou haſt been my helper: therefore under the ſhadow of thy Wings will I rejoyce.

9. My Soul hangeth upon thee: thy right Hand hath upholden me.

10. Theſe alſo that ſeek the hurt of my Soul: they ſhall go under the Earth.

11. Let them fall upon the edge of the Sword: that they may be a portion for Foxes.

12. But the King ſhall rejoyce in God; all they alſo that ſwear by him, ſhall be commended: for the Mouth of them that ſpeak Lies ſhall be ſtopped.

The LXIV. PSALM.

Exaudi Deus.

¶¶ This, with probability, was thought to be written when David was grown into Diſgrace with Saul, and had departed from his Court; ſome of the Jews think it was prophetically written of Daniel but they do not bring ſufficient Reaſons to ſupport that Fancy.

HEar my Voice, O God, in my Prayer: preſerve my Life from fear of the Enemy.

2. Hide me from the gathering together of the froward: and from the Inſurrection of wicked Doers.

3. Who have whet their Tongue like a Sword: and ſhoot out their Arrows, even bitter Words.

4. That

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXIII.

O Gracious God, who haſt all my Life-long been an indulgent Father to me, I will addreſs myſelf to thee early, making my Application to thee before any thing elſe.

2. I have as violent a Thirſt upon me, to be in a condition of partaking again in thy publick Worſhip, as is cauſed in me by the dry parched Wilderneſs, I am now forced to hide myſelf in.

3. With the like eagerneſs have I expected to wait upon thee again, near thy Holineſs or Sanctuary, and that I may behold thy Ark, where thy majeſtick Power and Glory does moſt eminently reſide.

4. For thy Kindneſs and Favour, wherewith thou doſt befriend the Nation of the Jews, by reſiding among them, is a more valuable Bleſſing than Life itſelf; and, when thou art pleaſed to recal me from my Exile, I will thankfully acknowledge thy Favours in the publick Congregation.

5. And this I will do continually unto my Lifes end, whenever I find myſelf under any Difficulties, addreſſing myſelf to thee for help.

6. The ſweeteſt Marrow, and the moſt delicious Oil, is not ſo pleaſant to others, as ſinging Praiſes to Thee is to me.

7. Was I not uſed to make thee the Subject of my Meditations, both a-Bed and Up?

8. I am conſcious, what a conſtant Aſſiſtance thou haſt all along afforded me, in my Troubles; therefore I have the better Aſſurance, that the Wings of thy providential Care ſhall defend me from all Harm.

9. My Soul hangs upon thee, as a Child that walks along with its Parent, thy Hand holding me up to keep me from falling, and that I may be able to go thy Pace.

10. But for my Enemies, thou art ſo far from upholding them, that they ſhall fall not only to the Ground, but into their Graves.

11. They ſhall be deſtroyed by the Sword in Battle, 1 Sam. 31. and their Carcaſes ſhall be devoured by the wild Beaſts of the Field.

12. Then ſhall God exalt me to the Kingdom, which he has promiſed me, with great Joy and Triumph; when all they that ſwear Allegiance to me ſhall be amply rewarded for their Duty; but the Mouth of Saul's perjured Courtiers ſhall be ſo ſtopped, that they ſhall not be able to do further miſchief, by their falſe Informations againſt innocent Men.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXIV.

O Lord, I addreſs my earneſt Prayers to thee for thy Aſſiſtance; do thou preſerve me from my wicked Adverſaries who have a deſign upon my Life.

2. Defend me from the Cabals, and Plots, contrived againſt me by Saul's Partizans; and from the open force, which they are now preparing againſt me.

3. They have not, as yet, 'tis true, drawn the Sword againſt me; But they have whet their Tongues ſharper than any Weapons, to report baſe Calumnies of me, to take away my Reputation; and they ſhoot out Slanders of me, which pierce me more than their Arrows would;

4. That

4. That they may privily ſhoot at him that is perfect: ſuddenly do they hit him, and fear not.

5. They encourage themſelves in Miſchief: and commune among themſelves, how they may lay Snares, and ſay that no Man ſhall ſee them.

6. They imagine Wickedneſs and practiſe it: that they keep ſecret among themſelves, every Man in the deep of his Heart.

7. But God ſhall ſuddenly ſhoot at them with a ſwift Arrow: that they ſhall be wounded.

8. Yea, their own Tongues ſhall make them fall: inſomuch that whoſo ſeeth them ſhall laugh them to ſcorn.

9. And all Men that ſee it, ſhall ſay, This hath God done: for they ſhall perceive, that it is his Work.

10. The Righteous ſhall rejoyce in the LORD, and put his truſt in him: and all they that are true of Heart ſhall be glad.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LXV. PSALM.

Te decet hymnus.

¶ ¶ It is thought that this Pſalm was compoſed by David after ſome great Drought, and does probably relate to the three Years Famine, which followed ſome time after the Rebellion of Abſalom, recorded 2 Sam. 21. which being removed by plentiful Showers of Rain, the Pſalmiſt praiſes the Goodneſs of God for it in this Hymn.

THou, O God, art praiſed in Sion: and unto thee ſhall the Vow be performed [in Jeruſalem.]

2. Thou that heareſt the Prayer: unto thee ſhall all Fleſh come.

3. My miſdeeds prevail againſt me: O be thou merciful unto our Sins.

4. Bleſſed is the Man whom thou chooſeſt, and receiveſt unto thee: he ſhall dwell in thy Court, and ſhall be ſatisfied with the Pleaſures of thy Houſe, even of thy holy Temple.

5. Thou ſhalt ſhew us wonderful things in thy Righteouſneſs, O God of our Salvation: thou that art the hope of all the ends of the Earth, and of them that remain in the broad Sea.

6. Who in his Strength ſetteth faſt the Mountains: and is girded about with Power.

7. Who

4. That they may bring into trouble honeſt and innocent Men, wounding them by vile Slanders, which they are not aware of.

5. They every day grow more and more hardned in their Falſeneſs, and Impudence; encouraging one another in their wicked Trade of Defamation, ſaying, that God does not trouble himſelf with theſe Matters.

6. They put themſelves to a great deal of expence of Thought, for ſomething ſingularly wicked; and, when they have found it out, they ſet themſelves greedily to put it in practice, and that too with a great deal of Cunning and Secrecy.

7. But God ſhall blaſt their wicked Deſigns, by a more ſagacious reach of his Providence; which ſhall have a more certain Effect, than all their Contrivances, and ſhall end in their overthrow.

8. Yea, their own malicious Tongues, by which they deſigned miſchief to others, ſhall occaſion their own downfal; which wretched Diſappointment ſhall expoſe them to the greateſt Diſgrace.

9. But as for good and holy Men, they ſhall have occaſion to magnifie and adore the good Providence of God, which ſhall be diſcovered in their Deliverance, and for the prevailing of honeſt Simplicity above unrighteous Cunning.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXV.

THou haſt particular Praiſes addreſſed to thee in Mount Sion, where is ſeated the Ark of thy Tabernacle, and where our publick Devotion is performed; and the whole City of Jeruſalem ſhall eccho with the Thankſgivings which ſhall be paid to thee there.

4. Thy readineſs to relieve thy devout Worſhippers in their diſtreſs, ſhall give encouragement to all Nations of the World, to apply to thee for help under their Calamities.

3. Every one of us ought to acknowledge, that our Sins are of that weight, that they are a ſufficient Obſtacle to hinder God's Favours being ſhewn to us; but thou art a merciful God which alloweſt Pardon upon ſincere Repentance, to the greateſt Offences.

4. But, notwithſtanding the many Offences which we have all, the very beſt of us, committed againſt thee, what a great degree of Happineſs doſt thou vouchſafe us, to allow us the Favour of partaking in thy publick Worſhip, and addreſſing our ſelves to thee in the Courts of the Tabernacle, and to have our Souls refreſhed with the Sacred Praiſes, which thou art celebrated with in thy holy Houſe?

5. Thou art remarkably famous, for thy good Providence in working ſignal Deliverances, of Perſons in trouble among us thy choſen People, and for not only confining thy Goodneſs to us, but by the extending it to Perſons in the remoteſt parts of the Earth, even thoſe that dwell in the Iſlands which are encompaſſed by the Ocean.

6. For it is Thou, whoſe vaſt Power gave the Mountains ſuch a Firmitude, as not to be removed by the ſtrongeſt Hurricanes and Earthquakes; thy Omnipotence encompaſſes thee with an uncontroulable Authority over all thy Creatures, and ſits cloſe about thee, as the Armour about a great Warrior.

7. For

7. Who ſtilleth the raging of the Sea: and the noiſe of his Waves, and the madneſs of the People.

8. They alſo that dwell in the uttermoſt parts of the Earth, ſhall be afraid at thy Tokens: thou that makeſt the out-goings of the Morning and Evening to praiſe thee.

9. Thou viſiteſt the Earth, and bleſſeth it: thou makeſt it very plenteous.

10. The River of God is full of Water: thou prepareſt their Corn, for ſo thou provideſt for the Earth.

11. Thou watereſt her Furrows, thou ſendeſt Rain into the little Valleys thereof: thou makeſt it ſoft with the drops of Rain, and bleſſeſt the increaſe of it.

12. Thou crowneſt the Year with thy Goodneſs: and thy Clouds drop Fatneſs.

13. They ſhall drop upon the dwellings of the Wilderneſs: and the little Hills ſhall rejoyce on every ſide.

14. The Folds ſhall be full of Sheep: the Valleys alſo ſhall ſtand ſo thick with Corn, that they ſhall laugh and ſing.

The LXVI. PSALM.

Jubilate Deo.

¶ ¶ The Title does not inform us, who this Pſalm was compoſed by; ſome will have it to be wrote, after the Captivity: But it is moſt probable it had David for its Author, being joyned with the reſt of his Pſalms which lie in this part of the Book, eſpecially ſince the antient Collectors have aſcribed it to no one elſe. If it was his, it was written ſoon after his coming to the Throne, when the Philiſtines had lately, viz. during Saul's Reign, made ſuch miſerable Ravages in his Country, 1 Sam. cap. 14. & cap. 17.

O Be joyful in God, all ye Lands: ſing Praiſes unto the Honour of his Name, make his Praiſe to be glorious.

2. Say unto God, O how wonderful art thou in thy Works: through the greatneſs of thy Power ſhall thine Enemies be found Liars unto thee.

3. For all the World ſhall Worſhip thee: ſing of thee, and praiſe thy Name.

4. O come hither and behold the Works of God: how wonderful he is in his doing toward the Children of Men.

5. He turned the Sea into dry Land: ſo that they went through the Water on Foot; there did we rejoyce thereof.

6. He ruleth with his Power for ever, his Eyes behold the People: and ſuch as will not believe, ſhall not be able to exalt themſelves.

7. O praiſe our God, ye People: and make the Voice of his Praiſe be heard;

8. Who

7. For it is Thou, who doſt quiet the boiſterous Billows of the Ocean, when they rage never ſo furiouſly, and turn the greateſt Storm into a Calm at thy Pleaſure; thou doſt appeaſe the moſt turbulent Sedition of the People, and reſtore publick Peace after inteſtine Diſtractions.

8. All the barbarous Inhabitants of the remote parts of the World ſhall be put into Conſternation, when they obſerve the unuſual Phænomena and Appearances in Nature, ſuch as Comets, Eclipſes and Earthquakes; nay the conſtant Revolutions of the Sun, Moon, and other heavenly Bodies, ſhall extort Adoration from them, to thee the great Creator.

9. Nay further, we have learned by our great Experience, what a kind Relief thou haſt afforded to the Earth, which was ſcorched by ſo long a Drought, ſending a ſeaſonable Rain, cauſing it plentifully to bring forth its Fruits, after ſo great a Barrenneſs.

10. God's River, the great Celeſtial Magazine and Repoſitory of Waters, from whence the Rains are ſupplied, overflows with Water; from hence thou ſendeſt down ſeaſonable Showers, to make the Corn grow, for the nouriſhment of the Inhabitants of the Earth.

11. Thou makeſt the Rain to ſtagnate, in all the little Furrows and Declivities thereof; thou doſt ſoften all the hard Clods of the Ground with a fatning Moiſture; and doſt afford it thy Bleſſing, to bring forth a happy increaſe.

12. 'Tis thy Divine Bounty, which encircles the Earth with beautiful Flowers, and a pleaſant Verdure, as it were with a Garland in the Spring of the Year; it is thou, who ſendeſt that unctuous moiſture which deſcendeth out of the Clouds, which affords ſo ſucceſsful a Growth to all the vegetable World.

13. Even the heathy and barren parts of the Wilderneſs, ſhall in ſome meaſure be made fruitful, as far as their Soil is capable thereof, by the late gracious Rain; and even the ſides of the craggy Rocks, ſhall have a new Herbage ſpring upon them, and look pleaſant with a beautiful Green.

14. The Paſtures ſhall be ſo crowded with Flocks of Sheep, that they ſhall look as if they had Garments of Wool upon them; and all the Valleys ſhall bring forth ſuch a prodigious Increaſe of Corn, that they ſhall rejoyce and triumph with the unuſual Fertility.

Paraphraſe on Pſal LXVI.

O Ye Inhabitants of all Regions of the World, ſing joyful Songs to the Honour of the great JEHOVAH; celebrate his glorious Name, and renowned Fame.

2 Saying, O Lord God of Iſrael, what ſignal Works haſt thou done for the Preſervation of thy People, of what a vaſt Extent is the Amplitude of thy Power? How haſt thou given the Lie to thy Enemies, who defied thy Power to interpoſe itſelf in our behalf?

3. All foreign Countries, when they ſhall hear of this ſo remarkable a Deliverance wrought by thee, ſhall be willing to take ſhare in thy Worſhip, and to adore and Praiſe thy holy Name.

4. You Inhabitants of foreign Countries, come into Judea, or ſearch into the Annals of our Hiſtory, and you will be ſurprized to hear of thoſe great Miracles, which God Almighty himſelf has been pleaſed to do, for us Men of this Country.

5. God, for our ſake, and to procure us a paſſage through the Red-Sea, made the Waters on each ſide to retire, leaving us the dry Sands of the bottom of the Sea to walk upon; and this afforded our Forefathers a great occaſion of rejoycing.

6. And it muſt be ſuppoſed, that God preſerveth the ſame Authority over the Heathen Nations as he did then, making Obſervation what Deſigns they are driving on, to the prejudice of his Servants; for God will not ſuffer theſe unbelieving Idolaters, to gain the Dominion over his faithful People.

7. O therefore ye Nations, leave off your Superſtitions and Idolatry, and joyn with us in the Worſhip of the true God; that, in a mutual Conſort of all our Voices, we may make the Praiſes of our great JEHOVAH reſound the more.

8. Who holdeth our Soul in Life: and ſuffereth not our Feet to ſlip.
9. For thou, O God, haſt provided us: thou alſo haſt tried us, like as Silver is tried.
10. Thou broughteſt us into the Snare: and laid Trouble upon our Loins.
11. Thou ſufferedſt Men to ride over our Heads: we went through Fire and Water, and thou broughteſt us out into a wealthy Place.
12. I will go into thine Houſe with Burnt-Offerings: and will pay thee my Vows, which I promiſed with my Lips, and ſpake with my Mouth, when I was in Trouble.
13. I will offer unto thee fat Burnt-Sacrifices, with the Incenſe of Rams: I will offer Bullocks and Goats.
14. O come hither, and hearken, all ye that fear God: and I will tell you what he hath done for my Soul.
15. I called unto him with my Mouth: and gave him Praiſes with my Tongue.
16. If I incline unto wickedneſs with mine Heart: the LORD will not hear me.
17. But God hath heard me: and conſidered the Voice of my Prayer.
18. Praiſed be God, who hath not caſt out my Prayer: nor turned his Mercy from me.

The LXVIII. PSALM.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm, tho' it bears the Name of David in the Greek and Latin Verſions, was probably written after the Captivity by Eſdras, or ſome other inſpired Perſon, and is a Propheſie of the Propagation of the Goſpel.

GOD be merciful unto us, and bleſs us: and ſhew us the light of his Countenance, [and be merciful unto us;]
2. That thy way may be known upon Earth: thy ſaving Health among all Nations.
3. Let the People praiſe thee, O God: yea, let all the People praiſe thee.
4. O let the Nations rejoyce and be glad: for thou ſhalt judge the Folk Righteouſly, and govern the Nations upon Earth.
5. Let the People praiſe thee, O God: let all the People praiſe thee.
6. Then ſhall the earth bring forth her Increaſe: and God, even our own God, ſhall give us his Bleſſing.
7. God

8. That we may ſing Praiſes to that great God, whoſe continual Converſation keeps us from ſinking into nothing; whoſe good Providence defends us from all outward Accidents which may befal us; and, in our political State, who bears up our Spirits under national Calamities, and ſo directs our Counſels, that we may give the Enemy no great Advantage over us.

9. Indeed God has ſuffered ſometimes our Enemies to prevail againſt us; but this is not an Argument of his forſaking us, but of his great Love towards us; being willing to better us by theſe Afflictions, as a Refiner purges the Droſs from his Metal by the Fire.

10. Thou didſt, for ſome time, when the Philiſtines were ſuperior to us, in the Battles which were fought between us, ſuffer us to be catch'd in a Gin as wild Beaſts are, our Loins being as it were compaſſed round with an iron-Chain, as the Loins of thoſe Creatures are, upon the ſpringing of the Trap which is ſet for them.

11. Thou ſuffereſt our Enemies to ride upon us, as they would do upon Horſes and Aſſes; we have gone through Fire, i. e. Calamities of a greater ſize: and Water, i. e. Misfortunes of a leſſer magnitude; but at laſt thou haſt been pleaſed, after this long fatiguing March, to bring us to a very fruitful Paſture, a State of Liberty after long Oppreſſion.

12. Having therefore received ſo great a Benefit from God, I at the head of my People will go to God's Houſe to offer up to him a Sacrifice for this publick Bleſſing, and to diſcharge there my Vow, which in the time of my trouble I made to him.

13. I will make to thee a Burnt-offering, not of poor lean Cattle, but of the choiceſt of every kind I can procure, fat Rams, Bullocks and Goats.

14. O all ye People of Iſrael, hearken to what I have now to propoſe to you; I will inform you, what gracious Inſtances of the Divine Favour God has been pleaſed to afford me.

15. I put up my Petitions to him for Deliverance from my Misfortunes, which he preſently anſwered, and turned my Addreſſes into Thankſgivings.

16. Which, beſide granting my requeſt, is another very great Inſtance of his Goodneſs to me, that herein I have an Opportunity of vindicating my Innocency, which was aſperſed by vile Slanders; for it is demonſtration, that, if I was ſo wicked as they would paint me out, God would not hear my Prayers.

17. But, in full confutation of their evil Suggeſtions, God hath vouchſafed a plenary Grant of all that I requeſted of him.

18. Thanks to my gracious God, for that he hath not rejected my Petition, but hath granted my deſires; not out of any Merit of mine, but out of his ſingular Mercy and Goodneſs.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXVII.

MY Prayer is, that God with his Mercy and Kindneſs would continually bleſs and protect our Nation; and that he would not look upon us, as formerly in his Anger, as it were out of a Cloud, but that he would view us with a ſerene and pleaſant Countenance, and as it were with the Sunſhine of his Favour.

2. That thy true Religion may be propagated all over the World, and that every Nation may receive the glad Tidings of their Salvation.

3. Let not the Praiſe, and Worſhip, of thee the true God, be confined only to Judea; but let the Inhabitants of every Nation come in, with us, to adore thee.

4. Nay, the very Heathen Nations have for their part the greateſt reaſon to exult and triumph, and to praiſe the Goodneſs of God; for he is coming to govern them by righteous and good Laws, who were before under the Government of Satan, and had nothing to guide them, but ſome few Laws and Tendencies of Nature, or ſome Precepts of an old Tradition, which are now almoſt obliterated.

5. Let therefore all the Heathen Nations, to whom thou art reaching out ſo great a Benefit, ſing to thy Praiſe; let every Infidel People teſtifie their Joy, and Gratitude, in Thankſgivings to thee.

6. Nay, we ſeem to ſee the happy times of the Meſſias his Reign; the Earth hath brought forth her Increaſe (as the Hebrew reads it) fruitful Seaſons and proſperous Years attend that glorious Time; and God, who is our peculiar God, ſhall diſtinguiſh us by a particular Mark of his Favour, ſome time or other, under this great and holy Government.

7. God

℣. God ſhall bleſs us: and all the ends of the World ſhall fear him.

MORNING PRAYER.

The LXVIII. PSALM.

Exurgat Deus.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm bears the Title of David, and was without all doubt written by him. The occaſion of writing it, moſt probably, was ſome ſignal Victories which he obtained, towards the beginning of his Reign, over the Philiſtines, 2 Sam. 19. 23. and which he attributed to the preſence of God's Ark, which he ſettled in Mount Sion, 1 Sam. 7. 1.

LET God ariſe, and let his Enemies be ſcattered: let them alſo that hate him, flee before him.

2. Like as the Smoke vaniſheth, ſo ſhalt thou drive them away: and like as Wax melteth at the Fire, ſo let the Ungodly periſh at the preſence of God.

3. But let the Righteous be glad, and rejoyce before God: let them alſo be merry and joyful.

4. O ſing unto God, and ſing Praiſes unto his Name, magnifie him that rideth over the Heavens, as it were upon an Horſe; praiſe him in his Name, {Yea, Jah} and rejoyce before him.

5. He is a Father of the Fatherleſs; and defendeth the Cauſe of the Widows: even God in his holy Habitation.

6. He is the God that maketh Men to be of one mind in an Houſe, and bringeth the Priſoners out of Captivity: but letteth the runnagates continue in ſcarceneſs.

7. O God, when thou wenteſt forth before the People: when thou wenteſt through the Wilderneſs,

8. The Earth ſhook, and the Heavens dropped at the preſence of God: even as Sinai alſo was moved at the preſence of God, who is the God of Iſrael.

9. Thou, O God, ſenteſt a gracious Rain upon thine Inheritance: and refreſhedſt it when it was weary.

10. Thy Congregation ſhall dwell therein: for thou, O God, haſt of thy goodneſs prepared for the Poor.

11. The LORD gave the Word: great was the company of the Preachers.

12. Kings

7. God ſhall favour us with moſt ſignal Bleſſings; and all the Nations of the World ſhall worſhip him by the Exerciſe of the true Religion.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXVIII.

LET our great God exert his Power, which he has ſuffered as it were to lie ſleeping by him, let him riſe up at laſt in his Wrath, to take Vengeance upon the Enemies of his People; and, at his appearing on our ſide, all our Adverſaries ſhall run away, not daring to abide one Shock from us.

2. Let their Army be as much diſperſed, as the parts of Smoke are diſſipated one from another, and at laſt the ſight of it as much vaniſhed and loſt: Let thy appearing on our ſide make their Courage melt away, as the Wax melts away, and leſſens, before the ſcorching-heat of the Sun.

3. But as for thy pious Servants, let them have an opportunity of paying a publick Thankſgiving to Almighty God, for a Victory over their Enemies.

4. Let us ſing Songs of Victory to the great God, for this is his Triumph; he does not, like mortal Conquerors, make his Proceſſion riding upon a Horſe, but upon the higheſt Heavens: Praiſe him, not with any pompous Title, as Men upon this occaſion affect, but by calling him by his own Name JEHOVAH, which is above all other honourable Compellations; and devoutly worſhip him, which is the greateſt Service we can pay him.

5. He is a God, who, tho' dwelling in the higheſt Heaven, has vouchſafed to take to himſelf an eſpecial place of reſidence here upon Earth; yea, he is withal pleaſed to do all the kind Offices for his diſtreſſed Creatures, ſuccouring the Fatherleſs Children, and defending helpleſs Widows, from injurious Oppreſſors.

6. This is that great God, who maketh Concord in a Family, and has in good meaſure quieted the Factions which were raiſed in Saul's Reign: who has brought me from a ſtate of Thraldom under Saul's Perſecution, knocking off my Shackles and placing me upon a Throne: but as for ſuch, who by their wicked Actions have turned deſerters of God's Holy Laws, he is ſo far from advancing or aſſiſting them, that he leaves them to ſtarve in penury, as many of Saul's wicked Informers now do.

7. But the greateſt demonſtration of thy Love to thy People Iſrael was ſhewn, when thou didſt conduct our fore-Fathers through the Wilderneſs, in a cloudy Pillar by Day, and in a Pillar of Fire by Night, Exod. 13. 21.

8. And, when thou didſt deſcend from Heaven to give thy Divine Law to thy Servant Moſes, the Bowels of the Earth trembled with internal Convulſions, the Heavens rung with Peals of Thunder, and were diſſolved into Lightning and Rain; the Mountain Sinai ſhook with ſuch violent Concuſſions, as if it was going to move out of its Place, at the appearance of the great God of Iſrael.

9. Thou art the ſame gracious God, who in our fore-Fathers great Neceſſity and want of Food, didſt ſend conſtantly ſhowers of Manna, to refreſh and ſuſtain them in their weary march in the Wilderneſs, Exod. 16. 4.

10. Which made even that barren place, to be a comfortable Habitation for thy choſen People; thy gracious Bounty providing for thy diſtreſſed Servants, who would otherwiſe have been in want of neceſſary Subſiſtence, which the nature of that Soil could not have afforded them.

11. Thou did but ſpeak the Word, and they gained a Victory over their Enemies; and the Women, whoſe cuſtom it was to celebrate the Victories, Exod. 15. 23. met them with triumphal Songs, expreſſing themſelves after this manner.

12. Kings

12. Kings with their Armies did flee, and were diſcomfited: and they of the Houſhold divided the Spoil.

13. Though ye have lien among the Pots, yet ſhall ye be as the Wings of a Dove: that is covered with ſilver Wings, and her Feathers like Gold.

14. When the Almighty ſcattered Kings for their ſake: then were they as white as Snow in Salmon.

15. As the Hill of Baſan, ſo is God's Hill: even an high Hill, as the Hill of Baſan.

16. Why hop ye ſo, ye high Hills? this is God's Hill, in the which it pleaſeth him to dwell: yea, the LORD will abide in it for ever.

17. The Chariots of God are twenty thouſand, even thouſands of Angels: and the LORD is among them, as in the holy Place of Sinai.

18. Thou art gone up on high, thou haſt led Captivity Captive, and received Gifts for Men: yea, even for thine Enemies. that the LORD God might dwell among them.

19. Praiſed be the LORD daily: even the God who helpeth us, and poureth his Benefits upon us.

20. He is our God, even the God of whom cometh Salvation: God is the LORD, by whom we eſcape Death.

21. God ſhall wound the Head of his Enemies: and the hairy Scalp of ſuch a one as goeth on ſtill in his Wickedneſs.

22. The LORD hath ſaid, I will bring my People again, as I did from Baſan: mine own will I bring again, as I did ſome time from the deep of the Sea.

23. That thy Foot may be dipped in the Blood of thine Enemies: and that the Tongue of thy Dogs may be red through the ſame.

24. It is well ſeen, O God, how thou goeſt: how thou my God and King goeſt in the Sanctuary.

25. The Singers go before, the Minſtrels follow after: in the midſt are the Damſels playing with the Timbrels.

26. Give

12. 'Kings with their great Armies did flie before the Face 'of Joſhua, and his Troops, Joſh. 10. 16. 11. 8. and the Wo- 'men and Children, which remained in the Tent, came out 'after the Battel to gather up the Spoil, which was left in the 'Field, Numb. 31. 8.

13. 'Tho' ye have formerly been reduced to the loweſt de- 'gree of drudgery, making Bricks and Pots in ſmoky Kilns; 'yet hereafter ye ſhall appear in a bright and ſplendid Equi- 'page, gliſtering like the Wings of a Dove, whoſe Feathers 'ſhine with a beautiful intermixture of Gold and Silver.

14. 'When God was pleaſed, by the interpoſition of his 'Power, to grant his People a Victory over Og and Sehon and 'other Kings, he raiſed up the Credit and Honour of his Peo- 'ple, and made them to look as glorious in the ſight of their 'Neighbours, as the ſnowy Head of Salmon gliſters, by the 'reflection of the Sun-Beams.

15. But by the way, let not Baſan in a peculiar manner boaſt itſelf for its proud riſings; Mount Sion itſelf, where God's Tabernacle is now placed, is a noble Hill likewiſe, and not inferior to Baſan.

16. But, O you Baſan and Salmon, why ſhould you ſo dance and triumphantly Joy, as if you were the only remarkable Hills on this ſide the World? Sion is a much more glorious Hill, in which God, by the ſeating of his Tabernacle there, has made the place of his particular Reſidence, and will continue it there till the coming of the Meſſias.

17. As Princes uſually are attended with a multitude of Chariots and Horſemen, ſo the Attendants of Almighty God, in his place of Reſidence in Mount Sion, are Myriads of Angels (or as the Hebrew expreſſes it) briſk and florid Spirits of the moſt bright and flaming Order in Heaven; and the Divine Preſence is now as much actually in Sion, as it was formerly in Sinai.

18. Thou didſt aſcend up this holy Hill, when the Ark was brought thither, as a triumphing General returns home to his own City; the Captives which we have taken in this War, that was proſpered by thy Aſſiſtance, were led or drawn as it were, after thy Chariot; it was thou that didſt receive the Gifts which were made for the Ranſom of the Priſoners Lives, and who didſt put the Enemies under Contribution; that Peace being eſtabliſh'd all a-round, the Lord God might come to take up a quiet Habitation in this place.

19. Therefore continual Thanks be given to our great God, who not only aſſiſteth us in our Wars, but is continually loading us with freſh Favours of every kind.

20. He is the peculiar tutelar God of our Nation, who preſerves our State from all Dangers that may threaten it; he is the great JEHOVAH, the only true God, who interpoſes in our behalf, and keeps us from being conquered and ſlain by our Enemies.

21. God, who fights for us, ſhall ſtrike our Enemies the Philiſtines with a mortal Blow upon the Head, ſo entirely defeating them, that they ſhall never again give us diſturbance; he ſhall cut through the hairy Pate of thoſe fierce Idolaters, and utterly deſtroy them.

22. Nay, God himſelf hath declared his Purpoſe of defending us, uttering theſe Words; 'I will always have 'a tender Care to protect my People Iſrael, I will as carefully 'guard them from their Enemies, as I formerly did defend 'them from the Power of Og King of Baſan; I will in- 'terpoſe the ſame omnipotent Power in their behalf, as I did 'when I made them paſs through the Red-Sea.

23. 'For I do deſign to give thee, O David, an abſolute 'Victory over thy Enemies, making thy Feet to wade in 'their Blood in the Field of Battle, and ſuffering the Dogs, 'that follow the Army, afterwards to lick it up.

24. It was a glorious ſight to behold, with what Pomp and Triumph thy holy Ark was introduced lately into the Sanctuary.

25. Firſt went part of the Levites ſinging delightful Hymns to thy Honour; another part of them cloſed the Rear, playing upon variety of inſtrumental Muſick; and between theſe two, a ſelect Company of Virgins playing with Timbrels, and the Song which was then ſung to thy Honour was this;

26. Give thanks, O Iſrael, unto God the Lord in the Congregations: from the ground of the Heart.

27. There is little Benjamin their Ruler, and the Princes of Juda their Counſel: the Princes of Zebulon, and the Princes of Nephthali.

28. Thy God hath ſent forth Strength for thee: ſtabliſh the thing, O God, that thou haſt wrought in us,

29. For thy Temples ſake at Jeruſalem: ſo ſhall Kings bring Preſents unto thee.

30. When the company of the Spear-Men and multitude of the Mighty are ſcattered abroad among the Beaſts of the People, ſo that they humbly bring pieces of Silver: and when he hath ſcattered the People that delight in War,

31. Then ſhall the Princes come out of Egypt: the Morians Land ſhall ſoon ſtretch out her Hands unto God.

32. Sing unto God, O ye Kingdoms of the Earth: O ſing Praiſes unto the LORD;

33. Who ſitteth in the Heavens over all from the beginning: Lo, he doth ſend out his Voice, yea, and that a mighty Voice.

34. Aſcribe ye the Power to God over Iſrael: his Worſhip and Strength is in the Clouds.

35. O God, wonderful art thou in thy Holy Places: even the God of Iſrael; he will give Strength and Power unto his People; bleſſed be God.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LXIX PSALM.

Salvum me fac.

¶ This is a Pſalm of David compoſed in ſome time of very great Trouble, moſt probably in the time of Abſalom's Rebellion, and has relation to his Misfortunes at that time; but ſome things therein occur, which have a particular reference to the Sufferings of Chriſt, and his Crucifiers.

SAve me, O God: for the Waters are come in even unto my Soul.

2. I ſtick faſt in the deep Mire, where no ground is: I am come into deep Waters, ſo that the Floods run over me.

3. I am weary of crying, my Throat is dry: my Sight faileth me for waiting ſo long upon my God.

4. They that hate me without a Cauſe, are more than the Hairs of my Head: they that are mine Enemies, and would deſtroy me guiltleſs, are mighty. 5. I

26. 'O Iſrael! pay everlaſting Thanks to the great JEHOVAH, the only true God, in the ſacred Aſſembly of his devout Servants; and this not ſuperficially, and as matter of form, but from the very bottom of your Heart.

27. 'To make up this noble Congregation, all the Tribes of Iſrael aſcend the ſacred Hill of Sion; and among theſe the Tribe of Benjamin, Jacob's youngeſt Son, that God was pleaſed to grace firſt with the Monarchy of Iſrael; there is the Tribe of Judah, out of whom the chief Nobility and great Council of our Nation are choſen, (to ſay nothing of my Advancement therefrom;) there were likewiſe the Chiefs even of the Tribes the moſt remotely diſtant from Jeruſalem, Zebulon and Nephthali.

28. O Iſrael, God has commanded in freſh Succours in order to thy Aſſiſtance; and we beſeech thee, O God, to perfect our Conqueſt over our Enemies, which by thy Aid we have ſo ſucceſsfully begun.

29. Becauſe of thy Ark and Tabernacles ſake, which are ſeated at Jeruſalem, and where thou doſt vouchſafe us thy more eſpecial Preſence, we are in good hopes, that, upon this account, thou wilt grant us now a more particular Succeſs in our Wars; ſo that Captive-Kings ſhall offer up Preſents, at thy Altar, for their Ranſom.

30. For when their ſtrong Bodies of Spear Men, and other Battalions, ſhall be totally routed, and many of them deſtroyed by the fierce Boors and Country-men, in their Flight; when others, that are ſaved alive, ſhall come in humble manner, and pay ſo many pieces of Silver for their Redemption; and when this People, who have ſo long delighted in War, and been plaguing us with it, ſhall have their fill of it, and be reduced to ſuch a degree of Weakneſs, as it ſhall not be in their Power, any more, to injure their harmleſs Neighbours;

31. Then ſhall Ægypt, and other Foreign Countries, ſend their Princes in embaſſy, to congratulate the happy Succeſſes of this Crown; and even Perſons from the Land of the Moors, or Æthiopians, ſhall come hither to join in the Worſhip, with us, of our God.

32. O all ye Nations of the World, ſing Praiſes to our God; for time will come, under the Kingdom of the Meſſias, that you ſhall be admitted to the Worſhip of the true God.

33 For he, from his firſt Creation of all things, was their Soveraign Lord, and had an abſolute Authority over them: And when he ſpeaks with his Thunder, any one may obſerve, what Power he is ſurrounded with.

34. You ought to praiſe and adore the Almighty Power of God, if it were only for his defence of the Jewiſh Nation by ſo many miraculous Preſervations; but his glorious Preſence is only diſcover'd to the Angels and Bleſſed Spirits in Heaven.

35. But even here on Earth our God, JEHOVAH, reveals a wonderful degree of his Majeſty, in his Holy Sanctuary; diſplaying his Glory by his Shechinah; and ſending out relief to his People when they are in diſtreſs; for ever Bleſſed be his Holy Name for ſo great a favour.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXIX.

HElp, help my gracious God, and ſave thy periſhing Servant; for ſuch a violent torrent of Water has broke in upon me, as riſes above my Head, and puts me in danger of being drowned.

2. My Feet ſtick ſo faſt, that I cannot move them, in a deep Mud which I can find no bottom of, and when the Flood comes in, it flows over me, I not being able to diſengage myſelf, and to ſwim away with the Stream.

3. I am tired with ſo long calling unto thee for aſſiſtance; my Throat is dry, all the moiſture thereof being ſpent with ſo long crying out: I have looked up to thee ſo long for help, that mine Eyes ſeem'd to have loſt their Sight, by being ſo long turned upwards and fixed upon one Object.

4. The Hairs of my Head are not ſo numerous, but the number of my cauſeleſs Enemies exceed them: and tho' my Cauſe be never ſo Juſt, my Intereſt leſſens, and the Power of my Enemies is enlarged.

5. I paid them the things that I never took: God, thou knoweſt my ſimpleneſs, and my faults are not hid from thee.

6. Let not them that truſt in thee, O LORD God of Hoſts, be aſhamed, for my Cauſe: let not thoſe that ſeek thee be confounded through me, O Lord God of Iſrael.

7. And why? for thy ſake have I ſuffered Reproof: Shame hath covered my Face.

8. I am become a ſtranger unto my Brethren: even an alien unto my Mothers Children.

9. For the Zeal of thine Houſe hath even eaten me: and the rebukes of them that rebuked thee, are faln upon me.

10. I wept and chaſtened my ſelf with faſting: and that was turned to my reproof.

11. I put on Sack-cloth alſo: and they jeſted upon me.

12. They that ſit in the Gate ſpeak againſt me: and the Drunkards make Songs upon me.

13. But, LORD, I make my Prayer unto thee: in an acceptable time.

14. Hear me, O God, in the multitude of thy Mercy: even in the truth of thy Salvation.

15. Take me out of the Mire, that I ſink not: O let me be delivered from them that hate me, and out of the deep Waters.

16. Let not the Water-floods drown me, neither let the deep ſwallow me up: and let not the Pit ſhut her Mouth upon me.

17. Hear me, O LORD, for thy loving kindneſs is comfortable: turn thee unto me according to the multitude of thy Mercies.

18. And hide not thy Face from thy Servant, for I am in trouble: O haſte thee and hear me.

19. Draw nigh unto my Soul and ſave it: O deliver me becauſe of mine Enemies.

20. Thou haſt known my reproof, my ſhame, and my diſhonour: mine Adverſaries are all in thy ſight.

21. Thy rebuke hath broken my Heart, I am full of heavineſs: I looked for ſome to have pity on me, but there was no Man, neither found I any to comfort me.

22. They

5. I never ſtood in any Obligation to them, if they had done any thing for my ſake, I always requited them with a far greater kindneſs: Thy all-ſeeing Wiſdom, which knows all my Follies and my Faults, can beſt tell if I have deſerved any of this ill Treatment which they give me.

6. Let not thoſe who have abetted my juſt Cauſe, and do depend upon thee for thy Aſſiſtance, be diſcouraged by thy letting my Adverſaries have an advantage againſt me, but afford me ſpeedy Relief, ſince thy own Honour is ſo much concerned therein.

7. For I have ſuffered many Reproaches, for my firm reliance upon thee; my Enemies upbraiding me that I truſt in a God that does not ſeem, hitherto, to have any concern for my Sufferings.

8. Thoſe, that are the nigheſt related to me in Blood, lay aſide their former familiarity; as being afraid that they ſhall ſhare in the Misfortunes, that I am involved with.

9. For that great Zeal and Concern, which I have always ſhewn for thy Worſhip, in puniſhing the Profanation and Neglect thereof, has drawn a Confederacy of irreligious Men upon me, who are now juſt upon the Point of compaſſing my Ruin.

10. Whenever I performed any religious Exerciſe, as particularly when I kept a day of ſtrict Faſting and Humiliation, theſe prophane Perſons made a Mock of my Devotion.

11. When I put on Sackcloth, the Habit of a Mourning Penitent, I became a Jeſt for theſe irreligious Men to laugh at.

12. Thoſe idle People, that ſpend their time in loitering at the Gates of the City, and paſſing their Cenſures upon thoſe who walk by; theſe ſorry People make their Reflections upon me; and the Drunkards, in their Cups, ſing Songs upon my Misfortunes, to make themſelves merry.

13. But for my part I take little notice of their profane irreligious Railery, but apply myſelf to thee for Relief, in a time when thy Aſſiſtance will be the moſt acceptable to me, and which will be moſt worthy of thy Interpoſition, eſpecially ſince all human Helps fail me.

14. O therefore be pleaſed to vouchſafe a gracious Anſwer to my Prayer, let thy Mercy be diſcovered in ſo great a Deliverance, and make good thy Promiſe to me, in preſerving me.

15. Deliver me from this great Affliction which I am plunged in, as a Man that is ſunk deep in the Mire; and which, like a deep Water, will drown me, unleſs thou doſt ſpeedily come to my Aſſiſtance.

16. Let me not periſh in this Deluge of Misfortunes, which are broke in upon me; let me not be buried alive in the Grave, which, by theſe ſad Afflictions, I ſeem to be tumbled into, and to have the Ground thrown in upon me.

17. I beſeech thee, O Lord to afford me timely Succour in this my great Diſtreſs, for thy Favour is the moſt comfortable thing I can enjoy; and be pleaſed to ſhew thy former Kindneſs to me, by letting me again partake of thy abundant Mercy.

18. Do not thou, any longer, in thy Anger, turn thy Face from me, for I am now under ſo great Misfortunes, that I am not able to ſupport myſelf under them; O therefore do thou uſe all the Diſpatch poſſible, to come to my Aſſiſtance.

19. I beſeech thee to make nigher Approaches to me than thou haſt formerly done, and reſcue my Life out of my Enemies Hands, who are juſt ready to deſtroy it: Do thou preſerve me, if it be but to hinder the Triumph of mine Enemies, who reproach me for my reliance upon thee.

20. Thy all-ſeeing Eye has taken notice, what Diſgrace and Obloquy I have underwent, for the ſake of Religion and a good Conſcience; and thou doſt treaſure up in thy eternal Mind, the Wrongs which they have done me.

21. The Reproaches, which thou haſt been pleaſed to expoſe me to, have wounded me to the very Heart, eſpecially when I expected Succour from thee, but have been diſappointed therein; my Adverſaries in the mean time, making Jeſts upon me, for the Fruitleſneſs of my hopes.

22. But

22. They gave me Gall to eat: and when I was thirſty they gave me Vinegar to drink.

23. Let their Table be made a Snare to take themſelves withal: and let the things that ſhould have been for their Wealth, be unto them an occaſion of falling.

24. Let their Eyes be blinded that they ſee not: and ever bow thou down their Backs.

25. Pour out thine Indignation upon them: and let thy wrathful Diſpleaſure take hold of them.

26. Let their habitation be void: and no Man to dwell in their Tents.

27. For they perſecute him whom thou haſt ſmitten: and they talk how they may vex them whom thou haſt wounded.

28. Let them fall from one Wickedneſs to another: and not come into thy Righteouſneſs.

29. Let them be wiped out of the Book of the living: and not be written among the Righteous.

30. As for me, when I am poor and in heavineſs: thy help, O God, ſhall lift me up.

31. I will praiſe the Name of God with a Song: and magnifie it with Thankſgiving.

32. This alſo ſhall pleaſe the LORD: better than a Bullock that hath Horns and Hoofs

33. The humble ſhall conſider this and be glad: ſeek ye after God, and your Soul ſhall live.

34. For the LORD heareth the poor: and deſpiſeth not his Priſoners.

35. Let Heaven and Earth praiſe him: the Sea and all that moveth therein.

36. For God will ſave Sion, and build the Cities of Juda: that Men may dwell there, and have it in poſſeſſion.

37. The Poſterity alſo of his Servants ſhall inherit it: and they that love his Name ſhall dwell therein.

The LXX PSALM.

Deus in adjutorium.

¶¶ This Pſalm was compoſed by David, in time of ſome extraordinary Diſtreſs. It is a part of the 40*th Pſalm, with ſome little Variation.*

HAſte thee, O God, to deliver me: make haſte to help me, O LORD.

2. Let

22. But no one was ready to give me any Aſſiſtance, or Comfort in my Trouble; they only contrived to aggravate my Misfortunes, with as much Cruelty, as one who gives a Cup of Gall and Vinegar to a thirſty Perſon, who begs for Drink; as the Jews ſhall hereafter give the ſame to the Meſſias, upon the Croſs, Matth. 27. 34. John 19. 28, 29.

23. And here I am carried off, to ſpeak of the miſerable Puniſhment, God ſhall lay upon the Perſecutors of that Spiritual Prince; as they inhumanly offered their Saviour Gall and Vinegar, God ſhall make them drink of a more bitter Cup: their being gathered together to eat the Paſchal-Sacrifice, ſhall be the occaſion of their greater Deſtruction at the Siege of Jeruſalem; and that time, wherein they ſhall think to meet together in Joy, ſhall be a Seaſon of the moſt miſerable Grief.

24. Their Eyes ſhall be for many Ages ſo darkened, that they ſhall not ſee the Light of the Goſpel of the Meſſias; they ſhall be in all Countries, where they ſhall dwell, miſerable Slaves and Vaſſals, and always bow down under a foreign Yoke.

25. Thy Anger, O God, ſhall be poured out upon them, with the Fury of a Torrent; and ſurprize and overtake them, when they leaſt expect it.

26. Their City ſhall be deſtroyed, they ſhall be turned out of their own Country, and carried Captive into all foreign Nations; and none of their Poſterity left behind, to ſucceed them in Judæa.

27. Becauſe they perſecuted him, on whom thou haſt laid the Chaſtiſement of us all, Iſa. 53. 4, 5. and put to death the Lord of Life.

28. For this cauſe, thou ſhalt take the Grace of thy holy Spirit from them, ſo that having no reſtraint therefrom upon them; they ſhall run from one Sin to another, till they are arrived to ſuch a top-pitch of Wickedneſs, that God will bear with them no longer, but pronounce their Condemnation.

29. They ſhall be ſtruck out of the Liſt of God's Children, and ſhall not partake of thoſe glorious Rewards, which he lays in ſtore for his righteous Servants. This ſhall be the Portion of the wicked Crucifiers of the Meſſias.

30. But as for me, tho' I am at preſent under a Cloud of Misfortunes, God's gracious Aſſiſtance ſhall remove them from me, and raiſe me to my former Honour.

31. And then I ſhall have a freſh opportunity given me, to praiſe his great Name with a new Hymn, compoſed in thankful remembrance of his Goodneſs to me.

32. And ſuch a devout Thankfulneſs will be more acceptable to God, than to Sacrifice to him a full-grown Bullock.

33. This ſhall be an occaſion of very joyful Reflection to all good Men, to conſider how readily God appears, in the Defence of thoſe his pious Servants, who rely upon him: this will be an Encouragement for them likewiſe to expect Preſervation, upon their truſting in him.

34. For all Men may depend upon this as an undoubted Truth, that God is always ready to aſſiſt his devout Servants, who rely upon him for Deliverance from their Afflictions.

35. And now let all the Angels and Saints in Heaven, and all the Inhabitants of every Country of the World, join in conſort to praiſe our gracious God.

36. For God will yet, for many Ages, protect the City of Jeruſalem, and the Jews ſhall inhabit it.

37. Many Generations of his choſen People, who worſhip him with the true Religion which he has preſcribed, ſhall live quietly there.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXX.

O Lord, I beſeech thee to make all poſſible ſpeed, to deliver me from this imminent Danger which threatens me.

2. Let

2. Let them be aſhamed and confounded, that ſeek after my Soul: let them be turned backward and put to confuſion, that wiſh me Evil.

3. Let them for their reward be ſoon brought to ſhame: that cry over me, There, there.

4. But let all thoſe that ſeek thee, be joyful and glad in thee: and let all ſuch as delight in thy Salvation, ſay alway, The Lord be praiſed.

5. As for me, I am poor and in miſery: haſte thee unto me, O God.

6. Thou art my helper and my Redeemer: O LORD, make no long tarrying.

MORNING PRAYER.

The LXXI PSALM.

In te, Domine, ſperavi.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm, tho' it does not bear the Name of David in the Inſcription, yet it was probably written by him, and that in the time of Abſalom's Rebellion, becauſe of the Words, Verſe 9. Forſake me not in my old Age; for it cannot be referred to Saul's Perſecution of him, he being then but Thirty Years old.

IN thee, O LORD, have I put my truſt, let me never be put to confuſion: but rid me, and deliver me in thy Righteouſneſs; incline thine Ear unto me, and ſave me.

2. Be thou my ſtrong hold whereunto I may alway reſort: thou haſt promiſed to help me, for thou art my Houſe of defence and my Caſtle.

3. Deliver me, O my God, out of the Hand of the Ungodly: out of the Hand of the Unrighteous and Cruel Man.

4. For thou, O LORD God, art the thing that I long for: thou art my hope, even from my Youth.

5. Thro' thee have I been holden up ever ſince I was Born: thou art he that took me out of my Mothers Womb, my praiſe ſhall be always of thee.

6. I am become as it were a Monſter unto many: but my ſure truſt is in thee.

7. O let my Mouth be filled with thy Praiſe: [that I may ſing of thy Glory] and Honour all the Day long.

8. Caſt me not away in the time of Age: forſake me not when my Strength faileth me.

9. For mine Enemies ſpeak againſt me, and they that lay wait for my Soul, take their Counſel together, ſaying: God hath forſaken him, perſecute him and take him, for there is none to deliver him.

10. Go not far from me, O God: my God, haſte thee to help me.

11. Let them be confounded and periſh, that are againſt my Soul: let them be covered with Shame and Diſhonour, that ſeek to do me Evil.

12. As

2. Let thoſe, who are ſo wicked as to have a deſign againſt my Life, be ſhamefully diſappointed by the defeating of their Deſign by thy good Providence; let them take to themſelves all the Diſgrace of a routed Army.

3. Let Shame and Confuſion be a Reward to them, for their ſcornful expoſing of me.

4. But let all thoſe pious Perſons, who depend upon thy heavenly Aſſiſtance for their Succour, have an opportunity of praiſing thy good Providence, by a timely Deliverance afforded them.

5, 6. Indeed my Condition, at preſent, is very deſtitute and forlorn, therefore I beſeech thee, O my gracious God, to make a quick diſpatch of thy Succours to me, for I am totally deſtitute of any Aſſiſtance but thine, and therefore I beg of thee, with all poſſible ſpeed, to afford it me.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXXI.

O Lord, thou knoweſt that I never repoſed any Truſt or Expectation of Deliverance, in any one but thee, let not therefore my hopes be ſhamefully diſappointed; but, out of thy love to Juſtice, deliver me from my cruel Oppreſſors; hear my humble Addreſs to thee, and preſerve me from mine Enemies.

2. Be thou my ſtrong Citadel, to which I may betake myſelf in time of extreme Danger, according to the Promiſe which thou haſt made to me, to preſerve me in my Diſtreſs.

3. I beſeech thee, O my gracious God, to interpoſe thy particular Providence, in reſcuing me from my unjuſt and cruel Adverſaries.

4. For thou art the Object of my Hope and moſt ardent Deſire: from my Youth to this very time, my Dependence has always been upon thee.

5. Thou haſt ſupported me under all the Dangers and Calamities, which have befaln me ever ſince my Childhood: And ſince thou didſt take me into thy Hands to nurſe and cheriſh me, when firſt I came out of my Mother's Womb, and haſt by thy wonderful Providence preſerved me ever ſince, I make no doubt but thou wilt extend the ſame gracious Goodneſs to me, now in my old Age; for all which Favours I am eternally obliged to praiſe thee.

6. I am become a frightful Spectacle to a great many, who are afraid to come near me; but, notwithſtanding their wrong Opinion of me, I will not ceaſe to expect Deliverance out of my Troubles from thy Hand, who wilt reſtore me to my former Dignity, and ſet me right in the good Opinion of my Subjects again.

7. O give me once more an Opportunity of ſinging Praiſes to thee, in the publick Congregation; that I may ſpend the day in the devout Worſhip of thee.

8. Thou who haſt vouchſafed me ſo many wonderful Deliverances from my Troubles, in my younger time, O do not thou throw me out of thy Protection in my old Age, when I have leſs Abilities, than I had formerly, to help myſelf.

9. For the Mouths of my Enemies are open againſt me, by conſtant Revilings and Calumnies; they are always bandying together in Plots and Conſpiricies againſt my Life; they giving out, that God, my wonted Protector, has diſclaimed any further care of me, by reaſon of my Sins; and that now is their favourable opportunity of throwing me out of my Dominions, or making themſelves Maſters of my Perſon, ſince no one is likely to interpoſe to reſcue me from them.

10. Therefore, O my gracious God, be not thou backward to aſſiſt me in this Extremity of Danger; leave me not without thy care for a minute, but make all imaginable haſte to ſuccour me.

11. Let all my Adverſaries, that are embarked in this wicked Deſign againſt my Life, be routed and ſhamefully defeated, ſo that they may not be able to attempt the ſame againſt me for the future.

12. But

12. As for me, I will patiently abide alway: and will praiſe thee more and more.

13. My Mouth ſhall daily ſpeak of thy Righteouſneſs and Salvation: for I know no end thereof.

14. I will go forth in the ſtrength of the LORD God: and will make mention of thy Righteouſneſs only.

15. Thou, O God, haſt taught me from my Youth up until now: therefore will I tell of thy wondrous Works.

16. Forſake me not, O God, in mine old Age, when I am gray-headed: until I have ſhewed thy Strength unto this Generation, and thy Power to all them that are yet for to come.

17. Thy Righteouſneſs, O God, is very high: and great things are they that thou haſt done; O God, who is like unto thee?

18. O what great Troubles and Adverſities haſt thou ſhewed me! and yet didſt thou turn and refreſh me: yea, and broughteſt me from the deep of the Earth again.

19. Thou haſt brought me to great Honour: and comforted me on every ſide.

20. Therefore will I praiſe thee and thy faithfulneſs, O God, playing upon an Inſtrument of Muſick: unto thee will I ſing upon the Harp, O thou holy One of Iſrael.

21. My Lips will be fain when I ſing unto thee: and ſo will my Soul whom thou haſt delivered.

22. My Tongue alſo ſhall talk of thy Righteouſneſs all the Day long: for they are confounded and brought unto Shame, that ſeek to do me Evil.

The LXXII PSALM.

Deus, judicium.

¶¶ This is a Pſalm of David, written, as moſt of the Antient and Modern Commentators allow, upon Solomon's being anointed to be his Succeſſor by Zadock, and his ſolemn Inauguration thereupon, 1 Kings 1. 1. And herein David recommends him, in this Form of Prayer, to the Bleſſing of God upon this undertaking. But, by ſome imperceptible Motions of the Holy Spirit, his Mind is carried off to ſpeak of the Meſſias. Upon which account many of the Jewiſh Writers explain this Pſalm, as ſpoken moſtly of the Meſſias. So ſays R. Obadiah and R. Eben Ezra. The Midraſh upon theſe Words, Give thy Judgments, &c. ſay, This is the King Meſſias. And in the Talmud, when the Queſtion is ask'd, What is the Name of the Meſſias? It is anſwer'd, Hinnon from V. 17. of this Pſalm, His Name ſhall endure for ever. And R. Solomon Jarchi and Kimchi ſay, That all their old Rabbins explain this of King Meſſias: And Kimchi particularly ſays, that This is properly to be underſtood of Chriſt, but Hyperbolically only of Solomon.

GIve the King thy Judgments, O God: and thy Righteouſneſs unto the King's Son.

2. Then ſhall he judge thy People according unto Right: and defend the Poor.

3. The

12. But, however thy good Providence ſhall think fit to diſpoſe of me, I will continually perſiſt to truſt in thee; and I doubt not, but thou wilt in thy good time, give me an Opportunity, by a freſh Deliverance, to praiſe thy Goodneſs more than I have done heretofore.

13. Thy Juſtice, in vindicating the Cauſe of the Innocent, ſhall be the continual Theme of my Song; which is an Attribute of thine ſo boundleſs, that no mortal Intellect can fathom, and no Tongue expreſs.

14. I will now draw up my Army to meet my Enemies, not truſting in the Numbers and Valour of my Troops, but in the Almighty Power of God who aſſiſts me; I will not encourage my Soldiers, by making boaſt of the Superiority of my Forces, but by mentioning to them thy Favour of my Cauſe.

15. Thou, O God, haſt been my Tutor, and the Defender of my Weakneſs, ever ſince I was a Child, and therefore I ſhall always bear in mind the grateful Remembrance, of thoſe many miraculous Preſervations, which thou haſt afforded me.

16. Therefore, O my God, I beſeech thee not to caſt off the Care of me, in my declining Years, when I have moſt occaſion for thy Protection; but afford me an Opportunity of letting the People of this Generation ſee, and praiſe thy Goodneſs in my Preſervation, as the People under Saul's Reign ſaw it once before; and let thy Almighty Power, interpoſed in my behalf, be a ſtanding Monument of thy Juſtice, in preſerving Innocent Perſons, to all future Ages.

17. And indeed it muſt be owned, that thy Juſtice, in this particular, is much to be admired; for if we recount all the ſignal Deliverances, which thou haſt wrought for thy pious Servants, throughout all Ages; we ſhall be neceſſitated in Admiration to cry out, Who is to be compared to our God?

18. I have not forgot, with what great Afflictions thou haſt been pleaſed formerly to exerciſe me in, and yet in thy good time, thou waſt pleaſed to deliver me from them, and to reinſtate me in a joyful Proſperity; and tho' I were plunged, as it were, in an Abyſs of Misfortunes, yet thou waſt pleaſed to raiſe up my Head above Water again.

19. For thou didſt not only deliver me from the Dangers of Saul's Perſecution, but waſt pleaſed to advance me to the Honour of the Regal Power, and all the Satisfactions which attend that high Condition.

20. Therefore I will not fail, ſtill to truſt in thy wonted Goodneſs towards me, and when thou ſhalt have accompliſhed my Deliverance, I will praiſe thy infinite Goodneſs upon Inſtruments of Muſick of the nobleſt kind I can procure, I myſelf bearing a part in the Conſort, and playing upon the Harp, and ſinging a new Pſalm which I ſhall compoſe, in memory of thy Deliverance.

21. And then, not only my Lips, but my very Soul, ſhall exalt and triumph, when in my Song I ſhall commemorate ſo glorious a Deliverance.

22. Nor ſhall it ſuffice me, only once ſolemnly to commemorate thy Mercy towards me; but this mighty Deliverance ſhall be the conſtant Subject of my Diſcourſe, for thy ſo juſtly turning thoſe Harms upon my Adverſaries, which they unjuſtly deſigned againſt me.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXII.

I Beſeech thee, O Lord, to afford to me thy Servant David, a Talent of executing the Regal Office with Juſtice and Equity, and grant to my Son Solomon, that he may follow my Example, in the Exerciſe of the ſame Vertues.

2. And that ſhall enable him, to adminiſter Juſtice with an impartial Hand to all his Subjects; and to defend poor Sufferers, againſt the Injuries of opulent Oppreſſors.

3. The Mountains alſo ſhall bring Peace: and the little Hills Righteouſneſs unto the People.

4. He ſhall keep the ſimple Folk by their Right: defend the Children of the Poor, and puniſh the Wrong-doer.

5. They ſhall fear thee, as long as the Sun and Moon endureth: from one Generation to another.

6. He ſhall come down like the Rain into a fleece of Wool: even as the drops that water the Earth.

7. In his time ſhall the Righteous flouriſh: yea, and abundance of Peace, ſo long as the Moon endureth.

8. His Dominion ſhall be alſo from the one Sea to the other: and from the Flood unto the Worlds end.

9. They that dwell in the Wilderneſs ſhall kneel before him: his Enemies ſhall lick the Duſt.

10. The Kings of Tharſis, and of the Iſles, ſhall give Preſents: the Kings of Arabia and Saba ſhall bring Gifts.

11. All Kings ſhall fall down before him: all Nations ſhall do him Service.

12. For he ſhall deliver the Poor when he crieth: the needy alſo, and him that hath no helper.

13. He ſhall be favourable to the ſimple and needy: and ſhall preſerve the Souls of the Poor.

14. He ſhall deliver their Souls from falſhood and wrong: and dear ſhall their Blood be in his Sight.

15. He ſhall live, and unto him ſhall be given of the Gold of Arabia: Prayer ſhall be made ever unto him, and daily ſhall he be praiſed.

16. There ſhall be an heap of Corn in the Earth, high upon the Hills: his Fruit ſhall ſhake like Libanus, and ſhall be green in the City like Graſs upon the Earth.

17. His Name ſhall endure for ever, his Name ſhall remain under the Sun among the Poſterities: which ſhall be bleſſed through him, and all the Heathen ſhall praiſe him.

18. Bleſſed be the LORD God, even the God of Iſrael: which only doth wondrous things.

19. And

3. But I foreſee, that tho' Solomon's Reign ſhall be very happy and advantageous to the People, yet another Prince, viz. the Meſſias, who ſhall come after him, ſhall be the Author of greater and more Spiritual Bleſſings: In his time the barren and unfruitful Mountains, whoſe unhappy Soil now hinders them from bringing forth any thing acceptable, ſhall be bleſs'd, by having the Goſpel of the Meſſias preach'd to the Inhabitants thereof.

4. He ſhall maintain the right of the ſimple ordinary Men, in having the Goſpel preach'd unto them before others of higher Quality, offering even to poor Children the Benefits of his Covenant, denouncing everlaſting Puniſhment to thoſe who ſhall diſobey his Laws.

5. The Religion which he ſhall eſtabliſh, ſhall never be aboliſhed, but ſhall continue to the end of the World.

6. He ſhall deſcend with a kind Influence, juſt as a gentle Rain, which ſtands in pearly drops upon a Fleece of Wool; and like the Dew which ſettles upon the Graſs.

7. During the time of whoſe Divine Adminiſtration, Piety and Holineſs ſhall remarkably flouriſh in the World under the Influence of his Laws, and Men ſhall enjoy the Satisfaction of everlaſting Peace of Conſcience, Zach. 9. 10. Dan. 9. 24.

8. His Kingdom ſhall be ſo enlarged, that all Nations of the Earth ſhall flow into it, and yield Obedience to his Laws, Pſal. 2. 8. Iſa. 45. 22.

9. Thoſe, that live in the moſt remote and deſert Places, ſhall adore his Majeſty; thoſe, that are now Enemies to the true Worſhip of God, ſhall, with the moſt humble proſtration, fall down to the Ground, in their devout Addreſſes to him.

10. He ſhall have his Pious Worſhippers, in the moſt remote Parts of the World, ſuch as Arabia in Aſia, and Sheba in Africa.

11. The moſt potent Monarchs ſhall lay down their Crowns at his Feet, and their Subjects ſhall ſubmit themſelves to his Sovereign Dominion.

12. He ſhall deliver poor and diſtreſſed Sinners, from the Load of their oppreſſed Conſciences, and Tyranny of Satan; offering the Terms of Salvation to Men, to whom there is no other Redeemer given but himſelf.

13. He ſhall ſhew abundant Mercy to the Souls of poor Sinners, delivering them from the Stratagems, and Power of the Devil.

14. He ſhall defend them from the falſe Accuſations, and evil Suggeſtions of that malicious Spirit; accounting the Souls of Men to be ſo dear to him, that he ſhall lay down his Life to keep them from Periſhing.

15. God ſhall advance him to a ſtate of immortal Life and Glory, and to a Crown far more precious than one made of Arabian Gold: When he ſhall be Worſhipped by all created Beings to all Eternity, and continual Hallelujahs ſhall be ſung to his Honour.

16. The Bleſſings of this Spiritual Kingdom ſhall be multiplied, like the produce of a very fruitful Year, when the barren Mountains yield a plentiful Crop, and the ſtanding-Corn ſhakes with the Wind upon the Hills, as the Trees do upon Libanus and other Mountains; and the Cities ſhall yield forth Fruit, from his Word ſown among them, as kindly as the Graſs grows in a fertile Paſture.

17. His Kingdom ſhall be of Eternal Duration, and all future Generations ſhall be bleſſed in him, Gen. 22. 18. and likewiſe the Heathen Nations ſhall ſubmit themſelves to his Laws, and join in his Worſhip.

18. All Honour and Glory therefore be aſcribed to the great God of the Jews, who alone is veſted with omnipotent Power, and can perform miraculous Actions which are above the force of Nature.

19. The

19. And blessed be the Name of his Majesty for ever: and all the Earth shall be filled with his Majesty. Amen, Amen.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LXXIII PSALM.

Quam bonus Israel.

¶¶ This Psalm is entituled in the Hebrew, A Maschil of Asaph. For the Psalms of David are said to end, according to the Hebrew Copies, at the conclusion of the last Psalm; and most of the Psalms from this to the CVIIth are attributed to Asaph. Who this Asaph was, is not so well agreed; some think him to be Asaph the famous Singer in David's time, 1 Chron. 16. 5. 2 Chron. 5. 12. Bishop Patrick thinks him to be Asaph the Seer, who lived in the days of Hezekiah, mentioned 2 Chron. 29. 30. whose Psalms were ordered to be sung together with those of David by that Prince. But the House of Asaph being a noted Family of the Tribe of Levi, and always in considerable Post about the Temple, there might be, as I doubt not but there were, several Psalmographers of that Name, whose Psalms are compiled together in this Collection. Therefore this Psalm might probably be composed in Hezekiah's Reign, when Senacherib made that miserable Ravage in Judæa, and was crowned with such great Victories and Successes, 2 Chron. 32. 1. Which was a great Discouragement to good Men, that such mighty Success should attend a wicked Heathen Prince; when Hezekiah, notwithstanding his great Zeal for God and Religion, suffered so much.

TRuly God is loving unto Israel: even unto such as are of a clean Heart.

2. Nevertheless my Feet were almost gone: my treadings had well-nigh slipt.

3. And why? I was grieved at the wicked: I do also see the Ungodly in such Prosperity.

4. For they are in no peril of Death: but are lusty and strong.

5. They come in no misfortune like other Folk: neither are they plagued like other Men.

6. And this is the cause that they are so holden with Pride, and overwhelmed with cruelty.

7. Their Eyes swell with fatness: and they do even what they list.

8. They corrupt other, and speak of wicked Blasphemy: their talking is against the most High.

9. For they stretch forth their Mouth unto the Heaven: and their Tongue goeth through the World.

10. Therefore fall the People unto them: and thereout suck they no small advantage.

11. Tush, say they, how should God perceive it: is there Knowledge in the most High?

12. Lo, these are the Ungodly, these prosper in the World, and these have Riches in possession: and I said, Then have I cleansed my Heart in vain, and washed mine Hands in Innocency.

13. All

19. The renown of his glorious Majesty shall continue to all Generations, especially when it shall be attended with so much gracious Goodness, as shall be then displayed, when the Gentiles shall be called under the Kingdom of the Messias, and admitted to be partakers of his Worship.

Here endeth the second Book of the Psalms.

Paraphrase on Psalm LXXIII.

NOtwithstanding God's Dispensations are sometimes very severe, yet we may lay down this as an undoubted Maxim, that God does take particular care to protect and defend the Jewish Nation, and that, tho' some ill Men among them are punished for their Sins, all pious and faithful Israelites, shall at length, some way or other, partake of his Favour and Goodness.

2. Notwithstanding this, I was under a temptation of disbelieving this great Truth, and making a halt in this fundamental Article of Religion.

3. For it was not only a sad reflection, but it was a great stumbling-Block to me in my Thoughts about Providence, to observe wicked Men to partake of so many secular Advantages, and to have all their Undertakings, tho' never so unlawful, to be crowned with uncommon Successes.

4. They stand in no fear of the Bands or Empire of Death; but they enjoy uninterrupted Health and Vigour, and live to the longest Line of Life.

5. Whereas the generality even of good Men, are subject to Calamities of divers sorts, to have their Estates impaired, to be cross'd with Disappointments, to labour under Pain or Sickness; but these Persons seem to have an Immunity from all these Misfortunes.

6. And this hightens them to an excessive degree of Pride, and puts them upon using all unlawful means, by Rapine and Violence to maintain it.

7. They enjoy all the good things of this World with that Plenty and Variety, as to grow so fat with them, that they can hardly see; there is not any thing which they can wish for, but they readily enjoy.

8. They poison their Neighbours, by suggesting wicked and irreligious Thoughts to them; and by uttering blasphemous Words against God himself.

9. They spare neither God nor Man in their impious Discourse, they open their Mouth against Heaven, and every thing else that is sacred, nor do they spare to take the Liberty of abusing the holiest Man upon Earth.

10. For this reason, the unthinking People oftentimes close in with their impious Sentiments; and they foolishly fancy, they shall enjoy a greater share of this Worlds Blessings, if they conform their Practice to these Atheistical Opinions.

11. It is no matter, say they, what Religionists talk; we have no sufficient Evidence that God does take notice of what we do; or if he does, Why doth he permit us to go on?

12. Now it is plainly manifest, that these are the Men that enjoy the greatest Satisfactions of this World; that have large Incomes to lavish away in Gratification of their Lusts: which gave me the Temptation of making this unwary Conclusion, That, since these wicked Men enjoy so much Happiness, notwithstanding their open Defiance of Almighty God, it is to no purpose, that I put myself to the trouble of a Religious Course of Life, and endeavour to transact every Affair with my Neighbours with exact Justice; since their Irreligion is better rewarded than my Devotion and Sincerity.

13. For,

13. All the Day long have I been puniſhed: and chaſtened every Morning.

14. Yea, and I had almoſt ſaid even as they: but lo, then I ſhould have condemned the Generation of thy Children.

15. Then thought I to underſtand this: but it was too hard for me,

16. Until I went into the Sanctuary of God: then underſtood I the end of theſe Men;

17. Namely, how thou doſt ſet them in ſlippery places: and caſteſt them down, and deſtroyeſt them.

18. Oh how ſuddenly do they conſume: periſh, and come to a fearful end!

19. Yea, even like as a Dream when one awaketh: ſo ſhalt thou make their Image to vaniſh out of the City.

20. Thus my Heart was grieved: and it went even through my Reins.

21. So fooliſh was I, and ignorant: even as it were a Beaſt before thee.

22. Nevertheleſs, I am alway by thee: for thou haſt holden me by my right Hand.

23. Thou ſhalt guide me with thy Counſel: and after that receive me with Glory.

24. Whom have I in Heaven but thee: and there is none upon Earth, that I deſire in compariſon of thee.

25. My Fleſh, and my Heart faileth: but God is the ſtrength of my Heart, and my portion for ever.

26. For lo, they that forſake thee, ſhall periſh: thou haſt deſtroyed all them that commit Fornication againſt thee.

27. But it is good for me to hold me faſt by God, to put my truſt in the LORD God: and to ſpeak of all thy Works [in the Gates of the Daughter of Sion.]

The

13. For, as for my part, I am ſo far from being encouraged by God for my devout Addreſſes to him, and my dependence upon him, that I have been exerciſed by continual Afflictions, hardly a Morning or Evening occurring without ſome freſh Trouble befalling me.

14. And I was not very far from uttering theſe ungodly Thoughts of mine, in Irreligious Speech, as they do; but then I checked myſelf with this Conſideration; That if I ſhould do ſo, I ſhould utterly condemn all Piety and true Religion.

15. I was for a great while very buſie in my Thoughts, to find out a Solution for theſe great Inequalities of Providence; but I found that to be a Queſtion too difficult, to be reſolved by my Natural Underſtanding.

16. At laſt I bethought myſelf to apply to God for Illumination, addreſſing myſelf in Prayer to him in his Temple, and conſulting his holy Word which is repoſited there; and then I was preſently ſet right, as to my former Error, and found that the end of theſe Men was more Miſerable, than their beginning was Proſperous.

17. I perceived, that thou doſt on purpoſe raiſe them to high and ſlippery Places, that their Fall may be with ſuch a force, as ſhall utterly deſtroy them.

18. But ſee how all of a ſudden their Gallantry is loſt, how they are pulled down from the heighth of Fortune, and forced to undergo miſerable and ignominious Deaths.

19. That all their boaſted Felicity in this World, is but a Dream, in which the buſie Fancy entertains the Mind with ſpecious Phantaſms of Things in which there is no reality; and tho' a Man takes them for real in his Sleep, yet when he wakes he finds them to be all empty Deluſion: In the ſame manner God ſhall deſtroy their Name and Family, and make them of no longer a continuance, than ſuch a vain Image or Phantaſm.

20. But before I received this Satisfaction, concerning the Diſtribution of thy Providence, I was pricked to the very Heart, to think, That thou ſhouldeſt reward thy Enemies more plentifully than thy good Servants.

21. But ſince I am now better informed, I cannot but condemn my former Miſtake, as a ſtupid and beſtial Ignorance.

22. But let me be never ſo ignorant, in my own ſelf, ſince I have thee, O God, for my Tutor, to inſtruct me, I need not fear committing any fatal Miſtake in the Exerciſe of my Duty; whilſt thou holdeſt me by my Hand, I need not fear falling again into any dangerous Miſtake.

23. For I am reſolved that thy Holy Word ſhall be my Guide, as long as thou ſhalt be pleaſed to continue me in this World; and after that I have good hopes thou wilt tranſlate me to a better, in which I ſhall be out of all danger of miſtaking.

24. Lord, thou knoweſt that there is nothing in the whole Univerſe, that I honour or love like thee; none of the glorious Luminaries or Stars of Heaven, none of the more glorious Orders of Angels have ever taken off any part of thy Worſhip from me; not all the Riches and Honours and flattering Vanities of this World have been able to alienate my Affections from thee; but notwithſtanding their Enticements, I have ſtill loved thee above them all.

25. This enables me to reſt ſatisfied with my lean Cheeks and pained Heart, when I look upon the fat jolly Countenances of my wicked Adverſaries; this gives a refreſhing Comfort to my Heart, to conſider, that God is my conſtant Friend and Support, and will give me an everlaſting Inheritance, which is much better than the ſhort-lived Pleaſures of theſe wicked Men.

26. But as for thoſe Men who deſert thy Holy Religion, by wicked and flagitious Lives, and by Superſtitious and Idolatrous Worſhips, God Almighty ſhall ſhower down his Vengeance upon them; a ſignal Inſtance whereof was to be ſeen in the late great Deſtruction of Senacherib's Army, 2 Chron. 28. 6.

27. From which Monuments of thy Severity I learn this wholeſom Leſſon; That it is the beſt and ſafeſt way I can take, to keep cloſe to God's Precepts, and not to violate them for any Temporal Advantage, but to truſt ſincerely in God, and to wait his good time and method for any thing I can deſire; and to ſpend my time devoutly in the Worſhip and Praiſe of him, eſpecially in compoſing Pſalms to his honour.

The LXXIV. PSALM.

Ut quid, Deus?

¶ ¶ This is another Asaphian Psalm, composed by some other Divine Poet of the House of Asaph, different from the Author of the foregoing Psalm, during the time of the Captivity. It contains a very mournful Relation of the Destruction of the Temple by Nebuchadnezzar's Soldiers, and the miserable Calamities and Reproaches which they sustained in their Captivity.

O God, wherefore art thou absent from us so long: why is thy Wrath so hot against the Sheep of thy Pasture?

2. O think upon thy Congregation: whom thou hast purchased, and redeemed of old:

3. Think upon the Tribe of thine Inheritance: and Mount Sion, wherein thou hast dwelt.

4. Lift up thy Feet that thou maist utterly destroy every Enemy: which hath done evil in thy Sanctuary.

5. Thine Adversaries roar in the midst of thy Congregations: and set up their Banners for Tokens.

6. He that hewed Timber afore out of the thick Trees: was known to bring it to an excellent Work.

7. But now they break down all the carved Work thereof: with Axes and Hammers.

8. They have set fire upon thy Holy Places: and have defiled the dwelling-place of thy Name, even unto the ground.

9. Yea, they said in their Hearts, Let us make havock of them altogether: thus have they burnt up all the Houses of God in the Land.

10. We see not our Tokens, there is not one Prophet more: no, not one is there among us, that understandeth any more.

11. O God, how long shall the Adversary do this dishonour: how long shall the Enemy blaspheme thy Name, for ever?

12. Why withdraweſt thou thy Hand: why pluckest thou not thy right Hand out of thy Bosom to consume the Enemy?

13. For God is my King of old: the help that is done upon Earth, he doth it himself.

14. Thou didst divide the Sea through thy Power: thou brakest the Heads of the Dragons in the Waters.

15. Thou smotest the Heads of Leviathan in pieces: and gavest him to be meat for the People in the Wilderness.

16. Thou

Paraphrase on Psal. LXXIV.

O Lord, why dost thou suffer us to lie so long in this forlorn State of Captivity? Why are thy Dispensations so very severe upon thy chosen People, to which thou hast formerly vouchsafed such indulgent Favours?

2. We are thy People, whom thou hast singled out of the rest of the World to be thy Church, whom thou hast purchased and made thine by so many miraculous Deliverances, especially that remarkable one, from the Egyptian Bondage.

3. Think upon our afflicted Nation, which thou hast chosen to be the Lot of thy Inheritance, as the particular Tribes took to the several Provinces of Judea, for theirs.

4. Lift up thy Feet, and make all the speedy Paces possible, that thou mayst take Vengeance by an utter Destruction of those profane wretches, who have made such a Havock and Devastation of thy sacred Temple.

5. There were heard the Clamours and Curses of the rude Soldiers, where thy devout Servants used to pay thee their solemn Praises and Adorations; and out of despight to thy holy Religion, and to grieve us, they fixed up their Ensigns and Colours, painted with the Effigies of their Idol-Gods, in that holy place.

6. It is well known from the sacred Records of our Nation, to what admirable Beauty the skilful Hand of the Artificers brought the rough Cedar-Trees which were cut down by the Hatchets of Hiram's Wood men, in the thick Tyrian Forests, 1 Kings 5. 10.

7. But now they tear down all the curious Carvings, that cost so much time and exquisite Labour in the fitting up, with Axes and Hammers, and such other rude Instruments of Iron.

8 The wicked Wretches did set Fire to thy sacred and noble Edifice, which was the Glory of the World, and what parts of the Walls escape the devouring Flames, they demolished and laid even with the Ground.

9. Nor were they satisfied with the Desolation of the noble Temple of Jerusalem, but, think they, we will utterly destroy their very Religion; and therefore they set themselves to pull down every little Synagogue, or School, which was to be found in the whole Country of Judea.

10. But since that time, thy Providence has been more severe to us; for, during that dreadful Devastation, we had the Comfort of having thy Heavenly Messengers, the Prophets, among us, but in this Generation they are all dead, and no Successor appears in their places: We do not see any of the Tokens, or miraculous Signs, which they were empowered to act, that they might be the Credentials of their Divine Mission; no one that pretends to the Prophetical Character, no one that is illuminated with the divine Knowledge, is to be found in our Nation now.

11. But, O just God, How long wilt thou suffer these profane Idolaters to scoff at thy true Religion?

12. Why art thou so slow in taking Vengeance upon such insolent Offenders? why dost thou suffer thy Power to lie useless by thee, and dost not exert it in the punishment of such outrageous Offenders?

13. For God is the ancient Protector of our Nation; He himself working eminent Deliverances for his Servants, in the Eye of the World.

14. For it was thy divine Power which divided the Waters of the Red-Sea, for the Israelites to pass through; and it was thy Power which broke the Head of those Egyptian Serpents Pharaoh and his Army, which were destroyed, as they followed after the Israelites through that Sea.

15. Thou by thy power didst drown Pharaoh, that cruel Prince, fierce as the Leviathan, and made the Carkases of him and his Nobles, and others who attended him, to be eat by the Fishes of the Red-Sea, which afterwards became Food to the Inhabitants of the Wilderness of Etham, Exod. 14. 23.

16. Thou broughteſt out Fountains and Waters out of the hard Rocks: thou driedſt up mighty Waters.

17. The Day is thine, and the Night is thine: thou haſt prepared the Light and the Sun.

18. Thou haſt ſet all the borders of the Earth: thou haſt made Summer and Winter.

19. Remember this, O LORD, how the Enemy hath rebuked: and how the fooliſh People hath blaſphemed thy Name.

20. O deliver not the Soul of thy Turtle-Dove unto the multitude of the Enemies: and forget not the Congregation of the poor for ever.

21. Look upon the Covenant: for all the Earth is full of darkneſs and cruel habitations.

22. O let not the ſimple go away aſhamed: but let the poor and needy give Praiſe unto thy Name!

23. Ariſe, O God, maintain thine own Cauſe: remember how the fooliſh Man blaſphemeth thee daily.

24. Forget not the Voice of thine Enemies: the preſumption of them that hate thee, increaſeth ever more and more.

MORNING PRAYER.

The LXXV. PSALM.

Confitebimur tibi.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm was probably compo'd by Aſaph, the famous Muſician in David's time, upon ſome of the great Victories, which that Prince obtained over the Neighbour-Countries. It ſeems to be written in the form of a Dialogue, between the King and the People of Iſrael.

People.] UNto thee, O God, do we give Thanks: yea unto thee do we give Thanks.

2. Thy Name alſo is ſo nigh: and that do thy wondrous Works declare.

King.] 3. When I receive the Congregation: I ſhall judge according unto right.

4. The Earth is weak, and all the inhabiters thereof: I bear up the Pillars thereof.

5. I ſaid unto the Fools, Deal not ſo madly: and to the Ungodly, Set not up your Horn.

People.] 6. Set not up your Horn on high: and ſpeak not with a ſtiff Neck.

7. For promotion cometh neither from the Eaſt, nor the Weſt: nor yet from the South.

8. And

16. 'Twas thy Divine Power which enabled Moſes to ſmite the Rock of Rephidim, and to make freſh Waters flow from it, Exod. 17. 6. and which dried up the Waters of Jordan for the People to paſs over, Joſ. 3. 13.

17. The Day and Night are the works of thy Almighty Creation, the glorious Light of the Sun owes its Original to thee.

18 All the Climes, and periodical Revolutions of the Sun are eſtabliſhed by Thee; the Summer and Winter, and other Viciſſitudes of the Year, are ſetled by thy wiſe Ordinance.

19. Therefore I beſeech thee, O Lord, to interpoſe this omnipotent Power of thine for our Deliverance; and ſuffer not any longer thoſe ſtupid Idolaters, to break their fooliſh and blaſphemous Jeſts upon thee, and thy Holy Worſhip.

20. O do not, for ever neglect the complaint of thy poor Captive-Servants, who do not with loud Clamours utter their grief to thee, but like the Turtle-Dove, only make their ſilent moans.

21. O let not our Sins vacate the Covenant, which thou didſt make with our fore-Father Abraham, that his Poſterity ſhould for ever enjoy the Land of Canaan; whoſe Houſes now are deſtroy'd upon our Captivity, and no habitation remaining, but a few lurking-holes for Thieves and Robbers.

22. O let not the earneſt Prayers of us, poor diſtreſſed Captives, be put up to thee in vain; but let us, tho' now under this miſerable forlorn Condition, return with Joy from our Captivity, and praiſe thee again, in our publick Worſhip at Jeruſalem.

23. But, O Lord, if we for our Sins do not deſerve to be pitied by thee, yet we beſeech thee to vindicate thy own Cauſe, thy Honour being ſo much injured by the Scoffs, and Blaſphemies of our irreligious Enemies.

24. For 'tis now high time to puniſh the daring Blaſphemy of theſe Men, which now every Day more and more encreaſe, and talk with louder Impieties againſt Heaven; and becauſe thou haſt ſo long ſuffered their violence, they now deny thy ability to deliver us.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXV.

People.] WE pay unto thee, O Lord, our bounden Thanks, again we ſay, we pay our bounden Thanks, for thy repeated Favours conferred upon us.

2. For thou art always near and ready to aſſiſt us, as thy many Miracles, interpoſed on our behalf, do abundantly demonſtrate.

King.] 3. Whenever I ſhall preſide in the general meeting of the Tribes of Iſrael, I will not adminiſter Juſtice as formerly it has been done, only to gratifie a particular Faction, but I will diſtribute it with all the impartiality imaginable.

4. The foundations of the Jewiſh Common-wealth are yet weak and tottering, the fundamental Laws thereof being undermined by Saul's Tyranny; Houſes burnt, Families undone, and all the frame of Eccleſiaſtical Affairs looſe and ſhattered: And all the weight of theſe important Concerns lie upon me alone, who am to ſettle a Government which lies in ſuch miſerable diſorder.

5. I have already declared my Will to many of the irreligious great Men of Saul's late Court, that I would not any longer allow them in their uſual Prophane and Atheiſtical Diſcourſe, nor bear with them to go on in their former Arrogance and Oppreſſion.

People.] 6. We likewiſe ſecond thy excellent Reſolution, O King, and humbly pray that a check may be put to their Pride and Oppreſſion, which we have ſuffered ſo much by; and that they may not demean themſelves with ſuch an haughty and contemptuous deportment to us, as formerly they have done.

7. For Riches and Honours do not proceed from Mens own Abilities, or from Natural Cauſes; or, as ſome fondly preſume, from the quarters or diſpoſitions of the Heavens.

8. For

8. And why? God is the judge, he putteth down one, and ſetteth up another.
9. For in the Hand of the LORD there is a Cup, and the Wine is red: it is full mixt, and he poureth out of the ſame.
10. As for the dregs thereof: all the Ungodly of the Earth ſhall drink them, and ſuck them out.
King.] 11. But I will talk of the God of Jacob: and praiſe him for ever.
12. All the Horns of the Ungodly alſo will I break: and the Horns of the Righteous ſhall be exalted.

The LXXVI. Pſalm.

Notus in Judæa.

¶¶ This Aſaphian Pſalm was written probably by that Aſaph, who bears the Name of the Seer, 2 Chron. 29, 30. and ſeems to be a Song for a publick Rejoycing, after the great Deſtruction of Senacherib's Army: And this ſeems to be the Opinion of the antient Greek Church from that of Apollinarius, Κοίσγνον Ἀσσυρίων γελόων Ἄσαφ ἐχέφρων.

IN Jury is God known: his Name is great in Iſrael.
2. At Salem is his Tabernacle: and his dwelling in Sion.
3. There brake he the Arrows of the Bow: The Shield, the Sword, and the Battle.
4. Thou art of more Honour and Might: than the Hills of the Robbers.
5. The Proud are robbed, they have ſlept their ſleep: and all the Men whoſe Hands were Mighty; have found nothing.
6. At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob: both the Chariot and Horſe are fallen.
7. Thou, even thou art to be feared: and who may ſtand in thy ſight, when thou art angry?
8. Thou didſt cauſe thy Judgment to be heard from Heaven: the Earth trembled and was ſtill.
9. When God aroſe to Judgment: and to help all the meek upon Earth.
10. The fierceneſs of Man ſhall turn to thy Praiſe: and the fierceneſs of { them / others } ſhalt thou refrain.
11. Promiſe unto the LORD your God, and keep it, all ye that are round about him: bring Preſents unto him, that ought to be feared.
12. He ſhall refrain the Spirit of Princes: and is wonderful among the Kings of the Earth.

The

8. For ſince God is the governour of all the World, he takes the diſpoſal of theſe Things into his Hands; he does not permit them to the Conduct of blind Chance, or to be ſnatched at Mens pleaſure; he, according to the Determinations of his infinite Wiſdom, raiſes up one from a low Eſtate to the ſupreme Dignity, and oftentimes throws down a great Perſon to the moſt abject degree of Meanneſs and Contempt.

9. God does, as it were, hold in his Hand a Cup of Wine, which looks indeed of a curious florid colour, but is mixed with intoxicating Poiſon, which for the moſt part ſinks to the bottom of the Cup; out of this he diſtributes Draughts to the Sons of Men, and deals out Proſperity or Misfortunes to them thereby.

10. Good Men drink from the upper part thereof, and if a drop of the Venom comes to their Share, God by his good Providence keeps it from doing them any harm, nay, oftentimes he makes the Afflictions conveyed thereby prove Phyſick to them: But as for wicked Men, the Dregs of the Cup, where the Poiſon is the ſtrongeſt, will fall to their ſhare, and every drop of God's Wrath ſhall be ſucked out by them.

David.] 11. Theſe Conſiderations on the infinite Juſtice and Goodneſs of God, ſhall occaſion me continually to bleſs his Majeſty, and daily to praiſe him in his publick Worſhip.

12. And as much as in me lies, I will follow the Example of God, and diſcourage all Wickedneſs in my Dominions, laying ill Men under Diſfavours and Puniſhments, and rewarding Honeſty and Piety whereſoever I find them.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXVI.

THo' the Glory of God be ſufficiently manifeſt to all the Nations of the World, by the Works of his Creation; yet by his miraculous Operations, and eſpecial Providences, he is more remarkably noted in the Country of Judæa.

2. For at Jeruſalem, the Metropolis of that Country, is the Temple and Ark, and the Reſponſes which are given out upon all great Emergencies of State from the Sanctuary, in which place God Almighty being ſo eminently preſent, he may be ſaid, not improperly, to dwell there.

3. Whilſt we were religiouſly performing our Worſhip there, we had the great Advantage of God's fighting for us, and deſtroying the Aſſyrian Army.

4. For this great Action of thine, thou art more celebrated and famous, than the neighbouring Hills were, for the Robberies committed by the Aſſyrian Soldiers.

5. Thoſe arrogant Men, that inſulted our City with ſo much Pride and Contempt, who plundered and ravaged all the Country about them, are themſelves ſpoiled of their Treaſure; and the moſt part of them lying down to ſleep, having by the deſtroying Angel their Lives taken away, never roſe up again; but were entirely defeated without ſtriking one ſtroke.

6. Thou didſt but give order, and the briskeſt Charioteer in his fulleſt Career tumbled down dead from his Seat, and the moſt experienced Horſemen when they were inviſibly wounded by thy Hand, fell headlong from their Saddles.

7. This ſignal Inſtance of thy Severity ſhews, that thou art the great God whom all Mortals ought to reverence and fear, and to take care how they offend ſuch a powerful Deity, that in a moment of time, without any apparent cauſe, could lay the greateſt part of ſuch a numerous Army dead upon the Ground.

8. God Almighty thundred from Heaven, by ſuch a terrible Judgment, as the whole World was amazed at, and durſt not ſpeak a word under the mighty Conſternation:

9. But only were eager to obſerve, what amazing Inſtances of Severity he was pleaſed to make uſe of, for the Protection of his pious Servants.

10. Now this will be a ſufficient warning to Tyrannical Princes, and all others, that for the future they ſhall not dare to oppoſe themſelves to thee and thy true Religion.

11. Now in gratitude for ſo great a Deliverance, let every pious Jew, according to his Ability, vow ſomething ſacred to God, and religiouſly perform it; nay, let all the neighbouring-Nations make Preſents in honour of that God, whoſe Power they have ſo lately been Spectators of.

12. He is able to give a Check to the boundleſs Deſires of ambitious Monarchs; and by this wonderful Action for the Preſervation of his People, has made himſelf admired and feared by the Kings of all Nations.

Paraphraſe

The LXXVII. PSALM.

Voce mea ad Dominum.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm was compoſed by one of the Houſe of Aſaph, who lived during the time of the Captivity; the Miſeries and length of which, he in this Pſalm bemoans.

I Will cry unto God with my Voice: even unto God will I cry with my Voice, and he ſhall hearken unto me.

2. In the time of my Trouble I ſought the LORD: my Sore ran, and ceaſed not not in the Night-ſeaſon; my Soul refuſed comfort.

3. When I am in heavineſs, I will think upon God: when my Heart is vexed, I will complain.

4. Thou holdeſt mine Eyes waking: I am ſo feeble, that I cannot ſpeak.

5. I have conſidered the Days of old: and the Years that are paſt.

6. I call to remembrance my Song: and in the Night I commune with mine own Heart, and ſearch out my Spirits.

7. Will the Lord abſent himſelf for ever: and will he be no more intreated?

8. Is his Mercy clean gone for ever: and is his Promiſe utterly come to an end for evermore?

9. Hath God forgotten to be gracious: and will he ſhut up his loving Kindneſs in diſpleaſure?

10. And I ſaid, It is mine own Infirmity: but I will remember the Years of the right Hand of the moſt Higheſt.

11. I will remember the Works of the LORD: and call to mind thy Wonders of old time.

12. I will think alſo of all thy Works: and my talking ſhall be of thy doings.

13. Thy way, O God, is holy: who is ſo great a God as our God?

14. Thou art the God that doth Wonders: and haſt declared thy Power among the People.

15. Thou haſt mightily delivered thy People: even the Sons of Jacob and Joſeph.

16. The Waters ſaw thee, O God, the Waters ſaw thee, and were afraid: the depths alſo were troubled.

17. The Clouds poured out Water, the Air thundred: and thine Arrows went abroad.

18. The voice of thy Thunder was heard round about: the Lightnings ſhone upon the Ground, the Earth was moved and ſhook withal.

19. Thy

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXXVII.

WHenever I am oppreſſed by any Misfortune, as in this miſerable State of Captivity, we all of us are under moſt grievous Afflictions, I will addreſs myſelf to God in devout Prayer, and I doubt not but he will anſwer my Petitions.

2. It is my conſtant Practice, in the time of my trouble, to have mine Eyes run with as much vehemency, as if I had a Flux of Rheum in them; both night and day my afflicted Soul refuſes any Conſolation.

3. Whenever I find my Soul oppreſſed with Grief, I will pour it out to God in devout Prayer, and lay before him the Unhappineſs of my Condition.

4. And the preſent affliction, which thou art pleaſed to lay upon me, is ſo very grievous, that I cannot take my reſt in my Bed, my Tongue not being able to utter my Sorrows.

5. But to aſſwage my Grief, I recount the many remarkable Inſtances of thy Providence vouchſafed to our Nation, as they ſtand recorded in our ſacred Annals.

6. Then I fall to my accuſtomed Method of compoſing Pſalms to thy Honour; and This gives me occaſion of reflecting upon my Sins, which are the ſad occaſion of my Misfortunes; and ſuggeſts to me the proper Methods I ought to purſue, in making my Peace with God.

7. Is God ſo very angry with our Nation, that he is reſolv'd never to be reconcil'd to us again?

8. Have we no Foundation for our Hope left, in his former Mercies and Promiſes which he made to us, and muſt we be utterly rejected, after his having choſen us to be his People?

9. Has God diveſted himſelf of his Goodneſs, which is his beloved Attribute, and will he ſuffer his Juſtice entirely to ſwallow up that lovely Quality?

10. Then thought I to my ſelf, that tho' this is a very grievous Affliction, and as much as Fleſh and Blood can bear, yet it is what God has ſent us, and what we by our Sins have deſerved; and we will remember, how thou haſt delivered thy Servants from as ſevere Calamities, in former times.

11. Thoſe miraculous Preſervations, which thou haſt heretofore afforded us, ſhall be a ſufficient ground for us to expect Deliverance now.

12. Nay, theſe wonderful Deliverances, ſuch as our Redemption from the Egyptian Bondage, ſhall be a conſtant Subject for my thoughts to meditate upon; theſe ſhall afford matter for my Diſcourſe, and be a Theme to exerciſe my Pſalmody.

13. Thou doſt always purſue the moſt juſt and holy Methods, in the ſevereſt Diſpenſations of thy Providence, altho' we cannot comprehend them with our mortal Eye; therefore even under theſe great Afflictions, which thou art pleaſed to lay upon us, we cannot but acknowledge thee to be the only true God, a God of infinite Wiſdom and Majeſty.

14. Thou art that great God, by whoſe Power Moſes wrought his mighty Miracles, to the Aſtoniſhment and Confuſion of the Egyptian People.

15. It was thou that didſt deliver thy choſen People from the Tyranny of Pharaoh, as well the Poſterity of Joſeph, which were all begotten in that Kingdom, as the Seed of Jacob and his other Sons, who came Sojourners to inhabit there.

16. That ungovernable Body of Waters the Sea, being as it were affrighted at thy Preſence, fled back from before thee, and afforded a dry Paſſage for the Iſraelites to paſs through its Channel.

17. The Clouds poured out prodigious Showers of Water, condenſed into maſſy Hail-Stones; the Skies rung with Peals of Thunder, and Flaſhes of Lightning, like ſo many fiery Arrows, were ſhot from every quarter of the Sky.

18. All Egypt was affrighted by ſuch roaring Claps of Thunder, as were never heard before; a thick and ſubſtantial Lightning, like heaps of burning Coals, or a Torrent of melted Metal, run glowing along the Ground, an Earthquake at the ſame time ſhaking the Earth, as if it were ready to move out of its place.

19. Thou

19. Thy way is in the Sea, and thy paths in the great Waters: and thy footsteps are not known.

20. Thou leddest thy People like Sheep: by the Hand of Moses and Aaron.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LXXVIII. PSALM.

Attendite, populo.

¶ ¶ This Psalm was written, to put the People in mind of the many Instances of the Divine Favours to the People of the Jews, whilst they continued in Obedience to God's Commands; as likewise of the particular Marks of his Displeasure towards them, upon their lapsing into Idolatry, or pursuing a vitious Course of Life. And because he closes his pious Observations, taken out of the Sacred History, with the Reign of David, it makes it highly probable, that the Asaph who composed this Hymn was the famous inspired Singer, who belonged to the Tabernacle in David's time.

HEar my Law, O my People: incline your Ears unto the Words of my Mouth.

2. I will open my Mouth in a Parable: I will declare hard Sentences of old.

3. Which we have heard and known; and such as our Fathers have told us;

4. That we should not hide them from the Children of the Generations to come; but to shew the Honour of the LORD, his mighty and wonderful Works that he hath done.

5. He made a Covenant with Jacob, and gave Israel a Law: which he commanded our fore-Fathers to teach their Children.

6. That their Posterity might know it: and the Children which were yet unborn;

7. To the intent that when they came up: they might shew their Children the same;

8. That they might put their trust in God: and not to forget the Works of God, but to keep his Commandments;

9. And not to be as their fore-Fathers, a faithless and stubborn Generation: a Generation that set not their Heart a-right, and whose Spirit cleaveth not stedfastly unto God;

10. Like as the Children of Ephraim: who being harnessed, and carrying Bows, turned themselves back in the Day of Battle.

11. They kept not the Covenant of God: and would not walk in his Law;

12. But forgat what he had done: and the wonderful Works that he had shewed for them.

13. Marvellous things did he in the sight of our fore-Fathers, in the Land of Egypt: even in the Field of Zoan.

14. He divided the Sea, and let them go through: he made the Waters to stand on a heap.

15. In

19. Thou didst go before thy People, leading them in a Tract at the bottom of the Red-Sea, which was never discovered to any human Eye before, and when they were arrived safely on the opposite shore, the Waters closed again, and the Path, through which they made their miraculous March, shall never be seen again to all Eternity.

20. And lastly, after this, thou wast pleased, in thy Goodness, to conduct our Nation in their March, through all the blind ways of the Wilderness, as a Shepherd leads his Sheep; Moses and Aaron, under whose Government they were, receiving all their Orders and Instructions from thee.

Paraphrase on Psal. LXXVIII.

O My Countrey-men, the People of the Jews, attend with diligence to the words which I am now going to speak unto you.

2. I will lay before you several very instructive Considerations worthy of your Remark, which are gathered out of the Sacred Records, relating to Matters of Fact, some of which happened in former Ages at a very remote distance from us:

3. Matters of Fact, which being written in our inspired Books, we are sure of the Truth of; and others, being handed down to us by Tradition from our Fathers, we can entertain no reasonable Suspicion concerning them.

4. Which instructive Truths, as our Forefathers have delivered down to us, so we have the justest reason to hand them down to our Children likewise; that all future Generations may be sensible of those stupendous Works, which God has been pleased to do for our sakes.

5. For when God establish'd our Judicial Law, he laid an Injunction upon the Parents, That they should teach, not only the Precepts of the Law, but also Gods miraculous Deliverances, to their Sons, and their Sons Sons, Deut. 4. 9.

6. That future Generations, which should be descended from them, might be informed of these excellent Rules of Life, and kind Dispensations of God's Providence.

7. And when these Generations should be grown up, they should instil the same Truths into their Children likewise.

8. That being well-instructed in the Mosaical Institutions, they might not be so liable to transgress them; and that being informed of God's former gracious Dispensations, they might be inforced, out of Gratitude, to obey his Commands.

9. And that they might not copy after their Predecessors the Jews in former times, who, tho' they were so highly befriended by God, yet carried themselves very obstinately and stubbornly towards him, falling into Idolatrous Worship; and if they kept themselves from Idols, they did not fear and trust in God, with that Sincerity which they ought.

10. Nay they turned their Backs as much upon God's Commandments, as the Israelites did when they run away from the Amorites, Deut. 1. 48. when even the Ephramites, that were our famous Archers, and in whose Prowess the strength of the Army lay, run cowardly away, and left the Victory to the Enemies.

11. They being stomachfully and unreasonably Disobedient, would not conform themselves to the holy Laws, which God gave them to govern their Lives by.

12. But immediately forgot God's Miracles wrought in their behalf, and upon every new Difficulty which arose, fell presently to a distrusting of God's Providence, and murmuring against Moses.

13. And yet at the same time that they were so peevish and froward, they could not but remember, what unheard-of Miracles God had wrought for their sakes in Zoan, that Province of Egypt, where Pharaoh kept his Court.

14. He separated the Waters of the Red-Sea, affording them a dry Path for them to march through the Waters, being heaped upon one another, as Stones in a Wall, upon each side of them, Exod. 14. 22.

15. In the Day-time he conducted them, and shewed them the way that they should take, by a thick Cloud which skreened them from the scorching-heat of the Sun; and at night he di-

15. In the Day-time also he led them with a Cloud: and all the Night through with a light of Fire.

16. He clave the hard Rocks in the Wilderness: and gave them drink thereof, as it had been out of the great depth.

17. He brought Waters out of the stony Rock: so that it gush'd out like the Rivers.

18. Yet for all this they sinned more against him: and provoked the most Highest in the Wilderness.

19. They tempted God in their Hearts: and required Meat for their Lust.

20. They spake against God also, saying: Shall God prepare a Table in the Wilderness?

21. He smote the stony Rock indeed, that the Water gushed out, and the streams flowed withal: but can he give Bread also, or provide Flesh for his People?

22. When the LORD heard this, he was wroth: so the Fire was kindled in Jacob, and there came up heavy displeasure against Israel.

23. Because they believed not in God: and put not their Trust in his help.

24. So he commanded the Clouds above: and open'd the Doors of Heaven.

25. He rained down Manna also upon them for to eat: and gave them Food from Heaven.

26. So Man did eat Angels Food: for he sent them Meat enough.

27. He caused the East Wind to blow under Heaven: and through his Power he brought in the South-West Wind.

28. He rained Flesh upon them, as thick as Dust: and feathered Fowls, like as the sand of the Sea.

29. He let it fall among their Tents: even round about their habitation.

30. So they did eat, and were well filled, for he gave them their own desire: they were not disappointed of their Lust.

31. But while the Meat was yet in their Mouths, the heavy Wrath of God came upon them, and slew the wealthiest of them: yea, and smote down the chosen Men that were in Israel.

32. But for all this they sinned yet more: and believed not his wondrous Works.

33. Therefore their Days did he consume in Vanity: and their Years in Trouble.

34. When

rected them by bright Light, which shone before them, Exod. 13. 21.

16. He commanded his Servant Moses to smite the Rock of Rephidim, Exod. 17. 6. and that of Kadesh, Numb. 20. 8, 11. upon which the Waters flowed out with such a mighty Stream, as not only served them and their Cattle to drink thereof, but made a great Pond or Lake, in a manner resembling the Sea.

17. And if one had been to view, with what a gushing Stream the Water poured down from those craggy Rocks, one would have taken it to have been the Cataract of some great River falling down a Precipice.

18. But notwithstanding this miraculous Relief in their Distress, they presently fell into a new Distrust of his Providence, thereby in a very high degree provoking his Goodness.

19. They still proceeded to murmur at God's Dispensations, and not being content with the Food God had sent them, Exod. 16. they would have Flesh to gratifie their wanton Appetite.

20. They impiously again made a Doubt of God's Omnipotence; Is God able to furnish us out a plentiful Table in this barren Wilderness?

21. We do not deny, but he might by some extraordinary way, open the Rocks, and let the Waters which were lodged before in their Caverns, flow out; but does his Power reach to afford us substantial Food, not showers of Manna, but the solid Flesh of Birds or Beasts, in this barren Country, where hardly any living Creature is wont to appear?

22. This provoked Almighty God to such a high degree, that he inflicted very severe Punishments upon them; as particularly, he destroyed many of them by Lightning, Numb. 11. 6.

23. Because, notwithstanding the Instances of many miraculous Operations which they had been Eye-witnesses of, they still continued to distrust his Promises, of conducting them to the Land of Canaan.

24. But, notwithstanding this ungracious return which they made to God's Goodness he still continued his wonted Favour to them, by miraculously making the Clouds drop down Manna upon them in such an abundance, as if the Doors of Heaven's Granary were opened, and Bread-Corn with vehemence were poured out upon them.

25. The Rains then did not by moistening the Earth, ripen the Grain in the ordinary and slow way of Vegetation; but Showers of a sort of Bread-Corn ready for Food, fell down from the Skies.

26. And by this all the mighty number of the Israelites were filled with a delicious Food, that Angels, if they wanted Nourishment, would desire to be fed with; and this in such Abundance, that every one was satisfied.

27. Tho' this Manna was a sufficient Nourishment and Support for their Bodies, yet God was pleased to comply with their Weakness, and to gratifie their Fondness, and caused a South-East Wind to blow.

28. This Wind brought a wondrous Flight of Quails, which fell down among them in a Shower, and lay so thick upon the Ground, that like the Sea-Sands, they were not to be numbred, Numb. 11. 31.

29. All round their Tents every day, fell down great Heaps of these delicious Birds.

30. So they did eat in great Abundance, and gratifie their wanton Appetites to the full.

31. But while the Flesh was yet between their Teeth, and before it was chewed, the Wrath of the Lord was kindled against the People, and the Lord smote the People with a very great Plague, Numb. 11. 33. By this terrible Pestilence, sweeping away the richest and the noblest of the Tribes.

32. But such was their Obstinacy, that these severe Judgments made little or no Impression upon them, but they presently fell into still greater Stubbornness and Infidelity, distrusting God's Preservation, notwithstanding his innumerable Miracles wrought for their Sakes, and not believing his Promise in bringing them to Canaan.

33. Therefore God resolved, that that Generation should never enter into that promised Land, but should die in the Wilderness, Numb. 14. 28. and therefore wore them out in fruitless Wanderings through the Wilderness, some severe Affliction or other still exercising them, till they were totally consumed, except Caleb and Joshua.

34. Indeed

34. When he ſlew them, they ſought him : and turned them early, and enquired after God.

35. And they remembred that God was their Strength : and that the High God was their Redeemer.

36. Nevertheleſs, they did but flatter him with their Mouth : and diſſembled with him in their Tongue.

37. For their Heart was not whole with him : neither continued they ſtedfaſt in his Covenant.

38. But he was ſo merciful, that he forgave their miſdeeds : and deſtroyed them not.

39. Yea, many a time turned he his wrath away : and would not ſuffer his whole diſpleaſure to ariſe.

40. For he conſidered that they were but Fleſh : and that they were even a Wind that paſſeth away, and cometh not again.

41. Many a time did they provoke him in the Wilderneſs : and grieved him in the Deſert.

42. They turned back and tempted God : and moved the holy One in Iſrael.

43. They thought not of his Hand : and of the Day when he delivered them from the Hand of the Enemy;

44. How he had wrought his Miracles in Egypt : and his wonders in the Field of Zoan.

45. He turned their Waters into Blood : ſo that they might not drink of the Rivers.

46. He ſent Lice among them, and devoured them up : and Frogs to deſtroy them.

47. He gave their Fruit unto the Caterpiller : and their Labour unto the Graſhopper.

48. He deſtroyed their Vines with Hail-Stones : and their Mulberry-Trees with the Froſt.

49. He ſmote their Cattle alſo with Hail-Stones : and their Flocks with hot Thunder-Bolts.

50. He caſt upon them the furiouſneſs of his Wrath, Anger, Diſpleaſure and Trouble : and ſent Evil Angels among them.

51. He made a way to his indignation, and ſpared not their Soul from Death : but gave their Life over to the Peſtilence.

52. And ſmote all the firſt-Born in Egypt : the moſt principal and mightieſt in the dwellings of Ham.

53. But

34. Indeed ſome time after, when God's Judgments were extraordinary ſevere upon them, they entered upon ſome faint degrees of Repentance, and implored God's Pardon, ſhewing ſome willingneſs to be reconciled to his Favour.

35. And they came to acknowledge, That all their Safety did depend upon God, and that their Nation could not expect any Deliverance, but from him the only true God, whom they worſhipped.

36. But this was but a Copy of their Countenances, and not any real Renovation of their Mind; all their Repentance and Reſolution of Amendment being feigned.

37. For their Hearts were not rightly diſpoſed, nor entirely bent to ſerve him, but continually broke the Engagements which they made to God, Numb. 16. 3. & 20. 3, 4.

38. But notwithſtanding this Inſincerity and Colluſion, which they ſhewed towards God, he, out of his gracious Goodneſs, was pleaſed to remit a great deal of the Puniſhment which he had decreed againſt them, Numb. 14. 11.

39. He ſhewed them ſeveral Inſtances, of his puniſhing them leſs than their Sins had deſerved.

40. For he was pleaſed graciouſly to conſider, that they were but Men derived from a Stock originally depraved, and ſubject to a world of Temptations, and to the hurry of many tumultuous Paſſions : and that their whole Life was but a puff of Wind, which whiffles about for a minute or two, and ſpends itſelf, and no one hears of it afterwards.

41. And tho' their Puniſhment was very ſevere, yet they could not expect better Treatment from God, they having been guilty of ſuch frequent Diſtruſts concerning him, and murmuring againſt him, no leſs than ten ſeveral times, Numb. 14. 22. during the forty Years of their ſtay there.

42. Sometimes reſolving to run back into their Egyptian Slavery again, at other times unneceſſarily putting him upon the Expence of new Miracles, to gratifie their Curioſity and Peeviſhneſs, whilſt at other times, they diſtruſted God's Ability to help them.

43. All that time, ſtupid People as they were! never reflecting upon the unparallel'd Miracles which he had wrought, for their Deliverance from the Oppreſſion of Pharaoh :

44. Thoſe mighty Miracles, which Moſes by God's Aſſiſtance did, in Zoan, that Province of Egypt where Pharaoh kept his Court :

45. When he changed the Waters of the great River Nile, and that of all the Canals and Ciſterns which were fed by it, into putrid Gore; ſo that neither Men nor Cattle could drink of it, Exod. 7. 21.

46. After that, he ſent among the Egyptians a Plague of Lice, which eat into their Bodies, Exod. 8. 21. and another Plague of Frogs, whoſe filthy Slime made all the Fruits of the Earth, and their other Proviſions, ſo foul, that they could not be eaten, Exod. 8. 5.

47. Next this, God ſent Swarms of Catterpillars and Graſshoppers to deſtroy the Fruits of the Earth, as faſt as they ſhould increaſe, Exod. 10. 4.

48 Then they were plagued by a Froſt, which killed their Vines to the very Roots ; and by Hail-ſtones, which fell with ſuch a Fury, as to tear off the Branches, and ſtrip off the Bark of their Mulberry-Trees.

49. And leſt the Hail ſhould not do Execution enough, there was Fire mingled with it; both which together, deſtroy'd not only Lambs and Flocks of Sheep, but the Herds of larger Cattle likewiſe, Exod. 9. 25.

50. By ſeveral other Plagues he manifeſted his ſevere Diſpleaſure towards them ; as by the Murrain-Boils, and continual Darkneſs, Exod. 9. 10. till at laſt he ſent out his Deſtroying Angels into every Houſe of the Egyptians, Exod. 12. 23.

51. And they ſcattered the Contagion of a ſweeping Peſtilence where-ever they came, deſtroying in one Night's time ſuch an innumerable multitude of People, as frighted every Houſe with one or more dead Corpſes.

52. He ſtruck with ſudden Death every Firſt-born both of Man and Beaſt, in the Country of Egypt, which was peopled by Miſraim the Son of Ham, Exod. 12. 3.

53. But

53. But as for his own People, he led them forth like Sheep: and carried them in the Wilderneſs like a Flock.

54. He brought them out ſafely, that they ſhould not fear: and overwhelmed their Enemies with the Sea.

55. And brought them within the Borders of his Sanctuary: even to his Mountain which he purchaſed with his right Hand.

56. He caſt out the Heathen alſo before them: cauſed their Land to be divided among them for an Heritage, and made the Tribes of Iſrael to dwell in their Tents.

57. So they tempted and diſpleaſed the moſt High God: and kept not his Teſtimonies;

58. But turned their Backs, and fell away like their fore-Fathers: ſtarting aſide like a broken Bow.

59. For they grieved him with their Hill-Altars: and provoked him to diſpleaſure with their Images.

60. When God heard this, he was Wroth: and took ſore Diſpleaſure at Iſrael;

61. So that he forſook the Tabernacle in Silo: even the Tent that he had pitched among Men.

62. He delivered their Power into Captivity: and their Beauty into the Enemies Hands.

63. He gave his People over alſo unto the Sword: and was wroth with his Inheritance.

64. The Fire conſumed their young Men: and their Maidens were not given to Marriage.

65. Their Prieſts were ſlain with the Sword: and there were no Widows to make lamentation.

66. So the Lord awaked as one out of Sleep: and like a Giant refreſhed with Wine.

67. He ſmote his Enemies in the hinder Parts: and put them to a perpetual Shame.

68. He refuſed the Tabernacle of Joſeph: and choſe not the Tribe of Ephraim;

69. But choſe the Tribe of Juda: even the Hill of Sion which he loved.

70. And there he built his Temple on high: and laid the Foundation of it like the Ground which he hath made continually.

71. He

53. But as for the Iſraelites, whom he choſe to be his peculiar People, he took care of them by an eſpecial Providence, conducting them through the Wilderneſs, as a Shepherd guides his Flock, continually watching over them, and providing them with Supplies in all their Wants.

54. He led them on, and made them go fearleſs through the midſt of the Sea, whilſt the ſwelling Waters ſeemed to hover over their Heads on each ſide; which, as ſoon as they had paſſed over to the other Shore, fell down with violence upon their purſuing Adverſaries, and drowned them all.

55. It was his careful Providence, which brought them into the Land of Canaan, and particularly gave them Poſſeſſion of Mount Sion, which was won by King David from the Jebuſites, 2 Sam. 5. 6. and where the Holy Ark of God is now repoſited.

56. It was his peculiar Grace and Favour that endowed them with Strength, to ſubdue the old Inhabitants of the Land of Canaan, and which afforded them an opportunity of dividing among themſelves, by Lot, the parts of that fruitful Country, after the expulſion of the Canaanites.

57. But for all theſe miraculous Favours indulged to them, they ſtill continued in their ancient Obſtinacy and hardneſs of Heart, diſtruſting his Providence and diſobeying his Laws.

58. They continued to purſue the Steps of their fore-Fathers who came out of Ægypt, in falling frequently into Idolatry, and a diſtruſt of God's Providence; erring as much from the Mark of their Duty, which God by his Laws had preſcribed them, as an Arrow that falls from a Bow, which is ſnapped in the drawing.

59. For they grievouſly offended God by building Altars in high Places, Conſecrated to ſome Pagan-Idol, which was Worſhipped there.

60. This was yet a higher provocation of God, which made him withdraw his wonted Favour, and to take up a Reſolution of inflicting very ſevere Puniſhments upon them:

61. To leave their Armies to themſelves without his Aid and Aſſiſtance, ſuffering them to be routed by the Philiſtines, and to let his Sacred Ark be taken by thoſe Infidels; that Ark which he had taken up for the place of his eſpecial Preſence, 1 Sam. 4. 10.

62. Thus he let that, which was the Seat of his Power and Beauty, to be poſſeſſed by our Idolatrous Enemies.

63. Suffering a great number of the Iſraelites, whom for their Sins he was angry with, to fall by the Sword of the Philiſtines, 1 Sam. 4. 10.

64. The Anger of God, like a fierce Fire, deſtroyed their young Men, the flower of their Army, more than the Philiſtine-Troops, who vanquiſhed them; the ſlaughter of which was ſo great, that many Virgins were forced to remain unmarried.

65. Several of the Prieſts that were Conſecrated to the Divine Service, were killed by that prevailing Enemy, 1 Sam. 4. 11. and their Widows were ſo grieved by the publick Loſs, that they could not lament the loſs of their Husbands, 1 Sam. 4. 20.

66. Then God roſe up in haſte to take Vengeance upon theſe prophane Enemies, with as much eagerneſs as a chief Commander, riſeth up from Sleep, during whoſe repoſe ſomething very diſadvantageous had happened to his Army; and fell on them with as much Fury, as an Athletick or Combatant redoubles his Strength upon his Antagoniſt, after he is refreſhed by a Cup of Wine.

67. For God ſmote them with ſevere Diſeaſes, ſending the Hæmorrhoids among them, whereby their ſhameful Parts laboured under very ſharp Pains, 1 Sam. 5. 6. becoming thereby a reproach to their Neighbours.

68. This Plague inflicted upon the Philiſtines, forced them to bring back the Ark again, which God then would not have to remain, as before at Shilo, which belonged to the Tribe of Ephraim, the Son of Joſeph:

69. But choſe rather to have it placed in Mount Sion, which is ſituate within the Territories of the Tribe of Judah.

70. And there God deſigns to have a fixt and ſtately Temple built to his Honour, which ſhall not be removed from Place to Place, as the Ark and Tabernacle, but be as fixt and immoveable as the Ground on which it is to be built.

71. Out

71. He choſe David alſo his Servant: and took him away from the Sheepfolds.
72. As he was following the Ews great with young ones he took him: that he might feed Jacob his People, and Iſrael his Inheritance.
73. So he fed them with a faithful and true Heart: and ruled them prudently with all his Power.

MORNING PRAYER.

The LXXIX PSALM.

Deus, venerunt.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm being intituled, A Pſalm of Aſaph, was written by the ſame Aſaph who compoſed the LXXIVth Pſalm, which is upon the ſame Subject, viz. The Deſtruction of Jeruſalem by Nebuchadnezzar.

O God, the Heathen are come into thine Inheritance: thy holy Temple have they defiled, and made Jeruſalem an heap of Stones.
2. The dead Bodies of thy Servants have they given to be Meat unto the Fowls of the Air: and the Fleſh of thy Saints unto the Beaſts of the Land.
3. Their Blood have they ſhed like Water on every ſide of Jeruſalem: and there was no Man to bury them.
4. We are become an open Shame to our Enemies: a very Scorn and Deriſion unto them that are round about us.
5. LORD, how long wilt thou be angry: ſhall thy Jealouſie burn like Fire for ever?
6. Pour out thine Indignation upon the Heathen that have not known thee: and upon the Kingdoms that have not called upon thy Name.
7. For they have devoured Jacob: and laid waſte his Dwelling-place.
8. O remember not our old Sins, but have Mercy upon us, and that ſoon: for we are come to great Miſery.
9. Help us, O God of our Salvation, for the Glory of thy Name: O deliver us, and be merciful unto our Sins for thy Names ſake.
10. Wherefore do the Heathen ſay: Where is now their God?
11. O let the Vengeance of thy Servant's Blood that is ſhed: be openly ſhewed upon the Heathen in our ſight.

12. O

71. Out of the Tribe of Judah likewiſe, God was pleaſed to chooſe his firſt good King he ſet over his People, his pious Servant David, who was ſo far from being born to the Purple, that God raiſed him to that high Office from the Sheep-folds.

72. He being the younger Son of Jeſſe a plain Country-man, whoſe Flocks of Sheep he was feeding, and following after the Ews that were ready to Yean, that he might take up the Lambs which they dropped before they came to any damage; whilſt he was exerciſing this mean Employ, he received his Call to the Regal Office by the Prophet, 1 Sam. 10. 11. to feed the People of Iſrael.

73. And truly he performed the Royal Shepherd's part as well as the Rural; for he has governed the Nation with admirable Juſtice and Integrity, and with a Skill ſuperior to thoſe Princes which are of Royal Extractions, and are educated in Expectation of a Crown.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXIX.

O Merciful God, we beſeech thee to afford thy Aſſiſtance, to free us from this inſupportable Miſery and Tyranny of our Adverſaries; for the Heathen Idolaters have taken Poſſeſſion of our Country, which thou waſt formerly pleaſed to own for thy Inheritance, and they have not only profaned thy Sacred Temple, by their irreverent Behaviour therein, but have plundered it of all the holy Utenſils and Treaſure, and have made the once noble City Jeruſalem a Heap of Rubbiſh.

2. They have not only murdered the Prieſts, and other holy Perſons that officiated in that ſacred Place, but have not allowed their Bodies to be interred, ſuffering them to be devoured by wild Beaſts and ravenous Birds.

3. They have made their Blood to run down the Streets of Jeruſalem like Water, no kind Friend was ſuffered decently to interr their Corps.

4. We that formerly gave Laws to the Edomites, and other neighbouring Nations, are now become the Jeſt and By-word to them, Ezek. 35. 72.

5. O Lord, we hope, that this extreme Severity, which thou art pleaſed to exerciſe us with, will not continue any very long time; and that this Jealouſie of thine, which now, like a conſuming Fire, flames againſt us, for our Spiritual Adultery and Worſhip of ſtrange Gods, will not always laſt, ſo that we are never to be received into thy Favour again.

6. We pray thee to lay thy Judgments upon our Enemies the Heatheniſh Babylonians, who pay thee no Worſhip, but pay all their Religious Addreſſes to Devils and dumb Images; rather than upon us, who tho' guilty of many Sins, do ſtill continue to be devout Worſhippers of thee the true God.

7. For their Wickedneſs now ſeems to be ripe for thy Vengeance, upon their Commiſſion of ſuch abominable Crimes, as the Depopulation of a Country peculiarly bleſſed by God, and by demoliſhing the only Temple in the whole World, which was dedicated to the true Deity.

8. But we beſeech thee, O Lord, in this ſevere Viſitation of thine, ſince our own Sins are ſo very great, do not bring to our account the Sins committed by our fore-Fathers, particularly their Idolatry paid to the Calf, which God for a long time threatned to viſit, Exod. 32. 34. but, if it be thy heavenly Pleaſure, grant us a ſpeedy Iſſue from this inſupportable Miſery, which our captive Condition, and the barbarous Tyranny of our Maſters, expoſes us to.

9. We pray thee to deliver us from this Oppreſſion, to pardon our Sins, and to reſtore us to our Country again, if not for our Sakes (for we confeſs we cannot deſerve it) yet for thy own Honour, which our wicked Adverſaries daily Blaſpheme and Undervalue; for ſuffering thy only true Worſhippers to be in ſuch a forlorn State of Captivity.

10. Why ſhouldeſt thou ſuffer theſe Heathen Wretches to make this Reflection upon us, What is become of this Nation's only true God now? and why are his Servants the moſt wretched People of the Univerſe?

11. Therefore, O Lord, do thou pour out thy Vengeance upon theſe wicked Wretches, call them to a ſevere reckoning for all the innocent and ſacred Blood which they have ſpilt; and let not only our Eyes but let all the World ſee, that thou wilt not ſuffer theſe Injuries and Indignities, offered to thy poor Servants, to go unpuniſhed.

12. O let the ſorrowful ſighing of the Priſoners come before thee: according to the greatneſs of thy Power, preſerve thou thoſe that are appointed to die.

13. And for the Blaſphemy wherewith our Neighbours have Blaſphemed thee: reward thou them, O LORD, ſeven-fold into their Boſom:

14. So we that are thy People, and Sheep of thy Paſture, ſhall give thee Thanks or ever: and will alway be ſhewing forth thy Praiſe from Generation to Generation.

The LXXX PSALM.

Qui regis Iſrael.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, To the chief Muſician upon Shuthannim Eduth, i. e. the Hexachord or ſix-ſtringed Inſtrument of the Sanctuary, A Pſalm of Aſoph. The Perſon who compoſed this Pſalm was one of the Aſaphian Family, who was carried into the Captivity and enlited this Hymn there; upon the ſame Subject with the former Pſalm, viz. the Miſeries and Hardſhips which they underwent under the oppreſſion of their Aſſyrian Maſters.

HEar, O thou Shepherd of Iſrael, thou that leadeſt Joſeph like a Sheep: ſhew thy ſelf alſo, thou that ſitteſt upon the Cherubims.

2. Before Ephraim, Benjamin and Manaſſes: ſtir up thy Strength, and come and help us.

3. Turn us again, O God, ſhew the light of thy Countenance, and we ſhall be whole.

4. O LORD God of Hoſts: how long wilt thou be angry with thy People that prayeth?

5. Thou feedeſt them with Bread of Tears: and giveſt them plenteouſneſs of Tears to drink.

6. Thou haſt made us a very ſtrife unto our Neighbours: and our Enemies laugh us to Scorn.

7. Turn us again, thou God of Hoſts: ſhew the light of thy Countenance, and we ſhall be whole.

8. Thou haſt brought a Vine out of Egypt: thou haſt caſt out the Heathen and planted it.

9. Thou madeſt room for it: and when it had taken root, it filled the Land.

10. The Hills were covered with the ſhadow of it: and the Boughs thereof were like the goodly Cedar-Trees.

11. She ſtretched out her Branches unto the Sea: and her Boughs unto the River.

12. Why haſt thou then broken down her Hedge: that all they that go by pluck off her Grapes?

13. The wild Boar out of the Wood doth root it up: and the wild Beaſts of the Field devour it.

14. Turn

12. A great many of our poor Country-men are now in Bonds and Fetters, and ready to have the Sentence of Death executed upon us; O do thou interpoſe thy Omnipotent Power, and reſcue them from their impendent Fate.

13. And ſince they have ſo egregiouſly diſhonoured thy holy Name and Religion, by their impious Speeches concerning thee, and their cruel Treatment of thy choſen People; let thy Seven-fold, (i.e.) very ſevere Puniſhment, fall upon them.

14. And for this opportune Interpoſition of thy Providence in our behalf, we thy choſen People will keep a continual Feſtival in token of this great Deliverance from our Captivity, and no future Generation ſhall be backward, in paying their Acknowledgment for ſuch a remarkable Bleſſing.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXX.

O Thou who haſt all along been pleaſed to be, as it were, the Shepherd of the People of Iſrael, we beſeech thee to hear our Prayers, and to exert thy Paſtoral Care at this preſent Juncture, over thy poor Flock, who are now ready to be devoured by Wolves; and to comfort our dejected Hearts in this ſad time: Manifeſt thy Glory to us, as thou didſt uſe to appear with, when we beheld thy Shechinah from thy Seat, the Ark of the Covenant, which was placed between the Cherubims.

2. Shew thy ſelf with as much Glory and Power, as thou waſt wont formerly to diſcover thy ſelf to the Tribes of Ephraim, Benjamin and Manaſſes, whoſe Tents were pitched nigheſt to the Sanctuary, when they travelled through the Wilderneſs, Numb. 2. 18. Let our Enemies feel the Vengeance of this glorious Power, and we thy Servants the aſſiſtance thereof.

3. O reſtore us to our Country again, and put an end to our Captivity and Exile, and admit us to thy Favour again by pardoning our Offences; and then we ſhall think ourſelves to be in a happy Condition indeed.

4. O Lord, thou who art the Creator and Governour of all Angelical Order, we hope this thy ſevere Anger will not long continue towards thy choſen People, who earneſtly put up Petitions to thee, in this great diſtreſs.

5. The daily Food which thou feedeſt us now with, are Sighs and Groans: and the Drink which thou affordeſt us, is a large Cup of Tears.

6. Thou, by our Captivity, has occaſioned us to be a ground of Contention to the Idumeans, and our other Neighbouring-Nations, who quarrel about the dividing our former Eſtates; who likewiſe rejoice and triumph over theſe our ſad misfortunes.

7. O reſtore us to our Country again, put an end to our Captivity and Exile, and re-admit us to thy Favour, by pardoning our Offences; and then we ſhall think our ſelves to be in a happy condition.

8. Thou didſt formerly bring us thy choſen People, as it were a choice Vine, out of Ægypt, and, after having rooted up the ancient Inhabitants of Canaan, didſt plant it in that fruitful Country.

9. And, that it might flouriſh the better, thou didſt pluck up all the wild Idolatrous Plants which grew round, after which it did ſo happily take root, that it ſpread its Branches all over that Country which was entirely Peopled by the Offſpring of Abraham.

10. It put forth its noble Shoots to ſo large an extent, that it covered the ſides of the Hills; the heads of the Cedar-Trees not diſplaying a more gallant verdure, than this Vine.

11. It ſpread itſelf all over the Land of Canaan, which is extended on the Weſt to the Mediterranean Sea, and on the Eaſt to the Euphrates.

12. Why therefore haſt thou withdrawn thy former Protection from us, and broken down the fence which thou hadſt made round this thy beloved Vine, and permitted the neighbouring Nations round to pluck off the choice Grapes which ſhe has yielded, they poſſeſſing themſelves of the fair Eſtates which belonged to us.

13. The Cattle and Wild Beaſts run into thy Vineyard, and root up the Walks and the Plantations thereof, which were cultivated with ſo exact a Care; all the Wild and Barbarous Nations, which lived near us, partaking of the Spoil of our noble Country.

14. We

14. Turn thee again, thou God of Hoſts, look down from Heaven: behold, and viſit this Vine;

15. And the place of the Vineyard that thy right Hand hath planted: and the Branch that thou madeſt ſo ſtrong for thyſelf.

16. It is burnt with Fire, and cut down: and they ſhall periſh at the rebuke of thy Countenance.

17. Let thy Hand be upon the Man of thy right Hand: and upon the Son of Man, whom thou madeſt ſo ſtrong for thine own ſelf.

18. And ſo will not we go back from thee: O let us live, and we ſhall call upon thy Name.

19. Turn us again, O LORD God of Hoſts: ſhew the Light of thy Countenance, and we ſhall be whole.

The LXXXI. PSALM.

Exultate Deo.

¶¶ This Pſalm is not improbably attributed to Aſaph of David's time. It was compoſed upon a Feaſt of Tabernacles, or the Feaſt of Trumpets, which was a part of it, or rather an Introduction to it, Lev. 23. 24. to be a Hymn for the uſe of the Congregation upon that ſolemn Feſtival. And in the Jewiſh Liturgy, this Pſalm is ſtill made uſe of upon this occaſion. To this the blowing Trumpets v. 3. does refer; For the new Moon in the Month of Tiſri, when this Feaſt was celebrated, was the firſt Day of the Jewiſh Year, in which time the World was ſuppoſed to be created, the Fruits being then ripe. Which conſideration, together with that of the Harveſt being now gathered in, made this to be the moſt joyful and glorious Feſtival of all the Year.

SIng we merrily unto God our Strength: make a cheerful Noiſe unto the God of Jacob.

2. Take the Pſalm, bring hither the Tabret: the merry Harp with the Lute.

3. Blow up the Trumpet in the new Moon: even in the time appointed, and upon our ſolemn Feaſt-day.

4. For this was made a ſtatute for Iſrael: and a Law of the God of Jacob.

5. This he ordained in Joſeph for a Teſtimony: when he came out of the Land of Egypt, and had heard a ſtrange Language.

6. I eaſed his Shoulders from the burden: and his Hands were delivered from making the Pots.

7. Thou calledſt upon me in Troubles, and I delivered thee: and heard thee what time as the Storm fell upon thee.

8. I

14. We beſeech thee therefore, O Lord; out of thy wonted Mercy and Compaſſion, to hear our humble Prayers which we make to thee in this woful Calamity; reſtore us to thy wonted Favour, and look with a favourable Aſpect upon this Vine which thou haſt planted.

15. Afford thy wonted Protection to the Vineyard, which thou thy ſelf, for ſo many Ages haſt cultivated; do thou order and dreſs the Branches of this Vine, which thou waſt wont to make to flouriſh and ſhoot out, with ſuch Strength and Fruitfulneſs, for thy own proper uſe; for we, of all the People in the World, were peculiarly ſet aſide for thy Worſhip.

16. But alas this noble Plant, through the Extremity of thy Diſpleaſure, is cut down and burnt as an unprofitable Stem, and if thou continue thy Severity upon us, the remaining Root will be deſtroyed, and our whole Nation periſh.

17. Let therefore thy wonted Goodneſs be extended to thy choſen People, which, by the right Hand of thy Power, thou haſt preſerved from ſo many former Difficulties and Dangers; whom thou didſt formerly advance to ſo great Glory and Power, in the ſight of the heathen Nations, for the Honour of thy only true Worſhip.

18. And if thou ſhalt be ſo good and gracious, as to deliver us from this miſerable Captivity, we do ſincerely Promiſe, to retain ſuch a juſt Senſe of Gratitude for this thy Mercy, as never to revolt to our former ſinful Courſes and Idolatries again; O revive us from this State of Death, and then we will make it the whole Buſineſs of our Lives, devoutly to worſhip thee, and to obey thy Sacred Commandments.

19. O reſtore us to our Country again, put an end to our Captivity and Exile, re-admit us to thy Favour, by pardoning our Offences; and then we ſhall think ourſelves, to be in a happy Condition indeed.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXXXI.

WE being now to celebrate this noble Feſtival, let us praiſe God with a Conſort of the choiceſt Vocal and Inſtrumental Muſick; let us praiſe that God, who is the great and only Defence of our Jewiſh Nation.

2. Come, ſtrike up with the Flutes and Hoboys; with the airy Violin, and with the ſofter Lute.

3. Have your Eyes fixed upon the Heavens, and as ſoon as ever you diſcover the new Moon of the Month Tiſri, then let all the Trumpets ſound aloud to congratulate the beginning of the New-Year, which is a renowned Feaſt, in Commemoration of the Creation of the World.

4. As Moſes, by particular Direction from God, enjoyned us Jews to obſerve, Lev. 23. 34. Speak unto the Children of Iſrael ſaying, In the ſeventh Month, in the firſt day of the Month, ſhall ye have a Sabbath, a Memorial of blowing of Trumpets, an holy Convocation.

5. This Feſtival God commanded to be obſerved by all the Tribes of Iſrael, not excepting the Tribe of Joſeph, which was diſtinguiſhed from their Brethren by a more plentiful Condition, as being the Deſcendents of ſo great a Progenitor, after God had brought them out of Egypt, where they were Strangers and Sojourners.

6. 'I (ſays God,) by my miraculous Power wrought their 'Deliverance, and reſcued them from the Oppreſſion of Pha-'raoh, who made their Shoulders ſore with the mighty Burden 'he forced them to carry; it was I that freed them from 'that hard and ignominious Labour, which he put them upon, 'to make Bricks and earthen Ware.

7. 'When thou didſt call upon me in thy great Diſtreſs, 'being purſued by Pharaoh and his Army, I heard thy Petitions, 'and deſtroyed thy Enemies, by drowning them in the Red-'Sea; but in the moſt remarkable manner, I anſwered thee, 'when I gave thee the Law from Mount Sinai, which was ac-'companied with ſuch a terrible Storm of Thunder and 'Lightning, Exod. 14. 16.

8. 'I

8. I proved thee alſo: at the Waters of Strife.

9. Hear, O my People, and I will aſſure thee, O Iſrael: if thou wilt hearken unto me,

10. There ſhall no ſtrange God be in thee: neither ſhalt thou worſhip any other God.

11. I am the LORD thy God, who brought thee out of the Land of Egypt: open thy Mouth wide, and I ſhall fill it.

12. But my People would not hear my Voice: and Iſrael would not obey me.

13. So I gave them up unto their own Hearts Luſts: and let them follow their own imaginations.

14. O that my People would have hearkned unto me: for if Iſrael had walked in my ways,

15. I ſhould ſoon have put down their Enemies: and turned my Hand againſt their Adverſaries.

16. The haters of the LORD, ſhould have been found Liars: but their time ſhould have endured for ever.

17. He ſhould have fed them alſo with the fineſt Wheat-flour: and with Honey out of the ſtony Rock ſhould I have ſatisfied thee.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LXXXII. PSALM.

Deus ſtetit.

¶¶ This Pſalm was written by Aſaph, upon the Corruption of ſome wicked Magiſtrates in his time. King Jehoſaphat had made a Reformation of ſeveral Abuſes, which had crept into the Judicatories in his Reign, and eſtabliſh'd Juſtice upon an excellent foot, 2 Chron. 19. 7. But before Hezekiah's time Matters were grown into Diſorder again, as Iſaiah complains, Iſa. 11. 12. and it is upon this Account that Aſaph the Seer, who lived in Hezekiah's time, wrote this Pſalm.

GOD ſtandeth in the Congregation of Princes: he is a Judge among Gods.

2. How long will ye give wrong Judgment: and accept the Perſons of the Ungodly?

3. Defend the Poor and Fatherleſs: ſee that ſuch as are in need and neceſſity have right.

4. Deliver the Out-caſt and Poor: ſave them from the Hand of the Ungodly.

5. They

8. 'I made a Tryal of thy Temper at the Waters of Meribah, Exod. 17. 7.

9. 'Now ſince, O Iſrael, I have heard you ſo often, it becomes you to hearken unto me: I will make a publick Declaration of my Will towards you, and aſcertain you, what Duties I expect of you to perform, and what will be the Conſequence of your Obedience or Neglect.

10. 'I ſtrictly require of you, that you ſhall not worſhip the Gods of other Nations, Exod. 23. 13. nor pay Divine Worſhip to any pretended God, or created Being, Exod. 20. 3, 23.

11. 'Now if thou wilt diſcharge this Duty, which is the Foundation of all true Religion, and follow thoſe other Rules which I, the true God, have preſcribed thee in my Law; I, who am that God whoſe miraculous Power delivered thee from the Egyptian Slavery, will exert my omnipotent Power again in thy defence, and, tho' thou askeſt never ſo great a Benefit, I will grant it thee; nor ſhall thy Affections crave more, than my Goodneſs ſhall anſwer.

12. 'But my People would not ſubmit themſelves, to be governed by the Precepts which I gave them; nor obey thoſe wholſom Laws I preſcribed to them, for a Rule of their Lives.

13. 'But ſince they were ſo ſtubborn and refractory, I ſuffered them to take their own Courſes; to follow blindly whatever their corrupt Affections ſuggeſted to them; and to purſue all the Idolatries and Superſtitions which a miſguided Zeal, and bigotted Fancy, might lead them to.

14. 'But, tho' their Behaviour has been ſo very undutiful and unworthy towards me, yet I could not but heartily wiſh, they would have been governed by my Counſel, and would have yielded obedience to my Laws.

15. 'For then I would moſt certainly have performed my Conditional Promiſe, I made to them; I would have interpoſed my Power, and defended them againſt their ſtrongeſt Enemies.

16. 'The Idolatrous Nations, which have frequently prevail'd againſt Iſrael, ſhould have been always ſubject to them, and have been forced to have paid an outward, tho' a Diſſembled Duty, to their Maſters; but the Peace and Proſperity of the Jewiſh Nation, ſhould have been of a laſting Continuance.

17. 'For then every Year ſhould have been to them a part of a Golden Age, every Harveſt ſhould have filled the Country with Fruits of every kind, which might ſerve both for Uſe and Delicacy; the Fields ſhould have loaded the Wains with Wheat of the fineſt ſort, free from all Smut and Mildew; and every Rock ſhould have ſweated with drops of the ſweeteſt Honey.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. LXXXII.

O All ye Princes and Magiſtrates, whom God has raiſed to a particular eminency above your Brethren, and advanced to be a ſort of Inferior Gods, as being commiſſion'd by his Authority, and acting as his Proxies; do you conſider, that God exerciſes a ſuperior Judicature over you, he minds what you do amiſs in your Courts, and will bring you to a ſevere Reckoning, for any Prevarication in your Acts of Juſtice.

2. Therefore you ought to conſider, what a great degree of Folly and Wickedneſs it is, for you to pervert the Courſe of Juſtice, and by your Sentence to wrong the innocent, and to juſtifie the Oppreſſor.

3, 4. The buſineſs of your high Calling is, to protect poor Men and Orphans, who have no Money to give, and no Friend to ſollicit for them; from the Violences of rich Oppreſſors, and to skreen them by the Juſtice of the Laws, from the Injuries offered them by others.

5. But

5. They will not be learned, nor underſtand, but walk on ſtill in darkneſs: all the Foundations of the Earth are out of courſe.

6. I have ſaid, Ye are Gods: and ye are all the Children of the moſt Higheſt.

7. But ye ſhall die like Men: and fall like one of the Princes.

8. Ariſe, O God, and judge thou the Earth: for thou ſhalt take all Heathen to thine Inheritance.

The LXXXIII PSALM.

Deus, quis ſimilis?

¶¶ This Pſalm bearing the Name of Aſaph, was in all probability compoſed by one of that Family in the Reign of Jehoſaphat; againſt whom, it is recorded, 2 Chron. 20. 1. That the Children of Moab, and the Children of Ammon, and among them other, beſides the Ammonites, came to Battle, which is referred to in this Pſalm, v. 2. 6.

HOld not thy Tongue, O God, keep not ſtill ſilence: refrain not thy ſelf, O God.

2. For lo, thine Enemies, make a murmuring: and they that hate thee, have lift up their Head.

3. They have imagined craftily againſt thy People: and taken Counſel againſt thy ſecret ones.

4. They have ſaid, Come, and let us root them out, that they be no more a People: and that the Name of Iſrael may be no more in remembrance.

5. For they have caſt their Heads together with one conſent: and are confederate againſt thee.

6. The Tabernacles of the Edomites and the Iſmaelites: the Moabites and Hagarens;

7. Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek: the Philiſtines, with them that dwell at Tyre.

8. Aſſur alſo is joyned with them: and have holpen the Children of Lot.

9. But do thou to them as unto the Madianites: unto Siſera, and unto Jabin, at the Brook of Kiſon;

10. Who periſhed at Endor: and became as the Dung of the Earth.

11. Make them and their Princes like Oreb and Zeb: yea, make all their Princes like as Zeba and Salmana;

12. Who ſay, Let us take to our ſelves: the Houſes of God in poſſeſſion. 13. O

5. But the Judges of our time are ſo obſtinately reſolved in their unjuſt Determinations, that they have no Check of Conſcience to reſtrain them from Injuſtice; their Eyes are ſo blinded by Gifts, that they will not ſee what is right, Exod. 23. 8. nay our whole National Conſtitution is like to be ſubverted, when thoſe who ought to maintain the Laws, do offer the greateſt Violence to them.

6. I have ſuffered you to be called by my moſt honourable Name, and to be eſteemed as of a Divine Original, and not of ordinary Human Extraction.

7. But let not theſe great Titles ſwell you up, ſo as to forget whoſe Authority you act by, and whoſe Power you are ſubject to; for you are ſo far from being real Gods, and exempted from the Laws of Mortality, that you ſhall die as well as any ordinary Man, or any Pagan Magiſtrate.

8. But ſince theſe wicked Magiſtrates have ſo ſhamefully perverted the Judicial Power, do thou, O God, take it into thy Hand; for we expect there will be a time, in which thou ſhalt judge the whole World, as well Pagans as Jews, according to their Works; and then thou wilt make them ſeverely pay, for their Violations and Diſtortions of the Rules of Juſtice.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXIII.

WE beſeech thee, O God, not to ſtand ſilently by, as if thou waſt a Neuter in our Cauſe, when our Condition ſeems ſo very hazardous.

2. Eſpecially when our Enemies are ſo clamorous, and threaten ſo loud, and a Confederacy of Idolatrous Nations elated by ſome former Succeſſes, do treat us after ſo arrogant and contemptuous a manner.

3. They have formed very cloſe and cunning Deſigns, in order to invade our Country, and how to ſubdue us to their Yoke, whom thou doſt protect and keep, as it were, ſecretly covered under thy Wing, that they ſhould not injure us.

4. For they have maliciouſly reſolved among themſelves, and mutually encourage each other, utterly to extirpate our Nation, and to make the Name of Jewiſh People to be loſt among Men.

5. There is a joynt-Reſolution of a great many Nations, who for the moſt part have different Intereſts and Views, and yet they all combine together, for the Subverſion of our Government, and thy true Religion.

6. Swarms of barbarous Nations come out of their Huts to invade us, Edomites, Moabites, and Iſmaelites, as well thoſe who took their Name from their Father Iſmael, as from their Mother Hagar.

7. With theſe are joyned the Giblites, Joſ. 13. 5. the Ammonites, Amalekites, Philiſtines, who have invited the Inhabitants of Tyre likewiſe into the Confederacy.

8. And leſt this great Fry of barbarous Aſſociates ſhould not be ſufficient, they have called in likewiſe to their Aſſiſtance the Aſſyrians, to fight for the Ammonites and Moabites, the Deſcendents of Lot, whoſe Cauſe they have eſpouſed, and are a principal Arm (as the Hebrew calls it) or Support of their Cauſe.

9. But we beſeech thee, O Lord, to give us as entire a Victory over theſe many and powerful Enemies, as thou didſt to our Forefathers over the Midianites by the Hand of 300 Men and a few Lamps, Judges 7. 21. let them be deſtroyed, as the Iſraelites did Jabin at the River Kiſhon, Judges 4. 24. and as his General Siſera fell by the Hand of a Woman, v. 21.

10. This memorable Victory being obtained at Endor near Tanach and Megiddo, where this Battle was fought, Joſh. 17. 11. Judges 5. 19. there the Army likewiſe was deſtroyed, and their Carcaſes left rotting.

11. Let theſe Infidel Nations, and their Princes, be as unſucceſsful in their Attempts upon us as Oreb and Zeb, two Princes of the Midianites, who were taken captive in Gideon, Judges 7. 25. and as their two Kings Zebah and Zalmunna, who underwent the ſame Fate, Judges 8. 12.

12. Who encourage one another in a wicked Enterprize, ſaying, Let us poſſeſs ourſelves of, and plunder the Temple of God, and make Spoils of all the Sacred Furniture of that, and of the Synagogues.

13. O my God, make them like unto a Wheel: and as the Stubble before the Wind;

14. Like as the Fire that burneth up the Wood; and as the Flame that conſumeth the Mountains.

15. Perſecute them even ſo with thy Tempeſt: and make them afraid with thy Storm.

16. Make their Faces aſhamed, O LORD: that they may ſeek thy Name.

17. Let them be confounded and vexed ever more and more: let them be put to ſhame and periſh.

18. And they ſhall know that thou whoſe Name is JEHOVAH: art only the moſt High*eſt* over all the Earth.

The LXXXIV PSALM.

Quam dilecta!

¶¶ The Hebrew Title does not inform us, who this Pſalm was written by; it only tells us, That it was directed To the chief Muſician upon Gittith, And to be ſung by the Korites. It was certainly compoſed by one who was hindred from partaking of the publick Worſhip; and therefore David was probably the Author thereof, when he was driven from the City, and hindred from frequenting the Tabernacle, by the prevailing Arms of his Son Abſalom.

O How amiable are thy dwellings: thou LORD of Hoſts!

2. My Soul hath a deſire and longing to enter into the Courts of the LORD: my Heart and my Fleſh rejoyce in the living God.

3. Yea, the Sparrow hath found her an Houſe, and the Swallow a Neſt, where ſhe may lay her young: even thy Altars, O LORD of Hoſts, my King and my God.

4. Bleſſed are they that dwell in thy Houſe: they will be alway praiſing thee.

5. Bleſſed is the Man whoſe Strength is in thee: in whoſe Heart are thy ways.

6. Who going through the vale of Miſery, uſe it for a Well: and the Pools are filled with Water.

7. They will go from Strength to Strength: and unto the God of Gods appeareth every one of them in Sion.

8. O LORD God of Hoſts, hear my Prayer: hearken, O God of Jacob.

9. Behold, O God our defender: and look upon the Face of thine anointed.

10. For one Day in thy Courts: is better than a thouſand.

11. I had rather be a Door-keeper in the Houſe of my God: than to dwell in the Tents of Ungodlineſs.

12. For

13. O thou, our kind Protector, make theſe our Adverſaries to be as giddy and unſettled in their Counſels, and to turn round with as much Volubility, as the Threſſing-Wheels of a Cart, Iſa. 28. 28. and diſperſe their Forces like Chaff blown about by the Wind.

14. Let them be deſtroyed, as Fire burns up a woody mountainous Country, which Men deſign to clear for a better Cultivation.

15. Let a terrible Storm of thy Vengeance ſhatter them, and ſo diſperſe all their Forces, that they may never be able to rally again.

16. Let them receive a ſhameful Defeat, that they may be convinced that thou art the only true God, whoſe Power can defeat ſo great an Army, and that, under this Conviction, they may leave off their Idolatry and join in thy Worſhip.

17. But if they will not be informed by theſe awakening Judgments, do thou then proſecute them with greater Puniſhments, even to their utter Extirpation.

18. That all Men may take warning by their Examples, how they provoke the great JEHOVAH; and that they may learn that thou art the Governour, and ſupreme Lord of all the World.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXIV.

O God, the Lord and Creator of all the Angelick Natures, how lovely is it to be in thy Tabernacle, where ſuch a number of bleſſed Spirits do continually attend!

2. My Soul has a paſſionate deſire and longing, after ſo long an abſence, to come into the Courts of the Tabernacle, and to join in the publick Service there; I have an earneſt Tendency and Wiſhing both of Body and Mind, to preſent myſelf in that holy place, before the preſence of thee who art the true and living God, and not a fictitious Being, as other falſe Gods are.

3. It grieves me to think, that the Sparrows, Swallows, and other Birds, can partake of a Felicity that I am debarred of; and that thou, O my great God and Sovereign, art pleaſed to ſuffer them to build their Neſts, and hatch their young ones in that ſacred Houſe, which I the Prince of the Country am driven from!

4. O what a Happineſs do they enjoy, who have the Opportunity of paying their conſtant Devotion, and at all the ſolemn hours of Worſhip, can return to their Exerciſe of Praiſe and Thankſgiving!

5. O how happy is that Perſon, that has ſtrength to travel to thy Houſe, and whoſe thoughts are taken up in his journeying thither.

6. Thoſe Perſons who live at a great diſtance from the Tabernacle, and are forced to travel over a barren dry Heath, to get to it on a ſolemn day of Worſhip, are very happy Perſons in reſpect of myſelf, who cannot go thither at all; the Comfort and Satisfaction they receive, in being to appear before God, makes them to be as pleaſant in their travelling over the ſcorching-Sands, as if they had Wells and Ciſterns all the way to drink of.

7. Theſe Men do not grow wearier in their travelling, but by reaſon of their pious Joy, grow ſtronger the further they go, till they come to preſent themſelves before God's Table on Mount Sion.

8. O thou who art the God of Angels and Men, and the Protector of the People of Iſrael, vouchſafe to hear my Prayer, and let me be no longer debarred of the Satisfactions of the publick Worſhip.

9. O thou, who haſt been all along the Defender of our Nation, and particularly of me thy Servant in my many former Adverſities, I beſeech thee, in Mercy, to have regard to the Petition of me, whom thou haſt anointed to the Kingly Office.

10. I ſhould rather chooſe a Life, tho' of but one day, to be ſpent in the Devotion of that place, than a thouſand Years in this wretched place which I am now baniſhed to.

11. I had rather be in the meaneſt Employ, ſo low as that of a Door-keeper about God's Houſe, where I might have an Opportunity of paying a conſtant Attendance on him, than in an Idolatrous Country, tho' it were never ſo plentiful, where I am deprived of his Worſhip.

12. For

12. For the LORD God is a light and defence: the Lord will give Grace and Worſhip, and no good thing ſhall he with-hold from them that live a godly Life.
13. O LORD God of Hoſts: bleſſed is the Man that putteth his Truſt in thee.

The LXXXV PSALM.

Benedixiſti, Domine.

¶¶ This Pſalm ſeems to be compoſed by Eſdras, or ſome other inſpired Perſon, ſoon after the Reſtoration of the Jews from their Captivity. The Hebrew Title informs us nothing more concerning it, but that it was directed To the chief Muſician, to be ſung by the Sons of Korah.

LORD, thou art become gracious unto thy Land: thou haſt turned away the Captivity of Jacob.
2. Thou haſt forgiven the offence of thy People: and covered all their Sins.
3. Thou haſt taken away all thy diſpleaſure: and turned thy ſelf from thy wrathful Indignation.
4. Turn us then, O God our Saviour: and let thine Anger ceaſe from us.
5. Wilt thou be diſpleaſed at us for ever: and wilt thou ſtretch out thy Wrath from one Generation to another?
6. Wilt thou not turn again and quicken us: that thy People may rejoyce in thee?
7. Shew us thy Mercy, O LORD: and grant us thy Salvation.
8. I will hearken what the LORD God will ſay [concerning me,] for he ſhall ſpeak Peace unto his People, and to his Saints, that they turn not again *[unto Fooliſhneſs.]

* Coverdale's firſt Tranſlation reads it, That they turn not themſelves unto Fooliſhneſs; as it ought to be; tho' I know not how in After-Editions the Words, unto Fooliſhneſs, came to be left out.

9. For his Salvation is nigh them that fear him: that Glory may dwell in our Land.
10. Mercy and Truth are met together: Righteouſneſs and Peace have kiſſed each other.
11. Truth ſhall flouriſh out of the Earth: and Righteouſneſs hath looked down from Heaven.
12. Yea, the Lord ſhall ſhew loving kindneſs: and our Land ſhall give her increaſe.
13. Righteouſneſs ſhall go before him: and he ſhall direct his going in the way.

MORN-

12. For the great God, who does there in an eſpecial manner diſcover himſelf, is a Light to direct Men in the right Rule of Life, and a ſtrength to defend them from all that is really hurtful to them; and affords all Spiritual and Temporal Bleſſings to his pious Servants who obey his Commands.
13. But ſtill, O my God, this is my Satisfaction, that tho' I am reſtrained from paying Devotion in publick to thee; whilſt I put my whole Confidence in thee for my Deliverance, I ſhall be ſo far from thinking myſelf void of all Comfort, that I ſhall ſtand poſſeſſed of a conſiderable degree of Happineſs.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXV.

O Lord, thou haſt ſhewed a very extraordinary act of thy Favour to our Nation, in freeing us from ſo long and heavy a Captivity.
2. We are ſenſible now, that thou haſt forgiven the Offences of us thy People, which brought theſe remarkable Judgments upon us.
3. We are now ſatisfied, that thy ſad Diſpleaſure towards us is abated, and that thou haſt more kind Diſpoſitions towards us, than thou haſt lately manifeſted.
4. And we beſeech thee to compleat our Reſtoration, and let not any ungrateful Returns we may have made, to thee after ſo great a Deliverance, provoke thee to ſhew any new Marks of thy Diſpleaſure.
5. Alas! ſhall we never find an end of our Sufferings, and after we are returned to our own Country, muſt we experience a new ſcene of Trouble riſing up upon us, from our quarrelſom Neighbours? Ezra 4. 45.
6. But however we truſt, that thy goodneſs will revive us after the long Oppreſſion of our Captivity, and will finiſh the Work of our Reſtoration, that we may enjoy the Bleſſings of our Country in entire Peace.
7. O Lord, let thy infinite Mercy pardon our Sins, which are ſtill very great, for if thou ſhouldeſt deal with us according to our Provocations, thou muſt again plunge us into as great Afflictions, as thoſe we have lately been delivered from.
8. We will wait with Patience to hear, what determination God will pronounce, concerning the future Condition of his People; which I doubt not will be very favourable, and that he will grant a laſting Peace to his choſen Nation, if ſo be they do not fall into their ancient Follies, and relapſe again into Idolatry.
9. And truly if we do not fail, on our part, God is ready to remove all the Obſtacles, which now lie in the way to our national Happineſs, and to revive the ancient Glory and Splendor of our Country.
10. And behold! we already ſee Goodneſs and Fidelity, thoſe Divine Vertues and great Supports of a National Happineſs, to be again conſpicuous among us: And Juſtice and Peace, like two ancient Friends that have been long Strangers to this Country, kindly to ſalute one another, upon their meeting together here.
11. Truth and Fidelity ſhall ſpring as it were afreſh out of the Ground, where they have been ſo long covered; and Piety and Holineſs ſhall come back again from Heaven, whither they have been for a long time retired.
12. God's Bounty ſhall be ſhowred down upon us by large Indulgences, and fruitful Seaſons every Year ſhall enrich our Country.
13. And when God comes to viſit us in this bountiful manner, Juſtice ſhall go before him to make way for his ſolemn Proceſſion, that Righteouſneſs as well as Happineſs may attend our Nation; for God ſhall adapt all his providential Diſpenſations to the exacteſt Juſtice, that Men may take Copy thereby, and ſquare all their Actions likewiſe, according to the Rules of Equity and Goodneſs.

MORNING PRAYER.

The LXXXVI PSALM.

Inclina, Domine.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is intituled in the Hebrew, A Prayer of David. It was not found out by the firſt Collector of the Davidical Pſalms, but being met with by him who gathered up the Aſaphian Pſalms, and ſome of other famous Authors, was placed here. It ſeems to be compoſed during his Afflictions under Saul.

BOw down thine Ear, O LORD, and hear me: for I am Poor and in Miſery.

2. Preſerve thou my Soul, for I am Holy: my God, ſave thy Servant that putteth his truſt in thee.

3. Be merciful unto me, O Lord: for I will call daily upon thee.

4. Comfort the Soul of thy Servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my Soul.

5. For thou, Lord, art good and gracious: and of great Mercy unto all them that call upon thee.

6. Give ear, LORD, unto my Prayer; and ponder the Voice of my humble deſires.

7. In the time of my Trouble I will call upon thee: for thou heareſt me.

8. Among the Gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord: there is not one that can do as thou doeſt.

9. All Nations whom thou haſt made, ſhall come and worſhip thee, O Lord: and ſhall glorifie thy Name.

10. For thou art great, and doeſt wondrous things: thou art God alone.

11. Teach me thy way, O LORD, and I will walk in thy Truth: O knit my Heart unto thee, that I may fear thy Name.

12. I will thank thee, O Lord my God, with all my Heart: and will praiſe thy Name for evermore.

13. For great is thy Mercy toward me: and thou haſt delivered my Soul from the nethermoſt Hell.

14. O God, the proud are riſen againſt me: and the Congregations of naughty Men have ſought after my Soul, and have not ſet thee before their Eyes.

15. But thou, O Lord God, art full of Compaſſion and Mercy: long-ſuffering, plenteous in Goodneſs and Truth.

16. O turn thee then unto me, and have Mercy upon me: give thy ſtrength unto thy Servant, and help the Son of thine Hand-maid. 17. Shew

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXVI.

O God, whoſe Nature inclines thee to ſuccour thy diſtreſſed Servants, I beſeech thee to look down from thy heavenly Throne upon my diſconſolate Condition, and hearken unto the Petition I put up unto thee.

2. I beſeech thee to preſerve my innocent Life from the violence of my unjuſt Oppreſſors, and afford thy Aſſiſtance to thy Servant, who doth not repoſe his Confidence in any thing, beſides thee

3. I beg, that thou wouldeſt vouchſafe thy merciful Protection to me, which I every Day ſo conſtantly pray for.

4. O refreſh the Soul of thy faithful Servant, by a timely Deliverance, ſince I ſo earneſtly raiſe my Soul up towards thee, in the warmths of devout and earneſt Prayer.

5 For thou art a gracious and merciful God, and readily diſpoſed to pardon the Sins of thoſe who ſincerely repent of them, and ask forgiveneſs for them, and to afford them thy Protection, notwithſtanding any former Failures.

6. Therefore, having my hope grounded upon this lovely Attribute of thine, I make bold to implore thy Aſſiſtance in this exigence of my Affairs.

7. Nay, I am emboldened to apply to thee in any great Diſtreſs, having experienced thy goodneſs formerly in other Deliverances.

8. For as thy Omnipotence impowers thee to reſcue thy Servants from the greateſt and moſt imminent Dangers, ſo by this thou doſt infinitely excel the Heathen-Deities, who are not able to ſuccour their Votaries in diſtreſs.

9. And if thou doeſt deliver me from ſo great a Calamity, the Heathen-Nations round ſhall be ſo convinced of thy Almighty Power, exerted in the Cauſe of David, that they ſhall deſire to be admitted to pay their Worſhip to thee at Jeruſalem.

10. For by that, and other thy miraculous Works, they ſhall acknowledge thee to be the only true God, who art able to work effects beyond the power of Nature.

11. And, that I may never forfeit thy Kindneſs and Protection, I beg of thee, that thou wouldeſt ſo rightly inform me in all points of my Duty, that I may not tranſgreſs any of thy holy Commands; make my Heart ſo ſtedfaſtly to adhere to thy Will, and to have always ſuch an awful regard of thy Majeſty, that I may diſcharge with readineſs all the Injunctions, which thou ſhalt be pleaſed to lay upon me.

12. And if thou, in thy goodneſs, ſhalt be pleaſed to vouchſafe me a deliverance from my preſent Troubles, I ſhall always retain ſuch a grateful Senſe of thy kindneſs, that I ſhall never ceaſe to commemorate it as long as I live.

13. For this will be ſo great an Inſtance of thy ſuper-abundant Mercy and Favour to me, that I ſhall always eſteem it as extraordinary a Deliverance, as if thou hadſt raiſed my Body from the Grave.

14. O my God, thou canſt not but take notice, what a number of powerful and arrogant Adverſaries have combined together in a Conſpiracy againſt my Life, and ſeem to have no regard to the Juſtice of my Cauſe, and to undervalue thy Aſſiſtance and Interpoſition, on my behalf.

15. But notwithſtanding their impious Aſſurance, in compaſſing my Deſtruction, I do not fail to truſt in thee for my Deliverance, thy ſacred Attributes affording me a better grounded hope, than any they can pretend to for their Succeſs: for I am ſufficiently ſenſible, that thy Mercy and Compaſſion inclines thee to protect thy innocent Servants; 'tis thy long-Suffering which permits their Wickedneſs to go ſo long unpuniſhed; thy ſuper-abundant Goodneſs, which I have formerly experienced, encourages me to think that thou wilt not now forſake me; and thy Truth, (thou having promiſed to defend me, and to bring me with ſafety to the Crown of Iſrael) I am certain, will not fail me.

16. Therefore I beſeech thee, O Lord, to caſt a favourable Eye once more upon me, and in thy Mercy reſcue me from the danger which I am encompaſſed in, and afford thy heavenly Aſſiſtance to me, who am thy poor humble Slave, and as much thy Property, as the Son of a Bond-woman, who is born in her Maſter's Houſe. 17. Shew

17. Shew ſome token upon me for good, that they who hate me may ſee it, and be aſhamed: becauſe thou, LORD, haſt holpen me, and comforted me.

The LXXXVII PSALM.

Fundamenta ejus.

¶¶ It is uncertain by whom this Pſalm was compoſed; but it is plain it was written by ſome devout Perſon, in honour of the City Jeruſalem and particularly Mount Sion, where the ſolemn Worſhip of God was ſettled. Some think it was compoſed on the Birth of Hezekiah, or ſome other great Prince.

HEr Foundations are upon the holy Hills: the LORD loveth the Gates of Sion more than all the dwellings of Jacob.

2. Very excellent things are ſpoken of thee: thou City of God.

3. I will think upon Rahab and Babylon: with them that know me.

4. Behold ye the Philiſtines alſo: and they of Tyre, with the Morians, lo, there was he Born.

5. And of Sion it ſhall be reported, that he was Born in her: and the moſt High ſhall ſtabliſh her.

6. The Lord ſhall rehearſe it when he writeth up the People: that he was Born there.

7. The Singers alſo and Trumpeters ſhall he rehearſe: all my freſh ſprings ſhall be in thee.

The LXXXVIII PSALM.

Domine, Deus.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, A Song for the Sons of Korah, to the chief Muſician upon Mahalath Leannoth, Maſchil of Heman the Ezrahite. The Mahalath Leannoth was a hollow wind Muſick, ſomething like the Flute, proper for mournful Songs. But the Heman to whom this Pſalm is attributed, cannot be the famous Singer in David's time of that Name, but one of later date deſcended from Zerah one of the Sons of Judah, 1 Chron. 2. 6. hence called an Ezrahite. Kimchi ſays, it was written in the Name of the Jewiſh People, during the Captivity, in the Language of a poor Slave under his Chains.

O LORD God of my Salvation, I have cried Day and Night before thee: O let my Prayer enter into thy preſence; incline thine Ear unto my calling.

2. For my Soul is full of trouble: and my Life draweth nigh unto Hell.

3. I am counted as one of them that go down into the Pit: and I have been even as a Man that hath no ſtrength.

4. Free among the dead, like unto them that are wounded, and lie in the Grave: who are out of remembrance, and are cut away from thy Hand.

5. Thou haſt laid me in the loweſt Pit: in a place of darkneſs, and in the deep.

6. Thine indignation lieth hard upon me: and thou haſt vexed me with all thy Storms.

7. Thou

17. Shew ſome eminent Token of thy eſpouſing my Cauſe, by a miraculous deliverance from my Enemies; that my irreligious Adverſaries may be confounded and aſtoniſhed when they ſee, that thou doſt ſo wonderfully interpoſe in my behalf, whom they have ſo often derided for my Devotion paid to thee, and for placing my whole Confidence in thee, when I had no appearing hopes of any worldly Succour.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXVII.

THE Foundations of God's Temple, where he has choſen to be worſhipped, are laid upon the conſecrated Hill of Mount Sion on the North ſide of Jeruſalem, which he has ſingled out of all the Cities of Judæa, to have his publick Service celebrated therein.

2. All Perſons who have occaſion to make mention of this Great City, do extraordinarily commend it for the magnificence of its Structures, the Salubrity of its Air, and the Advantage of its Situation, but chiefly for its noble Temple employed in the Worſhip of the true God.

3. I will not deny, that Egypt may boaſt of very noble Cities, and that Babylon may put in for a conſiderable ſhare of Glory in this reſpect, whenever I have occaſion to talk with my Acquaintance about theſe Matters.

4. The Philiſtines, Tyrians and Arabians, have likewiſe very remarkable Cities, which are celebrated for the Birth of great Men in them.

5. But Jeruſalem can vye with any of them in this reſpect likewiſe, ſince ſo great a Prince was born within her Walls, and which receives ſtill a greater Honour from the continual Protection of Almighty God.

6. And when God makes a Liſt of his Peoples Names, and enters them into his Regiſter, he ſhall diſtinguiſh this great Birth by a particular Mark of Honour.

7. And all the Voices and Muſick of the Temple, ſhall ſing in praiſe of this ſacred City; that ſhe is a Fountain of Delights, and more beautiful and pleaſant than the pureſt and cooleſt Stream.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXVIII.

O My Lord God, who waſt in former times uſed to preſerve me from danger, and in whoſe Mercy I yet truſt for help, I have made my Addreſs to thee, for a long time, without any Intermiſſion; therefore, I beſeech thee, do not make me wait longer, before thou doſt receive my Petition, but give me a ſpeedy Admiſſion to thy Preſence, and bend down from thy Throne to hearken to what I have to lay before thee.

2. O Lord, my Soul is overwhelmed with the long Continuance of a great many Troubles, which preſs ſo hard upon me, that they have brought my Life next door to the very Grave.

3. All that converſe with me, reckon me nothing better than a dead Man, laid out in his Coffin and ready to be tumbled into his Grave; for no Man, that ever recovered, was reduced to that weak and feeble Condition that I am.

4. I am now diſcharged and free from all the Buſineſs of this preſent Life, and muſt henceforth remain only with the Dead; I am now like one that is mortally wounded in an Army, my Body muſt be thrown into a great Hole, with innumerable other Carcaſes, which there lie rotting, without any ones taking notice of them, being cut off from the Living by thy ſevere Judgment.

5. It is the Diſpenſation of thy very harſh Providence, that has brought me to this State of Miſery, where methinks, I am ſunk into the Condition of the Dead, and lie in the midſt of dark and gloomy Shades, being drop'd into an Abyſs of Inconceivable Depth, where no Light appears.

6. Thy Anger lies as preſſing upon me, as if I was under a great weight of Lead or Stone; and whereas ſome drops only of thy Diſpleaſure fall upon other Men, the Cataracts of thy Vengeance are ſhowred down upon me.

7. Thou haſt put away mine acquaintance far from me: and made me to be abhorred of them.

8. I am ſo faſt in Priſon: that I cannot get forth.

9. My ſight faileth for very trouble: Lord, I have called daily upon thee, I have ſtretched forth my Hands unto thee.

10. Doſt thou ſhew wonders among the dead: or ſhall the dead riſe up again, and praiſe thee.

11. Shall thy loving kindneſs be ſhewed in the Grave: or thy faithfulneſs in deſtruction?

12. Shall thy wondrous works be known in the dark: and thy Righteouſneſs in the Land where all things are forgotten?

13. Unto thee have I cried, O LORD: and early ſhall my Prayer come before thee.

14. Lord, why abhorreſt thou my Soul: and hideſt thou thy Face from me?

15. I am in miſery, and like unto him that is at the point to die: even from my Youth up, thy Terrors have I ſuffered with a troubled Mind.

16. Thy wrathful diſpleaſure goeth over me: and the fear of thee hath undone me.

17. They came round about me daily like Water: and encompaſſed me together on every ſide.

18. My Lovers and Friends haſt thou put away from me: and hid mine acquaintance out of my ſight.

EVENING PRAYER.

The LXXXIX PSALM.

Miſericordias Domini.

¶¶ This Pſalm, according to the Hebrew Inſcription, was written by Ethan the Ezrahite, another Pſalmographer of the Family of Zerah, during the Captivity; and very probably in the Life of Jehoiakin, whoſe Misfortunes the Pſalmiſt here doth ſeem to deſcribe, and thereupon even to diſtruſt the Promiſes which God had made to the Family of David.

MY Song ſhall be alway of the loving kindneſs of the Lord: with my Mouth will I ever be ſhewing thy Truth from one Generation to another.

2. For I have ſaid, Mercy ſhall be ſet up for ever: thy Truth ſhalt thou eſtabliſh in the Heavens.

3. I have made a Covenant with my choſen: I have ſworn unto David my Servant.

4. Thy

7. Thou haſt confined me to a doleful Priſon, where I cannot enjoy the Converſation of my Friends and Acquaintance, the place being ſo noiſom, that they cannot endure to come to me in it.

8. Then fain would I go to them, but I find myſelf hindred by the Locks and Bolts, which keep me within this diſmal Dungeon.

9. I am almoſt blind, by my continual Weeping, and bewailing my Misfortune; no day has paſſed, wherein I failed to put up my earneſt Petitions to thee, continually ſtretching out my Hands to thee in devout Prayer, that thou mighteſt receive them.

10. O Lord, if thou doſt deſign to deliver me from my Miſery, thou muſt make haſte to do it; for I am now juſt ready to expire, and when I am dead, I cannot expect thou ſhouldeſt work ſo great a Miracle on my behalf, as to raiſe me from the Grave, that I may praiſe thy Name again.

11. For Death is a State, in which I ſhall not have the Opportunity of ſinging Hymns to thy Honour, as I do now.

12. In that State of Darkneſs and Oblivion, I ſhall not be able to relate thy noble and righteous Acts in numerous Verſe, as I can do here.

13. Thus have I for a long time, in the bitterneſs of my Soul, cried unto thee; under the deep ſenſe of my Misfortune, taking little reſt in the Night, early in the Morning renewing my Complaint to thee.

14. But alas, as yet I have found no redreſs from thee; O Lord, why art thou ſo unkind, always to turn away from me, and refuſe to afford me Relief?

15. My Miſeries now fall ſo thick upon me, that I ſeem to be under the Pangs and Agonies of Death; I have been for many Years ſuffering the Pains of a lingering Death, and been as it were, upon the Rack ever ſince I was born.

16. Thy Anger, like a mighty Torrent, has roſe above my Head and drowned me, and the Fears, which thy very ſevere Judgments have brought upon me, have deſtroyed me.

17. For I have not been attacked by one ſingle Misfortune, but a great number of Afflictions with united Force break in upon me, like a great Flood, which from ſeveral Hills comes pouring down into one Bottom, till it ſwells into a great Lake; ſo do my Calamities on every ſide beſet me.

18. All my dear Friends and Acquaintance, whoſe pleaſant Converſation was wont formerly to aſſwage my Grief, and make me forget my Sufferings, are now, by thy ſevere Treatment of me, kept from me; for if I look about for any kind Friend to correſpond with, I cannot find him, he hiding himſelf, as fearing I might bring him into danger, or as not enduring the Noiſomneſs of my ſad Abode.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm LXXXIX.

ALtho' we at preſent labour under moſt dreadful Calamities, which the Hand of God is pleaſed to inflict upon us; yet I will not ceaſe to celebrate the former Favours, which he has been pleaſed to beſtow upon us, and deliver down to future Generations the Memory of thoſe glorious Acts, which he has performed for our ſakes.

2. For this is my fixed Opinion, notwithſtanding the unpromiſing State of our preſent Affairs, that thy favourable Diſpoſition towards our Nation is ſettled upon ſo firm a Bottom, that the Revolutions of the heavenly Bodies are not eſtabliſhed upon greater Rules of Certainty, than thy Promiſes which thou haſt made for our Preſervation.

3. For thou didſt make an Agreement with David, by thy Prophets, Samuel and Nathan, 1 Sam. 16. 13. 2 Sam. 3. 9. 2 Sam. 7. 15. that he ſhould be the Governour of thy choſen People the Jews.

4. Pro-

4. Thy Seed will I ſtabliſh for ever: and ſet up thy Throne from one Generation to another.

5. O LORD, the very Heavens ſhall praiſe thy wondrous Works: and thy Truth in the Congregation of the Saints.

6. For who is he among the Clouds: that ſhall be compared unto the LORD?

7. And what is he among the Gods: that ſhall be like unto the LORD?

8. God is very greatly to be feared in the Councel of the Saints: and to be had in reverence of all them that are round about him.

9. O LORD God of Hoſts, who is like unto thee: thy Truth, moſt mighty Lord, is on every ſide?

10. Thou ruleſt the raging of the Sea: thou ſtilleſt the Waves thereof when they ariſe.

11. Thou haſt ſubdued Egypt, and deſtroyed it: thou haſt ſcattered thine Enemies abroad with thy mighty Arm.

12. The Heavens are thine, the Earth alſo is thine: thou haſt laid the Foundation of the round World, and all that therein is.

13. Thou haſt made the North and the South: Tabor and Hermon ſhall rejoyce in thy Name.

14. Thou haſt a mighty Arm: ſtrong is thy Hand, and high is thy right Hand.

15. Righteouſneſs and Equity are the habitation of thy ſeat: Mercy and Truth ſhall go before thy Face.

16. Bleſſed is the People, O LORD, that can rejoyce in thee: they ſhall walk in the light of thy Countenance.

17. Their delight ſhall be daily in thy Name: and in thy Righteouſneſs ſhall they make their boaſt.

18. For thou art the glory of their Strength: and in thy loving kindneſs thou ſhalt lift up our Horns.

19. For the LORD is our defence: the holy One of Iſrael is our King.

20. Thou ſpakeſt ſometime in Viſions unto thy Saints, and ſaidſt: I have laid help upon one that is mighty, I have exalted one choſen out of the People.

21. I have found David my Servant: with my holy Oyl have I anointed him.

22. My Hand ſhall hold him faſt: and my Arm ſhall ſtrengthen him.

23. The

4. Promiſing that his Children, for many Generations ſhould inherit that Crown.

5. And indeed ſo great is thy Goodneſs and miraculous Operations in behalf of all thy Creatures, in every part of the Univerſe, that it is the conſtant Theme of thy Angels in Heaven; and thy Faithfulneſs in performing thy Promiſes is duly celebrated in the publick Congregation of thy faithful People.

6, 7. For among all the Angelical Natures in Heaven, tho' many of them are very excellent in Power and Wiſdom, yet ſtill they are but the Creatures of God, and infinitely inferior to their Creator.

8. God is highly reverenced and adored by the Congregation of his faithful People, who meet together at the ſolemn Times of Worſhip; and has a greater Veneration paid him by his holy Angels, which ſtand attending round about his Throne.

9. O thou, who art the God and Lord of all theſe heavenly Beings, there is none of them all but is far inferior to thee; for their Power, tho' great, is limited, yet thine is of everlaſting Extent; they may fail thro' imbecillity in what they engage, but nothing can hinder thy Performance of what thou haſt promiſed.

10. One may make an eſtimate of what a boundleſs Power thou art endowed with, by thy checking the Sea, and letting it overflow its Banks when it ſo violently rages in a great Storm: Thou, whenever thou pleaſeſt, quieting the loudeſt Tempeſt into a gentle Calm.

11. 'Twas thy Almighty Power that humbled the proud Egyptian King, by the Plagues thou waſt pleaſed to lay upon him and his People; deſtroying his Army which purſued the Iſraelites, by the Seas flowing back upon them, and by ſcattering their dead Bodies over the Sands of the Shore.

12. It was thy Almighty Power which raiſed into Being the glorious Fabrick of this viſible World, and which gives thee an entire Propriety in it, to diſpoſe of it at thy Pleaſure.

13. Which way ſoever we extend our Sight, whether it be Southward toward Tabor, or Northward toward Hermon, each quarter of the World, which we diſcover, is a part of thy Creation, and affords freſh Matter for thy Praiſe.

14. Theſe, and all other parts of the Univerſe, do declare the infinity of thy Power, which made them.

15. Nor is thy Providence leſs Remarkable and Venerable than thy Power, for thou doſt govern the World by juſt and equal Determinations, altho' ſometimes unknown to us; proportioning Rewards and Puniſhments, as they are deſerved.

16. What a happy Condition were we thy People in at that Time, before our Captivity, when we could take a ſhare in the publick Rejoycings and Triumphs, as we marched together in our ſolemn Proceſſions, with the Trumpets ſounding before us to the Temple, the favour of thy Countenance ſhining upon us?

17. They were entertain'd with the noble Satisfaction of worſhipping thee, the only true God, and they prided themſelves in having thee for their Protector.

18. They had then the Happineſs of claiming Aſſiſtance, whenever they were oppreſſed by their Enemies; and thou by thy Interpoſition on their ſide, did make them formidable to, and didſt ſet them above, all their Oppoſers.

19. Nay we do not altogether deſpair, but that thou in thy good time will ſtill vouchſafe to afford us Deliverance from our preſent Calamities; for thou, great God whom we worſhip, doſt ſtill govern and protect our Nation.

20. Thou didſt formerly declare thy Mind in a Viſion to thy Prophet Samuel, 1 Sam. 16. 1. ſaying, 'I have provided to myſelf a mighty Champion, whom I have choſen from out of the ordinary Rank of my People, to be advanced to the Kingdom of Iſrael, in Saul's ſtead.

21. 'I have found out David, an approved Servant of mine, and have anointed him with the Sacred Oil to the Kingly Office.'

22. 'And I promiſed my Aſſiſtance to enable him to go thro' all his great Undertakings, and to ſupport him under thoſe extraordinary Difficulties which he was to meet with.

23. 'That

23. The Enemy ſhall not be able to do him violence: the Son of Wickedneſs ſhall not hurt him.

24. I will ſmite down his Foes before his Face: and plague them that hate him.

25. My Truth alſo and my Mercy ſhall be with him: and in my Name ſhall his Horn be exalted.

26. I will ſet his Dominion alſo in the Sea: and his right Hand in the Floods.

27. He ſhall call me, Thou art my Father: my God, and my ſtrong Salvation.

28. And I will make him my firſt-born: higher than the Kings of the Earth.

29. My Mercy will I keep for him for evermore: and my Covenant ſhall ſtand faſt with him.

30. His Seed alſo will I make to endure for ever: and his Throne as the Days of Heaven.

31. But if his Children forſake my Law: and walk not in my Judgments;

32. If they break my Statutes, and keep not my Commandments: I will viſit their Offences with the Rod, and their Sin with Scourges.

33. Nevertheleſs, my loving kindneſs will I not utterly take from him: nor ſuffer my Truth to fail.

34. My Covenant will I not break, nor alter the thing that is gone out of my Lips: I have ſworn once by my Holineſs, that I will not fail David.

35. His Seed ſhall endure for ever: and his Seat is like as the Sun before me.

36. He ſhall ſtand faſt for evermore as the Moon: and as the faithful Witneſs in Heaven.

37. But thou haſt abhorred, and forſaken thine Anointed: and art diſpleaſed at him.

38. Thou haſt broken the Covenant of thy Servant: and caſt his Crown to the Ground.

39. Thou haſt overthrown all his Hedges: and broken down his ſtrong Holds.

40. All they that go by, ſpoil him: and he is become a reproach to his Neighbours.

41. Thou

23. 'That his Enemies ſhould not be able to do any ſubſtantial Miſchief to him, nor Saul, his moſt potent Enemy; be permitted to work his Ruin with all his Power and Malice.

24. 'That I would ſubdue all his outward and domeſtick Enemies, and turn the Harms which they deſign'd againſt him, upon their own ſelves.

25. 'That according to my Promiſe, I would ſupport him in all his Difficulties; and that I would particularly interpoſe my almighty Power, for the advancement of his Honour, above all his neighbouring Princes.

26. 'On one ſide he ſhall ſubdue the Philiſtines, and thoſe that live upon the Sea-Coaſt, 2 Sam. 18 1. and on the other hand the Syrians up to the two great Rivers, Tigris and Euphrates, 2 Sam. 8. 9. and 10. 16.

27. 'I promiſed him further, that I would favour him with a particular Indulgence to call me Father, and that I would in a peculiar manner be his God, and his Defence.

28. 'That I would raiſe him to the principal Dignity of all thoſe, whom I give leave to be called my Sons; and that he ſhould be more glorious than any other Prince of his time:

29. 'And that this Promiſe, which I made with him, I would inviolably keep on my ſide, no conſideration making me ſwerve from it.

30. 'That his Family ſhould remain throughout all ſucceeding Generations, and notwithſtanding the many Changes of Fortune, which other Regal Dignities are ſubject to, his Throne ſhould remain as long as the Heavens laſt.

31. 'But yet I am not ſo irrevocably obliged by this my Oath, but that, if his Poſterity do take different Courſes from their Father David; if they as notoriouſly violate my Laws, as he did diligently obſerve them:

32 'If his Heirs ſhall ſwerve from their Obedience to me, I will then chaſtiſe them with the ſevereſt Puniſhments; not only with Dethronation, but with Captivity and Impriſonment.

33. 'But however I will not ſuffer my Severity to proceed ſo far as to take away all Regard and Kindneſs for his Family, 2 Sam. 7. but I will ſtill maintain my Promiſe to be manifeſted in my good time, to ſome future Branches of it, 1 Kings 11. 34. 2 Kings 8. 19.

34. 'I will not utterly make void the Covenant, which I have ſolemnly made with their Progenitors, and which I have confirmed by my Oath, for ever to keep up his Family in the Regal Dignity, 2 Chron. 21. 7.

35. 'That his Poſterity ſhould always poſſeſs that high Dignity, and that their Throne ſhould be as firmly eſtabliſhed in Iſrael, as the Sun is in the Firmament.

36. 'That the Moon ſhould as ſoon tumble from her Orb, as the Line of David fail of ſucceeding to the Royal Dignity; who, though they might, like her, undergo ſome Changes of Eclipſes, yet as ſhe keeps her conſtant Viciſſitudes, ſo ſhall they, after many Misfortunes, riſe again to the Regal Splendor: Neither ſhall the Moon be a more conſtant Witneſs in the Skies, than the Family of David ſhall be an Inſtance of God's particular Protection.

37. But now, O Lord, notwithſtanding thy Promiſe of perpetuating the Kingdom in the Davidical Line, thou haſt brought our preſent Sovereign Jehoiakim, who is deſcended from David, to the loweſt degree of Miſery and Contempt, 2 Kings 24. 20.

38. In ſtead of maintaining the Crown in David's Family, thou haſt thrown it violently from the Head of his Succeſſors, and ſuffered his Heathen Enemies to trample upon it.

39. Thou haſt thrown down the Walls of Jeruſalem his Capital City, 2 Kings 25. 10. and has demoliſhed all his fortified Places.

40. He is now in ſo deſtitute a Condition, that every one may offer what Violence he is pleaſed to his Dominions; and all his Neighbours, who reverenced his Power and Authority, can now paſs what Indignities they pleaſe upon him.

41. All

41. Thou haſt ſet up the right Hand of his Enemies: and made all his Adverſaries to rejoyce.

42. Thou haſt taken away the edge of his Sword: and giveſt him not Victory in the Battle.

43. Thou haſt put out his glory: and caſt his Throne down to the Ground.

44. The Days of his Youth haſt thou ſhortned: and cover'd him with diſhonour.

45. LORD, how long wilt thou hide thy ſelf, for ever: and ſhall thy Wrath burn like Fire?

46. O remember how ſhort my time is: wherefore haſt thou made all Men for nought?

47. What Man is he that liveth, and ſhall not ſee Death: and ſhall he deliver his Soul from the hand of Hell?

48. LORD, where are thy old loving Kindneſſes: which thou ſwareſt unto David in thy Truth?

49. Remember, LORD, the Rebuke that thy Servants have: and how I do bear in my Boſom the Rebukes of many People.

50. Wherewith thine Enemies have blaſphemed thee, and ſlandered the Footſteps of thine Anointed: praiſed be the LORD for evermore. Amen, and Amen.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XC PSALM.

Domine, refugium.

¶¶ This is a Pſalm of very great Antiquity, it being compoſed, as the Title informs us, by Moſes the Man of God. It ſeems to have been written by him in the Wilderneſs, after the Iſraelites had been harraſs'd by ſeveral very ſevere Afflictions, without any improvement therefrom; who ſtill continuing in their murmuring and refractory Humours, had at laſt the Sentence of Dying in the Wilderneſs, without hopes of ſeeing the promiſed Land, paſs'd upon them, Numb. 14. 35. This Pſalm therefore was a Conſolatory Hymn upon that ſevere Doom.

LORD, thou haſt been our Refuge: from one Generation to another.

2. Before the Mountains were brought forth, or ever the Earth and the World were made: thou art God from everlaſting, and World without end.

3. Thou turneſt Man to Deſtruction: again thou ſayeſt, Come again, ye Children of Men.

4. For a thouſand Years in thy ſight are but as yeſterday: ſeeing that is paſt as a Watch in the Night.

5. As

41. All his Enemies now prevail over him, and execute upon him any Marks of Diſhonour or Diſdain, which their Pride and Malice can ſuggeſt.

42. The Sword of the Jewiſh Nation, which was always formerly uſed to conquer in Battle, has now quite loſt its keenneſs; and thoſe who were heretofore beaten by us, are now our Conquerors.

43. Thou haſt eclipſed all the ſplendor of the Royal Dignity, and ſtruck off the Crown from our Sovereign's Head.

44. Thou haſt made him a Captive in the Bloom of his Youth, when he was under twenty Years of Age; and in ſtead of letting him enjoy the Princely Honour, haſt made him to undergo the infamy of a Slave, 2 Kings 24. 8.

45. O Lord, wilt thou always forbear to take Notice of our Miſeries, and neglect to reſcue us from them? Will thy Wrath totally extinguiſh and conſume our Nation by this terrible Captivity, like a devouring Fire?

46. Thou knoweſt how ſhort and fleeting this time of our mortal Life is; oh that thou would'ſt be pleaſed to let us ſpend what little ſpace remains of it, in a more comfortable Condition, than that of a wretched Captivity.

47. But there is no need of haſtening our Death by the Cruelty of our conquering Maſters; for we muſt all of us die in a little time, and tho' we ſhould eſcape the Sword of our Adverſaries, we cannot avoid the Grave.

48. O juſt God! we find a great difference between the Favours which thou waſt pleaſed to beſtow upon David, and ſeveral of the Succeſſors in his Family, and thoſe terrible Judgments which thou doſt viſit us with now; notwithſtanding the Covenant with him, which thou didſt ratifie with an Oath, of the Kingdom's continuing in his Line.

49. We beſeech thee, O God, to take Notice what Reproaches our Neighbouring-Nations caſt upon us and thy true Religion, for the fruſtrating of our hopes, which depended upon theſe thy Promiſes.

50. Thoſe Reproaches with which our Adverſaries daily Blaſpheme thee, taxing thee with the Breach of thy Promiſe, in the Dethronation of the Davidical Line; and denying that any other Anointed, viz. the great Meſſias, whom we all expect ſhall riſe up in his room. But however, their ſcornful Taunts ſhall not hinder us from aſcribing continual Praiſes to God. Amen. Amen.

Here endeth the third Book of Pſalms according to the Jewiſh Diviſion.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XC.

O Lord, we addreſs ourſelves to thee, under all our Misfortunes and Sufferings, in conſideration that thou haſt always been, as it were, a Caſtle and place of Retreat from Danger, to us and all our Predeceſſors.

2. But why do I ſpeak, what thou haſt been within the compaſs of a few Years, or a ſhort Hiſtory of time? ſince thou art the eternal God, who hadſt a Being infinitely before the Creation of the World, long before the Mountains put their Heads from out the circumfuſed Ocean, and diſcovered dry Land, when there was nothing appearing but Water; before the Creation even of the very Chaotick Maſs of Earth and Water, thou didſt enjoy an eternal Exiſtence.

3. As thou, by thy creative Power, doſt give a Being to all things, and contribute Life and Motion, as to what Degrees and Extent thy Wiſdom ſhall think fit; ſo as ſoon as thou ſpeakeſt the Word, their Breath is extinguiſh'd, and thou takeſt back thoſe Souls to thy ſelf, which thou didſt before unite with human Bodies.

4. It muſt be confeſſed, that our preſent Life is miſerably ſhort, but tho' Men ſhould live as long as they did formerly before the Flood, to the extent of near a thouſand Years; yet this long Life would be but a point of time in compariſon of thy eternal Duration; and when it ſhould be worn out, it would look no longer a Tract of time than yeſterday, or the three hours of laſt night's Watch.

5. When thou calleſt them off the Stage of Life, all the time of their being here, will ſeem to have been but a Dream, of which there is nothing ſubſtantial remaining, and which

5. As ſoon as thou ſcattereſt them, they are even as a ſleep: and fade away ſuddenly like the Graſs.

6. In the Morning it is green, and groweth up: but in the Evening it is cut down, dried up, and withered.

7. For we conſume away in thy Diſpleaſure: and are afraid at thy wrathful Indignation.

8. Thou haſt ſet our Miſdeeds before thee: and our ſecret Sins in the Light of thy Countenance.

9. For when thou art angry, all our days are gone: we bring our Years to an end, as it were a Tale that is told.

10. The days of our Age are threeſcore Years and ten, and though Men be ſo ſtrong that they come to fourſcore Years: yet is their ſtrength then but labour and ſorrow; ſo ſoon paſſeth it away, and we are gone.

11. But who regardeth the Power of thy Wrath: for even hereafter as a Man feareth, ſo is thy diſpleaſure.

12. So teach us to number our days: that we may apply our Hearts unto Wiſdom.

13. Turn thee again, O LORD, at the laſt: and be gracious unto thy Servants.

14. O ſatisfie us with thy Mercy, and that ſoon: ſo ſhall we rejoyce and be glad all the Days of our Life.

15. Comfort us again now after the time that thou haſt plagued us: and for the Years wherein we have ſuffered adverſity.

16. Shew thy Servants thy Work: and their Children thy Glory.

17. And the glorious Majeſty of the Lord our God be upon us: proſper thou the Work of our Hands upon us, O proſper thou our handy-work.

The XCI. PSALM.

Qui habitat.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm has no Title in the Original Hebrew, though ſome of the Greek Copies attribute it to David, but thoſe are not ancient; for St. Jerom, Hilary, and Euthymius affirm, that it wanted a Title in the Copies which they uſed. It was compoſed in the time of ſome great Plague, ſome think by David, in the Peſtilence recorded 2 Sam. 24. 15. but then that devout Prince would probably have mentioned his Sin which occaſioned it. But let the Author be who it will, it is one of the moſt admirable Hymns which Antiquity affords; and by the noble Metaphors and juſteſt Images it makes uſe of, it outdoes moſt of the celebrated pieces of the Ethnick Poetry in their own way.

WHoſo dwelleth under the defence of the moſt High: ſhall abide under the ſhadow of the Almighty.

2. I will ſay unto the LORD, Thou art my hope, and my ſtrong hold: my God, in him will I truſt.

3. For they can carry along with them; and that the Graſs of the Field is not a more tranſitory thing than human Life, which it is a juſt Emblem of:

6. Which flouriſhes in the Morning, with a delightful Verdure, but being cut down by the Mowers Sithe, before the Evening is grown withered and dry.

7. And this is our Condition: We might by the courſe of Nature many of us live a conſiderable number of Years; but yet we have ſo provoked thee by our Sins, as to cut us off in the prime of our Age, and not ſuffer any of us to live to enter Canaan.

8. By this juſt Puniſhment of thine, thou makeſt us to have a due Senſe of our Guilt, and how highly we have provoked thee, bringing to our remembrance many ſecret Sins, which we had forgot, by ſending to us this awakening Judgment.

9. For this Anger of thine, which we have provoked by our Murmuring and Repining at the Diſpenſations of thy Providence, has cut off our Life; which might have continued for many Years, and is now at an end as a Story told, or the Words which a Man ſpeaks, that vaniſh into the Air, and never return again.

10. But, tho' thou ſhould'ſt have ſuffered us to have lived to the ordinary extent of Human Life, this would have been but about Seventy Years, or if thou hadſt ſuffered us to have run out our time to the Age of Fourſcore; yet ſo many Pains and infirmities would have attended that Age of Life, that it would have been but an uncomfortable Condition to have lived in it; nay that in a very little time would come to an end too, and we muſt ſhortly have paſſed off to another World for all the Addition of thoſe few Years.

11. But notwithſtanding theſe awakening Judgments, which God has inflicted upon us, Numb. 25. 1, 2. who is the Man among us, that makes a right uſe of, and is inſtructed by his Sufferings, to take warning againſt Sin for the future? And yet it is very certain, that God's Vengeance will be yet ſeverer againſt thoſe who are incorrigible under their Sufferings, and do not learn to reverence and obey him under his Chaſtiſements.

12. Therefore we beſeech thee, O Lord, to give us Grace that we make a proper uſe of this Puniſhment of the ſhortning our Lives, which thou haſt been pleaſed to lay upon us; that we, conſidering how little a time we have to ſtay in this World, by doing our Duty in the performance of all due Acts of Vertue and Piety, may wiſely make proviſion for the next.

13. But, if it be thy good Pleaſure, reverſe this ſevere Sentence which is gone out againſt us; look upon us with thy former favourable Aſpect; and let us partake of the ancient Benefits and Favours thou waſt wont to beſtow upon us.

14. Let thy bountiful Goodneſs afford us a ſpeedy and extraordinary Act of Kindneſs; that as we have hitherto lived Lives of great Affliction, we may ſpend the remaining part of them in Pleaſure and Satisfaction.

15. And whereas hitherto thou haſt exerciſed us under a continual Series of Affliction, by Slavery in Egypt, and hard Travel in the barren Wilderneſs; thou wouldeſt at laſt afford us the Satisfaction and Comfort of ſpending our declining Years, and reſting our wearied Limbs in the promiſed Land.

16. But however, if we by our Sins have not deſerved to partake of that Bleſſing, yet we beſeech thee to finiſh the great Work which thou haſt undertaken for thy Servants, in bringing them to the Land of Canaan; and let our Children, at leaſt, partake of the Satisfaction of that happy Peace.

17. Let the ſerene and beautiful Light of God's gracious Countenance ſhine upon us; and may he proſper our Arms, and all our other Endeavours, in getting Poſſeſſion of that pleaſant Country, which he has granted to us.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XCI.

IN this diſmal time, of a terrible Peſtilence which now rages among us, whilſt ſome flye to Antidotes and preventive Medicines, to wholſom Airs, and places of Retirement; it is my Opinion, that it is the ſafeſt way to fly to God for ſhelter, and the ſhadow of his Wing ſhall ſkreen us from the ſcorching Heat of this devouring Plague.

2. I will addreſs myſelf to him in devout Prayer, and declare unto him, that my ſole Hope and Confidence is in his kind rotection.

3. And

3. For he ſhall deliver thee from the Snare of the Hunter: and from the noiſom Peſtilence:

4. He ſhall defend thee under his Wings, and thou ſhalt be ſafe under his Feathers: his Faithfulneſs and Truth ſhall be thy Shield and Buckler.

5. Thou ſhalt not be afraid for any Terrour by Night: nor for the Arrow that flieth by Day;

6. For the Peſtilence that walketh in darkneſs: nor for the Sickneſs that deſtroyeth in the Noon-day.

7. A thouſand ſhall fall beſide thee, and ten thouſand at thy right Hand: but it ſhall not come nigh thee.

8. Yea, with thine Eyes ſhalt thou behold: and ſee the reward of the Ungodly.

9. For thou, LORD, art my hope: thou haſt ſet thine Houſe of defence very high.

10. There ſhall no Evil happen unto thee: neither ſhall any Plague come nigh thy dwelling.

11. For he ſhall give his Angels charge over thee: to keep thee in all thy ways.

12. They ſhall bear thee in their Hands: that thou hurt not thy Foot againſt a Stone.

13. Thou ſhalt go upon the Lion and Adder: the young Lion and the Dragon ſhalt thou tread under thy Feet.

14. Becauſe he hath ſet his Love upon me, therefore will I deliver him: I will ſet him up, becauſe he hath known my Name.

15. He ſhall call upon me, and I will hear him: yea, I am with him in Trouble; I will deliver him, and bring him to Honour.

16. With long Life will I ſatisfie him: and ſhew him my Salvation.

The XCII. PSALM.

Bonum eſt confiteri.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, A Song for the Sabbath-day. Some of the Jews have a Notion, that this Pſalm was compoſed by Adam, preſently after his Creation; but this is a fond Fancy, for no one can think, that Adam in Paradiſe ſhould talk of Mount Libanus, v. 11. Whoſoever is the Author thereof, it is an excellent Deſcription of the different Conditions of Pious, and Irreligious Men.

IT is a good thing to give Thanks unto the LORD, : and to ſing Praiſes unto thy Name, O moſt High*eſt*;

2. To tell of thy loving kindneſs early in the Morning: and of thy Truth in the Night-ſeaſon;

3. Upon

3. And I am certain, that he will take the ſame care of thee, O good Man, whoſoever thou art; he will preſerve thee harmleſs from the Fury of the deſtroying Angel, who has a Commiſſion, in the time of this Peſtilence, to kill Men, as a Hunter does his Game; and will ſecure thee from the Infection of this ſweeping Plague.

4. No Chicken can be more ſafe from the Tallons of a ravenous Fowl, than thou ſhalt be from the Danger of this Infectious Diſeaſe; no Shield ſhall better defend thee in the War, when Death comes flying from every Quarter.

5. None of the diſmal Terrors of the Night, which are augmented by the Sighs and Groans of expiring Friends, that die every Hour, ſhall affright thee; the Peſtilential Arrows, which every minute of the Day fly pointed with Death, and deſtroy ſuch vaſt Numbers of People, ſhall not ſink thy Courage.

6. That terrible Angel, who walks about through Mens Chambers by Night, and ſpreads Contagion and Death whereever he comes, and he, whoſe Commiſſion is to infect with the Peſtilence in the day-time, ſhall both be reſtrained from doing thee any harm.

7. Tho' Cities and Towns ſhall be depopulated by the devouring Mortality, and heaps of infected Perſons fall down dead on every ſide of thee, yet thou ſhalt remain free from the Infection.

8. Thou, in the midſt of this mighty Devaſtation, ſhalt be a ſecure Spectator of the Divine Vengeance, which ſhall be chiefly executed upon wicked Men.

9. For thou haſt no occaſion to fear, ſince we and all other good People, have the great God for our Defence, who is a better Security to us in this Danger, than an impregnable Caſtle ſet upon a Rock, is in time of War.

10. Under this reigning Mortality, no Infection ſhall reach thy Houſe.

11. God ſhall give a particular Charge to his Angels, not to deſtroy thee as he does others; but to ſecure thee from any Misfortune, which may hurt or moleſt thee.

12. They ſhall take the by thee Hand, and lead thee whereſoever thou goeſt, and keep thee ſo much as from ſtumbling at any Stone, which may accidentally lye in the way.

13. Lyons, Tygers, and other Beaſts of Prey, that with fierceneſs fall upon other Men to devour them, ſhall appear tame in thy Preſence; and, tho' thou tread upon venomous Adders, they ſhall not be able to hurt thee.

14. Therefore God, concerning ſuch a pious Perſon, does declare this: 'Becauſe he has made me the Object of his 'Love, I will free him from any Danger which may befal 'him; I will exalt him to the moſt conſiderable degree of 'Honour, becauſe he is a devout Worſhipper of me.

15. 'Whenever he puts up his Petition to me in Prayer, I 'will have regard to his Addreſſes; I will deliver him from 'all Misfortunes which ſhall befal him, and make his Afflictions to be a Step to advance him to higher Honour.

16. 'I will not only ſecure him from being cut off by the 'preſent Mortality, but prolong his Life to a good old Age; 'and when I remove him to the other World, will beſtow 'everlaſting Happineſs upon him there.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm XCII.

IT is the moſt excellent employ which a Man can be engaged in, to ſpend his time in worſhipping and praiſing thee, O great God.

2. To praiſe thee with the Congregation in the Morning-Service, and to make a return of his Devotions in the Evening likewiſe.

3. Joyning

3. Upon an Instrument of ten Strings, and upon the Lute: upon a loud Instrument, and upon the Harp.

4. For thou, LORD, hast made me glad through thy Works: and I will rejoyce in giving Praise for the Operations of thy Hands.

5. O LORD, how glorious are thy Works: thy Thoughts are very deep.

6. An unwise Man doth not well consider this: and a Fool doth not understand it.

7. When the Ungodly are green as the Grass, and when all the workers of Wickedness do flourish: then shall they be destroyed for ever; but thou, LORD, art the most Highest for evermore.

8. For lo, thine Enemies, O LORD, lo, thine Enemies shall perish: and all the workers of Wickedness shall be destroyed.

9. But mine Horn shall be exalted like the Horn of an Unicorn: for I am anointed with fresh Oyl.

10. Mine Eye shall see his Lust of mine Enemies: and mine Ear shall hear his desire of the Wicked that arise up against me.

11. The Righteous shall flourish like a Palm-Tree: and shall spread abroad like a Cedar in Libanus.

12. Such as be planted in the House of the Lord: shall flourish in the Courts [of the House] of our God.

13. They also shall bring forth more Fruit in their Age: and shall be fat and well liking.

14. That they may shew how true the LORD my Strength is: and that there is no Unrighteousness in him.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XCIII. PSALM.

Dominus regnavit.

¶ ¶ This Psalm having no Title in the Hebrew, it cannot be said who was the Author thereof; Some have conjectured it to be David's from the Inscription of some Greek Copies. Gaon, Jarchi, Kimchi, and most of the Jews, interpret this of the Messias.

THE LORD is King, and hath put on glorious apparel: the Lord hath put on his apparel, and girded himself with Strength.

2. He hath made the round World so sure: that it cannot be moved.

3. Ever since the World began hath thy seat been prepared: thou art from everlasting.

4. The

3. Joyning with the Sacred Consort in the Temple, where thou art praised not only with vocal Musick, but with Lutes and Harps and Organs.

4. O what a joyful Thought it is for me, to reflect upon the noble Works of thy Creation, and the surprizing Effects of thy Providence!

5. What glorious Wisdom and Power is discovered in every part of the Universe, and what unsearchable Windings are there, in the Workings of thy Providential Dispensations!

6. But stupid Sinners, that run on blindly in a careless sensual Life, and look no farther than the outward Face of things, do not make just Observations upon the wise Course of God's Providence; for they foolishly imagine, that present Happiness is a sufficient Mark to judge of God's Favour.

7. For when wicked Men are in the most flourishing Condition, when they are in their full Beauty and Lustre, like the green Grass early in the Spring, they are, like that too, but of a short continuance, and the more flourishing they be, the nigher they are to their Fading and their Destruction: But thou, O Lord, art the most high God, and Governour of all things, who thyself art subject to no Vicissitudes, but dost dispose all things in the World, according to thy Wisdom and Pleasure.

8. All that are Enemies to God and true Religion, shall in God's good time suffer the Punishment due to their Wickedness; and tho' they for a while prosper, they shall at length be utterly destroyed.

9. But, O God, thou shalt raise the Power and Dignity of me and all other good Men; thou shalt give me as much Horn (i. e Strength or Power) as an Unicorn; thou shalt make me as brisk and nimble, as if my Joynts were anointed and suppled by a fine and curious Oil.

10. I shall have the Satisfaction of seeing the Wicked tumble down from their State of Prosperity, which they have so long made an ill use of; and I shall hear with pleasure, that my wicked Persecutors shall be deprived of the Power, which they have exercised to my Prejudice.

11. But as for the good Man, not the Palm-Tree whose Leaves are always Green, not the Cedar which runs up to such a stately heighth upon Mount Libanus, and spreads its Branches so wide, shall flourish more than he.

12. In the like flourishing Condition shall be the sacred Priests, who continually officiate in the Temple; and those pious People who daily come into the Courts thereof, to partake in the publick Worship.

13. God shall heap all Spiritual and Temporal Blessings upon these Pious Persons; they shall not experience the ordinary Decay of old Age, but shall bring forth Fruit longer than the Course of Nature ordinarily allows; they shall be strong and healthy, when others are sick and feeble.

14. This will be a sufficient Demonstration, of the Providence of God over-ruling Human Affairs; and will justifie him from any Injustice, or Obliquity, committed in his Government of the World.

Paraphrase on Psalm XCIII.

THE Almighty God himself is come to exercise the Royal Administration of Affairs over the World, he has put on his Kingly Robes in order to this; and as a Warrior buckles on his Sword and Belt, so he girds himself with his Almghty Power.

2. For his Omnipotence is sufficiently manifested, in his creating the Universe, and establishing it by such firm Laws, that nothing is able to disturb it, so that in many Ages it has not been subject to the least Variation.

3. Nor is this Assumption of the Regal Dignity over the World, any new thing to thee, for thy Throne was then set up, when thou didst create the World by thy Word or Logos; that Almighty Action entituling thee to the Dominion over thy

4. The Floods are riſen, O LORD, the Floods have lift up their Voice: the Floods lift up their Waves.

5. The Waves of the Sea are mighty, and rage horribly: but yet the Lord, who dwelleth on high, is mightier.

6. Thy Teſtimonies, O LORD, are very ſure: Holineſs becometh thine Houſe for ever.

The XCIV Pſalm.

Deus ultionum.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm likewiſe wanting a Title, the Author thereof is not known. It was wrote at a time when the Magiſtrates were under a great degree of Corruption, and were oppreſſive to the People: It may look ſomething like the time of Saul's Reign, and then David was the Author, but I chooſe rather with Jarchi and Kimchi, to ſay it was written during the Captivity, when the Heathen Magiſtrates and People did extraordinarily oppreſs the Jews.

O Lord God, to whom Vengeance belongeth: thou God, to whom Vengeance belongeth, ſhew thy ſelf.

2. Ariſe, thou Judge of the World: and reward the Proud after their deſerving.

3. LORD, how long ſhall the Ungodly: how long ſhall the Ungodly triumph?

4. How long ſhall all wicked Doers ſpeak ſo diſdainfully: and make ſuch proud boaſting?

5. They ſmite down thy People, O LORD: and trouble thine Heritage.

6. They murder the Widow and the Stranger: and put the Fatherleſs to death.

7. And yet they ſay, Tuſh, the LORD ſhall not ſee: neither ſhall the God of Jacob regard it.

8. Take heed, ye unwiſe among the People: O ye fools, when will ye underſtand?

9. He that planted the Ear, ſhall he not hear, or he that made the Eye, ſhall he not ſee?

10. Or he that nurtureth the Heathen: it is he that teacheth Man Knowledge, ſhall not he puniſh?

11. The LORD knoweth the Thoughts of Man: that they are but vain.

12. Bleſſed is the Man whom thou chaſteneſt, O LORD: and teacheſt him in thy Law.

13. That thou mayeſt give him patience in time of adverſity: until the Pit be digged up for the Ungodly.

14. For the LORD will not fail his People: neither will he forſake his Inheritance;

15. Until Righteouſneſs turn again unto Judgment: all ſuch as are true in Heart ſhall follow it.

16. Who thy Creatures: Nay, from all Eternity thou didſt reign in eternal Glory.

4. We ſee indeed, O Lord, that there are a great many factious People, and idolatrous Nations, that by their tumultuous Proceedings, like the Waves of a rough River, make a great noiſe, and would hinder the Kingdom of the Meſſias.

5. Nay, they rage as terribly, and threaten as much Miſchief, as the Waves of the ſtormy Sea; but yet the great God, who is the Conducter and Diſpoſer of all Affairs, is far more powerful than they, and can at his pleaſure allay their mad Fury, and will at laſt bring to effect his glorious purpoſe.

6. Whatever thou haſt promiſed to do for thy faithful Servants, they may infallibly depend on, and particularly that the Meſſias will come into the World at the appointed time; and then there ſhall be a Church eſtabliſh'd, which ſhall continue Holy for ever.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm XCIV.

O Lord, who art veſted with Power in Heaven and Earth, and to whom all other earthly Powers are ſubordinate, we thy poor ſuffering Servants, beſeech thee to take our Cauſe into thy Hands, and to deliver us from the Violence of our Oppreſſors.

2. And ſince the whole World is ſubject to thy Dominion and Juriſdiction, let our inſolent Enemies who injure thy People, and deride thy Worſhip, feel the Effect of thy Power, which they ſo much contemn.

3. How long wilt thou permit theſe ungodly Idolaters, to inſult thy choſen People?

4. How long wilt thou ſuffer them, to throw out their inſolent and blaſphemous Speeches againſt thy true Religion?

5. Thou art not inſenſible, how the very Magiſtrates, who ſhould redreſs our Injuries, do grind and oppreſs thy People, whom thou haſt choſen to be thy peculiar Inheritance.

6. How in ſtead of protecting helpleſs Perſons, ſuch as Orphans, Widows and Strangers, they are the greateſt Oppreſſors of them.

7. And when they paſs theſe inſupportable Injuries and Indignities upon us, they, in deſpight to thee, ſay; The God of the Jews takes no notice of what is done to his Votaries, or elſe he would redreſs their Injuries.

8. But, O ye brutiſh Heathen! this is to add to your Injuſtice, Folly and Madneſs.

9. Shall not the great God, who created the World, and endowed us with the Faculty of Hearing, ſhall not he hear of theſe Sufferings, which his poor People ſuſtain? Shall not he, who created the Eye, and gave his Creatures a Power of diſcerning Objects at a diſtance; ſhall not he be able to diſcern what miſerable Oppreſſions theſe wicked Men make his Faithful Servants here ſuſtain?

10. He that has imparted even to the Heathen Nations, ſome degree of Knowledge and Inſtruction, as far as the Natural Law reaches; ſhall not he puniſh them, for theſe broad Tranſgreſſions of it?

11. But let not ſuch Men deceive themſelves, by any flattering Hopes of eſcaping the Divine Knowledge and Vengeance; for God, in his due time, ſhall call them to a ſevere Account, for all their Wickedneſs.

12. And let them take notice, that our Sufferings do not make us ſuch miſerable People as they imagine; but contrariwiſe our Afflictions are a great Bleſſing to us, in bringing us nearer to God, and by engaging us to a ſtricter Obſervation of his holy Laws.

13. For it is out of a kind Deſign, that God continues Afflictions upon the good Man, to work the Graces of Patience and Meekneſs in him; and he permits the wicked Man to enjoy his Proſperity only for a time, whilſt God is digging the Pit for him, which he deſigns he ſhould fall into.

14. And tho' God, at preſent, exerciſes his People with very ſore Calamities; yet they may be confident, he will not utterly forſake them.

15. But hereafter Juſtice ſhall return, and take her place in the Judgment-Seat; and what, at preſent, ſeems irregular in the Judgment-Seat; and what, at preſent, ſeems irregular in Providence, ſhall be made up by other future Diſpenſations, which we are not now aware of: This will afford ſuch a clear Evidence of the righteouſneſs of God's Proceedings, that no good Man ſhall ever doubt of them afterwards, but ſhall Appeal to his Tribunal, as the juſteſt Court of Judicature.

16. Who will riſe up with me againſt the Wicked: or who will take my part againſt the evil Doers?

17. If the LORD had not helped me: it had not failed but my Soul had been put to ſilence.

18. But when I ſaid, My Foot hath ſlipped: thy Mercy, O LORD, held me up.

19. In the multitude of the Sorrows that I had in my Heart: thy Comforts have refreſhed my Soul.

20. Wilt thou have any thing to do with the ſtool of Wickedneſs: which imagineth miſchief as a Law?

21. They gather them together againſt the Soul of the Righteous: and condemn the innocent Blood.

22. But the LORD is my refuge: and my God is the Strength of my Confidence.

23. He ſhall recompence them their Wickedneſs, and deſtroy them in their own Malice: yea, the LORD our God ſhall deſtroy them.

MORNING PRAYER.

The XCV. PSALM.

Venite, Exultemus.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm was compoſed for publick Uſe, in the Divine Service of the Jewiſh Church. Some think it refers to the Tranſlation of the Ark, 2 Sam. 6 1. but Grotius is of Opinion, it was compoſed to be uſed on the Feaſt of Tabernacles. It contains an invitation of the Jews to Praiſe, for the common Benefits conferred on them and all Mankind, but particularly upon the Jewiſh Nation.

O Come, let us ſing unto the LORD: let us heartily rejoyce in the ſtrength of our Salvation.

2. Let us come before his preſence with Thankſgiving: and ſhew ourſelves glad in him with Pſalms.

3. For the LORD is a great God: and a great King above all Gods.

4. In his Hands are all the corners of the Earth: and the ſtrength of the Hills is his alſo.

5. The Sea is his, and he made it: and his Hands prepared the dry Land.

6. O come, let us worſhip and fall down: and kneel before the LORD our Maker.

7. For he is the Lord our God: and we are the People of his Paſture, and the Sheep of his Hand.

8. To day if ye will hear his Voice, harden not your Hearts: as in the provocation, and as in the Day of Temptation in the Wilderneſs;

9. When your Fathers tempted me: proved me, and ſaw my Works.

10. Forty Years long was I grieved with this Generation, and ſaid: It is a People that do err in their Hearts for they have not known my ways. 11. Unto

16. Who therefore is the Perſon, that is to deliver us from the Hands of our Oppreſſors?

17. Moſt certainly this is not to be effected by any Human Aid, but by God alone; by whoſe Protection, unleſs we had been ſuſtained, our Nation had long ago been deſtroyed by our prevailing Enemies.

18. But if at any time I, or any other good Man, be preſſed down by an extraordinary Affliction, God does very ſeaſonably interpoſe for his Relief from it, or affords Patience, comfortably to bear it.

19. I have been under the Preſſure of very many and very great Afflictions, but the Reflexions upon thy Goodneſs and Mercy have cheered up my Soul, and raiſed me unto a firm degree of pious Hope and Confidence.

20. The Righteous God will never ſupport the Throne of thoſe wicked Princes, who eſtabliſh Wickedneſs by a Law, and like Nebuchadnezzar, give out Edicts to worſhip Idols, Dan. 3. 4.

21. That call a Counſel together to conſult, how to take away the Lives of innocent Perſons, and to condemn good Men under the ſhew of Juſtice.

22. But tho' they ſhould deal thus injuriouſly by me, or any other pious Perſon, I will appeal to a ſuperior Tribunal, even that of God himſelf, who will be ſo far from countenancing their Injuſtice, that he himſelf will arraign theſe pretended Adminiſtrators of it.

23. He ſhall make all their wicked Deſigns, which they craftily contrived for other Mens prejudice, to be executed againſt their own ſelves, and, whilſt they thought to deſtroy the People of God, God ſhall work their own Deſtruction.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XCV.

GO to, let us ſing Praiſes unto God: let us keep a Jubilee before our Lord JEHOVAH, our mighty Redeemer.

2. Let us appear before the Ark, the eſpecial place of his preſence, with giving of Thanks: and rejoyce before him with Pſalmody.

3. For our God JEHOVAH is not a vain fictitious Being, but the Real, the only and great God; a God, that infinitely exceeds all the Heathen Idol-gods.

4. He is a God by whoſe Word we were firſt made, and at whoſe diſpoſal now are, all the dark Corners and low Caverns of the Earth: and who has a Right and Sovereignty over the high and ſtrong Mountains, thoſe Mountains of Laſſitude (as the Original calls them) that are ſo high, that they weary the Aſcenders of them.

5. Ours is the ſame God, who by the like Virtue of Creation, has a Right to all the Sea and dry Land, whereſoever widely diſperſed over the Globe of the Earth.

6. Nay, for a further Motive for us to worſhip this only great and true God, let us conſider him as the Maker of us Men; and upon that account let us bow our Knees in Adoration of our bountiful Creator.

7. But for us the Seed of Abraham, we have ſtill more particular Obligations to praiſe him; having choſen us to be his peculiar People, taking care of us as a Shepherd does of his Flock.

8. But then we muſt not think, that God will be our God, and that we ſhall be his choſen People, if in this our Day we will not hear his Voice, Numb 14. 22. and obey his Laws, but provoke him by our ſtubborn Hearts and Diſobedience, as our Forefathers did in their Day at Maſſah and Meribah, Exod. 17. 2, 7.

9. When the ancients, your Predeceſſors, had a Mind (as God Almighty ſpeaks, Exod. 17. 2) to tempt me, and prove me how far my Almighty Power reached, and to put me to gratifie their unreaſonable Curioſities by unneceſſary Miracles; tho' they could not but be abundantly ſatisfied of my omnipotent Arm, by the Works which they ſaw I did for their ſakes in Egypt:

10 Full forty Years together, Numb. 14. 23. was I vexed with the Croſsneſs of this untoward Generation; which made me declare in theſe Words, I the Lord have ſaid, this is an evil Congregation, Numb. 16. 35. that have a Heart perfectly eſtranged from me, and that never conſidered thoſe great Works which I did for them.

11. Which

11. Unto whom I ſware in my Wrath: that they ſhould not enter into my reſt.

The XCVI. PSALM.

Cantate Domino.

¶¶ This Pſalm is attributed to David in the Greek Copies, tho' it wants a Title in the Hebrew. It was compoſed by him upon the Tranſlation of the Ark, and is extant in the 16th Chapter of the firſt Book of Chronicles, only differing in ſome few particulars. Which additions are ſuppoſed to be made by the Prophet Eſdras, upon the Jewiſh Reſtoration after the Captivity.

O Sing unto the LORD a new Song: ſing unto the Lord, all the whole Earth.

2. Sing unto the LORD, and praiſe his Name: be telling of his Salvation from Day to Day.

3. Declare his Honour unto the Heathen: and his Wonders unto all People.

4. For the LORD is great, and cannot worthily be praiſed: he is more to be feared than all Gods.

5. As for all the Gods of the Heathen, they are but Idols: but it is the LORD that made the Heavens.

6. Glory and Worſhip are before him: Power and Honour are in his Sanctuary.

7. Aſcribe unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the People: aſcribe unto the LORD Worſhip and Power.

8. Aſcribe unto the LORD the Honour due unto his Name: bring Preſents, and come into his Courts.

9. O worſhip the LORD in the beauty of Holineſs: let the whole Earth ſtand in awe of him.

10. Tell it out among the Heathen, that the LORD is King: and that it is he who hath made the round World ſo faſt that it cannot be moved, and how that he ſhall judge the People righteouſly.

11. Let the Heavens rejoyce, and let the Earth be glad: let the Sea make a noiſe, and all that therein is.

12. Let the Field be joyful, and all that is in it: then ſhall all the Trees of the Wood rejoyce before the LORD.

13. For he cometh, for he cometh to judge the Earth: and with Righteouſneſs to judge the World, and the People with his Truth.

The XCVII. PSALM.

Dominus regnavit.

¶¶ There is no Title to this Pſalm in the Hebrew, but the Septuagint Verſion calls it, A Pſalm of David when his Country was reſtored to him, meaning after the Abſalomick Rebellion. But I rather take it to be a direct Prophecy of the Kingdom of the Meſſias.

THE LORD is King, the Earth may be glad thereof: yea, the multitude of the Iſles may be glad thereof.

2. Clouds

11. Which Treatment of me, provoked me to ſo high a Degree, that I declared upon my Oath, that they ſhould not enter into the Land of Canaan, the place of their reſting, after their wandering. This Oath you read Numb. 14 23. As I live your Carcaſes ſhall fall in this Wilderneſs. Surely they ſhall not ſee the Land which I ſware to their Forefathers.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XCVI.

O All ye Inhabitants of every Country in the World, join your Thankſgivings with us of the Jewiſh Nation, in ſinging a new Song, which is compoſed in Honour of the great God, who is the Governor of the whole Earth.

2. Celebrate his great Fame which he has acquired by the Redemption of his People, and other many miraculous Acts for their ſupport; nor let it be only a tranſient Act of rejoycing, but commemorate his Deliverance in every Days Devotion.

3. Let us make known to all the Heathen Nations, what miraculous Operations he has wrought for our ſakes; that they, from a Senſe of his omnipotent Power, may be perſwaded to joyn themſelves with us in his Worſhip.

4. For our God is a God of ſuch boundleſs Perfection, that no Praiſe can reach his Excellencies; he is to be reverenced above all other Deities, who we ſee were lately plagued by him, 1 Sam. 4. 3.

5. For as for all Heathen Deities, they are but Images or wicked Angels, or the departed Souls of Men: but the God, whom we worſhip, is the great Creator of the Univerſe.

6. His Habitation in the Heavens is ſurrounded with inacceſſible Majeſty and Glory, and his preſence in his Tabernacle among us, by the glory of the Shechinah, is the repreſentation of that unſpeakable Majeſty.

7. And, O you Inhabitants of foreign Nations, from the Senſe you have of his Omnipotence and Goodneſs, by his making and governing the World, do you pay likewiſe your acknowledgment to ſo great and gracious a God.

8. Let them attribute to him thoſe adorable Perfections, which his Nature abounds with, and come and offer Sacrifice with us, in the Courts of his Tabernacle.

9. Come and praiſe the Lord before his holy and beautiful Place of Reſidence, his ſacred Ark, every Nation of the World paying the ſame reverential Regards to him, which we do.

10. And you, O People of God, inſtruct your Heathen Neighbours what you are informed, concerning the Nature of God and his Worſhip; that he is the Creator of the Univerſe, and at the conſummation of all things, ſhall judge the World according to thoſe righteous Laws which he has preſcribed.

11, 12. And indeed the whole Creation has great reaſon to rejoyce, for an extraordinary Benefit ſurpaſſing all Mens Conception, which God has deſigned to the World:

13. For the Meſſias the true God, is ſhortly to make his entrance upon Earth, and to govern the World by Laws more full of Equity and Goodneſs, than any of the natural or ceremonial Laws, which he has hitherto preſcribed.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XCVII.

GOD comes to take upon him the regal Adminiſtration of Affairs throughout the World, himſelf preſiding as univerſal Monarch thereof; which is matter of unſpeakable Joy and Comfort to all the Gentile World.

2. Clouds and Darkneſs are round about him: Righteouſneſs and Judgment are the habitation of his Seat.

3. There ſhall go a Fire before him: and burn up his Enemies on every ſide.

4. His lightnings gave ſhine unto the World: the Earth ſaw it, and was afraid.

5. The Hills melted like Wax at the preſence of the Lord: at the preſence of the LORD of the whole Earth.

6. The Heavens have declared his Righteouſneſs: and all the People have ſeen his Glory.

7. Confounded be all they that worſhip carved Images, and that delight in vain Gods: worſhip him all ye Gods.

8. Sion heard of it, and rejoyced: and the Daughters of Juda were glad, becauſe of thy Judgments, O LORD.

9. For thou, LORD, art higher than all that are in the Earth: thou art exalted far above all Gods.

10. O ye that love the LORD, ſee that ye hate the thing which is evil: the Lord preſerveth the Souls of his Saints; he ſhall deliver them from the Hand of the Ungodly.

11. There is ſprung up a Light for the Righteous: and joyful gladneſs for ſuch as are true hearted.

12. Rejoyce in the LORD, ye Righteous: and give Thanks for a Remembrance of his Holineſs.

EVENING PRAYER.

The XCVIII. PSALM.

Cantate Domino.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm has no Title in the Hebrew, but only A Pſalm. The Greek Copies attribute it to David; from whence ſome think it may have relation to ſome of the Davidical Conqueſts; but it is moſt probable, as the moſt learned of the Jewiſh and Chriſtian Writers think, that it is a Prophetical Exultation for the Converſion of the Gentiles.

O Sing unto the LORD a new Song: for he hath done marvellous things.

2. With his own right Hand, and with his holy Arm: hath he gotten himſelf the Victory.

3. The LORD declared his Salvation: his Righteouſneſs hath he openly ſhewed in the ſight of the Heathen.

4. He hath remembred his Mercy and Truth toward the Houſe of Iſrael: and all the ends of the World have ſeen the Salvation of our God.

5. Shew your ſelves joyful unto the LORD, all ye Lands: ſing, rejoyce and give thanks.

6. Praiſe

2. And when he takes his Royal Chair, a thick impenetrable Cloud ſhall be his Canopy; and Juſtice and Equity ſhall be the attendants on each ſide of his Throne.

3. And when he makes his triumphal Proceſſion, a devouring Fire ſhall clear his way before him; which ſhall ſcorch and burn all thoſe that dare to oppoſe the ſolemnity of his Entrance.

4. Shining gleams of Lightning were darted thro' the Sky, a terrible Earthquake accompanying it, as if the Ground ſhook for fear of the diſmal Flaſhes.

5. The Minerals and Metals which the Hills were pregnant with, were melted at the preſence of the great God, as if they had been made of Wax, and run down in burning Streams by their Sides.

6. What a juſt and powerful God he is, is demonſtrated by theſe Convulſions of the Heavens that are made in this terrible Tempeſt, which all the World muſt take notice of.

7. And when the King Meſſias ſhall be thus manifeſted to the World, the Heathen Superſtitions and Idolatries ſhall vaniſh away, and Men ſhall be aſhamed of their fooliſh Religions; Earthly Princes, and the very Angels in Heaven ſhall pay their adoration to him.

8. All the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and all the true Seed of Abraham, who ſhall believe in the Meſſias, ſhall have their Hearts filled with Joy, at the coming of this Heavenly Prince.

9. For thou, O King Meſſias, art the ſupreme God; thou art infinitely advanced above all the Angelical Natures in Heaven.

10. But let not your Joy terminate in ſome few vocal Praiſes, and Exaltation of your Spirits; but let it ſink ſo deep into your Hearts, that it may make all the Actions of your Life, by an uninterrupted Courſe of Piety, to afford a ſuitable return for the Favours God has beſtowed upon you; and then God will never let your Enemies prevail againſt you again.

11. And tho' hereafter you may have ſome Misfortunes befal you, yet you may reſt yourſelves aſſured, that it will not be long, before God ſhall afford you the bright Beams of the Goſpel-Light, and the unſpeakable Comfort and Satisfaction, which all good Men ſhall receive from the Coming of the Meſſias, and the Benefits which he ſhall confer upon Mankind.

12. This is Matter of the greateſt Joy and Triumph to all good Men; who will be always obliged to give thanks to God, for ſo unſpeakable a Bleſſing.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XCVIII.

O Sing unto the Lord a new and extraordinary Song, for he hath done for the ſake of his Church, things full of Amazement and Aſtoniſhment.

2. He has not by any mortal Hand, but by his own omnipotent Arm, has he gained a Victory; and that not only over our Temporal but our Spiritual Enemies.

3. He hath manifeſted his Salvation univerſally extended by the Coming of the Meſſias: he has manifeſted his Righteouſneſs, in deſtroying the Kingdom of Darkneſs, to all the Heathen World.

4. He hath remembred the Promiſe of the Meſſias, made to the ancient Patriarchs of the Jews; and all the Heathen Nations have ſeen (that is, in the Prophetick Phraſe, ſhall ſee) that Salvation or Bleſſing which they ſhall receive from Abraham's Seed, Gen. 12. 3.

5. Therefore, O all ye Heathen Countries, ſince you are to partake of this ineſtimable Bleſſing, do you, as a mark of your

6. Praiſe the LORD upon the Harp: ſing to the Harp with a Pſalm of Thankſgiving.
7. With Trumpets alſo and Shawms: O ſhew yourſelves joyful before the LORD the King.
8. Let the Sea make a Noiſe, and all that therein is: the round World, and they that dwell therein.
9. Let the Floods clap their Hands, and let the Hills be joyful together before the LORD: for he is come to judge the Earth.
10. With Righteouſneſs ſhall he judge the World: and the People with Equity.

The XCIX PSALM.

Dominus regnavit.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm has no Title in the Hebrew, but the Greeks attribute it to David, it ſeeming to have a relation to his quiet Eſtabliſhment in his Throne,

THE LORD is King, be the People never ſo unpatient: he ſitteth between the Cherubims, be the Earth never ſo unquiet.
2. The LORD is great in Sion and high above all People.
3. They ſhall give Thanks unto thy Name: which is great, wonderful, and holy.
4. The King's Power loveth Judgment, thou haſt prepared Equity: thou haſt executed Judgment, and Righteouſneſs in Jacob.
5. O magnifie the LORD our God: and fall down before his Footſtool, for he is Holy.
6. Moſes and Aaron among his Prieſts, and Samuel among ſuch as call upon his Name: theſe called upon the Lord, and he heard them.
7. He ſpake unto them out of the cloudy Pillar: for they kept his Teſtimonies, and the Law that he gave them.
8. Thou heardeſt them, O LORD our God: thou forgaveſt them, O God, and puniſhedſt their own Inventions.
9. O magnifie the LORD our God, and worſhip him upon his Holy Hill: for the Lord our God is Holy.

The

your Thankfulneſs to ſo gracious a God, joyn with us Jews in our Praiſes to the Lord.

6. Do you praiſe the Lord together with us, upon the moſt tuneful Inſtrument the Harp, and joyn to this a Vocal Muſick, ſinging ſacred Songs, in Thankfulneſs to God, for ſo great a Bleſſing.

7. Let there be added to the ſacred Conſort, the moſt melodious Wind-Muſick in uſe among us, Trumpets and Pipes; to raiſe our Joy to the greateſt height, when we appear in the Preſence of the great JEHOVAH, who is King of Heaven and Earth.

8. Let the Waves of the Sea join their Murmurs, to make up the Harmony: Let all the whole Orb of the Earth, and all the Inhabitants of it, come in for their parts in the univerſal Chorus.

9. Let the daſhing of the Waters in the Rivers, imitate the clapping of Hands in this general Dance and rejoycing of Nature: Let the Hills by a pleaſant Verdure, ſeem to ſmile and ſing; ſince the great God himſelf makes his appearance upon Earth, to govern Men by his Laws.

10. He ſhall then govern Mankind, not by the imperfect Dictates of Natures dim Light, nor by Ceremonial Precepts; but by new and Divine Laws, full of Equity and Goodneſs.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. XCIX.

ALL Men may now be fully convinced, that God governeth the World, notwithſtanding the fierce Oppoſitions, which wicked Men make to the wiſe Deſigns of his Providence; he has his eſpecial reſidence in the Ark of his Covenant, (where the Cherubims, which he has ordered to be made there, extend their Wings) and at his pleaſure executes his Decrees, tho' the Inhabitants of the World be in never ſo turbulent Commotions.

2. The Lord, whoſe ſacred Ark is now ſeated in Sion, is a God of ineffable Splendor and Greatneſs, and of ſuch a transcendent Power, as will defeat all the Oppoſitions of his Enemies.

3. All the Inhabitants of Judea, ſhall pay devout Thanks to thee, who art a God of ſo great Power, all whoſe Diſpenſations are ſo miraculous, and thy Nature ſo pure.

4. Thou who art King of Iſrael, doſt govern thy Subjects by the moſt equitable Laws; nothing, which is hard or unjuſt, mixing with thy Determinations.

5. Therefore let us addreſs ourſelves to him, in Pſalms of Thankſgiving, and in the moſt humble Proſtration fall down before his Mercy-Seat; praiſing and adoring him for the exquiſite Holineſs of his Nature, and the Righteouſneſs of his Proceedings.

6. And in this I would have you follow the Examples of thoſe great Saints of God, his famous Miniſters Moſes and Aaron, Exod. 32. 11. Numb. 16. 45. as in a like manner did Samuel that celebrated Prophet, 1 Sam. 7. 5. and 12. 9. theſe devout Servants of God interceded with earneſt Prayers to God in behalf of the People, to deprecate the Judgments due for their Sins, and he vouchſafed a gracious Anſwer to them.

7. With theſe the Almighty God was pleaſed to confer, as with an ordinary Friend, out of a bright Cloud which ſurrounded him; being recommended and made ſo dear to him, by their exact Obſervance of his Commands, and their Zeal for his Worſhip.

8. This did engage thee, O our gracious God, to lend a favourable Ear to theſe good Men's Petitions, in behalf of the People; forgiving their Sins, and ſtaying the Plague, which thou didſt ſend for their Puniſhment, when thou wert taking ſo ſevere Vengeance upon them for their Idolatry.

9. Let theſe Conſiderations have that good Effect upon our Minds, as to bring us, with earneſt Devotion and Proſtration, both of Mind and Body, to worſhip him at his Tabernacle upon Mount Sion; for He is the only true God, a God of that infinite Goodneſs and Holineſs, as requires all the Praiſe and Adoration which we can pay him.

The C. PSALM.

Jubilate Deo.

¶ ¶ The Hebrew Title is only A Psalm of Praise: It is a form of Thanksgiving used at the Peace-Offering mentioned Lev. 7. 12. as the Chaldee Paraphrase observes.

O Be joyful in the LORD all ye Lands: serve the LORD with gladness, and come before his presence with a Song.

2. Be ye sure that the LORD he is God; it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves: we are his People, and the Sheep of his Pasture.

3. O go your way into his Gates with Thanksgiving, and go into his Courts with Praise: be thankful unto him, and speak good of his Name.

4. For the LORD is gracious, his Mercy is everlasting: and his Truth endureth from Generation to Generation.

The CI PSALM.

Misericordiam & judicium.

¶ ¶ This Psalm which is intituled in the Original to David, seems to be composed at his first coming to the Kingdom, when he reigned only in Hebron, 2 Sam. 2. 1. and before he came into the entire Possession of that Monarchy. In this he lays down some very wise and pious Resolutions which he prescribed to himself, to observe in the Administration of his Government.

MY Song shall be of Mercy and Judgment: unto thee, O LORD, will I sing.

2. O let me have understanding: in the way of Godliness.

3. When wilt thou come unto me: I will walk in my House with a perfect Heart.

4. I will take no wicked thing in hand; I hate the Sins of unfaithfulness: there shall no such cleave unto me.

5. A froward Heart shall depart from me: I will not know a wicked Person.

6. Whoso privily slandereth his Neighbour: him will I destroy.

7. Whoso hath also a proud Look and high Stomach: I will not suffer him.

8. Mine Eyes look upon such as are faithful in the Land: that they may dwell with me.

9. Whoso leadeth a godly Life: he shall be my Servant.

10. There shall no deceitful Person dwell in my House: he that telleth Lies, shall not tarry in my sight.

11. I shall soon destroy all the Ungodly that are in the Land: that I may root out all wicked Doers from the City of the LORD.

MORN.

Paraphrase on Psal. C.

O Give Thanks unto God, all ye Heathen Nations; join with us in praising and adoring the only true God, and by appearing in his presence at his Holy Temple.

2. Assuredly know ye, that the LORD our God JEHOVAH, is the only true God; for it was he that made us when we were not, the undoubted Mark of an omnipotent Power, which makes him to be the God of the whole World by virtue of his Creation of it; but having chosen the Seed of Abraham to be his Flock, and his peculiar People, we are his by Election, and he in a peculiar manner, is our God.

3. Now being blessed with these wonderful Favours, O ye sacred Priests, whose Office intitles you to approach nigher to the Divine Presence, do you enter into the Temple-Gates with Songs of Thanksgiving: And do you, O People, to whom it is indulged to go no farther than the Courts, joyn in your turn in the common Praise.

4. For what greater Motives are there to Praise, than the Goodness, the Mercy, and the Truth of God? His Goodness in Creating us; his Mercy in Sparing us; and his Truth revealed unto us, and for ever to remain among us.

Paraphrase on Psal. CI.

NOW I am advanced to the Kingdom of Israel, I will compose a Psalm, which shall not be in a strain of Exultation, how I am impowered to take Vengeance upon my Opposers, and to exercise a Despotick Rule over my Subjects; but to shew what gentle and Merciful Administration I design to make use of, throughout my Reign; and I will direct my Song to thee, O God, that thou mayest be a Witness of the Truth and Sincerity of what I say.

2. And, O my gracious God, since I am addressing to thee, I beseech thee in the first place, to afford me a perfect understanding in the Duties of Religion, which are incumbent upon me, both as a Prince, and as a Servant of God.

3. When thou shalt be pleased to give me an entire Possession of my promised Kingdom, I will endeavour so to manage my Court, that not only I myself will set a good Example, by the Holiness of my Conversation, but I will oblige all others about me, to an Integrity of Manners likewise.

4. I will not engage in an unlawful Enterprise, tho' never so seemingly advantageous to the publick Affairs, or my private Interest; I abhor Insincerity in a private Person, much more in a Prince: And if at any time the Persons about me, shall dare to motion to me any indirect Action, for my own or the publick Good, they shall be for ever banished my presence.

5. I will discharge from my Service, those stomachful Persons who will not bear Admonition, or who will not reform their Manners, being told of their Faults; but a Man of a lewd flagitious Life, shall not so much as be admitted to my presence.

6. Those ill Men, so common in all Courts, that invent malicious Reports to supplant others, and bring them into Disgrace with the Prince; that monopolize his Favours for themselves, and their Creatures; all these I will dismiss from my Service, as soon as ever I find them exercising this wicked Craft.

7. All those proud and ambitious Men, who are pressing for Honours and Preferments above their Merits, to the Discouragement of more modest and deserving Persons, shall not be permitted to have any Employ under me.

8. But I will endeavour to look out for Men of tried Fidelity, and exact Honesty, to put into place of Trust, or any other Service about me.

9. But as for those who are to be employed near my Person, and with whom I am obliged to have a closer Conversation, they must be Persons of a strict Life, and eminent for Piety and Devotion.

10. No crafty designing Man shall be advanced by me to any place of Honour or Profit; when I find any Person guilty of Falsity or Dissimulation, I will immediately dismiss him from my Service.

11. And by this Method I do not doubt so to discourage Vice and Immorality, as that there shall not be any Persons notoriously wicked left in Israel, and that Jerusalem, the Sacred Capital of my Kingdom, shall be inhabited only by good and pious Servants of God.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CII. PSALM.

Domine, exaudi.

¶ ¶ The Title of this Pſalm in the Hebrew is, A Prayer of the Afflicted, when he is overwhelmed, and poureth out his Complaint before the Lord. The Chaldee Paraphraſe and Kimchi, will have it to be compoſed in the Name of the Jewiſh Nation during the Captivity, which is a very probable Conjecture. Moſt certainly it was anciently uſed among the Jews as a proper Form of Devotion, at a time of Humiliation; and hence likewiſe it was adapted to the ſame uſe by Chriſtians, this being one of the ſeven Penitential Pſalms.

HEar my Prayer, O LORD: and let my crying come unto thee.

2. Hide not thy Face from me in the time of my Trouble: incline thine Ear unto me when I call; O hear me, and that right ſoon.

3. For my Days are conſumed away like Smoke: and my Bones are burnt up as it were a Fire-brand.

4. My Heart is ſmitten down, and withered like Graſs: ſo that I forget to eat my Bread.

5. For the Voice of my groaning: my Bones [* will ſcarce] cleave to my Fleſh.

6. I am become like a Pelican in the Wilderneſs: and like an Owl that is in the Deſert.

7. I have watched, and am even as it were a Sparrow: that ſitteth alone upon the Houſe-top.

8. Mine Enemies revile me all the Day long: and they that are mad upon me, are ſworn together againſt me.

9. For I have eaten Aſhes as it were Bread: and mingled my Drink with weeping;

10. And that becauſe of thine Indignation and Wrath: for thou haſt taken me up, and caſt me down.

11. My Days are gone like a ſhadow: and I am withered like Graſs.

12. But thou, O LORD, ſhall endure for ever: and thy remembrance throughout all Generations.

13. Thou ſhalt ariſe, and have Mercy upon Sion: for it is time that thou have Mercy upon her, yea, the time is come.

---

* It muſt be owned here is a Fault in our Tranſlation, but not one of Dr. Coverdale's making; for the words [will ſcarce] muſt be put in by ſome body elſe who corrected the firſt Edition of Coverdale. For Coverdale in the Margin of his Bible, refers to a parallel place to this, Lam. 4. 8. and there he tranſlates, Their Skin cleaveth to their Bones, as it ought to be here; allowing that Baſhar, Fleſh, here ſignifies the ſame as Gnor, Skin, there; and that Dabach and Tzapath both ſignifie to cleave or ſtick cloſe. For the Septuagint tranſlates the firſt Verb by κολλαω, and the ſecond by πήγνυμι, which both ſignifie the ſame thing. So that this Expreſſion amounts to no more than that of our Engliſh Phraſe, I am all Skin and Bone.

14. And

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CII.

I Beſeech thee, O gracious God, to hear my earneſt Petitions, which under this great Grief and Pain of Mind I put up to thee.

2. Do not thou, under this mighty Diſtreſs, in token of thy Diſpleaſure, turn thy Face from me, but rather bow down from thy heavenly Throne to liſten to my Prayer; and if it be thy heavenly Pleaſure, afford me an early Aſſiſtance.

3. My Life is gone off in Smoke, ſo entirely vaniſh'd, that nothing thereof is viſible; my Body is ſo waſted and burnt up with Grief, that there is nothing remaining; but as it were a few dead Coals, and burnt Sticks-ends.

4. My Vitals are withered as Graſs, that is burnt up by the ſcorching Sun; my Grief is ſo violent, that it makes me neglect the taking my neceſſary Suſtenance.

5. Through my long and exceſſive Grief, my Fleſh is ſo conſumed away, that my Skin ſticks to my Bones.

6. I am become as deſtitute of Company, and as forlorn as the lonely Pelican which keeps always in the Wilderneſs; and as the Owl who lies hid in ſome ſolitary Rock or ruinous Building.

7. I am as Solitary as a Sparrow, which having loſt her Mate, ſits by her ſelf diſconſolate, upon the top of ſome lonely Houſe.

8. Nor is the want of Friendſhips and Converſation my only Ground of Complaint, my greateſt Misfortune is, that I have ſo many cauſeleſs Enemies; they are continually employing their Tongues againſt me, in vile Slanders; they are bent upon my Ruin with ſo much Fury, that they have bound themſelves with an Oath to deſtroy me.

9. Whilſt I act the part of a Penitent Mourner, having refrained from all Food, and in ſtead of that, have been all the day long covered with Aſhes; not having any other Drink but my Tears.

10. Nor did this Sorrow ſo much proceed from a Conſideration of their malicious Deſigns againſt me, as from a deep Senſe of thy Anger towards me, for my Sins committed againſt thee, which provoked thee to puniſh me with this Extremity, raiſing me up to an height, on purpoſe to throw me down with the greater force.

11. My Life is paſſed away like a Dream or empty Shadow, and is withered like Graſs in the hot Sun.

12. But this is my great Support and Comfort, that tho' my Life is ſo ſhort and tranſitory, yet thou, my God, art of infinite Duration; and thou, through innumerable Ages to come, ſhalt be bleſſed, for thy Goodneſs communicated to them; tho' thy Diſpenſations to us at preſent are ſevere.

13. And we doubt not, but in a little while, thou wilt not be an unconcerned Spectator of our Sufferings, but that thou wilt riſe up in our defence, and reſtore us to our holy City Jeruſalem as thou haſt promiſed; for the Seventy Years which thou didſt foretel our Captivity ſhould laſt, Jer. 24. 10. Dan. 9. 2. & 24. 25. are now nigh expiring.

14. For

14. And why? thy Servants think upon her Stones: and it pitieth them to ſee her in the Duſt.

15. The Heathen ſhall fear thy Name, O LORD: and all the Kings of the Earth thy Majeſty;

16. When the LORD ſhall build up Sion: and when his Glory ſhall appear;

17. When he turneth him unto the Prayer of the poor deſtitute: and deſpiſeth not their deſire.

18. This ſhall be written for thoſe that come after: and the People which ſhall be born ſhall praiſe the LORD.

19. For he hath looked down from his Sanctuary: out of the Heaven did the LORD behold the Earth.

20. That he might hear the Mournings of ſuch as are in Captivity: and deliver the Children appointed unto Death;

21. That they may declare the Name of the LORD in Sion: and his Worſhip at Jeruſalem;

22. When the People are gathered together: and the Kingdoms alſo to ſerve the LORD.

23. He brought down my Strength in my Journey: and ſhortned my Days.

24. But I ſaid, O my God, take me not away in the midſt of mine Age: as for thy Years, they endure throughout all Generations.

25. Thou, Lord, in the beginning haſt laid the Foundation of the Earth: and the Heavens are the work of thy Hands.

26. They ſhall periſh, but thou ſhalt endure: they all ſhall wax old as doth a Garment.

27. And as a Veſture ſhalt thou change them, and they ſhall be changed: but thou art the ſame, and thy Years ſhall not fail.

28. The Children of thy Servants ſhall continue: and their Seed ſhall ſtand faſt in thy Sight.

The CIII. PSALM.

Benedic, anima mea.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm bears the Title of David, and it is thought, was compoſed by him, upon a Recovery from ſome ſit of ſickneſs: In this he Praiſes God's Goodneſs, as well for the Pardon of his Sins, as for the ſparing his Life. It is full of great Devotion, and abounds with variety of curious Poetical Images.

PRaiſe the LORD, O my Soul: and all that is within me praiſe his holy Name.

2. Praiſe

14. For we thy Servants cannot but kindly think of the broken Walls and Rubbiſh of that once famous City; pitying that ſuch a ſad Deſolation ſhould have been made of ſuch noble Structures.

15. And when thou haſt finiſhed this glorious Act of our Reſtoration, the very Heathen Princes and Nations ſhall celebrate thy great Power and Goodneſs to thy Servants.

16. For when our great God ſhall impower us to rebuild the Walls of our deſolate City, and when his glorious Majeſty ſhall be worſhipped there again with the ancient Solemnity:

17. When he ſhall have heard the Prayers of us now miſerable Captives, and ſhall have reſtored us to our former Liberty and Eſtates:

18. This Reſtoration of the Jewiſh Nation ſhall ſtand for ever in the Memoirs of Hiſtory, and all future Generations ſhall praiſe and admire the Power and Goodneſs of God, for working ſuch a Deliverance for his People.

19. For God now doth vouchſafe to look down from his Heavenly Throne, upon us poor Mortals.

20. Vouchſafing to hear the diſmal Cries and Complaints of his poor Captives, and to knock off the Fetters of thoſe wretched Priſoners, whom the Tyranny of their Conquerors had condemned to die.

21. Thereby to give them an opportunity of paying their ſolemn Worſhip to thee, in their Mother City Jeruſalem.

22. Eſpecially at thoſe great Seaſons of publick Worſhip, when all the Tribes of Iſrael are to go up from the ſeveral Quarters the Country, to offer Sacrifices at the Temple there.

23. But when long ago I was in hopes of this glorious Deliverance, thou didſt blaſt all my Expectations, and when I thought I was in my way to that Happineſs, thou didſt not afford me Strength or Life, to perform that deſirable Journey.

24. Then did I addreſs my ſelf to thee in earneſt Prayer, begging of thee that thou wouldſt not cut me off in the moſt flouriſhing part of Life, and before I can ſhare of the publick Joy of the Reſtoration thou haſt promiſed; but if I do not live to ſee it, thou, who art an everlaſting and immutable God, wilt not fail to make our Poſterity happy therein.

25. For we doubt not, but thou canſt with eaſe build up Jeruſalem again, who in the Creation didſt lay the Foundations of the Earth, and didſt build the Heavens thereupon.

26. But tho' this glorious Fabrick of the Univerſe be a work of great Strength and long Duration, yet it has not a Nature of infinite continuance, for in much leſs than an Infinity of Time, it muſt moulder away and wear out, as a Coat does, and will require to be repaired anew.

27. And as for the Inhabitants of the Earth likewiſe, every Generation wears off, and a new Set of People ſucceed in their room, in the ſame manner, as when we put on a new Suit of Apparel, we lay aſide the old: But thou art a God of infinite Duration, who doſt receive no change by Time, but after Millions of Ages enjoyed in perfect Felicity, thou haſt a happy Eternity yet for to come.

28. This conſideration, of thy good and powerful Nature, doth encourage me to hope, that thou wilt ſhortly bleſs us with a joyful Reſtoration to our Native Country; and tho' I may not be ſo happy, to partake of the publick Joy in my time, yet our Children may reap the deſired Benefit, which they ſhall receive by an Eſtabliſhment of thy Worſhip, to continue among them for many Ages.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CIII.

O My Soul raiſe up thy ſelf, in the moſt devout Contemplation, and grateful Remembrance of what God has done for thee; and let all the inward Powers and Affections of my Mind rejoyce, in acknowledgment of his Favours.

2. I

2. Praiſe the LORD, O my Soul: and forget not all his Benefits;
3. Who forgiveth all thy Sin: and healeth all thine Infirmities;
4. Who ſaveth thy Life from Deſtruction: and crowneth thee with Mercy and loving Kindneſs.
5. Who ſatisfieth thy Mouth with good things: making thee young and luſty as an Eagle.
6. The LORD executeth Righteouſneſs and Judgment: for all them that are oppreſſed with wrong.
7. He ſhewed his ways unto Moſes: his works unto the Children of Iſrael.
8. The LORD is full of Compaſſion and Mercy: Long-ſuffering, and of great Goodneſs.
9. He will not always be chiding: neither keepeth he his Anger for ever.
10. He hath not dealt with us after our Sins: nor rewarded us according to our wickedneſſes.
11. For look how high the Heaven is in compariſon of the Earth: ſo great is his Mercy alſo toward them that fear him.
12. Look how wide alſo the Eaſt is from the Weſt: ſo far hath he ſet our Sins from us.
13. Yea, like as a Father pitieth his own Children: even ſo is the LORD merciful unto them that fear him.
14. For he knoweth whereof we are made: he remembreth that we are but Duſt.
15. The Days of Man are but as Graſs: for he flouriſheth as a flower of the Field.
16. For as ſoon as the Wind goeth over it, it is gone: and the place thereof ſhall know it no more.
17. But the merciful goodneſs of the LORD endureth for ever and ever, upon them that fear him: and his Righteouſneſs upon Childrens Children;
18. Even upon ſuch as keep his Covenant: and think upon his Commandments to do them.
19. The LORD hath prepared his ſeat in Heaven: and his Kingdom ruleth over all.

20. O

2. I ſay to thee again, O my Soul, raiſe up thyſelf in devout and thankful Thoughts, towards thy gracious God, and be not inſenſible of the great Favours, he has conferred upon thee.

3. That gracious God, who, after a ſhort Correction for my Faults, did take away the Rod from me, and did forgive thoſe Sins which enforced my Puniſhment.

4. Who did ſave my Life, from the late apparent Danger of a Mortal Diſtemper, which I did lie under; and through thy great Mercy and Kindneſs, did reſtore me to my former Health.

5. Who did confer upon me a number of choice Bleſſings, to the Satisfaction of every Deſire of mine; and who was ſo far from impairing my Strength by Sickneſs, that I look thereby more fair and beautiful, as an Eagle which has lately ſhed his Feathers.

6. Nor is his Goodneſs extended to me alone; for not only the whole World do partake thereof, but it is particularly manifeſted, in the protection of injured Innocents.

7. This is that gracious God, who revealed his ſacred Will, and the way he would be worſhipped in, to his Servant Moſes; and for many Ages together, in their going out of Egypt, in their travelling through the Wilderneſs, and in their ſetling in the promiſed Land, wrought extraordinary Miracles, for the ſake of his choſen People Iſrael.

8. But above all, he is a good and a merciful God, who bears long with our Sins before he puniſhes them; and when we are under his Chaſtiſement, he is willing to ſpare us, whenever we unfeignedly turn to him by an hearty Repentance.

9. He is ſo far from being an implacable God, whoſe Vengeance will never be ſatisfied, that his Diſpleaſure is as ſoon over, as ever it has wrought upon us the deſired Effect of our being bettered by our Afflictions.

10. Tho' the number and the heinouſneſs of our Offences might deſerve the ſevereſt Penalties, he might inflict upon us; yet he does not puniſh according to that proportion which, by Reaſon of our Guilt, we might expect.

11. For the vaſt diſtance, between the higheſt Heaven and the Centre of the Earth, is but a faint reſemblance, how infinitely God's Mercy and Goodneſs does exceed any Service, which we can pay to him.

12. Nay, the two remoteſt Points of Eaſt and Weſt, which are yet further diſtant from each other, are not to be compared to that infinite Mercy, which does vouchſafe to forgive the Sins committed againſt an infinite God.

13. No Father's Bowels yearn with an equal tenderneſs, towards his darling Child, to what the love of God doth to his faithful Servants.

14. He takes into his All-wiſe Conſideration the frailty of our Nature, and our Proneneſs to Sin; and makes allowances for our Original Depravation, and our Nature, which, in is beſt unlapſed State, was not impeccable.

15. For Man, at moſt, is but a poor weak Animal, of but a ſhort Life, and ſubject to a world of Accidents; ſo that he may not be unfitly compared to the Herbs, and Flowers of the Field:

16. Which are ſubject to be blaſted by every blight; whereby they decay and die away, ſo that no tracts of them are remaining.

17. But if Men are deſirous of attaining a ſtate of Immortality, they muſt take care faithfully to diſcharge the Duties, which God has required of them; and then God will reward them hereafter with eternal Life, for the ſlight Service of a few Years in this World; and will bleſs their Poſterity after them, Exod 20. 6, 23.

18. And to attain theſe mighty Benefits there is no other condition required, than to diſcharge the Obligation, which he has laid upon us, with a faithful Diligence and Circumſpection.

19. And we have no reaſon to doubt but God will perform the Condition on his part, in enſtating us in the foreſaid Happineſs; ſince his Omnipotence empowers him thereunto, he being the great King of Heaven, where from his Throne he diſpoſeth of, and governs, all things throughout the Univerſe.

14. And why? thy Servants think upon her Stones: and it pitieth them to ſee her in the Duſt.

15. The Heathen ſhall fear thy Name, O LORD: and all the Kings of the Earth thy Majeſty;

16. When the LORD ſhall build up Sion: and when his Glory ſhall appear;

The CIV PSALM.

Benedic, anima mea.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm has no Title in the Hebrew, but the Greeks inſcribe it; A Pſalm of David upon the Creation of the World. And the Greeks herein are followed by the Latin, Syriac, Arabick and Ethiopick Verſions. Eben Ezra gives a further reaſon why it ſhould be David's, becauſe it begins juſt as the foregoing Pſalm ends, Praiſe the Lord, O my Soul. But whoever be the Author of it, it is one of the moſt exalted pieces of Poetry extant in Antiquity.

PRaiſe the LORD, O my Soul: O LORD my God: thou art become exceeding glorious, thou art cloathed with Majeſty and Honour.

2. Thou deckeſt thy ſelf with light as it were with a Garment: and ſpreadeſt out the Heavens like a Curtain.

3. Who layeth the Beams of his Chambers in the Waters: and maketh the Clouds his Chariot, and walketh upon the Wings of the Wind.

4. He maketh his Angels Spirits: and his Miniſters a flaming Fire.

5. He laid the foundations of the Earth: that it never ſhould move at any time.

6. Thou coveredſt it with the deep like as with a Garment: the Waters ſtand in the Hills.

7. At thy rebuke they flee: at the Voice of thy Thunder they are afraid.

8. They go up as high as the Hills, and down to the Valleys beneath: even unto the place which thou haſt appointed for them.

9. Thou haſt ſet them their Bounds which they ſhall not paſs: neither turn again to cover the Earth.

10. He ſendeth the Springs into the Rivers: which run among the Hills.

11. All Beaſts of the Field drink thereof: and the wild Aſſes quench their Thirſt.

12. Beſide them ſhall the Fowls of the Air have their Habitation: and ſing among the Branches.

13. He

20. And, O you holy Angels of God, that are endowed with a greater degree of Power than the reſt of God's Creation; you that have the Honour to be ſent on Meſſages and Embaſſies from the great God, do you join with us in praiſing our Almighty Creator.

21. O all you mighty Army of Spiritual Beings, all ye Angelical Orders and glorified Souls, that are employed in praiſing God and doing his Will with exactneſs; do you join with us in praiſing our Almighty Creator.

22. O all ye Men in every part of the World, join in theſe thankful Praiſes to Almighty God: but thou, O my Soul, for the great favour God has lately vouchſafed me, in freeing me from a dangerous Diſtemper, thou haſt more particular Obligations to pay him the moſt devout Praiſes.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CIV.

LET my Soul and all my inward Affections praiſe and magnifie thee, who art the only true God, whom I have the Honour to worſhip: thou, who art a God of inexpreſſible Glory, and art ſurrounded with Eternal Majeſty and Dignity.

2. Methinks I ſee thee like a magnificent Prince, enrobed with inacceſſible Light, the Arch of the Azure-Skies hanging, as it were a Canopy, over thy Throne, the other quarters of the Firmament being drawn like a Curtain round thee.

3. The Superceleſtial Waters are the Beams and Rafters of thy great Chamber of State; the Clouds of the Air are the Chariot that thou doſt triumphantly ride in, and the Winds like winged Courſers, carry thee ſwiftly through the Air.

4 The Winds which waft thee along, are excited by an Angelical Power, and the Flaſhes of Lightning, which attend thy Thunder, are occaſioned by the Miniſtry of thoſe Ceeſtial Beings.

5. It was this great God, who in the Creation of the Univerſe, fix'd the Earth upon ſo firm a Foundation, that no exterior Force could diſturb or ſhake it.

6. It was thou, O God, that didſt firſt enwrap the Globe of the Earth with the circumfuſed Ocean, the greateſt Eminences thereof being covered with Water.

7. But at the Word of thy Command, all the Continents and Iſlands ſtood out above the Waters, and the Sea retired into the Chanels which thou didſt prepare for it.

8. And tho' now oftentimes that mighty Body of Water rages and ſwells in a violent Storm, raiſing itſelf into proud Billows, which ſeem to vye height with the Mountains again, and then of a ſudden ſink down into low Vallies; yet for all this boiſterous Tumult, thou doſt confine the unruly Waves within the Bounds thou haſt made for them.

9. The neighbouring Shores are the Limits which, with all their Violence and Fury, they are not able to paſs; and though, in tempeſtuous Weather, they threaten another Inundation, yet they ſhall never cover the Earth again.

10. It is his Almighty Power and Wiſdom, that makes the Springs that riſe upon the Hills, to run down in Rills by their ſides; and afterwards, by Conjunction with one another in the Vallies, to form themſelves into great and navigable Rivers.

11. On the brinks whereof, the Shepherds and Husbandmen lead their Cattle to drink; and to which even the wild Beaſts, who have no Conductor, can come and plenteouſly quench their Thirſt.

12. The coolneſs of their Vapours, and the clear moiſture of their Streams, draw a multitude of Birds to the Trees that grow round their Banks; upon whoſe Branches they ſit and ſing, and fill the Air around with their warbling-Notes.

13. It

13. He watereth the Hills from above: the Earth is filled with the fruit of thy Works.

14. He bringeth forth Graſs for the Cattle: and green Herb for the ſervice of Men.

15. That he may bring Food out of the Earth, and Wine that maketh glad the Heart of Man: and Oyl to make him a cheerful Countenance, and Bread to ſtrengthen Man's Heart:

16. The Trees of the LORD alſo are full of Sap: even the Cedars of Libanus which he hath planted.

17. Wherein the Birds make their Neſts: and the Fir-Trees are a dwelling for the Stork.

18. The high Hills are a refuge for the wild Goats: and ſo are the ſtony Rocks for the Conies.

19. He appointed the Moon for certain Seaſons: and the Sun knoweth his going down.

20. Thou makeſt darkneſs that it may be Night: wherein all the Beaſts of the Foreſt do move.

21. The Lions roaring after their Prey: do ſeek their Meat from God.

22. The Sun ariſeth, and they get them away together: and lay them down in their Dens.

23. Man goeth forth to his Work. and to his Labour: until the Evening.

24. O LORD, how manifold are thy Works: in Wiſdom haſt thou made them all, the Earth is full of thy Riches.

25. So is the great and wide Sea alſo: wherein are things creeping innumerable, both ſmall and great Beaſts.

26. There go the Ships, and there is that Leviathan: whom thou haſt made to take his Paſtime therein.

27. Theſe wait all upon thee: that thou mayeſt give them Meat in due Seaſon.

28. When

13. It is God, by whoſe gracious Bounty the Rains, ſent from his Store-houſe above, impregnate the Hills with a fatning Moiſture, producing thereby all the great Variety of Fruits and Plants.

14. It is he, that makes the Graſs ſpring out of the Earth, for the Suſtenance of the Cattle, and the eſculent Plants for the Food of Men.

15. It is he, that makes the Grain and Seeds which are ſown in the Ground, to grow up and ripen; it is he, which makes the Vine yield forth its refreſhing Juice, to recruit the Strength, and to eaſe the Cares of Men; it is he, that produces all thoſe curious Oils and Balſams, which yield ſuch grateful Smells, and which Men anoint themſelves with in Feaſts, and other joyful Occaſions; it is his Bounty, that affords Bread to ſuſtain the Bodies of Men, and to repair their Strength, when it is decay'd by Labour.

16. It is he, that fills the Trees with Sap, raiſing up a vegetative Juice from the Earth, to diſtend all their Fibres, to make them increaſe in their Wood and flouriſh in their Leaves; cauſing the noble Cedar-Trees to ſpread their lofty Heads and flouriſh, tho' they are rooted in ſuch a barren craggy Mountain as Libanus.

17. Theſe curious Cedars not only adorn the Hills, and afford the moſt excellent Timber for Mens building, but they yield likewiſe an advantageous opportunity for Birds to build their Neſts in, whoſe Rooms are, as it were, wainſcotted with living Cedar; the Fir-Tree, which is fetched ſo far for our Buildings, grows naturally into a Houſe for the Stork.

18. The craggy Rocks, that moſt barren part of Nature, have their uſe too; they are a retreat to the wild-Goats, who have agility to climb them, and can with ſecurity live by picking up the ſhort Graſs which grows ſtraggling upon them; and the holes within them make Chambers for Rabbets to dwell in.

19. It is he that made the Moon, and ſetled the Laws of her Revolutions and Changes, for the governing the Tides at Sea, and for her influences on Plants and Human Bodies; as alſo for the determining and well-dividing of the Seaſons of the Year, and the Obſervation of Feſtivals, Eccluſ. 43. 6, 7. and the Sun too has his determinate times of riſing and ſetting fixed by God.

20. It is by thy appointment, O God, that the Sun does not always ſhine upon us, but for ſeveral hours withdrawing his Light, affords us opportunity of compoſing ourſelves by Sleep; and at which time the wild Beaſts of the Foreſt have an opportunity, of going abroad to fetch in Prey, when they are out of fear of the Hunters, who are now aſleep in their Beds.

21. At that time the Lions ſtart out of their Dens, and run roaring after thoſe weaker Animals, which they devour for their Prey, the Providence of God affording it to them for their ſuſtenance.

22. As ſoon as the Sun ariſeth, theſe noxious Beaſts leave off their Depredation upon the weak Cattle, and run skulking into their Dens again.

23. And then Men riſe from their Repoſe, and go out to Labour in the Field, where they ſpend the whole Day in cultivating the Soil, or gathering the Fruits thereof; and at the Evening they return to their Houſes for Refreſhment, and Repoſe again.

24. The Conſideration of the wonderous Wiſdom diſcovered in thy works upon the Earth only, does make me to cry out, That the whole Earth does abound with the Riches beſtowed by a bountiful God.

25. But the Sea likewiſe puts in for a ſhare in the Declaration of thy Wiſdom and Goodneſs, as abounding with numberleſs Animals, and ſo vaſt a variety of Species of ſmall and great Fiſh.

26. Thou haſt contrived this mighty Body of Waters, to be a means of conveying Men to Traffick in Ships from one Coaſt to another; in this thou haſt given an Habitation for the great Whale to rove about in, and to exerciſe a Monarchy over all the Fry of leſſer Fiſh, and to pleaſe himſelf in hunting after them.

27. All theſe different Kinds of Animals depend upon thee for their Suſtenance, and whenever their Appetites are craving for Food, thou art always ready to ſatisfie their Hunger, by affording them proper and convenient Suſtenance.

28. In

28. When thou giveſt it them, they gather it: and when thou openeſt thy Hand, they are filled with good.

29. When thou hideſt thy Face, they are troubled: when thou takeſt away their Breath, they die, and are turned again to their Duſt.

30. When thou letteſt thy Breath go forth, they ſhall be made: and thou ſhalt renew the Face of the Earth.

31. The glorious Majeſty of the LORD ſhall endure for ever: the LORD ſhall rejoyce in his Works.

32. The Earth ſhall tremble at the look of him: if he do but touch the Hills, they ſhall Smoke.

33. I will ſing unto the LORD as long as I live: I will praiſe my God while I have my Being.

34. And ſo ſhall my Words pleaſe him: my Joy ſhall be in the LORD.

35. As for Sinners, they ſhall be conſumed out of the Earth, and the Ungodly ſhall come to an end: praiſe thou the LORD, O my Soul, praiſe the LORD.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CV. PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

¶¶ This Pſalm being without Inſcription, is however to be attributed to David, who is the undoubted Author thereof, this being the ſame Pſalm which we have 1 Chron. 16. and of which he is recorded there to be the Compoſer. It was afterwards altered to what it ſtands here; but whether that were done by David's own, or ſome other more modern Hand, is not ſo certain. It contains an Hiſtory of God's various Providences to the Jews.

Praiſe the Lord. O Give thanks unto the LORD, and call upon his Name: tell the People what things he hath done.

2. O let your Songs be of him, and praiſe him: and let your talking be of all his wondrous Works.

3. Rejoyce in his holy Name: let the Heart of them rejoyce that ſeek the LORD.

4. Seek the LORD and his Strength: ſeek his Face evermore.

5. Remember the marvellous Works that he hath done: his Wonders and the judgments of his Mouth;

6. O ye Seed of Abraham his Servant: ye Children of Jacob his choſen.

7. He

28. In the time of the greateſt Scarcity, they pick up the Crums which thou doſt ſcatter out before them, which is a juſt Sufficiency for their Suſtenance; and when with a full Hand theu doſt deal out to them a larger Proportion, they then feaſt upon thy Bounty.

29. If at any time thy Favours are withheld from them, they pine for Want or Sickneſs; when thou doſt demand back the Breath which thou didſt give them, they are reſolved again into the firſt Principle, the Duſt, out of which they were conſtituted, 1 Gen. 24. 25.

30. At other times thou art pleaſed to ſend out thy prolifick Spirit, to raiſe up a new Set of Animals, to ſupply the place of the Deceaſed; and doſt ſtock the Earth with a new Generation of Inhabitants.

31. This wiſe Method of Providence God has always purſued in making and governing the World, and providing ready Supplies upon all occaſions for the Defects; and always ſhall do ſo as long as Nature laſts. This he does approve of, and and is pleaſed with; as he did at the firſt Creation, when he looked, and behold! all things were exceeding good, Gen. 1. 31.

32. And as God at firſt gave Laws to all the parts of Nature, ſo they do ſtill ſubmit to him, whenever his Power is pleaſed to interpoſe: The moſt ſtubborn parts of the Univerſe tremble at his Commands, and are forced to yield exact Obedience to them; at his preſence, the very Hills, like Mount Sinai, ſend forth Flame and Smoke.

33. The Contemplations of God's Wiſdom and Goodneſs, ſhall afford me a conſtant Theme for my Pſalmody as long as I live: Nay, in whatever ſtate and condition I ſhall be continued in being, after death, it will be my deſire to praiſe him.

34. For, as this is the moſt acceptable Service which any Perſon can pay to God; ſo this to the devout Soul is the moſt pleaſant Exerciſe, which ſhe can entertain herſelf in; being both a Duty and a Reward.

35. But, as for ſtupid and regardleſs Sinners, who take no notice of God's marvellous Wiſdom and Goodneſs, who mind nothing but gratifying their brutiſh Appetites, and value not the offending ſo good a God: God ſhall afford them a Taſte of his Vengeance, by the Ruin and extirpation of their Families. But do thou, O my Soul, make a more prudent Choice than theſe ill Men; and, in ſtead of diſobeying and diſhonouring him, do thou make it thy buſineſs to love and praiſe his infinite Goodneſs.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CV.

O Ye Nation of the Jews, do you with the moſt grateful Acknowledgments ſing praiſes to the moſt gracious God; proclaiming to all the World, what aſtoniſhing Miracles he has wrought for your Sakes.

2. Let him be the ſubject of your publick Hymns, and let all your private Diſcourſe be, concerning the wonderful Effects of his Providence towards us.

3. Let all your rejoycing be in magnifying and praiſing the only true God; for certainly there is no degree of Joy ſo exceſſive, as is experienced by his devout Worſhippers.

4. Apply your ſelves for relief from your Troubles, to God Almighty's aſſiſtance; and be not diſheartned, if God does not immediately hearken to your Prayer, but continue ſtill with unwearied ſuit to make your Addreſſes to him, in the Courts of his Tabernacle, where his eſpecial Preſence is.

5. Do you gratefully call to mind the great Miracles, he wrought in Ægypt on your behalf; and what terrible Judgments he pronounced againſt the Egyptians, Exod. 3. 20.

6. O ye Off-ſpring of Abraham, that beloved Servant of God, to whom the Promiſes were made, Gen. 21. 12. and of Jacob, who was choſen before his Brother Eſau, that the ſacred Seed might deſcend from him.

7. He

7. He is the LORD our God: his Judgments are in all the World.
8. He hath been alway mindful of his Covenant and Promiſe: that he made to a thouſand Generations;
9. Even the Covenant that he made with Abraham: and the Oath that he ſware unto Iſaac;
10. And appointed the ſame unto Jacob for a Law: and to Iſrael for an everlaſting Teſtament.
11. Saying, unto thee will I give the Land of Canaan: the lot of your Inheritance.
12. When there were yet but a few of them: and they ſtrangers in the Land;
13. What time as they went from one Nation to another: from one Kingdom to another People;
14. He ſuffered no Man to do them wrong: but reproved even Kings for their ſakes.
15. Touch not mine Anointed: and do my Prophets no harm.
16. Moreover he called for a dearth upon the Land: and deſtroyed all the Proviſion of Bread.
17. But he had ſent a Man before them: even Joſeph, who was ſold to be a Bond-ſervant.
18. Whoſe Feet they hurt in the Stocks: the Iron entred into his Soul.
19. Until the time came that his Cauſe was known: the Word of the LORD tried him.
20. The King ſent and delivered him: the Prince of the People let him go free.
21. He made him Lord alſo of his Houſe: and Ruler of all his Subſtance;
22. That he might inform his Princes after his Will: and teach his Senators Wiſdom.
23. Iſrael alſo came into Egypt: and Jacob was a ſtranger in the Land of Ham.
24. And he increaſed his People exceedingly: and made them ſtronger than their Enemies.
25. Whoſe Heart turned ſo, that they hated his People: and dealt untruly with his Servants.
26. Then ſent he Moſes his Servant: and Aaron whom he had choſen.
27. And theſe ſhewed his Tokens among them: and Wonders in the Land of Ham.

28. He

7. He is the peculiar God of our Nation, tho' the whole World is governed by his Providence.

8. He has been very careful to diſcharge every Point of the Covenant, which he made many Ages ago, in protecting and maintaining us.

9. That Covenant, which he made with our Progenitor Abraham, Gen. 15. 17, 18. and which he confirmed to his Son Iſaac:

10. Which he afterwards renewed unto Jacob, Gen. 28. 13. and which he afterwards paſſed into a Law, among thoſe Sanctions which he gave by the Hand of Moſes, Exod. 23. 22, 23. never to be aboliſhed.

11. The Tenour of which Covenant was, That I will give thee the Poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan, to be divided by Lot among the Tribes of Iſrael.

12. Which Promiſe was made, when the Family of the Patriarch was very ſmall, and were only Sojourners in the Land of Canaan, Gen. 23. 4. and were ſo far from being like to obtain the Dominion of that Country, that they were hardly able to protect themſelves from being deſtroyed in it.

13. When they were forced to wander for their Subſiſtence unto divers Countries, removing unto ſeveral parts of Canaan, Gen. 12. 6. from thence to Egypt, Gen. 12. 10 and to Gerar, Gen. 20. 1.

14. He carefully defended them from all Injuries and Inſults which were offered them, Gen 31. 24. and ſmartly reproved the King of Egypt, Gen. 12. 16. and the King of Gerar, Gen. 20. 3. for ſome unlawful Deſigns they were enterpriſing againſt them.

15. Commanding them not to injure thoſe, whom he had anointed, both to be Princes and Prophets.

16. And when he was pleaſed to ſend a Famine into the Land of Canaan, and all the neighbouring Countries, Gen. 41. 54 ſo that all Men were in great want of Bread-Corn, that neceſſary Support of Life:

17. He ſent Joſeph, as it were, an Harbinger before them into Egypt to ſecure it for them; God by his good Providence ſo ordaining, that their ſelling their Brother for a Slave, ſhould put him in a Capacity of ſaving the Lives of the reſt of the Family, Gen. 45. 5.

18. He was there, for a time, upon a malicious Calumny ſhut up in Priſon, and his Legs galled with Iron Bolts, which eat through his Fleſh.

19. God being pleaſed, by this ſevere Affliction, to try and refine him like Silver, till ſuch time as his Wiſdom thought fit to vindicate his Innocency, and to free him from his Sufferings.

20. For the King of Egypt having heard of his great Qualifications, commanded him to be releaſed out of Priſon, Gen. 41. 14.

21. Making him the Vice-Roy of all his Dominions, and his Provedore, or Prefect of his Granaries, Gen. 41. 40.

22. All the great Men of that Kingdom receiving their Inſtructions from him, who were commanded to do nothing without his Orders, Gen. 41. 44.

23. After that came down Jacob with his eleven Sons, being invited by his Son Joſeph to ſojourn in Egypt, which Country was firſt planted by Miſraim the Son of Cham.

24. God multiplying them exceedingly, Exod. 3. 10. and making them mightier than the Egyptians, Exod. 1. 9.

25. This raiſed the Envy and Hatred of the Egyptians againſt them, ſo that they contrived wicked Methods to deſtroy the People of God, Exod. 1. 10, 11, &c. by exceſſive Labour and Deſtruction of their Children.

26. Whilſt they were groaning under theſe Hardſhips, God Almighty ſeaſonably ſent to their relief Moſes joyned with his Brother Aaron, as his Commiſſioners, with Powers from above, to demand of Pharaoh the Releaſe of the Iſraelites from their Bondage.

27. And, that they might be the better furniſhed to go through this great Office, God inveſted them with the Power of working great Miracles, both for evidencing the Truth of their Miſſion to the Jews, and ſubduing the proud Heart of that Prince, which they performed to the great Aſtoniſhment of all who beheld.

28. He ſent Darkneſs and it was dark: and they were not obedient to his Word.
29. He turned their Waters into Blood: and ſlew their Fiſh.
30. Their Land brought forth Frogs: yea, even in their Kings Chambers.
31. He ſpake the Word, and there came all manner of Flies: and Lice in all their Quarters.
32. He gave them Hail-ſtones for Rain: and flames of Fire in their Land.
33. He ſmote their Vines alſo, and Fig-trees: and deſtroyed the Trees that were in their Coaſts.
34. He ſpake the Word, and the Graſhoppers came, and Caterpillars innumerable: and did eat up all the Graſs in their Land, and devoured the Fruit of their Ground.
35. He ſmote all the Firſt-born in their Land: even the chief of all their Strength.
36. He brought them forth alſo with Silver and Gold: there was not one feeble Perſon among their Tribes.
37. Egypt was glad at their departing: for they were afraid of them.
38. He ſpread out a Cloud to be a covering: and Fire to give light in the Night-ſeaſon.
39. At their deſire he brought Quails: and he filled them with the Bread of Heaven.
40. He opened the Rock of Stone, and the Waters flowed out: ſo that Rivers ran in the dry Places.
41. For why? he remembred his holy Promiſe: and Abraham his Servant.
42. And he brought forth his People with joy: and his Choſen with gladneſs;
43. And gave them the Lands of the Heathen: and they took the Labours of the People in poſſeſſion;
44. That they might keep his Statutes: and obſerve his Laws. Praiſe the Lord.

EVEN-

28. And, when Pharaoh would not comply with the Propoſal Moſes made to him from God, but oppreſſed the Iſraelites the more, God, at the requeſt of Moſes, inflicted a very grievous Plague upon all the Land of Egypt, a Darkneſs which was to be felt, Exod. 10. 21.

29. At Aaron's waving his Rod over the Waters, they were all turned into Blood, and the Fiſh, that were therein, died, Exod. 7. 20.

30. At Aaron's ſtretching out his Rod over the Streams, (i. e. the Canals and Cuts, which were made out from the River Nile) an innumerable Fry of Frogs were generated, which covered all the Country, and crept even into Pharaoh's Bed-Chamber, Exod. 8. 2.

31. Then, by the Direction of God was performed another very great Miracle, which the Magicians were not able to imitate, for when Aaron ſmote the Duſt of the Earth with his Rod, the little parts thereof became invigorated with Life, and turned into Flies and Lice, which infeſted the Egyptians to an unconceivable degree.

32. Afterwards God plagued them with Hail-ſtones mixed with Fire.

33. Which tore their Trees, and deſtroyed their Plants, Exod. 10. 4.

34. What was not deſtroyed by Hail, was eat up by the plague of Caterpillars or Locuſts which followed, Exod. 10. 4.

35. And at the cloſe of all, God ſent his deſtroying Angel in the Night, to take away the Life of the Firſt-born of Man and Beaſt, throughout all Egypt, who executed that Command with the utmoſt Severity.

36. Thus God having wrought upon Pharaoh's ſtubborn Heart, to give way for their departure out of Egypt, he gave them Favour with the Egyptians to borrow their Jewels and Ornaments, Exod. 12. 36. And what is yet more remarkable, when they went from thence, no one by infirmity or ſickneſs was rendered unfit for travelling.

37. The People of Egypt, at their going, were glad they were rid of ſuch troubleſome Inmates, for whoſe ſakes they had ſuffered ſo much.

38. And in their march out of Egypt, God was pleaſed moſt wonderfully to exert his Providence towards them; covering them in the Day-time from the heat of the Sun by a thick Cloud; and, in the Night-time, lighting them in their way by a Pillar of Fire, Exod. 13. 12.

39. And when they marched through the Wilderneſs of Zin, and murmured for want of Food, God not only pardoned their intemperate words; but ſupplied them with conſtant Flocks of Quails to eat, and with Manna which rained down upon them, Exod. 16. 16.

40. And at Rephidim, when they murmured for the Brackiſhneſs of the Waters, he made a freſh Spring of Water flow out of the Rock, which run down from thence through a good part of the Country, in a great Stream.

41. All theſe Miracles he was pleaſed to work for the ſake of the Iſraelites; out of the regard he had to the Promiſe he made to our Fore-father Abraham, that he would inſtate his Poſterity in the Land of Canaan.

42. And in diſcharge of this Promiſe, he did bring his choſen People, in a moſt joyful manner, out of their Slavery in Egypt.

43. And brought them into the promiſed Land, driving out the old Inhabitants, who by their Idolatries and Wickedneſs had highly provoked God, dividing their Lands among the Tribes of Iſrael.

44. Not that they ſhould revel, and wanton, with the Productions of that fertile Country; but that they might live there in eaſie Circumſtances, the better to ſerve God, and obey thoſe holy Commandments which he had given them.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CVI. PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm has no other Title but only A Hallelujah: Some have thought it to be compoſed in the Captivity. Our Engliſh Paraphraſts, Dr. Hammond and Biſhop Patrick, think it one of David's Pſalms, and that it is one of thoſe Pſalms which David delivered into the hands of Aſaph and his Brethren, 1. Chron. 16. 7. However it ſhould ſeem to have been uſed as a Form of Prayer during the Captivity, when the Jews under that great Affliction, thought fit to acknowledge their National Sins, which had brought down thoſe heavy Judgments of God among them. And the laſt Verſe but one, Save us, O Lord our God, and gather us from among the Heathen, &c. was probably added in that time, if it was not compoſed then, as 'tis my Opinion it was.

Praiſe the Lord. O Give thanks unto the LORD, for he is gracious: and his Mercy endureth for ever.

2. Who can expreſs the noble Acts of the LORD: or ſhew forth all his Praiſe?

3. Bleſſed are they that alway keep Judgment: and do Righteouſneſs.

4. Remember me, O LORD, according to the favour that thou beareſt unto thy People: O viſit me with thy Salvation.

5. That I may ſee the felicity of thy Choſen: and rejoice in the gladneſs of thy People, and give Thanks with thine Inheritance.

6. We have ſinned with our Fathers: we have done amiſs, and dealt wickedly.

7. Our Fathers regarded not thy Wonders in Egypt, neither kept they thy great Goodneſs in remembrance: but were diſobedient at the Sea, even at the Red Sea.

8. Nevertheleſs he helped them for his Name's ſake: that he might make his Power to be known.

9. He rebuked the Red Sea alſo, and it was dried up: ſo he led them through the deep, as through a Wilderneſs.

10. And he ſaved them from the Adverſaries hand: and delivered them from the hand of the Enemy.

11. As for thoſe that troubled them, the Waters overwhelmed them: there was not one of them left.

12. Then believed they his Words: and ſang Praiſe unto him.

13. But within a while they forgat his Works: and would not abide his Counſel.

14. But Luſt came upon them in the Wilderneſs: and they tempted God in the Deſart.

15. And he gave them their deſire: and ſent leanneſs withal into their Soul.

16. They angred Moſes alſo in the Tents: and Aaron the Saint of the LORD.

17. So the Earth opened and ſwallowed up Dathan: and covered the Congregation of Abiram.

18. And

Paraphraſe on Pſal. 106.

O All ye Jewiſh People, pay your unfeigned Thanks to the great God, for all the great Series of his Mercies, which for ſeveral Ages he has been pleaſed to continue to our Nation, notwithſtanding our manifold Provocations whereby we have offended him.

2. What Tongue is able to expreſs the extraordinary Miracles, which he has wrought for our ſakes, or ſufficiently commend the omnipotent Power he has ſo frequently exerted in our Preſervation?

3. Thoſe are not always happy Perſons, whoſe Lot it is to live in a conſtant run of wordly Fortune, but they who conſcientiouſly obſerve the Laws of God; for then they need not doubt, but that he in his good time will ſecure them a proportionable Reward for their Obedience.

4, 5. I beſeech thee, O Lord, to crown me with thoſe Bleſſings, which thou haſt promiſed to beſtow upon thy faithful Servants; and let me partake of that joyful Tranquillity of Mind, which attends all good Perſons, on the Reflection upon their vertuous Actions.

6. However, both I, and all the Body of the Jewiſh Nation, cannot but acknowledge our ſelves unworthy of ſuch Favours; we having by ſo many particular and National Sins, provoked thy Anger towards us.

7. Our Forefathers, when but juſt redeemed from the Egyptian Bondage, and fearing the purſuit of Pharaoh's Hoſt, began to murmur againſt God, and to diſtruſt his Deliverance, tho' they had ſo lately experienced his Miracles, before the Egyptians, Exod. 14. 10.

8. But, tho' this was a very great degree of Infidelity and Diſobedience, yet he was ſo gracious as not to forſake them in this Extremity, and, by a wonderful Deſtruction of their Enemies, gave them a freſh Inſtance of his omnipotent Power interpoſing in their behalf, thereby to convince the Heathen Nation of his being the only true God.

9. And being now upon the brink of the Red Sea, the Deep before them, and Pharaoh's Troops behind them, and there being no poſſible way, which Human Sagacity might ſuggeſt, of eſcaping, God was pleaſed, by his miraculous Power, to lay dry the bottom of the Sea, by the retiring of the Waters, and to afford them an opportunity of travelling over the Sands of the Channel of a wide and deep Sea, with as much eaſe as the Sands of a Deſart, where there is no Water.

10. By this means, moſt wonderfully preſerving them from the Hands of their Enemies.

11. Whilſt Pharaoh and his Hoſt, which followed cloſe in the purſuit of them, were all overwhelmed by the returning Waters.

12. This miraculous Preſervation wrought upon them for ſome little time, Exod. 14. 31. they ſinging Praiſes to God for ſo great a Deliverance, in a Hymn, which was compoſed upon that occaſion by Moſes, Exod. 15. 1.

13. But it was not very long before they fell to their murmuring again, at the Waters of Marah, Exod. 15. 24. not relying upon God's wiſe Providence, but only upon the ordinary tendency of ſecond Cauſes.

14. They had no regard to God's Goodneſs and Promiſes, but were only guided by their own headſtrong Paſſion, and unreaſonable Fancies; demanding of God more of thoſe unneceſſary Miracles, to gratifie their Curioſities.

15. And in this God was pleaſed to comply with their Deſires, but withal ſo ſeverely puniſhed them, that their Souls were, as it were, lean with Grief, Iſa. 17. 14.

16. At another time, they broke out in a Mutiny againſt Moſes and Aaron, for pretending to a Superiority over the reſt of the People, tho' God had veſted them with it, Numb. 16. 3.

17. Which Rebellion was moſt terribly puniſhed upon the Ringleaders thereof, Corah, Dathan, Abiram, &c. who were ſwallowed up alive by the opening of the Ground, v. 32.

18. Other

18. And the Fire was kindled in their Company: the flame burnt up the Ungodly.

19. They made a Calf in Horeb: and worſhipped the molten Image.

20. Thus they turned their Glory: into the ſimilitude of a Calf that eateth Haſ.

21. And they forgat God their Saviour: who had done ſo great things in Egypt;

22. Wondrous works in the Land of Ham: and fearful things by the Red Sea.

23. So he ſaid he would have deſtroyed them, had not Moſes his Choſen ſtood before him in the gap: to turn away his wrathful Indignation, leſt he ſhould deſtroy them.

24. Yea, they thought ſcorn of that pleaſant Land: and gave no credence unto his Word.

25. But murmured in their Tents: and hearkened not unto the Voice of the LORD.

26. Then lift he up his hand againſt them: to overthrow them in the Wilderneſs;

27. To caſt out their Seed among the Nations: and to ſcatter them in the Lands.

28. They joyned themſelves unto Baal-peor: and ate the Offerings of the dead.

29. Thus they provoked him to anger with their own Inventions: and the Plague was great among them.

30. Then ſtood up Phinees and prayed: and ſo the Plague ceaſed.

31. And that was counted unto him for Righteouſneſs: among all Poſterities for evermore.

32. They angered him alſo at the Waters of Strife: ſo that he puniſhed Moſes for their ſakes;

33. Becauſe they provoked his Spirit: ſo that he ſpake unadviſedly with his Lips.

34. Neither deſtroyed they the Heathen: as the LORD commanded them;

35. But were mingled among the Heathen: and learned their works.

36. Inſomuch that they worſhipped their Idols, which turned to their own decay: yea, they offered their Sons and their Daughters unto Devils.

37. And

18. Other of the Mutinous were deſtroyed by Fire from Heaven, whilſt they were impiouſly aſſuming the Prieſtly Office, v. 32.

19. They yet committed a greater Wickedneſs, whilſt Moſes was in the Mount, receiving the Law from God, for then they made a Golden Calf and worſhipped it, Exod. 32. 6.

20. Thus relinquiſhing the Worſhip of the Glorious God, who conſtantly exhibited himſelf to them in the ſhining Cloud, Exod 24. 16. to fall down before the Image of a heavy Beaſt, which if he had been alive, muſt have been fed with Graſs or Hay.

21. Perfectly forgetting their God, who had ſo lately redeemed them from the Egyptian Bondage; and who had wrought ſo many Miracles for their ſakes:

22. Thoſe aſtoniſhing Plagues, which he brought upon Pharaoh and his People, during their ſtay in Egypt, and the mighty Devaſtation he made of his Hoſt in the Red-Sea, at their departure.

23. This provoked God ſo highly, that he threatened to deſtroy the whole Nation of the Iſraelites, and to raiſe himſelf up a new People out of the Houſe of Moſes, Exod. 24. 10. againſt which Moſes ſo earneſtly prayed, oppoſing himſelf, as it were, in the Breach where this terrible Inundation of God's Wrath was pouring in; and God was pleaſed to hearken unto his Petition, and to pardon them for his ſake.

24. Some time after, when they came near the Land of Canaan, they were guilty of another Rebellion againſt God, undervaluing the Country upon the Report of the Spies, Numb. 13. 28. and would not believe, that God was able to bring them into Poſſeſſion of that Land whoſe Inhabitants were ſo mighty, v. 27. tho' he had ſo ſolemnly promiſed it.

25. Murmuring not only againſt Moſes and Aaron, but God himſelf, Numb. 14. 2, 3. refuſing to go to that Land, which God commanded them to take Poſſeſſion of, Numb. 21. 1.

26. This provoked God ſo greatly, that he ſolemnly ſware, that That Rebellious Generation ſhould not inherit the Promiſed Land, but that their Carcaſes ſhould fall in the Wilderneſs, Numb 14. 21.

27. And would have delivered them all up, to have been utterly cut off by the Heathen Nations, or mixed among them, Numb. 14. 45.

28. Not long after they mixed themſelves with the Moabitiſh Women, Numb. 35. 3. who ſeduced them to the worſhip of Baal, whoſe Temple was upon Mount Peor in Moab.

29. This ſo enraged God, that he ordered the principal of theſe notorious Offenders, to be ſlain and hanged up in the Face of the Sun, ſending a devouring Plague among the People, by which twenty four thouſand were deſtroyed.

30. Phinehas, actuated by a pious Zeal, killed the Iſraelitiſh Man, and the Midianitiſh Woman, in the very act of their Wickedneſs, which appeaſed the Anger of God, and thereby the Plague ceaſed, Numb. 25. 5.

31. And this noble Act of Zeal for God's Honour, was ſo well-pleaſing to God, that he was pleaſed to reward him for it, by entailing the Prieſthood in his Family, Numb. 25. 12.

32. And at the Waters of Meribah, (i. e.) Strife, they extraordinarily provoked God by their diſtruſt of his Providence; which was the occaſion of Moſes's committing a Fault, which God was pleaſed to puniſh in him, God excluding him from the entrance into Canaan.

33. Raiſing his Paſſion to ſuch an height, that he uſed an unbecoming Expreſſion, Hear now, ye Rebels, ſhall WE fetch you Water out of this Rock? aſſuming thereby a Power to himſelf; which was to be attributed only to Almighty God, Numb. 11. 16.

34. Neither did they deſtroy the Seven Nations, as God gave them ſpecial command to do, Judges 1. 21. &c. Deut. 7. 2.

35. Nay they not only ſuffered them to live, but made a Covenant and League with them, Judges 2. 1, 2. by which they contracted the ſame Vices which they were guilty of, Judges 3. 6, 7.

36. Nay they proceeded to worſhip the Idols of thoſe Nations, Judges 2. 11. & 3. 5. which was the occaſion of their deſtruction and overthrow, Deut. 7. 16. Judges 2. 3. learning from Them the moſt abominable Sacrificial Rites, to Sacrifice not only Humane Bodies, but even thoſe of their own dear Children, to thoſe Devils which they worſhipped.

37. Be-

37. And ſhed innocent Blood, even the Blood of their Sons and of their Daughters: whom they offered unto the Idols of Canaan, and the Land was defiled with Blood.

38. Thuswere they ſtained with their own works: and went a whoring with their own Inventions.

39. Therefore was the wrath of the Lord kindled againſt his People: inſomuch that he abhorred his own Inheritance.

40. And he gave them over into the Hand of the Heathen: and they that hated them were Lords over them.

41. Their Enemies oppreſſed them: and had them in ſubjection.

42. Many a time did he deliver them: but they rebelled againſt him with their own Inventions, and were brought down in their Wickedneſs.

43. Nevertheleſs, when he ſaw their adverſity: he heard their Complaint.

44. He thought upon his Covenant, and pitied them, according unto the multitude of his Mercies: yea, he made all thoſe that led them away Captive, to pity them.

45. Deliver us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the Heathen: that we may give Thanks unto thy holy Name, and make our boaſt of thy Praiſe.

46. Bleſſed be the LORD God of Iſrael from everlaſting, and world without end: and let all the People ſay, Amen. Praiſe the Lord.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CVII PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

¶¶ This Pſalm is an excellent Hymn, compoſed in memory of God's Goodneſs, in delivering Men from the various Calamities, which in this Life they are frequently ſubject to; from the Dangers of the Sea, Impriſonment and Captivity, Famine, Diſeaſes, and the like. It ſhould ſeem to have been wrote not long after the Captivity, and to be a grateful Commemoration of the extraordinary Favours of God, which they had then lately experienced, and in delivering them from ſome Difficulties they met with in their return home. It was a Song in parts, one Verſe recurring four times, to be ſung by the Chorus.

O Give Thanks unto the LORD, for he is gracious: and his Mercy endureth for ever.

2. Let them give Thanks whom the LORD hath redeemed: and delivered from the hand of the Enemy;

3. And gathered them out of the Lands, from the Eaſt and from the Weſt: from the North and from the South.

4. They

37. Becoming thereby guilty of the moſt execrable Murder, and ſpilling the Blood of ſo many poor innocent Children, and ſo nearly related to them; which they offered up to the Idols of their conquered Slaves, thereby making the Country as Infamous again by their own Wickedneſs, as it was formerly by that of the Canaanites.

38. Thus they became as polluted by theſe enormous Crimes, which they perpetrated in imitation of the Heathens, as a common Proſtitute.

39. This ſo inflamed the Anger of God againſt them, that tho' he had choſen them out of the reſt of the World, to be his peculiar People; yet he, by reaſon of their obſtinate Wickedneſs, began to abhor them, as much as he formerly was pleaſed with them.

40. Therefore God delivered them up to the Power of the Nations, whom they ſhould have deſtroyed, whoſe Hatred not being abated towards them for their Indulgence, they made them bear the Yoke which they themſelves ſhould have been under, Judges 4. 3.

41. Other neighbouring Nations, as Meſopotamians and Moabites, Judg. 3. 12. the Midianites and Amalekites, Judg. 3. 8. the Philiſtines and Ammorites, Judg. 10. 6. conquered then and made them their Tributaries.

42. From all theſe Calamities God Almighty was pleaſed to find ways to deliver them, by raiſing up brave Generals, to attack their Heathen Conquerors, and to ſhake off the Foreign Yoke; but yet ſtill, by new Idolatries and other National Crimes, they provoked God to withdraw his Protection, and ſuffer them to fall into their former Condition of Subjection to external Powers.

43. And yet our gracious God, notwithſtanding this ungrateful Uſage, did not perfectly throw aſide all care of them; but when they were under great Afflictions, and ſent up their mournful Cry to God, Judg. 10. 14. he was ſtill ready to ſhew his pity to them, and deliver them.

44. He then was pleaſed, out of his great Mercy, not to take the Advantage of the Forfeiture of the Covenant he had made with their Forefathers, Gen. 15. 18. cauſing their Conquerors to ſhew Compaſſion towards them, and to make them rather Tributaries, than to utterly deſtroy them.

45. And therefore, we beſeech thee, who art the ſame gracious God, to deliver us from the preſent Captivity, and to gather us together from the ſeveral Provinces we are now diſperſed into; that we may return home to our Native Country, to pay thee our wonted Worſhip at Jeruſalem, and that we may for ever celebrate thy Divine Goodneſs, for ſuch a mighty Favour conferred on us.

46. For ever bleſſed be the great JEHOVAH, the God of Iſrael, who hath, throughout the Circle of ſo many Ages, wrought ſuch wonderful Deliverances for his People, and let all Nations joyn their Voices in ſaying Amen to this.

This is the end of the fourth Book of Pſalms, according as the Jews divide them.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CVII.

O Return to the good God unfeigned Thanks, for all the kind Diſpenſations of his Providence, which he has been pleaſed, in ſo many various Particularities, to lay out for the Benefit of Mankind.

2. In particular let the Jewiſh Nation, whom God has lately redeemed from a wretched State of Captivity, pay their Thanks to him for ſo undeſerved a Favour.

3. Whom he hath collected together, after their Diſperſion, from all parts of the Aſſyrian Empire.

4. They went aſtray in the Wilderneſs out of the way: and found no City to dwell in.

5. Hungry and thirſty: their Soul fainted in them.

6. So they cried unto the Lord in their trouble: and he delivered them from their diſtreſs.

7. He led them forth by the right way: that they might go to the City where they dwelt.

Cho.] 8. O that Men would therefore praiſe the LORD for his goodneſs: and declare the Wonders that he doth for the Children of Men!

9. For he ſatisfieth the empty Soul: and filleth the hungry Soul with goodneſs.

10. Such as ſit in darkneſs and in the ſhadow of death: being faſt bound in Miſery and Iron.

11. Becauſe they rebelled againſt the Words of the Lord: and lightly regarded the Counſel of the moſt High*eſt*;

12. He alſo brought down their Heart through heavineſs: they fell down, and there was none to help them.

13. So when they cried unto the LORD in their Trouble: he delivered them out of their diſtreſs.

14. For he brought them out of darkneſs, and out of the ſhadow of death: and brake their Bonds in ſunder.

Cho.] 15. O that Men would therefore praiſe the LORD for his goodneſs: and declare the Wonders that he doth for the Children of Men!

16. For he hath broken the Gates of Braſs: and ſmitten the Bars of Iron in ſunder.

17. Fooliſh Men are plagued for their Offences: and becauſe of their Wickedneſs.

18. Their Soul abhorred all manner of Meat: and they were even hard at Death's door.

19. So when they cried unto the LORD in their Trouble: he delivered them out of their diſtreſs.

20. He ſent his Word, and healed them: and they were ſaved from their deſtruction.

Cho.] 21. O that Men would therefore praiſe the LORD for his goodneſs: and declare the Wonders that he doth for the Children of Men! 22. That

4. For in their returning home, they met with great Difficulties in the Deſert thro' which they travelled, wandering thro' unknown Places, frequently miſtaking their way, and not finding any Town or City to refreſh themſelves in.

5. Having ſpent their Proviſions, and being ready to die for Hunger and Thirſt, and not knowing where to get Supplies, they were ready to faint away, for want of Neceſſaries in that long Journey.

6. But they putting up their Petitions to God, to deliver them in this great Extremity, he, out of his gracious Goodneſs, was pleaſed to afford them a ſpeedy Relief.

7. He directed them into the right Road again, and brought them to an inhabited Place, where they ſtaid ſome time to furniſh themſelves with Neceſſaries, to proſecute their further Journey.

Cho.] 8. O that Men would be ſufficiently mindful of ſuch extraordinary Benefits conferred by God upon them, and make a publick Declaration of ſuch miraculous Inſtances of his Providence!

9 For it is he that provideth plentiful Food, to fill every hungry Belly, not denying us a Supply of any thing which is neceſſary for our Uſe.

10. Nay God is not wanting to take into his Conſideration the Caſe of the poor Priſoners, who are confined to a dark Dungeon, and clogged with Iron Fetters and Chains.

11. Which Calamities are ſent them by God, as a juſt Puniſhment for their Sins, in that they have neglected and violated his ſacred Laws, in the time of their Proſperity.

12. And this being the Condition of the Jewiſh Nation before their Captivity, God was pleaſed to humble their proud Hearts by that great Affliction, and they found that their own Power, which they truſted too much in before, would not avail for their Deliverance.

13. And therefore being deſtitute of all Human Aſſiſtance, they cried to God for his Divine Aid, and he out of his gracious Goodneſs, was pleaſed to work their Deliverance from that lamentable Condition of Life, they were under.

14. Bringing them out of that dark and diſmal Dungeon, which they were ſhut up in, and knocking off their Fetters from their Feet.

Cho.] 15. O that Men would be ſufficiently mindful of ſuch extraordinary Benefits conferred by God upon them, and make a publick Declaration of ſuch miraculous Inſtances of his Providence!

16. Nay, when God has determined to reſcue his Servants from the Calamities of Captivity or Impriſonment, it is not the great Strength of the Place that can keep them in; for he can with eaſe make the Brazen Gates to flie, and the maſſy Bars of Iron to ſnap in ſunder.

17. And thus does his good Providence diſplay itſelf in other Caſes; when fooliſh Men, by leading a diſſolute debauched courſe of Life, have injured their Conſtitutions, and brought themſelves into ſome grievous or painful Diſeaſe:

18. So that thereby their Stomachs are become ſo weak, that they loath the moſt palatable and delicious Diſhes of Meat, and are ſick even to Death:

19. Theſe very Perſons, who have deſerved ſo ill at God's Hands, if they put up their Petitions to God, and ſtedfaſtly rely upon him for Relief, he ſeldom fails to afford it them, but finds a way to work their Recovery, when all the power of Medicine has failed, and the Skill of Phyſicians has been baffled.

20. God Almighty, by ſome inviſible means, has bettered their Conſtitution, and ſaved them from the Grave, to which (if the Divine Providence had not interpoſed) they were inevitably a-going.

Cho.] 21. O that Men would be ſufficiently mindful of ſuch extraordinary Benefits conferred by God upon them, and make a publick Declaration of ſuch miraculous Inſtances of his Providence!

22. That

22. That they would offer unto him the Sacrifice of Thankſgiving: and tell out his Works with gladneſs.

23. They that go down to the Sea in Ships: and occupy their Buſineſs in great Waters,

24. Theſe Men ſee the Works of the LORD: and his Wonders in the deep.

25. For at his Word the ſtormy Wind ariſeth: which lifteth up the Waves thereof.

26. They are carried up to the Heaven, and down again to the deep: their Soul melteth away becauſe of the trouble.

27. They reel to and fro, and ſtagger like a drunken Man: and are at their Wits end.

28. So when they cry unto the LORD in their trouble: he delivereth them out of their diſtreſs.

29. For he maketh the Storm to ceaſe: ſo that the Waves thereof are ſtill.

30. Then are they glad, becauſe they are at reſt: and ſo he bringeth them unto the haven where they would be.

Cho.] 31. O that Men would therefore praiſe the LORD for his goodneſs: and declare the Wonders that he doth for the Children of Men!

32. That they would exalt him alſo in the Congregation of the People: and praiſe him in the ſeat of the Elders!

33. Who turneth the Floods into a Wilderneſs: and drieth up the Water-ſprings.

34. A fruitful Land maketh he barren: for the wickedneſs of them that dwell therein.

35. Again he maketh the Wilderneſs a ſtanding Water: and Water-ſprings of a dry Ground.

36. And there he ſetteth the hungry: that they may build them a City to dwell in.

37. That they may ſow their Land, and plant Vineyards: to yield them Fruits of increaſe.

38. He bleſſeth them, ſo that they multiply exceedingly: and ſuffereth not their Cattle to decreaſe.

39. And

22. That they would continually pay to him a hearty Thankfulneſs, for all his Mercies and Benefits continually reached out unto them; which is the moſt acceptable Sacrifice which they can offer to God; devoutly praiſing him, and recounting the miraculous Operations of his Providence.

23. And this the Mariners, whoſe employ calls them to ſail about at Sea, have frequent Opportunities of doing.

24. For theſe Men do very often behold many wonderous Works of God, which are not to be diſcovered by others; not only many Fiſhes and Sea-Monſters, but the ſurprizing Commotions of that vaſt Body of Waters.

25. For whenever God pleaſeth, a ſmall quantity of Vapour ariſing, thickens into a Storm, which at laſt grows to that Violence, as to make the Sea, which was ſmooth before, to be raiſed into mountainous Waves.

26. Thoſe whoſe hap it is to be out at Sea in Ships or Boats, in the Diſtreſs of ſuch foul Weather, are ſometimes mounted by a riſing Wave as high as the Clouds, and at other times ſeem to be carried down to the very bottom of the Sea; they being all the time in the moſt terrible Fright, as having all the Agonies of preſent Death upon them.

27. The violent Agitation of the Ship is ſuch, that they, like drunken Men, can hardly ſtand upon their Legs; and as if they were Mad, run about from place to place without any certain Deſign, both doing and undoing the ſame thing.

28. But when they find, that their Skill in Sailing and all other Human Endeavours fail them, they at laſt are forced to apply to God for help, and his Goodneſs does not fail to afford it them.

29. And he, who reſerves to himſelf an uncontroulable Authority over the Winds and Waters, in anſwer to their Prayers, allays the boiſterous Tempeſt, and ſmooths the diſturbed Waves into a calm and quiet Sea.

30. This kind Diſpenſation of God's good Providence, ſpreads over their Minds with pleaſing and delightful Thoughts, eſpecially when their Bark is ſafely arrived at the Port to which they deſign'd to go, it being an extraordinary Satisfaction, then to recount their former Difficulties.

Cho.] 31. O that Men would be ſufficiently mindful of ſuch extraordinary Benefits conferred by God upon them, and make a publick Declaration of ſuch miraculous Inſtances of his Providence!

32. Nor let God be praiſed only upon particular Occaſions, and in remembrance of ſome ſingle beneficial Acts of his Providence; but let him conſtantly be praiſed in the publick Congregation at his Temple; and in the Meeting of the Elders of our Nation in their publick Council.

33. For the whole Power of Nature is ſubject to his Juriſdiction and Command; for he, by drying up the Springs, makes the Ground of the moſt fertile Meadow as bare of Graſs as the Sands of a Wilderneſs.

34. And when, at any time, he has a mind to chaſtiſe the Inhabitants of a place for their Sins; he, by with-holding the Rain, turns the moſt plentiful Country into the Barrenneſs of a Deſert.

35. And again, when it pleaſes him, he, by ſending gentle and fatning Rains, makes a dry ſandy Country, for a time, to be overflowed with Water, ripening the Fruits thereof with a prodigious increaſe, rendering it thereby more fruitful, than if freſh Springs had broke out from every part thereof.

36. And tho' the Inhabitants of ſuch a Country might ſeem, at firſt View, to be under a neceſſity of being ſtarved, as being ſituated in the midſt of ſuch dry Sands; yet God ſuffers them to build Cities there, and to provide ſufficient Food for their Subſiſtence.

37. They Manuring the Land, and planting Vineyards, by the Produce of which they are fed.

38. God in the mean time ſo bleſſing them, that their People grow very numerous, and that their Cattle receive a proportional Increaſe.

39. And

39. And again when they are miniſhed and brought low: through oppreſſion, through any plague or trouble;

40. * Though he ſuffer them to be evil entreated through Tyrants: and let them wander out of the way in the Wilderneſs;

41. Yet helpeth he the Poor out of Miſery: and maketh him houſholds like a Flock of Sheep.

42. The Righteous will conſider this and rejoyce: and the Mouth of all Wickedneſs ſhall be ſtopped.

43. Whoſo is Wiſe, will ponder theſe things: and they ſhall underſtand the loving kindneſs of the LORD.

---

* Our Tranſlation here differs from moſt others. The Reaſon is, Dr. Coverdale took the Prepoſition Gnal to ſignifie before, or in the Preſence of; as it doth Zech. 6. 4. The Spirits went forth from ſtanding gnal Adhonai, before the Lord; which the Targum explains by Radham coram. So Pſal. 9. 19. Let the Heathen be judged, gnal panecha, in thy ſight, or before thy Face. So Exod. 20. 3. Thou ſhalt have no other Gods, gnal pani, before me, or before my Face. So that if our Tranſlation had been juſt literal, it had run thus, Though he poured out Shame upon them in the preſence of Princes. And it refers to the mean and hard Services the Jews were forced to undergo, as well in the Babyloniſh as the Egyptian Bondage. And this anſwers better to what goes before and comes after, than any other Tranſlation.

The CVIII. PSALM.

Paratum cor meum.

¶¶ This Pſalm is made up of two Davidical Pſalms, and for that reaſon may be intituled, A Pſalm of David. The firſt Verſes are taken out of the 57*th Pſalm, and the latter part out of the* 60*th Pſalm, from the* 6*th Verſe to the end. Whether this were done by* David himſelf, or by ſome later Compiler, is not ſo certain.

O God, my Heart is ready, [my Heart is ready:] I will ſing and give Praiſe with the beſt Member that I have.

2. Awake, thou Lute and Harp: I my ſelf will awake right early.

3. I will give Thanks unto thee, O LORD, among the People: I will ſing Praiſes unto thee among the Nations.

4. For thy Mercy is greater than the Heavens: and thy Truth reacheth unto the Clouds.

5. Set up thy ſelf, O God, above the Heavens: and thy glory above all the Earth.

6. That thy beloved may be delivered: let thy right Hand ſave them, and hear thou me.

7. God hath ſpoken in his Holineſs: I will rejoyce therefore and divide Sichem, and mete out the Valley of Succoth. 8. Gilead

39. And when, for ſome wiſe Reaſons of Providence, it pleaſes God to puniſh a People ſituate in the moſt happy Country, he finds means to do it, by making them Captives or Tributaries to a Foreign Power, or by any other National [Plague, i. e.] Calamity.

40. Tho' he ſuffer a Nation to undergo great Hardſhips, under the Oppreſſion of unmerciful Princes, as he did the Jewiſh Nation in Egypt and Babylon, and make them ſuffer much by wandering through deſert Places, as he did the Jews in going from Egypt, and from Babylon:

41. Yet he, in his good time, delivers them from their Oppreſſion and Wants, and makes their Families to increaſe and grow numerous, as a flock of Sheep doth in a fertile Paſture.

42 This gracious Diſpenſation of God's Providence, will be cauſe of great Joy and Exultation to all good Men; and all the Objections of wicked Men, againſt the Juſtice of God's Providence, will be for ever ſtopped.

43. All truly wiſe and good Men will make a very uſeful Improvement, upon the Conſideration of theſe Acts of the Divine Providence; marking out the Bounty and Wiſdom of God, in all the particulars of his providential Diſpenſations.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CVIII.

AND now, O Lord, I have as firm and fix'd an Aſſurance of my Deliverance, as if thou hadſt actually wrought it for me; and therefore I will ſing a triumphant Hymn to thy Honour.

2. I will now rowſe up my Muſical Faculty, which, during my Danger, has been long ſleeping; do you, my Inſtruments, that have ſo long hung uſeleſs by, awake; I myſelf will raiſe up all my Powers, to ſing the Divine Praiſe.

3. I will not only ſing thy Praiſe among the Tribes of Iſrael, but likewiſe will diſplay it among Foreign Nations, where my Pſalms ſhall be ſung.

4. For thy Mercy and Truth are infinite in Extenſion, and unmeaſurable, as a Line drawn from Earth, thro' the immenſe ſpace of the Heavens.

5. O Lord, ſhew thy ſelf to be the Supreme God, the Governour of Heaven and Earth, in delivering me from this wonderful Danger, which nothing but thy omnipotent Arm can reſcue me from; and the Glory, which will accrue from ſuch an unexpected Preſervation of thy Servant, will ſound thy Praiſe all over the World.

6. That thy choſen People may be delivered from the preſent Calamity, thou interpoſing thy Almighty Power in their Defence, which I have implored by my Prayers.

7. In anſwer to this Prayer of mine, God has given this Oracular Reſponſe out of his Sanctuary, the Subſtance whereof is this, 'That I ſhall conquer and triumph over the Infidel 'Army which is now advancing towards us; and the Coun-'try of the Sichemites ſhall be divided out among the Soldiers 'of my Victorious Army; all the great Valley of Succoth will 'be meaſured out into Parcels, and to be choſen by Lots 'among the Conquerors.

8. 'That

8. Gilead is mine, and Manaſſes is mine: Ephraim alſo is the ſtrength of my Head.

9. Juda is my Law-giver, Moab is my Waſh-pot: over Edom will I caſt out my Shoe; upon Philiſtia will I triumph.

10. Who will lead me into the ſtrong City: and who will bring me into Edom?

11. Thou haſt not forſaken us, O God: and wilt not thou, O God, go forth with our Hoſts?

12. O help us againſt the Enemy: for vain is the help of Man.

13. Through God we ſhall do great Acts: and it is he that ſhall tread down our Enemies.

The CIX PSALM.

Deus laudum.

¶¶ This Pſalm being full of very bitter Imprecations, as ſome others likewiſe are, it has been thought by ſome to have diſcovered too much of the Spirit of the Law, to be uſed now for a Form of Devotion, under the Goſpel. But moſt of theſe Words which we render as Imperatives or Optatives, are only in the Hebrew, Indicative Futures, and might be rendred His Days ſhall be few, another ſhall take his Office, his Children ſhall be Fatherleſs, &c. It is intituled, A Pſalm of David, and is thought to be an Invective againſt Doeg, that wicked Agent of Saul, who did ſo much Miſchief to David and his Friends, under the Countenance of that Prince; the Holy Ghoſt ſo managing the Compoſition, that it ſhould likewiſe have a regard to Judas the wicked betrayer of our Lord, as St. Peter affirms, Acts 1. 16. For as David was a Type of our Saviour, ſo the betrayer of David was likewiſe pre-ordained to figure out the Betrayer of Chriſt.

HOld not thy Tongue, O God of my Praiſe: for the Mouth of the Ungodly, yea, the Mouth of the deceitful is opened upon me.

2. And they have ſpoken againſt me with falſe Tongues: they compaſſed me about alſo with Words of hatred, and fought againſt me without Cauſe.

3. For the love that I had unto them, lo, they take now my contrary part: but I give my ſelf unto Prayer.

4. Thus have they rewarded me evil for good: and hatred for my good will.

5. Set thou an Ungodly Man to be Ruler over him: and let Satan ſtand at his right Hand.

6. When Sentence is given upon him, let him be condemned: and let his Prayer be turned into Sin.

7. Let his Days be few: and let another take his Office.

8. Let his Children be Fatherleſs: and his Wife a Widow.

9. Let his Children be Vagabonds, and beg their Bread: let them ſeek it alſo out of deſolate Places.

10. Let

8. 'That Gilead, and that part of the Tribe of Manaſſes, 'which is beyond Jordan, tho' for a time they were ſubject to 'Iſhboſheth, Saul's Son, 2 Sam. 2. 8, 9. yet for the future they 'ſhall be entirely under my Government; Ephraim, which 'was under the ſame Defection from me, ſhall hereafter be a 'main Support of my Kingdom; Judah, the principal Tribe 'of all my Subjects, according to Jacob's Prediction, Gen. 48. 19. 'is my Law-giver, out of which I chooſe my chief ſubordinate 'Magiſtrates and Miniſters of State.

9. 'The Moabites, after they are conquered by me, ſhall be 'reduced to a ſervile Condition, whom I ſhall make Slaves of 'to waſh my Feet, or to do ſuch other mean Drudgeries: And thou, O Philiſtia, be thou full of triumphal Acclamations, to receive me as thy Lord and Conqueror.

10. Who will attend me, in my triumphal Entry, into Rabba, that ſtrong City of the Ammonites, 2 Sam. 12. 26. who will join in my Cavalcade, when I go to take Poſſeſſion of Edom?

11. Certainly, O Lord, thou haſt not laid aſide thy uſual Protection of us; Wilt not thou, in thy former manner, head our Armies?

12. We beſeech thee to vouchſafe us thy Aſſiſtance in all our Extremities; for we look upon all Human Aid to ſignifie nothing, in reſpect of thine.

13. For whilſt we are ſo happy as to have the Divine Aſſiſtance, we doubt not, but we ſhall perform noble Exploits; 'tis his Power only, that can enable us to gain a Victory over our Enemies.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CIX.

I Beſeech thee, O God, whom I am wont to celebrate in my Pſalms, not to be ſilent whilſt my Adverſaries are ſo clamorous; and when the Mouths of crafty malicious Informers are opened ſo wide againſt me:

2. For Saul giving ear to ſome malicious Perſons about him, they have much injured my Reputation by falſe Suggeſtions againſt me, they have wounded me in my moſt tender Part, my Honour, without any provocation given to them by me.

3. And in requital for the good Offices I did them, whilſt I was in Power, they join with the forwardeſt of the Faction to ruin me; but I make no revengeful return upon them, I only put up my Prayer to God for his Forgiveneſs of them.

4. Whilſt they, without any Senſe of their Duty, continue to do me as much Miſchief, as I have formerly done them Kindneſſes.

5. But among my chiefeſt Adverſaries there is one wicked Wretch, who remarkably diſtinguiſheth himſelf in malicious Contrivances from the reſt, viz. Doeg, let him partake of the utmoſt Cruelty of Saul's Tyranny, ſince he is ſuch a ſtrenuous Promoter thereof; and let Satan be as malicious an Informer againſt him, as he has been againſt me.

6. And indeed, I cannot but before-hand read the fall of this abominable Miſcreant, that when he ſhall be called before the Judgment-Seat of God, he ſhall be ſentenced to everlaſting Deſtruction; and the Prayer which he had made, when he was going out of the World, ſhall be ſo far from being allowed in his behalf for Pardon of the Sins of his Life, that it ſhall be deemed a greater Aggravation of them.

7. He ſhall be cut off in the prime of his Years, and the Employ, which he is engaged in, ſhall be conferred upon another.

8. His Children ſhall be expoſed deſolate to the World without a Father, and his Wife without an Husband.

9. His Poſterity ſhall have no fix'd Habitation, but ſhall rove about as Vagabonds through the World, and ſhall beg their Victuals in Holes and Corners, as being aſhamed to be ſeen.

10. Let the Extortioner conſume all that he hath: and let the Stranger ſpoil his labour.

11. Let there be no Man to pity him: nor to have compaſſion upon his Fatherleſs Children.

12. Let his Poſterity be deſtroyed: and in the next Generation let his Name be clean put out.

13. Let the wickedneſs of his Fathers be had in remembrance in the Sight of the LORD: and let not the Sin of his Mother be done away.

14. Let them alway be before the LORD: that he may root out the memorial of them from off the Earth;

15. And that becauſe his Mind was not to do good: but perſecuted the poor helpleſs Man, that he might ſlay him that was vexed at the Heart.

16. His delight was in Curſing, and it ſhall happen unto him: he loved not Bleſſing, therefore ſhall it be far from him.

17. He clothed himſelf with Curſing, like as with a Raiment: and it ſhall come into his Bowels like Water, and like Oyl into his Bones.

18. Let it be unto him as the Cloak that he hath upon him: and as the Girdle that he is alway girded withal.

19. Let it thus happen from the LORD unto mine Enemies: and to thoſe that ſpeak Evil againſt my Soul.

20. But deal thou with me, O Lord GOD, according unto thy Name: for ſweet is thy Mercy.

21. O deliver me, for I am helpleſs and poor: and my Heart is wounded within me.

22. I go hence like the ſhadow that departeth: and am driven away as the Graſhopper.

23. My Knees are weak through faſting: my Fleſh is dried up for want of fatneſs.

24. I became alſo a reproach unto them: they that looked upon me, ſhaked their Heads.

25. Help me, O LORD, my God: O ſave me according to thy Mercy.

26. And they ſhall know, how that this is thy Hand: and that thou, Lord, haſt done it.

27. Though they curſe, yet bleſs thou: and let them be confounded that riſe up againſt me; but let thy Servant rejoyce.

28. Let

10. His Fortune ſhall be eat out by the Intereſt of Uſurers; and thoſe that are Strangers to him, ſhall get into Poſſeſſion of his Eſtate.

11. In his Want, he ſhall not ſo much as be relieved by the Charity of good diſpoſed Perſons; and his Children ſhall find no Compaſſion after he is dead.

12. His Line ſhall be cut off, all his Family dying Childleſs; and in the next Generation, there ſhall not be any mention made of him.

13. Whatever Sins his Fore-fathers have been guilty of, ſhall be puniſhed in him their accurſed Off-ſpring.

14. The Eye of God ſhall take notice of every Sin which he is guilty of, till he has drawn up a Charge ſo great againſt him, as will neceſſarily involve him in utter Ruin and Extirpation.

15. And the Reaſon of this is, becauſe the righteous God will not ſuffer ſuch Tyranny and Villany to go unpuniſhed, in perſecuting and killing ſo many harmleſs Prieſts, 1 Sam 22. 18.

16. His falſe Swearing againſt thoſe Innocent Perſons which he with ſo much Satisfaction put himſelf upon, ſhall at laſt fall with heavy Vengeance upon himſelf; and he not ſhewing Mercy and Kindneſs when it was in his Power, no one ſhall do the like to him.

17. His Perjury, with which he is wrap'd round as with a Garment, ſhall come nigher to him than his Skin; for it ſhall enter into his very Bowels, and be to him like the Bitter Water of Jealouſie, Which cauſeth the Curſe, making the Belly to ſwell, and the Thigh to rot, Numb. 5. 22.

18. It ſhall ſtick as cloſe as his Coat, and bind him as tight as his Girdle, never being able to evade the Puniſhment which God ſhall lay upon him.

19. Theſe ſhall be the fearful Calamities which ſhall befal my malicious Informers, particularly Doeg, and Judas, that accurſed Wretch the Betrayer of Chriſt, whom he does prefigure.

20. But I beſeech thee, O Lord, to manifeſt thoſe kind Indulgences to me, which the Goodneſs of thy Nature doth ſuggeſt, thou being always ready to ſuccour Perſons in Diſtreſs and Perplexity.

21. And indeed my caſe at preſent is very deplorable; I am forſaken of all my Friends, 1 Sam. 25. 8. and my Grief pierceth my very Heart.

22. I am a very Shadow, nay like the Shadow of the ſetting-Sun, altogether as faint and vaniſhing; no poor Graſhopper leaps from place to place oftner, than I am forced to change my Abode.

23. I have been ſo long in want of Neceſſaries, that my Knees grow weak, being hardly able to ſupport my Body; my once plump and comely Perſonage, my vital Moiſture being dried up, is become lean and lank.

24. I am become a Jeſt to my Adverſaries, who, when they ſee me, ſhake their Heads and point at me, ſaying; Here goes David, half-ſtarved with the Expectation of his Crown.

25. But I beſeech thee, O Lord, to afford me thy Aſſiſtance, and to interpoſe that miraculous Preſervation of me, which I have ſo frequently already experienced.

26. That however incredulous they are, to believe the Operations of thy Providence, they may be convinced, that thy Almighty Power has appeared in defence of me.

27. Tho' they curſe and calumniate me, yet if thou art pleaſed to beſtow upon me thy Bleſſing, I ſhall not value any Effect of their Malice; for, whilſt they ſhall lie under great degrees of Shame, I ſhall be advanced to a joyful and honourable Condition.

28. And

28. Let mine Adverſaries be clothed with Shame: and let them cover themſelves with their own Confuſion, as with a Cloak.

29. As for me, I will give great thanks unto the Lord with my Mouth: and praiſe him among the multitude.

30. For he ſhall ſtand at the right Hand of the Poor: to ſave his Soul from unrighteous Judges.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CX PSALM.

Dixit Dominus.

¶ ¶ That this Pſalm was written by David, the Title does ſufficiently evidence, which attributes it to him. And that it has been always looked upon to be a Propheſie of the Meſſias, in or before our Saviour's time, is evident, by the Queſtion of our Saviour to the Phariſees, with relation to a Paſſage in this Pſalm, The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, &c. If David called him Lord, how is he his Son? Which is a plain Evidence, That the Jews at that time, explained this Pſalm of the Meſſias. So likewiſe this Pſalm is expounded of Chriſt, Heb. 1. 13. and 10. 3. And tho' ſome Modern Jews, in deſpight of Chriſtianity, have interpreted this Pſalm, as written upon Abraham, by Eleazer or Melchiſedeck; yet many of them allow the Subject of it to be the Meſſias. Tho' the Midraſh upon the Pſalms interprets this of Abraham, The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, &c. yet it is added, This is likewiſe the Speech of God to the Meſſias. R. Obadiah upon this Pſalm explains the whole of the Meſſias; ſo does R. Saadia Gaon upon Daniel. And ſo do two ancient Rabbins, R. Barachias and Rabbi Levi, quoted by R. Moſes, Ben Nachman. The whole Pſalm does conſiſt of a Speech which God the Father, the firſt Perſon of the Trinity, is introduced ſpeaking to the Meſſias, the Second Perſon.

THE Lord ſaid unto my Lord: Sit thou on my right Hand, until I make thine Enemies thy Foot-ſtool.

2. The Lord ſhall ſend the Rod of thy Power out of Sion: be thou Ruler, even in the midſt among thine Enemies.

3. In the Day of thy Power, ſhall the People offer thee Free-will Offerings with an holy Worſhip: the dew of thy Birth is of the Womb of the Morning.

4. The Lord ſware, and will not repent: thou art a Prieſt for ever after the order of Melchiſedeck.

5. The Lord upon thy right Hand: ſhall wound even Kings in the Day of his Wrath.

6. He ſhall judge among the Heathen; he ſhall fill the places with the dead Bodies: and ſmite in ſunder the Heads over divers Countries.

7. He ſhall drink of the Brook in the way: therefore ſhall he lift up his Head.

The

28. And time will come, when theſe malicious Men, that now do me ſo much Miſchief, ſhall be in a much more deſpicable Condition than I am now in; for when they ſhall have loſt their Power, the Infamy of their Wickedneſs ſhall ſtick as cloſe to them as their Cloaths.

29. And when God ſhall be pleaſed to deliver me from my preſent Troubles, I will not ceaſe to praiſe God by ſinging of Pſalms to his Honour, and praiſing him in the publick Congregation.

30. For God is always ready at hand, to ſuccour innocent Perſons under Oppreſſion, and to ſave their Lives from thoſe injurious Magiſtrates, and great Men, who would take them away.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CX.

THE Almighty God, to whom I owe an unlimited Obedience, has given out an eternal Decree, and directed himſelf to my Lord the Meſſias, whoſe Subject likewiſe I am, in theſe Words: 'Do thou ſit with all the Enſigns of Maje-'ſtick Power on my right Hand, in a Dignity tranſcendent 'to that of all Creatures, even the Angelical Natures them-'ſelves, Heb. 1. 13. until I have ſubjugated all the Enemies of 'thy Spiritual Kingdom unto thee; Death, 1 Cor. 15. 25. and 'the Devil, Mat. 12. 29. John 14. 30. and made them, as it 'were, thy Foot-ſtool, to get on Horſe-back upon, in the way 'of our Aſiatick Conquerors.

2. 'The Father and Fountain of the Deity communicating 'all Power to thee, ſhall make thy Empire to begin by Preach-'ing firſt the Goſpel among the Jews, Acts 1. 8. and ſhall from 'thence propagate it throughout the whole World, the moſt 'Idolatrous Nations, which are the moſt perfectly eſtranged 'from the true Worſhip, ſhall ſubmit themſelves to thy 'Laws.

3. 'For at the time, when thy Power ſhall diſplay itſelf, and 'the Apoſtolical Forces, ready for their Miſſion, ſhall march 'out to ſubdue the World to thy Scepter, Acts 3. 48. the ſe-'veral Nations ſhall readily ſubmit themſelves to thy Juriſdi-'ction and ſacred Laws: This Inauguration of thine being 'attended with as many Votaries and Subjects, as there are 'drops of Dew in a Morning upon the Graſs.

4. 'I the everlaſting Father, have eſtabliſhed it by an eter-'nal Decree, which is equivalent to an Oath, That thou 'ſhalt not only be a King but a Prieſt, and that not after the 'Aaronical Order, who die often, and their Places are filled 'again by new Succeſſors, but after the Order of Melchiſedeck, 'who had no Succeſſor, nor beginning nor ending of Days, 'but abideth a Prieſt continually, Heb. 7. 3.

5. 'I who am God the Father, whoſe Divine Nature thou 'doſt partake of, and with whoſe omnipotent Power thou art 'inveſted, ſhall make the great Princes of the World to ſub-'mit to thy Authority; and thoſe who refuſe to do it, I ſhall 'break their Kingdom in pieces.

6. 'He ſhall ſet up a Juriſdiction among the Heathen Na-'tions; and, like a great Conqueror, who makes Devaſtation 'in the Places which he ſubdues, he ſhall ſubject all that op-'poſe themſelves to his Dominion.

7. 'He ſhall at firſt undergo many Troubles and Afflictions, 'and be put to as great Straits as a Soldier, who in his March 'is forced to drink at the next Stream; but, at laſt, he ſhall be 'exalted to the moſt tranſcendent Degree of Glory, Phil. '2. 9.

The CXI PSALM.

Confitebor tibi.

¶ ¶ The Title of this Psalm is only Hallelujah: It is composed after the Method of the Letters in the Hebrew Alphabet; two whereof are in every Verse, and three in the two last. Which Contraction in the Close, the Jews think was to reduce it to the Number of the Ten Commandments. The Psalmist here relates the general and particular Benefits of God's Providence to the whole World, but most especially to to the Jewish Nation.

Praise the Lord. I Will give Thanks unto the LORD with my whole Heart: secretly among the faithful, and in the Congregation.

2. The Works of the LORD are great: sought out of all them that have Pleasure therein.

3. His Work is worthy to be praised and had in honour: and his Righteousness endureth for ever.

4. The merciful and gracious Lord hath so done his marvellous works: that they ought to be had in remembrance.

5. He hath given Meat unto them that fear him: he shall ever be mindful of his Covenant.

6. He hath shewed his People the Power of his Works: that he may give them the heritage of the Heathen.

7. The works of his Hands are verity and judgment: all his Commandments are true.

8. They stand fast for ever and ever: and are done in Truth and Equity.

9. He sent Redemption unto his People: he hath commanded his Covenant for ever; holy and reverend is his Name.

10. The fear of the LORD is the beginning of Wisdom: a good Understanding have all they that do thereafter; the praise of it endureth for ever.

The CXII PSALM.

Beatus vir.

¶ ¶ There is no other Title of this Psalm, than only A Hallelujah. It contains a Description of a pious Man, whose good Actions render him acceptable both to God and Man. The Psalm is modelled into several Dimeters or short Verses, each beginning with the Letters of the Hebrew Alphabet.

Praise the Lord. BLessed is the Man that feareth the LORD: he hath great delight in his Commandments.

2. His Seed shall be mighty upon Earth: the Generation of the faithful shall be blessed.

3. Riches and Plenteousness shall be in his House: and his Righteousness endureth for ever.

4. Unto the Godly there ariseth up light in the darkness: he is merciful, loving and righteous.

5. A

Paraphrase on Psalm CXI.

I Will heartily give Thanks to God, not among the common Herd of prophane People, but in a select Company of God's devout Servants.

2. The wonderful Operations of God's good Providence, are easily discovered by those who are of a pious Disposition, and take pleasure in the Contemplation thereof.

3. His Works are full of Admiration, and Surprize, to all who seriously consider them; and all his Dispensations are a constant Series of Wisdom and Goodness.

4. The Lord has established the Passover, and other Feasts of his Church, to be a perpetual Memorial of his wonderful Deliverances of his People, Exod. 34 6.

5. He has carefully provided Food for his Servants in their great Straits, for Abraham, Jacob, &c. with their Families, Gen. 12. 11. and 42. 1. from Egypt; feeding afterwards the Jews with Manna in the Wilderness, Exod. 16. in pursuance of the Covenant which he made with them, Gen. 15. 14.

6. He demonstrated before the Heathen his Omnipotent Power, in expelling the Seven Nations, and planting the Israelites in their stead.

7. And indeed these and all other Dispensations of God's Providence, are not only subject to no Impediment; but are exquisitely just and holy, no Passion or Irregularity mixing in his Determinations.

8. It is he that redeemed his chosen People from the Egyptian Bondage; he has given us, by the Hand of Moses, a Body of admirable Laws; making himself, by interposing his Almighty Authority on our behalf, formidable to all the World.

9. Therefore it is the most advisable Method, which any wise Man can pursue, to preserve in his Mind a Reverential Awe of God, and a Fear to disobey him; for the Practice of the Divine Law, is the chiefest degree of Wisdom which any one can arrive at; for this will procure him such a substantial Happiness, which he can never be deprived of, either in this World or the next.

Paraphrase on Psalm CXII.

THat Man is the most Holy and substantially Happy, who lives in a conscientious Fear of God, and in an uniform Obedience of his Commands; for such a Religious Course of Life will afford him more Pleasure and Delight, than any can be found in the most prosperous State of Sin.

2. For to live a good Life is the propereſt Method a Man can take, even to advance his worldly Happiness, and to make his Family flourish; for the Piety of such a Parent, seldom fails to entail a Blessing upon his Posterity, and to make them thrive in the World.

3. The good Things of this World shall flow in upon his Posterity; or in the next Life however, he shall not fail of an eternal Reward.

4. Unto such a good Man in the dark time of Affliction, (which no Man in this World can plead a total Exemption from) God mixes with his Sufferings such gracious Allays of Spiritual Comfort, as enables him to bear them with Ease and Patience; for his kind and merciful Temper, which he has shewed to others, will invite them to improve all Opportunities of relieving his Wants; and the Reflections upon his good and righteous Life, will buoy him up under the most heavy Pressures.

5. And

5. A good Man is merciful, and lendeth: and will guide his Words with diſcretion.
6. For he ſhall never be moved: and the Righteous ſhall be had in everlaſting remembrance.
7. He will not be afraid of any evil tidings: for his Heart ſtandeth faſt, and believeth in the LORD.
8. His Heart is eſtabliſhed, and will not ſhrink: until he ſee his deſire upon his Enemies.
9. He hath diſperſed abroad, and given to the Poor: and his Righteouſneſs remaineth for ever; his Horn ſhall be exalted with Honour.
10. The Ungodly ſhall ſee it, and it ſhall grieve him: he ſhall gnaſh with his Teeth, and conſume away; the deſire of the Ungodly ſhall periſh.

The CXIII PSALM.

Laudate, pueri.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is likewiſe intituled, An Hallelujah. And is deſigned to ſet forth in ſeveral Particulars, the admirable Providence of God: It was one of the Liturgical Pſalms ſung at the New Moons, and Paſſover.

Praiſe the Lord. PRaiſe the LORD ye Servants: O praiſe the Name of the LORD.
2. Bleſſed be the Name of the LORD: from this time forth for evermore.
3. The LORD's Name is praiſed: from the riſing up of the Sun, unto the going down of the ſame.
4. The LORD is high above all Heathen: and his Glory above the Heavens.
5. Who is like unto the LORD our God, that hath his dwelling ſo high: and yet humbleth himſelf to behold the things that are in Heaven and Earth?
6. He taketh up the ſimple out of the duſt: and lifteth the Poor out of the mire,
7. That he may ſet him with the Princes: even with the Princes of his People.
8. He maketh the barren Woman to keep Houſe: and to be a joyful Mother of Children. Praiſe the Lord.

EVEN-

5. And indeed his Charity to the Poor, and providing them with thoſe Neceſſaries which they want, is ſo far from leſſening his Eſtate, and impairing his worldly Happineſs, that they are very much improved thereby, by his obtaining God's Bleſſing which is promiſed to theſe Vertues, Pſal. 35. 25. and by his Cautious, and circumſpect way of Converſation, he frees himſelf from thoſe Inconveniences which a paſſionate and unguarded Speech expoſes Men to.

6. Whereas other Men are expoſed to the Viciſſitudes of this World, and thrown down from Plenty to a forlorn Degree of Poverty; this Man, all his time, ſhall maintain the Condition of Life which God has placed him in; and after Death his Memory ſhall be ſweet and flouriſhing, whilſt wicked Mens Names ſhall periſh; or ſhall be mentioned only with Diſhonour and Infamy.

7. When the ill News of any calamitous Diſaſter meets him, he is not bore down by the Shock of an unforeſeen Misfortune, but his Spirits are kept up by his dependence upon a gracious God; which Diſpenſations however ſevere, he knows are deſigned for his good, and will turn to his greater Advantage, than if his own Choice had had the direction of his Fortune.

8. He being animated by the Expectation of the Divine Protection, will not make any cowardly Compliances, which are contrary to his Duty, to gain redreſs from his Misfortunes, but will wait for God's Deliverance, who he is certain will, in his good time, find out Methods to ſecure him from his Enemies Attempts againſt him, better than he himſelf can think on.

9. And in conſideration that he has been Charitable to the Poor, according to his Abilities, he ſhall ſecure himſelf an everlaſting State of Glory in another World; and ſhall obtain an honourable Reputation and comfortable Subſiſtence in this.

10. And when the Wicked ſee, that his Vertues ſecure him ſo many Temporal and Spiritual Advantages, they ſhall greatly envy his Happineſs; but all the hopes which they entertained of attaining Proſperity and Greatneſs by their vitious and indirect Practices, ſhall not only miſerably fail them, but ſhall bring them into wretched Poverty and Contempt.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXIII.

O All ye faithful Servants and Worſhippers of God, Praiſe him, the Great JEHOVAH, the only true God.
2. To him be aſcribed Honour and Praiſe to all Eternity.
3. The Lord, for the many wonderful Works which he has done for his choſen People, is celebrated all over the World; from the moſt Eaſtern to the moſt Weſtern Countries.
4. The moſt powerful Heathen-Monarchs, tho' never ſo much advanced in Power and Dignity, fall infinitely ſhort of his Omnipotence and eternal Glory, who dwelleth in incomprehenſible Majeſty in the higheſt Heavens.
5. Who is to be compared to our God for his Majeſtick Splendor? And yet this is not half ſo glorious as his moſt Godlike Attribute, his Goodneſs is; who being ſo infinitely exalted above all his Creatures, does in great Pity and Condeſcenſion vouchſafe to take care of them, and relieve them in all their Wants.
6. He raiſes Men from a forlorn degree of Poverty or Miſery, to a gladſome and comfortable way of living.
7. Nay ſometimes he raiſes them even to the Regal Dignity as he did David, 1 Sam. 2. 8. making him, from being the Shepherd of a poor Flock, to be Prince of a great People.
8. He affords the Satisfaction of bearing Children to barren Women, ſuch as Sarah and Hannah, taking away from them the Reproach of an unfruitful Womb, to their very great Joy and Comfort.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CXIV PSALM.

In exitu Iſrael.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is a ſhort Hiſtorical Relation of the Exit of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, and their Paſſage into Canaan, expreſſed in Poetical Figures, with a moſt charming Elegance.

WHen Iſrael came out of Egypt: and the Houſe of Jacob from among the ſtrange People,

2. Juda was his Sanctuary: and Iſrael his Dominion.

3. The Sea ſaw that and fled: Jordan was driven back.

4. The Mountains skipped like Rams: and the little Hills like young Sheep.

5. What aileth thee, O thou Sea, that thou fleddeſt: and thou Jordan, that thou waſt driven back?

6. Ye Mountains, that ye skipped like Rams: and ye little Hills like young Sheep?

7. Tremble thou Earth at the preſence of the Lord: at the preſence of the God of Jacob.

8. Who turned the hard Rock into a ſtanding Water: and the Flint-ſtone into a ſpringing Well.

The CXV. PSALM.

Non nobis, Domine.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is by the Septuagint and vulgar Latin joyned to the former, but the Hebrew and Chaldee make it a diſtinct Pſalm. There being no Author mentioned in the Title, the Jews are very much divided in their Opinions concerning who it was wrote by. Some attribute it to Moſes when he was in the Red-Sea, ſome to David, ſome to Mordecai and Heſter, ſome to the Three Children in the Furnace. It contains an Exhortation to truſt in God for Aſſiſtance, and not to rely either upon Heathen Idols, or Mens own Deſigns.

NOt unto us, O LORD, not unto us, but unto thy Name give the praiſe: for thy loving Mercy, and for thy Truths ſake.

2. Wherefore ſhall the Heathen ſay: Where is now their God?

3. As for our God, he is in Heaven: he hath done whatſoever pleaſed him.

4. Their Idols are Silver and Gold: even the work of Mens Hands.

5. They have Mouths and ſpeak not: Eyes have they and ſee not.

6. They have Ears and hear not: Noſes have they and ſmell not.

7. They have Hands and handle not, Feet have they and walk not: neither ſpeak they through their Throat.

8. They

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXIV.

WHen the Jewiſh Nation returned from Egypt, where they long lived as Sojourners among a foreign People, who exerciſed them with a very harſh and barbarous Slavery:

2. God Almighty was pleaſed to own this People as his only Church, and to exerciſe a Theocracy over them, he himſelf being their King and Governour.

3. The Sea itſelf was ſenſible of this Divine and Omnipotent Government, and was forced to retire on both ſides, leaving the Channel bare for the Iſraelites to paſs over, Exod. 14. 21. and Jordan was driven back to his Fountain-Head, Joſ. 3. 15.

4. Sinai and Horeb were forced to own the ſame Almighty Authority; and tho' they were great and maſſy Mountains, and ſeemed to be compoſed to an eternal Settledneſs and Gravity, yet at his Preſence, they danced about with a Levity like that of Kids and Lambs, Exod. 19. 18.

5. What was the matter with thee, O Sea, that thou didſt retire on both ſides, and leave thy Channel bare? And what was the matter with thee, O Jordan, that thou waſt driven back to thy Fountains Head?

6. What was the matter, O Sinai and Horeb, that you laid aſide your Settledneſs and Gravity, and danced about with a Levity like that of Kids and Lambs?

7. Well! it is no wonder that a Mountain or two ſhould tremble at God's Preſence; for the whole Earth muſt do ſo, whenever the great God of Iſrael pleaſes.

8. For the whole Power of Nature is ſubject to his Command, of which he gave ſufficient Inſtances, when he ſmote the Rocks of Meribah and Rephidim, and made thoſe flinty Hills to flow with a mighty Stream, Exod. 28. 8. Numb. 20. 11.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXV.

O Lord, we do not aſcribe any of the good Succeſs in our publick Undertakings, which thou haſt been pleaſed to afford us, to any Proweſs of our own in effecting it, or any Merit in deſerving it; there being no other Motive to excite thee to it, but only thy own Goodneſs, and thy firmneſs to thy Covenant made with us, which however we by our Sins have over and over again voided.

2. And what reaſon, I pray now, have the Heathen Idolaters to upbraid us with our Unſucceſsfulneſs, in worſhipping the only true God; ſince they now have of late ſo little Cauſe to brag of their Attempts upon us?

3. Our God, indeed, is not to be ſeen with mortal Eyes, and to be handled and carried about as their Idols are; but he has a glorious Seat in the higheſt Heaven, and from thence he gives out Orders for the Government of the whole World, which he diſpoſes of at his Pleaſure.

4. Theirs are fooliſh ſenſeleſs Gods, made of Silver and Gold, and formed by the Hand of a mean Artificer.

5. They are made indeed with Mouths, but which are indeed of no manner of Uſe, not being able to ſpeak a word; they have Eyes which afford no more ſight, than thoſe of a Man who is ſtark blind.

6. Their Ears are not capable of admitting the Senſation of Sounds; and they have Noſes which cannot ſmell any thing, whether pleaſant or ungrateful, that is brought to them.

7. Their Hands are not endowed with any Motion or Senſe of Feeling; nor can their Feet carry them one ſtep from the Place where they are ſet; and their Mouths likewiſe are ſo far from uttering any articulate Voice, that they cannot of themſelves make the leaſt Noiſe.

8. Both

8. They that make them are like unto them: and ſo are all ſuch as put their truſtin them.

9. But [thou Houſe of] Iſrael, truſt thou in the Lord: he is their ſuccour and defence.

10. Ye Houſe of Aaron, put your truſt in the LORD: he is their helper and defender.

11. Ye that fear the LORD, put your truſt in the Lord: he is their helper and defender.

12. The LORD hath been mindful of us, and he ſhall bleſs us: even he ſhall bleſs the Houſe of Iſrael, he ſhall bleſs the Houſe of Aaron.

13. He ſhall bleſs them that fear the LORD: both ſmall and great.

14. The LORD ſhall increaſe you more and more: you and your Children.

15. Ye are the bleſſed of the LORD: who made Heaven and Earth.

16. All the whole Heavens are the LORD's: the Earth hath he given to the Children of Men.

17. The dead praiſe not thee, O LORD: neither all they that go down into ſilence.

18. But we will praiſe the LORD: from this time forth for evermore. Praiſe the LORD.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CXVI PSALM.

Dilexi, quoniam.

¶¶ This Pſalm having no Title, makes it uncertain who was the Author, and what is the Occaſion of the Writing thereof: Some attribute it to David after the Abſalomian Rebellion; others to him at the bringing the Ark to Mount Sion; but it is moſt probable it was wrote by Eſdras at the Return from the Captivity; which Opinion is favoured by ſome Chaldaick Expreſſions which occur therein. And the whole Nation of the Jews are repreſented in the Name of a ſingle Perſon.

I Am well pleaſed: that the LORD hath heard the Voice of my Prayer.

2. That he hath inclined his Ear unto me: therefore will I call upon him as long as I live.

3. The Snares of death compaſſed me round about: and the pains of Hell gat hold upon me.

4. I ſhall find trouble and heavineſs, and I will call upon the Name of the Lord: O LORD, I beſeech thee, deliver my Soul.

5. Gracious is the LORD, and Righteous: yea, our God is merciful.

6. The LORD preſerveth the ſimple: I was in Miſery, and he helped me.

7. Turn

8. Both they that make them for Gods, and they that worſhip them for ſuch, are altogether as Stupid and Blockiſh, as theſe Idols themſelves.

9. But whilſt theſe Senſeleſs Heathens worſhip theſe fooliſh Gods; do thou, O Jewiſh Nation, which haſt the Happineſs to worſhip the true and eternal God, do thou put thy truſt only in him for thy Defence.

10. And you, O ye Sacred Prieſts, the Lineage of Aaron, who have the Honour of officiating in his Divine Service, and therefore have particular Obligations to reverence him; do you always retain an entire Confidence in his Protection, tho' under the moſt preſſing Difficulties.

11. The like Duty is required from every one of you, who are God's choſen People and Servants; for if you place a hearty Confidence in him, he will never fail in any Extremity, to afford you Deliverance.

12. For he is always ſenſible of the Difficulties which we may any time lie under, and is ready, when it is proper, to afford us Deliverance; he will afford Deliverance to the Jewiſh Nation, and to her Sacred Prieſts.

13. He will afford Deliverance to his choſen People, to Men, Women and Children, of every Eſtate and Condition.

14. Nay, he ſhall not only preſerve you, but make you a very flouriſhing People, cauſing you to increaſe to a wonderful degree above other Nations, and to be crouded with numerous Inhabitants, and a mighty Stock of Children.

15. And indeed what Bleſſings can you not expect, who are the particular Favourites of the great God of Heaven and Earth?

16. Our great God has made the Heaven to be his Palace, in which he keeps his Royal Reſidence; and the Earth he has given for the Uſe of Mankind, for their Suſtenance and Support, the more comfortably to pay him a Religious Worſhip here.

17. And therefore it is a Duty incumbent upon all Mortals, to pay him a Religious Worſhip in his publick Service, as long as they ſtay in this World, before they go into the obſcure State of the other, where they cannot partake in it.

18. But we all of us take up a joint-Reſolution of praiſing God in the publick Aſſemblies, as long as we live, and we truſt that our Poſterity after us ſhall do the ſame, throughout all ſucceſſive Ages.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXVI.

IT has been a wonderful Satisfaction to me, that it has pleaſed my gracious God, to hear the Prayers I have made to him under my great Affliction.

2. That he has bowed down from his Heavenly Throne, to lend an Ear to my humble Suit; for which unmerited Favour I will pay my bounden Thanks to him, as long as I ſhall continue in this World.

3. The Snares of Death had intangled me, and all the Agonies of a dying Man were upon me.

4. And, tho' I was long under the greateſt Vexation and Trouble, I ſought no Relief, but by addreſſing myſelf to God in devout Prayer, beſeeching him to ſpare my Life.

5. And then I experienced the Lord to be a gracious, a juſt, and a merciful God.

6. For he never fails to preſerve the good Man, who does not make uſe of any crafty Arts for his Deliverance, but truſteth only in God for it; for he was pleaſed to remove my Afflictions from me, when I was deſtitute of any Human Aid.

7. There-

7. Turn again then unto thy rest, O my Soul: for the Lord hath rewarded thee.

8. And why? thou hast delivered my Soul from Death: mine Eyes from Tears, and my Feet from falling.

9. I will walk before the LORD: in the Land of the Living.

10. I believed, and therefore will I speak, but I was sore troubled: I said in my haste, All Men are Liars.

11. What reward shall I give unto the LORD: for all the benefits that he hath done unto me?

12. I will receive the Cup of Salvation: and call upon the Name of the LORD.

13. I will pay my Vows now in the presence of all his People: right dear in the sight of the LORD is the Death of his Saints.

14. Behold, O LORD, how that I am thy Servant: I am thy Servant, and the Son of thine Hand-maid, thou hast broken my Bonds in sunder.

15. I will offer to thee the Sacrifice of Thanksgiving: and will call upon the Name of the LORD.

16. I will pay my Vows unto the LORD in the sight of all his People: in the Courts of the LORD's House, even in the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise the LORD.

The CXVII PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

¶¶ This Psalm is a Prophetical Exaltation, upon the Call of the Gentiles.

O Praise the LORD, all ye Heathen: praise him, all ye Nations.

2. For his merciful kindness is ever more and more towards us: and the Truth of the LORD endureth for ever. Praise the LORD.

The CXVIII PSALM.

Confitemini Domino.

¶¶ This Psalm, tho' it bears no Title, is generally by Ancients and Moderns, attributed to David. And it was probably an Inauguration-Hymn after he was recognized King of all Israel and Judah. It is written in the Dialogical Form, in which there are several Interlocutors, viz. David, the People, and the Priests. The Psalm seems to have been sung in these Parts, in a publick Procession to the Tabernacle, up Mount Sion. That there are some Prophetical Expressions therein which relate to the Messias, not only the Writers of the New Testament, Mat. 21. 42. Acts 4. 11. but many of the ancient Rabbies affirm, as St. Jerom says.

David.] O Give Thanks unto the LORD, for he is gracious: because his Mercy endureth for ever.

2. Let Israel now confess, [that he is gracious:] and that his Mercy endureth for ever.

3. Let

7. Therefore, O my Soul, be not thou any longer disquieted, nor be thou anxious about thy future Prosperity; for God, who has lately wrought so great a Deliverance for thee, will not fail to take all fitting Care of thee.

8. Because thou hast rescued my Life from a mortal Distemper; thou hast asswaged my Grief which made mine Eyes run down with Water; thou hast strengthened my Legs, which, through Weakness, were not able to support me and keep me up.

9. And now I find I shall not die of my most dangerous Distemper, but am like to continue, to promote the glory of God, in this Life.

10. I firmly believed, being under my most pressing Calamities (and I am not ashamed to own it) that God would in his good time work my Deliverance; tho' in the Warmth of my Passion, I could not but tax every one in the World besides of Insincerity.

11. How shall I be able to return sufficient Thanks to my gracious God, for such an unparalell'd Benefit, which he has been pleased lately to confer upon me, in bringing me to my native Country?

12. I will offer up an Eucharistical Sacrifice to his Honour, and in solemn manner drink of the sacred Cup, as is usual in those Offerings, and will put up my devout Prayers to beg his further assistance towards me.

13. I will in the solemn Congregation testifie my gratitude to God, that I may incline them all to follow my Example; taking notice that the Lives of good Men are so dear to God, that he will not suffer them to be destroyed by their Enemies.

14. O Lord, by this great Deliverance which thou hast vouchsafed me, thou hast entirely made me thine for ever, as if I had been as it were a Slave born in thy House, by knocking off the Chains which were upon my Legs in my late deplorable State of Captivity.

15. I will offer up a thankful Sacrifice to his Honour, and will put up my devout Prayers to beg his further Assistance towards me.

16. I will offer up the Eucharistical Sacrifice which I vowed to him, in the solemn Congregation; in the Courts of the Temple where they are used to be offered, in the City of Jerusalem. Blessed be Name of the Lord.

Paraphrase on Psalm CXVII.

O All ye Heathen Nations, joyn with us in praising the only true God!

2. For the Promises of God are more and more fulfilled beyond our Expectation; for it was a very great Favour that so great a Nation as that of the Jews should be raised from the Loins of Abraham, but that the Gentile-World should be grafted in upon his Stock, is still a larger and more surprizing Blessing. For which we are obliged for ever to praise the Lord.

Paraphrase on Psalm CXVIII.

David.] PAy your bounden Thanks to the great God for a constant Series of his Favours continued to us: For his kindness to us is so settled, as not to be abated by any time.

2. Let all the Tribes of Israel now gathered together in this Religious Assembly, make their publick Acknowledgment of God's great Mercy in establishing Peace and Quiet in this Nation, and putting an end to all Contests about the Crown; for God's kindness to us is so settled, as not to be abated by any time.

3. Let

3. Let the Houſe of Aaron now confeſs: that his Mercy endureth for ever.
4. Yea, let them now that fear the LORD, confeſs: that his Mercy endureth for ever.
5. I called upon the LORD in Trouble: and the Lord heard me at large.
6. The LORD is on my ſide: I will not fear what Man doeth unto me.
7. The LORD taketh my part with them that help me: therefore ſhall I ſee my deſire upon mine Enemies.
8. It is better to truſt in the LORD: than to put any confidence in Man.
9. It is better to truſt in the LORD: than to put any confidence in Princes.
10. All Nations compaſſed me round about: Cho. but in the Name of the LORD will I deſtroy them.
11. They kept me in on every ſide, they kept me in, I ſay, on every ſide: Cho. but in the Name of the Lord will I deſtroy them.
12. They came about me like Bees, and are extinct even as the Fire among Thorns: Cho. for in the Name of the Lord I will deſtroy them.
13. Thou haſt thruſt ſore at me, that I might fall: but the LORD was my help.
14. The LORD is my Strength and my Song: and is become my Salvation.
15. The Voice of Joy and Health is in the dwellings of the Righteous: the right Hand of the LORD bringeth mighty things to paſs.
16. The right Hand of the LORD hath the pre-eminence: the right Hand of the LORD bringeth mighty things to paſs.
17. I ſhall not die, but live: and declare the Works of the LORD.
18. The LORD hath chaſtened and corrected me: but he hath not given me over unto death.
19. Open me the Gates of Righteouſneſs: that I may go into them, and give Thanks unto the LORD.
20. This is the Gate of the LORD: the Righteous ſhall enter into it. Levites, Porters of the Caſtle of Mount Sion.

David.] 21. I will thank thee, for thou haſt heard me: and art become my Salvation.

22. The

3. Let the ſame Acknowledgment be made by the Prieſts in this ſolemn Proceſſion, That God's kindneſs to us is ſo ſettled, as not to be abated by any time.

4. Let the Proſelytes, and all other devout Worſhippers of God make the like Acknowledgment of the goodneſs of God, and that his kindneſs to us is ſo ſettled, as not to be abated by any time.

5. After my many Afflictions which I ſuſtained under Saul's Reign, and the many Troubles I have been expoſe to, ſince my Advancement to the Crown of Judah; God has been pleaſed to grant my Petitions, in as ample a manner as my Heart could have deſired.

6. And ſince I have ſuch ſufficient Evidence to believe, that God takes my part, I ſhall not for the future be afraid of the Combinations of the whole World againſt me.

7. And ſince God has been pleaſed to ſupport my few Friends, who ſtood true to my Intereſt; I do not doubt but my Enemies will run away as faſt from me, as Saul's Troops did from my handful of Men.

8. I have by my own Experience found it to be an undoubted Maxim, that 'tis a much wiſer Courſe to depend upon the favour and bleſſing of God, for the Event of any Enterprize, than upon any human Aſſiſtance how great ſoever.

9. Nay, 'tis much more prudent to rely upon God's Succors, than the Alliances of the moſt potent Princes.

10. A multitude of Nations did league together with the Philiſtines againſt me, 2 Sam. 5. 17. but being aſſiſted by the Power of God, I made no difficulty of overcoming them.

11. When the aſſociate Arms of the Philiſtines on one ſide, and the Syrians and Ammonites on the other, quite encircled me; I being aſſiſted by the Power of God, made no difficulty of overcoming them.

12. No ſwarm of Bees ever came thicker about me, than theſe joynt-Forces of my Adverſaries, and tho' they bounced and cracked like a Fire of Thorns, yet they were as ſoon extinguiſh'd too: For being aſſiſted by the Power of God, I made no difficulty of overcoming them.

13. For you, O my Enemies, made all the vigorous Attack, you were able, to Dethrone me from my Royal Dignity; but the Lord was my Aſſiſter, who was a better Defence than any other Ally.

14. The Lord is my Support; the praiſe of my Deliverance is owing to him alone, it is he only that has preſerved me.

15. All good Mens Families are full of Joy and Satisfaction, for the Succeſſes and Deliverances thou haſt been pleaſed to afford me; all aſcribing it to the working of God's Almighty Power, in ſettling me, after ſo many Struggles and Difficulties, in the Kingdom of Judah and Iſrael.

16. For the Power of God can ſurmount all Force and Oppoſition; the Power of God brings to paſs the greateſt and moſt ſurprizing Events.

17. I find that now my Troubles and Perſecutions, which endangered my Life, are paſſed and gone; but my Enemies Attempt being defeated, I ſhall live to commemorate God's unparalell'd goodneſs to me.

18. Who made all my Afflictions to be only a gentle Correction to me; but did not lay his Rod ſo ſeverely upon me, as to take away my Life.

19. And now we are advanced in our Proceſſion, to the Caſtle of Mount Sion; open to me thoſe ſacred Gates, you that are Levites entruſted with being Porters thereof; that I may go thro' them, and offer Sacrifice in the Courts of the Tabernacle of the great God, and pay my bounden Thanks for his great Favours to me.

20. Levites. Whoever makes this demand ought to know, that this is the Gate which belongs to the Great JEHOVAH; and none but good and holy Men ought to enter in here. Sung in the Paſſage thro' the Gate.

21. David. And now being entred into the Courts of thy Tabernacle, I pay thee, O my gracious God, my moſt humble Thanks, for ſo favourably hearing my Prayers which I put up to thee, under my moſt grievous Afflictions in Saul's Reign; thou having now been pleaſed, not only to deliver me from my dangerous Condition, but to advance me to the Royal Dignity.

22. The ſame Stone which the Builders refuſed: is become the Head-ſtone in the corner.

People.] 23. This is the LORD's doing: and it is marvellous in our Eyes.

24. This is the Day which the LORD hath made: we will rejoyce and be glad in it.

25. Help me now, O LORD: O LORD, ſend us now Proſperity.

Prieſt.] 26. Bleſſed be he that cometh in the Name of the LORD: we have wiſhed you good luck, ye that are of the Houſe of the Lord.

27. God is the LORD who hath ſhewed us Light: bind the Sacrifice with Cords, yea, even unto the Horns of the Altar.

David.] 28. Thou art my God, and I will thank thee: thou art my God, and I will praiſe thee.

29. O give Thanks unto the LORD, for he is gracious: and his Mercy endureth for ever.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CXIX PSALM.

Aleph. Beati immaculati.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is generally thought to be compoſed by David; and if ſo, it muſt be ſome time of his Life when he was pretty much at leiſure, to write ſo long, and ſo operoſe a Compoſition. For this Pſalm conſiſts of 22 Octoſticks, or Staves of eight Verſes. All the Verſes of each ſingle Stave begin with the ſame Letter of the Hebrew Alphabet, from whence it is denominated. So that the firſt eight Verſes begin with Aleph A, the next with Beth B, Gimel G, &c. It is further Remarkable, that in every one of theſe Verſes, the Number of which amounts to 176, there is ſome Word or other which ſignifies the Law of God, excepting only the ſecond Verſe of Ain, or Feci Judicium & Juſtitiam. There are ten Words which are uſed to this Purpoſe, promiſcuouſly, in this Compoſition. 1. Torah, or Law; 2. Derek, or Way; 3. Gneduth, Teſtimony; 4. Pekudim, Commandments; 5. Mitzevoth, Precepts; 6. Imra, Word; 7. Miſhphatim, Judgments; 8. Zedek, Righteouſneſs; 9. Chukkim, Statutes; 10. Emunah, Truth. The Pſalm contains a number of very excellent pious Reflections and Rules, without any great Connexion or Dependence on each other; which was the reaſon probably they were wrote in this Acroſtical Method, that the Initial Letters might be a help to the Memory of thoſe, who were to learn it in the Original.

BLeſſed are thoſe that are undefiled in the way: and walk in the Law of the LORD.

2. Bleſſed are they that keep his Teſtimonies: and ſeek him with their whole Heart.

3. For they who do no wickedneſs: walk in his ways.

4. Thou haſt charged: that we ſhall diligently keep thy Commandments.

5. O that my ways were made ſo direct: that I might keep thy Statutes!

6. So ſhall I not be confounded: while I have reſpect unto all thy Commandments.

7. I

22. And in this I am like a great Stone, whom the Builders long neglected as an uſeleſs Thing, but were at laſt forced to make uſe of it for a Corner-ſtone, and main Support of the Building. And herein I find myſelf to be a Type of the Meſſias, whom the Jews in his Time ſhall unworthily treat, but ſhall afterwards be exalted to the greateſt Honour.

23. People. This is a ſingular and unuſual Effect of God's Providences, and which fills all, who conſider it, with Wonder and Aſtoniſhment.

24. This is a Day, which the Lord hath in a peculiar manner made, (i. e.) ordered to be kept Holy, Exod. 34. 22. Deut. 5. 15. in Memory of the Eſtabliſhment of the Judaical Monarchy; and we will exerciſe our ſelves in the Acts of a pious Joy, ſuitable to ſo great a Feſtival.

25. Beſeeching thee to be favourable to our King and Government, and that we may be happy under his Reign, which affords us ſuch promiſing Expectations in the beginning of it.

26. Prieſts. We the Prieſts of the moſt high God, whoſe Office it is to attend about the Sacrifices of his Tabernacle, we bleſs you Religious People, who come hither with devout Affections, in the Name of God; we the Domeſticks of the Great JEHOVAH, implore a Bleſſing upon you, from the God whom we have the Honour immediately to wait upon.

27. It is our, the only true God, who has procured us this bright State of Joy and Tranquillity, and therefore in token of our Gratitude, we are ready to offer up our Sacrifice to his Honour; come make haſte with the Victim which is to be offered, and tye it up to the Horns of the Altar.

28. David. Thou haſt been always to me a kind and a gracious God, for which I ought to pay thee the greateſt Thanks which my Heart can conceive, or my Tongue can expreſs.

29. O all ye Nations of the Jews, pay your bounden Thanks to the great God, for a conſtant Series of his Favours continued to us: For his kindneſs to us is ſo ſettled, as not to be abated by any time.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXIX.

Aleph. Beati immaculati.

THoſe Perſons who propoſe to themſelves, to arrive at as much Happineſs as their Nature is capable of, ought with Diligence and Circumſpection to ſquare their Lives, according as the Law of God directs.

2. In the next place, they ought to take care, that they be diligent in the publick Service of God, and in their private and moſt earneſt Worſhip of him.

3. And laſtly, that they be not guilty of any known Sin, but that they do their Duty in every thing which Religion obliges them to.

4. Thou haſt given us in Charge, that we ſhould with all Diligence and Watchfulneſs obſerve thy ſacred Laws;

5. Therefore I beſeech thee, O gracious Lord, to afford me ſuch a Portion of thy Grace, that I may be enabled to fulfil them.

6. Whilſt I religiouſly obſerve thy Laws I ſhall have nothing either within my own Mind, or without, to reproach me.

7. When

7. I will thank thee with an unfeigned Heart: when I ſhall have learned the Judgments of thy Righteouſneſs.
8. I will keep thy Ceremonies: O forſake me not utterly.

Beth. In quo corriget?

WHerewithal ſhall a young Man cleanſe his way: even by ruling himſelf after thy Word?
2. With my whole Heart have I ſought thee: O let me not go wrong out of thy Commandments.
3. Thy Words have I hid within my Heart: that I ſhould not ſin againſt thee.
4. Bleſſed art thou, O LORD: O teach me thy Statutes.
5. With my Lips have I been telling: of all the Judgments of thy Mouth.
6. I have had as great delight in the way of thy Teſtimonies: as in all manner of Riches.
7. I will talk of thy Commandments: and have reſpect unto thy ways.
8. My delight ſhall be in thy Statutes: and I will not forget thy Word.

Gimel. Retribue ſervo tuo.

O Do well unto thy Servant: that I may live and keep thy Word.
2. Open thou mine Eyes: that I may ſee the wondrous things of thy Law.
3. I am a ſtranger upon Earth: O hide not thy Commandments from me.
4. My Soul breaketh out for the very fervent deſire: that it hath alway unto thy Judgments.
5. Thou haſt rebuked the Proud: and curſed are they that do err from thy Commandments.
6. O turn from me Shame and Rebuke: for I have kept thy Teſtimonies.
7. Princes alſo did ſit and ſpeak againſt me: but thy Servant is occupied in thy Statutes.
8. For thy Teſtimonies are my delight: and my Counſellers.

Daleth.

7. When I am well inſtructed in thy Laws, I ſhall be better qualified to offer up my Devotion to God; they affording the beſt Information to diſcharge this Duty aright.
8. Since I have a fixed Reſolution of uniformly obſerving thy Commandments, I have no doubt that thou wilt utterly forſake me; truſting that thou wilt deliver me from any Calamity which lies hard upon me, in thy due time.

Beth. In quo corriget?

DOth any young Man, that is under the Power of untameable Appetites and Paſſions, want a Method to teach him how to live a pure and unblamable Life? Let him rule his Actions according to the Preſcripts of thy Word.
2. My Heart is fully bent and reſolved to depend upon thee, and to praiſe and honour thee; therefore I beſeech thee, that I may not make any Miſcarriage, in any conſiderable Point of my Duty.
3. I have treaſured up thy Sacred Word in my Heart, to be an Antidote againſt any Temptation which may aſſault me.
4. O Lord, I do not fail to praiſe and glorifie thy holy Name; but that I may do it to better Purpoſe, I beſeech thee to afford me a clearer inſight into thy holy Word, than I have yet attained to.
5. Nay, I have not only meditated upon thy Law, but I take all fit Opportunities of declaring it in my Converſation, and in informing others concerning it.
6. Nay farther, I take more Pleaſure and Satisfaction in contemplating, and diſcourſing upon theſe Divine Sanctions, than in Riches or Honour, or any other Pleaſure which this World affords.
7. Thy Commandments ſhall be my Leſſon, which I ſhall be continually ſaying over and over, and my Thoughts ſhall always be intent upon them.
8. Nor do I think it to be a grievous Exerciſe to me, to ſtudy thy holy Law, but I delight myſelf in it; and by going thro' ſo conſtant and ſo pleaſant a Task, it will fix the Doctrine of thy revealed Will ſo perfectly in my Heart, that I ſhall never forget it.

Gimel. Retribue ſervo tuo.

IF I were to offer up a Petition to thee, in which thou mighteſt exert thy Bounty to me in the greateſt Extent; it ſhould not be for long Life, or any of the ordinary Satisfactions thereof, but for thy Grace, that I might live ſuch a Life as thy Law doth direct.
2. And if I may be ſo bold to put in for a ſecond Favour, I beg of thee to enlighten my Underſtanding, that I may have a clear Notice of the many Excellencies which are couched in thy written Word, which are ſo beneficial to me, for my underſtanding the Perfections of thy Nature, and for the diſcharge of my Duty.
3. I take as little Satisfaction in all earthly Enjoyments, as if I was a perfect Sojourner in this World, and which I look upon no more mine, than the Inn I am for a Night to lodge in; therefore, I beſeech thee, do not deprive me of the Comfort I receive, in meditating upon thy Law, which is the only ſolid Pleaſure I am poſſeſſed of.
4. My Soul breaks out into paſſionate Expreſſions, to denote the great and languiſhing Deſire, and Love, it hath for thy Commandments.
5. As good Men, who diligently obſerve thy Laws, have thy Bleſſing continually attending them; ſo wicked Men, who tranſgreſs thy Commandments, are under thy heavy Puniſhment and thy Curſe.
6. Let thy Indignation rather fall upon theſe wicked Rebels to thy Authority; but exempt thy Servant from theſe Penalties, who am, to the utmoſt of my Power, a diligent obſerver of thy Law.
7. Princes and great Men made a Mock of me, for my Religion and Devotion, in their ungodly Meetings; but notwithſtanding this, I continue to meditate upon thy Law, which is my moſt refreſhing Comfort.

Daleth.

Daleth. Adhæſit pavimento.

MY Soul cleaveth to the Duſt: O quicken thou me according to thy Word.

2. I have knowledged my ways, and thou heardeſt me: O teach me thy Statutes.

3. Make me to underſtand the way of thy Commandments: and ſo ſhall I talk of thy wondrous works.

4. My Soul melteth away for very heavineſs: comfort thou me according unto thy Word.

5. Take from me the way of Lying: and cauſe thou me to make much of thy Law.

6. I have choſen the way of Truth: and thy Judgments have I laid before me.

7. I have ſtuck unto thy Teſtimonies: O LORD, confound me not.

8. I will run the way of thy Commandments: when thou haſt ſet my Heart at liberty.

MORNING PRAYER.

He. Legem pone.

TEach me, O Lord, the way of thy Statutes: and I ſhall keep it unto the end.

2. Give me Underſtanding, and I ſhall keep thy Law: yea, I ſhall keep it with my whole Heart.

3. Make me to go in the Path of thy Commandments: for therein is my deſire.

4. Incline my Heart unto thy Teſtimonies: and not to Covetouſneſs.

5. O turn away mine Eyes, leſt they behold vanity: and quicken thou me in thy way.

6. O ſtabliſh thy Word in thy Servant: that I may fear thee.

7. Take away the rebuke that I am afraid of: for thy Judgments are good.

8. Behold, my delight is in thy Commandments: O quicken me in thy Righteouſneſs.

Vau.

Daleth. Adhæſit pavimento.

MY Life is ſunk into the Grave; O do thou revive me by the Precepts of thy Word, which will be a new Life and Soul to me.

2. I laid before thee all the Miſcarriages of my Life, begging of thee Forgiveneſs for them, which thou waſt graciouſly pleaſed to afford me; do thou therefore, O Lord, rightly inform my Mind in thy Law, that I may not make any Miſtakes in my Duty hereafter.

3. Give me a full Underſtanding of all the admirable Rules and Methods, which the Law preſcribes, and this will afford me a conſtant Subject of Meditation, to exerciſe my Thoughts upon.

4. My Soul is grown faint and languiſhing, under the Senſe of ſo many Sins; but the gracious Promiſes which thy holy Word affords, is the beſt Cordial to ſtrengthen and revive me.

5. I beſeech thee not to ſuffer in me any fraudulent or deceitful Word, or Action; but make me to eſteem thy Law, above the richeſt Preſent which thou canſt make me.

6. I have made a holy and vertuous Life my choice, making thy Commandments the Rule to govern all my Actions by.

7. I have conſtantly adhered to the Obſervation of thy Laws, whatever Difficulties and Dangers ſometimes might ſeem to deter me from my Duty; therefore let me not be diſappointed, in my Expectation of my Deliverance from thee.

8. I will not go any ordinary pace, but will make haſte, and run in the Courſe of thy Commandments; when thou ſhalt be pleaſed to ſet my Mind free from the Troubles, which at preſent encompaſs me.

He. Legem pone.

O Gracious Lord, inſtruct me fully in the Knowledge of thy Laws; and then I ſhall be enabled to keep them, as long as I live.

2. Give me a ſufficient inſight into thoſe ſacred Precepts, and then I ſhall be qualified to keep entirely every part thereof.

3. Do thou direct my Steps, and teach me to go in the Paths which thy holy Commandments have chalked out; for that is the moſt delightſom Employ, which I can be exerciſed in.

4. And if my Heart yet have not a ſufficient Bent to thy Precepts, do thou incline it more and more to a love of them; and let me not be moved from any Point of my Duty, by any Temporal Conſiderations.

5. Let not my Eyes be inclined to Vanity, nor be delighted with any impure Objects; but on the contrary, let thy holy Word enliven and inflame my Affections, that they may be wholly bent towards thee.

6. Grant that I thy Servant may ſo diligently apply myſelf to the Reading, and Meditating upon thy holy Word; that the excellent Motives, to a pious Life, which are found there alone, may have that Effect upon me, as to engage me to a hearty Fear and Love of thee.

7. I beg, that thou wouldſt free me from the Guilt of my great Sin in the Matter of Uriah, which continually haunts my Mind; and I cannot but acknowledge thy Law to be good and gracious, however ungraciouſly I have tranſgreſſed it.

8. I cannot but confeſs, that I receive the greateſt Complacency, whilſt my Mind is meditating upon thy Law; and I beſeech thee to give me Grace by the Benefit thereof, to improve in all Acts of Goodneſs and Holineſs.

Vau.

Vau. Et veniat ſuper me.

LET thy loving Mercy come alſo unto me, O LORD: even thy Salvation, according unto thy Word.

2. So ſhall I make anſwer unto my Blaſphemers: for my truſt is in thy Word.

3. O take not the Word of thy Truth utterly out of my Mouth: for my hope is in thy Judgements.

4. So ſhall I alway keep thy Law: yea, for ever and ever.

5. And I will walk at liberty: for I ſeek thy Commandments.

6. I will ſpeak of thy Teſtimonies alſo, even before Kings: and will not be aſhamed.

7. And my delight ſhall be in thy Commandments: which I have loved.

8. My Hands alſo will I lift up unto thy Commandments which I have loved: and my Study ſhall be in thy Statutes.

Zain. Memor eſto ſervi tui.

O Think upon thy Servant, as concerning thy Word: wherein thou haſt cauſed me to put my Truſt.

2. The ſame is my Comfort in my Trouble: for thy Word hath quickned me.

3. The Proud have had me exceedingly in deriſion: yet have I not ſhrinked from thy Law.

4. For I remembred thine everlaſting Judgments, O LORD: and received Comfort.

5. I am horribly afraid: for the Ungodly that forſake thy Law.

6. Thy Statutes have been my Songs: in the Houſe of my Pilgrimage.

7. I have thought upon thy Name, O LORD, in the Night-ſeaſon: and have kept thy Law.

8. This I had: becauſe I kept thy Commandments.

Cheth. Portio mea, Domine.

THou art my Portion, O LORD: I have promiſed to keep thy Law.

2. I made my humble Petition in thy preſence with my whole Heart: O be merciful unto me according to thy Word.

3. I

Vau. Et veniat ſuper me.

LOrd be thou pleaſed, by thy Mercy and Loving-Kindneſs to preſerve me, as thou haſt promiſed in thy holy Word, to do to all that ſincerely rely upon thee.

2. So that I ſhall be able to make a very ſatisfactory Reply to thoſe, who revile me for my Piety towards thee; for I firmly rely upon what thou haſt recorded in thy ſacred Books.

3. O let me always have ſome gracious Promiſe out of thy Word, to rely and ſettle upon; for I have no ſtay for my hopes in any thing elſe.

4. This will be an Obligation upon me, diligently to obſerve thy Commandments all the days of my Life.

5. I now find that I am moſt at liberty, and free from the Slavery of tumultuous Luſts and Paſſions; whilſt I ſquare my Life according to the Rules which thy Law has preſcribed.

6. The Converſation about the excellent Rules of thy Law, is ſo agreeable and charming, that the Awe of no Company ſhall divert my Diſcourſe to any thing elſe; even in the preſence of Kings and great Men, I ſhall continue to talk concerning thee.

7. And whilſt others take their delight and paſtimes in entertaining Exerciſes, my only Satisfaction is in contemplating upon thy ſacred Law.

8. I with lift-up Hands will earneſtly beg for an opportunity of meditating upon thy Word, which is the greateſt delight I can partake of in this World; and my conſtant ſtudy ſhall be thereupon.

Zain. Memor eſto ſervi tui.

O Lord, I beſeech thee, to make good thoſe Promiſes which thou haſt revealed in thy Word; on which I have ſteadily relied, that thou wilt in thy good time be as gracious to me, as thou haſt there obliged thy ſelf to be.

2. Whenever I am under Affliction and Trouble, I have recourſe to thy Word for relief: and this revives me when I am almoſt dead.

3. Wicked Men indeed, make a Mock at my Piety, and my Reliance upon thee; yet for all their Taunts and Invectives, I make no ſcruple of obſerving every punctilio of thy holy Laws.

4. I took the opportunity of reflecting upon the great Deliverances, which in all Ages thou haſt afforded to thy Servants: and whenever any Affliction lay hard upon me, my Soul received inexpreſſible Comfort thereby.

5. I have been under the greateſt degree of Fright and Conſternation, whenever I conſidered the wretched Condition, which bold and obſtinate Tranſgreſſors of thy Commandments had brought themſelves into.

6. In all my diſconſolate time, when my Spirits were the loweſt, and my Afflictions were the moſt preſſing, it was the greateſt Refreſhment to me to ſing Pſalms, which thy divine Laws were the Subject of.

7. In the time of the Night, which others ſet apart for Sleep, my Study has been, how I might inviolably obſerve the Precepts of thy Law.

8. And this great Satisfaction which I received from the Contemplation of thy Laws, was owing to my conſtant obſerving them, the Pleaſure of my Speculation therein, continually increaſing with the Exactneſs of my Practice.

Cheth. Portio mea, Domine.

I Have choſen thee, O God, to be my Patrimony and Inheritance, upon deliberate thought, I not finding any thing to be ſo truly excellent and ſatisfactory as thy ſelf; and therefore I have made a Reſolution, never to offend thee by any wilful Diſobedience of thy Laws.

2. I humbly addreſs myſelf before thy Tabernacle, the place of thy Preſence, with the moſt ſincere and ardent Deſires; I beſeech thee, therefore, to grant my Petitions, according to the Goodneſs of thy Nature, which is manifeſted in thy holy Word.

3. I called mine own ways to remembrance: and turned my Feet unto thy Teſtimonies.

4. I made haſte, and prolonged not the time: to keep thy Commandments.

5. The Congregations of the Ungodly have robbed me: but I have not forgotten thy Law.

6. At Midnight I will riſe to give Thanks unto thee: becauſe of thy righteous Judgments.

7. I am a Companion of all them that fear thee: and keep thy Commandments.

8. The Earth, O Lord, is full of thy Mercy: O teach me thy Statutes.

Teth. Bonitatem feciſti.

O LORD, thou haſt dealt graciouſly with thy Servant: according unto thy Word.

2. O learn me true underſtanding and knowledge: for I have believed thy Commandments.

3. Before I was troubled, I went wrong: but now have I kept thy Word.

4. Thou art good and gracious: O teach me thy Statutes.

5. The Proud have imagined a Lie againſt me: but I will keep thy Commandments with my whole Heart.

6. Their Heart is as fat as Brawn: but my delight hath been in thy Law.

7. It is good for me that I have been in trouble: that I may learn thy Statutes.

8. The Law of thy Mouth is dearer to me: than thouſands of Gold and Silver.

EVENING PRAYER.

Jod. Manus tuæ fecerunt me.

THY Hands have made me, and faſhioned me: O give me underſtanding, that I may learn thy Commandments.

2. They that fear thee will be glad when they ſee me: becauſe I have put my truſt in thy Word.

3. I know, O LORD, that thy Judgments are right: and that thou of very faithfulneſs haſt cauſed me to be troubled.

4. O

3. Neither did it content me barely to pray unto thee, but I did likewiſe what it was in my own Power and Abilities to do, I diligently examined into the State of my Soul, calling to account my old and almoſt forgotten Sins; religiouſly reſolving to lead my Life for the future, more agreeably to thy holy Laws.

4. I did not put this good Reſoltion off, as is the cuſtom of too many, from time to time, but took the firſt opportunity of altering my Courſe of Life, and religiouſly obſerving thy Commandments.

5. Wicked Men have bandied together againſt me like Troops of Robbers, and done me the moſt notorious Acts of Violence; yet notwithſtanding this injurious Treatment, I ſtill reſolved to purſue, what I ſo ſteadily determined, the inviolable keeping of thy Commandments.

6. And indeed thy Laws are ſo full of Equity and Goodneſs, that the Conſideration thereof, ſhall make me riſe up in the middle of the Night to contemplate their Excellency, and to praiſe thee for Bleſſing us with ſuch admirable Sanctions.

7. As I abhor the Society of wicked Men, ſo I make the choiceſt of my Acquaintance out of good Men, that ſincerely fear God, and diligently obſerve his Commandments.

8. Every part of the Creation does in ſome meaſure partake of thy gracious Goodneſs; but my Portion of Happineſs which I beg for my ſhare is, that I may arrive to a perfect Underſtanding of thy Laws.

Teth. Benitatem feciſti.

O Lord, I have, through the Courſe of many Years, experienced many gracious Diſpenſations of thy Goodneſs; according to the Character thereof, ſet forth in thy holy Word.

2. O Lord, I ſincerely believe that the Body of thy Laws, is the moſt excellent Rule of Manners which ever was afforded to the World; I beſeech thee, therefore, to afford me a true Knowledge and Inſight into all the admirable Precepts thereof.

3. The Chaſtiſement which thou waſt pleaſed to lay upon me by my late Affliction, was a principal Inſtrument of my Reformation; for after that, I diligently obſerved thoſe Laws of thine, which I before had violated and neglected.

4. Thou art a kind and gracious Father to all thy Creatures; therefore I make it my chief requeſt to thy fatherly Goodneſs, that I may be ſufficiently informed in the Doctrine of thy Law.

5. Tho' my wicked Adverſaries have raiſed Calumnies againſt me; yet whilſt I diligently diſcharge my Duty, and obſerve thy Laws, I deſpiſe their ill Suggeſtions and Calumnies.

6. Their Heart is ſo fat, and all their Senſes ſo ſtupid, that they have no Senſe of the Excellency of the Divine Law; which to me, who have a better and more ſpiritual Taſte, is the moſt delicious thing in the World.

7. My late Afflictions had a very happy Effect upon me; for thereby I had an Opportunity of ſearching more nearly into thy holy Law, and obſerving thoſe Aberrations in my Life, which I had made from it.

8. And indeed I have ſuch a Value for thy Commandments, that I do not eſteem all the Treaſures in the World comparable to them.

Jod. Manus tuæ fecerunt me.

I Am the Workmanſhip of thy Hands, and all that I ſtand poſſeſſed of is owing to thee; therefore I beſeech thee, out of thy wonted Goodneſs, inſtruct me in thy Divine Law, which I ſhall eſteem a ſecond, and not leſs glorious Formation of me.

2. Thus ſhall I be an occaſion of great Joy to all good Men, who ſhall extraordinarily triumph when they ſhall ſee thou haſt delivered me, after my ſo long truſting in the Promiſes which thy holy Word have afforded me.

3. I am very well ſatisfied, O Lord, that all the Determinations of thy Providence, tho' never ſo ſevere, are exquiſitely Righteous and Good; and that the Affliction which thou haſt been pleaſed to lay upon me, is owing to thy Goodneſs, who didſt deſign only in a fatherly manner to chaſtiſe me.

4. I

4. O let thy merciful kindneſs be my comfort: according to thy Word unto thy Servant.

5. O let thy loving Mercies come unto me, that I may live: for thy Law is my delight.

6. Let the Proud be confounded, for they go wickedly about to deſtroy me: but I will be occupied in thy Commandments.

7. Let ſuch as fear thee, and have known thy Teſtimonies: be turned unto me.

8. O let my Heart be ſound in thy Statutes: that I be not aſhamed.

Caph. Defecit anima mea.

MY Soul hath longed for thy Salvation: and I have a good hope becauſe of thy Word.

2. Mine Eyes long ſore for thy Word: ſaying, O when wilt thou comfort me?

3. For I am become like a Bottle in the Smoke: yet do I not forget thy Statutes.

4. How many are the Days of thy Servant: when wilt thou be avenged of them that perſecute me?

5. The Proud have digged Pits for me: which are not after thy Law.

6. All thy Commandments are true: they perſecute me falſely, O be thou my help.

7. They had almoſt made an end of me upon Earth: but I forſook not thy Commandments.

8. O quicken me after thy loving Kindneſs: and ſo ſhall I keep the Teſtimonies of thy Mouth.

Lamed. In æternum, Domine.

O LORD, thy Word: endureth for ever in Heaven.

2. Thy Truth alſo remaineth from one Generation to another: thou haſt laid the Foundation of the Earth, and it abideth.

3. They continue this Day according to thine Ordinance: for all things ſerve thee.

4. If my delight had not been in thy Law: I ſhould have periſhed in my trouble.

5. I will never forget thy Commandments: for with them thou haſt quickned me.

6. I

4. I beſeech thee, never let me want a hearty Senſe of thy Mercy in my Soul, which may always be a Comfort to me in my Diſtreſs; and let me apply to my ſelf, the gracious Promiſes which thou haſt manifeſted in thy holy Word.

5. Let theſe gracious Promiſes always refreſh me and keep me alive, for without them I am as it were a dead Man; ſuch a wonderful Delight and Satisfaction I take, in meditating on the Precepts and Promiſes of thy Law.

6. Whilſt my wicked Adverſaries, by their falſe Accuſations and malicious Enterpriſes, are working my Ruin; whilſt theſe ſhall be ſhamefully diſappointed in their Deſigns, and ſhall ſuffer worſe Calamities than they have brought upon me; I ſhall be in a State of Peace and Quiet, and have a conſtant opportunity of ſtudying thy Law.

7. I do not deſire that wicked and profane Men ſhould abet my Cauſe; I only wiſh to have thoſe on my ſide that fear God, and diligently obſerve his Commandments.

8. I beg of thee, O God, that thou wouldſt inſpire into my Heart the Grace of Sincerity, that I may not deceive my ſelf or others with a feigned or partial Obedience of thy Commands; but that I may conſcientiouſly and heartily diſcharge every Precept thereof; for then I ſhall be in no Danger of being diſappointed, in my Religious Hopes.

Caph. Defecit anima mea.

MY Soul has had a great while an impatient Longing for the Deliverance, which in thy Word thou haſt promiſed to thy faithful Servants.

2. My Eyes have been for a conſiderable time fixed upon thoſe places in thy word, from whence I infer my Preſervation by thy Hands.

3. No leathern Bottle hung up in a ſmoaky Room, is more deformed and withered than I am by Misfortunes; yet for all this I do not forbear the ſtudy of thy Law.

4. How long a time will this Affliction lye upon me? How long long will it be before thou doſt eſpouſe my Cauſe, and chaſtiſe my inſolent Adverſaries?

5. My wicked Enemies have contrived ſeveral very malicious Plots to execute upon me; but as theſe Methods are unwarrantable by thy Word, ſo I doubt not but they will proſper accordingly.

6. The Promiſes made in thy Word to Honeſty and Fidelity, and the Threats againſt Fraud and Diſſimulation, ſhall moſt certainly take Place; therefore I can entertain no doubt of being preſerved by thee from my Enemies.

7. They had ſeveral times very fair Opportunities of executing their Deſigns upon me, and taking away my Life, bringing me into the moſt deſperate Circumſtances; but yet I could never be perſwaded to do any thing contrary to thy Commandments.

8. I beſeech thee to refreſh and enliven me, by thy Grace and Bleſſings, under all my Misfortunes; and then I ſhall not be in danger of violating thy Laws, to procure an unwarrantable Deliverance.

Lamed In æternum, Domine.

LOrd, thy Law is eſtabliſhed by an eternal immutable Decree, made in Heaven.

2. Thy Law, which is all Truth and Equity, is handed down in the ſacred Books from one Generation to another; and remaineth as fix'd and immoveable as the Foundation of the Earth.

3. And indeed all the Creation remains ſtill entire, without any fault or decay; obſerving the Law which thou gaveſt them; for all things are ſubject to thy Divine Will and Power.

4. If I had not comforted myſelf in the gracious Promiſes of thy Law, my Afflictions would have gone to my Heart, and have deſtroyed me.

5. Therefore I am reſolved always to have the greateſt Regard to thy holy Word, which has in my Affliction ſtood me in ſo extraordinary a ſtead, and preſerved my Life.

6. I

6. I am thine, O ſave me: for I have ſought thy Commandments.

7. The Ungodly laid wait for me to deſtroy me: but I will conſider thy Teſtimonies.

8. I ſee that all things come to an end: but thy Commandment is exceeding broad.

Mem. Quomodo dilexi!

LORD, what Love have I unto thy Law: all the Day long is my ſtudy in it.

2. Thou through thy Commandments has made me wiſer than mine Enemies: for they are ever with me.

3. I have more underſtanding than my Teachers: for thy Teſtimonies are my ſtudy.

4. I am wiſer than the Aged: becauſe I keep thy Commandments.

5. I have refrained my Feet from every evil way: that I may keep thy Word.

6. I have not ſhrunk from thy Judgments: for thou teacheſt me.

7. O how ſweet are thy Words unto my Throat: yea, ſweeter than Hony unto my Mouth.

8. Through thy Commandments I get underſtanding: therefore I hate all evil ways.

MORNING PRAYER.

Nun. Lucerna pedibus meis.

THY Word is a Lantern unto my Feet: and a Light unto my Paths.

2. I have ſworn, and am ſtedfaſtly purpoſed: to keep thy righteous Judgments.

3. I am troubled above meaſure: quicken me, O LORD, according to thy Word.

4. Let the free-will-Offerings of my Mouth pleaſe thee, O Lord: and teach me thy Judgments.

5. My Soul is alway in my Hand: yet do I not forget thy Law.

6. The Ungodly have laid a Snare for me: but yet I ſwerved not from thy Commandments.

7. Thy Teſtimonies have I claimed as mine heritage for ever: and why? they are the very joy of my Heart.

8. I

6. I am entirely thine, thou having made me ſo by thy Creation and Preſervation of me; O therefore keep thy Servant ſafe from the preſent Danger, eſpecially ſince he has given himſelf up entirely to the Study of thy Law.

7. My Enemies have contrived various ways to work my Ruin; but I will reſort to thy Word for Succour againſt their wicked Enterprizes.

8. There is nothing which is ſubject to our mortal Eye, but has a Period of its Duration, and all its Excellencies are quickly enjoyed over; but thy Commandments, as they ſhall never be aboliſhed, ſo there is no ſcanning over all their Perfections.

Mem. Quomodo dilexi!

O What an inexpreſſible Pleaſure do I conceive, in meditating upon the Law of God; every Hour of the day, I with the greateſt Satisfaction employ my ſelf in the Study thereof.

8. Thy Law, which has inſtructed me in the excellent Duties of Patience, bearing of Injuries, and a ſtedfaſt Reliance upon God for Deliverance, has made me wiſer than my Enemies, I thereby avoiding the Stratagems they contrive againſt me; for this is my Guard which conſtantly attends my Perſon, and defends me from their Inſults.

3. This experimental Knowledge, and diligent Obſervation of thy Law, makes me more learned therein, than the learned Doctors and Profeſſors of it.

4. This affords me more Knowledge, than the generality of aged Men have attained, by the Experience of their long Life.

5. Becauſe I would inviolably keep thy Law, I would not indulge my ſelf in any Sin, tho' of the leaſt ſize.

6. I have not made any frequent Tranſgreſſions of thy Commandments; for thou art pleaſed thy ſelf to inform me therein.

7. Nothing is more delightful to a ſpiritualiz'd Mind, than the Contemplation of the Law of God; Hony is not half ſo ſweet to the Mouth, as this is pleaſing to a good Man's Soul.

8. Nor is the Study of thy Law more pleaſant than it is advantageous, for I find my underſtanding wonderfully ripened and improved thereby; therefore I mortally hate a vitious Courſe of Life, which impoveriſhes Men's Souls, and makes them fooliſh and ſtupid.

Nun. Lucerna pedibus meis.

NO Torch or Lantern is ſo beneficial, to light one along in a dark Night, as thy Law is to direct one's Actions, throughout the Courſe of our Life.

2. I have made a ſolemn Reſolution, that I will not any longer live at random, but that I will walk circumſpectly as thy Law directs.

3. O Lord, my Afflictions ſtick ſo cloſe to me, that they will go nigh to diſpatch me; O do thou revive and comfort me, by the refreſhing Promiſes of thy holy Word.

4. Let my Praiſes and Thankſgivings, thoſe Sacrifices which my Mouth doth offer up to thee, be acceptable in thy ſight; and that I may the better pleaſe thee, enlighten my Mind with a perfect knowledge of thy holy Word.

5. I keep my Soul, as it were, always in my Hand, as Men do ſome choice thing in time of Danger, which they are afraid will be taken away from them, there being ſo many Conſpiracies againſt my Life; but in all this fear, I am not unmindful of diſcharging thoſe Duties which thy Law directs.

6. Very treacherouſly have my wicked Adverſaries laid a Plot to draw me into ſome difficulties, from which they thought I could not extricate my ſelf, without a violation of my Duty; but however I withſtood the Temptation, and did not ſwerve a tittle from what thy Law obliged me to.

7. The Knowledge of thy Law which thou haſt bleſſed me with, is an Inheritance which can never be taken from me: it is ſuch a Comfort as can be abated by no Affliction.

8. There-

8. I have applied my Heart to fulfil thy Statutes alway : even unto the end.

Samech. Iniquos odio habui.

I Hate them that imagine evil things : but thy Law do I love.

2. Thou art my Defence and Shield : and my Truſt is in thy Word.

3. Away from me, ye wicked : I will keep the Commandments of my God.

4. O ſtabliſh me according to thy Word, that I may live : and let me not be diſappointed of my hope.

5. Hold thou me up, and I ſhall be ſafe : yea, my delight ſhall be ever in thy Statutes.

6. Thou haſt trodden down all them that depart from thy Statutes : for they imagine but deceit.

7. Thou putteſt away all the Ungodly of the Earth like droſs ; therefore I love thy Teſtimonies.

8. My Fleſh trembleth for fear of thee : and I am afraid of thy Judgments.

Ain. Feci judicium.

I Deal with the thing that is lawful and right : O give me not over unto mine Oppreſſours.

2. Make thou thy Servant to delight in that which is good : that the Proud do me no wrong.

3. Mine Eyes are waſted away with looking for thy Health : and for the word of thy Righteouſneſs.

4. O deal with thy Servant according unto thy loving Mercy : and teach me thy Statutes.

5. I am thy Servant, O grant me underſtanding : that I may know thy Teſtimonies.

6. It is time for thee, LORD, to lay to thine Hand : for they have deſtroyed thy Law.

7. For I love thy Commandments : above Gold and precious Stones.

8. Therefore hold I ſtrait all thy Commandments : and all falſe ways I utterly abhor.

Pe. Mirabilia.

THY Teſtimonies are wonderful : therefore doth my Soul keep them.

2. When

8. Therefore I have with very good reaſon, taken up a reſolution, of uniformly obeying all which thou haſt commanded in thy ſacred Word.

Samech. Iniquos odio habui.

I Hate the Converſation of wicked and profane Men ; but there is no diſcourſe ſo agreeable, as that which thy Law is the ſubject of.

2. When I am in any difficulty or danger, thou art my Protection, and the Promiſes held out to me in thy holy Word are my ſure Truſt, that I depend upon.

3. All you wicked Perſons, who do not lead your Lives agreeably to God's Word do you forbear my Preſence : for I am reſolved conſcientiouſly and diligently to obſerve God's Laws, and I will not be brought into any danger of violating them, by having your bad Example before my Eyes.

4. The ſacred Word has reached out ſeveral very gracious Promiſes, to deliver me from my Affliction : O be thou pleaſed in this time of Extremity to make good to me what thou haſt promiſed.

5. If thou doſt vouchſafe to ſuſtain me ; nay, the Satisfaction and Delight which I ſhall conceive in the Contemplation of thy Word, will make me to be little Senſible of any outward Misfortunes.

6. Thou, O God, doſt ſhew thy great diſpleaſure againſt treacherous and deceitful Men, by not only defeating their wicked Deſigns, but by ruining the Author of Miſchief, by thoſe very Methods and Arts which they made uſe of againſt others.

7. Thou, O God, doſt try the Wicked in the Fire, and finding no pure Metal in them, doſt throw them away like uſeleſs Droſs : This engages me to love thy Law that Men are to be judged by, which is ſo remarkable for Juſtice and Equity.

8. And when I conſider what a juſt God thou art, and how liable I am to fail in my Duty ; I am in extraordinary fear of incurring the Penalties, which thy Law does inflict upon the Tranſgreſſors thereof.

Ain. Feci judicium.

I Make it my Buſineſs ſo to ſquare my Life, as to do nothing but what is honeſt and juſtifiable ; therefore I beſeech thee let me not be run down by the Calumnies of my Adverſaries, nor ruin'd by their Attempts.

2 I beg of thee ſo to encline the Mind of me thy Servant, that my whole delight may be in the Obſervation of the holy Precepts of thy Law, and then I ſhall not fear the miſchiefs, which my Enemies are hatching againſt me.

3. I have ſo long looked for thy Aſſiſtance, that my Eyes are tired ; and for the Promiſes, which thou haſt made in thy holy Word, to thoſe that depend upon thee.

4. O be thou pleaſed to extend thy Mercy to thy poor Suffering Servant ; but chiefly, above all things, I beg to be ſufficiently inſtructed in thy holy Word.

5. And ſince I deſire nothing but devoutly to ſerve and honour thee, I beſeech thee to afford me a perfect underſtanding of thy Law, which is the Rule I muſt govern my Actions by.

6. It is now time, O Lord, for thee to appear in vindication of Piety and Goodneſs ; for ſuch a Torrent of Vice and Profaneneſs has overſpread the World, that they ſuffer thy Law, which forbids theſe mad Extravagancies, to lie by as an uſeleſs thing, no one regarding it.

7. But for my part I profeſs, that I eſteem thy Law above the greateſt Treaſures, and the richeſt Jewels in the World.

8. For this reaſon I pay a conſcientious and uniform Obedience to all thy holy Commandments, and have a perfect Deteſtation of the Actions of wicked Men, who notoriouſly violate them.

Pe. Mirabilia.

THE Law of God is a Collection of ſuch choice and admirable Precepts, that my Soul doth not only think it its Duty to obſerve them, but receives the higheſt degree of Satisfaction therein.

2. When thy Word goeth forth: it giveth light and underſtanding unto the ſimple.

3. I opened my Mouth, and drew in my Breath: for my delight was in thy Commandments.

4. O look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me: as thou uſeſt to do unto thoſe that love thy Name.

5. Order my ſteps in thy Word: and ſo ſhall no Wickedneſs have Dominion over me.

6. O deliver me from the wrongful Dealings of Men: and ſo ſhall I keep thy Commandments.

7. Shew the light of thy Countenance upon thy Servant: and teach me thy Statutes.

8. Mine Eyes guſh out with Water: becauſe Men keep not thy Law.

Tſaddi. Juſtus es, Domine.

RIghteous art thou, O LORD: and true is thy Judgment.

2. The Teſtimonies that thou haſt commanded: are exceeding Righteous and true.

3. My Zeal hath even conſumed me: becauſe mine Enemies have forgotten thy Words.

4. Thy Word is tried to the uttermoſt: and thy Servant loveth it.

5. I am ſmall and of no Reputation: yet do I not forget thy Commandments.

6. Thy Righteouſneſs is an everlaſting Righteouſneſs: and thy Law is the Truth.

7. Trouble and heavineſs have taken hold upon me: yet is my delight in thy Commandments.

8. The Righteouſneſs of thy Teſtimonies is everlaſting: O grant me underſtanding, and I ſhall live.

EVENING PRAYER.

Koph. Clamavi in toto corde meo.

I Call with my whole Heart: hear me, O LORD, I will keep thy Statutes.

2. Yea, even unto thee, do I call: help me, and I ſhall keep thy Teſtimonies.

3. Early in the Morning do I cry unto thee: for in thy Word is my truſt.

4. Mine

2. When thy Word ſhines out upon Men, the moſt ignorant Man receives a great Degree of Spiritual Light therefrom, and Men of ordinary Underſtandings, have their Minds inſtructed with wholſom Truths.

3. I came thirſting and panting, and out of great eagerneſs and earneſt Deſire, gaſping for Breath; that I might partake of the great Satisfaction, which is to be found in the ſtudy of thy Law.

4. I beſeech thee to afford the ſame gracious Indulgence towards me, as thou att uſed to do to the reſt of thy faithful Servants.

5. I beſeech thee to let thy Word ſo direct my Steps, that I may not ſtumble nor fall in the Courſe of my Duty; and then I am confident that I ſhall not fall into any ſettled Habit of Vice.

6. O Lord, I beſeech thee to interpoſe thy Almighty Aid, in delivering me from the Injuſtice and Violence of my Adverſaries, and this Favour ſhall engage me, in gratitude, continually to obſerve thy Commandments.

7. Look upon me thy Servant with a ſerene and pleaſant Aſpect; but the greateſt favour thou canſt allow me, is perfectly to inſtruct me in thy Law.

8. My Afflictions which I have ſuſtained, have occaſioned me a great deal of Sorrow; but nothing has gone ſo near my Heart, and made my Eyes flow with ſo many Tears, as the univerſal corruption and depravation of Mens manners.

Tſaddi. Juſtus es, Domine.

O Lord thou haſt not only an eſſential Holineſs in thy Nature; but there is an unſpotted Sanctity, and unblameable rectitude in all thy Laws and Diſpenſations.

2. All the Precepts, ſet down in thy ſacred Word, are full of admirable Righteouſneſs and Equity.

3. And indeed this has been an occaſion of great trouble and vexation to me, to ſee that my Enemies ſhould not only oppoſe me; but that they ſhould be ſo unreaſonably wicked, as to profane and violate thy holy Laws and Religion, which are ſo exquiſitely good, that one would think no one could find fault with them.

4. Thy Law is like Metal, refined in the Fire to the greateſt Purity; and this one great reaſon of the Affection which I thy Servant bear towards it.

5. And let Men think of me as deſpicably as they pleaſe, yet I will procure to my ſelf this point of Reputation, that I am a diligent obſerver of the Precepts of thy Law.

6. Thy righteous Laws are founded upon the Rules of eternal, and everlaſting Truth.

7. Variety of Troubles and Dangers have, throughout the ſeveral parts of my Life ſurrounded me: but, even under thoſe heavy preſſures, I took great delight and ſatisfaction, in meditating upon thy ſacred Law.

8. Thy Laws are eternally Juſt and Holy: O be pleaſed to give me a ſufficient underſtanding thereof, and I ſhall not be made unhappy, for any wicked Contrivances, which my Enemies can advance againſt me.

Koph. Clamavi in toto corde meo.

I Have long and earneſtly cried unto thee, O Lord, therefore I beſeech thee to hear me at laſt; and I will not be guilty of any ingratitude to thee, after ſuch a favour, but I will inviolably keep thy ſacred Laws.

2. It is unto thee, the gracious God the preſerver of innocent Sufferers, that I make my cry; and, and if thou doſt vouchſafe to grant my Prayer, I will, in token of gratitude, with the greateſt aſſiduity obſerve thy Laws.

3. Very early in the Morning I put up my Prayers to thee for thy Bleſſing and Aſſiſtance, upon my ſtudying thy Law; for therein are the gracious Promiſes which I depend upon for thy Protection.

4. And

4. Mine Eyes prevent the Night-watches: that I might be occupied in thy Words.
5. Hear my Voice, O LORD, according unto thy loving kindneſs: quicken me according as thou art wont.
6. They draw nigh that of Malice perſecute me: and are far from thy Law.
7. Be thou nigh at hand, O LORD: for all thy Commandments are true.
8. As concerning thy Teſtimonies, I have known long ſince: that thou haſt grounded them for ever.

Reſh. Vide humilitatem.

O Conſider mine adverſity and deliver me: for I do not forget thy Law.
2. Avenge thou my Cauſe, and deliver me: quicken me according to thy Word.
3. Health is far from the Ungodly: for they regard not thy Statutes.
4. Great is thy Mercy, O LORD: quicken me as thou art wont.
5. Many there are that trouble me, and perſecute me: yet do I not ſwerve from thy Teſtimonies.
6. It grieveth me when I ſee the Tranſgreſſors: becauſe they keep not thy Law.
7. Conſider, O LORD, how I love thy Commandments: O quicken me according to thy loving kindneſs.
8. Thy Word is true from everlaſting: all the Judgments of thy Righteouſneſs endure for evermore.

Schin. Principes perſecuti ſunt.

PRinces have perſecuted me without a Cauſe: but my Heart ſtandeth in awe of thy Word.
2. I am as glad of thy Word: as one that findeth great ſpoils.
3. As for Lies I hate and abhor them: but thy Law do I love.
4. Seven times a Day do I praiſe thee: becauſe of thy righteous Judgments.
5. Great is the Peace that they have who love thy Law: and they are not offended at it.
6. LORD, I have looked for thy ſaving Health: and done after thy Commandments.
7 My Soul hath kept thy Teſtimonies: and loved them exceedingly. 8. I

4. And in the Evening before the Night-watch is ſet, I fall to my Devotions again, and to my Meditation and Reading of thy holy Word.
5. O Lord, grant my humble Petition which I put up unto thee, according as thou haſt graciouſly promiſed me, and let me experience a freſh Inſtance of the Favour, which thou waſt formerly uſed to ſhew me.
6. Behold how my wicked Adverſaries, that are likewiſe profane Tranſgreſſors of thy ſacred Laws, gather themſelves in a Body, and are coming towards me to execute ſome malicious Deſign upon me.
7. But I beſeech thee, O Lord, do thou ſtick as cloſe to me as they do; and let me partake of thoſe gracious Promiſes, which are made in thy Law to thy faithful Servants.
8. And I have one thing to remark (and which I learned long ago) concerning the Precepts and Promiſes of thy holy Word, that they are immutable, and not to be ſhaken.

Reſh. Vide humilitatem.

I Beſeech thee, O Lord, to preſerve me from the Dangers which now threaten me; for thou knoweſt, that none of my former Misfortunes have made me forget my Duty towards thee.
2. O Lord, I lodge my Cauſe with thee, appealing to the Equity of thy Sentence for the Juſtice thereof; I beſeech thee to reſcue me from their Perſecutions, as I have good hopes from thy Word that thou wilt do.
3. But tho' my ſelf, and other pious Perſons, may have a comfortable Expectation of thy Deliverance; yet the Ungodly cannot pretend to the ſame hopes.
4. Tho' my Sufferings are very great, yet thy Mercy is infinite; therefore I beſeech thee, to afford me the wonted Refreſhings of thy Goodneſs.
3. Thou knoweſt, O Lord, that my Enemies are very numerous; yet this doth not provoke me, to return the ſame Injuries upon them, thou having forbidden the ſame in thy Law, Lev. 19. 18.
6. It is a very cutting and piercing Grief to me, to ſee ſo many Men ſo notoriouſly violating thy Commandments; having no manner of Regard to thy ſacred Sanctions.
7. I beſeech thee, O Lord, to take Notice of the ſingular Affection which I bear to thy holy Laws; therefore I beg of thee, out of thy innate Goodneſs, to free me from this Calamity which preſſes ſo hard upon me.
8. And this I am confident thou wilt not forbear to do, for thy Promiſes are everlaſtingly true, and never have failed thy faithful Servants; and they will continue the ſame to the end of the World.

Schin. Printipes perſecuti ſunt.

THE great Men and Magiſtrates of the Kingdom, have without any reaſonable Cauſe, driven me from my Habitation, and forced me into deſolate places; but for all this I ceaſe not inviolably to obſerve thy Laws.
2. Nay, tho' my Enemies prevail againſt me, notwithſtanding their wickedneſs; yet, whilſt I have thy ſacred Laws to meditate upon, I am as well-pleaſed, as if I had obtained a Victory over them.
3. As for deceit and lies, I abominate them, and eſteem them unworthy of the Practice of any good of ingenious Man; but tenaciouſly to adhere to thy Laws, tho' no preſent advantage be reaped therefrom, is a thing highly amiable in the ſight of God and all good Man.
4. It is a conſtant ſubject of my Praiſes and Devotion, which I offer up to thee, that thou haſt been pleaſed to make me acquainted with thy holy Laws.
5. For theſe afford ſuch inward Comfort and Satisfaction to the Soul, that no outward Accident can tempt me to violate theſe, for the ſake of any worldly Advantages.
6. O Lord, during my long Troubles, I never put any confidence in any thing but thee; and never would violate any of thy Commandments, to better my Condition thereby.
7. My greateſt concern has been, how I might, in the moſt diligent manner, obſerve the Precepts of thy holy Word; which I always had a greater Eſteem for, than any Satisfactions which this World affords. 8. I

8. I have kept thy Commandments and Teſtimonies: for all my ways are before thee.

Tau. Appropinquet deprecatio.

LET my Complaint come before thee, O LORD: give me underſtanding according to thy Word.

2. Let my ſupplication come before thee: deliver me according to thy Word.

3. My Lips ſhall ſpeak of thy Praiſe: when thou haſt taught me thy Statutes.

4. Yea, my Tongue ſhall ſing of thy Word: for all thy Commandments are righteous.

5. Let thine Hand help me: for I have choſen thy Commandments.

6. I have longed for thy ſaving health, O LORD: and in thy Law is my delight.

7. O let my Soul live, and it ſhall praiſe thee: and thy Judgments ſhall help me.

8. I have gone aſtray like a Sheep that is loſt: O ſeek thy Servant, for I do not forget thy Commandments.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CXX. PSALM.

Ad Dominum.

¶ ¶ This and the 14 following Pſalms, are entituled in the Hebrew, Songs of Steps or Degrees. Some think they were called ſo, becauſe they were ſung by the Levites, as they went up the Steps or Stairs of the Temple: Others think that it refers to ſome gradual Riſe or Exaltation of the Voice in ſinging. Both Opinions have their Probabilities, wherefore it is not eaſy to ſay, which of theſe two Reaſons gave occaſion to the Compellation. It ſeems to have been firſt compoſed by David, upon the Information of Doeg, 1 Sam. 22. but was made uſe of by the Jews afterwards, in remembrance of their Captivity.

WHen I was in trouble, I called upon the LORD: and he heard me.

2. Deliver my Soul, O LORD, from lying Lips: and from a deceitful Tongue.

3. What reward ſhall be given or done unto thee, thou falſe Tongue: even mighty and ſharp Arrows, with hot burning Coals.

4. Wo is me that I am conſtrained to dwell with Meſech: and to have my Habitation among the Tents of Kedar.

5. My Soul hath long dwelt among them: that are Enemies unto Peace.

6. I labour for Peace, but when I ſpeak unto them thereof: they make them ready to Battle.

The CXXI. PSALM.

Levavi oculos.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is thought to be written by David, whilſt he was in the Field with his Army, during the Abſalomian Rebellion. And the Phraſe ſeems to be Military, repreſenting a General earneſtly looking out for the Succours he expects.

I Will lift up mine Eyes to the Hills: from whence cometh my help.

2. My help cometh even from the LORD: who hath made Heaven and Earth.

3. He

8. I have had a conſcientious Regard of violating any one of thy Precepts; as well-knowing, that every unlawful Action of mine, though done never ſo privately, would be open to thy all-ſearching Eye, 1 Sam. 14. 4.

Tau. Appropinquet deprecatio.

O Lord, I beſeech thee to afford a gracious anſwer to my Petition; and grant me Wiſdom to lead my Life, according to the moſt excellent Rules, which are laid down in thy Law.

2. And I beſeech thee yet further, to enlarge thy Favour to me, in delivering me from the Miſchiefs, which my Adverſaries are deſigning againſt me.

3. Then ſhall I ſing forth thy Praiſe, in the moſt grateful Pſalmody; eſpecially for thy inſtructing me, in thy holy Word.

4. Nay, the principal Theme of my Song, ſhall be the Righteouſneſs of thy Laws.

5. I beſeech thee, O Lord, to interpoſe thy Power on my behalf; for I am reſolved to make uſe of no means for my Deliverance, but what are agreeable to thy Laws.

6. I have been a great while in eager Expectation of being delivered by thee; in the mean-while entertaining myſelf, with the comfortable Promiſes contained in thy holy Word.

7. O Lord, preſerve my Life againſt the preſent Attempts of my Adverſaries, and afford me Comfort from thy gracious Promiſes, which will be a new Obligation to me, for ever to celebrate thy Goodneſs.

8. I have been chaſed from place to place, and am as a Sheep driven away from the Flock by a Wolf; therefore I beſeech thee, O Lord, to afford Peace and Safety to thy poor afflicted Servant, who has done nothing to merit that ill Treatment, which his Enemies have given him.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXX.

WHen-ever I was in a very great diſtreſs, I put up my Petition to Almighty God, and he was pleaſed graciouſly to hear me.

2. Therefore, in the preſent Exigence, I beg of thee that thou wouldſt be pleaſed to deliver me from the Calumnies of thoſe wicked Informers, who are raiſing Slanders againſt me, which may reach my Life, 1 Sam. 22. 9.

3. And what doſt thou think to get, thou perjured Wretch, by this falſe Accuſation? the Money which Saul has given thee for this wicked Service, will be but a poor Requital, when the Almighty God ſhall pour down his Vengeance upon thee, and rain Coals of Fire upon thy Head.

4. O what an uncomfortable Condition am I reduced to, to take up my Habitation among the Barbarous Arabians.

5. But however, this is better than to live among the perfidious Attendants of Saul's Court, that are continually contriving Miſchief, and endeavouring to diſturb the Quiet of good Men.

6. All my ſtudy is to live peaceably and inoffenſively, but when I propoſe any Method to bring this about, they contrive means to bring Matters to a greater Rupture, and, under the Name of a Truce, commit all the Hoſtilities of open War.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXXI.

I Will look out towards yonder Hill, to ſee if I can diſcover any Recruits coming to my Aſſiſtance.

2. Why, truly I muſt own, that God is my beſt Ally: the Great God the Creator of the World, he ſhall furniſh me with the beſt Supplies to enable me to face my Enemies.

3. He

3. He will not ſuffer thy Foot to be moved: and he that keepeth thee will not ſleep.
4. Behold, he that keepeth Iſrael: ſhall neither ſlumber nor ſleep.
5. The LORD himſelf is thy keeper: the LORD is thy defence upon thy right Hand.
6. So that the Sun ſhall not burn thee by Day: neither the Moon by Night.
7. The LORD ſhall preſerve thee from all evil: yea, it is even he that ſhall keep thy Soul.
8. The LORD ſhall preſerve thy going out, and thy coming in: from this time forth for evermore.

The CXXII. PSALM.

Lætatus ſum.

¶¶ This is entituled, A Pſalm of Degrees of David. It was probably writ by him upon the ſettling the Ark in Mount Sion; or upon ſome Anniverſary of that Solemnity. It is ſpoke in the Name of the People of the Jews, who are here repreſented, as exulting upon the thought of this famous Feſtivity.

I Was glad when they ſaid unto me: we will go into the Houſe of the LORD.
2. Our Feet ſhall ſtand in thy Gates: O Jeruſalem.
3. Jeruſalem is built as a City: that is at Unity in itſelf.
4. For thither the Tribes go up, even the Tribes of the Lord: to teſtifie unto Iſrael to give Thanks unto the Name of the LORD.
5. For there is the ſeat of Judgment: even the ſeat of the Houſe of David.
6. O pray for the Peace of Jeruſalem: they ſhall proſper that love thee.
7. Peace be within thy Walls: and plenteouſneſs within thy Palaces.
8. For my Brethren and Companions ſakes: I will wiſh thee Proſperity.
9. Yea, becauſe of the Houſe of the LORD our God: I will ſeek to do thee good.

The CXXIII. PSALM.

Ad te levavi oculos meos.

¶¶ It is uncertain when, or by whom, this Pſalm was wrote; It was probably wrote by ſome pious Perſon in the time of their Captivity; and perhaps towards the Expiration thereof, when the Jews had ſome Expectation of a Deliverance.

UNto thee lift I up mine Eyes: O thou that dwelleſt in the Heavens.
2. Behold, even as the Eyes of Servants look unto the hand of their Maſters, and as the Eyes of a Maiden unto the hand of her Miſtreſs: even ſo our Eyes wait upon the Lord our God, until he have Mercy upon us.
3. Have mercy upon us, O LORD, have mercy upon us: for we are utterly deſpiſed.
4. Our

3. He will not ſuffer our Enemies to get any Advantage over us; he will be ſuch a Centinel as will never ſleep.
4. For God, who is the Defender of the People of Iſrael, does exerciſe a continual and moſt vigilant Providence over them
5. God himſelf is our Guard: the great JEHOVAH watches about us.
6. So that under his Protection we need not fear, that our Troops ſhould be annoyed by the ſcorching Heat of the Sun by Day, nor by the peſtilential Vapours of the Night.
7. The Lord ſhall preſerve us from all impendent Dangers; the Lord ſhall preſerve our Lives from any Attempts made againſt them.
8. The Lord ſhall protect us, whenever we march out our Armies, or bring them home; the Lord ſhall protect us all the Days of our Life.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXXII.

OH! what a Joy it was to our Hearts, to hear our Neighbours ſay, Come let us make ready to appear in the Houſe of the Great God.
2. Let us prepare to enter within the Gates of the famous City Jeruſalem:
3. That famous City, whoſe Buildings are united together in the moſt decent Order; but which does much more recommend itſelf by the Uniformity of its Worſhip, which all the Nation of the Jews do joyn together in.
4. For thither all the twelve Tribes of Iſrael do go, by God's ſpecial appointment, Exod. 23. 17. to appear before the Ark of the Teſtimony, Exod. 25. 21. and to commemorate God's Favours to their Nation, and his ſpecial Providence exerciſed over them.
5. For there likewiſe are all judicial Proceedings tranſacted, 2 Chron. 19. 8. and there is the Royal Palace of King David, where he and his Sons reſide, and execute impartial Judgment among the People, 2 Sam. 8. 15, 18.
6. Therefore, O all ye good People, when you come up there, put up your Prayers to God for the Proſperity of this City, and God ſhall reward this charitable Prayer of yours, with a great Bleſſing.
7. May no external Wars, nor inward Broils, diſturb thy Tranquillity; and mayeſt thou enjoy an Affluence of all the good things which this World affords.
8. We wiſh thee all Happineſs, O thou famous City, for the ſake of our Brother-Jews, who are thy Inhabitants.
9. But chiefly we are obliged to pray for thy Happineſs, by reaſon that the Houſe of God is there, the principal Seat of Divine Worſhip; and this is the great reaſon that we will, to the utmoſt of our Power, endeavour to promote thy welfare.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXXIII.

O Lord we poor Captives, with eager expectation, raiſe our Eyes to thee the great God, who art the great Monarch of Heaven.
2. No Servant does with more diligence watch every look and motion of his Maſter, nor any Maid more carefully attends and waits for her Miſtreſſes Command, than we wait for our Deliverance from this our diſmal Captivity by God.
3. Therefore, we beg of thee, O God, that thou wouldſt haſten thy deſigned Favour to us; for we are under an unſupportable degree of Contempt in this Thraldom.

4. Our Soul is filled with the ſcornful reproof of the Wealthy: and with the deſpiteful neſs of the Proud.

The CXXIV. PSALM.

Niſi quia Dominus.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is entitled, A Song of Degrees of David. It ſeems to be compoſed upon his Deliverance from the Abſalomian Rebellion; but made uſe of by the Jews afterwards, as a Form of Devotion, as a Thankſgiving for their Return from the Captivity.

IF the LORD himſelf had not been on our ſide, now may Iſrael ſay: if the LORD himſelf had not been on our ſide, when Men roſe up againſt us;

2. They had ſwallowed us up quick: when they were ſo wrathfully diſpleaſed at us.

3. Yea, the Waters had drowned us: and the Stream had gone over our Soul.

4. The deep Waters of the Proud had gone even over our Soul.

5. But praiſed be the LORD: who hath not given us over for a Prey unto their Teeth.

6. Our Soul is eſcaped even as a Bird out of the Snare of the Fowler: the Snare is broken and we are delivered.

7. Our help ſtandeth in the Name of the LORD: who hath made Heaven and Earth.

The CXXV. PSALM.

Qui confidunt.

¶ ¶ It is uncertain in what Age this Pſalm was compoſed: It is an Exhortation to rely upon God's Providence, and not to make uſe of Indirect means for Safety.

THey that put their truſt in the LORD, ſhall be even as the Mount Sion: which may not be removed, but ſtandeth faſt for ever.

2. The Hills ſtand about Jeruſalem: even ſo ſtandeth the LORD round about his People, from this time forth for evermore.

3. For the Rod of the Ungodly cometh not into the Lot of the Righteous: leſt the Righteous put their Hand unto wickedneſs.

4. Do well, O LORD: unto thoſe that are good and true of Heart.

5. As for ſuch as turn back unto their own Wickedneſs: the Lord ſhall lead them forth with the evil Doers, but Peace ſhall be upon Iſrael. EVEN-

4. Our Spirits cannot brook thoſe ſcornful Scoffs and Jeſts, which our rich and proud Oppreſſors ſo frequently caſt upon us.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXXIV.

NOW may I, and all my Subjects of the Nation of Iſrael, ſay, that if God Almighty had not interpoſed his moſt eſpecial Providence in our Preſervation; when ſo great a number of Men were up in Arms againſt their lawful Sovereign.

2. They would have eaten us up alive, as a wild Beaſt does his Prey, in their bitter rage which they conceived againſt us.

3. Their numerous Army had over-run our ſmall Party, like a mighty Torrent.

4. No Inundation of the Sea could have broke in upon us with more Fury and drowned us, than their Force would have broke in upon ours, and totally deſtroyed us.

5. But for ever praiſed be our gracious God, for not ſuffering us to be torn in pieces by the Bloody Jaws of theſe fierce Beaſts.

6. No Bird did ever more narrowly eſcape the Fowler's Snare, than we the Force and Stratagems of our Enemies; but, God be thanked, all their wicked Attempts are diſppointed, and God has wrought for us a wonderful Deliverance.

7. And therefore we ſhall always aſcribe this wonderful Preſervation of ours, to the Hand of the great God, the Creator of the Univerſe.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXXV.

THere is no Security ſo firm and well-grounded, as a faithful Reliance upon God; for he that doth ſo, ſhall ſtand as fix'd and unmoveable as Mount Sion, that great and maſſy Hill.

2. Look out and ſee how the diſtant Hills environ Jeruſalem; in the ſame manner does the Divine Power encircle the Jewiſh Nation, ready, upon all occaſions, to afford them Aſſiſtance.

3. For tho' God, for good Reaſons doth ſuffer Afflictions to lye hard upon good Men, yet he doth at laſt remove them; for if he ſhould make no difference between good and evil Men, this would be apt to ſhake the Conſtancy of the good, and would be too great a Temptation to purſue the Methods which wicked Men take for worldly Proſperity.

4. Therefore we beſeech thee, O Lord, to let the Piety of thy faithful Servants, be rewarded with ſome earneſt of thy Mercy, to keep up their Spirits, and to bear them in Heart.

5. But as for ſuch as turn their back upon their Duty, and purſue croſs and crooked Paths in their courſe of Life, God ſhall lead them out to Execution, with the other condemned Criminals, to eternal Puniſhment; but he ſhall provide a State of eternal Peace and Felicity, for all true Iſraelites and Servants of God.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CXXVI. PSALM.

In convertendo.

¶¶ This Pſalm was compoſed by Eſdras, or ſome other inſpired Author of that time: It is a triumphal Song, in Congratulation of the Jews return from their Captivity.

WHen the LORD turned again the Captivity of Sion: then were we like unto them that dream.

2. Then was our Mouth filled with Laughter: and our Tongue with Joy.

3. Then ſaid they among the Heathen: The LORD hath done great things for them.

4. Yea, the LORD hath done great things for us already: whereof we rejoyce.

5. Turn our Captivity, O LORD: as the Rivers in the South.

6. They that ſow in Tears: ſhall reap in Joy.

7. He that now goeth on his way weeping, and beareth forth good Seed: ſhall doubtleſs come again with Joy, and bring his Sheaves with him.

The CXXVII PSALM.

Niſi Dominus.

¶¶ The Hebrew Title of this Pſalm is, A Song of Degrees, le Shelomoh, for, or rather by Solomon. The Tenour of the Pſalm is to ſhew that no Endeavours of Men can be proſperous, but thoſe which have the Bleſſing of God attending them.

EXcept the LORD build the Houſe: their labour is but loſt that build it.

2. Except the LORD keep the City: the Watch-man waketh but in vain.

3. It is but loſt labour that ye haſte to riſe up early, and ſo late take reſt, and eat the Bread of Carefulneſs: for ſo he giveth his beloved Sleep.

4. Lo, Children and the fruit of the Womb: are an heritage and gift that cometh of the LORD.

5. Like as the Arrows in the Hand of the Giant: even ſo are the young Children.

6. Happy is the Man that hath his Quiver full of them: they ſhall not be aſhamed when they ſpeak with their Enemies in the Gate.

The CXXVIII PSALM.

Beati omnes.

¶¶ Learned Men think this Pſalm was compoſed by the Author of the foregoing one. And others are of Opinion, it was uſed by the Jews, as a Hymn in their Office of Matrimony.

BLeſſed are all they that fear the LORD: and walk in his ways.

2. For

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXVI.

WHen the Proclamation went out, whereby we had liberty granted us to return to our Native Country, Ezra. 1. 2, 3. it was ſuch a ſurprizing piece of News to us, that we could not believe the Reality of the thing, but thought we had been aſleep, and only dreamt of that unexpected Felicity.

2. What Mirth and Pleaſantneſs was in every Man's Countenance! and how did every Tongue ring with joyful Acclamations!

3. The Heathens themſelves, Profane as they are, could not forbear remarking, that this was a ſignal Act of God's Providence for the Delivery of his People.

4. And indeed they very well obſerve, that this is a moſt ſignal Act of the Divine Power, which fills our Minds with ſo much pious Joy.

5. Therefore we beſeech thee, O Lord, to go on to finiſh this great Work which thou haſt begun, and bring back thoſe great numbers of Captives which ſtill remain behind, and let them come home with as great a Torrent, as the great Southern-Rivers flow with.

6. For that Proverbial Saying is very true, He that has a Sorrowful Sowing, ſhall have a Joyful Reaping.

7. The Man that with a heavy Heart throws his Seed into the Ground, and by reaſon of an unkind Seaſon, expects little or no Crop, yet oftentimes has his Corn ſpring up to Admiration; and at the time of Harveſt he goes home loaded with Sheaves, greatly rejoycing at his unexpected Crop.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXVII.

EXcept the Lord does afford his Bleſſing, it is in vain that a Man is at a great Expence in building a fair Houſe; for otherways ſome unlucky Diſaſter or other happens, which ruins all the Deſigns and Hopes of the Builder.

2. Unleſs God Almighty preſerves a City from the Power of the Enemies, it is to little purpoſe that a Watch is ſet every Night for its Security.

3. And the like may be ſaid of the Inhabitants of the Town, that it little avails, for all the ſeveral Artificers to riſe up ſo early in a Morning, and ſit up ſo late at Night, working in their ſeveral Employs, feeding upon mean Diet, and defrauding themſelves of their natural Reſt; for if God does not bleſs their Labours, they ſhall gain nothing by all this Toil.

4. It is not Youth nor Strength, which will entitle marry'd Perſons to have Children; for theſe are Bleſſings which God only can confer.

5. And indeed a numerous Off-ſpring is a great Advantage to a Parent, and ſerves to defend and protect him, as the Darts in the Hand of a Combatant tend to protect him againſt his Antagoniſt.

6. In a happy Condition is that Man, whoſe Quiver is full of ſuch Shafts; for his Children ſhall ſtand him in ſtead, to maintain his Cauſe, when he is called to appear in the Judgment-Hall, over the City-Gate.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXVIII.

IF Men are reſolved to acquire as much Happineſs as their Nature is capable of, they ſhould above all things take care conſcientiouſly to obſerve the Laws of God: 2. And

2. For thou shalt eat the labours of thine Hands: O well is thee, and happy shalt thou be!
3. Thy Wife shall be as the fruitful Vine: upon the Walls of thine House.
4. Thy Children like the Olive-Branches: round about thy Table.
5. Lo, thus shall the Man be blessed: that feareth the LORD.
6. The Lord from out of Sion shall so bless thee: that thou shalt see Jerusalem in Prosperity all thy Life long.
7. Yea, that thou shalt see thy Childrens Children: and Peace upon Israel.

The CXXIX PSALM.

Sæpe expugnaverunt.

¶¶ This Psalm was wrote probably by Ezra, or some other pious and inspired Person, whilst the Jews were in some Troubles, after the Captivity; it may be in the Difficulties they struggled with about rebuilding the Walls, &c.

MAny a time have they fought against me from my Youth up: may Israel now say.
2. Yea, many a time have they vexed me from my Youth up: but they have not prevailed against me.
3. The Plowers plowed upon my Back: and made long furrows.
4. But the Righteous LORD: hath hewen the Snares of the Ungodly in pieces.
5. Let them be confounded and turned backward: as many as have evil will at Sion.
6. Let them be even as the Grass growing upon the House-tops: which withereth afore it be plucked up.
7. Whereof the mower filleth not his Hand: neither he that bindeth up the sheaves his Bosom.
8. So that they who go by, say not so much as, The LORD prosper you: we wish you good luck in the Name of the LORD.

The CXXX PSALM.

De profundis.

¶¶ Some attribute this Psalm to David: I rather think it to be composed in the Captivity, by some pious Person there. It is the last of those which are usually called the Seven Penitential Psalms. It is an earnest Prayer to God, for the Pardon of Sin, and a Freedom from Punishment.

OUt of the deep have I called unto thee, O LORD: LORD hear my Voice.
2. O let thine Ears consider well: the Voice of my complaint.
3. If thou, LORD, wilt be extreme to mark what is done amiss: O LORD, who may abide it?
4. For

2. And if thou dost diligently pursue this Method, God shall afford a Blessing upon all thy honest Endeavours, thou enjoying all that thy Labours have procured thee; in short, thou shalt live in a very comfortable and desirable Condition.
3. Thy Wife shall be fruitful in bringing thee forth Children, in like manner as the Vine, which covers thy House, is loaded with clusters of Grapes.
4. And as the young Olive-Trees grow round the Arbour, where thou dinest; so shall thy Children sit round thy Table.
5. In this manner shall Blessings flow in upon Him, that is a devout and faithful Servant of God.
6. And if thou dost continue to be so, God shall heap further Blessings upon thee, thou enjoying all the Satisfactions which flow from the National Prosperity, the Church and State flourishing all thy time.
7. Nay, God shall add to all these Blessings length of Days; thou living to see several Generations of thy Posterity, the Commonwealth of Israel being all the while in a prosperous Condition.

Paraphrase on Psalm CXXIX.

THe People of Israel may very truly say, that they have been sorely molested with Enemies, from the very beginning of their Government to this Day.
2. Even from their very Infancy, when they were Sojourners in Egypt, their Oppressors have infested them; but God would never suffer their Adversaries utterly to extirpate them.
3. Indeed they have often tyrannized over us as the most abject Slaves, whipping us without Mercy, and making Furrows in our Backs, as if they had been plowing in them.
4. But God, now at last, has made good his Promise to us, in delivering us from our cruel Enemies, and has disappointed all their cruel Devices of plaguing and tormenting us.
5. Therefore let all those, that still bear an ill-Will to our Government in Church and State, have their wicked Designs, which they may advance against us, defeated.
6. Let all their unfair Projects be as suddenly blasted, as the Grass growing upon the Top of a House; which withers away by the Heat of the Sun, and continues not till the time of the Hay-Harvest:
7. Which is not cut down by the Mower's Sithe, or Reaper's Sickle.
8. And when it is taken away, Men do not use the courteous Salutation usual in the time of Harvest; Pray God bless your Labours, Ruth 2. 4.

Paraphrase on Psalm CXXX.

IN my greatest Afflictions which I underwent formerly, I made my Application to thee, O God, and thou wast pleased to grant my Petition, by delivering me from them.
2. And therefore, I beseech thee to afford me thy wonted Favour, in freeing me from my Calamities, which at present lie very hard upon me.
3. If thou shouldest with Exactness take notice of every Offence committed against thee and thy holy Commandments, no Man would be able to stand the Trial.

4. But

4. For there is Mercy with thee: therefore ſhalt thou be feared.
5. I look for the LORD, my Soul doth wait for him: in his Word is my truſt.
6. My Soul fleeth unto the LORD: before the Morning-watch, I ſay, before the Morning-watch.
7. O Iſrael truſt in the LORD, for with the Lord there is Mercy: and with him is plenteous redemption.
8. And he ſhall redeem Iſrael: from all his Sins.

The CXXXI PSALM.

Domine, non eſt.

¶¶ The Title of this Pſalm is, A Song of Degrees of David. It was wrote to purge himſelf from any Deſign of affecting the Kingdom during Saul's Life.

LORD, I am not high-minded: I have no proud Looks.
2. I do not exerciſe my ſelf in great matters: which are too high for me.
3. But I refrain my Soul, and keep it low, like as a Child that is weaned from his Mother: yea, my Soul is even as a weaned Child.
4. O Iſrael, truſt in the LORD: from this time forth for evermore.

The CXXXII PSALM.

Momento, Domine.

¶¶ This Pſalm has no other Title than, A Song of Degrees. It is, by the beſt Criticks, thought to be written by Solomon, when he built the Temple, and fulfilled what was deſigned by his Father David, 2 Sam. chap. 7.

LORD, remember David: and all his trouble.
2. How he ſware unto the LORD: and vowed a Vow unto the Almighty God of Jacob.
3. I will not come within the Tabernacle of mine Houſe: nor climb up into my Bed.
4. I will not ſuffer mine Eyes to ſleep, nor mine Eye-lids to ſlumber: [neither the Temples of my Head to take any reſt,]
5. Until I find out a place for the Temple of the LORD, an habitation for the mighty God of Jacob.
6. Lo, we heard of the ſame at Ephrata: and found it in the Wood.
7. We will go into his Tabernacle: and fall low on our Knees before his Foot-ſtool.
8. Ariſe, O LORD, into thy reſting-place: thou, and the Ark of thy Strength.
9. Let thy Prieſts be clothed with Righteouſneſs: and let thy Saints ſing with joyfulneſs.
10. For

4. But there is an unconceivable Goodneſs and Equity in thy Nature, which obliges all Men to praiſe and glorifie thee for thy Mercy.
5. For my part I have ſuch a juſt Senſe of his Goodneſs, that I do not expect Deliverance from any thing elſe; I having an Expectation firmly grounded in him, from the Promiſes manifeſted in his holy Word.
6. I put up my Petitions to God very early in the Morning, before the Watch of the City-Walls is relieved.
7. Therefore, O People of Iſrael, I would adviſe you, in conſideration of this wonderful Goodneſs of God, to addreſs yourſelves to him to have Mercy upon you, and to deliver you from this diſmal Captivity, for he alone is able to purchaſe your Redemption.
8. And indeed he ſhall redeem you from all the Guilt of your Sins, and from the Puniſhment of them.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXI.

O Lord, who knoweſt the moſt intimate Thoughts of my Heart, thou canſt tell, That I never entertained any Ambition of attempting the Kingdom of Iſrael.
2. Nay farther, That I do not trouble myſelf with any Matters of Policy, and Intrigues of State, which I own to be above my reach, I not being let into the Springs of publick Tranſactions.
3. But I keep under my Mind, and do not give it a looſe to any ambitious Thoughts; but like a little Child, I am far from all Intrigues, and am as much at the diſpoſal of my Superiors, as ſuch an Infant is at the command of its Mother.
4. And therefore I adviſe all other good Iſraelites, entirely to repoſe their Confidence in God, and chooſe rather to live in a low and depreſſed Condition, than by any unwarrantable Means to endeavour to raiſe their Circumſtances.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXII.

LOrd, I beſeech thee to have regard to the Sufferings of my Father David, which he underwent for the ſake of thee and the true Religion.
2. And particularly to his pious Care in providing a ſettled Place for the Worſhip of God, binding himſelf with an Oath, to do all that was in his Power to bring this about.
3. He declaring that he would not come into the Palace which he had built for himſelf, 1 Chron. 14.

5. Until he had found out a proper Place for the Ark of the Lord to reſt in, and where the more eſpecial Place of his Reſidence ſhould be.
6. We firſt heard of its being at Shilo a Town of the Ephramites; but when we went out to meet it, it was advanced to the woody Country of Kirjajearim.
7. Come let us go with great Humility and Proſtration, to carry the Ark up to the Temple.
8. Be raiſed up with eaſe, O Sacred Ark, the eſpecial Place and Reſidence of the Great God.
9. Let thy Prieſts be as internally Holy, as their outward Garb is Sacred; and let thy choſen People ſing a joyful and acceptable Hymn to thee.

2. For thou ſhalt eat the labours of thine Hands: O well is thee, and happy ſhalt thou be!

3. Thy Wife ſhall be as the fruitful Vine: upon the Walls of thine Houſe.

4. Thy Children like the Olive-Branches: round about thy Table.

5. Lo, thus ſhall the Man be bleſſed: that feareth the LORD.

6. The Lord from out of Sion ſhall ſo bleſs thee: that thou ſhalt ſee Jeruſalem in Proſperity all thy Life long.

BEhold, how good and joyful a thing it is, Brethren to dwell together in Unity.

2. It is like the precious Ointment upon the Head, that ran down unto the Beard: even unto Aarons Beard, and went down to the Skirts of his Clothing.

The CXXXIV PSALM.

Ecce nunc.

¶ ¶ As this Pſalm is aſcribed to no one in the Title, ſo 'tis not to be ſaid by whom it was written. It ſeems to be a Liturgical Pſalm, and uſed in the Service of the Temple, and to be wrote in form of a Dialogue between the High Prieſt, and the other inferior Order of Prieſts and Levites.

High Prieſt. BEhold [now,] praiſe the Lord: all ye Servants of the Lord;

2. Ye that by Night ſtand in the Houſe of the Lord: [even in the Courts of the Houſe of our God.]

3. Lift up your Hands in the Sanctuary: and praiſe the Lord.

Prieſts.

10. And, I beſeech thee, have a regard to my Prayer for thy Servant David's ſake, and thy Promiſe made to him, 2 Chron. 22. 2, &c.

11, 12. Reſpecting the Oath which thou didſt make to David, declaring that there ſhould never be wanting one of his Sons to ſit upon his Throne, 1 Chron. 17. 11. 2 Chron. 6. 10.

13. 'I will always keep up the Royal Dignity in thy Fami-'ly, if thy Poſterity keep themſelves faithful to the true Re-'ligion, and do not relapſe into Idolatry.

14. 'For the Lord has ſuch a Liking to Sion, the Seat of Da-'vid, that he has been pleaſed to take it up for his own Habi-'tation, and to have his Temple built there:

15. 'Declaring that he will take up the Reſting-place for 'his Ark, and will not ſuffer it to be removed, as formerly, 'from one Place to another.

16. 'And the Inhabitants thereof ſhall partake of my pe-'culiar Bleſſing, I affording them plentiful Years, and abun-'dance of Proviſions.

17. 'I will preſerve my Prieſts, who officiate there, from 'all Violence; and my People ſhall have a peaceable Oppor-'tunity of praiſing me.

18. 'Here will I make the Regal Dignity to ſhine in the 'Davidical Line, like a burning Taper, till the Coming of the 'Meſſias.

19. 'All the Traiterous Oppoſers of his Royal Stem, I will 'bring to deſerved ſhame and Puniſhment; but the Crown 'ſhall flouriſh continually in thy Royal Line, notwithſtanding 'all the Attempts of the Adverſaries againſt it.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXIII.

WHat a noble and beautiful Sight it is, to ſee that Men of the ſame Country, and the ſame Religion, ſhould live together with that admirable Concord and Amity, as if all their Bodies were actuated by one Soul?

2. And methinks I cannot compare it better than to Aaron's Unction, with the odoriferous Oil mentioned Exod. 30. 21. which ran from the Hair of his Head, to that of his Beard, and filled the Collar of his Veſture with the ſame fragrant Smell.

3. This is as pleaſant as the Dew which falls upon the Mountains Hermon and Sion, and enlivens the Herbage with its moiſt and fatning Drops:

4. Eſpecially the Dew which falls upon Mount Sion, God's holy Mountain, which he has promiſed to bleſs with an Affluence of all good Things.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXIV.

High Prieſt. O All you the Attendants and Domeſticks of the Great JEHOVAH, do you join your Voices to praiſe your Heavenly Maſter.

2. You that take your Courſes to Watch by Night in the Temple of God, and others that are diſtributed in the outward Courts.

3. Do all of you with great Devotion lift up your Hands towards the Sanctuary, ſinging Praiſes to God.

4. Prieſts.

Prieſts. 4. The Lord that made Heaven and Earth: give thee bleſſing out of Sion.

The CXXXV PSALM.

Laudate Nomen.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm ſeems to be one adapted for common Uſe in the Temple; and to be a general form of Thankſgiving, for God's great Mercies to the Nation of the Jews.

O Praiſe the LORD, laud the Name of the LORD: praiſe it, O ye Servants of the LORD.

2. Ye that ſtand in the Houſe of the LORD: in the Courts of the Houſe of our God.

3. O praiſe the LORD, for the LORD is gracious: O ſing Praiſes unto his Name, for it is lovely.

4. For why? the LORD hath choſen Jacob unto himſelf: and Iſrael for his own poſſeſſion.

5. For I know that the LORD is great: and that our Lord is above all Gods.

6. Whatſoever the LORD pleaſed, that did he in Heaven and in Earth: and in the Sea, and in all deep places.

7. He bringeth forth the Clouds from the ends of the World: and ſendeth forth Lightnings with the Rain, bringing the Winds out of his Treaſures.

8. He ſmote the firſt-born of Egypt: both of Man and Beaſt.

9. He hath ſent Tokens and Wonders into the midſt of thee, O thou Land of of Egypt: upon Pharaoh and all his Servants.

10. He ſmote divers Nations: and ſlew mighty Kings.

11. Sehon King of the Amorites, and Og the King of Baſan: and all the Kingdoms of Canaan;

12. And gave their Land to be an heritage: even an heritage unto Iſrael his People.

13. Thy Name, O LORD, endureth for ever: ſo doth thy Memorial, O Lord, from one Generation to another.

14. For the LORD will avenge his People: and be gracious unto his Servants.

15. As for the Images of the Heathen, they are but Silver and Gold: the work of Mens Hands.

16. They have Mouths, and ſpeak not: Eyes have they, but they ſee not.

17. They

4. Prieſts. May the great God the Maker of Heaven and Earth, whom we have the Honour more eſpecially to ſerve, afford thee, O ſacred High Prieſt, his particular Bleſſing from Mount Sion, his eſpecial Place of Reſidence.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXV.

O Praiſe the Lord all ye his devout Worſhippers, but chiefly you that miniſter about the holy Things in his Temple, do you celebrate his glorious Majeſty.

2. Ye that have your Courſes of waiting in the Temple, and the outward Courts thereof.

3. O ſing Praiſes to God for his Goodneſs and Bounty, extended ſo largely to all his Creatures; O ſing Praiſes unto him, for there is ſuch a Pleaſure in that Duty, as carries its Reward in the Satisfaction which attends the Performance of it.

4. But I excite, more particularly, you of the Seed of Jacob, to praiſe God, becauſe of his extraordinary Love to you above the reſt of the World, by his particular Care and Providence over you, making you his Inheritance or Eſtate, choſen from the reſt of Mankind.

5. We all of us are ſufficiently ſatisfied, that the God whom we worſhip, is the Great God, Creator of the Univerſe, and infinitely ſuperior to the little Deities which other Nations worſhip.

6. Whatſoever God's Divine Pleaſure was to do, that did he in all Parts of the Univerſe, making the Heaven and Earth, the Sea, and the low Caverns of the World, obedient to his Will and Power; as is manifeſt, not only by his ſeveral Miracles wrought by him in divers Ages, for the ſake of his People, but by the ordinary Courſe of his Providence.

7. He raiſes his Clouds from the vaſt Ocean which encompaſſes the inhabitable World, and ſpreads them over our Heads to cool the Air, and to let down the Rain upon the Ground: 'Tis he who throws out the Lightning and Thunder, which is attended with the haſty Showers of Rain; 'tis he who keeps the Winds up, as it were in a Store-houſe, and lets out what Wind he pleaſes to blow upon us.

8. He brought great Deſolation upon the Egyptians, deſtroying the eldeſt Son in every Family, and the firſt-born of the Beaſt in every Field, Exod. 12. 29.

9. He ſent the other Plagues, by which the Egyptian King and all his Servants were terribly infeſted, Exod. 7. 8, &c.

10. And after he had delivered his People from the Egyptian Bondage, he over-threw ſeveral great Nations and powerful Kings, to make way for their Settlement:

11. Sehon the great and powerful King of the Ammonites, Numb. 21. 14 as likewiſe Og, that Gigantick King of Baſan, Numb. 21. 33. rooting out for their ſake the reſt of the Kingdoms of Canaan, Joſ. 12. 7.

12. And was pleaſed bountifully to beſtow their Land to be poſſeſſed by us Iſraelites.

13. O how glorious is thy Name, O God, for thy doing ſo many ſtupendous Works! how laſting will the Monuments of thy Fame be!

14. And we doubt not but all Indignities and Injuries, which at preſent are offer'd to us his Servants, will be avenged by him; and that he will provide them of all good Things, which are neceſſary for them.

15. But as for the Gods which the Heathens worſhip, they are made of Silver or Gold, or ſome other Senſeleſs Metal, formed by the Hands of ſome mean Mechanick.

16. They have Mouths but can't ſpeak a Word, and Eyes which can't ſee a Jot.

17. They

17. They have Ears, and yet they hear not: neither is there any Breath in their Mouths.

18. They that make them are like unto them: and ſo are all they that put their truſt in them.

19. Praiſe the LORD, ye Houſe of Iſrael: praiſe the Lord, ye Houſe of Aaron.

20. Praiſe the LORD, ye Houſe of Levi: ye that fear the Lord, praiſe the LORD.

21. Praiſed be the LORD out of Sion: who dwelleth at Jeruſalem. Hallelujah.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CXXXVI PSALM.

Confitemini.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm is a publick Form of Thankſgiving, for the magnifying God's Mercies to the Nation of the Jews: And was an ancient Part of their publick Worſhip in the Temple. The Intercalary Verſe, which is often repeated, is not only a Cuſtom among the Ethnick Poets; but ſhews a great degree of Earneſtneſs in the Devotion, and is very proper in Liturgical Forms; and which moreover in ſeveral particulars is very well imitated by our Church.

O Give Thanks unto the LORD, for he is gracious: and his mercy endureth for ever.

2. O give Thanks unto the God of all Gods: for his mercy endureth for ever.

3. O thank the Lord of all Lords: for his mercy endureth for ever.

4. Who only doeth great wonders: for his mercy endureth for ever.

5. Who by his excellent Wiſdom made the Heavens: for his mercy endureth for ever.

6. Who laid out the Earth above the Waters: for his mercy endureth for ever.

7. Who hath made great Lights: for his mercy endureth for ever.

8. The Sun to rule the Day: for his mercy endureth for ever.

9. The Moon and the Stars to govern the Night: for his mercy endureth for ever.

10. Who ſmote Egypt with their firſt-born: for his mercy endureth for ever;

11. And brought out Iſrael from among them: for his mercy endureth for ever;

12. With a mighty Hand and ſtretched-out Arm: for his mercy endureth for ever:

13. Who divided the Red Sea {into / in two} parts: for his mercy endureth for ever.

14. And made Iſrael to go through the midſt of it: for his mercy endureth for ever.

15. But

17. They have Ears which can hear no Sound, and they have no Breath in their Noſtrils.

18. Thoſe that make them and thoſe that worſhip them, are equally as Stupid and Senſeleſs as the Images themſelves.

19. But ſince, O Iſrael, ye have the Happineſs of worſhipping the true God, ſing Praiſes with unfeigned Devotion to him; and you, O ſacred Prieſts of the Lineage of Aaron, do you join in the ſame Duty.

20. And, O ye Levites, who being next in Dignity, and have the Honour to attend in your Services on the Great God, be not you leſs forward in this Duty: You Proſelytes likewiſe, be ready to pay him the ſame Honour.

21. Therefore let us all with conjunct Praiſes, celebrate our glorious God in his holy Temple at Mount Sion, and in the City of Jeruſalem, where he has appointed to have his Worſhip paid him.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXVI.

O Offer your Praiſes to the Great JEHOVAH, for the Goodneſs of his Nature, and the Diffuſiveneſs of his Beneficence; For he is a God, whoſe Goodneſs has no end.

2. O offer your Praiſes to him, who is infinitely above all Heathen Deities; For he is a God, whoſe Goodneſs has no end.

3. O offer your Praiſes to him, who is King and Ruler of all the Potentates upon Earth; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

4. This is the God, who is ſo Remarkable for the miraculous Works which he hath wrought for his People, throughout the Series of ſo many Ages; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

5. It was his conſummate Wiſdom which made the Heavenly Bodies, and order'd them to move in their conſtant Viciſſitudes and equable Motions; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

6. He made the Earth to ſtand out above the Waters, and to let the dry Ground appear; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end,

7. It was his omnipotent Power that created the two great Luminaries of Heaven; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

8. It was he that made the Sun for the Government of the Day, for the guiding of our Steps, and for the ripening of Fruits; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

9. It was he that made the Moon and the Stars, for giving Light in the abſence of the Sun, and to ſupply his Place when under the Horizon; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

10. It was he that ſtruck with a mortal Diſeaſe, all the Firſt-born of Egypt, leaving in every Houſe a dead Corpſe, Exod. 12. 29. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

11. It was he that brought them out of the Bondage, where they were ſo tyrannically uſed, Exod. 12. 41. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

12. And this he did by an irreſiſtible Power, and unheard-of Wonders, Exod. chap. 6, 7, 8. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

13, 14. It was he that made the Red-Sea to retire on each ſide, and to leave a way for our Fore-fathers to paſs, Exod. 14. 10. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

15. It

15. But as for Pharaoh and his Hoſt, he over-threw them in the Red Sea: for his mercy endureth for ever.

16. Who led his People through the Wilderneſs: for his mercy endureth for ever.

17. Who ſmote great Kings: for his mercy endureth for ever.

18. Yea, and ſlew mighty Kings: for his mercy endureth for ever.

19. Sehon King of the Amorites: for his mercy endureth for ever.

20. And Og the King of Baſan: for his mercy endureth for ever.

21. And gave away their Land for an heritage: for his mercy endureth for ever;

22. Even for an heritage unto Iſrael his Servant: for his mercy endureth for ever.

23. Who remembred us when we were in Trouble: for his mercy endureth for ever.

24. And hath delivered us from our Enemies: for his mercy endureth for ever.

25. Who giveth Food to all Fleſh: for his mercy endureth for ever.

26. O give Thanks unto the God of Heaven: for his mercy endureth for ever.

27. [O give thanks unto the Lord of Lords: for his mercy endureth for ever.]

The CXXXVII PSALM.

Super flumina.

¶¶ This Pſalm was written during the Captivity, or ſoon after the Return. It is a mournful Complaint of the miſery of that State, and the inſulting Uſage which was given them by their Aſſyrian Maſters. The Poetry is inimitably fine, and comes up to the beſt Rules, which the Greek and Latin Criticks have laid down.

BY the Waters of Babylon we ſat down and wept: when we remembred [thee, O] Sion.

2. As for our Harps, we hanged them up: upon the Trees that are therein.

3. For they that led us away Captive, required of us then a Song and Melody in our heavineſs: Sing us one of the Songs of Sion.

4. How ſhall we ſing the Lords Song: in a ſtrange Land?

5. If I forget thee, O Jeruſalem: let my right Hand forget her cunning.

6. If I do not remember thee, let my Tongue cleave to the roof of my Mouth: yea, if I prefer not Jeruſalem in my Mirth.

7. Remember the Children of Edom, O LORD, in the Day of Jeruſalem: how they ſaid, Down with it, down with it, even to the Ground.

8. O

15 It was he that made the Waters again to return over the Heads of Pharaoh and his Army, and drowned them in their Purſuit of the Iſraelites; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

16. It was he that conducted the Iſraelites, thro' all the blind Paths of the uninhabited Wilderneſs, by a Cloud by Day, and a Fire by Night, Exod. chap. 16. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

17. He for our ſakes brought down the Power of great Princes; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

18. And ſlew Kings of mighty Power and Strength; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

19. As for inſtance, Sihon, King of the Amorites, Numb. 21. 24. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

20. And Og the Tyrant of Baſan, a huge gygantick Man, Deut. 3. 11. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

21. Giving us their Countries to be held of him, for a perpetual Inheritance; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

22. To be an Inheritance to the Children of Iſrael, his only true and faithful Worſhippers; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

23. Who, when we were infeſted by our neighbour-Nations, didſt deliver us from their Power, Judges chap. 2, 3, 4. For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

24. Redeeming us from our other Enemies, who afterwards enſlaved us; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

25. Whoſe Goodneſs is not limited to our Nation in particular, but provideth amply all good Things for the reſt of Mankind, and even the whole Creation; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

26. Therefore I beſeech you all the Inhabitants of the World, to join in offering up your Praiſes to him the great God of Heaven; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

27. O offer up your Praiſes unto him, who is the King and Ruler of all Potentates; For he is a God, whoſe goodneſs has no end.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXVII.

WHen we were in our diſconſolate Condition, ſitting down melancholily on the Banks of the Tigris and Euphrates; thinking upon the Happineſs we had loſt, when we could praiſe God in his Temple on Mount Sion.

2. We not thinking it a proper time for Melody, we hung our Harps uſeleſs by us, upon the Trees on the ſide of the River.

3. But our inſulting Conquerors came pertly up to us, and bid us ſing and play, tho' our Hearts were ready to break for Grief; Come, ſay they, you Jews, that are famous for Muſick, ſing us one of your Temple-Songs, which you were uſed to ſing in your Proceſſions to Mount Sion.

4. Alas! ſaw we, how can we ſing one of our Feſtival Songs, which are Sacred to God, not only in ſuch a time of publick Mourning, but among a Nation of Idolaters who deſpiſe his Worſhip?

5. Time is apt to wear off Grief, but ours ſinks too deep into our Souls to be obliterated; for if ever we forget the loſs of our City and Temple, and all the Advantages we are deprived of thereby, let our Hands be never able to ſtrike a tuneful Note on our Harps again.

6. If ever we ſhould diveſt our Minds of the happy Opportunities, we had of worſhipping God there, let my Throat be ſo hoarſe, as never to be able to ſing again in Tune; nay, if all my Joy and Satisfaction be not to think on our once Famous City, and to wiſh for her Rebuilding.

7. And when that happy time comes, God will take Vengeance upon our Enemies the Edomites, who aſſiſted the Babylonians in their Sacking our City, and encouraged their Cruelty; but time ſhall come, when they ſhall pay dear for this Malice, Jer. 49. 8.

8. O Daughter of Babylon, waſted with Miſery: yea happy ſhall he be that rewardeth thee as thou haſt ſerved us.

9. Bleſſed ſhall he be, that taketh thy Children: and throweth them againſt the Stones.

The CXXXVIII PSALM.

Confitebor tibi.

¶¶ This is Intituled, A Pſalm of David, but the Septuagint-Tranſlation ſays, That it was made uſe of by Hagai and Zachary, at the Rebuilding the Temple. It is a pious Thankſgiving to God for Mercies received.

I Will give thanks unto thee, [O Lord,] with my whole Heart: even before the Gods will I ſing Praiſe unto thee.

2. I will worſhip toward thy Holy Temple, and praiſe thy Name, becauſe of thy loving Kindneſs and Truth: for thou haſt magnified thy Name, and thy Word above all things.

3. When I called upon thee, thou heardeſt me: and enduedſt my Soul with much Strength.

4. All the Kings of the Earth ſhall praiſe thee, O LORD: for they have heard the Words of thy Mouth.

5. Yea, they ſhall ſing in the ways of the LORD: that great is the glory of the LORD.

6. For though the LORD be high, yet hath he reſpect unto the lowly: as for the Proud, he beholdeth them afar off.

7. Though I walk in the midſt of Trouble, yet ſhall thou refreſh me: thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thy Hand upon the furiouſneſs of mine Enemies, and thy right Hand ſhall ſave me.

8. The LORD ſhall make good his loving Kindneſs toward me: yea, thy Mercy, O LORD, endureth for ever; deſpiſe not then the Works of thine own Hands.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CXXXIX PSALM.

Domine, probâſti.

¶¶ This Pſalm being compoſed by David, is an excellent Hymn upon God's great Attributes, his Omnipreſence and his Omniſcience. To theſe David appeals, for an Approbation of his Integrity and the Honeſty of his Intention. It is probable, it was written during Saul's Reign, when he was traduc'd for having ill Deſigns againſt that Prince.

O LORD, thou haſt ſearched me out, and known me: thou knoweſt my down-ſitting, and mine up-riſing, thou underſtandeſt my Thoughts long before.

2. Thou

8. And thou, O Babylon, who haſt thus tyrannically treated us, thou ſhalt be reduced to a more miſerable Condition, than thou haſt laid us in, Iſa. 13. 19.

9. And that Man ſhall be eſteemed to do a juſtifiable Act, that daſhes out the Brains of thy Children, Iſa. 13. 16. for putting an end to ſuch a cruel Generation as you are.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXVIII.

I Will return my bounden Thanks to thee, O God, for all thy great Favours conferred upon me, with all the Heartineſs and Fervency which poſſibly I can; I will praiſe thee publickly in the Congregation, in the Preſence of thy holy Angels which attend there.

2. I will, in the moſt humble manner, pay my worſhip towards thy Tabernacle, the Place of thy Preſence, praiſing thy Almighty Goodneſs for making good thy Promiſe to me of the Kingdom, 1 Sam. 16. 13.

3. During the time of my Perſecution under Saul's Reign, whenever I put up my Prayer to thee for Relief, thou waſt graciouſly pleaſed to hear me, and enable me with Patience, to go thro' my Suffering with Chearfulneſs.

4. All our neighbouring-Kings, when they hear of the ſtrange Deliverances which thou, by thy miraculous Power, haſt procured me, ſhall magnifie the Power and Goodneſs of ſo great a God.

5. They ſhall make the Subject of their Song, the wonderful Methods which thy Providence has taken, in bringing me to the Crown of Iſrael.

6. Tho' the Lord be conſtituted in the moſt exalted degree of Glory and Happineſs, yet he is pleaſed to condeſcend to take care of any of the pooreſt of his Creatures; and his Hand can reach the higheſt and greateſt Prince in the World, and chaſtiſe him for his Oppreſſion ſhewn unto any of his pious Servants.

7. And, if I ſhould ever happen to fall into the like Trouble again, thy Goodneſs will again, I am confident, afford me the like Support; and I am ſure thou wilt reſtrain the Fury of my Enemies, from doing me any ſubſtantial Miſchief, and wilt preſerve me from their Contrivances againſt me.

8. And I doubt not but that God will make good all that is wanting, towards the Completion of his Promiſe to me, and that he will ſettle all the preſent Commotions in the Kingdom: For thy Goodneſs has no Extent or Bounds; therefore I beſeech thee, O Lord, do not forſake me, who am the Creature of thy Hands, who haſt raiſed me to the Regal Dignity which I did not in the leaſt expect or aſpire to.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXXXIX.

O Lord, thy All-ſeeing Eye doth look into every Secret of my Heart, thou knoweſt not only my outward Actions, and all the Thoughts of my Mind, but thou knoweſt what my Reſolutions will be, before I have determined them.

2. Where-

2. Thou art about my Path, and about my Bed: and ſpieſt out all my ways.
3. For, lo there is not a Word in my Tongue: but thou, O LORD, knoweſt it altogether.
4. Thou haſt faſhioned me behind and before: and laid thine Hand upon me.
5. Such knowledge is too wonderful and excellent for me: I cannot attain to it.
6. Whither ſhall I go then from thy Spirit: or whither ſhall I go then from thy Preſence?
7. If I climb up into Heaven, thou art there: if I go down to Hell, thou art there alſo.
8. If I take the Wings of the Morning: and remain in the uttermoſt parts of the Sea;
9. Even there alſo ſhall thy Hand lead me: and thy right Hand ſhall hold me:
10. If I ſay, Peradventure the darkneſs ſhall cover me: then ſhall my Night be turned to Day.
11. Yea, the darkneſs is no darkneſs with thee, but the Night is as clear as the Day: the darkneſs and light to thee are both alike.
12. For my Reins are thine: thou haſt covered me in my Mothers Womb.
13. I will give thanks unto thee, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made: marvellous are thy Works, and that my Soul knoweth right well.
14. My Bones are not hid from thee: though I be made ſecretly, and faſhioned beneath in the Earth.
15. Thine Eyes did ſee my ſubſtance, yet being unperfect: and in thy Book were all my Members written;
16. Which Day by Day are faſhioned: when as yet there was none of them.
17. How dear are thy Counſels unto me, O God: O how great is the Sum of them!
18. If I tell them they are moe in number than the Sand: when I wake up, I am preſent with thee.
19. Wilt thou not ſlay the Wicked, O God: depart from me ye Blood-thirſty Men.
20. For they ſpeak Unrighteouſly againſt thee: and thine Enemies take thy Name in vain.

21. Do

2. Whereſoever I walk, thou art preſent to me, and whenever I lie down, thou art by me; and thou art conſcious to all the private Ends I am driving at.
3. Whatever I am to ſpeak thou knoweſt, not only before I utter it, but before I think of it.
4. Every part of me is formed by thy excellent Skill and Wiſdom, thy Hand faſhioning me into the Shape which I appear in.
5. O how wonderful and adorable is this thy infinite Knowledge! it perfectly overwhelms my Mind to reflect upon it.
6. To what place of the Univerſe ſhould I retire, if I had a mind to avoid thy Preſence?
7. If I ſhould mount up to the higheſt Heaven, there I ſhould run upon the bright Throne of thy Preſence: If I ſhould run into the loweſt Vaults of the Earth, thy Omnipreſence would reach me there alſo.
8. If I ſhould borrow the Swiftneſs of the Sun, and ſhould run thro' the whole Heavens in a few hours, even from the Eaſtern to the Weſtern-Sea,
9. I ſhould not remove farther from thee, but muſt be beholding to thy Providence to ſupport me.
10. If I ſhould be ſo fooliſh as to think, that I might do any Action in the dark, ſo as to be hid from thee, I ſhould quickly learn that thy Eye can ſee into the blackeſt Shades, as eaſily as at Noon-day.
11. For there can be no ſuch thing as Darkneſs with thee, who thyſelf art the inexhauſtible Fountain of Light, thou finding no Changes by the Viciſſitudes of Day and Night.
12. For why ſhould I think, that I ſhould be ever hid from thee, ſince all my inward Parts and Vitals are of thy compoſing; for thou didſt, as it were, ſit upon me, and hatch me, when I was in my Mothers Womb?
13. And if I turn my Eyes upon my own Make, I cannot but own the Formation of my Members to be an admirable and ſtupendous Contrivance.
14. None of my inward Parts, which have remained undiſcovered to any mortal Eye, were hid to thee; when thou ſecretly formedſt me into Shape, when I lay as it were under ground in my Mother's Womb.
15. I was intimately known to thee, when I was but an Embryo, and my Body was not yet come to Shape and Perfection; thou didſt keep as it were a Regiſter of all the various Parts of my Body, and didſt note them down, and draw out the Model thereof in thy Table-Book, before they were formed.
16. Which afterwards advanced gradually into Shape, from a Maſs of Fleſh, which at firſt ſeemed nothing like an Human Body.
17. O how admirable are the Deſigns of thy Providence! and how infinitely various!
18. To go about to number them, were as fruitleſs a Work, as to tell the Sands upon the Sea-ſhore; I am tired and fall aſleep, when I go to reckon them, and when I awake again I find the Task as difficult.
19. However this Leſſon I can learn from thy Providence, that thou wilt not ſuffer wicked Men to go on long in their daring Impieties, but wilt in thy good time bring them to condign Puniſhment; but whether or no God takes ſpeedy Vengeance upon them, this I am reſolved, to have no Converſation with bloody-minded Men.
20. For theſe Men make it their Buſineſs, blaſphemouſly to talk againſt thee, and the Diſpenſations of thy Providence, ſwearing falſly by thy Name, to advance themſelves, and to injure others.

21. There-

21. Do not I hate them, O LORD, that hate thee: and am not I grieved with thoſe that riſe up againſt thee?

22. Yea, I hate them right Sore: even as though they were mine Enemies.

23. Try me, O God, and ſeek the ground of my Heart: prove me, and examine my Thoughts.

24. Look well if there be any way of Wickedneſs in me: and lead me in the way everlaſting.

The CXL PSALM.

Eripe me, Domine.

¶¶ This Pſalm was compoſed by David in his Troubles during Saul's Reign. The particular occaſion ſeems to be the Information of the Ziphites againſt him, 1 Sam. 23. 20.

DEliver me, O LORD, from the evil Man: and preſerve me from the wicked Man.

2. Who imagine miſchief in their Hearts: and ſtir up Strife all the Day long.

3. They have ſharpned their Tongues like a Serpent: Adders Poiſon is under their Lips.

4. Keep me, O LORD, from the Hands of the Ungodly: preſerve me from the wicked Men, who are purpoſed to overthrow my goings.

5. The Proud have laid a Snare for me, and ſpread a Net abroad with Cords: yea, and ſet Traps in my way.

6. I ſaid unto the LORD, Thou art my God: hear the Voice of my Prayers, O LORD.

7. O Lord GOD, thou ſtrength of my Health: thou haſt covered my Head in the Day of Battel.

8. Let not the Ungodly have his deſire, O LORD: let not his miſchievous Imagination proſper, leſt they be too Proud.

9. Let the miſchief of their own Lips fall upon the Head of them: that compaſs me about.

10. Let not burning Coals fall upon them: let them be caſt into the Fire, and into the Pit, that they never riſe up again.

11. A Man full of Words ſhall not proſper upon the Earth: evil ſhall hunt the wicked Perſon to overthrow him.

12. Sure I am that the LORD will avenge the Poor: and maintain the Cauſe of the Helpleſs.

13. The Righteous alſo ſhall give Thanks unto thy Name: and the Juſt ſhall continue in thy ſight.

The

21. Therefore I have an utter Averſion to them becauſe they offer ſuch deſpight to thee and thy Worſhip; being highly concern'd to ſee them ſo notoriouſly to violate thy Commands.

22. Nay, I hate them for their Wickedneſs committed againſt thee, more than for any Injuries offered to me.

23. But, O Lord, I beſeech thee, ſtrictly to look into the Receſſes of my Heart, and turn over every Thought of mine.

24. And then impartially to paſs a Judgment upon me, if there be any of thoſe ill Deſigns harboured within me, which my Adverſaries lay to my Charge; and if there be not, I beſeech thee to afford me thy Grace, that I may perſevere in a courſe of Piety, that I may at laſt obtain everlaſting Happineſs.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXL.

O Lord, I beſeech thee to defend me from the wicked Contrivances which my Enemies are forming againſt me.

2. Who lay all their Thoughts together to work my Ruin, and to bring me into publick Hatred and Contempt.

3. No Serpent's Tongue conveys more Venom, than the Tongues of theſe wicked Calumniators.

4. I beſeech thee to protect me from the inſidious Practices of theſe falſe Men, who by all the malicious Arts which their Fury can ſuggeſt, are endeavouring to work my Ruin.

5. No Hunter or Fowler does with more cunning ſpread his Nets, and lay his Traps, than theſe my Enemies ſet themſelves to invent deceitful Methods to deſtroy me.

6. But tho' I, of myſelf, am not able to defeat their crafty Projects, yet thou, my God, I truſt, wilt ſecure me from them; and therefore I beſeech thee to hear my Prayers, which I put up to thee, on this behalf.

7. I depend entirely upon thy Almighty Power and Goodneſs for my Deliverance; and I am the more encouraged to do ſo, becauſe thou haſt formerly defended me being in extreme Danger, when I fought with that mighty Champion Goliab, 1 Sam. 17. 39.

8. But I beſeech thee not to ſuffer my outrageous Enemies to work their Will upon me in my Deſtruction, if for no other reaſon, that they may not be encouraged to tyrannize over other innocent Perſons, with the like Cruelty.

9. But rather let thoſe evil Contrivances which they have advanced againſt me fall back upon themſelves, and that they may be involved in the ſame Ruin which they deſigned to bring upon me.

10. The dreadful Judgment of Sodom ſhall befal them, burning Coals raining down on their Heads; and they ſhall be thrown down into a Pit in the Ground, from whence they ſhall not be able to riſe up.

11. Men that are full of ſuch falſe and deceitful Words, as theſe wicked Informers are, ſhall never thrive by their fraudulent Arts; their own Wickedneſs ſhall purſue and overtake them, as a Hound does his Prey.

12. But this I will rely on as an undoubted Maxim, that God will, in his good time, vindicate the Cauſe of innocent Perſons, who have not outward Help to ſupport them.

13. And it is likewiſe as certain a Truth, that there will be a time, when good Men ſhall pay their Thanks to God for his delivering them out of their Trouble; and in which all pious Perſons ſhall manifeſtly appear to be under the particular Care of God's Providence.

The CXLI. PSALM.

Domine, clamavi.

¶¶ This Pſalm was likewiſe written by David, in his Troubles during Saul's Reign. He does in particular beg of God's Grace, that he might not by any intemperate or imprudent Word give his Adverſaries advantage againſt him.

LORD, I call upon thee, haſte thee unto me: and conſider my Voice, when I cry unto thee.

2. Let my Prayer be ſet forth in thy ſight as the Incenſe: and let the lifting up of my Hands be an Evening Sacrifice.

3. Set a Watch, O LORD, before my Mouth, and keep the door of my Lips.

4. O let not mine Heart be inclined to any evil thing: let me not be occupied in Ungodly Works, with the Men that work Wickedneſs, leſt I eat of ſuch things as pleaſe them.

5. Let the Righteous rather ſmite me friendly: and reprove me.

6. But let not their precious Balms break my Head: yea, I will pray yet againſt their Wickedneſs.

7. Let their Judges be over-thrown in ſtony Places: that they may hear my Words, for they are ſweet.

8. Our Bones lie ſcattered before the Pit: like as when one breaketh and heweth Wood upon the Earth.

9. But mine Eyes look unto thee, O Lord GOD: in thee is my Truſt, O caſt not out my Soul.

10. Keep me from the Snare that they have laid for me: and from the Traps of the wicked Doers.

11. Let the Ungodly fall into their own Nets together: and let me ever eſcape them.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CXLII. PSALM.

Voce mea ad Dominum.

¶¶ This Pſalm is entituled, A Maſchil of David, a Prayer when he was in the Cave. For by the information of the Keilites againſt him, Saul came to purſue him in the Wilderneſs of Engedi, and being hid in a Cave there, Saul came accidentally thither when David cut off the Skirt of his Garment, 1 Sam. cap. 24.

I Cried unto the LORD, with my Voice: yea, even unto the LORD, did I make my ſupplication.

2. I poured out my Complaints before him: and ſhewed him of my trouble.

3. When my Spirit was in heavineſs, thou kneweſt my Path: in the way wherein I walked have they privily laid a Snare for me.

4. I

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXLI.

O Lord, my preſent Danger is very great, I beſeech thee therefore to quicken thy Paces to come to my Aſſiſtance, and vouchſafe to hear my Petition, which I never put up to thee with greater earneſtneſs.

2. Altho' I am pent up in a barren Wilderneſs, where I have no opportunity of joyning in the publick Worſhip; yet I beſeech thee, let my Prayers be acceptable to thee, as the Fumes which ariſe from the Sacrifices at Jeruſalem.

3. I beg of thee, that thou wouldſt afford me Grace and Prudence, ſo to govern my Diſcourſe, that no intemperate Word may drop from me, that my Adverſaries may take advantage of.

4. O let me not be tempted to do any unlawful Action for my Security, nor follow the Example of my wicked Enemies, who never ſtick at ſuch Methods; leſt I be enſnared by their Proſperity, to fall off from the Obſervation of thy Commandments.

5. But rather let me enjoy the Converſation of good Men and true Friends, that will rebuke me for my Miſcarriages and Failures which they obſerve in me.

6. For theſe Fraternal Correptions ſhall not break my Head, but ſhall be like a precious Unguent poured upon it, which will rather heal a Wound which was there before; and as for the wicked deſigns of my Adverſaries, all the Oppoſition, which I ſhall make againſt them, ſhall be my Prayers.

7. As for the unjuſt Judges who have condemned me without being heard, they ſhall be thrown down headlong from a Rock, as they have deſerved; and in ſpite of them, my words which are full of Duty to the King, and courteouſneſs to all others, ſhall be heard.

8. But, alas, our Friends at preſent are unmercifully deſtroyed, and our Bones lye ſcattered about, as Chips round a Tree that is cutting down.

9. But, O Lord, my ſole Expectation is in thee for Deliverance; O do not any longer expoſe the Life of thy Servant, to ſo great a Peril.

10. But I beſeech thee, of thy Goodneſs, to preſerve me from thoſe Ambuſhes, and treacherous Deſigns, which they have laid againſt me.

11. Let theſe wicked Men fall themſelves into the Net which they have, with ſo much Craftineſs, ſpread to take me; and let me eſcape this, and all the other inſidious Deſigns, which they ſhall hereafter advance againſt me.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXLII.

I Cry unto my God, with all the vehemence and earneſtneſs that I am able; I put up humble Suit to the Great JEHOVAH; Oh, that he would be pleaſed to afford a favourable anſwer to it!

2. I pour out my bitter Complaints, in my Prayer to him, and lay all my Wants before him.

3. Thou art ſenſible, how my mind is overcharged with an intolerable degree of Grief; what bye and loneſome ways I am forced to take for my Security; and what inſidious Arts my Enemies do continually make uſe of for my Deſtruction.

4. I looked alſo upon my right Hand: and ſaw there was no Man that would know me.

5. I had no place to flee unto: and no Man cared for my Soul.

6. I cried unto thee, O LORD, and ſaid: Thou art my hope and my portion in the Land of the Living.

7. Conſider my Complaint: for I am brought very low.

8. O deliver me from my Perſecutors: for they are too ſtrong for me.

9. Bring my Soul out of Priſon, that I may give thanks unto thy Name: which thing if thou wilt grant me, then ſhall the righteous reſort unto my Company.

The CXLIII. PSALM.

Domine, exaudi.

¶ ¶ This is entituled, A Pſalm of David, and is thought to be compoſed by him, during the Rebellion of his Son Abſalom, and ſo it was inſcribed in ſome old Greek Copies.

HEar my Prayer, O LORD, and conſider my deſire: hearken unto me for thy Truth and Righteouſneſs ſake.

2. And enter not into Judgment with thy Servant: for in thy ſight ſhall no Man living be juſtified.

3. For the Enemy hath perſecuted my Soul, he hath ſmitten my Life down to the Ground: he hath laid me in the darkneſs, as the Men that have been long dead.

4. Therefore is my Spirit vexed within me: and my Heart within me is deſolate.

5. Yet do I remember the time paſt, I muſe upon all thy Works: yea, I exerciſe my ſelf in the works of thy Hands.

6. I ſtretch forth my Hands unto thee: my Soul gaſpeth unto thee as a thirſty Land.

7. Hear me, O LORD, and that ſoon, for my Spirit waxeth faint: hide not thy Face from me, leſt I be like unto them that go down into the Pit.

8. O let me hear thy loving kindneſs betimes in the Morning, for in thee is my truſt: ſhew thou me the way that I ſhould walk in, for I lift up my Soul unto thee.

9. Deliver me, O LORD, from mine Enemies: for I flee unto thee to hide me.

10. Teach me to do the thing that pleaſeth thee, for thou art my God: let thy loving Spirit lead me forth into the Land of Righteouſneſs.

11. Quicken me, O LORD, for thy Names ſake: and for thy Righteouſneſs ſake bring my Soul out of trouble.

12. And

4. I turn about to look for my Companions, who uſed to be on my right Hand to attend me; but I find every one is ſhy of my Company, and if I direct my Diſcourſe to any, they pretend not to know me.

5. I have no place of ſuccour to fly to, every Village and Town being ſtrictly watched by Saul's Troops; and no Friend will venture to harbour me in his Houſe, to ſave my Life with the danger of his own.

6. Therefore to thee alone, O my God, I make my Application for Relief; for thou art the only hope which I have to depend upon in the World.

7. O I beſeech thee hear my Prayer, for I am brought now to the very extremity of Danger, which thy Almighty Hand alone can reſcue me from.

8. O free me from the irreſiſtible Power of my enraged Adverſaries, who are too mighty for me to conteſt with; and unleſs thou doſt interpoſe thy Power, they will utterly deſtroy me.

9. And laſtly, I beſeech thee to free me from my exiled State, and this dark Cave which I am confin'd to; and give me an opportunity of publiſhing my Thanks for ſo great a Favour, in the publick Congregation: and then I ſhall have the company likewiſe of other pious Men, who will join with me in praiſing God, for his maintaining the Cauſe of an innocent Perſon.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXLIII.

O Lord, I beſeech thee to grant my earneſt Prayer, which I offer'd to thee, in this my extraordinary difficultie; and to make good thy gracious Promiſe, which thou haſt formerly made to me, of your ſaving me from any extreme Danger.

2. I beſeech thee, do not thou deal with me according to the ſtrictneſs of a ſevere Judge, for the Sins which I have committed, which I own have brought this trouble upon me; for if thou ſhouldeſt ſcan every Man's Actions after that rate, the moſt innocent Man in the World could not eſcape Condemnation.

3. My Enemy, who is the more grievous to me, becauſe he is my own Fleſh and Blood, has endeavoured to take away my Life, tho' he has received his own from me, and has almoſt actually brought me to the Grave: He has forced me to hide in Holes and Caverns, as a Man that is buried.

4. For this reaſon, I am under the greateſt depreſſion of Spirits, and my Heart has no comfort remaining.

5. But yet, for all this, I remember what great deliverances, thou was wont to procure me in my younger Days; thinking upon thoſe miraculous Operations of thy Providence, which thou didſt uſually interpoſe on my behalf.

6. I conſtantly ſtretch out my Hands to thee in my Prayer for thy help: a Field, parched by the Sun's ſcorching-Heat, does not more eagerly gaſp after the Rain, than my Soul panteth after thee.

7. O hearken to my Petition with all poſſible ſpeed, my exigencies requiring a quick remedy, for I am in a very languiſhing condition; and if thou ſhouldeſt add to my Troubles, by thy withdrawing thy Favour from me, I am a perfect dead Man.

8. Do not thou ſtay till late at Night, before thou doſt afford me thy Protection, but deliver me early in the Morning, and with all the ſpeed that is poſſible, for I entirely truſt in thee for Succour: Be thou my director to guide me, in the courſe which thou wouldſt have me to take for my Preſervation.

9. O free me from the prevailing Power of my Enemies, for I have no one to fly to, for to ſuccour me, but only thee.

10. But above all, I beg that thy gracious goodneſs would be pleaſed to direct me in the courſe of a godly and pious Life, and that by the motions of thy holy Spirit, I may fit and prepare myſelf for a better World.

11. I beſeech thee for the honour of thy great Name, to refreſh and revive me, after this long ſeries of Trouble, and ſet me free from theſe impendent dangers, according to thy faithful Promiſes made unto me.

12. And

12. And of thy goodneſs ſlay mine Enemies: and deſtroy all them that vex my Soul, for I am thy Servant.

MORNING PRAYER.

The CXLIV. PSALM.

Benedictus Dominus.

¶¶ This is Intituled, A Pſalm of David, in the Hebrew; in the Greek and vulgar Latin 'tis added, againſt Goliah. But if the Pſalm had any relation to that Affair, it was certainly compoſed after David's coming to the Kingdom, from Verſe the 2*d; and it ſeems to refer to ſome of his Victories over the Philiſtines at the beginning of his Reign.*

BLeſſed be the LORD my ſtrength: who teacheth my Hands to War, and my Fingers to Fight;

2. My Hope and my Fortreſs, my Caſtle and Deliverer, my Defender, in whom I truſt: who ſubdueth my People that is under me.

3. Lord, what is Man, that thou haſt ſuch reſpect unto him: or the Son of Man, that thou ſo regardeſt him?

4. Man is like a thing of nought: his time paſſeth away like a ſhadow.

5. Bow thy Heavens, O LORD, and come down: touch the Mountains, and they ſhall ſmoke.

6. Caſt forth thy Lightning, and tear them: ſhoot out thine Arrows, and conſume them.

7. Send down thine Hand from above: deliver me, and take me out of the great Waters, from the hand of ſtrange Children;

8. Whoſe Mouth talketh of Vanity: and their right Hand is a right Hand of Wickedneſs.

9. I will ſing a new Song unto thee, O God: and ſing praiſes unto thee upon a ten ſtringed Lute.

10. Thou haſt given Victory unto Kings: and haſt delivered David thy Servant from the peril of the Sword.

11. Save me, and deliver me from the Hand of ſtrange Children: whoſe Mouth talketh of Vanity, and their right Hand is a right Hand of Iniquity.

12. That our Sons may grow up as the young Plants: and that our Daughters may be as the poliſhed corners of the Temple.

13. That our Garners may be full and plenteous with all manner of ſtore: that our Sheep may bring forth thouſands, and ten thouſands in our Streets.

14. That our Oxen may be ſtrong to labour, that there be no decay: no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our Streets.

15. Hap-

12. And that, out of thy Goodneſs which I have ſo long experienced, thou wouldſt cut off my Enemies, and not ſuffer them to do me any further miſchief; for I am entirely devoted to thy Service, and therefore I truſt thou wilt not deſert thy dependent.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXLIV.

ALL Glory be aſcribed to the great God who has taught my Hands and Fingers, which were formerly uſed only to play upon the Harp, now to uſe the rough Weapons of War with Skill and Dexterity.

2. On thee alone, O God, is my dependence, thou art my Caſtle and Defence and my Protector; and by whoſe Power I have in part ſubdued the neighbouring-Countries, 2 Sam. 8. 1.

3. Lord, what a poor thing is Man at the beſt, in reſpect of thy Glory! but ſtill what a greater wonder it is, that the great God of Heaven ſhould vouchſafe to take care of ſuch a worthleſs Creature as myſelf, and to raiſe him from an inferior condition to ſuch an height of Glory and Honour.

4. For Man is a Creature but of ſhort continuance, his Life vaniſhes away like a ſhadow.

5. And now, O Lord, I muſt again beg thy aſſiſtance for my preſervation againſt my Enemies, who, notwithſtanding their former Defeats are ſtill moleſting me; therefore do thou make thy Appearance in my behalf, after thy accuſtomed manner, viz. by bending down the Clouds to let thee down, and ſetting the Mountains on Fire.

6. Dart forth thy Lightnings and rend my Adverſaries into Shivers, and let thy fiery Darts deſtroy them.

7. Let down thy Hand, and draw me up out of the Ocean which I am almoſt drowned in; and deliver me from the Power of theſe Idolatrous Nations, which are now warring againſt me, 2 Sam. 10. 3.

8. Who are falſe deceitful People, 2 Sam. 10. 4. and who ſtick at doing nothing that is baſe and wicked.

9. And if thou art pleaſed to make me ſucceſsful in this Enterprize, I will in gratitude, compoſe a new Pſalm to thy Honour, to be ſung upon a Lute of ten Strings.

10. For 'tis not the numerous or the valiant Armies of Princes which procure them Victory, but thy good Providence: and 'tis to the ſame that I aſcribe all my Deliverances and Succeſſes in Battle.

11. And now I beſeech thee, preſerve me again from the Army of theſe falſe idolaters, who ſtick at acting no wicked or baſe thing:

12. That under the Bleſſing of a laſting Peace, our Sons may grow up like choice young Plants in a Nurſery, and that our Daughters may be beautiful as the poliſh'd Pillars of a Temple or a Palace:

13. That our Granaries may be loaded with Corn of every ſort; and that our Sheep may ſo wonderfully encreaſe, that they may not only fill our Fields, but even our Towns and Villages.

14. That our Oxen may be all luſty, and fit for labour in Husbandry; that there be no plundering and deſolation; no carrying away our People for Priſoners into the Enemies Army; and no making Complaints of the Miſeries and Loſſes of War.

15. In

15. Happy are the People that are in ſuch a Caſe: yea, bleſſed are the People who have [the Lord] for their God.

The CXLV. PSALM.

Exaltabo te, Deus.

¶ ¶ The Title of this Pſalm is, David's Pſalm of Praiſe, the only Pſalm in the Book with this Title. It is not manifeſt upon whoſe occaſion it was written. The Verſes begin with the Alphabetical Letters in order, only Nun is wanting.

I Will magnifie thee, O God, my King: and I will praiſe thy Name for ever and ever.

2. Every Day will I give thanks unto thee: and praiſe thy Name for ever and ever.

3. Great is the LORD and marvellous, worthy to be praiſed: there is no end of his greatneſs.

4. One Generation ſhall praiſe thy Works unto another: and declare thy Power.

5. As for me, I will be talking of thy Worſhip: thy Glory, thy Praiſe and wondrous Works;

6. So that Men ſhall ſpeak of the might of thy marvellous Acts: and I will alſo tell of thy greatneſs.

7. The memorial of thine abundant kindneſs ſhall be ſhewed: and Men ſhall ſing of thy Righteouſneſs.

8. The LORD is gracious and merciful: long-ſuffering, and of great goodneſs.

9. The LORD is loving unto every Man: and his Mercy is over all his Works.

10. All thy Works praiſe thee, O LORD: and thy Saints give thanks unto thee.

11. They ſhew the Glory of thy Kingdom: and talk of thy Power;

12. That thy Power, thy Glory, and Mightineſs of thy Kingdom: might be known unto Men.

13. Thy Kingdom is an everlaſting Kingdom: and thy Dominion endureth throughout all Ages.

14. The LORD upholdeth all ſuch as fall: and lifteth up all thoſe that are down.

15. The Eyes of all wait upon thee, O Lord: and thou giveſt them their Meat in due ſeaſon.

16. Thou openeſt thine Hand: and filleſt all things living with plenteouſneſs.

17. The LORD is Righteous in all his ways: and Holy in all his Works.

18. The

15. In a happy Condition are thoſe People who have thoſe Advantages attending them; but more happy is that People who worſhip the true God, who will confer theſe and greater Benefits upon his Votaries.

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXLV.

I Will extol thy Name, O God, my King and Governour, and will never leave ſinging Praiſes to thee, as long as I live.

2. Not a Day ſhall paſs in which I will not exerciſe myſelf in this Duty, during my whole Life.

3. The Lord is a great God, and worthy of our profoundeſt admiration and veneration; and when we have aſcribed all poſſible perfection which we can think of to his Nature, there is infinitely more remains which we cannot conceive.

4. Thy Works are ſo wonderful and miraculous, that it ſhall not content the preſent Generation in which they were done, to admire them, but they ſhall in Records and Tradition hand them down to the following.

5. And as for myſelf, I promiſe that thy miraculous Actions ſhall be the conſtant Theme of my Diſcourſes, I ſhutting out from my Mouth all other talk.

6. And I will encourage others by my Example, to take the ſame ſubject of Converſation; I myſelf beginning with a Declaration of what great things thou haſt done for thy Servants.

7. From hence the Memory of thy great Acts ſhall be continually kept up, and Hymns ſhall be compoſed in Honour of them.

8. The Lord is full of Kindneſs and Compaſſion; he patiently a great while bears the Offences committed againſt him; and is always ready to do Kindneſſes.

9. Nay, his goodneſs is extended to all Mankind; nay further, every part of the Creation does, ſome way or other, partake of his Bounty.

10. The Praiſe of thy admirable Wiſdom, is ſhewn forth by every the moſt minute Work of thy Creation; and thy faithful People do, in their daily Worſhip, recognize thy Goodneſs and Majeſty.

11. In their Hymns to thy Honour, and in their conſtant Converſation, they declare thy extraordinary power manifeſted on their behalf.

12. To the end, that the reſt of Mankind may be ſenſible, what admirable Order thou doſt obſerve in the Government of thy People, and what amazing Acts thou doſt perform for their preſervation.

13. And that thy Kingdom is not ſubject to any Changes or Viciſſitudes, but that it will remain to all Eternity, in the ſame Majeſty and Glory which it diſplays now.

14. The Lord is conſtantly ready to do all Acts of Kindneſs for his Servants, ſupporting them that are ſinking through any Misfortune or Trouble, and raiſing up them that are down.

15. The Eyes of all the Creation do look up, and expect their Food from thee, and thou never faileſt to give it them as they want it.

16. Thou who keepeſt an inexhauſtible Treaſure of all good things, doſt continually open thy Hand, and diſtribute abroad into the World, a flowing plenty of every thing that good and deſirable.

17. And tho' ſome things in this World may befal us, which may not be ſo agreeable to our carnal Deſires, yet every thing is diſpoſed by him with a moſt exquiſite Juſtice, and according to the unerring Judgment of his eternal Wiſdom.

18. We

18. The LORD is nigh unto all them that call upon him: yea, all such as call upon him faithfully.

19. He will fulfil the desire of them that fear him: he also will hear their cry, and will help them.

20. The LORD preserveth all them that love him: but scattereth abroad all the Ungodly.

21. My Mouth shall speak the Praise of the LORD: and let all Flesh give Thanks unto his holy Name for ever and ever.

The CXLVI. PSALM.

Lauda, anima mea.

¶¶ These five last Psalms are called the Hallelujahs, because they begin and end with that word. The Vulgar-Latin ascribes this Psalm to Haggai and Zachary; and Grotius says, that this Inscription was formerly in Origen's Hexapla. Some attribute it to David. It contains a Celebration of God's Praises for his Creation and Preservation; and particularly, for his inviolably maintaining his Promises which he has made to his People.

Hallelujah. PRaise the LORD, my Soul, while I live will I praise the LORD: yea, as long as I have any Being, I will sing Praises unto my God.

2. O put not your trust in Princes, nor in any Child of Man: for there is no help in them.

3. For when the Breath of Man goeth forth, he shall turn again to his Earth: and then all his Thoughts perish.

4. Blessed is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help: and whose hope is in the LORD his God.

5. Who made Heaven and Earth, the Sea and all that therein is: who keepeth his Promise for ever.

6. Who helpeth them to right that suffer wrong: who feedeth the hungry.

7. The LORD looseth Men out of Prison: the LORD giveth sight to the Blind.

8. The LORD helpeth them that are fallen: the LORD careth for the Righteous.

9. The LORD careth for the Strangers, he defendeth the Fatherless and Widow: as for the way of the Ungodly, he turneth it upside down.

10. The LORD thy God, O Sion, shall be King for evermore: and throughout all Generations. Hallelujah.

EVEN-

18. We need not give ourselves more Trouble, than to put up our Addresses to him, and he is as ready to supply our Wants, as we are to ask for the Favour, if we are faithfully disposed to serve him.

19. He will do every thing that is reasonable, for their sakes who are his devout Servants; and when they are under any Distress, he will deliver them from their Misfortune.

20. He is a constant Protector of his Faithful Servants; but all wicked and profane Persons, he will as certainly involve in an unremediable Destruction.

21. Therefore I promise for my part, to celebrate the Name of our great God, with Hymns composed to his Honour; and I would exhort all the whole Creation to joyn with me in his Praise, by reason of the common Benefits which they receive from him, and that they would never intermit this pious Exercise as long as they live.

Paraphrase on Psal. CXLVI.

Hallelujah. PRaise the Lord, but in particular, O my Soul, do thou raise up all thy Affections to magnifie his Goodness; nay, for my part I promise, that as long as thou art pleased to continue me in my Being, I will make it my Business to compose Hymns, and to sing them to thy Honour.

2. But let me beseech you all the rational part of the Creation, not to place your Confidence in any Human Help, tho' it be that of the most powerful Prince, which will most certainly fail you at the last.

3. For Man, tho' he be never so great and powerful, is subject to Mortality; and whatever great designs he may have in hand, he may die before he can accomplish them, and then all their eager Dependents are wretchedly disappointed.

4. Therefore the faithful Worshippers of the true God, are the only happy Persons; for they trust in a God who has all the Power to assist them, and all the readiness imaginable to do it.

5. For he is a God of Almighty Power, as manifestly appears by his Creation of the World, and is a God who is ready to assist his Votaries, as is clear, from his tenacious Observance of all his Promises.

6. He is a God that righteth the Cause of those who are oppressed, by mighty Adversaries or unjust Judges; who provides a sufficient supply of Food for all those who want it.

7. He is a God, that redeems the poor Captive-Slave from the Hand of his Tyrannick Master; and restores the Light of the Sun to them who are shut up in a dark Dungeon.

8. He the Lord our great God raiseth up those from the Ground, that are fallen down by a great degree of Misfortune; he makes it the constant object of his Thoughts, how he may preserve the good Man.

9. He makes it his Business to defend helpless Persons, from the Violence of Oppressors, protecting Strangers and Widows, from the injuries which are offered to them; but as for the ill Designs of wicked Persons, he is as diligent to defeat them.

10. Therefore, O Inhabitants of Jerusalem, you do well to put your trust in your great God, who is not like earthly Princes of a transitory continuance, but remaineth in his Royal Dignity and Power throughout all Generations. Hallelujah.

EVENING PRAYER.

The CXLVII. PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

¶ ¶ This Pſalm, from the ſecond Verſe thereof, does ſeem to be compoſed after the Return from the Captivity. It is an excellent encomiaſtick Hymn on the Honour of God, drawn from ſeveral Particulars of the Manifeſtation of his Goodneſs.

Hallelujah. O Praiſe the LORD, for it is a good thing to ſing Praiſes unto our God: yea, a joyful and pleaſant thing it is to be thankful.

2. The LORD doth build up Jeruſalem: and gather together the out-caſts of Iſrael.

3. He healeth thoſe that are broken in Heart: and giveth Medicine to heal their Sickneſs.

4. He telleth the number of the Stars: and calleth them all by their Names.

5. Great is our LROD, and great is his Power: yea, and his Wiſdom is infinite.

6. The LORD ſetteth up the meek: and bringeth the Ungodly down to the Ground.

7. O ſing unto the LORD with Thankſgiving: ſing Praiſes upon the Harp unto our God.

8. Who covereth the Heaven with Clouds, and prepareth Rain for the Earth: and maketh the Graſs to grow upon the Mountains, [and Herb for the uſe of Men.]

9. Who giveth Fodder unto the Cattle: and feedeth the young Ravens that call upon him.

10. He hath no pleaſure in the ſtrength of an Horſe: neither delighteth he in any Man's Legs.

11. But the LORD's delight is in them that fear him: and put their Truſt in his Mercy.

12. Praiſe the LORD, O Jeruſalem: praiſe thy God, O Sion.

13. For he hath made faſt the Bars of thy Gates: and hath bleſſed thy Children within thee.

14. He maketh Peace in thy border: and filleth thee with flour of Wheat.

15. He ſendeth forth his Commandment upon Earth: and his Word runneth very ſwiftly.

16. He giveth Snow like Wool: and ſcattereth the Hoar-Froſt like Aſhes.

17. He caſteth forth his Ice like Morſels: who is able to abide his Froſts?

18. He

Paraphraſe on Pſal. CXLVII.

O Joyn with me, all that are capable of this pious Exerciſe, in praiſing our great God; for you are invited to this Duty, by the extraordinary Pleaſure and Satisfaction which attends it.

2. But however we have at this time a freſh Obligation to glorifie God, for his late Favour in permitting us to build up again our ruined City, and to collect our ſcattered Tribes from the different parts of a Foreign Country, where they long lived in a State of Captivity, to return home to their Native Country.

3. He being pleaſed to eaſe the Sorrows of his People, which were almoſt heart-broken by ſo long a Captivity, and to heal the Wounds which were made in their Souls, by affording them ſuch a joyful Reſtoration.

4. Nor have we Jews only our particular Obligations to praiſe him, but all Mankind are indebted to his Goodneſs, and ſtand obliged to extol his Power and Wiſdom; who counteth all the Stars whoſe number is ſo vaſt, Gen. 22. 17. knowing all their Magnitudes, Revolutions and Influences.

5. The Power of our God is of infinite Extenſion, and his Wiſdom ſurpaſſes all Human Underſtanding.

6. Nor are his providential Diſpenſations leſs ſurprizing; he by unaccountable Methods contriving all things, happily to fall out in the end for the good of pious Men, and in his good time, bringing the Wicked to condign Puniſhment.

7. O therefore let every one joyn in Praiſes to this great and good God, celebrating him with the Muſick of the Harp.

8 Nor do his natural Diſpenſations afford a narrower Subject of his Praiſe; when we conſider that it is he, that overſpreading the Sky with Clouds big with Rains, makes the fruitful Drops to ſhower down upon the Earth; thereby occaſioning the Graſs to ſhoot forth even upon the rocky Mountains, and all the Paſtures to yield variety of Herbage for the uſe of Men.

9. Who provideth Food for all the Beaſts of the Field, and the Fowls of the Air; who doth not neglect even ſuch deſpicable Birds as the Ravens, but finds a way to feed them in their Neſt, when they are deſerted by their Dams.

10. It is he who diſpoſes of Victory, not from the Strength of a great Body of Horſe, nor from the Number and Gallantry of the Foot.

11. But he affords Succeſs to thoſe, who ſerve him faithfully, and depend upon him conſtantly.

12. Therefore, O ye Inhabitants of Jeruſalem, who have ſo frequently experienced his miraculous Power, interpoſed in your behalf, and when all Human means have failed you, God has given you wonderful Advantages over your Adverſaries; Do you therefore, I ſay, Praiſe God for ſuch unparalell'd Favours conferred on you.

13. He has made your City, which was lately without Walls, now to be ſo ſtrong, as to defie the Aſſaults of a powerful Enemy, Neh. 5. 16. and increaſed thy Citizens, which were at firſt but few, Neh. 7. 4. to a mighty number.

14. He hath now reſtored Peace to thy Country, which hath lain under a long Devaſtation, and doth afford thee a plentiful variety of all good things.

15. It is our God, to whom the whole Order of Nature is ſubject; and whatever he commands, is readily obeyed.

16. Whenever he gives the Word, the Earth is covered with Fleeces of Snow; or the Hoar-froſt is ſprinkled, like Aſhes upon the Ground.

17. He ſends down his Hail in knobs, or, as it were, morſels of Ice; and his Froſt is ſometimes ſo ſevere, as not only to harden the moiſt Ground, and to congeal the Rivers, but is not to be born either by Men or Beaſts, who are not under ſhelter.

18. But

18. He ſendeth out his Word, and melteth them: he bloweth with his Wind, and the Waters flow.
19. He ſheweth his Word unto Jacob: his Statutes and Ordinances unto Iſrael.
20. He hath not dealt ſo with any Nation: neither have the Heathen knowledge of his Laws. Hallelujah.

The CXLVIII PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

¶¶ This Pſalm was compoſed upon ſome joyful Occaſion; It was probably written at the Cloſe of the Captivity of the Jews, when the Edict was come out for their Reſtoration.

Hallelujah. O Praiſe the LORD of Heaven: praiſe him in the height.
2. Praiſe him, all ye Angels of his: praiſe him, all his Hoſt.
3. Praiſe him Sun, and Moon: praiſe him, all ye Stars and Light.
4. Praiſe him, all ye Heavens: and ye Waters that are above the Heavens.
5. Let them praiſe the Name of the Lord: [for he ſpake the Word, and they were made,] he commanded, and they were created.
6. He hath made them faſt for ever and ever: he hath given them a Law which ſhall not be broken.
7. Praiſe the LORD upon Earth: ye Dragons and all deeps;
8. Fire and Hail, Snow and Vapours: Wind and Storm, fulfilling his Word;
9. Mountains and all Hills: fruitful Trees, and all Cedars;
10. Beaſts and all Cattel: Worms and feathered Fowls;
11. Kings of the Earth and all People: Princes and all Judges of the World.
12. Young Men and Maidens, old Men and Children, praiſe the Name of the LORD: for his Name only is excellent, and his Praiſe above Heaven and Earth.
13. He ſhall exalt the Horn of his People, all his Saints ſhall praiſe him: even the Children of Iſrael, even the People that ſerveth them. Hallelujah.

The CXLIX PSALM.

Cantate Domino.

¶¶ This Pſalm is a Song upon ſome ſignal Victory, and ſome great Exploits done by the Jews, and therefore it probably relates to the Davidical Times, when they made the greateſt Figure, and gained the moſt conſiderable Victories.

Hallelujah. O Sing unto the LORD a new Song: let the Congregation of Saints praiſe him.
2. Let Iſrael rejoyce in him that made him: and let the Children of Sion be joyful in their King. 3. Let

18. But then all of a ſudden, at the Word of his Command, a warm South-wind blows, and the Ground returns to its wonted Softneſs; and the Waters, which were before a Cryſtal-Pavement, betake themſelves again to their former Fluidity.
19. But above all, his Excellency is diſplayed in that admirable Body of Laws, which he has given to the People of Iſrael to govern their Actions by:
20. Herein particularly diſtinguiſhing them from the reſt of Mankind; to whom he never indulged any ſuch gracious Diſpenſation. Hallelujah.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXLVIII.

LEt every part of the Creation Praiſe the Lord, the great Father and Maker of all Things; let him be praiſed with the higheſt degree of Affection and Exaltation of Mind.
2. Let the Angels in all their different Ranks and Orders, celebrate his Honour.
3. Let the Sun, Moon and Stars, by their conſtant Viciſſitudes, and by their Light and Influences which they afford, glorifie thy great Name, who haſt created, and doth preſerve ſuch glorious and uſeful Bodies.
4. Let the Regions of the Air, and all the watery Meteors therein, ſet forth his Praiſe, by the Rains, and Winds, and Snows, which they produce.
5. For it was thou, O great God, who didſt firſt create theſe Bodies, by ſpeaking a Word, when immediately from nothing, they ſprang up into being.
6. When thou didſt likewiſe give them Rules and Laws of their Nature, which they have hitherto inviolably obſerved, and which it is not in the Power of any external Force to alter.
7. Let God's Honour be diſplay'd from the vaſt Ocean, which is his Work, and all the great Fiſhes therein.
8. Let his Glory be farther manifeſted, by the Lightning and the Hail, the Snows and Miſts, the gentle Breezes and violent Storms, which are all under his Direction and Appointment.
9. Let his Honour be ſhewn forth likewiſe by other Works of the Creation, by Hills and Mountains, which as they adorn Nature by a Variety, ſo they occaſion the flowing of Rivers: Let him be praiſed by the ſtately Cedars and Oaks of the Hills and Forreſts, ſo uſeful for Building; and the other Fruit-Trees of the low-Grounds, ſo convenient for the Food and Delight of Men.
10. Let his Honour be farther manifeſted by the vaſt number of Cattle, and other Animals, who by their Labour aſſiſt Mankind; who by their Fleſh feed them, and by their Skins clothe them; let the great Variety of Reptile and Volatile Animals, whoſe Species are not to reckoned up, contribute towards advancing the Glory of ſuch a wiſe and powerful Creator.
11. But more eſpecially let Men, the rational Part of the Creation, praiſe the great God for all theſe his wonderful Works and Benefits; let every Monarch veil his Diadem before him, and aſcribe his Being, and all the Dignity he is veſted with to his Goodneſs; and let all the great Men of the World praiſe him, for all the noble Qualities which he has endowed them with.
12. Let young Men praiſe him for their Strength; Maidens for their Beauty; old Men for their Experience; and Children for their Innocence; for he is the only true God, abounding in Excellence and Perfection, and his Wiſdom and Goodneſs is manifeſted in every part of the Univerſe.
13. But the great Favours, and conſtant Protection, vouchſafed to his People the Jews, oblige them in a particular manner to honour and glorifie his Name; now raiſing up the ancient Reputation and Honour of his Servants, after the Oppreſſion of a long Captivity. Hallelujah.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CXLIX.

O Sing a new Hymn to the Honour of the great JEHOVAH, and let it be ſung by the full Congregation of his faithful People in their ſolemn Aſſembly.
2. Let all the Jewiſh Nation ſing Praiſes to God, who is both their Creator and their Governour.

3. Let

3. Let them praiſe his Name in the Dance: let them ſing Praiſes unto him with Tabret and Harp.

4. For the Lord hath pleaſure in his People: and helpeth the meek-hearted.

5. Let the Saints be joyful with Glory: let them rejoyce in their Beds.

6. Let the Praiſes of God be in their Mouth: and a two-edged Sword in their Hands.

7. To be avenged of the Heathen: and to rebuke the People.

8. To bind their Kings in Chains: and their Nobles with links of Iron.

9. That they may be avenged of them, as it is written: Such Honour have all his Saints. Hallelujah.

The CL PSALM.

Laudate Dominum.

¶¶ This Pſalm is likewiſe a Song after Victory; but in what time it was compoſed is uncertain.

Hallelujah. O Praiſe God in his Holineſs: praiſe him in the firmament of his Power.

2. Praiſe him in his noble Acts: praiſe him according to his excellent greatneſs.

3. Praiſe him in the ſound of the Trumpet: praiſe him upon the Lute and Harp.

4. Praiſe him in the Cymbals and Dances: praiſe him upon the Strings and Pipe.

5. Praiſe him upon the well-tuned Cymbals: praiſe him upon the loud Cymbals.

6. Let every thing that hath Breath: praiſe the Lord.

3. Let them celebrate triumphal Dances in his Honour; and ſing unto him with a Conſort of Muſick.

4. For the Lord doth take Pleaſure to do good to his People, and to reſcue them, when they are in a mean and low Condition.

5. Let all pious Perſons exult and triumph, with the moſt joyful and glorious Acclamations: Let them rejoyce in their Beds, God having provided them ſuch a State of Eaſe and Security, that they may be ſafe there, and out of fear of their Enemies.

6. But however, let them not lay aſide all Thoughts of warlike Preparations, and be drowned in the eaſe of a ſluggiſh Peace; Let them, at the ſame time they are ſinging victorious Hymns to the Honour of God, carry their Swords in their Hands:

7. To take ſuch Revenge upon the Heathens, as their ill-Treatment of us has deſerved, and to chaſtiſe their Inſolence and Pride.

8. That we may make their Kings and Captains Priſoners, binding them with Iron-Fetters and Chains.

9. That we ſhould not only ſubdue, but entirely eradicate theſe wicked Idolatrous People, as Moſes commanded Deut. 20, 17. So great Honour God has been pleaſed to confer upon his ſacred People. Hallelujah.

Paraphraſe on Pſalm CL.

O Praiſe God for the inexpreſſible Purity and Holineſs of his Nature; praiſe him for the vaſt extent of his Power.

2. Praiſe him for the miraculous Actions, which he has done for the defence of his People; and let us endeavour, as much as may be, that our Praiſe may bear ſome Proportion to his Deliverances.

3. Praiſe him with every kind of Muſick, which is uſed in Triumphs and great Feſtivals, not only upon the ſonorous Trumpet, but the ſofter Lute and Harp.

4. Praiſe him upon the Cymbals, playing to thoſe that ſhall dance in this great Feſtivity: Praiſe him likewiſe upon ſeveral ſorts of String-Muſick, as well as upon the Flute.

5. Praiſe him upon thoſe Cymbals which make the moſt grateful Sound: Praiſe him with the loud ſound of the Organ.

6. Let every Man and Creature which enjoys the Breath of Life, praiſe the Lord! Hallelujah.

Biſhop Coſins his PREFACE, to his Notes on the Common Prayer.

C THE Noble and Learned du Pleſſis thought it a great Advantage, to the Cauſe he undertook againſt the Maſs, if he could demonſtrate the Form of Service uſed in the Reformed Churches of France, to be more agreeable to that of the Primitive Church, than that of the Maſs-Book of Rome. This he thought worth his pains to undertake.

We ſhall think it Advantage enough to our Cauſe, if we ſhew the Points queſtioned in our Order of Service, to be of more ancient Practice in the Church, than the later Corruptions of the Church of Rome which we have left; and that this Church of Ours is not to forſake the Primitive Church, to reform herſelf to other Reformed Churches, where the Orders in Force have both the Preſident of ſuch ancient Practice, and want not the reaſon of Edification to commend them.

The beſt Method herein, will be by Reaſons drawn from the Grounds and Rules of Scripture, ſeconded by the Practiſe of the Primitive, and confirmed by the Judgment and Agreement of all other famous Churches, and Writers in the World.

We are not of their Mind, that had rather deſpiſe or neglect, than either obſerve or underſtand, the Ordinances of the Church for the Publick Service of God. We will give an Account of that Form of Service which we uſe, deriving it higher than the Roman Breviary or Maſs, from which it is charged to come; and ſhewing, where it ſhall be requiſite, that the Corruptions of the Maſs are laid aſide in it.

ADDITIONAL NOTES ON The Common Prayer.

By Biſhop Coſins, Biſhop Andrews, &c.

C AN Act for the Uniformity of; &c.] Our hap hath been better here in England, than in other Reformed Churches Abroad. In France, and thoſe Places that follow Calvin's Reformation, they have neither any Form of Daily Service, nor any Uniformity in the Prayer before the Sermon (which is all the daily Prayer they have) preſcribed them. So that if there be no Sermon, there can be no Service; which made others in France call that Religion a mere Preach. Among the Lutherans they have ſeveral Forms, every free City, and every Church, making a Form to themſelves; which, according to Luther's own Counſel (Lib. de formula Miſſæ) they uſe to alter very often, partly becauſe they are new fangled, and deſirous of Change, (as Luther ſays, ib. Coactus ſum, propter leves & faſtidioſos ſpiritus, qui ſolâ novitate gaudent, atq; ſtatim ut novitas deſiit nauſeantes, alios canones, aliamq; Miſſandi formulam præſcribere) and partly, becauſe otherwiſe, if a Form were fixed and preſcribed to continue long, it would in time grow to be thought neceſſary (as in former Days it was ſo enjoyned to be uſed, that no Man might change it;) and therefore he wiſhed them, for the upholding of their Chriſtian Liberty, to exchange it every Month.

Before we come to ſay any thing of the Particulars in the Service which we uſe, it will be requiſite to ſay ſomething of that, which in the general point of Publick Service is, or may be queſtioned: Of which kind, there is none ſo much to be ſtood upon as, Whether there ought to be (according to this Title) a ſet Uniform Order of all Publick Prayers preſcribed, for our Aſſemblies in the Church. That there ought to be ſome Publick Service, and ſome Orders given about it, it is not denied. This is, That all Publick Prayers in the Church ſhould be preſcribed, and not left Arbitrary to the Miniſter, whoſe Spirit they ſay, and Gift of Prayer, is not to be quenched, 1 Theſſ. 5. 19. or ſtinted by other Mens preſcribed Forms; for that then they cannot make Demonſtration of thoſe Graces wherewith the Spirit of God hath endued them. And this is the beſt of their Argument, which at a diſtance carrieth ſome Shew of God's Word for it; but ſurveyed near at hand, may be a warning to all Men, how they trouble the Church with their Miſapprehenſions: For when the Apoſtle forbids to quench the Spirit, he ſpeaks of immediate Inſpirations by the Holy Ghoſt, ſuch as they were, by which certain Men were enabled to diſcern the Secrets of other Mens Hearts, to ſpeak all Tongues, to know the Will of God for the ordering divers things in the Church, and in which the Edification of it at that time conſiſted; and if the Church had not then allowed the Publiſhing of ſuch Inſpirations at their Aſſemblies, it had quenched the Spirit. If then they which ſtand upon this Prohibition of the Apoſtle will come into our Aſſemblies, and ſpeak the Myſteries of God's Kingdom, in Languages unknown to them afore; if they will take upon them to reveal the Secrets of Mens Hearts, to do any thing in the Church by immediate Inſpiration, and to make Proof of theſe Spiritual Gifts and Graces, as the Prophets and Apoſtles did; we will acknowledge, that the Office of compoſing and conceiving Prayers in behalf of the Church, is to be referred to them, upon the ſame Terms as it was to them of old: Nothing compoſed by the Induſtry of Men ſhall be ſo eſteemed by us, as that which God's Spirit inditeth.

But if they dare not pretend to any ſuch immediate and inſpired Graces, why do they claim this Privilege? They may by as good Right pretend to decide all Matters controverted in Faith and Religion, to order all Matters of Government in the Church, and to root out and plant there what they pleaſe: But though they diſclaim this pretence, yet certain it is, that their very manner of ſpeaking, that their frequent ſounding and preſuming of God's Spirit before the People, and that the very Faſhion of their conceived Prayers (though made perhaps aforehand) inſinuateth, and needs muſt inſinuate to the People, the pretence of immediate Inſpirations, which to Men of Judgment they are conſtrained to diſavow, and to profeſs no Confidence, but of the Bleſſing of God's Spirit upon human Endeavours.

So that Inſpirations being diſclaimed, the Point in queſtion will be only this, Whether it be more for the good Order of the Church, and the Edification of the People, in the Direction of their Publick Prayers to uſe thoſe Forms, which upon mature Deliberation, and long Adviſing, have been framed by the ableſt Men of the Church, and preſcribed by Publick Conſent and Authority; or thoſe which particular Perſons ſhall, out of their private Judgment (either by foregoing Meditations, or by their preſent Readineſs of conceiving and expreſſing ſuch things as they think fit to be ſaid,) uſe in their Congregations.

Surely, the Spirits of the People are as much ſtinted by the Form which the Miniſter conceiveth, as his Spirit is by the Form which the Church has preſcribed: So that if the Church quenches the Spirit in them, when it confineth them to Forms; they do no leſs to the People, in confining them to the Form, which they from time to time conceive, and frame of their own Heads.

2*dly*, If Men be left to themſelves, whatſoever Opinion in Religion, whatſoever Debate between Neighbours, whatſoever Publick Matter in Church or Kingdom a Man pleaſes to make his Intereſt, he may make the Subject of Prayer for the Congregation; which, if it chances to be directed, (as what private Man is not ſubject to Paſſion and Affection, or is free from Miſtake?) or miſapplied by any of the People, what Scandals may ariſe from it? Experience tells us, that ſuch things have been done, and that Mens own conceived Prayers in the Church have ſmoked with their Choler, both in Private and Publick Matters.

3*dly*, Make particular Perſons the Judges of a thing of this Conſequence, and we make them all Popes in their Congregations.

4*thly*, By this new Device, many other Scandals are multiplied in the Service of God. Sometimes they ſhame themſelves, even before the meaneſt of the People, with their frequent Stops and Hums, when they are at a loſs what to ſay next; otherwhiles, with their often Repetitions, and divers Expreſſions, that want Senſe to make them be underſtood, they cauſe the Sacrifice of God to ſtink in the Noſtrils of Men. But when we hear thoſe demurring Hums of their human Imperfections, intituled by them to the unutterable Groans of God's Spirit, we have good reaſon to condemn and cry down the occaſion of ſuch unſufferable Profaneneſs.

5*thly*, In the Publick Service of God, where one is to be the Mouth of many agreeing together (as Chriſt would have them) for what they are to pray; how can the Miniſter be ſaid properly to be the Mouth of the Congregation, in Prayer to God for them all, when all are not firſt made acquainted and privy to that which he is to tender to God in their names? In a voluntary or ſudden conceived Prayer of his own, the People before him neither are nor can be privy to what he will ſay: And what Authority has he to offer up any Prayers in the Churches name, to which the Church has not formally conſented? or to take the Peoples Spirits from them, and to ſay, We, and every one of Us, offer up his Prayers, which perhaps many of them do diſlike, and at the very inſtant give no conſent with him to offer them up to God; in which caſe he telleth God a plain Untruth.

But in a ſet preſcribed Form, whereupon both the Miniſter and the People have agreed, and which the Church, though in ſeveral Places, do, at the ſame time, and in the ſame Words, offer up unto God, all theſe Inconveniences are avoided, the Unity of the Myſtical Body of Chriſt being teſtified by this Uniformity and Agreement in Publick Prayer; which our Saviour tells us, is ſo prevalent with Almighty God.

6*thly*, Whereas they ſay, That it is the Ordinance of God, That the People ſhould be edified by the Gifts of their Miniſters, as well in Praying as in Preaching; and therefore, That their Prayers ſhould be voluntary, and of their own Invention, becauſe that in following a ſet and preſcribed Form, this Gift cannot be ſhewn or exerciſed by them: We reply hereunto not without good Reaſon;

1. That there is not in this Point the ſame reaſon for Prayer, and for Preaching; for in Preaching he is not the Mouth of the People, as in Prayer he is. 2. The Guides and Paſtors of the Church edify the People by their Gift of Prayer, in compoſing a ſet Form upon good Advice and Agreement, more than any can do, in uttering a ſudden, or an arbitrary Prayer, without any Knowledge or Agreement had had of it before. 3. Are not the Members of the Church to be edified, as well by the Spirit of the Church, as the Church, or any Congregation, or part of it, by the Spirit of a particular Minister, who is but one Member of it? 4. This Device tends to the Oſtentation of Gifts, which St. Paul decrieth; for Oſtentation of Gifts is one thing, and Edification by them is another. Oſtentation, indeed, is beſt ſeen in a voluntary or ſuddenly conceived Prayer; but the Church is far better edified by a ſet Form preſcribed, and not made of a Man's own private Compoſition. For hereby (beſides that) the People are firſt made acquainted what they are to pray for; I mean, are the better ſecured from being engaged in ought that might be unfit to be ſpoken to God, either for the matter or manner, which is oftentimes in voluntary Prayers ſuch, as no Man of Judgment will give his conſent thereunto, if they be well aware of it. And this is that which Reaſon is able to inform us in this matter.

Now, if we would ſee which way the Practice and Authority of God's Church has gone, we ſhall have no cauſe to ſuſpect our own Reaſon, when the Reaſon of the Church, and the Guides thereof, have gone before us. That which was done in the Publick Service of God in the Temple, ſo far as it was Moral, and conſiſted not in offering Sacrifices, inforces more than our Reaſon can do. And here it is clear, 1 Cor. 16. 4. & 7. tho' the Pſalms made and preſcribed by King David were the Jewiſh Liturgy, or the chiefeſt part of the vocal Service, wherewith they worſhipped God in the Temple; ſo Ez. 3. 11. and in many places of the Old Teſtament beſides: Which Service in the Temple the Apoſtles of our Lord frequented in the New Teſtament, as well as the Prophets, and their Diſciples did in the Old; and yet none of them all thought their Spirits quenched or ſtinted by it.

Next, for the time after the Apoſtles, and thoſe extraordinary Gifts and Graces which ceaſed with them, no time of the Church can be ſhewed, wherein a preſcript Form of Publick Service and Prayer hath not been uſed, or wherein any other was in uſe, or allowed. Some Men there be, who will needs make Juſtin Martyr dream, as much as themſelves do, that, in his time, (as he related it to the Emperor) Men made ſhew of their Faculties, in conceiving Prayers of their own in the open Aſſemblies of the Church, when he ſaid, Apol. II. Πᾶς ὁ προεὼς ἐυχὰς ὁμοίως ϗ ἐυχαριςίας ὅσην δύναμις αὐτῷ, &c. Which (though they tranſlate it, that he prayed according to his Ability) ſignifies nothing elſe, but that Might and Earneſtneſs of Devotion, with which the Biſhop, or chief Presbyter among them, came to conſecrate the Euchariſt. There be others that produce Tertullian for their new Device, in his Apol. Cap. 30. ſine Monitore de pectore oramus; which, indeed, is nothing elſe, but to ſay private Prayers by heart; a pregnant Paſſage to prove rather, that they prayed by preſcript Forms (even in private) than otherwiſe.

But for the Practice of the Primitive Church, many Teſtimonies may be brought. Conc. Laod. Can. 15. Beſides them that are enrolled, and ſing out of the Parchment, others ought not to bring their Songs, or ſing in the Church: And Can. 59. The Pſalms of private Perſons muſt not be ſaid in the Church. Where by theſe Canons a plain Oppoſition is made between ſuch things as came from private Perſons, and ſuch as were entred into the Church Books by Publick Conſent and Authority: And Can. 18. The ſame Service of Prayers ought to be ſaid at the Ninth Hour, and the Veſpers. Conc. Carth. III. Can. 23. Quicunq; ſibi preces alicunde deſcribit, non eis utatur, niſi prius eas cum Inſtructioribus contulerit: That is, let him follow no Man's Copy, but with the Advice and Approbation of the Guides of the Church. II. Conc. Milev. Placuit ut preces vel Orationes quæ probatæ fuerint in Concilio ab omnibus celebrentur, nec aliæ omnino dicantur in Eccleſia, niſi quæ a prudentioribus tractatæ & comprobatæ fuerint in ſynodo, ne forte aliquid contra fidem, vel per ignorantiam, vel per minus ſtudium fuerit compoſitum. That ſuch Prayers as have been publickly allowed by the Council, and no others, be uſed or ſaid in the Church, leſt perhaps ſomething might be otherwiſe compoſed, either ignorantly, or negligently, or againſt the Faith of the Church. Balſamon, upon this Canon, ſaith, that it ſeemed ſome Men (even Biſhops) took upon them to ſay ſuch Prayers as were not approved by Authority, but made by themſelves, or other private Men; and therefore it was provided, That all Epiſcopal Churches of thoſe Provinces in Africk and Aſia, ſhould keep a preſcript Uniformity, as here it is in our Church: And ſome of the Weſtern Canons have provided to the ſame purpoſe, Con. Veſ. cap. 15. Sacrorum Ordo & pſallendi una ſit Conſuetudo per totam provinciam.

And whereas ſome Men ſay, That by the Old Councils (ut ſupra) every Man was allowed to compoſe his own Prayers, ſo they were always the ſame[a]; let them take notice, That Zonaras, who underſtood the Canons better than they, ſaith plainly, This Canon ſo orders it, That whoſoever would, ſhall not compoſe his Prayers, and uſe them in open Aſſemblies.

Add to all this the conſtant Tradition of Antiquity, what from time to time has been added to the Prayers of the Church, and it will appear, both that there was a ſet Form from the beginning, and that it was ſubject to Alterations; which is the true reaſon, why the Primitive Forms, in the very ſame Order that were then in uſe, cannot now be exhibited, or ſeen in the Church.

The Liturgies intituled to St. James, St. Mark, St. Peter, St. Baſil, and St. Chryſoſtom, have had Additions and Alterations, ſince their times whoſe Names they bear. And they are at this Day the Services frequented in the Churches of Jeruſalem, Alexandria, Rome, the Parts of the Eaſt that followed St. Baſil, and Conſtantinople that followed St. Chryſoſtom; being reduced into this Form wherein they now are, by thoſe diverſe changes which ſeveral Ages have made from a preſcript Form at the Beginning. That which is called St. Peter's is the ſame (very near) with the Roman Canon. That of St. James we may diſcern to have been the Service of the Church at Jeruſalem, by the Particulars relating to it, out of the Catechiſm of St. Cyril, Biſhop there, Catech. 5. As likewiſe, that of St. Mark to have been the Service of the Church of Alexandria, by the great Agreement it has with that of Cyril the Patriarch there, and with the Æthiopick Liturgy received from thence, as from their Mother Church.

But as for the Alterations to which theſe, and other Liturgies have been ſubject from time to time, we have the Confeſſion of Victorius the Maronite at Rome, in his Preface to Velſerus of Ausburg, before the Three Liturgies, which at the Requeſt of his Friends, he turned for him, out of the Arabick Copy, into Latin, where he ſaith, Nam ut Latini ipſi & Græci Pontifices multa deinceps in ſuis Liturgiis, quas jam inde ab Apoſtolis acceperant, pro re nata vel immutarunt vel addiderunt: ita etiam ab Alexandrinis & Ægyptiis par eſt credere, pro temporum opportunitate factitatum. And this we are the rather to take notice of, becauſe it is of great Advantage to the Alterations which this Church hath made of the Service, though it hath not altered any ſubſtantial part of it.

We conclude out of that which hath been here ſaid, That after the Apoſtles times, when immediate Inſpirations ceaſed, they betook themſelves on all hands to preſcript Forms, as it had been in the Synagogues, and in the Temple before; which at the firſt being derived from Primitive Practice, retained that Agreement in ſeveral Places, that in the Subſtance of them (as in this of England) ſtill appeareth. And being propagated from the greateſt Churches at firſt, have at length in moſt Places yielded, in a manner, to the Principal. So by Balſam. in 32 Can. Sext. Syn. it appeareth, how St. Chryſoſtom's Service, that is, the Service of the Church of Conſtantinople laboured to put down thoſe of Jeruſalem and Alexandria. And it is well enough known, how the Roman Maſs, which was once the Gregorian Service, hath aboliſhed the Spaniſh, the Gauliſh, the Britiſh, and the German Orders; and confined that which is intituled to St. Ambroſe, to his own Church only at Milan. And this Church of England hath now done the like, in reducing all the ſeveral old Forms of Sarum, York, Bangor, Lincoln, &c. to this Uniformity which we have now in uſe. Calvin himſelf, though otherwiſe, he took many Exceptions againſt the Book; yet for this Uniformity of Prayer he ſent his Approbation to us, and after this manner declared his Mind to the Protector, Ep. 87. Quod ad formulam precum & rituum Eccleſiaſticorum, valde probo ut certa illa extet a qua Paſtoribus recedere in functione ſua non liceat; tam ut conſulatur quorundam ſimplicitati & imperitiæ, quam ut certius ita conſtet omnium inter ſe Eccleſiarum Regni conſenſus: etiam ut obviam eatur deſultoriæ quorundam levitati, qui novationes quaſdam affectant. Sic igitur ſtatam eſſe Sacramentorum adminiſtrationem oportet, publicam item precum formulam. He forgat, it ſeems, that he had thus written to the Protector, when afterwards he wrote, Ep. 200. to the Engliſh at Franckford, that he ſaw multas fuiſſe in Anglicanâ Liturgiâ tolerabiles ineptias & facis Papiſticæ reliquias; which Words of his have bred all our Contentions and Tumults, about the Liturgy, ſince that time. Cura Liturgiam emendandi, quæ ſub Ed. 6. linguâ patriâ edita Parkero, Billo, Maio, Coxo, Grindallo, Whiteheado, & Pilkintono, Theologis moderatis, Thomæq; Smitho, equiti docto demandatur, re nemini communicatâ, niſi Marchioni Northamptoniæ, Comiti Bedfordiæ, Johanni Greyo de Pyrgo, & Cecilio. Camb. in Ann. Eliz. 1558. ante inceptum Parliamentum.

The ſaid Act of Repeal ſhall be void from and after, &c.] What did they then, or what was to be done in the mean while, viz. from the 17*th* of November, when Queen Elizabeth began, to the 24*th* of June following, when this Statute was firſt to take effect? Certain it is, that the Queen reſolved a Change from the beginning; but for fear of Tumults, ſhe came to it by degrees. A Month, therefore, and ſomewhat more, after the Death of Queen Mary, there was no Change at all, but every thing continued, and was done in the Church, after the ſame manner as it was before. And Queen Elizabeth her ſelf came to Maſs, wherein ſhe forbad nothing but the Elevation, beckoning once with her Hand, and telling the Prieſt aloud, That he might let that alone. Upon the 27*th* of December following, ſhe ſet forth a Proclamation, whereby the Epiſtle and Goſpel, the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and the Litany, were permitted to be ſet forth in the Engliſh Tongue; That the Decalogue, with the Epiſtle and Goſpel, ſhould be publickly read to the People in the Church, but without any Expoſition or Sermon upon them at all; and that in all other things, the ſame Forms and Rites ſhould be ſtill uſed, which had been in uſe under Queen Mary, until the Parliament might meet, and ſettle all Matters of Religion.

At that time (ſays Cambden) Quidam novandi ſtudio abrepti novam omnino Politiam Eccleſiaſticam procudere caperunt, quos tempeſtivè comprimendos juſſit Regina. Alii autem Verbi Miniſtri moræ impatientes, dum legibus præcurrere quam expectare mallent, primùm per privatas ædes, mox per Eccleſias, Doctrinam Proteſtantium liberiùs proſeminare, & plebs novitatis avida ad eos magno numero confluere, & de controverſiis in Religione Quæſtionibus adeo inter ſe & cum Pontificiis rixari cæperunt, ut ad Contentionum occaſiones præcidendas Regina ſeverè edixerit, ne hujuſmodi Quæſtiones agitarent.

Upon the 22*d* of March, a Statute of King Edward the Sixth's time was revived (the Parliament now ſitting) againſt thoſe who ſhould ſpeak irreverently of the Sacrament of the Altar (as they then began to do, calling it Jack in the Box, &c.) and for receiving the Communion under both kinds, unleſs in caſe of neceſſity. And thus ſtood all Matters of Religion, till the time mentioned in this Act of Uniformity, the 24*th* of June.

Be it Enacted, by the Authority of the Queen's Highneſs, &c.] Quæ Religionem reſtaurare (ſays Cambden ad An. 1558.) tum ex informatione a teneris, tum ex certâ & ſtabili ſententiâ apud animum jampridem ſtatuerat, re tamen cum paucis communicatâ.

C With the Assent of the Lords and Commons.] Not of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, as in former Acts: For there was never a Lord Spiritual that gave his Assent to this Act, or Change of the Service of the Church. In superiori consessu (says Cambden) novem qui ab eo die aderant Episcopi (nec plures quam quatuordecim in vivis jam supererant) Eboracensis sc. Archiepiscopus, Londinensis, Wintoniensis, Wigorniensis, Landavensis, Covemtriensis, Exoniensis, Cestriensis & Carliolensis, Abbasq; Westmonasteriensis, obstrmatè refragati sunt. Of the Temporal Lords none contradicted, except the Earl of Shrewsbury, and Viscount Montacute, whom in Queen Mary's time the Parliament had sent to Rome, with the Bishop of Ely, to unite themselves to that See. But among the Commons, the number of those that assented to this Act was far greater. Pontificiis interim obmurmurantibus plures e Protestantibus da'â opera, tum e Comitatibus, tum e Civitatibus & Burgis fuisse Electos, & Norfolciæ Ducem Arundeliæq; Comitem inter Proceres potentissimos, in suam sive rem, sive spem, Caciliumq; suâ salertiâ suffragia emendicasse.

But the Recusants * here say, (if they have any better ground for what they say) That this Mutation was carried on in the Upper-house, but by Six Voices only: That the Earl of Arundel (persuaded and helped thereunto by the Duke of Norfolk) engrossed into his Hands the Proxies of a great many Lords, wherewith to serve the Queen's Intentions for the passing of this Act: That the Queen made divers Lords before the Parliament began, of purpose to sway the Voices: And that the whole Convocation-house came up with a Petition, or a Bill of Protestation against the passing of this Act; so that there was not the Assent of one Clergy-man to it: For all the Protestant Bishops, Deans and Archdeacons, were made after the Parliament was ended, upon their refusal of the Oath of Supremacy, into whose rooms they came and succeeded.

* "I could wish, That the learned Annotator had, in justice to our Reformation, given some answer to this Popish Objection which he has started, and that I presume he might easily have done.

"For, 1*st*, According to our Constitution, an Act of Parliament is as valid, when passed only by a Majority of Six, as if it had been carried by Sixty; and certainly, our wise Predecessors might very justly make use of all lawful Means, to get rid of that foul and cruel Superstition, which they had lately so sadly experienced.

"2*dly*, As to my Lord of Arundel's Proxies, as it does not appear there was any indirect Dealing in the procuring them; so 'tis but reasonable to think, that those who intrusted their Voices with him, were not of a different Opinion from his Lordship.

"3*dly*, As to the Lords which were lately made, they being but new Men in the House, cannot be supposed to have born any great Sway therein: But however, their Number was so small, that they could not have given a Turn to the House, as the Papists pretend, they being fewer than the Number by which the Bill was passed. There were only barely Five of them Created about this time, as I learn by Mr. Strype's History, who writes thus; To Oliver St. John's, Esq; the Lords wrote, That the Queen's Highness, for his Worthiness and Estate, was determined to advance him to the Degree of a Baron, at her Coronation; and therefore, That he was required to put himself in a readiness to repair to Court, to receive the same accordingly: With him also, She raised to Honour Sir Will. Parr, Edward Seymour, Lord Thomas Howard, and Henry Cary, and no more. Now the Coronation was solemnized the 15th of January, the Parliament met the 25th of the same Month, and the Uniformity-Bill passed the April following; during which time, there is no Constat of any new Creations, the Persons beforementioned being raised to their Dignities, with regard only to their supereminent Merit, their Relation to the Queen, or to personal Engagements; without any view of making use of their Votes in Parliament.

"4*thly*, As to the Opposition of the Majority of Convocation, every one knows under what Dispositions they then were; nor could it in reason be expected, that the Popish Clergy should be forward in promoting a Protestant Reformation.

C Upon pain of Punishment by the Censures of the Church.] Wherewith the Church standeth encharged by the Scriptures.

Be it Enacted, That all A. B. &c. shall have full power, &c. by virtue of this Act, to correct and punish, &c.] Not that this power is here, or was first bestowed by the Indulgence of Christian Princes, but by them continued upon the Practice of the Church in former Ages, even before there were any Christian Princes in the World, as it received the same from the Apostles, and the power given them by Christ himself. But because our Lord endued not the Ministers of his Kingdom, with any external Power, to constrain Obedience, therefore the Laws of Kingdoms and Commonwealths have enforced the Execution, and outward Effect of that Power, which is instituted in the Scriptures: And in this respect, not the Power of Excommunication alone, but of Preaching and Ministring the Sacraments; and whatsoever else belongeth to the Office of a Minister in the Church, is derived from the Power of the Commonwealth, that is in our particular from the Imperial Crown of this Kingdom; because it is exercised with Effect outwardly, or doing the Work (though not of producing the inward end and purpose of converting the Soul) by Laws enforcing thereunto. The Secular Arm does not herein give, but cherish the Power of the Church in the Bosom of the Kingdom.

The PREFACES.

C THERE never was any, &c.] There are great Clamours made against our Order of Service, as being taken wholly out of the Breviary and Missal. How unjust and untrue that Clamour and Charge is, may appear from the Order appointed for the Psalter to be read over once in a Month, and for the Scriptures once in a Year, and in many other Particulars: But they that Clamour, it would concern either their Honesty or their Shame, if not to look into the Breviary or Mass, of which they are so confident, by bare Report of others; yet to look upon this Preface, and to consider whether Men of common Sense, would use all the Reasons here specified, to excuse the Alteration of that Course, which now they are accused only to retain. But grant that to be true, which is apparently false, were the Mass and Breviary yet worse than they are, and all our Order contained in them; is it possible that any Man of Judgment, or Conscience, should think it enough to say, that this or that is in the Mass, and never trouble himself to shew, that it is part of the Corruptions contained in it?

For the ancient Fathers so ordered the matter, That the whole Bible, or the greatest part thereof, should be read over, &c. The Order of reading the Scriptures in the ancient Primitive Church, is set forth in the Const. of the Apostles, Lib. II. Cap. 57. And Two Lessons of the Old Testament being read, &c. after that our Acts, and the Epistles of St. Paul our Work-fellow, which he sent to the Churches, by the Direction of the Holy Ghost; and, after all this, let a Deacon, or a Presbyter, read the Gospel: Like as it is afterwards ordered in our Book; The Lessons first, after the Epistle, and after all, the Gospel, which was always the last.

C Intending thereby that the Clergy, &c. and all the People, by daily hearing the Holy Scriptures read in the Church, might profit, &c. That by this means they might become familiar to them, as Josephus said of the Jews, who by hearing Moses read so often in their Synagogues, became as perfect in their Laws, as a Man is in telling his own Name.

C Yet the wilful Transgression of a common Order and Discipline, is no small Offence before God. The more have they to answer for, to make it their Employment, to extinguish in the Minds of the People, that respect to the solemn Order and Form of God's Service among us, which the Church by that Order has laboured to procure, and which the Blessing of God had without doubt generally procured also, had not their peevishness been, that will not have God served, unless it be in their own way, that they have lately set up, and like best: But whatever Honour the Praises of God, reverently and attentively performed, might have yielded him; whatever good Fruit the learning of his Will might have brought forth in the People; is with Justice to be required at their hands, who have been the means to interrupt it, by the unjust Disgrace and Contempt which they have cast upon it.

C No Private Man ought to presume to alter any Publick Order, &c. What this amounts to, St. Austin's Experience may teach us; Serm. 144. de Temp. Volueram aliquando, ut per singulos annos, secundum omnes Evangelistas etiam Passio legeretur; factum est: sed audierunt homines quod non consueverant, & perturbati sunt.

C Some of the old Ceremonies are retained still, without which it is impossible to keep Order, &c. And from the beginning, as early as the Records of the Church are able to inform us, we are sure it was never without such Ceremonies and outward Observances, as, according to the State of time, tended to maintain and witness the inward Life of Religion. The Apostles Ordinance for Men to be bare-headed, and for Women to be veiled in the Church; the Salutation, and kiss of Peace; the Imposition of Hands in divers Acts of Publick Service; the stretching out the Hand to give the Blessing, are of this Nature: And where the Apostles speak of putting off the Old Man, and putting on the New, Col. 3. 9. of being buried in Baptism, Col. 2. 12. Rom. 6. 4. of the Unction of Grace, 1 John 2. 20. 1 Cor. 2. 22. Allusion is made to some Rites of Ecclesiastical Offices, used even in their times. As for the old Writers, it will be hard to name any of them, in whom are not found divers Particulars of this kind, even in the times of Persecution, which is like an Antiperistasis in Nature, in preserving any solemn Order in the Church Offices. But after the World came in, and the State of the Church increased, it was but requisite that the Ceremonies and Solemnities of Divine Offices should increase likewise with it.

C In these our doings we condemn no other Nations.] Nimis enim inhumanus est, qui non concedendum putat, mores & consuetudines & Ritus suos quibusq; sequi, modò non adversentur verbo Dei. Non necesse est ab omnibus Christianis cuncta eodem modo fieri & geri: unam oportet esse Fidei doctrinam, unum Charitatis vinculum; cætera sunt diversa locis, conditionibus, temporibus, quæ unitatem Religionis & Ecclesiæ non scindunt: nisi & hoc est existimandum separationem

Howardus in Epiſt. ad Dom. Guil. Cæcilium Enchirid. precum prefixa. MS.*

*† Without breaking one piece from another, & infra, as did break the continual courſe of reading the Holy Scripture.] If that were ſuch a Fault (ſay the Surveyors) how came the Epiſtles and Goſpels, that are but pieces of Scripture, ſtill appointed to be read? Which Contradiction makes the Puritans, allowing this Preface as being againſt the Papiſts, ſo deride the appointing of the Epiſtles and Goſpels, as being contrary thereunto.

*† For that here you have an Order for Prayer.] Theſe are the Words which were made for authorizing King Edward's firſt Service-Book. And therefore, though ſome things be here in this Book omitted which were in that, yet none of them can be accounted thoſe that are termed untrue, uncertain, vain and ſuperſtitious; for certainly then they would have made ſome new Preface, and not uſed the old, to condemn thoſe Orders by the ſame Words and Arguments, wherewith they were formerly maintained.

Or which is evidently grounded upon the ſame.] As the Books of Apocrypha, Homilies, Prayers, Confeſſions, Exhortations.

*† The Curates ſhall need no other Books for their Publick Service, but this and the Bible, nor the People be at ſuch Charges.] I cannot ſee what kind of Commendation this can be: Sure the more Books, the more ſolemn would God's Service be: But it ſeems, the People began even then to deſire, that their Divine Service might quickly be diſpatcht; and that they might be put to no great Charges for the Maintenance of it; or elſe theſe Two Arguments would never have been thought of. The Archbiſhop of Mentz, in the like caſe, took care of the Peoples Charges, that they which were poor ſhould not be put to buy ſo many Books, as were needful for the Church Service; yet he took an Order for Money another way, Fer. in Ep. ad Arch. Mog. prefix. Concion. in Adventu. And yet Layman, in his Preface before his Moral Theology, ſaith, The Papiſts (his Men) are herein as faulty and covetous as ours.

C† And when heretofore there has been great diverſity.] And the diverſity was no leſs in other Countries, than it was in England: Socr. Lib. 5. Cap. 22. In univerſum certè, & in omnibus obſervationibus piarum precum, non poſſunt duæ Eccleſiæ inveniri, quæ prorſus inter ſe conſentiant. Id. ib. videtur mihi multa, modo in his regionibus, modo in illis conſuetudinem obtinuiſſe.

And the Church of Rome it ſelf, ſeeing the many Inconveniencies which came, by their variety of Breviaries and Miſſals which they had, have followed us in this Reformation; and taken Order for the reducing of all under 500 Years to one Uniformity, in their Council of Trent; which is ſince performed, though not as ſome more Learned and Pious among them expected. Read Pan. in his Preface to Micrologus. So did the Biſhop of Mentz, by his own Authority (when Ferus lived his Chaplain there about him) by whom he is highly commended, for reducing the Agenda of the Church to one uniform Order throughout all his Dioceſe; and not them only, but the Doctrine of all Sermons throughout his Dioceſe to one Form, that every body might not only pray, but preach alike: *Ferus in Ep. præfix. C† Salisbury uſe.] Oſmond, Biſhop of Salisbury, in the time of William the Conqueror, and Will. Ruſus, firſt compoſed that Order of Service in his Church (which had newly been built by him) and there it was daily uſed; being ſo well approved, that it came afterwards to be uſed by moſt of the other Churches in the Realm, and was a Pattern followed by many other Churches Abroad, from whence proceeded the common Saying of ſecundum uſum Sarum. In the Third Year of Henry V. the Order of Church Service throughout England, was changed from the uſe of Paul's, to that of Salisbury, to the great miſliking of many in thoſe Days. De Banachorenſis & Sariburienſis Eccleſiarum Officiis ita judicavit, H. Havardus in Epiſt. ad D. Guil. *† And all the Prieſts and Deacons ſhall be bound to ſay daily.] So that we are alſo bound, and all Prieſts are in the Church of Rome, daily to repeat and ſay the Publick Service of the Church. And it is a Precept the moſt uſeful and neceſſary, of any other that belongs to the Miniſters of God, and ſuch as have Cure of other Mens Souls, would Men regard it, and practiſe it a little more than they do among us. We are all for Preaching now; and for attending the Service and Prayers, appointed by the Church for God's Worſhip, and the good of all Men, we think that too mean an Office for us; and therefore, as if it were not worth our Labour, we commonly hire others under us to do it, more to ſatisfy the Law, than to be anſwerable to our Duties. Here's a Command that binds us every Day to ſay the Morning and Evening Prayer, How many are the Men that are noted to do it? 'Tis well they have a Back-door for an excuſe to come out at here: For good Men! they are ſo belaboured with ſtudying of Divinity, and Preaching the Word, that they have no leiſure to read theſe ſame Common Prayers; as if this were not a chief part of their Office and Charge committed unto them. Certainly, the People whoſe Souls they have care of, reap as great Benefit, and more too, by theſe Prayers, which their Paſtors are daily to make unto God for them, either privately or publickly, as they can do by their Preaching: For God is more reſpective to the Prayers which they make for the People, than ever the People are to the Sermons which they make to them.

And in this reſpect are the Prieſts called God's Remembrancers, Iſa. 62. 6. becauſe they put God in mind of his People, deſiring him to keep and bleſs them daily with things needful, both for their Bodies and their Souls. And whatſoever the World makes on't, no doubt but God has a greater regard to the Prayers of his Prieſts; Men that are near him, and appointed for the offering up of that daily Sacrifice; than to the Prayers of other common Chriſtians whatſoever. And ſo God tells Abimelech, that he would have him to deal well with Abraham, becauſe he was a Prophet, and ſhould pray for him, Gen. xx. 7. And ſo to Job's Friends, That his Servant Job ſhould pray for them, and he would accept him, Job xlii. 8. And it was the Office that was appointed to the Prieſts in the Law, Levit. v. 18. He ſhall make an Attonement for the People (not ſo much to teach and preach to the People, as Men now-a-days think all the Office lies in doing that, but) to offer Sacrifice and Incenſe unto the Lord, Deut. xxxiii. which was but a figure of what the Miniſters of Chriſt were to do in the Goſpel. Therefore Samuel profeſſes it openly, to the ſhame of all others, that he ſhould ſin no leſs in neglecting to pray for the People, than he ſhould in leaving off to teach them the right way of God's Commandments: Both which are needful; but to them who are converted already, Prayer is more neceſſary than Preaching. Howſoever we are to remember, that we which are Prieſts are called, Matth. ii. 7. Angeli Domini: And it is the Angel's Office, not only to deſcend to the People, and teach them God's Will, but to aſcend alſo to the Preſence of God, to make Interceſſion for the People, and to carry up the daily Prayers of the Church in their behalf, as here they are bound to do. As we are common Chriſtians, we ſhould go to our Prayer Three times a day, Pſal. lv. At Evening, and at Morning, and at Noon-day will I praiſe thee. But as we are ſpecially ſeparated from other Chriſtians, to be Prieſts and Prophets, we ſhould go to the Seven times times a day, Pſalm cxix. Seven times a day will I praiſe thee. And of old, this daily and continual Prayer, made by the Prieſts in behalf of the People, was ſo much accounted and made on, that they took order to have no Intermiſſion of Prayer; and becauſe the ſame Prieſts could not always attend it, therefore they were to do it in their courſes; ſome at the firſt Watches, ſome at the Second, and others at the third; that ſo, whilſt ſome reſted, others might pray. And of this David ſpeaks,

Pſal.

Pſal. cxix. Mine Eyes prevent the Night Watches; and St. Luke xii. 38. mentions the ſecond, and the third Watches: And David's Diligence, in performing his Duty for the good of the People, was ſuch, as that he profeſſes it, At Midnight I will riſe up to give thanks unto thee: So Paul and Silas roſe at Midnight to ſing Praiſes unto God, Acts xvi. It were therefore well to be wiſhed, that the ſame Order were taken in the Church now; and that the Sacrifice of Prayer might be continually offered up unto God among Chriſtians, as well as it was in the Synagogues of the Jews.

It was the Cuſtom of the old Chriſtians, daily, before they did any thing, to go and worſhip the Lord that made them; Ante omnia adoremus Dominum qui fecit Nos. And therefore St. Jerom, in the Life of Hilarion the Monk, writes, That when he and his Company were invited to a Morning Refection in a Vineyard, Maledictus ſit (ſaid the Holy Man) qui prius refectionem Corporis quam animæ quæſierit: Oremus, pſallamus, reddamus Domino officium, & ſic ad vineam properabitis. Completo itaq; miniſterio, (ſays St. Jerom) when Prayers were over, they went and refreſhed themſelves, &c.

Of the Form of our Service, and the Conſonance of it with others.

*† WE are blamed by the Puritans, that we come too near the Form of the Papiſts; and by the Papiſts, we are condemned for going too far off; nay, for not taking the ſelf ſame Form that they have in all things. To the firſt, Mr. Hooker has given a ſufficient Anſwer: To the ſecond we ſay, That our Church has done no more, than Holy Men before have given Direction, and Warrant to do. For thus writes the old Holy Abbot Hildaninus, a Man excellently learned in Holy Writ, in his Epiſtle ad Ludovicum Imperatorem, now extant, cited by Berno Aug. c. 2. de quibuſd. rebus ad Miſſam ſpectant. His Epiſtle is about Dionyſius, and his Fellow Martyrs, where, among other things that made for his purpoſe, he writ on this manner.

Of Ceremonies, why ſome are aboliſhed, and ſome retained.

*† THis Preface is the ſame verbatim, with that which is in the Service Book of King Edward VI. the Preface then being retained, it ſeems all the Ceremonies of that Book are ſtill juſtified by our Church, though ſome of them, at Calvin's and Bucer's inſtance, were omitted in the Review of the Book, 5 Edw. VI. as not accounted abſolutely neceſſary.

Ceremonies.] ·:· W ·:· Ceremonias definiunt Decorum, Diſciplina, Significatio.

C Ceremonies aboliſhed and retained.] I find no difference between that in the 2d of King Edward's, and Ours, but in this Expreſſion, As we have taken away thoſe that were unprofitable, ſo we would not have thoſe that are left to bind Men's Conſciences; (for ſo it is in the Latin Edition) which Words are now altered (as they were in 5 Edw.) to this Tenor, As thoſe be taken away which were moſt abuſed, and did burden Men's Conſciences without any cauſe; ſo the other, that remain, are retained for Order and Diſcipline; which upon juſt reaſon may be altered, and therefore are not to be eſteemed equal with God's Law. In the end of the Book 2 Edw. after this Diſcourſe of Ceremonies aboliſhed and retained, are certain Rules added concerning the Ceremonies themſelves: 1. That the Miniſter, at all times of his Miniſtration, at Matt. Even-ſong, Bapt. Bur. &c. ſhall wear a Surplice in the Pariſh Church; and in Cathedral and Collegiate Places, that they ſhall alſo wear their Ornaments and Enſigns of their ſeveral Degrees and Dignities. 2. That in the Celebration of the Lord's Supper, the Prieſt ſhall wear, beſides his Surplice or Alb, a Veſtment or Cope; and being a Biſhop, he ſhall alſo have his Paſtoral Staff. 3. In all other Places it ſhall be at the Miniſter's choice, whether he will wear the Surplice, or no. 4. As for kneeling, croſſing, holding up the Hands, knocking on the Breaſt, and the like Geſtures, they may be uſed or omitted, as every one thinketh meet. 5. That upon the Feaſts of Chriſtmaſs, Eaſter, Aſcenſion, Pentecoſt, and Trinity, ſome place of Scripture may be read (ſo it be proper to the Feaſt) inſtead of the Litany. 6. That by reaſon of the Sermon, or any other juſt Cauſe, the Miniſter may (if he will) omit the Litany, the Glory to God on high, the Creed, and the Exhortation at the Communion: For the Litany was then annexed to it. But this Freedom is not now allowed.

Bucer, in his Cenſure upon this Preface of Ceremonies aboliſhed and retained, findeth great fault with the Ringing of Bells in a Peal, which he ſaith is a Cuſtom ſtill kept up by ſuperſtitious Men, and fooliſh Boys, that carry the Ringers Beer or Ale to drink; and that it is againſt Reaſon to Ring all the Day-time, and all the Night-time too when they pleaſe; doing this eſpecially upon ſuperſtitious Holidays; as upon All-Souls Day, the Feaſts of the Conception, the Preſentation of the Virgin Mary, upon St. George's, and other fabulous Saints Days; with much more to that purpoſe.

And now by this Paſſage of Bucer's, we know the reaſon why Archbiſhop Grindal (who was well acquainted with him, and affected his ways) inquired in his Articles of Viſitation, Whether there was any Superſtitious Ringing upon Saints Days, &c. For Bucer will allow no Ringing at all, but to call People to Church, or to pray for the Sick, or to come to Publick Meeting for the Affairs of the Commonwealth.

He likewiſe finds fault there, with thoſe Miniſters that ſtill uſed Veſtments and Lights in the Church; with the Geſtures of Bowing and Croſſing; with making clean the Chalice; taking the Bread and Wine into the Prieſt's Hand, when he repeats the Words of Inſtitution over them; removing the Service Book from the Right to the Left ſide of the Table (as they did when they read the Epiſtle,) ſetting the Table in the ſame place where the Altar ſtood; and with ſhewing the Bread and the Cup (though they did not elevate) to old doting and ſuperſtitious Perſons, who were ready to adore them. All which he wiſhed to have altered; and ſo it was in the 5th of Edw. 6.

But in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth, all the Ornaments of the Church were reſtored again, by the Act of Uniformity, and the Poſture of the Table in the place where the Altar ſtood, was ſpecially appointed by the Queen's Injunctions.

He moved to have fewer Holidays kept; and they made an Act to that purpoſe the ſame Year, or thereabouts.

He was content to let the Days of Chriſt's Nativity, Circumciſion, Epiphany, Paſſion, Reſurrection and Aſcenſion, ſtand ſtill; together with Whitſunday, Annunciation, St. John Baptiſt, St. Peter, St. Paul, with St. Michael, and All-Angels: But if they would retain any of the Apoſtles, or other Martyrs Days, he wiſhed they ſhould be kept only in the Afternoons. In this they followed him not.

He would have all the Churches kept ſhut, but in Service time only, that they might not be prophaned with talking and walking in them. And he would have no Children ſuffered (that cry or make a noiſe) in Churches, during the time of any Service there.

*† At length turned to Vanity and Superſtition.] None of theſe can be meant of any Ceremonies uſed in King Edw. VI's firſt Service Book, for that Book has theſe very Words, and therefore they muſt be meant of other Ceremonies, which they in the Church of England at that time refuſed, and of no other that are ſince omitted; I ſay, omitted only, and not condemned; for if our Church had meant, to condemn the Ceremonies uſed in that Book, they would never have taken the ſame Diſcourſe about Ceremonies to do it, which is here uſed to approve and authorize them, but they would have made ſome other of ſet purpoſe to condemn them.

C† Are worthy to be cut away, and clean rejected.] And this was the Rule preſcribed in the Decrees of the Church, ſet forth by Gratian Diſtinct. 63. Quia ſancta ſicut ſcriptura quoq; divina dicit, quod Ezechias diſſipavit Excelſa & contrivit ſtatuas, & ſuccidit lucos, & fregit ſerpentem æneum quem fecit Moyſes, quia illum ſerpentem, quem Deus fieri juſſerit, ne ſerpentinâ morte populus interiret, ipſe populus colere & venerari cæperat; & idcirco deſtruxit iſte, quem jubente Deo fecerat ille. Et per hoc magna authoritas iſta eſt ſatenda in Eccleſiâ, ut ſi nonnulli in prædeceſſoribus & majoribus noſtris fecerunt aliqua quæ in illo tempore potuerunt eſſe ſine culpâ, & poſtea verſuntur in errorem & ſuperſtitionem, ſine tarditate aliquâ, & cum magnâ authoritate a poſteris deſtruantur. So that the Church of England uſed no other Liberty herein, than what was allowed both by the Scripture, and the Canons Eccleſiaſtical then in uſe.

C† And though the keeping or omitting of a Ceremony, in it ſelf conſidered, be but a ſmall thing.] "But there is nothing ſo little in "Religion, which being omitted, other things are not by degrees "neglected, and grow into Contempt: But however, we do not "ſet that weight upon Ceremonies as the ancient Heathens, and at "this Day the Papiſts do. Publius Calius, M. Cornelius, M. Cethegus, "and C. Claudius, for not bringing the Entrails of the Sacrifices to the "Altar with ſufficient care, were turned out of the Prieſthood, tho' "the Roman Commonwealth was at that time engaged in a great War, "Sulpitius Flaminius loſt his Office, becauſe his Cap fell off from his "Head whilſt he was officiating. Careleſneſs is one part of Impiety, "but Contempt of Order and Diſcipline is a greater.

*† And authorized thereunto.] As the Holy Church of England was and is, having power over her Cuſtoms and Ceremonies, to appoint and alter them as there is juſt cauſe given; for She preſcribes not any Ceremonies to other Churches, nor has She abrogated any that were inſtituted by Chriſt, or his Apoſtles, and were generally received by the whole Church of God. And as for other Ceremonies, taken up either by Her, or by other particular Churches, it is not true which the Roman Doctors ſay, That Traditions may not be changed or aboliſhed, without the general Conſent of the whole Church; for without any ſuch Conſent, they have changed or aboliſhed many themſelves; and ſuch Ceremonies, as they never grew together at one time in all Places, ſo can they not at one time, and in all Places together, be lightly aboliſhed.

That they would innovate all things.] ·:· W ·:· Non eſt innovatio dicenda, ſiquid in melius ſimpliciter, ſeu alteratione, ſeu adjectione fiat. St. Ambr. Lib. II. de Off. Alteratio enim illa eſt ſchiſmatica Innovatio, quæ benè poſita deſtruit, non perficit.

C† St. Auſtin in his time complained.] His Words concerning this matter are pregnant and plain: Hoc minùs doleo quia multa, quæ in divinis Libris ſaluberrimè præcepta ſunt, minùs curantur, & tam multis præſumptionibus ſic plena ſunt omnia. And again, Quamvis iſta contra fidem non ſint, tamen ipſam Religionem quam puriſſimis & manifeſtiſſimis Celebrationum ſacramentis miſerecordia Dei liberam eſſe voluit, ſervilibus oneribus ita premunt, ut tolerabilior ſit Conditio Judæorum, qui etſi tempus Libertatis non agnoverint, legalibus tamen ſarcinis, non humanis præſumptionibus ſubjiciuntur, S. Aug. Ep. 119.

C† And he counſelled.] Omnia talia, &c. ubi facultas tribuitur ſine omni dubitatione reſecanda exiſtimo. Id. ib.

*† Than of Innovations and Newfangledneſs which is always to be eſchewed.] When God by his good Spirit put it into our Hearts to reform our ſelves, and then by all good means to ſeek the Reformation of others that remained obdurate in their wonted Superſtitions, had we not only cut off their Corruptions, but alſo eſtranged our ſelves

ſelves from them in ancient and laudable Ceremonies; who ſees not how greatly prejudicial this might have been to ſo good a Cauſe; and what occaſion it had given them to think, that through a forward or wanton deſire of Innovation, we did thoſe things for which Conſcience was pretended. Hook. pag. 141.

Thoſe who make ſo perilous a matter of our retaining theſe Ceremonies, common to us with the Church of Rome, do ſeem to imagine, that we have of late erected a Frame of ſome new Religion, the Furniture whereof we ſhould not have borrowed from our Enemies, leſt they relieving us, might afterward laugh and gibe at our Poverty; whereas in truth we have continued the old Religion, and the Ceremonies which we have taken from them that were before us, are not things which belong to this or that Sect, but they are the ancient Rites and Cuſtoms of the Church of Chriſt, whereof ourſelves being a part, we have the ſelf ſame Intereſt in them, which our Fathers before us had, from whom the ſame deſcended unto us. We have reaſon therefore, moſt heartily to thank God, that they among us, to whom the firſt Conſultation of Cauſes in this kind fell, were Men, which aiming at the Glory of God, and the good of this his Church, took that which they judged thereunto neceſſary, not rejecting out of any peeviſh or angry Diſpoſition thoſe Rites and Ceremonies which were old, good and convenient, pag. 144.

Of Ceremonies, the great uſe of them in the Church: The Moderation of the Church of England, in retaining ſome, and aboliſhing others.

*† IN every grand or main publick Duty which God requires at the hands of his Church, there is, beſides the matter and form wherein the Eſſence thereof conſiſts, a certain outward Faſhion whereby the ſame is in decent ſort adminiſtred. The Subſtance of all Religious Actions, as of the Sacraments, are by God himſelf ſet down in few Words, Accedat verbum ad Elementum, & fit Sacramentum; there needs no more, ſaith St. Auſtin. But the due and decent Form of adminiſtring theſe Sacraments, does require a great deal more.

The end which is aimed at, in ſetting down the outward Form of all Religious Actions, is the Edification of the Church. Edified Men are, whenever their Underſtanding is taught ſomewhat, which in ſuch Actions it behoveth all Men to conſider, or, when their Hearts are moved with any Affection ſuitable thereunto; both which are done, when their Minds are in any ſort ſtirred up unto that Reverence, Devotion, Attention and due regard, which in thoſe caſes ſeemeth requiſite.

To this purpoſe not only Speech, but ſundry ſenſible means beſides, have always been thought neceſſary; and among them, thoſe moſt eſpecially that are objects to the Eye, which being the livelieſt, and the moſt apprehenſive Senſe of all others, is the fitteſt to make a deep and ſtrong Impreſſion in the Minds of Men. From this Conſideration have riſen, not only thoſe numbers of Prayers, Reading, Queſtioning, Anſwers, Exhortations, but even of viſible Signs alſo, in the performance of all our Religious Actions, whereby Mens Minds and Hearts muſt needs be a great deal more effectually ſtirred up to Devotion and Attention, than otherwiſe they could.

No Nation under Heaven, either does, or ever did ſuffer any publick Actions, which are of weight, whether Temporal or Sacred, to paſs without ſome viſible Solemnity; becauſe the very ſtrangeneſs and difference of it from other common Actions, may make popular Eyes to obſerve and mark the ſame the better. And if we ſhould let paſs ours without the like, we might be thought to tranſgreſs the very Rule of Nature. Therefore, with ſingular Wiſdom has it been provided, That the Deeds of Men, which are made in the preſence of Witneſſes ſhould paſs not only with Words, which for the moſt part are but ſlightly heard, becauſe they are common, and do not ſo ſtrongly move the Fancy of Man; but alſo with certain ſenſible Actions that may be ſeen, the Memory whereof is far more eaſy and durable, than the Memory of Speech can be. Now Ceremonies having ſuch a great uſe in the Church, needful it was, that ſome at leaſt ſhould be retained; and Ceremonies which long Experience of all Ages hath confirmed and made profitable, a needleſs and preſumptuous Act it had been to aboliſh them; and therefore a mean was kept, and a godly Reſolution here taken by the Church of England, to remove only ſuch things as were new and ſuperfluous, and retaining ſuch as were old and behoveful, for the edifying of Chriſtian People, Hook. Lib. 4.

Some are put away, becauſe the great exceſs and multitude of them hath increaſed in theſe later Days.] And it was not amiſs to decree, That thoſe Ceremonies which were leaſt needful, and newlieſt come in, ſhould be the firſt taken away; as in the Abrogating of an exceſſive number of Saints Days, and of other the like Cuſtoms: But having this way eaſed the Church, as they thought, of Superfluity, it had been amiſs to have proceeded on till they had plucked up all uſeful and convenient Ceremonies alſo by the Roots. To abrogate thoſe things, without conſtraint of appparent harm thereby ariſing, had been to alter unjuſtly, the ancient received Cuſtoms of the whole Church, the univerſal Practice of the People of God, and thoſe general Decrees of the Fathers; which (in St. Auſtin's Language) is Madneſs and Inſolence to do, both in reſpect of the univerſal Authority of the Church, which no particular Church hath power to controul, and alſo in regard of Reaſons aforementioned.

The Table and Kalendar, &c.

C† The Number is expreſſed after the Great Engliſh Bible.] The Bible was tranſlated into the Saxon Tongue, for the Service of God, by the Commandment of Athelſtan King of England, about the Year of our Lord, 930. But this Great Engliſh Bible was ſet forth in the time of King Henry VIII. by Cuthbert Tonſtall, Biſhop of Dureſm, and Nicholas Heath, Biſhop of Rocheſter, A. D. 1540. and 1541. uſed in all Churches, in the time of King Edw. VI. And out of this Bible were the Epiſtles and Goſpels, and the Pſalms taken, that are in this Book of the Common Prayer. In the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's reign, that Bible was reviewed, and another ſet forth, which in that time was called, The Biſhop's Bible.

C The Kalendar.] In this Kalendar, which preſerves the Memory of ſome ancient Holy Men and Women that were famous in the Church (altho' their Days be not now appointed by the new Statute to be kept Holy Days, nor were they all of them appointed to be kept ſo before) there is ſome difference between this Edition and that of Edw. VI. to which the Act of Uniformity refereth. In January Lucian and Priſca are omitted, with Fabian: So Baſil is added in the 5th of Edw. 6. In February, Dorothy and Mildred are added. In March, Perpetua, St. Greg. and St. Benedict are omitted; Adrian is added. In April, Richard and Alphage are omitted. In May, John Beverley, Prancrace, Helena, Adelina are added, and Pernelle. In June are added Edmund, and the Tranſlation of Edw. In July, Martin and Swithin are omitted, Seven Sleepers are added. In Auguſt, Name of Jeſus, and Beheading of St. John Baptiſt, are omitted; Aſſumption of the Virgin Mary, Magnus, Bernard, Felix and Cuthbert are added. In September, Eunarchus, Holy Croſs, Lambert and Cyprian are omitted. In November, Brice, Machute, St. Hugh B. St. Edmund King, and Cecily, are omitted; and Theodore is added. In December, O Sapientia and Silveſter are omitted, and Oſmund is added.

In Auguſt, the Note and Alteration of the Leſſon concerning the 13th of Daniel; In October, concerning the 6th of Exodus; In November, concerning the 26th and 24th Chapters of Eccleſiaſticus; came from the Order of King James and his Biſhops, upon the Exceptions taken by the Puritans, againſt the Leſſons formerly appointed by Law, in the Conference at Hampton Court. Whereupon we have now that Proclamation ſet at the beginning of this Book, which before his time we had not; neither was it lawful to make any Alterations in the Liturgy, but by the whole Convocation and Parliament, as it ſhould ſeem by the Act of Uniformity; of the Penalties wherein contained, for making any Alteration, the Biſhops were not mindful to inform the King; who, I believe, would otherwiſe have let the Book alone as it was, both here, and in other places after.

The Order how the Holy Scripture is to be read.

*† Excepting certain Books and Chapters which are leſs edifying.] The Puritans, in their Survey, are very angry at this Exception, and tell us, We defraud God's People of ſome Books of Scripture, as the Papiſts do defraud them of all. Their Reaſons againſt it are, Jer. xxvi. 2. Stand in the Lord's houſe, and ſpeak unto the people all the words that I command thee, keep not a word back, Rev. i. 3. cap. xxii. 19.

The Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel, appointed for Sunday, ſhall ſerve all the Week after.] And ſo it was ordained in the Order of Sarum, vid. Dominicam, lxx. which is ſo appointed, for that the Epiſtle and Goſpel are to be read every Day of the Week, as every Day there ſhould be a Communion: If People be married on the Week-day, at that time by this Book they are enjoyned to receive; and ſo when Women after Child-birth are churched; or when Men in Cathedral Churches (where they are enjoyned it every Sunday at leaſt) ſhall deſire to have the Communion on the Week-day; that then the Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel ſhall be uſed, which was appointed for the Sunday.

But the Prefaces proper upon the Feaſts of Chriſtmaſs, Eaſter, and Whitſunday, are appointed to be read Six Days after (that is, if there be Communions upon thoſe Days) and becauſe it is ſuppoſed, that all Men whatſoever do receive at Eaſter, therefore are there ſpecial Epiſtles and Goſpels appointed Six Days together before that time, more than all the Year beſides. A good Note this is, to know the intent of our Church by; which was, that the Sacrament ſhould be propounded every Day, for them to come unto and receive that were godly diſpoſed; and therefore is that Exhortation to the People, being negligent in coming thereunto, not only to be read at the three ſolemn times, but at what time of the Year the Miniſter pleaſes, and as he perceives the People to neglect their Devotion all the Year through. The three ſolemn Times being for all upon penalty by Law; but every Day for thoſe devout People that ſhall be ſo well diſpoſed; firſt one Company, and then another, ſo there be not leſs than three to communicate with the Prieſt, as it is appointed in the Rubrick of the Common Prayer.

Except there fall ſome Feaſt that has its proper.] When the Feaſt-day falls upon a Sunday, it was ordered, in the Service of Sarum, that the Sunday Service ſhould give way to the Proper Service ordained for the Feſtival, except ſome peculiar Sunday only, and then the one or the other was transferred to ſome Day of the Week following, vid. Rubr. poſt. Feſt. S. Felicis in Menſe Januarii.

*† In the Firſt Book of King Edward there is no ſuch Rubrick, and yet in the Act prefixed before this Book, that Book is preciſely enjoyned to be obſerved and reprinted, without any ſuch Addition as this is.

C Then

C  Then ſhall follow certain Pſalms in order. ] Conc. Laod. Can. 17. Dion. Ar. cap. 3. Conſt. Ap. 2. 57. The Council of Laodicea, Can. 15. ordereth, That none but the Canonical Singers (ſuch as be enrolled in the Liſt of the Church) ſhould ſing the Pſalms. They found (it ſeems) an Inconvenience, in the ungrateful and harſh ſound that was made in the Church, when all the People ſung together, as aforetime they did. There was another Courſe, much uſed in ſome Parts of the Church, of ſinging the Pſalms by Sides, or Antiphones. And another, of ſinging the Acroſticks, or the End-Verſes of the Pſalms, by all the Men and Women together, Phil. de vit. Contemp. which were nothing elſe, but that the Congregation might joyn together in the Praiſes of God with more Comelineſs and Order, according to the ſeveral Conditions of divers Places.

C  Proper Pſalms on certain Days. ] In divers Copies (through the Negligence or Preſumption of the Printer) they vary from thoſe that are appointed in the Firſt and Second Edition of this Book: Which laſt is only allowed by the Act of Uniformity. The true Copy, according to the Fifth of Edw. VI. is this:

| | Mattins | | Evenſong | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Chriſtmaſs-day | Pſal. 19 | | 89 | 110 |
| | 45 | 85 | 132 | |
| Eaſter-day | 2 | 57 | 113 | 114 |
| | 111 | 118 | | |
| Aſcenſion-day | 8 | 15 | 24 | 68 |
| | 21 | 108 | | |
| Whitſunday | 48 | 104 | | |

C  The Old Teſtament is appointed for the firſt Leſſons, the New Teſtament for the Second. ] In the Conſtitutions of the Apoſtles, the Scriptures to be read in the Church are reckoned in particular: So in the Canon of Laodicea, the laſt Canon; and Dionyſius ſetteth forth the ſubject of all the Books of Scripture, which he ſaith are read after the Pſalms, to enlarge with more ample Declaration and Examples, thoſe things which in the Pſalms are but darkly and briefly delivered, C. 5.

C  Proper Leſſons on the Sundays, &c. ] As in the Act of Uniformity it is appointed, with one Alteration or Addition of certain Leſſons, to be uſed on every Sunday in the Year: For in the Former Edition of this Book, there were no Proper Leſſons ſet, but only for the high Feſtivals and Holidays. And they that were employed to make this Alteration, ſeem not to have been mindful of a Clauſe in the Preface (which they ſuffered to ſtand there ſtill) wherein is faulted the very ſame thing that is here now ordered: As, The Book of Eſay to begin in Advent, and the Book of Geneſis in Septuageſima; and when a few Chapters of them were read, to leave out the reſt. Indeed, a ſupply hereof was made in the whole Courſe of the Year, but that theſe Sunday-Leſſons do every Week break off the Courſe, (as the former Leſſons for the Feſtivals and Holidays did not) one of the Chapters appointed by the Kalendar to be read in due order, being omitted for that Day; and ſo no Book of the Scripture (by this means, as in the Preface is intended and promiſed) is entirely read or continued on, without Interruption, throughout the whole Year. Either the Preface, therefore, or the Kalendar (if we would make them agree and avoid Contradiction) ſeem to want ſome Amendment.

C  Leſſons proper for Holidays. ] They are not here upon every Day the ſame, that they were in the former Editions of this Book: the Differences are theſe; In the firſt Edition, the ſecond Leſſon at Mattins upon Chriſtmaſs-day, was St. Matth 1. and the ſecond Leſſon at Evenſong, Tit. 3. was appointed both in the firſt and ſecond Edition, to proceed no further than unto theſe Words, Fooliſh Queſtions. Upon St. Stephen's day no firſt Leſſons were ordered, nor upon St. John's day, nor upon Innocents day at Evenſong. Upon the Epiphany, the ſecond Leſſon at Morning Prayer, Luk. iii. was to begin at theſe Words, And it fortuned when the people were baptized, &c. Upon St. Paul's, St. Barnabas, and St. Peter's day, Monday and Tueſday, both in Eaſter-week and Whitſun-week, there were no firſt Leſſons appointed, either at Morning or Evening Prayer. On Aſcenſion-day, there were two ſecond Leſſons, and here be none. Upon Trinity-Sunday was no Leſſon for Evening Prayer. Upon Eaſter-day, at Evenſong, no firſt Leſſon. Upon Whitſunday no firſt Leſſons, either at Mattins or Evenſong. Upon the Days of Purification, St. Matthias, Annunciation, St. Mark, St. Philip and Jacob, St. James, St. Bartholomew, St. Matthew, St. Michael, St. Luke, St. Simon and Jude, St. Andrew, and St. Thomas, no Leſſons at all. Upon All-Saints, the ſecond Leſſon at Morning Prayer is ordered to begin at theſe Words in Hebr. xi. Saints by Faith ſubdued Kingdoms; and ſo ſhould it be printed in our Books, where for want of the Words, ſubdued Kingdoms, ſince the Old Bible was out of uſe, (I know not by what Authority left off, ſeeing theſe References of the Beginnings and Endings of Proper Leſſons, relate to that old Tranſlation which was in uſe 5 Edw. VI.) They commonly begin at the firſt Verſe of the Chapter, and read it through; and ſometimes alſo (for want of printing this Table exactly according to the firſt Copy) they leave off where they ſhould begin; and ſometimes, in ſtead of the true proper Leſſon, read another, that is nothing to the purpoſe of the Day: So that for the firſt Leſſon upon the Circumciſion-day at Evenſong, they commonly begin the Chapter, Deut. x. and leave off at the Words, And now Iſrael, &c. where they ſhould begin, and read out from thence to the end of the Chapter. And upon Epiphany-day, uſually for the firſt Leſſon at Mattins, they read Eſay xl. (which is nothing to the Day) in ſtead of Eſay lx. which is proper to it. And upon St. John Baptiſt's day, the ſecond Leſſon at Morning Prayer is printed Matth. xiii. when it ſhould be, Matth. iii. and all this, and more, through the Careleſsneſs of the Printer, and the Negligence of them who ſhould have the overſight of theſe Books, and be better acquainted with them than they are.

Proper Leſſons.

*† THUS was the Publick Service of the Church performed by the Jews, Neh. ix. 3. among whom the Book of the Law was read four times a Day, as it is here appointed, and every Day in the Year throughout the Kalendar; ſo, Acts xv. 22. Moſes was read in the Scriptures every Sabbath-day.

The firſt exact Compiler of theſe Feſtival Leſſons was one Muſæus, a Famous Prieſt of Maſſilia, who lived about the Year of our Lord, 480. of whom thus writeth Gennadius de viris illuſtribus, cap. 79. Muſæus Maſſilienſis Eccleſiæ Presbyter, vir in divinis ſcripturis doctus, &c. hortatu S. Venerii Epiſcopi excerpſit e ſanctis ſcripturis Lectiones totius anni feſtivis aptas diebus, Reſponſoria etiam Pſalmorum, Capitula temporì & Lectionibus congruentia. Quod opus tam neceſſarium a Lectionibus in Eccleſia probatur, ut expetitum & ſollicitudine inſtillat ut torem, plebiq; ingerit ſcientiam, celebritatem & decorum. Yet it cannot be, that he was the firſt Appointer of them; the Church uſed that Order long before, though perhaps not ſo exactly. St. Auſtin, in proœm. Ep. Joh. Meminiſtis Evangelium Johannis ex ordine Lectionum nos ſolere tractare; ſed quia nunc interpoſita eſt ſolennitas ſanctorum dierum, quibus CERTAS ex Evangelio LECTIONES oportet in Eccleſia recitare, quæ ita ſunt ANNUÆ ut aliæ eſſe non poſſint, ordo iſte quem ſuſceperamus, neceſſitate paululum intermiſſus eſt, non omiſſus. Id. Tract. VI. Joh. ANNIVERSARIA ſolennitate poſt paſſionem Domini noſtri Librum Act. Apoſtolorum omni anno in Eccleſia recitari; & Tract. XIII. Pſalmus viceſſimus primus omni anno legitur in noviſſimâ hebdomadâ intento univerſo populo.

Septuageſima, Gen. ii. Sexageſima, Gen. iii. 6. ] In luctu pœnitentiæ Septuageſima agitur, unde & retinetur interim ſolenne Hallelujah, & humanæ Tranſgreſſionis Hiſtoria miſerabilis ab Exordio cenſetur. B. Serm. I. in Sept. ad finem. This is the reaſon why Geneſis is begun in Septuageſima, and ſo continued on through Lent. And to fit us for the time of Abſtinence and Faſting, which is to follow, there could be nothing more fitly choſen, than the Story of Adam's Eating and Sinning; that ſeeing the danger of Sin, we might be the leſs given to it, and more to Temperance and Faſting. And though our new Maſters deride this Application of Faſting to God's Command in Paradiſe, yet before our Church, the ancient Fathers have done the ſame. Tertullian de jejunio, p. 645. ed. per Ren. Lauren. Acceperat Adam a Deo legem non guſtandi de Arbore, &c. verum & ipſe tunc in pſychicum reverſus, nec eam capiens quæ erat ſpiritûs, facilius Ventri quam

Deo cessit, pabulo potiùs quam præcepto annuit, salutem gulâ vendidit : manducavit deniq; & periit, salvus alioqui si uni arbusculo jejunare maluisset, ut jam hinc animalis fides semen suum agnoscat : exinde deducens carnalium appetitionem & spiritualium recusationem. Teneo itaq; a primordio homicidam gulam tormentis atq; suppliciis inediæ puniendam, etiamsi Deus nulla jejunia præcepisset : ostendens tamen unde sit occisus Adam, mihi reliquerat intelligenda remedia offensæ qui offensam demonstrârat. And these last Words are the true reason, why the Church hath appointed this Story of Genesis to be read at this time, the Preparation-time to Lent.

Whitsunday first Lesson at Evensong, Wisd. i.] Which is appointed to be read, in regard of these Words that are contained in that Chapter, Spiritus Domini replevit orbem terrarum, &c. which is the Introite in the Order of Sarum for this Festival.

*† Epiphany.] First Lessons, Isa. l. 49. Lessons proper to declare the Calling of the Gentiles, in the Persons of the Kings and Wisemen of the East. Second Lesson, Luke iii. to so that he was supposed to be the son of Joseph. John ii. to after this he went to Capernaum. Which Lessons are appointed to be read upon this Day, because Christ's Baptism, whereby he first manifested his Divinity to the Jews; and Christ's Miracle at Cana, whereby he first manifested his Divinity to his Disciples, fell upon it; as well as the Adoration of the Kings, whereby he first manifested himself to the Gentiles; which last is propounded in the first Lessons, both at Mattens and Evensong, where the Church applies all those Sayings of Kings, &c. to the Wise-men, and is derided for her Labour, by Calvin, The Reformer of good and all.

C† Munday in Easter-week at Morning Prayer, Exod. xvi.] This Lesson is appointed to be read, in reference to the Sacrament of the Eucharist, at this time of Easter generally celebrated, whereof the Manna was a Type, and wherein the Words of the Psalmist are verified : He opened the doors of heaven, and rained down Manna upon them to eat, and had given them of the corn of heaven : man did eat angels food, Psal. lxxviii. 25, 26. There is the same reason for the Appointment of the first Lesson at Evensong, Exod. xvii. concerning the Water of the Rock, a Type of the Blood of Christ, whereof we drink in that Sacrament, 1 Cor. x. And they all drank of that spiritual Rock, and that Rock was Christ. And Psal. lxxxi. 16. And he fed them with honey out of the stony Rock. Good Meditations are these upon the Sacrament, which we receive at Easter.

C† Munday in Whitsun-week, Gen. xi.] Upon Whitsun-eve they were wont (by the Order of Sarum) to say this Prayer in the Church of England : Præsta quæsumus Domine, ut Gentium facta dispersio divisione linguarum, ad UNAM confessionem tui nominis cælesti munere congregetur, per Dominum nostrum, &c. Grant, we beseech thee, O Lord, that whereas the Dispersion of the Gentiles was made by the Division of Tongues; so by thy heavenly Gift, they may be gathered together into one Confession of thy Name, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. And from hence was this Lesson appointed to be read.

*† Good Friday, St. Barnaby, Conversion of St. Paul.] In the Title to all these Days we read, Lessons proper for Holidays. It seems those Parliament-men who made the Act, (These to be Holidays, and no others) forgat to mend this Title, as they did to put out the Epistles and Gospels upon all the Week before Easter, and upon St. Barnaby's and St. Paul's Day, which are commanded by the Rubrick, at the end of the Communion, to be read only upon Holidays. I cannot reconcile them. We must either not read what is appointed, or if we do read (as fit it is we should, being the Institution of the Church) we must cross the Act of Parliament (as it is no great matter if we do, having so just an occasion to do it) and make them Holidays, as they always have been accounted. For the rest we shall observe somewhat in their places; only here for Good Friday, it is a shame for us that be Christians, not to observe it for a Holiday, and as solemnly as any other; and the Prophanation which we suffer every Cobler to make on't, can no more be defended, than the Spaniards prophaning of Sundays or Easter-day with their Markets and Fairs. Eusebius, Lib. II. cap. 7. tells us, That it was a solemn Feast in his time, and long before him : I know no reason but it should be kept so still; vid. Euseb. de vita Constantini, who commanded every Friday, as well as Sunday, to be observed holy. And so Sozomen. Lib. I. cap. 8:

It was rather the Printer's Act than the Act of Parliament; for the Act of Parliament was Repealed; and certainly, if there were any such Act in Force, (as, These to be observed, and no other) the Church of England would not have been suffered to have crossed it with calling all these Days, here besides, Holidays. It remains therefore, that we stick to this place, as being the proper Act of our Church, and neglect the other place, as being the Printer's Addition to fill up the Page with the number of Holidays, and the Beginnings and Endings of the Terms.

Noluit enim (sicut antea factum erat) a Calendis Januarii computare, sed a 25 Martii, quando Dominus incarnatus est in utero B. Virginis, propter notitiam Exordii Reparationis Humanæ conservandam.

The KALENDAR.

Of the Names of the Months.

*† "Diebus quippe istis, &c.] In former times, the Heathens "called the Days of the Week by the Names of their "Gods; and so likewise their Months : For in ho- "nour of Romulus, whom they esteemed to be the Son of Mars, they "called the first Month Martius, or March. April was not called "from the Name of any God, but from the thing itself, quasi Aperilis ab aperiendo, opening, because the Buds then began to open "into Flowers. The third Month was called Maius, or May, in "honour of Maia, the Mother of Mercury, who was then worship- "ped. The Month June, was called from the Goddess Juno. All "the rest had their Names from the Numbers : Only July was call- "ed so from Julius Cæsar, it being formerly called Quintilis, or the "fifth Month; and August from Augustus Cæsar, being called before "Sextilis, or the sixth Month. September, being the seventh Month, "was called so from Septem; and so on to the last, according to the "order of the Numbers, until December the tenth Month, which "was called so from Decem, Ten. The Month Januarius was called "from Janus; and February had its Denomination from the Februa, "Lustrations of the Luperci. [These Luperci were Priests of Pan, who "used to run naked about the Streets with a Goat's Tail in their "Hand, with which they were wont to strike all the teeming Women "they met with, to make them have an easy Labour.] S. Aug. Tom. 6. "Lib. 18. Cont. Faust. Man. Cap. 5.

Of the Names of the Days.

*† "UNA Sabbati dies, &c.] The First Day of the Week is "called the Lord's Day; the Second, the Secunda feria, "or the Second Day of the Week, which the Gentiles call Dies Lunæ. "The Third is called the Tertia feria, which they call Dies Martis. "The Fourth is called the Quarta feria, which is called Dies Mercurii by the Pagans, and by many Christians : But we would not "that they should call it so; but such is the Custom of the Tongue "which they use : Several other Nations call it diversly. The Ec- "clesiastical way of Speaking would sound better out of a Christian "Mouth : However, if any one have a Byass upon him by Custom, "so that that comes out of his Mouth which he disapproves in his "Heart, let him understand, that all those from whom the Planets "received their Names were Men, but by reason of certain Benefits "which Men received from these in their times, they being extraor- "dinary eminent in their Ages, and dear to Men, divine Honours "were paid to them; not out of hopes that they might obtain there- "by eternal Life, but only that they might obtain thereby temporal "Benefits; for the old Bards being themselves deceived, and be- "ing willing also to deceive others, out of Flattery to them who "had conferred some considerable secular Benefit, pointed to the "Stars

" Stars in Heaven, saying, That this was the Star of such an one, " and this belonged to another. Now those who had not before " taken notice of them, though they had seen them, the Stars being " there before they were born, being deceived into this Fancy, be- " lieved it; and thus the vain Opinion was conceived. S. Aug. " Tom. 8. Enarrat. in Psal. xciii. in præf.

Of the Saints Days.

*† THE Names of the Saints in the Church-Kalendar were not so many, but that for our better remembrance of them, they might all have stood still. Every Day had but one, when as Eusebius tells us, that upon Search made by Constantine the Great, for the Names of Times and Places, and manner of Martyrs Sufferings, there were found for every Day of the Year about 50 Saints, except the first of January only, when the Gentiles were so intent upon their own Riots, that they had no leisure to think of Martyring the Christians. St. Jerom says the same thing in his Epistle, prefixed to his Kalendar: Wherefore Gregory says, Totus Mundus est plenus sanctis, Dur. Rat. Lib. 7. cap. 1. n. 28. Not that they are all to be celebrated (as the great Feasts are) in all Places, but some in one Province, and some in another, that one-where or other their Memory may be preserved.

℣. W ℟. Requiritur ut Parochus quilibet indicet, quæ Festa Dominicam quamq; sequuntur, & quotâ feriâ celebranda sunt, ut inde simul statuti jejuniorum dies devoto populo innotescant. Ideo jejunia in prodromis Festorum; ideò Vigiliæ precesq; ab Ecclesia usurpatæ primùm, & statutæ nobis. Ideo ipsa Festa Sanctorum & Martyrum celebrantur die proximo illucescente, ut sciamus eos modicum quidem in afflictione, Jejuniis, Vigiliis, Precibus degisse; dein in gloriam & lætitiam translatos, ubi totos feriarum dies agunt: atq; inde Deo gloriam, Nobis exemplum. Illud tamen notandum, quod neq; Vigiliæ, neq; Jejunia, sed solæ Preces præcedant quædam Festa: neq; enim ad Festum Michaelis & Omnium Angelorum jejunatur, aut vigilatur propter rationes prædictas. Quinetiam licet prædictæ rationes in Festis S. Marci, Philippi & Jacobi, eorumq; quæ post Domini Natalem usq; ad Epiphaniam observantur, obtineant; tamen ex antiquissimis Canonibus vetantur ad hujusmodi Festa Jejunia, propter reverentiam majorum Solennitatum, Paschatis, viz. & Nativitatis. Anathema enim dixerunt sancti Patres vel intra Pascha & Pentecostem, vel intra Natalem & Epiphaniam jejunantibus. Et fieri nequit, ut Festa S. Marci, Sanctorum Philippi & Jacobi, aliter contingant quam intra dies Paschatis & Pentecostes.

Of the Commemorations and Anniversary-Days of the Martyrs and Confessors.

C† " SAint Cyprian, the most ancient of the Fathers after Tertullian, " thus writes to his Clergy, concerning the Confessors who " died in Bonds, and Prisons: Ep. XXXVII. Dies eorum quibus exce- " dunt, annotare, & Commemorationes eorum, inter memorias Marty- " rum celebrare poscimus. Et Ep. XXXIV. he thus speaks of Laurentius and Ignatius, qui palmas a Domino & Coronas illustri Passione " meruerunt, Sacrificia, (i. e. Gratiarum actiones) semper offerimus, " quoties Martyrum passiones & dies anniversariâ commemoratione cele- " bramus. Therefore thanks were given to Almighty God, that he " had been pleased to afford a glorious Victory, after so great and " difficult a Conflict: Therefore St. Austin, Lib. XXII. C. D. cap. " 10. says, Uni Deo & Martyrum & nostrum Sacrificium (laudis) " immolamus; ad quod Sacrificium, sicut homines Dei, qui mundum in " ejus Confessione vicerunt, suo loco & ordine nominantur, non tamen a " sacerdote qui sacrificat, invocantur. And to this refer those Words " of the Roman Canon; Communicantes & memoriam venerantes, im- " primis gloriosæ Virginis Mariæ, Genetricis Dei & Domini nostri Jesu " Christi, sed & Beatorum Apostolorum, & Martyrum tuorum Petri, " Pauli, &c.

" Hence it came to pass, that in the ancient Church, the " Deacon read with an audible Voice, before the whole Congrega- " tion, the Δίπτυχα, that is, some sacred Tables in which were con- " tained a Catalogue of the Martyrs, Apostles, Confessors, Bi- " shops, and Saints, who had died in the Faith of Christ; to the " end that their Memory might be celebrated, and thanks might be " given to God for their happy Departure.

" The same Honour was given to the Bishops in the next place " after the Apostles and Martyrs, that after their being taken out " of this World, their Names might be registred in the Dypticks, " and recited out of them. From this, arose that sharp and trou- " blesom Quarrel which sprung up between the Greeks and the Latins, " about the end of the fifth Age; by reason that the Roman Bishops " would have the Name of Acacius, Bishop of Constantinople, raised " out of the Dypticks, because through mistake he had communicated " with Petrus Mongus, Patriarch of Alexandria, who had dissembled " his Heresy, though he himself did always embrace the Orthodox " Doctrine. But the Constantinopolitans, in honour of their former " Bishops, whom they knew to be Orthodox, retained his Name in " the Dypticks, in spight of the Romans.

*† Faustus the Manichee objected against the Christians, as the Puritans do against us; That likewise as the Jews forsook the Idols of the Gentiles, but their Temples and Oblations, and Altars and Priesthoods, and all kind of Ministry of holy things, they exercised even as the Gentiles did; so that between the Catholicks and the Heathen there was in many things little difference. From them (says Faustus) ye have learned to hold, that one only God is the Author of all; their Sacrifices ye have turned into Feasts of Charity; their Idols into Martyrs, whom ye honour with the like Religious Offices unto theirs; the Ghosts of the Dead ye appease with Wine and Delicates; the Festival Days of the Nations ye celebrate together with them; and of the kind of Life, ye have changed nothing. See St. Austin's Defence, which is ours: Tom. VI. Cont. Faust. Man. Lib. 20. cap. 4. Nec nos terret insultatio tua, quod sabbatorum otium calendas saturnianas appelles; vana est enim & inepta; nec tibi hoc dicere venisset in mentem, nisi quia vos in die, quem dicunt solis, solem colitis. Sicut autem Nos eundem diem dominicum dicimus, in eo quòd non istum solem, sed Resurrectionem Domini veneramur; sic otium sabbatorum sine saturni veneratione a Patribus observatum est, cum sic illum observari oportebat. Erat enim umbra futurorum. St. Aug. Tom. VI. Lib. 18. contr. Faust. Manich. Cap. 5. & Lib. 20. Cap. 13.

*† Upon the Sunday the ancient Christians held it unlawful to Fast. St. Ign. Epist. ad Phil. They crucify Christ again who fast upon the Lord's Day. So Tertullian, de Cor. Mil. Conc. Gangr. Can. 18. Conc. Carthag. IV. Can. 64. Epiph. cont. Hær. Lib. 3. prope finem, & Hær. 25. ante medium; where Fasting upon Sundays is made one of Aerius his wilful and condemned Errors. And the reason is, because upon this Day Christ rose from the Dead; which made it unto us a Day of Joy and Comfort, rather than of Mourning and Fasting.

And for the like reason another ancient Custom it was, not to Fast upon Christmass-day, not (says Epiphanius) though it chance to fall upon Wednesday or Friday. Lib. III. cont. Hær. hær. ult. Leo Ep. 93.

*† 8 Lucian.] This Lucian was a Disciple of St. Peter, and sent with St. Dennis into France, where preaching the Gospel, he was martyred. Beda, Usuard, Ado, and others, make mention of him.

*† 13 Hilary.] St Hilary was the famous Bishop of Poictiers in France, so highly commended by St. Jerom, and all ancient Historiographers of the Church, for his glorious Combats against the Arians. Vid. Brev. Rom. Jan. 13.

C 13 Jan. Hilary.] St. Hilary was Bishop of Poictiers in Aquitain. St. Hier in Catal. Latinæ Eloquentiæ Rhodanus, Præf. in Epist. ad Gal. Clarissima Latini Sermonis Tuba adversus Arianos. Adv. Ruff. Lib. 2. cap. 5. By their Faction he was Banished into Phrygia, in the Year 354. but afterwards, when that Storm was over, he returned; and setting himself to repair the ancient Faith of the Fathers, he enlightned the Churches of Illyria, Italy and France, with so much Splendor, that, like the Sun in his Strength, he dispelled the Clouds of that Heresy. And those Churches owe their Restitution to him. After that (not in the sixth Year that followed his Banishment, as Severus thought, Lib. 2. nor in the fourth Year of Valentinian, as St. Jerom, Greg. Tur. Hermannus and Marianus, &c. were persuaded) but in the Seventh of Valentinian, and in the Year 371. the Ninth after his return from Banishment. Id. Jan. he died at Poictiers, the tenth Year after the Pseudo-synod of Ariminum, from which he pulled off the Vizzard.

*† 18 Prisca.] A Virgin that suffered Martyrdom in Rome, under the Emperor Claudius, Brev. Rom. Jan. 18.

*† 20 Fabian.] Arch-Bishop of Rome, martyred under Decius. See at large, Cypr. Ep. 31.

*† 21 Agnes.] Mentioned by St. Jerom, Ep. ad Demetr. 8. and St. Ambrose, Serm. 90. and Lib. 1. Off. cap. 41. and by St. Austin, Serm. 101. She was a Noble Roman Virgin, wonderfully commended by the Fathers. In her tender Years she suffered Martyrdom at Rome, under Diocletian.

C† This Virgin was a Roman of a Noble Family, there professing the ancient Christian Religion. A Person of so much outward Beauty, besides all her inward Vertues, that the Prætor's Son, an eminent Gentleman of the City of Rome, albeit he was a Pagan, and a Persecutor of Christians, fell in love with her, and desired her in Marriage: Whereunto she refusing to consent, he took so great an Indignation against her, that first he got her to be called into question for her Religion, and then cast into Prison; where continuing constant, he procured her to be condemned to the Fire, and there to be burnt alive: But when the Fire had by God's Will no Power over her, she was slain with the Sword, and had her Head cut off. This was done in the 10th general Persecution under the Emperor Diocletian, Anno Dom. 306. 12 Cal. Feb. About 550 Years after, Baldrick, Bishop of Utrecht in Holland, being then at Rome, brought some of her Reliques home with him, and put them in a Shrine (for such was the Fashion and Superstition of those times) within his own Church; where this Day of her Martyrdom, and the 14th Day of September for her Translation, were appointed to be observed Festival, Anno Dom. 966.

But John Beleth tells us another Tale, of the occasion which they took at Rome, to make this Day a Festival there, (Beleth de Off. div. cap. 75.) For he says, there was a miraculous Vision seen at her Tomb, which after him, Antoninus describes in this manner, (Tit. 8. cap. 1. §. 20.) telling us, That Eight Days after the Death of this Virgin Martyr, her Parents going to lament and pray at her Tomb, where they continued watching all Night long, there appeared unto them a Vision of a Choir of Angels, arrayed with most glittering and glorious Garments; among whom, they saw their own Daughter so likewise apparelled, and a Lamb as white as the driven Snow

Snow ſtanding by her; (which is the reaſon that the Painters picture her now with a Lamb at her ſide) and thereupon the Roman Ladies went every Year (as now they do) to offer and preſent her this Day, the two beſt and pureſt white Lambs that they can find or procure to be ſent them. Theſe they offer at St. Agnes's Altar (as they call it) and from thence the Pope has taken Order, to have them put in the choiceſt Paſture about the City, till the time of Sheep-ſhearing come; at which Seaſon they are clipt, and their Wooll is hallowed, whereof a fine white Cloth is ſpun and woven, and conſecrated every Year by the Pope himſelf, for the Palls which he uſeth to ſend unto every Arch-Biſhop: And dearly does every ſuch Arch-Biſhop pay for it; for until they have purchaſed it, they muſt not by the Pope's Law exerciſe any Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction. For the better knowledge of theſe Palls, (which were formerly ſo coſtly here in England, when the Popes bare the ſway there) what they are, and what Original they have, I thought it not amiſs to declare here all the whole Story, ſuch an one as it is.

There is mention made of this Viſion, in the Sermons attributed to St. Ambroſe, Serm. 90. But that Collection of his Sermons is cenſured by Eraſmus, to be a ſuppoſititious Work; and by Baronius himſelf, to be of a very doubtful Credit.

*† 22 Vincent.] Vincent was a famous Deacon of Spain, and in the City of Valentia there; was put to Death by moſt exquiſite Torments, under Diocleſian the Emperor; of whom Prudentius wrote his Fourth Hymn; and upon whoſe Feaſt-day St. Auſtin made Four Sermons, as Poſſidonius tells us in Indiculo.

*† 5 Agathe] A Virgin that ſuffered Martyrdom in Sicily, under Decius the Emperor. Her Memory was kept with great Solemnity among the old Chriſtians, as appears by St. Greg. Lib. 3. Regiſt. Ep. 19. & alibi; where he makes mention, both of her Church, and of her Feſtival Day; as alſo Pope Damaſus did before him.

Ubicunq; prima Luna fuerit poſt diem S. Agathæ, proxima Dominica erit Dominica Quadrageſima.

*† 14 Valentine.] A Man that ſuffered for Chriſt a moſt glorious Martyrdom, under Claudius the Emperor at Rome, where Pope Theodore the Firſt built a Church in Memory of him, almoſt a Thouſand Years ſince; Damaſus in vit. Pontif. Rom. & Greg. in Sacrament. He was a Man of moſt ſtrange and exceſſive Parts, ſo famous for his Love and Charity; as from thence came the uſe of chuſing Valentines (practiſed alſo amongſt us) upon his Feſtival-Day.

*† 1 D*Avid.*] Who was at firſt a Monk, and became a Founder of twelve Monaſteries; he was made Arch-Biſhop of a City in Wales called Menevia, and now of him St. Davids; of whoſe Vertues and Miracles, which they ſay he wrought, ſee Ranulphus, Lib. 1. cap. 52. Mat. Barbarico, cap. 5.

*† 12 Gregory.] The famous Doctor and Biſhop of Rome, who augmented the Service of the Church, perfected the Litanies, and appointed the ſolemn Stations, &c. Among other his Glorious and Chriſtian Deeds, we celebrate his Memory here in England, for his devout Charity to our Nation, in ſending Auſtin the Monk, and many others with him, to bring the greateſt part of the Nation to the Knowledge and Service of God; which, in a ſhort time, they did marvellouſly and happily atchieve: Whereupon, by Bede, and other Hiſtoriographers, he is uſually called, The Apoſtle of the Engliſh Nation, Bed. Lib. 2. cap. 13. His Day is kept holy, even by the Grecians themſelves, ſo famous was he, and admirable, thro' the Chriſtian World.

*† 18 Edward.] King of the Weſt Saxons, a devout and religious Prince, who was ſlain by his Heatheniſh Stepmother Q. Alphred, Anno Dom. 978. His Day of Martyrdom was appointed to be kept Feſtival by Pope Innocent the IV. Anno Dom. 1245. Sur. Tom. II. 18 Mar.

*† 20 Cuthbert.] A holy Man, who was firſt a Monk in the Monaſtery of Mailros in Northumberland, and afterwards an Hermit for many Years: Then, by general Conſent of a Synod, was he choſen Biſhop of Lindesfern, which he reſigned for his Hermit's Life again, and ſoon after ended his Life. He was buried at Lindesfern, and with ſtrange Miracles removed to Durham, which are not unworthy the reading, in Bede's Hiſtory, Lib. 4. cap. 26. at the end whereof he ſays, Vitam ſancti Patris noſtri Monachi ſimul & Antiſtitis Cuthberti prius heroico metro (MS.) & poſtmodum claro ſermone deſcripſi.

*† 21 Benedict.] He was the firſt Founder of the famous Order of the Benedictine Monks, whoſe admirable Life, and multitude of Miracles, are related by St. Gregory the Great, in his ſecond Book of Dialogues. Vid. Brev. Rom. p. 751. Sigeb. de vir. ill. cap. 35. Paul. de geſt. Longob. L. 1. c. 17. He overthrew the Statue of Apollo at Caſſinum, and burnt up the Groves there; where, afterwards, he built a famous Monaſtery, and made the Rule which we call, Regula S. Benedicti. He foretold his Death, and cauſed his Sepulchre to be made accordingly; by which he took the Euchariſt, and preſently gave up the Ghoſt.

APRIL.

*† 3 R*Ichard.*] An Engliſhman, famous for his great Learning and Vertues. He was Biſhop of Chicheſter, ſo highly reverenced by all Men, for his good Government, his Diligence in Preaching, his Devotion in Praying, and his admirable Integrity of Life; beſides many Miracles that they report of him: That about ſeven or eight Years after his Death, he was Canonized a Saint by Pope Urban IV. Anno 1261. Whereupon, his Body was removed from the place, where it was firſt buried in his Church, and laid in a ſumptuous Shrine; at which, a multitude of Miracles they ſay were wrought. Goodwin, in the Biſhops of Chicheſter. *Molanus in Ann. ad Uſuard. *† 4 Ambroſe.] The great Doctor of the Church, and Biſhop of Milan, choſen miraculouſly thereunto, whilſt he was appeaſing the multitude that were ſtriving about the Election. By his Study and Care, among many other famous Deeds, was all Italy converted to the true Faith of Chriſt, in the heat of the Arian Perſecution. He was the Man that begat St. Auſtin to the Church, that defended the Liberties thereof, and the ſtrict Diſcipline then in uſe, even againſt the Emperors Maximus and Theodoſius. He was Author of the Te DEUM LAUDAMUS, from whence it is called, Ambroſianum. And before his time, were very few Hymns heard in the Latin Church. In hujus infantis ore examen apum conſediſſe dicitur, quæ res divini Viri Eloquentiam præmonſtrabat. Brev. Rom.

*† 19 Alphage.] Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, who was cruelly murdered by the Danes, (after their Maſſacre done at Canterbury, where they ſlew 900 Religious Perſons, and of the Lay-People about 5000) for that he refuſed to charge his Tenants with the great Sum of Money which they impoſed upon him for his Ranſom. They ſtoned him to Death at Greenwich. ℔. He was a Man of a moſt holy and auſtere Life; which was the more admirable in him, becauſe he was born of great Parentage, and began that Courſe of Life in his younger time. He was firſt Abbot of Bath, then Biſhop of Wincheſter, and afterwards Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury; where, a little before the Conqueſt, he was cruelly handled by the Danes, he and his Church at Canterbury, which they burnt, together with the City; and when they had murdered the Monks, and almoſt all the People thereabouts, they martyred him alſo, and fetched the Vengeance of God upon them not long after. He was made a Saint, and allowed this Day for his Feſtival. Eadm. in vit. Anſel.

St. Mark.*] Dorotheus, following therein Epiphanius, makes him one of the Seventy Diſciples: But Euſebius, far more probably out of Papias, Lib. 3. cap. 39. ſays, That St. Mark neither heard him, nor was any of his Followers; which, if he had been one of the Seventy, could not be true. See Euſebius alſo, Lib. 6. cap. 14. St. Jerom in his Catalogue, and Iſidore de obit. ſanct. &c. He was martyred in the eighth Year of Nero, the 62 Year of Chriſt. And yet Dorotheus ſays, it was under Trajan.

Epiph. Hæreſ. 51. Dorotheus, and Origen in his Dialogue, de rectâ fide, make him to be one of the Seventy.

St. Jerom ſays, he was buried near to the Temple of Jeruſalem, from a Pinacle whereof he was thrown down headlong: But Dorotheus untruly ſays, That he was buried within the Temple near to the Altar, where the Law would ſuffer no Man to be interred.

C† 17 Etheldred. ] The Eldeſt Daughter of Anna, King of the East-Angles, who was chiefly memorable for the Holineſs of his Children; among whom, his Son Erkenwald was Biſhop of London. This his eldeſt Daughter Etheldred was twice married, and yet (as the Stories go) continued a Virgin ſtill, and at laſt became a Nun; and is remembred to Poſterity, by the Name of St. Audry.

C 18 St. Luke. ] The ſame Authors number him alſo among the Seventy Di ciples: And yet Nicephorus is the leſs to be truſted in it, for that he ſaith, St. Luke was converted by St. Paul, from b.ing a Gentile, to be a Chriſtian, at Thebes in Bœotia, which could not be Seventeen Years after Chriſt's Paſſion; before which time, St. Paul came not into Greece. Euſebius ſays better, (out of St. Luke's own Goſpel) Evangelium ſe exarâſſe teſtatur, ſicut ei tradiderunt, qui ab initio ipſi viderunt, verbiq; Miniſtri fuerunt: quos etiam ait ſe a Principio in omnibus ſecutum.

C 2 Feſtum omnium Animarum, All Souls Day. ] Wherein they were wont to pray for all Souls departed, that they might be delivered out of Purgatory. A Day ſtill obſerved in the Roman Church. But this Original it had, as we learn, out of Sigebert's Chronicle, ad Ann. 1100.

There was a Monk who went to viſit Jeruſalem, and when he returned from thence, and paſſed by into Sicily, he had a mind to ſee Vulcan's Kettle, out of which much Smoke and Flames of Fire did uſually aſcend: Being there, he heard the Devils within complain, That many dead Souls were taken out of their Hands by the Prayers of the Cluniack Monks. This he related to his Abbot Odilo, as a true Story; who thereupon appointed the Second of November to be annually kept in his Monaſtery, and Prayers to be made there for all dead Souls. And the Monks got it afterwards to be made a General Holiday in the Weſt, by the Appointment of the Pope; till in Ours, and the other Reformed Churches, it was deſervedly abrogated by us all.

C† 20 Edmund King. ] The King of the Eaſt-Angles, who being aſſaulted by the Danes (after their Irruption into England) for the Poſſeſſions of his Country, was moſt cruelly aſſaulted for the Profeſſion of his Faith: For continuing conſtant in his Chriſtian Religion, thoſe Pagans firſt beat him with Batts, then ſcourged him with Whips, and afterwards binding him to a Stake, ſhot him to Death with their Arrows: Whoſe Body was buried in a Town, where Sigebert the East-Anglian King, one of his Predeceſſors, had built a Church; and where afterwards (in honour of his Name) was built another more ſpacious; and the Name of the Town upon that occaſion was called, St. Edmunds-bury.

Which is affirmed as certain, by the agreeing Teſtimonies of St. Jerom, and the Martyrology. Ireneus, Lib. 3. cap. 3. ſays, That this Clement wrote *potentiſſimas Litteras. Euſeb. C† Circumciſion. ] Diſſimulare non poteram præpoſterè celebrari Chriſti circumciſionem præterito mortis die; ac inſcitè ac perperam ab indoctis hominibus fabricatam eſſe, Calv. Ep. 128.

*† To be obſerved for Holidays. ] I ſuppoſe this whole Page to be but the Printer's Work, as appears by the ſubſequent Declaration of the beginning and ending of the Lawyers Terms; for what had Churchmen to do with them? And ſo here for Holidays, I never could ſee where it was appointed, that theſe here ſhould be obſerved and no other. Which are Holidays, and which are not, according to the intent and purpoſe of our Church, appears by the Leſſons appointed before, as proper for Holidays, where are many more Days appointed holy, than here are, by the Ignorance of the Printer, in Stat. 5 Edw. cap. 3. Theſe indeed were appointed, and none other; but that Statute being repealed, 1 Mary 1. cap. 2. and being not ſince revived, we are to ſtick rather to the Authority of this Service-Book, in the Catalogue of Leſſons Proper (as before) than the Printer's Pleaſure and Ignorance. I cannot tell, it ſeems the Printer was loth to loſe the Work of his Servants ſo many Holidays in the Year, as he ſaw Proper Leſſons appointed for before; and therefore he comes ſtealing in with this Lay-Direction, which the Peoples Indevotion and Careleſsneſs of obſerving any Day, was ready enough to lay hold on, and to make a Rule of; though it be no more a part of the Service-Book eſtabliſhed by the Church, than that the Lawyers Terms ſhould have their beginning and ending, as is here noted.

And none other. The Abrogation of new Holidays. ] Pulchrè Nicol. de Clemangis: Novis enim celebritatibus plerumq; artantur veteres; which was found too true in our Church.

C Theſe to be obſerved for Holidays, &c. ] The Remembrance of the Birth, the Paſſion, the Reſurrection, the Aſcenſion of Chriſt; the Coming of the Holy Ghoſt, the Converſion of the Gentiles, by ſending the bleſſed Apoſtles, &c. as it is a powerful Means, to train the more ignorant Sort in the underſtanding ſuch great Myſteries; ſo it is a moſt juſt Occaſion for all Sorts, to make that a ſpecial time of ſerving God, upon which we renew and ſolemnize theſe his wonderful Works of Grace to us. And it is well known, that when Chriſt was upon the Earth, the Jews Kalendars had divers Solemnities, more than Moſes appointed, and that Chriſt obſerved them; whereby we may be ſure, that he allowed and commended the Inſtitution of Religious Feſtivals in the Church.

And no other. ] And yet in the Table for Proper Leſſons divers other Days; as, St. Paul's Converſion, and St. Barnaby's-day, beſides the Four Days before Eaſter are ranked under the Title of Holidays; and afterwards, ſpecial Collects, Epiſtles and Goſpels, are appointed both for all of them, and ſome other Days (as Aſh-wedneſday, and the Monday and Tueſday before Eaſter) which are read only now upon Holidays: So that to ſave a Contradiction, here ſeems to want ſome Amendment; eſpecially, when this Statute for Holidays was made before the Statute of Uniformity, which authorizes this whole Book, and repeals all Statutes and Ordinances that vary from it.

C† A brief Declaration when every Term beginneth and endeth. ] What has this to do with ſo holy and divine a Book? There are Almanacks enough to hold it. This Declaration of the Terms, which is here annexed to the Obſervation of Holidays, was firſt made and ſet forth by the Injunctions of K. Hen. 8. and the Convocation of the Clergy, Anno 1536. where it was ordered, That all the People might freely go to their Work upon all ſuch Holidays (as were uſually before kept) which fell either in the time of Harveſt, (counted from the Firſt Day of July, to the 29th of September) or in any time of the Four ſeveral Terms, when the King's Judges ſat at Weſtminſter. But yet theſe Holidays (here in our Book mentioned) are eſpecially excepted by theſe Injunctions of K. Hen. 8. and his Clergy-Convocation, and commanded to be kept ſolemn and holy by every Man, the Harveſt-time, and the Term-time notwithſtanding. And therefore, I ſee no uſe of this Declaration, when the Terms begin and end, to be added to our Holidays in this place; for neither was it permitted in King Henry the 8th's time, nor is it in Ours, That any Man ſhould go to his Work, upon thoſe Days appointed to be kept Sacred, whether they fall in Term-time, or not.

Of the Ornaments in time of Divine Service.

*† THere is an Objection againſt this Cuſtom of the Church, made by Puritans, That theſe Ornaments are not only Popiſh, but Jewiſh too. (Vid. Bellar. Tom. 4. de Operibus, in part. Lib. 1. cap. 16. ubi aptiſſime reſpondet ad objectionem Petri Martyris, aſſerentis Ceremonias omnes Hebræorum abrogatas eſſe, nec ad Chriſtianos ullo modo pertinere:) And in that regard are grown very ſcandalous; becauſe all the Ceremonies of the Jews are to ceaſe at the coming of Chriſt.

So Cartwright tells us, That the Church therefore being aſhamed of the Simplicity of the Goſpel, did almoſt out of all Religions take whatſoever had any fair or gorgeous Shew, borrowing in that reſpect from the Jews, ſundry of their aboliſhed Ceremonies; and that thus by fooliſh and ridiculous Imitation, all their Maſſing Furniture (ſuch as is here enjoyned) they took almoſt from the Law, leſt having an Altar and a Prieſt, they ſhould want Veſtments for their Stage.

But for the eaſier finding out the Truth, and ſo of a modeſt Anſwer to their Objection in this point, we are to conſider of two things: Firſt, The Cauſes why the Church ſhould decline from Jewiſh Ordinances and Ceremonies: And Secondly, How far it ought ſo to do. The Cauſes are eſpecially two. One is, becauſe the Jews were the deadlieſt and moſt ſpightful Enemies to Chriſtianity that were in the World; and in that regard were many Laws made by the Church, to have no Conformity with them, no more than with the Heathens in their Orders: So praying to the Eaſt came up, &c.

Another Cauſe was the ſolemn Abrogation of the Jewiſh Ordinances by Chriſt. Now how far this Abrogation did extend, it muſt be a little conſidered, being not ſo large in our Opinion as in theirs, that would not ſo much as have us imitate them in the Decency and Solemnity of God's Service. Touching thoſe things whereunto it reacheth not, we confeſs indeed, the Jews, in reſpect of their own Perſons being ſuch venemous Enemies againſt Chriſt, are leaſt to be imitated; but in this reſpect, that God himſelf hath been the Author of their Laws, herein they are (notwithſtanding the former Conſideration) ſtill worthy to be honoured, and to be followed before any other, as much as the ſtate of things in time or place will bear. No Man can deny, but that the Jewiſh Ordinances had ſome things natural in them, and of the Perpetuity of thoſe things no Man doubteth. That which was poſitive we know to have been, by the coming of Chriſt, partly neceſſary not to be kept; as Circumciſion and Sacrifice; and partly indifferent, to be kept or not; as to abſtain from things offered unto Idols, from Blood, and ſtrangled, &c. which the Apoſtle commanded to be kept after Chriſt, becauſe it ſuited well with thoſe times. In like ſort, for the convenience of the Church, as the State of it afterwards grew, the Apoſtles Succeſſors thought it meet to imitate their Ordinances in the Solemnity of God's Service, which was a thing partly natural and partly poſitive, not taken away by Chriſt, but left to the Church, either to like, or not to like, as occaſion ſerved. And to this purpoſe it is that Leo ſaith, in Jejun. VII. Menſ. Serm. 9. Beloved, Apoſtolical Ordinances, knowing that our Lord Jeſus Chriſt came not into this World to undo the Law, hath in ſome ſort diſtinguiſhed the Myſteries of the Old Teſtament, that certain of thoſe Myſteries it hath choſen out to benefit Evangelical Knowledge withal; and for that purpoſe appointed, That thoſe things which before were Jewiſh, ſhould now become Chriſtian Cuſtoms, both being made for the Beauty and Honour of God's Worſhip. So when Fauſtus upbraided the Chriſtians for imitating the Gentiles, his Anſwer was, That they followed nothing which the Gentiles had, becauſe the Gentiles ſo taught; but becauſe Heaven and Earth, the Law of Nature, and the Law of God had approved it; Cont. Fauſt. Man. Lib. 20. cap. 4.

The Order where Morning and Evening Prayer ſhall be read.

*† THE Morning and Evening Prayer.] Thus in the Law it was appointed by God, that there ſhould be both Morning and Evening Service Day by Day; and that upon the Sabbath, there ſhould be twice as long Service, as upon other Days: Numb. xxviii. 9, 10. 1 Chron. xxiii. 30. where we read, that the Office of the Levites was, for to ſtand every Morning to give Thanks, and to praiſe the Lord likewiſe at Even.

C The Order where Morning and Even Prayer ſhall be uſed and ſaid.] In the Firſt Book of Edw. VI. the Prieſt was appointed to ſay the Morning and Even Prayer in the Choir, the People remaining in the Church, as aforetimes it had been accuſtomed; for the Choir was built for the Prieſts, and for that purpoſe that Divine Prayer might be celebrated and performed by them in it. Againſt this Order, there was Exception taken by Bucer; who upon Calvin's complaint, that Matters were not then Reformed among us as they ſhould be, as appears by his Epiſtle to the Protector, the Duke of Somerſet, Epiſt. 87. and to Cranmer; and intreated to give his Cenſure upon that Service-Book then in uſe, and therein the Act of Parliament, 2 Edw. VI. that authorized it; and there was nothing but what was conſonant to the Word of God, and the Purity of the Chriſtian Religion, and which Aleſius, in his Proem ſaith, was ſent from Heaven; and which Mr. Fox, in his Monuments ſaith, was agreeable to Scripture, and the Primitive Church. All which notwithſtanding, Calvin in toto & ſolido, and Bucer for ſome Particulars only, was of another mind: Of which Particulars this was one, and the firſt thing in the Book againſt which he excepted; alledging, That it was an Antichriſtian Practice, for the Choir to be ſevered from the reſt of the Church, and for the Prayers there only to be ſaid, which pertained to the People as well as to the Clergy: That the Separation of the Choir from the Body of the Church ſerved for nothing elſe, but to get the Clergy ſome reſpect above the Laity, as if they were nearer to God than Laymen are: That a pernicious Superſtition was thereby maintained, as if Prieſts alone were able to procure God's Favour, by reading and reciting a few Prayers: That in the ancient times of the Church, their Temples were built in a round Form, and not in a long Figure, as ours are; and that the Place for the Clergy was always in the midſt of thoſe Temples; and that therefore this Cuſtom of the Diviſion of Churches from Chancels, and of the Prieſt's ſaying Service in them, was an unſufferable Abuſe, to be forthwith amended, if the whole Kingdom would not be guilty of High-Treaſon againſt God.

This was his Declamatory Cenſure of the Churches Cuſtom in thoſe times, concerning Chancels, and the Performance of Divine Service there: And he prevailed ſo far by it, that in the Fifth Year of King Edward there were very many Alterations made in the former Service-Book, which the Duke of Somerſet, the Protector, got to be confirmed in Parliament; among which Alterations, this was the firſt, That the Morning and Evening Prayer ſhould be uſed in ſuch Place of the Church, Chapel, or Chancel; and that the Miniſter ſhould ſo turn him (for before he kneeled or ſtood, ſave when he read the Leſſons with his Face towards the Altar) as the People might beſt hear. Notwithſtanding which Condeſcenſion, it was then likewiſe ordered, That if there were any Controverſy about it, it ſhould be referred to the Ordinary of the Place, or his Deputy; and that the Chancels ſhould ſtill remain, as they had done in times paſt.

There aroſe great Contentions about this Alteration; ſome kneeling one way, and ſome another, but not removing out of the Chancel; others leaving that accuſtomed place, and performing all their Service among the People, in the Body of the Church. For the appeaſing of which Strife and Diverſity it was now thought fit, that in our Book, when they came to reduce the Engliſh Service into the Church again, the Rubrick ſhould be corrected, and put into this Form wherein we have it: That Morning and Evening Prayer ſhould be uſed in the Place accuſtomed (that muſt be before the Fifth of Edw. for a Year and an half after, which was all the time that the ſecond Rubrick laſted, could not beget a Cuſtom) yet referring it to the Biſhop to order it otherwiſe, if he ſaw cauſe ſo to do. But that the Prieſt ſhould here turn himſelf to the People (as he is to do after, when he reads the Leſſons to them) they made no order, nor thought fit to continue the former Order in that particular.

And though the Act of Uniformity doth not ſpecify this Alteration, or receding from the Form of the Fifth of Edw. VI. yet becauſe it concerns not the things themſelves, that are to be done, but the manner only, and the reſolving of Doubts, how they ſhall be done, it was referred to the Power of the Biſhops, both by the Preface in the laſt Paragraph of it, and by this Rubrick itſelf, to order as they thought meet; and ſo they did.

C† Shall be uſed in the accuſtomed Place, &c.] And the accuſtomed Place was the Choir, as appears by the firſt Words in the firſt Book ſet forth in the ſecond Year of King Edw. VI. The Prieſt being in the Choir, ſhall begin the Morning Prayer with a loud Voice. But ſince that time, at the Inſtance of the Pariſhioners, many Ordinaries, in moſt Places, have otherwiſe determined and ordered it, as here they had leave to do. And from hence it was, ſomewhat after the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, that the Miniſter had a Desk or ſmaller Pulpit ſet up for him, whereat to read Divine Service, and the Leſſons, in the Body of the Pariſh-Church; whereas aforetimes, he performed all his Office at his own Seat in the Chancel. And ſo in divers Places, where the Ordinary did not alter it, he doth ſtill, turning himſelf towards the People (that be in the Body of the Church) when he reads the Leſſons.

C† The Word accuſtomed was added here on purpoſe, that it might refer to the uſe of former times, and not to the later Alterations that ſome of the Ordinaries and People had made in, or after the Fifth Year of Edw. VI. For the ſecond Litany then compiled, hath not this Word accuſtomed put into the Rubrick.

C† Except it ſhall be otherwiſe determined by the Ordinary.] But Note here, That their Power was limited and reſtrained, to the reading of Morning and Evening Prayer only: So that the Communion-Service was, by this very Order and Law, here reſerved to the Chancel; neither had any Ordinary Liberty or Power given him to bring it, or give leave to have it brought into the Body of the Church, and to place the Communion-Table there, as in divers Pariſh-Churches of this Realm, and eſpecially in Cities, or other great Towns, they, and the Church-wardens, with their Miniſters, have preſumed to do at their own Pleaſure. Nor had the Ordinaries any Power, neither to alter the accuſtomed Place of Morning and Evening Prayer, but only where there was ſome Controverſy about it; what Place was the moſt convenient for the Reading thereof. Vid. Lit. 2. Edw. VI.

C† And the Chancels ſhall remain as they have done in times paſt.] That is, diſtinguiſhed from the Body of the Church by a Frame of open Work, and furniſhed with a row of Chairs or Stools on either ſide; and if there were formerly any Steps up to the place where the Altar or Table ſtood, that they ſhould be ſuffered to continue ſo ſtill, and not to be taken down, and laid level with the lower Ground, as lately they have been by Violence and Diſorder, contrary to Law and Cuſtom.

C† At the time of the Communion.] And at the Celebration of the Holy Communion it was ordered, by the Rules and Orders of the firſt Liturgy, ſet forth by the Church of England, and confirmed by Authority of Parliament, in the ſecond Year of the Reign of Edw. VI. That the Prieſt, who ſhall then execute the Holy Miniſtry, ſhall put upon him the Veſture appointed for that Miniſtration; that is to ſay, a white Alb plain, with a Veſtment or Cope: And that other Prieſts and Deacons, who ſhall help him in that Miniſtration, ſhall have upon them likewiſe the Veſtments appointed for their Miniſtry; that is to ſay, Albs with Tunicles: But if he be a Biſhop, who either celebrates the Holy Communion, or executes any other publick Miniſtration, that then he ſhall have upon him, beſides his Rochet, a Surplice or Alb, and a Cope or Veſtment, and alſo his Paſtoral Staff in his Hand, or elſe born or holden by his Chaplain.

C† And at all other times of his Miniſtration.] That is (as is ſet forth in the firſt Liturgy of King Edward before-mentioned) in the ſaying or ſinging of Mattens and Evenſong, Baptizing and Burying, the Miniſter in Pariſh-Churches and Chapels annexed, ſhall uſe a Surplice. And in all Cathedral Churches and Colleges, the Deans, Arch-deacons, Provoſts, Maſters, Prebendaries and Fellows, being Graduates, may uſe in the Choir, beſides the Surplices, ſuch Hoods appertaining to their ſeveral Degrees, which they have taken in any Univerſity within this Realm: And when they do preach it is ſeemly alſo, that they ſhould wear their Hoods belonging to their Degrees.

C† The Word All here had been divers Years omitted in the Editions of this Book, contrary to the true Copy of it, ſet forth in the Firſt Year of Queen Elizabeth (which was done, either by the Negligence of the Printer, or upon Deſign) until King Charles the First, in the First Year of his Reign, commanded it to be re-
*☞ ſtored, and * ſent me to his Printing-houſe to ſee it done; ever ſince which time, it has ſo continued.

C† In the Church.] For in all other Places, as it was declared by the ſame Authority in the Second Year of King Edward the Sixth, Every Miniſter ſhall be at Liberty, to uſe any Surplice, or no.

C Such Ornaments, &c.] Without which (as common Reaſon and Experience teaches us,) the Majeſty of him that owneth it, and the Work of his Service there, will prove to be of a very common and low Eſteem. The Particulars of theſe Ornaments (both of the Church and of the Miniſters thereof, as in the end of the Act of Uniformity) are referred not to the Fifth of Edw. VI. as the Service itſelf is in the beginning of that Act (for in that Fifth Year were all Ornaments taken away (but a Surplice only) both from Biſhops and Prieſts, and all other Miniſters, and nothing was left for the Church but a Font, a Table, and a Linen Cloth upon it (at the time of the Communion only) but to the Second Year of that King, when his firſt Service-book and Injunctions were in Force by Authority of Parliament. And in thoſe Books many other Ornaments are appointed; as, Two Lights to be ſet upon the Altar or Communion-Table, a Cope or Veſtment for the Prieſt and for the Biſhop, beſides their Albs, Surplices and Rochets, the Biſhop's Croſier-Staff, to be holden by him at his Miniſtration and Ordinations; and thoſe Ornaments of the Church, which by former Laws, not then abrogated, were in uſe, by virtue of the Statute 25 Henry 8. and for them the Provincial Conſtitutions are to be conſulted, ſuch as have not been repealed, ſtanding then in the Second Year of King Edw. 6. and being ſtill in Force by vertue of this Rubrick and Act of Parliament.

That which is to be ſaid for theſe Veſtures and Ornaments, in ſolemnizing the Service of God, is, That they were appointed for inward Reverence to that Work, which they make outwardly Solemn. All the Actions of Eſteem in the World are ſo ſet forth, and the World hath had Trial enough, that thoſe who have made it a part of their Religion to faſten Scorn upon ſuch Circumſtances, have made no leſs to deface and diſgrace the Subſtance of God's Publick Service.

The Miniſter, at the time of the Communion, and at all other times in his Adminiſtration, ſhall uſe ſuch Ornaments in the Church, as were in uſe by the Authority of Parliament, in the Second Year of K. Edw. 6.] In that Year, by the Authority of Parliament, was this Order ſet forth, in the end of the Service-book then appointed. At Morning and Evening Prayer, the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm, the Burial of the Dead, &c. in Pariſh-Churches, the Miniſter ſhall put upon him a Surplice; in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and in Colleges, the Arch-deacons, Deans, Preſidents and Maſters, may uſe the Ornaments alſo belonging to their Degrees and Dignities. But in all other places it ſhall be free for them, whether they will uſe any Surplice, or not. The Biſhop adminiſtring the Lord's Supper, and celebrating the Sacraments, ſhall wear a Rochet or Alb, with a Cope or Veſtment; and he ſhall have alſo his Paſtoral Staff. And before the Communion, upon the Day appointed for the Celebration of the Lord's Supper, the Prieſt having on him an Alb, with a Veſtment or Cope, ſhall ſtand at the Altar; and where there be many Prieſts and Deacons, ſo many of them as be needful ſhall help the Chief Miniſter, having Albs or Tunicles upon them.

Theſe Ornaments and Veſtures of the Miniſters were ſo diſpleaſing to Calvin and Bucer, that the one in his Letters to the Protector, and the other in his Cenſure of the Liturgy, ſent to Arch-biſhop Cranmer, urged very vehemently to have them taken away, not thinking it tolerable, that we ſhould have any thing common with the Papiſts, but ſhew forth our Chriſtian Liberty, in the Simplicity of the Goſpel.

Hereupon, when a Parliament was called, in the Fifth Year of King Edward, they altered the former Book, and made another Order, for Veſtments, Copes and Albs, not to be worn at all; allowing an Arch-biſhop, and a Biſhop, a Rochet only, and a Prieſt and Deacon to wear nothing but a Surplice.

But by the Act of Uniformity the Parliament thought fit, not to continue this laſt Order, but to reſtore the firſt again; which ſince that time was never altered by any other Law, and therefore it is ſtill in Force at this Day.

And both Biſhops, Prieſts and Deacons, that knowingly and wilfully break this Order, are as hardly cenſured in the Preface to this Book concerning Ceremonies, as ever Calvin or Bucer cenſured the Ceremonies themſelves. Among other Ornaments of the Church alſo then in uſe, in the Second Year of Edw. 6. there were two Lights appointed by his Injunctions (which the Parliament had authorized him to make, and whereof otherwhiles they made mention, as acknowledging them to be binding) to be ſet upon the High-Altar, as a ſignificant Ceremony of the Light which Chriſt's Goſpel brought into the World; and this at the ſame time, when all other Lights and Tapers ſuperſtitiouſly ſet before Images, were by the very ſame Injunctions, with many other abuſed Ceremonies and Superfluities, taken away. Theſe Lights were (by virtue of this preſent Rubrick, referring to what was in uſe in the Second of Edw. 6.) afterwards continued in all the Queen's Chapels, during her whole Reign; and ſo are they in the King's, and in many Cathedral Churches, beſides the Chapels of divers Noblemen, Biſhops, and Colleges, to this Day.

It was well known, That the Lord-Treaſurer Burleigh (who was no Friend to Superſtition or Popery) uſed them conſtantly in his Chapel, with other Ornaments of Fronts, Palls and Books, upon his Altar. The like did Biſhop Andrews, who was a Man who knew well what he did, and as free from Popiſh Superſtition as any in the Kingdom beſides. In the latter end of King Edward's time they uſed them in Scotland itſelf, as appears by Calvin's Epiſtle to Knox, and his Fellow-Reformers there, Anno 1554. Ep. 206. where he takes Exception againſt them, for following the Cuſtom of England.

To this Head we refer the Organ, the Font, the Altar, the Communion-Table, and the Pulpit, with the Coverings and Ornaments of them all; together with the Paten, Chalice and Corporas, which were all in uſe in the Second of Edw. 6. by the Authority of the Acts of Parliament then made.

*† As were in uſe.] And then were in uſe, not a Surplice and Hood, as we now uſe, but a plain white Alb, with a Veſtment or Cope over it; and therefore, according to this Rubrick, we are all ſtill bound to wear Albs and Veſtments, as have been ſo long time worn in the Church of God, howſoever it is neglected. For the diuſe of theſe Ornaments, we may thank them that came from Geneva, and in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, being ſet in Places of Government, ſuffered every negligent Prieſt to do what him liſted, ſo he would but profe s a Difference and Oppoſition in all things (though never ſo lawful otherwiſe) againſt the Church of Rome, and the Ceremonies therein uſed.

If any Man ſhall anſwer, That now the 58th Canon hath appointed it otherwi.e, and that the.e things are alterable by the Diſcretion of the Church wherein we live; I anſwer, That ſuch Matters are to be altered by the ſame Authority wherewith they were eſtabliſhed; and that if that Authority be the Convocation of the Clergy, as I think it is (only that) that the 14th Canon commands us, to obſerve all the Ceremonies prescribed in this Book, I would fain know how we ſhould obſerve both Canons.

℣. W ℣. Mention is there made of Surplice, Tippet, Hood, pro cujuſq; gradu,
I. C. I find not that.

C† And among other Ornaments of the Church that were then in uſe, the ſetting of two Lights upon the Communion-Table or Altar was one, appointed by the King's Injunctions (ſet forth about that time, and mentioned or ratified by the Act of Parliament here named) whereby all other Wax-Lights and Tapers, which in former times of Superſtition Men were wont to place before their Shrines, and Images of Saints, being taken away and utterly aboliſhed, it was required, That two Lights only ſhould be placed on the Altar, to ſignify the Joy and Splendor we receive from the Light of Chriſt's bleſſed Goſpel. Bene B. Lutherus in formulâ Miſſæ ſive Communionis, quam Wirtenburgenſi Eccleſiæ Anno ſuperioris ſeculi viceſimo tertio præſcripſit, Neo Candelas (inquit) nec Thurificationem prohibemus, ſed nec exigimus; eſto hoc liberum.

C† By Authority of Parliament.] Which confirmed both the firſt Liturgy, and the Injunctions of King Edward the Sixth.

C† In the Second Year of the Reign of King Edward the Sixth.] For it is here to be noted, That in his time, there were two ſeveral Liturgies, and two ſeveral Acts of Parliament made to confirm them. One in the ſecond Year, and another in the fifth Year of his Reign: In which Fifth Year (upon the diſuſe which ſome Men made of the former Ornaments, or upon the Diſpleaſure which other Men took againſt them both at home and abroad) it was appointed by the ſecond Liturgy, and enacted by Parliamentary Authority; That the Miniſter, at the time of Communion, and at all other times of his Miniſtration, ſhould uſe neither Alb, Veſtment nor Cope; but being an Arch biſhop or Biſhop, ſhould have and wear a Rochet; being a Prieſt or Deacon, ſhould wear a Surplice only. And yet this latter Book, and Act of Parliament thereunto annexed, did not condemn either the Ornaments, or any thing beſides that was appointed in that former Book, but acknowledged it all to have been a very godly Order, agreeable to the Word of God, and the Primitive Church: Whereupon, by Authority of Parliament in the Firſt Year of Q. Elizabeth, albeit it was thought moſt meet to follow and continue the Order of Divine Service in Pſalms, Leſſons, Hymns, and Prayers (a few of them only varied) which was ſet forth in the Fifth Year of King Edward; yet for the Ornaments of the Church, and of the Miniſters thereof, the Order appointed in the Second Year of his Reign was retained; and the ſame we are bound ſtill to obſerve: Which is a Note, wherewith thoſe Men are not ſo well acquainted as they ſhould be, who inveigh againſt our preſent Ornaments in the Church, and think them to be Innovations, introduced lately by an Arbitrary Power againſt Law; whereas, indeed, they are appointed by the Law itſelf. And this Judge Yelverton acknowledged and confeſſed to me (when I had declared the Matter to him as I here ſet it forth) in his Circuit at Durham, not long before his Death, having been of another Mind before.

C† According to the Act of Parliament ſet forth in the beginning of this Book.] Provided always, and be it Enacted, That ſuch Ornaments of the Church, (whereunto the adorning and decent Furniture of the Communion-Table relate) and of the Miniſters thereof, (as the Alb or Surplice, Veſtment or Cope, with the Rochet and the Paſtoral-Staff before-mentioned) ſhall be retained and be in uſe, as was in this Church of England, by Authority of Parliament, in the ſecond (not the Fifth) Year of the Reign of King Edward the Sixth, until other Order ſhall be therein taken, by the Authority of the Queen's Majeſty, with the Advice of her Commiſſioners appointed and authorized, under the Great Seal of England, for Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical, or of the Metropolitan of this Realm. Which other Order ſo qualified as is here appointed to be, was never yet made.

*† Kneeling.] Kneeling is the moſt fit Geſture for humble Penitents; and being ſo, it is ſtrange to ſee how in moſt Places Men are ſuffered to ſit rudely and careleſly on their Seats, all the while this Confeſſion is read; and others that be in the Church, are nothing affected with it. They think it a thing of Indifferency forſooth, if the Heart be right. The 27th Canon takes Order, That the Communion be delivered to none but thoſe that kneel; and it is as fit we ſhould have the like Order taken, that this following Abſolution be pronounced to none, but thoſe that kneel neither: For elſe there will be no excuſe for us, nor no reaſon left us to render the Puritans, why our Church ſhould more puniſh them, or hinder them from the benefit of the Sacrament for not kneeling then, than it doth puniſh other Men, or hinder them of the benefit of Abſolution, for not kneeling in the time of Confeſſion. It is a like Caſe, and would be better thought on by Men of Wiſdom and Authority, whoſe Neglect and Careleſsneſs in this kind, gives not only cauſe of great Offence and Scandal to them that are reverently and well-diſpoſed; but withal, is a cauſe of great Impiety, and ſcorn of our Solemnity in God's Service: And it is objected to us by the Puritans, in their Survey, p. 71. and by the Papiſts Paſſim.

C Confeſſion and General Abſolution before Morning Prayer.] In which Confeſſion, we remember our daily Offences in general; and there is no means ſo powerful to obtain pardon for them, as the daily Prayers of the Church to that purpoſe: So that the Courſe which our Church here preſcribeth, for the pardon of our daily Offences, being put in practice, what can be more juſt, more due than to declare, that Forgiveneſs and Abſolution, which thoſe that are (as they pretend to be) penitent for thoſe Sins, do obtain? What more comfortable, comfortable, than to hear the News of it from his Mouth, by whom the Church miniſtreth theſe Offices? What more ſeaſonable, than to do this before we come to give God his ſolemn Praiſe and Honour in our Publick Service, that we may be aſſured he accepts of the ſame at our Hands? In which reſpect, we cannot but prefer the Order of the Church of England, before the other Reformed Churches, who have no Abſolution, nor no Confeſſion neither, but after the Pſalms and Leſſons (which is all the Service that they have) be done, and the Preacher goes up into the Pulpit; which gives the People occaſion to think, that all their Service before is to ſpin out their time only till the Preacher comes, rather than to give God any Homage or Service at all: Whereas the ſolemn beginning of our Service with Confeſſion and Abſolution, ſerves to put the People in Mind, that all which follows is the ſolemn Service of Almighty God, preparing them to that Attention of Mind, and Devotion of Spirit, which they owe to it, and which is requiſite to make it acceptable.

C At the beginning both of Morning and Evening Prayer, the Miniſter ſhall read one of the Sentences, &c. And then that which follows ] Theſe, with the Confeſſion and Abſolution, (as Preparatory to the Service which was to follow, and in Imitation of the Church in all Ages before, which after this manner of Confeſſion and Abſolution began their Divine-Service) were added in the Fifth Year of Edw. 6. omitted in the Second Year.

C Abſolution (or Remiſſion of Sins.) ] Added by Order from the Conference at Hampton-Court, for the Satisfaction of them that took Exception againſt the Word Abſolution, as being of too Popiſh a Sound.

C At the beginning of Morning and Evening Prayer, the Miniſter ſhall read, &c. ] In the Primitive Church, moſt parts of the Service were referred to be done by Inferior Miniſters: They had ſuch as read the Leſſons, Lectores, ſuch as ſung the Pſalms and Hymns, Cantores; and a great part of the Prayers were ſaid by the Deacons.

C Confeſſion to be ſaid by the whole Congregation kneeling. ] The old Faſhion of the Chriſtians, at their Service of Prayers, was (as Tertullian in his Apol. cap. 39. deſcribeth it) to pray with Hands erect and ſtretched out, therein proteſting their Innocency; to be bare-headed, therein profeſſing that they were not aſhamed: Manibus expanſis quia innocuis, capite nudo quia non erubeſcimus; hereby taxing the Gentiles, whoſe Cuſtom it was to cover both Hands and Faces at their Prayers, which he interpreteth a Confeſſion of Guilt in the Hands, and an Acknowledgement of Shame in the Face; as if they were afraid and aſhamed of what they were about.

It was, and is ſtill a general Order in all Churches, to begin their Service with Confeſſion of Sins: Which Order Morney labourcth to derive from the ancient Practice of the Synagogue firſt, and conſequently of the Primitive Church. Aut. de Card. Op. apud Cypr. Hierarcha confidenter orat pro ſuâ & Populi Ignorantiâ, recolens pudibundi & contriti animi confeſſionem, quæ prævalente peccato deliquerunt. S. Baſil, Ep. 63. We riſe in the Morning, make Confeſſion, and then ſing Pſalms.

We uſe this as an Entrance and Preparation to the Service of God, becauſe if our Confeſſion be ſuch, as it muſt be preſumed to be, it is the only ſufficient Diſpoſition, to make our Service acceptable to him. A Confeſſion (but not the like) is uſed in the beginning of the Breviary and Maſs, which condemns our Church no more than all other Reformed Churches that uſe it: But the ancient Church, from which we took it, uſed it before them all.

C And our Mouth ſhall ſhew forth thy praiſe. ] This is the Anſwer of all the People. In the Second Book of Edw. 6. the Word Choir is every-where put for our Word Anſwer: And by making this Anſwer, they promiſe here and undertake for themſelves, that they will not ſit ſtill to hear the Pſalms and Hymns read only to them, as matter of their Inſtruction; but that they will bear a part in them with the Prieſt, and keep up the old Cuſtom ſtill of ſinging, and anſwering Verſe by Verſe, as being ſpecially appointed for the ſetting forth of God's Praiſe; whereunto they are preſently invited again by the Miniſter in theſe Words, Praiſe ye the Lord. So that our manner of ſinging by Sides, or all together, or in ſeveral parts, or in the People's anſwering the Prieſt in repeating the Pſalms and Hymns, is here grounded: But if the Miniſter ſay all alone, in vain was it for God's People to promiſe God, and to ſay, that their Mouth alſo ſhould ſhew forth his Praiſe.

C As it was in the beginning, &c. ] This was added to Gloria Patri, which was only uſed before, to meet with the Poiſon of Arius, who ſaid there was a beginning of time, before Chriſt had any beginning. The like hath been ſaid, of taking up the Cuſtom to put in Dei gratia into the Style and Title of Kings and Emperors, to meet with the Poiſon of Pelagius, who was a great Oppoſer of the Grace of God.

Praiſe ye the Lord. ] It was before the Second of Edw. 6. Laus tibi Domine; and from Eaſter to Trinity-Sunday, Allelujah.

C Then ſhall be ſaid or ſung, Venite, &c. ] The Word ſaid is added in the Fifth of Edw. VI.

C Then ſhall be ſaid or ſung, O come, let us ſing unto the Lord: And then ſhall follow certain Pſalms in order. ] The ſetting forth of God's Worſhip and Praiſe in Pſalms, is that part of moral and perpetual Service, the Order whereof was moſt particularly ſet down in the O. T. in Solomon's Temple. As the Sacrifice was burning upon the Altar, and the Wine poured out upon it in the inward Court, which was their Ceremonial and Figurative Service; in the mean time, the Levites ſtood upon their Pulpits in the outward Courts, where the People, Men and Women, were licenſed to come, ſinging the Pſalms of God's Praiſes, which was their moral Service of it, to laſt for ever: Other parts of the Service are not there remembred; not but that many others were done, but to let the World know, that the Pſalms of God's Praiſes, for the ordinary Practice whereof ſuch expreſs Order was taken and remembred, was not to be reckoned of by the by, but as a main part of God's Publick Service: And this was not the perſonal Service of the Levites alone, but of the whole Congregation of God's People aſſembled there, which made his Praiſe to be the more glorious; and was therefore ſo much the more acceptable to him, when the People joined together with the Levites to ſet it forth: Therefore, according to King David's Example, and others inſpired by the Holy Ghoſt, the Church here hath appointed this firſt Pſalm, as an Invitatory to ſtir up the Affections of the whole Congregation to that Work, which they perform in ſome Places by anſwering alternately, and in others, by ſinging one ſide of the Choir after another.

*† Praiſe ye the Lord. ] After Gloria Patri, we ſay, Allelujah; which is, after we have given Glory to God, to invite the Angels to it alſo; as if ours were not enough, unleſs the Choir of Heaven joined with us in ſuch a ſolemn and ſacred Action. Cantatur autem Alleluja (quod eſt canticum cæleſte) ut per hoc oſtendatur dignam eſſe esse Trinitatem celesti laude, ad quam plenè laudandam non suffecit laus humana. Dur. in Rational. Lib. 5. cap. 3. Numb. 32.

Sonabant Psalmi, aurata tecta templorum, reboans in sublime quatiebat Alleluja. S. Hier. Ep. 30. ad Oceanum prope finem.

Ipsum Alleluja quotidie dicimus, & quotidie delectamur. Nostis enim quia Alleluja Latine dicitur laudate Dominum, & in hoc verbo consonantes ore, & consentientes corde, exhortamur nos invicem ad laudandum Deum. S. Aug. Serm. in Festo Paschæ & in Psal. 118.

If this, Quotidie, were to be found in S. Aug. (as I find it quoted by Laur. Vanderhave, in his Antiquities, but can find no such thing in the Father himself) then had we some more Authority for the using of it every Day, than the Church of Rome has for their Rubrick of leaving it out from the Septuagesima till Easter. And yet they leave it not out neither; for they say Laudate Dominum, in stead of it, or Laus tibi Domine; which being the same with the other in effect, Durantus and Jansenius are put to their shifts, how to give a good reason for such a Rubrick. At the first, it seems, this Alleluja was sung only upon Sundays, and every Day of the Fifty between Easter and Pentecost, in token of the Joy we express for Christ's Resurrection: So S. Aug. Epist. 119. ad Jan. cap. 15. and cap. 17. In some Churches it was not sung upon all Sundays of the Year, but only upon those Fifty Days: Sed hoc non usquequaq; observatur, S. Aug. ib. c. 17. It was the use, says Isidore, Lib. 1. de Eccl. Offic. c. 13. in the African Churches, not to say it every Day, but only every Sunday, and those Days which are from Easter to Pentecost: But among us, according to the ancient Custom of Spain, it is sung all the Year long upon every Day (except only from Septuagesima to Easter, the time of lamenting) and his reason is, (how good we must think on't) quia scriptum est, semper laus ejus erit in ore meo. And so indeed in the Fourth Council of Toledo, Can. 10. the Alleluja is forbidden to be sung, in diebus jejunii, quia tempus non est gaudii, sed mœroris; which Canon, if we have broken, the Papists have broken it with us; for Laus tibi Domine in that time is as good an Expression of Gaudium, as our Praise the Lord: But yet both of us are better than those whom Sozom. Lib. 7. c. 19. Hist. Trip. Lib. 9. c. 39. and Niceph. Lib. 12. c. 34. tell us of, who would sing it upon Easter day Morning only; for that was it that S. Hier brought among other Novelties, against Vigilantius. Exortus est Vigilantius, &c. qui nunquam nisi in Paschа Alleluja decantandum contendit.

*† Then shall be said or sung this Psalm following.] So was the Order in S. Basil's time, after the Confession, in the beginning of the Service, to sing Psalms and Hymns with solemn Musick, Epist. 63. Ad id vero quod propter Psalmodias accusamur, qua re potissimum simpliciores perterrefaciunt Sabellius & Marcellus (as their Disciples our new Puritan-Masters do the poor People among us) qui nos traducunt: hoc habeo quod dicam, quod videlicet qui jam obtinuerunt ritus omnibus Ecclesiis Dei concordes sunt & consoni: populus factâ ad Deum Confessione, tandem ab Oratione surgentes ad Psalmodiam traducuntur, & nunc quidem in duas partes divisi alternis succinentes psallunt, &c.

Quia Cantus accendit audientium animas. S. Aug. Lib. 9. Confess. cap. 6. & alibi. Etiam quia faciliùs & libentiùs Deo laudes persolvuntur, quando Officium Divinum, alioqui prolixum & grave, quadam Cantûs jucunditate conditur. Quam autem ob causam Sp. S. voluit divinas laudes a Prophetis carmine scribi; ob eandem utile fuit, ut ejusmodi carmina non simplici pronunciatione sed cantu celebrarentur. S. Bas. in S. Psal.

" Another reason for singing the Psalms, the Commandments, the " Lessons, and the Prayers in the Church, is, That Christians may " testify, that the Law of God is not troublesome or grievous to " them, but pleasant and sweet; and that they keep it not out of " Fear, but out of Love, according to that of the 119th Psalm, " ver. 54. Thy Statutes have been my Songs in the House of my Pilgri- " mage. Lastly, Upon this account, there is paid to Almighty God " a most perfect Service, whilst we endeavour to glorify him, as to " our Souls by earnest Prayer; and as to our Bodies, by singing " Praises to him. Of the Power and Profitableness of singing in the " Church, see the Author of the Answer to the Questions to the Or- " thodox, in Just. Mart. Works, Qu. 107.

Ψαλμῳδία veterum Christianorum quacum Liturgiam inchoare solebant.

*† Then shall follow certain Psalms in order.] For singing Psalms and Hymns publickly in the Church, we have the Example of our Saviour, and of the Apostles. Matth. 26. And when they had sung an Hymn, &c. Speaking to your selves in Psalms and Hymns, &c. Conc. Tolet. 4. Can. 12. ab oratione surgentes ad Psalmodiam traducuntur, & nunc quidem in duas partes divisi Alternis succinentes psallunt, atq; ex eo simul eloquiorum Dei exercitationem ac meditationem corroborant, & cordibus suis attentionem, & ejectis vanis cogitationibus mentis soliditatem suppeditant. S. Basil. Ep. 63. Tonant inter duos Psalmi & Hymni, & mutuo provocant quis melius Deo suo canet. Talia Christus videns & audiens gaudet, &c. Tertull. Lib. 2. ad Uxorem in fine. S. Dion. Areop de Eccl. Hier cap. 3. Theodoret tells us, That it began at Antioch, and being once begun there, ubiq; pervasit, & ad ultimas orbis terræ oras pervagata est, Hist. Eccl. Lib. 2. c. 24. Socrates tells us, it began there too; but whereas Theodoret goes no higher for the first Authors of it, than Flavian and Diodore, he makes Ignatius, the Bishop there in the Apostles times, to have begun it, upon a Vision of Angels that he saw glorifying God after that sort. Unde illa traditio in omnibus Ecclesiis recepta est, Lib. 6. c. 8. This Vision is derided by our new Masters; and of what Authority it is, we cannot tell, but by Socrates his Words: Howsoever, whether the Story be true or no, I am sure the thing itself is good; and if Ignatius did not hear the Angels sing so, that which is better, the Prophet Esay did, c. 6. 3. the Seraphims stood upon the Throne, and cryed one to another, saying, Holy, &c.

" As to what Theodoret writes, that Flavianus and Diodorus were " the first who ordered the Psalms of David to be sung alternately at " Antioch, this seems to be meant, not of the first Institution of this " Custom, but either of the restoring of it, or of appointing some " more convenient way of using it. Isidore says, Lib. 1. de Off. c. 7. " That St. Ambrose was the first among the Latins, who introduced " this Custom; but this seems to be understood, only of saying the " Service of the Church in the Choir; for Pope Celestine, as we read " in his Life, appointed the Psalms to be sung alternately in the Sa- " crifice of the Mass. In general, it is evident from Tertullian, whom " we quoted before, that the Custom of singing the Psalms alternate- " ly is very ancient among the Latins. Cum vero cantamus Psalmos stantes esse solemus, ut ex statu corporis demonstremus affectum mentis nostræ, hoc est, paratos nos esse, sive ad domandam carnem nostram, &c. Amal. Fort. Lib. 4. cap. 3. Rursus stando Hymnos cantamus, in erectione corporum ostendentes, quod in laudando Deum corda sursum erecta habere debemus, Durand. in Rational. Lib. 5. cap. 2. Numb. 24. Unus in medium Psalmos Domino cantaturus exurgit, Cassian. de Inst. Mon. Lib. 2. cap. 5. And the Notes upon that place, produce many more Testimonies of the Ancients to that purpose. Uni ex ipsis hoc muneris dato, ut quod canendum est prior ordiatur, reliqui succinant; atq; ita Psalmodiæ varietate superant noctem, &c. Bas. Ep. 63. The Græcians had this Order from the old Esseni, as Eusebius reports out of Philo, Lib. 2. cap. 16. Hist. Eccl. Hymnos etiam quia nobis recitari solebant, commemorat, & quo pacto cum Unus suavi quodam concentu psallere decenter & modestè inceperit, reliqui placidè & quietè auscultantes, posteriores hymnorum partes ad extremum unà decantent.

The Antiquity of Hymns in the Christian Church doth sufficiently appear, by that of our Saviour, Matth. 26. Et hymno dicto exierunt: Whereupon S. Chrysost. Hom. 83. in Matth. says, Hymnum cecinit, ut nos quoq; similiter faciamus. S. Aug. Ep. 119. ad Jan. cap. 18. So St. Paul afterwards order'd it in the Church at Colossus. Cantantes, &c. speaking to yourselves in Psalms and Hymns, &c. Col. 3. which we find presently after practised in the Church of Alexandria in Ægypt, founded there by St. Mark, as Philo in Euseb. Lib. 2. cap. 16. writes of the Christians there, (and as S. Hierom writes in the Life of Philo, and of S. Mark, and before him Epiphanius) that in their Churches (their ædes sacræ, προσευχαὶ, μοναστήρια. places of Solitariness, and separated from Company) they did leges & Oracula a Prophetis edita, & Hymnos recolere, aliasq; res, quibus divina scientia & vera erga Deum pietas crescat & perficiatur. Item, Non contemplationi solum se dedunt, sed etiam cantiones & hymnos variis metri & carminum cujusq; modi numeris graviter, aptè & convenienter ad Dei honorem & laudem conficiunt. And if this be not to be understood of the ancient Egyptian Christians, as Eusebius thought, but of the Esseni, the strictest Livers among the Jews, as Scaliger and Casaubon affirm with great Probability; yet it will be a good Pattern to take it in Succession from them, seeing Christ and St. Paul may be thought not to be the first that used any such Hymns, but followed the Religious Custom of the best Jews, and approved it by their Fact: Yet to make it good, that after the Apostles, the true Christians, as well as these Esseni, used these Hymns; St. Basil. Ep. 63. being unjustly blamed for bringing them into the Church of Neocæsarea, answers for himself, That it was the Custom of Egypt, and many other Places, so to do of old. And so of the Churches in Pontus and Bithynia, Pliny, the Emperor Trajan's Vicegerent there, affirmeth, That the only Crime he there knew of them was, that they used to meet together, and to praise Christ with Hymns as a God. And this Custom of singing Hymns with Instruments of Musick, is as ancient as Moses, when he came out of Egypt with the Israelites, and was so practised till David's time, by whom they were much augmented. And after him, they continued among the Kings and Prophets, till the coming of Christ, who gave us an Example to do as they did still: In the mean while, we are little beholding to Scaliger, (who in his vein of Contradiction tells us, Satis superstitiosè (in Elench. Tri. p. 239.) That quidam Christiani etiam hodie sacris ἀποχρῶνται, & musicis instrumentis, tympanis aneis & aliis ejusmodi perstrepunt, ut Bacchantes putes (wondrous modestly!) qui mos a veteri Ecclesiæ ritu alienus (wondrous confidently!) What he calls the ancient Church I cannot tell; but when Men mislike a thing, especially such Criticks as he was, impatient of any thing that crossed the Puritanical Platform, they can shut up the Church into what Streits, and what number of Years they list. Let Scaliger come and shew us, Whether the same Spirit of God assisted not his Church in this pious Institution, in S. Basil's, S. Hilary's, and S. Ambrose's time, that assisted the Kings and Prophets, and Apostles before. We have the Direction from S. Paul. If the ancient Christians under Persecution could not practise it openly, what is that to hinder other Christians afterwards, when they were a settled and flourishing Church, to follow the Examples of so many holy Men in all Ages, and of Christ, and the Apostles themselves? If those, Quæst. & Resp. ad Orthodoxos, be Justin Martyr's, as they may be with Admission of some later Interpolations, then was the Custom of singing Hymns used in his time, with vocal but not instrumental Musick (for they could not do all at once) qu. 107. After him, the first I find in the Latin and West Churches is S. Hilary, the Bishop of Poitiers in France (Hilar. in Psal. 65. audiat & celebret hymnorum sonitus) whom Isidore, Hisp. de div. Off. cap. 6. Lib. 1. makes the first Author of Ecclesiastical Hymns, as he found it in S. Hierom, in his Book de Scrip. Eccl. where he says, that S. Hilary made a Book of Ecclesiastical Hymns and Songs for the Church. After him, S. Ambrose brought it into the Church of Milan, ad leniendum mœsti populi fastidium; while they were praying Night and Day for the safety of their Bishop, persecuted by the Arian Empress Justina, the Mother of Valentinian, as S. Aug. writes, in his Confessions, ſeſſions, Lib. 9. c. 6, & 7. & Lib. Retract. c. 21. Item Strabo de Reb. Eccl. c. 25. Conc. Tolet. 4. c. 12. And from hence came all Hymns for the moſt part to be called Ambroſiani, becauſe from him they began to be ſpread over all the Latin Church, as a long time before they had the Greek. So S. Benedict. in his Rule, calls them Ambroſiani, &c. After him S. Hierome, ad Pſ. 64. gives Teſtimony of them. Matutinis veſpertinisq; hymnis delectatur Deus, &c. and Poſſidonius, in the Life of S. Aug. cap. 28. tells us, that one of the cauſes why he wept and grieved ſo much was, Quoniam per immanitatem Wandalorum Hymni laudeſq; Dei in Eccleſiâ deperierunt. There needs no farther Deduction of them, for every Man knows how they have been always ſince thoſe times practiſed, with great and religious Solemnity in the Church. Only becauſe Scaliger is pleaſed, pro Criticorum Imperio, to deride them, I cannot but put him in mind, how much diſpleaſing the effeminate Geneva-Tunes would have been, to the Gravity and Ears of the ancient Church, and how highly eſteemed the ſolemn Muſick of the Chriſtians was, by all pious and learned Men, even in the Primitive times; for thus Euſeb. Lib. 7. cap. 24. gives us the Epiſtle of the Biſhops, gathered together at the Council of * Antioch, againſt the pernicious Heretick Paulus Samoſetanus, written to Dionyſius the Biſhop of Rome, and others; *Quid vobis in memoriam revocemus, quem ad modum Pſalmos & cantus, qui ad D. N. J. *† Then ſhall the Miniſter begin the Lord's Prayer. ] Here begins the Service; for that which goes before is but a Preparation to it, and is newly added to King Edward's firſt Book, in Imitation of the Liturgy and Maſs of the Church of Rome. But as their Hours begin with the Lord's Prayer, ſo begins our Mattins, and our High-Service at the Altar. And they begin as they ſhould do; for this was the ancient Cuſtom of the Chriſtians, when they came together to pray, they laid that Prayer for a Foundation, and a beginning of all the reſt, which Chriſt himſelf had taught them. Tertull. de Orat. cap. 9. Præmiſſâ legitimâ & Ordinariâ Oratione (for ſo they called the Pater noſter) quaſi fundamento accidentium, jus eſt deſideriorum, jus eſt ſuperſtruendi extrinſecùs petitiones.

In that the Miniſter is appointed to begin, we may gather, that the Clarks and People are to follow, and ſing or ſay all the reſt with him, as they uſe to do in Collegiate and Cathedral Churches; and if any Doubt be made of this (as the Puritans in their Survey are carping at it) it may be explicated by other places of this Book, as after the Apoſtles Creed, the Miniſter, Clarks and People are to ſay the Lord's Prayer together. And at the Altar, the Miniſter is to begin the Nicene Creed, and ſay, I believe in one God; the Choir is to follow, and ſing the reſt with him.

*† Then ſhall be read two Leſſons, &c. ] The inferior parts of the Soul being vehemently intent about Pſalms and Prayers, and therefore the likelier to be ſoon ſpent and wearied; thereupon, has the Church interpoſed Leſſons to be read betwixt them, for the higher part of the Soul the Underſtanding to work upon, that by variety neither may be wearied, and both be an help one to the other, *Hook. C The Miniſter readeth the Leſſon ſtanding, and turning him ſo as he may be beſt heard, &c. ] Here he is appointed to turn him; therefore, before he reads the Leſſon, he is ſuppoſed to ſtand, and to be turned with his Face another way. It is a Circumſtance obſervable, that at all the Services in the old Synagogues (from whom the Chriſtian Churches at firſt took their Pattern) the reading of the Law and other Scriptures was done by the Prieſt, with his Face turned to the People as they ſat: So did our Lord in the Synagogue at Nazareth, Luke 4. 16. But the Prayers were read by him whom they called the Apparitor of the Synagogue (correſpondent to the Deacon or Miniſter in the Chriſtian Church) with his back to the People, and his Face to the Ark, repreſenting the Majeſty and Preſence of God. Maimonides of Prayer, cap. 8. n. 11. In the Miſna he is called, He that cometh down before the Ark. So are (or were) the Prayers or Litanies uſed to be read in the Church of England.

C Miniſter that readeth the Leſſon ſtanding. ] In the Conſtitutions of the Apoſtles, c. 58. it is ordered, Let the People, by the Deacon's Direction, ſit with all quietneſs and good order; and let the Women alſo ſit apart, keeping ſilence: Then let the Reader ſtand on high and read, &c.

Then ſhall be read the firſt Leſſon of the Old Teſtament, &c. ] This is one principal part of the Publick Service of the Church appointed, according to the Moral, not any Ceremonial Service of God among the Jews. The Law of Moſes for that purpoſe was diſtinguiſhed into Diviſions, anſwerable to the number of Weeks in the Year, that it might begin and end with it. And afterwards we find an Order of reading the Law in Publick, as ancient as Nehemiah's time. And for the Leſſons of the Prophets we know, that Chriſt took one of them for the Subject of his Sermon at Nazareth, as his Apoſtle did at Antioch, when he ſtood up after the reading of the Law and the Prophets.

C After the firſt Leſſon ſhall follow (2 Edw. 6. ſhall be ſung) Te Deum laudamus daily throughout the Year. But it was in that Firſt Book appointed, That the Song of the Three Children ſhould be ſung in the time of Lent, in ſtead of the Te Deum, and never elſe; now it is left free to be ſung any Day.

After the Second Leſſon ſhall be uſed and ſaid (Edw. 6. per totum annum canitur) Benedictus in Engliſh, as followeth. Or the 100th Pſalm, which was not appointed before the Fifth Year of Edw. 6. And here thoſe Words (as followeth) are ſpecially to be noted; as likewiſe before Magnificat and Nunc dimittis, that the Metre-Pſalms, which were not in being when theſe Rubricks were made, may not (as the uſe is in divers Places) thruſt out the Service here appointed in the Book, whereof thoſe Metre-Pſalms are no part, nor were ever yet ſuffered to be printed with it.

*† Before every Leſſon the Miniſter ſhall ſay, &c. ] Hugo Victorinus, Lib. 2. de Off. cap. 3. quærit, Cur in Lectionibus, &c. ſemper pronunciatur titulus Authoris aut Libri; & reſpondet, ad Miſſam convenire quoq; Bubulcas, qui neſciunt de Authore niſi doceantur.

In ſuch places where they do ſing, there ſhall the Leſſons be ſung in a plain tune, after the manner of diſtinct reading.

*† As in Cathedral or Collegiate Churches, or where there be many Prieſts and Clarks together, that are skilful to do it. Melodias autem ſimplices, graves, concinnas, & verbis Textus congruentes in Eccleſiis conſervari oportet. Nec cuivis Cantori liceat ſuo libitu Muſicos modos variare, ne dum quilibet Symphoniſta ſuam propriam phantaſiam ſequitur, Muſica perinde ut Africa quotidie novam ferat producat. C.

*† In the Church of Rome they were wont to ſing them modulatè, and ſo they uſe to do ſtill; which how ancient a Cuſtom it is, I cannot tell; but ſure it cannot boaſt of many Years, for thus writes their Durand. in his Rationale, that lived not long ago, Lectiones quoq; in ſingulis horis tam nocturnis quam diurnis dicuntur; Et dicitur Lectio, quia non cantatur ut Pſalmus vel Hymnus, ſed legitur tantum. Illic enim modulatio, hic ſola Pronunciatio quæritur. Thus Durandus, in his Rationale Div. Off. l. 5. c. 2. n. 43. So ſinging of Leſſons (what Commendation ſoever it may have, as I my ſelf miſlike it not) is not ſo ancient as the plain reading of them, according to this Rubrick and Appointment of our Church.

Reading has not the Force to affect and ſtir up the Spirit, which a grave manner of ſinging has. And this is the reaſon that in Places where they ſing, all our Prayers are ſung in a plain and audible tone. And ſinging, if it be not tempered with that Gravity which becomes the Servants of God, in the preſence of his holy Angels, is fuller of Danger than of Edification: Therefore has our Church moſt prudently appointed the Leſſons and Prayers, ſo to be ſung as may make most for the Dignity and Glory of God's high and holy Service, and be also a means to inflame Mens Affections, to stir up their Attentions, and to edify their Understandings; which is answerable to St. Augustine's desire, Lib. 10. Confess. cap. 33. when he wished for the Restitution of that Custom which Athanasius was wont to use, Qui Lectorem modico vocis flexu jubebat sonare, ut pronunciantí vicinior foret quam canenti.

* † Te Deum.] This Canticle was miraculously framed by the two old holy and famous Fathers of the Church, St. Ambrose and St. Augustine, who to the Admiration of all Men, sung it on the sudden together, one answeting another Alternatim, Verse by Verse, as if God had from Heaven taught them what so say, presently after St. Augustine's Baptism at Milan; which Story is written by St. Dacius, a Bishop of Milan, not much after St. Ambrose's Days, in the First Book of his Chronicle, and the Tenth Chapter. Horuit autem S. Dacius (says S. Greg. Lib. 3. dialog. cap. 4.) Imperante Justino seniore. And after this Hymn was so wonderfully framed by these two holy and learned Doctors (says Dacius) the whole Church of Christ here in our Western Parts began to use it in their Offices; which appears plainly to have been so used indeed by the ancient Rule of St. Benedict, (which was afterwards confirmed by St. Greg.) where before the Lesson, Ex Evangelio, is Te Deum laudamus prescribed to be sung Secundum antiquam consuetudinem Ecclesiæ. Being an ancient Hymn then in his time, it cannot be thought to be less than 1200 Years old and upwards, the time wherein St. Augustine was Christned by St Ambrose.

In the Common-Prayer-Book, 2 Edw. 6. it is appointed, That this Canticle be used all Lent long, after the First Lesson, in stead of Te Deum, which was to be said all the Year besides.

C † In the Order of Salisbury, it was appointed only to be said upon the Saturday in Ember-week (post Cinerum diem) after this manner (loco Tract. ad Missam.) *Duo Clerici ad gradum Chori dicant, Benedictus & Benedicite Omnia Opera Domini Domino, &c. C † Of the Apostles Creed.] "It was the Opinion of the Ancients (Ruffin. in Exp. Symb. Ambr. Serm. de jejun. 38. Aug. Lib. 1. C † All devoutly kneeling (in the Rubrick immediately after the Creed.) "Tertullian severely reproves such as sat at Prayers. Cum enim (inquit) perinde faciant Nationes adoratis sigillaribus suis residendo, vel propterea in nobis reprehendi meretur, quod apud Idola celebratur. Tert. de Orat. c. 12. "He forms his Reproof from three Heads: 1. That the Heathen did "in like manner; and that the imitating of them was a thing that "deserved to be reproved in us. 2. That it is irreverent, even "among Men, to sit in the presence of a Person to whom we owe "Respect. 3. Lastly, That it is a sign of a Mind spent and tired with Prayer. The ancient Christians perform all their Service standing or kneeling: Sitting they allowed not.

C * Then shall be said the Creed by the Minister and People standing.] The Creed was pronounced by the whole Congregation; and it was a very ancient Custom to do so, as appears by a Passage in the Commentaries that go under St. Ambrose's Name. 1 Cor. 11. 5. Prophetari autem est adventum fore Domini voce Symboli post Orationem effari. To pronounce in the Words of the Creed, &c. But I believe he means the other solemn Creed said after the Collect and the Gospel: For before that, I do not find that this Creed was from the beginning any part of the Church-Service.

C * The Lord be with you.— And with thy Spirit.] St. Chrysostom, upon these Words of St. Paul, We know not what to pray for as we ought, but the Spirit maketh Intercession for us, telleth us, That in the Apostles time, there was no less peculiar Inspiration to make a Prayer in a Publick Assembly of the Church, than there was to prophesy, and to foretel things to come, to cure Diseases, to do Miracles, and to speak strange Languages: For with all these Graces (says he) there was also a Grace of Prayer which was called a Spirit, and he that had it prayed for all the multitude, and stood up in the name of all, to desire those things which were for the Good of the Church in common: And he taught others to do the like. Answerable whereunto, now is the Deacon, when he offereth to God the Publick Prayers for the People. From whence we gather, that the Kind and Nature of these Publick Prayers which the Church now useth, is the same that the Church used (when the Matters of them were inspired) even in the Apostles time. And the Peoples answering here, as the Fashion also was of old, And with thy Spirit, had then reference to the Spiritual or Inspired Grace of Prayer, by which they were known to speak at the beginning.

C * The Holy Catholick Church, the Communion of Saints.] Which in the first place, is to be understood of that Church, and those Saints which framed these Articles of the Creed, for all Churches that were to succeed them. And truly, the Consideration of the Primitive and Apostolick Church (as it is called in the other Creed,) and the Precedent of it prescribeth two things.

The First is general, as it is a Church; and all Churches make one Church, by acknowledging and maintaining Union and Communion with the Churches, that have been in other Ages before us, as well as with the Churches that are in other Countries, without substantial Difference of Belief or Practice.

The Donatists in old time, as St. Austin chargeth them, fell foul upon the Article of the Catholick Church, because they acknowledged no Church but their own, but thought it had failed in all other Countries, by communicating with the Church of Africk, from which, as from a corrupted Church, they had separated themselves: Much more foul must he needs fall upon that Article, that shall think the Church perished almost as soon as it was instituted; and therefore renounceth and disclaimeth in his Practice, that which was used in the first Ages.

To maintain this Communion, it is not necessary we command, but it is necessary that we tolerate all that was then in Practice, and condemn not any thing. Tho' we think some things may be amended at this time, we must not think any thing was pernicious at that time. Which concerns all those who think, that they cannot detest the Corruptions of the Church of Rome enough, till they involve the Primitive Church, and whatsoever is done upon the Precedent of it, in the same Imputation; which if we should do, then were we as true Schismaticks, as they of the Church of Rome would have us.

The Second is more particular, as it was the Church Primitive, and near the Fountain. That which was then in Practice, when the Coast was clear, must needs appear more reasonable and venerable to us, than what is since devised. And therefore this Church of ours is not to forsake the Orders of the Primitive Church, that it may be the more conformable to other Reformed Churches; where the Orders in Force with us have both the Precedent of such ancient Practice, and the reason of Edification with them.

C * The Order for Evening Prayer, The Priest shall say (2 Edw. 6. Sacerdos oret) Our Father, &c.] Always provided, that he forgets not his Directions, which were given him before at the beginning of Morning Prayer, where he is appointed to read the Sentences, and that which follows before Evening Prayer also.

C * Then the Creed and the Lord's Prayer shall be said by the Minister, Clerks and People, with a loud Voice.] In the Second of Edw. 6. the Minister is appointed to say the Creed and the Pater noster alone, and the Choir to answer, But deliver us from Evil, Amen. And the Kyrie Eleison is ordered to be said before the Creed; but no Dominus vobiscum, with the Answer ordered to be said, till after the Versicles, immediately before the Collects.

C * Then the Minister standing up shall read the Versicles.] And he is not appointed to kneel down afterwards at the Collects.

C * In the Feasts of Christmass, Epiphany, &c. shall be sung or said, immediately after Benedictus, this Confession of our Faith, &c.] In the Second of Edw. 6. it is called the Creed of Athanasius, and appointed to be sung only. In the Fifth of Edw. 6. were the Apostles Days here named, and St. John Baptist's day inserted, that by repeating this Creed every Month (for so are those Days divided) it might become the more familiar to the People. And though it be not here set down, yet I believe the meaning was, that the Apostles Creed should be omitted that Day, when this of Athanasius was repeated.

C * Quicunq; vult.] The Emperor Jovinian wrote Letters to Athanasius, and earnestly intreated him, ut accuratam de sacrosancta fide doctrinam sibi conscriberet: That he would set down an exact Form of the Holy Doctrine of the Catholick Faith, Theod. Lib. 2. Hist. cap. 2.

And therefore, becauſe many neglecting that preceding Rubrick, which rules this, do begin the Even-ſong here, it gave occaſion to the Puritans, in their Survey, to ask, Whether Miniſters were not as puniſhable for that neglect, as for not wearing of a Surplice? And truly I think they are. Fidei Cathol.* referreth this Order to the Apoſtles, upon the Wedneſday and Friday, and upon the Lord's-day. The Jews in their Synagogues, obſerved for their ſpecial Days of Aſſembling thoſe together that dwelt in Villages, Mundays and Thurſdays, beſides the Sabbath: Maimon. in Megillah, c. 1. n. 6. The Preſident of the Jews directed to the Church, not to do leſs than they did. They made choice of Mundays and Thurſdays, in regard of ſome great Calamities that befel their Nation upon thoſe Days; and that they might not be three Days together, without doing ſome Publick Service to God. The Church had the like Reaſons for Wedneſdays and Fridays (Conſt. Apoſt. V. 14.) whereon our Saviour was betrayed and crucified, the moral Reaſon of once in three Days, with a convenient diſtance from Sunday concurring. And how ancient the Obſervation of Wedneſdays and Fridays Aſſemblies hath been in the Church, is alſo to be known by the Recommendation of them in Ignatius, Ep. ad Phil. and in Clem. Alex. Strom. 5. And how uniform the Obſervance of them was in the ancient Church, is to be known again by Epiphanius, who ſaith they were kept in all the Climates of the World. So the Orders of our Church ſtand recommended to us, by the Practice of the oldeſt times, both for ordinary and extraordinary Faſting and Praying upon thoſe Days.

Further Socrates, Lib. V. cap. 22. ſaith, That at Alexandria, upon Wedneſdays and Fridays, both the Scriptures were read; and that the Doctors expounded them; and that all was done which belonged to an Aſſembly, except celebrating the Myſteries: And that this was an ancient Cuſtom there, for that Origen taught moſt of his Writings on thoſe Days in the Church.

Theſe Litanies were wont to be ſaid at the Celebration of the Euchariſt, as in the ancient Church, ſo in this alſo, 2 Edw. 6. when the Communion was adminiſtred (as it ſtill ought to be in Catholick Churches) every Sunday at the leaſt. Now, altho' the Condition of the Church be not for the preſent capable of ſo excellent a Cuſtom, yet was there good reaſon, that the Litanies ſhould be preſcribed upon thoſe Days howſoever, as being the next Solemnity to the Euchariſt in the Publick Service of God, obſerved from the beginning of the Church: And becauſe they contain matter of Supplication, for the diverting of God's Judgments, and obtaining his Bleſſings, nothing could be more ſuitable than to add them to the daily Morning-Service, upon Wedneſdays and Fridays, as the Exerciſe of that continual Humiliation before God, to which the Obſervation of thoſe Days was intended, to the unſpeakable Benefit of the Church, and the continual Diſcharge of thoſe moſt excellent Offices of Faſting, Prayer and Alms among Chriſtians.

C  Here followeth the Litany, to be uſed on Sundays, Wedneſdays and Fridays, &c. ] By the Poſition of it in this place (though it be not ſpecified after what part of the Service it ſhall be uſed) it ſeems that they intended it to follow the Morning Prayer. And in the Rubrick before the Communion it is ordered, That after Morning Prayer is done (which was then done betimes, and while it was yet Morning, not put off as ſince till towards Noon) the People ſhall be called together again to the Litany by the tolling of a Bell, after the accuſtomed manner. So that in thoſe Days, the Cuſtom was to go home after Morning Prayer, and to come again to the Litany; not to diſpatch (as now they do) all at once. In the Second of Edw. 6. there is a Rubrick at the end of the Communion, wherein the Litany is appointed to be ſung upon Wedneſdays and Fridays, according to the King's Injunctions; and that after the Litany ended, the Prieſt ſhall, upon thoſe Days, having on him an Alb or Surplice with a Cope, go to the Communion; or if there be none to communicate, that nevertheleſs, he ſhall read that which is appointed at the Communion unto the end of the Offertory, concluding with one or two Collects, and the Benediction.

C  From all Sedition, privy Conſpiracy. ] It followed in the Second and Fifth of Edw. 6. From the Tyranny of the Biſhop of Rome, and all his deteſtable Enormities. Which Words by a ſpecial Proviſion in the Act of Uniformity in theſe Words, (And the Form of the Litany altered and corrected) were left out in our Book, as being too hard and violent an Expreſſion. But the Preachers ſince that time have got it into their Pulpits, though they could not be allowed it in their Litanies; and all ſorts of Men have choſen rather to follow them, than this Temperance and Order of the Church.

*† From Fornication, and all other deadly Sin. ] Here would the Puritans have Hen. 8th's old Words come in again, which he added to the Litany upon his falling out with the Pope, viz. From the Tyranny of the Biſhop of Rome, and all his deteſtable Enormities. Becauſe Religious People may ſuſpect, that by the leaving out of theſe Words, we are declining, and going back again to Popery. C † By thy Croſs and Paſſion, &c. ] The ancient Fathers of the Greek Church in their Liturgy, after they had recounted all the particular Pains in Chriſt's Paſſion, as they are ſet down in the Four Goſpels, and by all, and by every one of them called for Mercy and Deliverance (as here we do) added after all, and ſhut up all with this Petition, Αι αγνωστοι αυτου και βασανοι ιλασθητι και σωσον ημας. By thine unknown Sorrows and Sufferings, Good Lord have mercy upon us, ſave and deliver us: For he felt more of them than we know, or can diſtinctly expreſs.

C † And in the Day of Judgment, Good Lord deliver us. ] * This Petition and Prayer referreth to us after we are Dead; and ſuppoſeth, that being Dead, we are ſtill capable of God's Mercy and Favour, when the laſt Day of the General Judgment ſhall come: For when that time comes, we muſt every one (be we alive, or be we dead) ſtand before the Tribunal-ſeat of Chriſt, and then ſhall all Men give an Account ſeverally for all their own Deeds, every Perſon for himſelf, Rom. 14. 10, 12. 2 Cor. 5. 10. even for every idle Word that he hath ſpoken, Matth. 12. 36. It doth therefore concern us, to pray for ourſelves, (as here the Church of England, therein following

* To pray for Mercy in the Day of Judgment, for our ſelves and others, who continue in this World (which is our Probative State, and the only time for working out our Salvation) we have the Holy Scripture to countenance us in; but we have none to warrant us to pray for our dead Friends. The Popiſh Doctrine of Purgatory was exploded by our Church, in the very firſt Reformation; and Prayer for dead Souls, who departed in the Lord, as to the Improvement of their Bliſs, or for Mercy at the general Judgment, was likewiſe laid aſide in the Second Review of the Liturgy under King Edward. But I cannot ſee, that there is any thing in this Petition that looks this way; nor do I find that the Puritans, who have been very clear-ſighted, to ſearch out for every thing that looked like Popery in the Liturgy, ever charged us with Prayer for the Dead in this Petition. And ſince our Reformers took ſuch care, to lay aſide every thing that might give the leaſt Countenance to the Popiſh Errors, I do not ſee any reaſon this Annotator had to uſe ſo much Criticiſm, and Wire-drawing the Expreſſion, to faſten an Opinion on the Church, which ſhe has in ſuch a ſolemn manner rejected; tho', out of Tenderneſs to ſome of the Ancients who maintained it, ſhe has not directly condemned it.

ing the Religious Order and Example of many Churches Abroad, has directed us) not only as we consider ourselves in this present State of Life, or at the Hour of Death; but likewise as we shall be hereafter in the future state of dead Persons, and in Expectation of our final Sentence, when we shall be examined for every thing we have done or said amiss, at the last Day of Judgment. Which Examination being yet to come, and to follow us when we be dead, we may lawfully pray, that after Death we may be delivered from the rigour of it; and that God would have mercy on us, both before we die (considered as Persons here alive) and afterwards (considered as Persons that have been long dead) when we shall come to render up our Account in the Day of Judgment. At which time, Christ will not sit upon his Tribunal-seat only to execute a former Sentence given at the Hour of Death, but proceed farther, and call every one to a Reckoning for what they have done in their Bodies, whether it be good, or whether it be evil, Eccles 12. 14. 2 Cor. 5. 10. For the Son of Man shall come in the Glory of his Father, with his Angels, and then (not before) he will reward every Man according to his Works, Matth. 16. 27. Behold I come quickly, and my Reward is with me, (with him when he comes) to give every one according as his Work shall be, Apoc. 22. 12. that is, shall be then found to be upon the Account which they must then make to him. And who can abide the Day of his coming, (Joel 2. 11.) if he shall proceed strictly with them, by the Rules of Justice and Judgment? Knowing therefore this Terror (as the Apostle speaks, 2 Cor. 5. 11.) we pray here for Mercy and Deliverance there, that at this last Day of Judgment, the strictness and rigour of his discussing, examining, and sentencing our Words and Deeds, may be graciously mitigated, and that he would be merciful to us in that Day, as St. Paul prayed for Onesiphorus, (2 Tim. 1. 18.) being then most probably dead; or whether he were dead or no, that Prayer related to him, as he should be in the state of Death, and wherein that Day of Judgment should find him. And so do we consider ourselves here in making the same Prayer, and saying, In the Day of Judgment, Good Lord deliver us. It is a point therefore, of the Piety and Religion of the Church of England, (as it hath been likewise of the Universal Church of Christ heretofore: S. Aug. Lib. de Cura pro Mortuis, c. 1. & 4. Non parva est Universæ Ecclesiæ, quæ in hac consuetudine claret, authoritas, ut in precibus Sacerdotis locum suum habeat Commendatio Mortuorum. Et Iterum, Non sunt prætermittendæ supplicationes pro Spiritibus mortuorum, quas faciendas pro omnibus in Christianâ & Catholicâ societate defunctis, etiam tacitis nominibus sub generali commemoratione, suscepit Ecclesia, ut quibus ad ista desunt parentes aut filii, aut quicunq; cognati vel amici, ab unâ eis exhibeantur piâ matre communi) to pray for Mercy after death, and not to doubt; (for otherwise we may be sure she would never set us to pray and petition here for it) but that such as are dead in Christ, and in the Catholick Communion of his Church be capable of it. Nor can we conceive a more probable Interpretation of these Words, than that there is Mercy and Favour to be found In the Day of Judgment. But as we offer, and have set forth this Interpretation, because none other appears to us more probable; so because it is not any fundamental Point or Article of Faith necessary to Salvation, we will leave it free for every Man to think and judge of it as he shall see cause. Only if he findeth not a more solid and certain Interpretation, let him take this. Vide quæ annotavimus ad illa verba (That we, and all that are departed in the true Faith, may have our perfect Consummation and Bliss, &c.) in Officio & Sepultura Mortuorum.

*† —To forgive us all our Sins, Negligences and Ignorances.] ‡ A strange Presumption it is, for so many private Writers as we have among us, to make so much ado with them of the Church of Rome, about the Distinction of Mortal and Venial or lesser Sins, when as the Liturgy of our own Church does here manifestly acknowledge so much.

‡ What private Writers this Annotator here means, I do not know, nor does he here specify the Mistakes they have committed, in falsly charging the Papists in their Doctrine about Venial Sins. Most of our Writers, as well as other Protestants Abroad, do with just Reason find fault with them, for making any Sin to be in its own Nature Venial, since it being a Violation of God's Law, it renders us subject to his Wrath and Vengeance. Indeed, our Church allows a Difference between Sins, some whereof are Wilful Sins, and others are Sins of Ignorance and Infirmity: But neither are these Latter in their own Nature Venial, it is only owing to the Indulgence of the Gospel-Dispensation, that if Men do not allow themselves in the Practice of any gross or wilful Sin, God will be graciously pleased to pardon these lesser Sins upon a general Repentance. Indeed the best of Men, through their Original Corruption, cannot help falling frequently into Sins of this Nature, but still they are Sins, and therefore cannot be in their own Nature Venial. And this is the Doctrine of our Church, when she teaches; And although there be no Condemnation for them that believe and are baptized, yet the Apostle doth confess, that Concupiscence and Lust hath of itself the Nature of Sin, Art. ix.

C † O Lamb of God, O Lamb of God, O Christ, &c.] Exception is taken against these Repetitions, as being a Custom of the Heathen, forbidden by our Saviour, Matth. 6. 7. *When ye pray, use no vain Repetitions. Sed eo loco non vetamur id quod sollicitè expetimus aliquoties repetere, quod Christus ipse fecit, at prohibemur tantum Deo verba annumerare, quasi ille preces ex prolixitate potiùs & labore externi operis, quam ex intimo animi affectu (excitando, non indicando verba in precibus inserviunt) metiatur. C † For Rain, if the time require. In the Order of Sarum for all these things following, there was a special Mass said.

In the time of any common Plague or Sickness.] In the Order of Sarum, they were wont for this purpose to say a special Mass, which they said was made by Pope Clement V. at Avignon. The People were appointed at this Mass to kneel, and to hold a burning Wax-Candle in their Hand all the while, and to let it burn (in the Church or their Houses) Five Days together. This if they did, they were promised by the Pope large Indulgences; and were assured by their Parish-Priests, to be delivered from sudden Death: For they told them, Hoc est certum & approbatum in Avinione, & in partibus circumvicinis. In this Mass they used for the Epistle or First Lesson, the 24th Chapter of the 2d of Samuel; and for the Gospel or Second Lesson, the 4th of St. Luke. Surgens Jesus usq; ad Quia ideo missus sum. And they used divers Prayers for the aid of St. Sebastian, that he would be propitious to England, as he was to Lombardy; where they were made to believe, that he freed the whole Country

Country from the Plague. All which the Reformed Church of England has now aboliſhed; and by this one Prayer (purâ prece, as Tert. calls it) ſeeketh in ſuch a time the Mercy of God.

C For Rain, &c. if the time requireth.] Theſe in the Second of King Edward are ſet in the end of the Collects after the Offertory, being then only two for Rain and Fair Weather. After in the 5th Year of King Edw. they were augmented to that number which we have now; but they were placed between the Collects, We humbly beſeech thee, &c. and St. Chryſoſtom's Prayer; which is a Direction for us, where to read them, when need is.

C A Thankſgiving for Rain, &c.] Theſe Thankſgivings were added, upon the Complaint of Dr. Reynolds, and others, at the Conference at Hampton-Court, ſaying, That we wanted particular Thankſgivings for particular Benefits received; the ſame Complaint that Cartwright and the Admonitioners to the Parliament had made before, whom the King and his Biſhops thought good to ſatisfy: And to that end, were theſe Collects of Thankſgivings drawn up, and inſerted into the Liturgy by the King's Command; but they are not yet Confirmed by Act of Convocation or Parliament.

C The Sixth Sunday after Epiphany (if there be ſo many) ſhall have the ſame, &c.] This alſo was added for the ſame Reaſon next before ſpecified.

C The Prayer of St. Chryſoſtom.] Taken out of his Liturgy, which (it ſeems) the Church of England acknowledges to be his. In the Second of Edw. 6. it follows immediately after We humbly beſeech thee, and ends the Litany without any other Collect inſerted between them, for the King, Queen, Prince or Clergy (who were all ſolemnly prayed for already in the Litany itſelf, as in our Book we find them to be; which were there added only by virtue of the Queen's Injunctions, allowing an Anthem to be ſung after Morning and Evening Prayer, and the Collect for the Queen to be daily ſaid after the Anthem: So that this, and the other that follow before St. Chryſoſtom's Prayer, (whereof that for the Queen, and the King's Children, were added by the Biſhops upon King James's coming in, and by his Authority only, not yet by the Parliament confirmed) are no part of the Litany, but only Additionals to be ſaid after an Anthem or Pſalm, in the end of Morning and Evening Service.

And doſt promiſe, that when two or three are, &c. thou wilt grant their Requeſts, &c.] We know upon what Patent this Priviledge ſtands, St. Matth. 18. 20. We muſt know further, That by the Rules of the Jewiſh Synagogue (then in uſe) under Ten Perſons that were of Years, there was no Congregation; for before that number were preſent, they went not to Prayers. And by the Rules of Civil Law, Decem Perſonæ faciunt populum. But Chriſt intending to free his Church of all Rules that might abridge the Privileges of it, and foreknowing of divers Occaſions that would happen (eſpecially in times of Perſecution) to leſſen that number, aſſureth us of his Preſence, where the leaſt number agree in the thing they deſire at his Hands: For that to be the reaſon of his Preſence among them is clear from the Nineteenth Verſe, If two of them ſhall agree touching any thing they ſhall ask, &c. The Jews have an Opinion, that the Prayers of their Congregations are always heard, not ſo the Prayers of Particular Perſons in private. Maim. of Prayer, C. 8. Nor are the Words to be underſtood of Two or Three that are gathered together in any place, but in any ſuch place as is appointed for the Holy Aſſemblies, 1 Tim. 2. 8. I will therefore, that Men pray every where, &c. is but a Freedom from the Legal Circumſtance of the Temple, and an Application of Mal. 1. 2. and John 4. 21. *Omnem locum intellige ſacris cœtibus deſtinatum; agit enim S. Prieſt (or Biſhop) let them depart with this Bleſſing.] Which was the Cuſtom of the Jews to do, pronouncing the Bleſſing appointed by the Law at the end of the Service. In the Temple (ſaith Maimonides of Prayer, C. 14. 9.) after the Morning-Service was done, the Prieſts went into the Pulpit to bleſs the People, which Eccleſiaſticus ſeemeth punctually to deſcribe, cap. 50. v. 20, 21. Then went the Prieſt down, and lifted his Hands over the whole Congregation of the Children of Iſrael, to give the Bleſſing of the Lord with his Lips, and to rejoice in his Name; and the People bowed themſelves down the ſecond time to worſhip, that they might receive a Bleſſing from the moſt high. So they received it kneeling.

By the 103d of the African Canons in Juſtellus, it ſeems that the Benedictions of the Biſhop or Prieſt that Celebrated (to whom this Office of Bleſſing alſo belonged, as St. Jerome contendeth) are called Commendationes & Impoſitiones manuum, i. e. to ſay Prayers whereby to commend the People to God with Impoſition of Hands: And it is further ordered, That they be uniform, and preſcribed Forms of Bleſſing (not arbitrary or voluntary) in all Churches. The People, at the receiving of this Bleſſing, bowed their Heads, the Biſhop holding his Hands over them, as a Sign of God's Hand ſtretched out to bleſs them. Anaphora S. Baſilii, publiſhed by Maſius.

Luther, in his Form of the Communion of the Year 1523. ſaith of this Benediction, That it is, Quædam quaſi Abſolutio publica Communicantium a peccatis, & vox plane Evangelica; therefore rather to be kept than the Jewiſh Form, which the Calviniſts every where uſe in their Aſſemblies.

*† The Church has not appointed theſe following Goſpels and Epiſtles, but upon ſpecial relation to the time wherein they are read. And it is admirable to ſee, with what Order and Wiſdom all things are diſpoſed and brought in tempore ſuo, that they might be the more kindly for the putting us in mind of what we are about, or what we have to do. The whole Year is diſtinguiſhed into Two Parts: The time of Chriſt's living among us here on Earth, which is the Firſt; and our time of living here after his Example, which is the Second: For the Firſt are all the Sundays appointed from Advent to Trinity-Sunday, for the reſt are all the Sundays after Trinity to Advent again. (Veteres diſtinxerunt hæc duo tempora in tempus Dominicæ Diſpenſationis, & tempus noſtræ peregrinationis.) And becauſe the Firſt Part is converſant about the Life of Chriſt, and the Myſteries of his Divine Diſpenſation, therefore beginning at Advent is the Memory of his Incarnation celebrated, and after that his Nativity, then his Circumciſion, his Manifeſtation to the Gentiles, his Nonage, his Doctrine, his Miracles, his Paſſion, his Burial, his Reſurrection, his Aſcenſion, his Sending of the Holy Ghoſt, all in a moſt abſolute Order: In all which, we ſee the whole Story and Courſe of our Saviour, in manifeſting himſelf, and his Divine Myſteries, to the World. So that the Goſpels read through all this part of the Year, have their chief end and purpoſe, to make us know and remember orderly with grateful Hearts, what excellent Benefits God the Father hath communicated unto us, firſt by his Son, and then by his Holy Spirit, making us the Heirs of Heaven, that before were the Sons of Hell; for which unſpeakable Goodneſs, we do moſt fitly end this part of the Year, with giving Praiſe and Glory to the whole Bleſſed Trinity.

*† The Second Part, which contains all the Sundays after that, being for our Guidance in the Peregrination that we have living in this World, hath for it ſuch Goſpels in order appointed, as may moſt eaſily and plainly inſtruct and lead us in the true Paths of Chriſtianity;

nity ; that thoſe which are Regenerated by Chriſt, and Initiated in his Faith, may know what Vertues to follow, and what Vices to eſchew. Thus in the Firſt Part we are to learn the Myſteries of the Chriſtian Religion ; in the Second, we are to practiſe that which is agreeable to the ſame. For ſo it behoves us, not only to know that we have no other Foundation of our Religion but Chriſt Jeſus, born and crucified, and riſen for us ; but further alſo, to build upon this Foundation ſuch a Life as he requires of us. And becauſe the Firſt Part ends with Pentecoſt, the giving us a new Law in our Hearts ; therefore the Second is to begin with the Practice of that Law : That as the Children of Iſrael did paſs the Deſert by the Direction of Moſes, ſo we may paſs through this World by the Guidance of our Saviour, and overcoming at laſt our Spiritual Enemies, we may come to our heavenly Dwelling-place, and there remain with him for ever.

*† The Roman Miſſal and Breviary differeth from our Engliſh Service-Book in theſe Collects : Firſt and Second Sundays in Advent, Chriſtmaſs-day, New-Years-day, Fourth Sunday after Epiphany, Quinquageſima-Sunday, Aſh-Wedneſday, Firſt Sunday in Lent, Good-Friday, Eaſter-Munday and Tueſday, Firſt and Second Sunday after Eaſter, Sunday after Aſcenſion-day, Munday and Tueſday in Whitſun-week, St. Andrew's-day, St. Thomas's-day, St. Mark's-day, St. John Baptiſt's-day, St. James's-day, St. Simon and St. Jude, St. Matthias's-day, Annunciation, St. Philip and St. Jacob's-day, St. Peter's-day, St. Matthew's-day, All-Saints-day.

*† The Service of the Sunday is appointed to be longer than upon other Days of the Week, and the like upon Holidays and Feſtival-days ; for ſo it was ordered in the Law, that upon great Feaſts and the Sabbath-days, the Sacrifice ſhould be twice as much as upon the ordinary Days of the Week, Numb. 28. 9, 10, &c.

The Firſt Sunday in Advent.

*† By the peculiar Computation of the Church, this is the Firſt Sunday in the Year : For ſhe neither follows the Courſe of Sun or Moon, to number her Days and Nights according to their Revolution ; but Jeſus Chriſt being to her as the only Sun and Light whereby ſhe is guided, ſhe following his Courſe alone, beginning and ending her Year with him : When this Sun of Righteouſneſs therefore doth ariſe ; that is, when his firſt Coming and Incarnation is propounded to us, then begins the Year of the Church, and from thence are all her other Days and Times computed. Fer. 1. 1. Dom. 26. *p. After the Epiſtle (which was read every Sunday, and ſome other ſolemn times, by the Subdeacon, upon the Pulpit that ſtood in the midſt of the Choir, but at other times upon the Steps at the upper-end of the Choir) followed the Gradual, ſung by two Choriſters upon the ſame Pulpit : And the Gradual (ſo called, becauſe it is ſung before the Gradus or Steps of the Choir) was only a Verſe of a Pſalm. After which followed another, that they called The Verſe : And after that an Hymn, which they called The Proſe-Tract, or Sequence, ſung by the whole Choir. In theſe Sequences (ſo called, becauſe all the Words of it ſeem to follow one another in the ſame Tract or manner of Expreſſion) there be Prayers made to the Saints, upon thoſe Days which bear their Names : The chief reaſon why the Church of England has omitted them, as ſometimes alſo they were omitted in Sarum Miſſal. Non male monet Synodus Colonienſis habita Anno 1536. p. 2. c. 11. *Nonnullis olim uſurpatis ſequentiis aliquid labii adhæſiſſe, & propterea ab iis recte poſſe abſtineri. ## The Epiphany.

*† THE Collect, Sarum; the Epiſtle, Epheſ. 3. 1. This Epiſtle and the Collect run all upon the Calling of the Gentiles, becauſe Chriſt was this Day made firſt known unto them, in the Perſons of the Wiſe-men that came from the Eaſt to worſhip him. *Epiſtola Sarum. ## Of the high and great Feaſt of Chriſt's Epiphany.

*† THIS high Day's Solemnity is one of the greateſt Feaſts which the Church doth celebrate, in Memory of our Saviour. A Feaſt not only honoured by all devout Chriſtians in all Ages, but reverenced even by the Emperors themſelves, that were the Enemies of the Catholick Church; as by Julian the Apoſtate, who to cover his hidden Malice againſt Chriſt's Religion, Cum eſſet in Galliis (ſaith Ammianus Marcellinus, Lib. 21.) voluit eâ die cum cæteris Chriſtianis ſacris intereſſe Myſteriis. Julianus autem, ut hæc interim celarentur, feriarum die quem celebrantes Menſe Januario Chriſtiani Epiphaniam dicitant, progreſſus in eorum Eccleſiam, ſolenniter Numine orato diſceſſit. Ib. It was alſo honourably obſerved by Valens the Arrian Emperor, as Nazianzen reports, (Orat. in laudem Baſilii.) He knew well, he would be accounted no Chriſtian at all, who did not openly ſhew himſelf at ſuch Solemnities, to honour Chriſt with his Service. Other Chriſtian Emperors have held it in ſuch high Eſteem, that for the more honourable and religious Celebration of it, they have by Law, and Imperial Edicts, ranked it with the great Feaſts of Chriſtmaſs and Eaſter. Theodoſ. Lib. 2. c. de Feriis. Diem Paſchæ & diem Natalem Domini, & Epiphaniæ, & ſeptem qui ſequuntur (the whole Week after) ſine ſtrepitu judiciali volumus obſervari. And in another Law (Leg. 21. ſub initium) made by Valentinian, Theodoſius, and Arcadius, they are all three ranked together again, and divers Privileges equally granted them above all other Feaſts of the Year. The old Chriſtians of Egypt were wont to celebrate Chriſt's Nativity upon this Day: Chryſoſt. in Luc. c. 2. Caſſian. Col. 10. de Orat. c. 1. Epiph. Hær. 51. And indeed, it is the laſt and the great Day of Chriſtmaſs with us: As St. John ſaid of another Feaſt, In the laſt and great Day of the Feaſt, Jeſus ſtood up. It has been a Feaſt of Joy all this while, but to Day comes in our Fulneſs of Joy, the Day when the Fulneſs of the Gentiles came in, to whom he was manifeſted in the Perſons of theſe Wiſe-men, as the King and the Saviour of all the World. The chief thing which the Church propounds unto us upon Chriſtmaſs-day, is the Birth of our Lord, his Humanity, and his coming in the Fleſh, there being nothing more proper to a Man, than to be born of a Woman: But to Day it raiſeth our Meditations, and propounds unto us thoſe things, whereby He that was born, the true Son of a Virgin, manifeſted himſelf to be the only and eternal Son of God. The Manifeſtation of his Divinity then, by wonderful and heavenly Signs, is the proper Theme and Subject of this Day's Solemnity; in which regard, it is called the Epiphany by the Greeks, and of Old more commonly the Theophanie, or the Apparition of God: And accordingly has the Church propounded thoſe admirable Miracles unto us this Day; which did manifeſt Chriſt to be ſo, and which were all performed upon this very Day; the firſt whereof was this his Apparition, or manifeſting himſelf unto the Gentiles, wherein the Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel of the Day is ſpent: The Second was his glorious Baptiſm in Jordan, when he firſt manifeſted himſelf unto the Jews, having 30 Years before concealed himſelf from them, Luke 3. appointed in that reſpect for the Second Leſſon at Mattens: The Third was his Miracle in Cana of Galilee; where, by turning Water into Wine, he did firſt manifeſt himſelf unto his Diſciples, ſaith St. John, c. 2. appointed likewiſe in that regard for the Second Leſſon at Even-ſong, this preſent Day; wherein the Church hath not intended to propound unto us, at the Celebration of this Feaſt, all thoſe Miracles that were wrought to manifeſt, and ſhew forth Chriſt's Divinity, but thoſe only which in their ſeveral kinds were the firſt, and wrought before all others for that purpoſe. To the Gentiles, his firſt Manifeſtation was by the Star. To the Jews, his Firſt was by the Voice from Heaven at his Baptiſm. To his Diſciples, the Firſt was the Manifeſtation of his Glory, at the Marriage at Cana in Galilee, John 2. ult. This was the Firſt Miracle that Jeſus did to manifeſt his Glory, and his Diſciples believed on him; which is the reaſon, that all the Goſpels upon the Sundays after the Epiphany, are the Stories in order of Chriſt's manifeſting himſelf to be the Son of God by the ſame, and the like Miracles. St. Aug. Serm. 29. de temp. and out of him venerable Bede, addeth a Fourth Miracle, as being done alſo upon this Day, when he firſt manifeſted his Divine Power to all the common People, by feeding 5000 Men with a few Loaves. St. Aug. ut ſupra, Bede in Luke 2. and out of them Ordo Rom. But the Church has only propounded unto us thoſe three which are before-mentioned: And hence are thoſe Antiphonaes ſo often repeated in the Service at Benedictus and Magnificat upon this Day. Item ordo Romanus, Annal. l. 4. c. 34. Ivo in Serm. de Epiph. Tribus miraculis ornatum hunc diem ſanctum colimus: Hodie Stella Magos duxit ad præſepium; hodie vinum ex aquâ factum eſt ad Nuptias; hodie in Jordane Chriſtus Baptizari voluit ut ſervaret Nos. Of theſe Three the Greeks made Chriſt's Baptiſm to belong moſt properly to this Feaſt; and therefore, in their Menologies, they intitle it Theophania Domini, Divinuſq; Salvatoris Baptiſmus: And the next Day, Johannes Baptiſta: In which regard, they were wont alſo to make this Feaſt the great and ſolemn Day of Baptizing their Catechumeni; ſuch as Eaſter and Pentecoſt were univerſally uſed over the Church both Latin and Greek, (but this Faſhion of the Greek Church pleaſed not Pope Leo, who wrote a long decretal Epiſtle againſt it, to all the Biſhops of Sicily, Antiq. Liturg. in Octava Epiphaniæ) calling it Feſtorum Luminum, which declareth the Effect and Virtue of Baptiſm that Chriſt inſtituted this Day in Jordan, to Illuminate them that were before in Darkneſs. It is the reaſon why St. Cyril, and other ancient Catechiſts, direct and entitle their Inſtitutions, ad Illuminatos & Illuminandos. Nazianzen's Oration in Sancta Lumina. Sanctus Luminum dies (ſaith he) ad quem pervenimus, quemq; hodie divino beneficio celebravimus, Chriſti mei, hoc eſt veræ lucis, omnem hominem in mundum venientem illuminantis, Baptiſmum pro principio habet. Whereupon, it was their Cuſtom in that Church, for the more glorious Solemnity of this great Feaſt, and for the Expreſſion of that high and heavenly Joy which they conceived from it, to adorn their Publick Churches with a great number of Lights and Tapers, when they came to perform and celebrate their Service upon it. So Naz. in his Oration upon St. Baſil, ſpeaking of Valens the Arrian Emperor, Nam in die luminum (ſays he) quando populus omnis in Eccleſiam convenit, ingreſſus & Ipſe, ubi ordinem Pſalmodiæ, ceremonias rite celebratas, Aras omni decore ac reverentiâ cultas, populum deniq; divino cultui aſſiſtentem vidit, admiratus eſt, &c. But it has always been the Cuſtom of the Latin Church, to attribute unto this Day (as here our Church doth) the Adoration of the Wiſe-men, and in their Perſons the manifeſting of God's only begotten Son to us that were Gentiles. Eminet, ſays Rupertus, & præcipuum eſt, quod hoc die Chriſtus à Magis adoratus eſt; whereby it pleaſed God to take the Heathen alſo to his Inheritance, Pſal. 2. He that made God and Man to be one Chriſt, made alſo the Jew and the Gentile to be one People, even his own. And for this it is, that the Office of the Day runs chiefly upon this Story; a Story no leſs full of Wonder than of Joy. And it contains many things, Quæ ſunt eruditæ quæſtionis, de quibus nos aliquot in hunc diem Conciones formavimus; eas Conſule. Vid. quæ ſtripſ. Caſaub. ſuper hoc Feſt. Ex. 2. §. 37. p. 187, 188.

De Dominicis poſt Epiphaniam.

*† The Offices of the Sundays which follow the Epiphany, until Septuageſima-Sunday, are of the ſame Argument with the Epiphany itſelf; all belonging to the Manifeſtation of Chriſt, and to the end for which he was made known unto the Sons of Men.

The Firſt Sunday after the Epiphany.

*† The End is, ut qui oculis Carnis apparebat purus homo, oculis Cordis credatur verus Deus, that he who came into the World in the form of a Man, may be believed alſo to be the Son of God; and according to this belief, that he may receive Worſhip and Service from us both as God and Man, as he was adored of the Wiſe-men. In which regard, moſt piouſly and very appoſitely hath the Church expreſſed that Deſire which ſhould be in all Men, by the Collect of this Day; that with the Wiſe-men of the Eaſt, we may ſee firſt, and perceive what we ought to do; and then while we are a-ſeeking, as they were, that we may have Grace and Guidance faithfully and devoutly to perform the ſame (as they alſo did) thro' Chriſt, &c. The Epiſtle exhorts us to make a ſpiritual uſe of their myſterious Offerings; and eſpecially of Myrrh, which ſignifieth very rightly the mortifying of the Fleſh, and the offering up of our Bodies as an holy Sacrifice to God. The Goſpel, belongs properly to the Manifeſtation Chriſt, made to the Doctors of the Jews, and continues on the Story of his Life, from his Birth to his time of Infancy in order; withal declaring, that he was both God and Man: Man, in being made ſubject to his Father and his Mother; he came down to Nazareth, and was obedient unto them: God, in going about his Father's Buſineſs, and diſputing with the Doctors while he was yet in his Nonage, which as Man he could not poſſibly have done. So here's one Epiphany more.

℄† The Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel, ut in Miſſ. Sarum.

The literal Senſe of the Epiſtle.

℄† I beſeech you therefore, Brethren.] Becauſe the Apoſtle had ſet forth in all his Epiſtle before, the chief Points and Myſteries of our Chriſtian Religion, therefore he deſcends now to the Duties of a Chriſtian Life, that the one may be anſwerable to the other, which is the Method and Order that the Church here hath followed: After the ſetting forth of the chief Solemnities and Feaſts of the Year, (wherein the principal Myſteries of Chriſtianity are contained) to go on (as St. Paul doth) and to give us his good Leſſons for our Lives: For by the Word (therefore) there is a dependence made of one following upon the other, to make now a right uſe of the Grace that hath been by Chriſt beſtowed on us.

℄† Your Bodies a quick Sacrifice.] For God does not now require any more Levitical Sacrifices which were made of brute Beaſts, but he requires the Sacrificing of ourſelves; not by killing our Bodies, but by mortifying and deſtroying our carnal Affections, and by Sanctification of Life, to offer up and conſecrate ourſelves to him. St. Aug. in Pſal. 50. Habes in te quod occidas, i. e. You have always ſomewhat in yourſelf to kill.

℄† This World.] Which is wholly ſet upon what is Evil. 1 Joh. 5. 19. ſeeking after Honours, Pleaſures and Riches.

℄† Be ye changed.] By quitting thoſe bad Affections, and giving no aſſent to them.

℄† May prove, &c. what the Will of God is.] That is, by ſubmitting your own Wills to his, and by preferring his Precepts before theſe vile Affections.

℄† That no Man ſhould ſtand high in his own Conceit.] Pleaſing himſelf in his Endowments and Gifts that he hath above other Men, and ſearching after Secrets, &c.

℄† But

C † But to judge of himself, &c. ] This is to be Wise unto Sobriety, not affecting to meddle with other Men's Offices, nor to be curious in such things as do not pertain to his own: Whereunto the Similitude that follows serves most aptly.

The Exposition of the Literal Sense of the Gospel.

C † The Feast-day. ] That is, the Feast of the Passover, which he, and his Parents, and the Jews from all their Quarters, were wont and bound duely to observe, Deut. 12.

C † Sitting in the midst of the Doctors. ] Not that he sat (as the Pictures commonly set him out) in one of the Doctors Chairs, and the highest of all the Bench; for neither would they have permitted him to do it, nor was it agreeable to the Minority of his Age, but that he was there sitting or present among them, (as Joh. 1. 26. he is said to be standing in the midst among the Jews, and Matth. 18. 20. I will be in the midst of them) in the manner of an Auditor or a Disciple, observing that Order which was accustomed, hearing them, and asking them Questions; though in the mean while, he shew'd himself to be such a Disciple with them, that he posed the Masters, and taught them much more than any of them knew before, herein declaring himself to be more than a Man; for they were astonished at him, asking such Questions, and making such Answers, as that the Power of his Deity shewed forth itself in him.

C † How happened it that ye sought me? Wist ye not, &c. ] An Answer that seems to be somewhat short, and more quick, than a Mother would have expected from a Son: But such were his usual Returns, when she took upon her to shew any Authority over him, to let both her and his reputed Father know, that he had another manner of Father in Heaven, whose Divine Affairs were not to give place unto any humane Authority; which though they understood not for the present, yet in this Answer they rested, and his Mother, the Blessed Virgin, laid it up in her Heart.

C † And was obedient unto them. ] When he had given this Testimony of his Power and Greatness that was to come, and afterwards made itself more manifest; shewing already, that his Authority was above theirs; presently he returns to his wonted Subjection, and teaches all Persons, what Reverence and Obedience we owe to our Parents.

And Jesus prospered (or grew) in Wisdom. ] A Text which is urged by the Arrians, and the Socinians; but it will not serve their turn: For Christ being a Person that consisted of two Natures, it is no Derogation to his Godhead, if here he be said to grow and prosper in respect of his Manhood; which could not neither be said so to prosper in Wisdom and Knowledge, as if in the Minority of his Age he had been ignorant of any thing that he came to know after; for he had in himself the full Knowledge of all things communicated to his humane Understanding, by the Divine Nature united thereunto; but because from time to time he was pleased to manifest that Knowledge by degrees, and not otherwise to let it be seen or known unto the World, therefore in regard of other Men's taking notice of it only, is he here said to have grown up or prospered in it. And whereas they object, that the Text says, He prospered in Wisdom as he did in Age, which was not in a seeming manner to all other Men, but truly and really as all Mankind does besides; We are to answer, That every Word in a Context is not to be taken in the same Sense that another Word is which is joined to it; as for Example, Matth. 8. 22. Let the Dead go and bury their Dead. Joh. 20. 7. I ascend to my Father, and your Father; where the same Words are to be understood after a different manner. And so it is here.

The Second Sunday after the Epiphany.

The Collect, Epistle and Gospel, ut in Miss. Sarum.

The Literal Sense of the Epistle.

C † The Gift of Prophecy. ] Or interpreting the Scriptures, for so is Prophecying understood, 1 Cor. 14.

C † That it be agreeing to the Faith. ] The Articles of the Apostles Creed then generally preached over all the World, as containing all things necessary to Salvation, and being the Sum of the whole Scripture.

C † An Office. ] Or Ministry, which is properly the Deacon's Office.

C † With Singleness. ] Or Simplicity, that is, to them who need, without respect of Persons, and performing the trust reposed in him with all Faithfulness.

C † He that ruleth. ] This is to be understood of those Presbyters of whom the Apostle speaketh, 1 Tit. 5. 17. The Presbyters that rule well are worthy of double honour: From whence they came afterwards to be Bishops over others. These Presbyters were of one sort, and there was another sort of them that laboured in the Preaching of the Word.

The rest of this Epistle is plain and easy to be understood.*

The Gospel.

C † What have I to do with thee? ] Ita enim Latini aiunt, quid tibi mecum est. At Hebræis aliud significat, nimirum, Cur mihi molestiam exhibes? quod clarè apparet, 2 Sam. 16. 10. & 2 Paralyp. 35. 21. Hoc autem si ex usu Latini Sermonis interpretaris, contemptum videtur inducere. Grot.

This beginning of Miracles. ] A Miracle is so called, because it begets Admiration: And yet every thing that is, or deserves to be admired, must not presently be called a Miracle; for many things done by Art, and the power of Nature, may be wonder'd at, and yet they are no Miracles, which are and can only be done by the Power of God, above the Faculty, and beyond the Order of Nature, to which he is not tied: This Miracle, therefore, so done by Christ, was a manifest Argument of his Divine Power and Godhead.

C † And shewed, or manifested forth his Glory. ] For these Words sake it is, that this Gospel is appointed by the Church, for one of the Gospels to be read and published in the time of Epiphany, which gives the Name to all these Five Sundays: For Epiphany is nothing else, but the manifesting forth of Christ's Glory and Deity, whereof this Gospel is a Testimony. And because it was the first Epiphany that he so made of himself after his Baptism, and beginning to preach, therefore was it also appointed to be the second Lesson at Even, upon the Day of Epiphany itself.

The Third Sunday after Epiphany.

C † The Collect, Sarum. The Epistle, Sarum. For in so doing thou shalt heap Coals of Fire on his Head. ] Which is an Hebrew Proverb, and we read it, Prov. 25. 22. the Sense whereof is, that either we shall gain our Enemy by heaping Benefits upon him, which may inflame or kindle his reciprocal Charity towards us; or else, if that cannot be done, yet at least he will burn in his own Conscience, and tell himself, that we deserve not his Hatred.

The Gospel, Sarum.

The Literal Sense.

C † Tell no Man. ] Which at other times Christ also enjoined to them whom he had healed, Matth. 9. 30. Mark 5. 43. yet are not they reprehended that divulged those things which he did for them; even this Leper in S. Mark 1. 45. and in S. Luke 5. 12. went forth and told it abroad, notwithstanding Christ's Prohibition to the contrary. And to the Demoniack Christ himself gave a Command, that he should go and tell what great things God had done for him, Mark 5. 19. Luke 8. 39. But the Resolution and Reconciling of these seeming Contrarieties, is well given by St. Chrysostom, who saith, That Christ forbad the publishing of his own Fame, but commanded the Glory of God to be openly declared to all Men; for he had regard both to the Indiscretion of the inconsiderate Multitude, who might otherwise have made ill use of it, as they did, John 6. 15. when they went about seditiously to make him a King; and to the desire of Vain-glory that some Men use to take in it, when they do any good for another; and therefore, he would not have his own Fame divulged: But he had regard withal to the Acknowledgement which every one, receiving a Benefit from the Hand of God, is to make to him; and therefore, in that respect, he commanded the thing itself to be told, and Thankfulness to be duly returned to him who is the Author of all Goodness to us.

Go and shew thy self to the Priest. ] St. Hierome thinks, That this was done in regard of the Priests themselves, that either they might hereby be the sooner brought to believe in Christ, or else be so much the more inexcusable, if seeing the Leper cleansed by him, they would not believe. But the truer Sense is, That Christ hereby had regard to the Law of Moses, Levit. 14. which he commanded the Leper to observe.

C † For a Witness or Testimony. ] That is, for a Law and a Statute to be duly kept; for in the 119th Psalm, God's Laws and Statutes are often called his Testimonies.

C † There came unto him a Centurion. ] It is said in St. Luke 7. 11. that not the Centurion himself in Person, but that others came to Christ for him; what a Man does by another, it is the same as if he did it by himself.

The Fourth Sunday after Epiphany.

The Collect, Sarum.

C † The Epistle, Epistola Sarum est initium Epistolæ nostræ in 1 Dom. Adventus.

The Gospel, Sarum.

The Literal Exposition.

C † In the Sea. ] The Sea of Galilee, or the Sea of Tiberias. See the Historical Notes that follow.

But he was asleep. The Disciples being in such great danger, Christ seems to take no care of them. After this manner he proveth us often in other Afflictions and Dangers, that he suffereth to come upon us, intending thereby to make us more sensible of our own miserable Condition in this Life, and the more sollicitous of seeking after him, who hath both Power and Goodness enough to help us in our greatest Distresses. For though for a while he may seem to neglect us, yet being importuned by continual Prayer, he will arise out of his Sleep, and still the Storm for us.—Both Winds and Seas obey him. *

* Hic finitur Evangelium Sarum.

C † Two Men possessed, &c. St. Matthew says here, they were two Men: But St. Mark 4. 35. and St. Luke 8. 22. (where the same Story is repeated) say, there was but one; and that this one was possessed with a whole Legion of Devils, which made him so fierce, and so famous in the Country, that in Comparison of him, the other was not greatly noted among them, being not possessed after so extraordinary a manner as this his Fellow was. But two they were.

To torment us before the time. By which Words they declare, that they were not ignorant of the Damnation which waited for them, at the time appointed in the end of the World, till when they are reserved in Chains of Darkness, to be punished after that Day; when they, and all wicked Persons who have followed their Suggestions, shall be tormented for ever, in another manner, and far greater degree, than they are now, 2 Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6. But they are afraid lest it should come upon them sooner; and therefore here they intreat, that it may be put off to the last, that in the mean time they may do the more mischief: However, herein they acknowledge and fear the Divine Power and Majesty of Christ; whom they implore, that if he would not suffer them still to possess these two Men, he would would at leaſt permit them to run upon the Herd of Swine feeding hard by, and not ſend them out of the Gergeſites Country, to which they were accuſtomed, into the Place of Hell, where they knew well they were to be for ever tormented.

C † And he ſaid, go your ways.] Chriſt, though he came to undo the Works of the Devils, yet he came not then to execute his laſt Judgment and Condemnation upon them, and therefore they obtain their deſire of him for a time.

C † The whole Herd of Swine was carried headlong into the Sea] Hereupon it appears, 1. That they were true Devils, delighting to do miſchief wherever they can be permitted, even upon Beaſts, or any other Creature that God made. 2. What a great deal more they would do, even to the Deſtruction of all Mankind (if God did not reſtain them from it) as they did to theſe Swine that periſhed by them. 3. That they can do no more, than God is pleaſed (for the Sins and Trial of Men) to ſuffer them. 4. That they chiefly affect to be with Swine; that is, ſuch Men as live like Swine, and ſuch were the Gergeſites.

The Fifth Sunday after Epiphany.

C † The Collect, Epiſtle, and Goſpel, ut in Miſſ. Sarum.

Of theſe Words in the Goſpel, But while Men ſlept. See Ridley's View, pag. 184, 185.

The Literal Senſe of the whole Parable, is only to tell us, that wicked Men, ſtirred up by the Devil, will be in the Church, mixed among them that are there truly Religious, and that by the Permiſſion of God, this ſhall ſo continue to the end of the World.

C † The Sixth Sunday, (if there be ſo many) ſhall have the Collect, Epiſtle, and Goſpel that was upon the Fifth Sunday. In Sarum the 3d is taken.

Hiſtorical Obſervations upon the Goſpels after Epiphany.

The Firſt Sunday, Luke 11. 42.

C † This is the firſt Story that we have of Chriſt, after his return out of Egypt, whither his Father and Mother fled with him, to avoid the Maſſacre that Herod made of the Innocent Children in Bethlehem, and all the Coaſts about it.

C † And Jeſus proſpered (or grew) in Wiſdom. In the ancient Church, there were a ſort of Men (numbered for Hereticks, as Liberatus tells us in his Hiſtorical Breviary, cap. 10.) that had the Name of Agnoetæ or Ignorants given to them; for they ſaid and held it to be good Goſpel, by Virtue of theſe Words which they found there, and interpreted at their pleaſure, that Chriſt's Humane Nature was (eſpecially in this his Minority of Age) ignorant of many things, and that his Underſtanding or Knowledge, was not perfect in him at the firſt, but came to him by degrees, as his Age and Years did. Of this Sect Themiſtius a Deacon was the Author; concerning whom, we read in the Epiſtle of Sophronius Patriarch of Jeruſalem, (Act. 11.) after this manner; Anathema (or a Curſe) be upon Themiſtius, who was the moſt wicked Father and firſt Diſſeminator of that Hereſie, which attributeth Ignorance to Chriſt as he was Man: For his Humane Nature being always united to his Divine, this new Doctrine could no way ſubſiſt.

The Fourth Sunday, Matth. 8. 23.

C † Into the Country of the Gergeſites. That which is here called the Country of the Gergeſites, is named in St. Mark 5. and St. Luke 8. the Country of the Gadarens, for they were both conterminate, and rejoyning one to the other. And theſe were the Garaſens (for that was another Name they had) mentioned in Joſephus (l. 2. Belli. cap. 20.) and dwelling in the Eaſtern Part of Galilee, upon the Borders of Peræa. (Id. l. 3. cap. 2.) Gadara was their Metropolitan City in that Region, and a ſtrong fortified Place, remembred by Pliny (l. 5. cap. 18.) and by Ptolemy in his Geography, (l. 5. cap. 15.) It was ſeated beyond Jordan, in the Diviſion of Manaſſeh's Tribe, and touched upon the Lake, which in the Goſpel is called the Sea of Tiberias.

C † And there was a Herd of Swine feeding. It is made a Queſtion, and a kind of a wonder, that Swine ſhould be there fed: For to the Jews, that Creature was unclean and abominable. But moſt likely it is, that theſe Swine belonged to ſome other Strangers that there inhabited among the Jews: For the Arabians were cloſe by, and might well be the Owners of that Herd.

C † The whole City came out, and beſought him that he would depart out of their Coaſts.] This they did, either out of the Senſe of their own unworthineſs to have ſuch a Gueſt, as Chriſt was, among them; or out of the fear they had to loſe, yet more of their Worldly Goods, in that and other kinds beſides.

And Chriſt went his way.] But he left the Demoniack whom he had cured behind him, as well to upbraid their Ingratitude, as to put them in mind to amend their Lives (for ſome of them were Idolaters, and the reſt were brutiſh in their Manners) leaſt a worſe Matter ſhould befal them.

C † Perceive ye not, &c.] As they at Corinth might eaſily do, for they were accuſtomed there to Celebrate, and to be Spectators of ſuch Games, wherein the Runners contended to get the Victory, and to carry away the Prize. See the Hiſtorical Obſervations hereafter.

But one.] That is, he who out-ran the reſt, and came firſt to the End of the Race. So run. Not ſo, as in their ſecular Races, where one only getteth the Reward; but ſo, as he there doth, who never giveth over, till he come to the end. In this, the Race of Religion ought to be like the Race at Corinth; but in the other reſpect not ſo: For whereas they gave the Reward but to one alone, who out-ran all his Fellows; in the Race of the Church, all that run, and hold out to the end, ſhall have their Reward.

C † Every Man] A Second Similitude; the other was of running a Race, this of Wreſtling in a Theatre, which were frequently celebrated near Corinth, and the Places about, and became famous abroad in the World, as in the Hiſtorical Obſervations is ſet forth.

C † Abſtain from all things] That may leſſen or hinder the Uſe and Strength of his Body, as Gluttony, Drunkenneſs and Luſt will do, and uſeth a temperate and exquiſite Diet proportioned to his purpoſe.

C † A Crown that ſhall periſh.] Such as were uſed to be given to the Victors in the Olympick Games. See the Hiſt. Obſerv.

C † But we to obtain an everlaſting Crown.] Much more therefore ought we to abſtain from any thing that may hinder us.

C † I therefore ſo run, not as, &c.] For our better encouragement, he gives himſelf for an Example, and for our direction he tells us how to run, not negligently, not deſpairingly, but with Force and Labour, and with aiming continually at our Mark.

C † So fight I.] Againſt Concupiſcence and worldly Affections.

Not as one that beateth the Air.] As they fight that miſs their Strokes, cutting the Air in ſtead of their Enemy, and flouriſhing with the Sword in their Hand to no purpoſe.

But I tame my Body.] Which is by ſubduing the Affections of the Fleſh, with continual Mortification thereof, and abſtaining from Vice.

C † A caſt-away.] That is, not to be a Partaker of the Fruit and Price of the Goſpel, which is Eternal Bleſſedneſs.

The Goſpel, Mat. 20. 1.

The Literal Senſe.

C † Is like unto.] This Parable is Spoken by Chriſt for the explaining of the two laſt Sentences that are annexed to it; (ſo the firſt ſhall be laſt, &c. For many are called, &c.) that is to ſay, as it happened to them that came laſt into the Vineyard, (which is the Church of Chriſt) that beyond the expectation of all Men, they ſhould have their Reward firſt given them, and a Reward greater than they could hope for themſelves, having not wrought ſolong as the other Labourers did; and on the contrary, that they who came firſt to Labour, ſhould be laſt of all rewarded, and though they had travailed all the Day long, yet their Reward ſhould be leſs than they expected, wherein nevertheleſs, there was no Injuſtice or Wrong done to them; ſo ſhall it be in the latter Days of the World, when they that are reputed here to be the firſt, ſhall be accounted of by Chriſt much leſs than they that are thought to be the laſt, and the laſt in Men's account, ſhall be preferred before the firſt, without any Injuſtice on God's part, whoſe Benignity it is to promiſe, and to give any Reward at all, becauſe Men Merit nothing by their Works; and yet it is their Duty to do all that they are ſet to do; and God will give no Reward to them that ſtand Idle, and do no Service in his Church.

For many are called, but few are choſen.] This is the Reaſon given how it comes to paſs, that in the end, many who now be firſt, ſhall then be laſt; for though they be all called, yet they are not all choſen, becauſe they murmur againſt their Maſter, and envy the Bounty which he ſhews to others; not ſo much regarding his free and liberal Goodneſs, as their own Merits and Deſervings for their Works. But as Men here erre on one ſide, who ſay, that God has abſolutely elected ſome particular Perſons, without any reſpect had therein to their Faith in Chriſt, which is never true, unleſs they live in his Obedience; ſo do they erre likewiſe on the other ſide, who ſay, both ignorantly and improperly, that God has generally elected all Perſons of the World; therein confounding his univerſal good-Will, towards all, whereby he gave his Son for the Redemption of the World, with his Election of them that believe in him, and obey the truth of his Goſpel, which is a Condition always annexed to his Act of Election. And as the firſt opinion excludeth both Chriſt and the Redemption that he made of Mankind; ſo the ſecond is repugnant to the very Word of Chriſt here uſed, which no Man can otherwiſe take or underſtand, than of thoſe that are ſegregate and choſen out of the common Multitude, as all thoſe are that unfeignedly love and ſerve Chriſt, according to the Goſpel that he has given them.

C † Ye ſuffer Fools gladly, &c.] This is ſaid by an Irony, for ſeeing they thought themſelves ſo wiſe, that they deſpiſed all others, and yet ſuffered them to glory over their own Wiſdom, and to magnify their Credit, they might as well ſuffer him alſo, that could glory (if that were ought worth) above them all.

C † Ye ſuffer if a Man bring you into Bondage, if a Man, &c.] Not ſimply this, but in regard of the contumely that you ſuffer by them; for though they do not really devour you, or ſmite you upon the Face with their Fiſts, yet ſuch things they do to you, that you are not leſs abuſed by them, than if they did thoſe things indeed.

C † As though we had been weak, &c.] That is, they object to you our mean and low Condition of living among you, bringing a Calumny upon our Humility towards you.

I ſpeak fooliſhly. Excuſing himſelf, that his Adverſaries put him upon rehearſing thoſe things, which though they ſeem to abaſe him, yet he might juſtly glory in them.

They are Hebrews. So did they uſe to boaſt and ſay of themſelves.

They are the Miniſters of Chriſt. So they pretended to be.

I am more. Above them in truth and deed, being able to ſhew the Works and Signs of an Apoſtle, which they cannot.

In Death oft. That is, in Dangers that threatned frequent Death.

Forty Stripes ſave one. The Law in Deut. 25. 3. was, That the Stripes given for the Puniſhment of a Malefactor, ſhould not exceed the number of Forty. The Jews, to be the ſurer of not tranſgreſſing this Law, took one leſs; and it was not therefore lawful among them to exceed 39, which St. Paul ſuffered five times over.

C † Thrice was I beaten, &c. ſtoned, ſuffered Shipwrack. Of theſe we have no Story in the Acts of the Apoſtles, where St. Luke omitted many things that concerned St. Paul's Sufferings; but here they are ſummed up.

My Infirmities. Indeed his true Glory, though his Adverſaries, who had their eaſe, and lived at their pleaſure in worldly Proſperity, thought them to be low and mean Infirmities; as all ſuch Matters are in the Eyes of the World.

That no Man ſhould preſume till the laſt Hour.

The Literal Senſe of the Epiſtle.

With the Tongues of Men.] The Apoſtle intending to teach us, that all things without Charity are nothing worth, beginneth with the Tongues, and ſeveral Languages of the World, wherein moſt Men covet (as the Corinthians did more than others) to be skilful.

And of Angels.] That is to ſay, that if the Angels had any Tongues, or peculiar uſe of Languages by themſelves; which is but an emphatical Expreſſion, which the Apoſtle here uſeth in manner of an hypothetical Hyperbole, the like whereof we may read Rom. 8. 38. Gal. 1. 8.

And have no Love.] That is, if I uſe not thoſe Tongues (and all that follow after) to the uſe and profit of others.

Though I ſhould Prophecy.] Either by having the Gift of foretelling things to come, or of explaining the Word of God by ſpecial Revelation.

Had all Faith.] That is, Faith to do Miracles; for here he ſpeaketh not of a juſtifying Faith, which is never ſevered from Charity.

My Goods to feed the Poor.] That is, do the external Works of Charity myſelf, as the Phariſees gave Alms to be ſeen.

And give my Body to be burnt.] As the Heathens threw themſelves into the Fire for Vain-glory. But the Martyrs of Chriſt gave their Bodies to be burnt, out of the Love they had to God and his true Religion, whereby they edified and confirmed others.

It profiteth nothing.] That is, theſe Gifts, and all theſe Actions, how ſpecious ſoever they are in the Eyes of Men; yet unleſs Charity and a Religious uſe and purpoſe go along with them, they are but ſo many fruitleſs Vanities.

Love ſuffereth long, &c.] Which are the Works of Charity, oppoſed to the common Vices of the World, and eſpecially to ſuch as were rife among the Corinthians, an angry, malignant, obſtinate, proud People.

Seeketh not her own.] That is, preferreth the pleaſuring of others, rather than the pleaſing her own Deſires.

Suffereth all things.] That is, all the common Infirmities of others, not their enormous and wilful Miſdoings.

Believeth all things.] That is, is not ſuſpicious of Men's evil Doings, nor believeth them, till they be apparent.

Hopeth all things.] That is, deſpaireth not of their Amendment, and Salvation, who for the preſent are wicked and evil Doers.

Endureth all things.] That is, all things which with a good Conſcience may be tolerated: For otherwiſe, Blaſphemies againſt God, and the truth of his Religion, Charity ſuffereth not; nor will ſhe nouriſh the Pravities and Vices of others, by Flattery and Connivence.

Though Prophecying fail, yet Love falleth never away.] Charity begins in this Life, and ſhall continue for ever in the other, both towards God and all his Saints. But Prophecies ſhall ceaſe there; for there will be no uſe of them, nor of any Interpretations of the Scriptures, after the Conſummation of this World.

Tongues ſhall ceaſe.] That is, there will be no Diverſities of ſpeaking hereafter in Heaven.

And Knowledge vaniſh away.] That is, ſuch Knowledge as is here acquired by Induſtry and Experience; for our Knowledge will be perfect in the other Life; where all Imperfection of Knowledge, ſuch as we now have in this, ſhall vaniſh away.

Now we ſee in a Glaſs.] Our Knowledge of God here is by Revelation, and the Effects of his Power, and therefore we call it Abſtractive: Hereafter we ſhall know him more perfectly, as the Angels now do; and that we call Intuitive.

Now abideth Faith, Hope and Love.] That is, all other Gifts and Graces ſhall endure but for a time, as long as it is God's Pleaſure to let them continue: But theſe three ſhall endure to the end, and never ceaſe; whereof Charity is the greateſt, becauſe that ſhall continue alſo in the Life to come, where there will not be the like uſe of Faith and Hope.

And behold a Woman of Canaan.] This woman betokeneth Holy Church, that asketh Help of our Lord for ſimple uncunning running Souls, that are travailed with Temptations of the World, and cannot ſpeak fervently to God, by fervor of Devotion, or burning Love in Contemplation. And though it ſeem our Lord make Danger firſt, becauſe they are as it were alien'd from him; nevertheleſs, for the greate Trouthe and Faithe of Holie Church, he granteth to her all ſhe will. Collect, Epiſtle, Goſpel, Sarum.

Sarum non dicitur Gloria tibi Domine. Sar. Paſſio Domini noſtri Jeſu Chriſti.

All this Week long the ſad Story of Chriſt's Paſſion is read, together with other Scriptures of the Prophets and Apoſtles, that refer thereunto: Which though it ought always to be in our Minds, as a matter whereupon our Chriſtian Religion, and our eternal Salvation chiefly dependeth, yet hath the Church deſigned and ſet apart theſe laſt Days of Lent, for a more peculiar Meditation upon that myſterious and bleſſed Paſſion of our Saviour, who ſuffered it for us at this very time of the Year, wherein we are now appointed to recount it, that ſo it may the more powerfully affect us, and work a true Repentance in us of all our Sins; for which we ſee Chriſt crucified, or repreſented to us in all this Story, as if he was crucified before our Eyes.

Yielded up the Ghoſt. ] In Ordine Secundum uſum Sar. hic inclinat ſe Diaconus, vel proſternit verſus Orientem, & dicit privatim Pater Noſter, Ave Maria. In manus tuas, Domine, commendo Spiritum meum. Redemiſti me, Domine Deus Veritatis. Deinde ſurgit & poſtea Reſiduum Paſſionis legit.

This Day, in reſpect of what Chriſt ſuffered, was an evil Day to him, and ought to be a Day of great Sorrow to us. But in reſpect of what he hath obtained for us by it, it is (as we rightly call it) a Good-Day, and ought to be a Day of great Joy to us. To him indeed, the Day of the fierceneſs of God's Wrath; but to us, the Day of the fulneſs of God's Favour; and, as the Apoſtle called it, a Day of Salvation.

For the Days will come unto thee, that thine Enemies ſhall caſt a Bank about thee, &c.] Which Days came to paſs according to this Prediction of our Saviour 38 Years after his Death, in the time of Flavius Veſpaſian then Roman Emperor.

And theſe be the Hiſtorical Obſervations concerning the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem.

In the 12th Year of Nero (An. à Nat. Chriſto 67.) Florus was ſent Governor into Judea; againſt whom and the Power of the Romans, the Jews began to rebel the very Year following, as Joſephus computeth the time.

In the 13th Year of Nero, was the Enſign of the Roman Eagle firſt brought into Jeruſalem, and there ſet up in the Temple by Florus, which gave the firſt Occaſion to the Jews of riſing againſt him.

And now in the Holy Place was ſeen the Abomination of Deſolation (whereof Chriſt foretold;) from which time to the final Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, there paſſed only three Years and a half, the juſt time that the Prophet Daniel had ſpoken for that purpoſe long before. The Roman Forces then brought againſt the Jews, were under the Conduct of Flavius Veſpaſian (afterwards made Emperor,) who came this Year to Jeruſalem, and beſieged it in the Month of May. In the 28th Chapter of Deuteronomy, Moſes compared the Roman Nation to an Eagle flying and ſeizing upon the Jews Country, as if he had therein a regard to the Event of this time.

In the mean while, all the Chriſtians that were in the City of Jeruſalem, being by divine Providence timely admoniſhed to leave it, went to the City of Pella, on the other ſide of Jordan, and there had their Safety, as Lot had in Zoar, when God meant to deſtroy Sodom, Euſeb.

Two Years after (Nero having ſlain himſelf) Flavius Veſpaſian was cried up and proclaimed Emperor by this Army, which then beſieged Jeruſalem. Whereupon he ſailed away with all haſte to Rome, and left the Care of the Siege behind him with his Son Titus, who followed him in the Empire.

The next Year enſuing was the City taken, in the time of the Jews Paſſover-Feaſt. In Auguſt the Temple was burnt, and in September all the City ſet on Fire: And here was an end of the Jewiſh Government, the 71th Year after Chriſt's Nativity, and 38 Years after his Aſcenſion.

By the Relation of Joſephus, at this beſieging and taking of Jeruſalem, there periſhed, what by Famine and what by Sword, no fewer than Eleven Hundred Thouſand Perſons. And One Hundred Thouſand were ſold beſides, or carried away Captive. Tacitus reckons in his Hiſtory, that there were at this time, Six Hundred Thouſand Men incloſed within the City-Walls. So many were there of the Jews, that came out of Ægypt.

De Andrea Apoſtolo.

Scriptores Eccleſiaſtici affirmant, eum in Scythia & vicinis Regionibus Evangelium docuiſſe. Euſeb. Hiſt. Eccl. Lib. 3. cap. 1. Naz. in Orat. ad Ar. Niceph. Lib. 2. cap. 29. & Lib. 3. c. 1.

Nazianzenus ſcribit eum in Epiro prædicaſſe. Dorotheus in Synopſi dicit eum docuiſſe etiam apud Sogdianos, Sacas, in Selaſtopoli interiore, quæ eſt in Æthiopia. Nicephorus ait eum per Cappadociam, Galatiam, & Bithyniam in Scytharum ſolitudines ad utramque Pontum Euxinum acceſſiſſe. Quæ Abdias, in vitis Apoſtolorum, de Andreâ commemorat, caute ſunt legenda: Multis enim ineptiis, quæ ſpiritum Apoſtolicum non ſpirant, Hiſtoriam ſuam prorſus ſuſpectam reddit.

De Morte S. Andreæ alii affirmant, eum Patris Civit. Achaiæ ab Ægea Præfecto Edeſſenorum in crucem actum (Sophronius:) Alii eum in Scythia crucifixum eſſe credunt, Sabell. En. 7. Lib.

St. Andrews Day.

*† This Day is the firſt Day in Order, that the Church doth celebrate, in Memory and Imitation of the Saints, becauſe St. Andrew was the firſt Diſciple, whom Chriſt called to follow him. And the Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel do accordingly propound unto us the very firſt Duties and Offices of a Chriſtian Man, as are To believe with the Heart, and to confeſs with the Mouth that Jeſus is the Lord, &c. Believe we cannot unleſs we hear, hear we cannot unleſs we have a Preacher, and a Preacher we cannot have unleſs he be ſent.

Among them that were thus called and ſent, St. Andrew was the firſt; and therefore was this Epiſtle choſen for his Day, like as the Collect and Goſpel are, which tell us that the firſt and chief Vertues that we are to imitate in the Apoſtles, is readily to obey the Calling of our Saviour, and give our ſelves over to the Obedience of his Holy Will, as they did.

Our Calling and theirs are much unlike: Theirs from their Nets, at which Chriſt found them buſy; and ours from worldly Cares, which we muſt firſt leave, before we can become Servants and Followers of Chriſt.

The Collect.

The Collect in the Order of Sarum, is for the Interceſſion of of St. Andrew, and ſo here omitted, this being put in ſtead thereof, He readily obeyed the calling of thy Son, &c. that we being called by thy holy Word, &c. O ſanctum & magnum promptæ obedientiæ ſtudium in primis Apoſtolis. Vocamur & nos etiamnum a Chriſto, ſi non ad piſcandos homines, quod Miniſtrorum Verbi & Paſtorum eſt proprium, at certe quidem ad relinquenda retia & abjicienda impedimenta, quæ nos vocant a negotio ſalutis æternæ. Quod ſi pauci cum Andrea relinquant retia, licèt a Chriſto vocentur, pauciores cum eo Crucem amant, & ſuam in Cruce gloriam ſtatuunt. Andreas autem crucifixus eſt propter Dominum A 62°. regnante Nerone.

On the Office of the Holy Communion.

The Order for the Adminiſtration of the Lord's Supper.

C † T "IN The Primitive Church this was the Rite and Order of "the Publick Service, in the Aſſemblies of the Chriſtians, "(as is manifeſt from Juſtin Martyr, Tertullian, and "others) being uſed by St. Paul himſelf. Firſt of all, they ſung "Pſalms, the People alſo joining therein. Secondly, the Propheſies, "and the Holy Scriptures, were read. Thirdly, the Biſhop preach-"ed. Fourthly, there was a Celebration of the Lord's Supper, which "conſiſted in an Oblation of the Bread and Wine, a Conſecration "or Benediction of them, a Communion thereof, and a Prayer, to "which the People anſwered, Amen. Fifthly, after all had com-"municated, certain Perſons ſung Pſalms and Hymns to the Praiſe of "God, and propheſied (being inſpired by the Holy Ghoſt) in divers "Tongues. Others interpreted the Holy Scriptures (after the Me-"thod of the Jews;) others heard them, and with Humility asked "Queſtions concerning what was ſaid; and when any pious or good "thing was well obſerved, they all cried out, Amen, Amen. Laſt-"ly, they ſhut up all with a Love-Feaſt, or an Entertainment which "was common to all, in token of their Charity; after which, ſuc-"ceeded Hymns and Prayers. Now moſt of theſe things may eaſily "be proved, from what the Apoſtle delivers, in the Firſt Epiſtle to "the Corinthians.

"Now the Order, wherewith this holy Rite is celebrated in our "Churches, is after this manner:

"Firſt of all it is enjoined, That the Table or Altar ſhould be "ſpread over with a clean Linnen-Cloth, or other decent Covering: "Upon which the Holy Bible, the Common-Prayer-Book, the Paten "and Chalice, are to be placed: Two Wax-Candles are to be ſet on; "and the Perſon who celebrates is to be arrayed with a ſolemn Ec-"cleſiaſtical Habit; that is, a Surplice and Hood. Now by this So-"lemnity we declare, That it is not an ordinary Action which we "are then upon, but a ſacred and myſtical one; to the end that the "Minds of all Perſons may be intent upon it; and that they may be "put in mind of the Dignity of ſo great a Myſtery. Now the Pre-"face concerning Ceremonies does very rightly obſerve, That the "keeping or omitting of a Ceremony in itſelf, is but a ſmall thing: That "they may be altered and changed; and therefore, are not to be eſteem-"ed equal with God's Law: But however, whilſt they are command-"ed by Publick Authority, they ought to be obeyed.

"This Service begins with the Lord's Prayer, which is followed "by a Collect for the purifying our Hearts. Then follows the Ten

"Com-

" Commandments, repeated by the Prieſt, and the Anſwer of the " People after every Precept, in which they beg of God to be merci- " ful to them: To this is ſubjoined a Collect for the King, who is con- " ſtituted by God to be, Utriuſq; Tabulæ Cuſtos, the Guardian, to ſee " the Laws of both Tables obſerved: And then the Collect for the " Sunday or the Feaſt. The Collect is followed by a Reading of the " Epiſtle and Goſpel. Then is read or ſung the Symbol, or Profeſſi- " on of Chriſtian Faith, which is commonly called the Nicene, " but more truly the Conſtantinopolitan Creed. To the Creed is ſub- " joined the Homily, or a Sermon to the People. After the Sermon " follows the Offertory: And there is a Collection made among the " Communicants, for the Suſtenance of the Miniſters of the Church, " and the Poor. Although upon ſome ſolemn Days, in certain Pla- " ces, (which is common to us, and to other Proteſtants) there is a " particular Offering at the Holy Table, for the uſes of the ſaid Ta- " ble, and for the Miniſters of the Church. " Then we pray for " the Church Militant, for all Chriſtian Governors, and in particu- " lar for our own King, and his Counſellors, and all the Magiſtrates " under him; for the Biſhops and Paſtors of the Church; for the " Conſent and Unity of all Chriſtians, in Matters of Faith revealed " by God; for all that are under Affliction; and laſtly, for the ob- " taining all things neceſſary, both for the good of the Souls and Bo- " dies of others: And this agreeably to the Cuſtom and Mind of the " Ancients, according to whoſe Preſcript it is but reaſonable, our " Prayers and Requeſts ſhould be compoſed.

" Then follows a two-fold Exhortation to the People. One is, " That they ſhould go out of the Church who do not come thither " to communicate: The other is, That the remaining part ſhould " prepare themſelves for a worthy receiving of it. After this fol- " lows a general, but ſolemn Profeſſion of the Sins of the whole " Congregation; which is ſucceeded by a general Abſolution, pro- " nounced either by the Biſhop or the Presbyter, together with ſelect " Sentences out of the Holy Scriptures, which promiſe the Mercy of " God to penitent Sinners.

" Theſe things being performed, the Symbols of the Bread and " Wine are placed before the Perſon who is to celebrate; who turn- " ing himſelf to the People, reads an ancient Admonition or Preface " of Lifting up our Hearts, and giving thanks to God. Then follow " ſome ſpecial Prefaces, according to the different Feſtivals, in which " ſolemn Thanks are given to God, for thoſe Benefits which are " commemorated upon thoſe Days, which are concluded with the " Hymn Τρισάγιον. To this is ſubjoined a Prayer, full of Humility " and Devotion: Then he who celebrates riſes from his Knees, and " by Prayer, and repeating the Words of our Lord by which he in- " ſtituted his Holy Supper, conſecrates the Bread and Wine, which " are placed before him, into a Sacrament; and after he himſelf " hath communicated in both Kinds, he diſtributes the ſame to all " the People, who are to receive it kneeling. After the Diſtributi- " on, the Lord's Prayer is ſaid by the whole Congregation. This is " followed by the Prayer of Oblation, in which the Death of Chriſt " is commemorated; and a Sacrifice of Praiſe is offered to God, for " the Redemption of Mankind, by the Paſſion of our Bleſſed Lord, " heretofore made on the Croſs. Then follows a Thankſgiving Col- " lect, and the Angelick Hymn called Gloria in Excelſis. And in the " laſt place, the whole Aſſembly of the Communicants is diſmiſſed, " by a ſolemn Benediction. And hence it was, that from this laſt " Action of this Sacred Solemnity, it was called the Miſſa, or the " Maſs by the Ancients; to which that other Account of the Word, " which is taken up by the modern Roman-Catholicks, was altoge- " ther unknown. This Order which we have before recited, is al- " moſt the ſame with that of Cologn, which was inſtituted by Herman " Arch-Biſhop of that Place, after his Conſultation with Bucer, about " the Year M D XXXVI. For his Example was for the moſt part " followed by the Proteſtants in Germany, and by our Reformers here " in England. Vid. Reform. of Cologn; for which reaſon the ſame " Herman was turned out of his Arch-Biſhoprick by the Papiſts.

Poſt finitam primam precem Liturgiæ (quam olim Miſſam Catechu- menorum vocabant) eam noſtro more ſequitur concio: concionem tertia hæc quæ ſubſequitur Euchariſtiæ peragendæ forma. Rectè conto peragitur ante Euchariſtiam. Notandum tamen in veteri & primæva Eccleſia concionem primò manè hiſtoricam fuiſſe (quam Tractatum nuncupabant) ad eam cum Chriſtianis accedentes Energumeni, Judæi, Ethnici promiſcuè admittebantur: & iſtis egreſſis, vel exactis, poſt Tractatum pergebatur ad ſecundam Liturgiæ partem, Miſſam Catechumenorum dictam, eam ſc. quâcum nos incipimus.

Sed illis initium erat, Venite exultemus: Nobis confeſſio publica generalis propter malè abolitas, publicam ἐξομολόγησιν, & privatam auricularem.

Tertio, ipſis Catechumenis exactis, ad Sacram Synaxim. 1. ἐυχαριστίαν, ſoli ii, qui erant à ſcelere puri, & baptizati ſe recipiebant, quæ ideo dicta eſt Miſſa Sanctorum.

Quæ omnia apertè mandantur fieri Secundum ordinem prædictum. Can. 19. Conc. Laod.

Of the Preparation for the Receiving the Euchariſt.

℣. W ℣. AFter the ending of the firſt part of the Liturgy, (which they called heretofore the Miſſa Catechumenorum) follows, according to our Cuſtom, the Sermon. Then the third part of the Service, which is the Form of Adminiſtration of the Holy Communion: But it is to be noted, that in the Ancient and Primitive Church, the Sermon was early in the Morning, and this they called the Tractate: And to this the Audients, Energumens, Jews and Heathens were promiſcuouſly admitted together with the Chriſtians; and then theſe either going or being driven out, they came on to the ſecond part of the Liturgy, called the Miſſa Catechumenorum, viz. that with which we begin: But they began with Venite exultemus, we with a General and Publick Confeſſion, after the Publick Ἐξομολόγησις, and the Private Auricular Confeſſion, were not upon very good Grounds aboliſhed. And in the third place, the Catechumens themſelves were driven out; only they who were under no Cenſure, and were already Baptized, were admitted; which occaſioned it to be called the Miſſa Sanctorum. All which things are plainly commanded to be done, according to the aforeſaid Order. Conc. Laod. Can. 19.

C ℣ T. The Lord's Supper.] " And ſo the Apoſtle St. Paul calls " the Celebration of this Sacrament, 1 Cor. 11. 20. κυριακὸν δεῖπνον, " and ſo 1 Cor. 10. 21. Τράπεζαν κυριακὴν, the Lord's Supper, and the " Table of the Lord. In the Acts of the Apoſtles, Cap. 2. 42. it is " called κοινωνία, the Communion, κλάσις τοῦ ἄρτου the breaking of Bread. " Which Form of Speaking the Ancients did imitate. For the Sa- " crament received its Denomination from the firſt and more conſpi- " cuous Action; by a Figure not new, but commonly uſed. For to " break Bread, among the Hebrews, ſignified the ſame thing as to eat. " For as on the other ſide the Greeks, from drinking, called the " whole Entertainment συμπόσιον; ſo the Hebrews, from the other " more principal part, viz. eating, called it breaking of Bread. Be- " ſides, becauſe our Saviour, when, in his laſt Supper, with his Diſ- " ciples, he inſtituted this Sacrament, Εὐλογήσας καὶ ἐυχαριστήσας, having " bleſſed and given thanks, broke the Bread and diſtributed the Cup, " and commanded the ſame thing to be done by us, from thence the " Fathers and the Church have given it the name of the Euchariſt; " which Word is made uſe of in the Syriack Verſion. Act. 2. 42.

" The Ancients likewiſe call it by other Names; as that of λειτουργία, " σύναξις, and μυστήριον; which Compellations were likewiſe given to " other Sacred Performances. It is not improperly called, The Sa- " crament of the Altar; becauſe it is performed or adminiſtred at " the Altar or Table; although it has not the ſame uſe, to which " it doth allude.

" Therefore the Word Altar is uſed in a more eminent Signifi- " tion, than it is in the Old Teſtament, by the Apoſtle St. Paul in " the New Teſtament, Heb. 13. and by St. John, Rev. 8. and by the " Prophet Iſaiah; each of them ſpeaking of the Chriſtian Church.

" Now moſt of the Ancients called it a Sacrifice; partly in Imita- " tion of the Old Teſtament, whoſe Words and Phraſes the Writers " of the New accommodated to the Chriſtian Rites; partly, becauſe " in this Sacrament that is preſent which formerly was the Matter of " the Sacrifice, viz. the Body and Blood of Chriſt, which he offered " up to God the Father on the Altar of the Croſs; partly, becauſe " the Euchariſt, i. e. that Sacrament or Action inſtituted by Chriſt, " is the Worſhip of God, well-pleaſing and acceptable unto him, " and therefore is reckoned among the Spiritual Sacrifices, figura- " tively and analogically ſo called, as it is very common to call the " Miniſteries in the New Teſtament ſo. And upon this account other " Names were uſed by the Ancients in a very ſound Senſe, but have " been uſed by the Moderns in a very depraved one; as Hoſtia, Vi- " ctima, Immolatio, Oblatio. The Word Miſſa, or Maſs, is firſt " found in St. Ambroſe, Ep. 33. Lib. 5. Ego (ſays he to his Siſter " Marcellina) manſi in munere, Miſſam facere cœpi, dum offero cœptam " cognovi à Populo Caſtulum quendam, &c. I continuing my Duty, be- " gan the Communion-Service or Maſs; and whilſt I was offering the " Elements, I learned from the People, that a certain Perſon named " Caſtulus, &c. But if that ſhort Epiſtle, which is extant of Corne- " lius, Biſhop of Rome, to Lupicinus, Biſhop of Vienna, be Genuine, " the Word Miſſa was then uſed in the middle of the third Age. " Scias (ſays he) quod publicè neq; in Cryptis notioribus Miſſas agere " Chriſtianis licet, ob Edicta nempe Imperatorum Galli & Voluſiani. " You muſt know, that the Chriſtians ought not to perform their Maſſes " or Communion-Services publickly, or in Vaults which are known, by " reaſon of the Edicts of Gallus and Voluſianus. We read in the " ſame St. Ambroſe of the Miſſarum Solennia; and two Prayers ad " Miſſam præparantes, to prepare Perſons to receive the Miſſa, or the " Sacrament: But in St. Ambroſe, as we ſhall afterwards obſerve, " the Word Miſſa is otherwiſe uſed, than in the modern Church of " Rome; as is to be ſeen in one of his Prayers on that occaſion, " which as it is worthy of the Author, and may be uſeful to us, I " ſhall here take the trouble to ſet down. Fac nos Domine Jeſu " Chriſte, &c. Do thou, O Lord Jeſu Chriſt, bring it to paſs by thy " Grace, that I may always believe this ſo great a Myſtery; that I may " underſtand and perceive, and conſtantly retain, think of, and ſpeak " of whatſoever pleaſeth thee, and is profitable for my Soul. Let thy " good Spirit enter into my Heart, that it may ſilently ſound to thee, and " ſpeak, without the noiſe of Words, the Truth of ſo great Myſteries. C.

" The Word Miſſa is uſed by the Latin Church in another Senſe, " than that which does obtain at this Day, among the Papiſts: For " the ancient Latins ſaid, Ite Miſſa eſt, (as the Greeks uſed the Word " ἄφεσις) meaning thereby Miſſion, or Diſmiſſion; as they uſed the " Word Remiſſa for Remiſſio. From hence it came to paſs, that " from this only and laſt Act, they called the whole Complication " of Actions in the Euchariſt, by the name of Miſſa. Miſſa is uſed " for Diſmiſſion, in the 84th Canon of the Fourth Council of Carthage, " and in the Firſt Canon of the Council of Valentia, in which men- " tion is made of the Miſſa Catechumenorum: For as heretofore the " Diſmiſſion was two-fold, ſo the Service was likewiſe double, that " which belonged to the Catechumens, and that which belonged " to the Faithful. The Catechumens Miſſa reached to the Offer- " tory (who were obliged to depart before the Offering was made) " the Miſſa of the Faithful beginning with the Offertory. For each of " theſe

" theſe Offices followed immediately one after the other, but only that " the Diſmiſſion of the Catechumens and the Penitents came between " them. Iſidor. Hiſp. Lib. Orig. 6. Cap. 19. Quando Catechumeni foràs mittuntur, clamat Levita, ſi qnis Catechumenus remanſit, exëat " ferâs, & inde Miſſa; quia Sacramento Altaris intereſſe non poſſunt qui nondum regenerati aut Baptizati noſcuntur. And the like " is ſaid by Alcuinus in his Book de Divinis Officiis, Miſſa nihil aliud intelligitur, quàm Dimiſſio, i. e. Abſolutio, ſive finis ſacrorum, quum celebratis omnibus, Populus per vocem Diaconi a ſolemni " obſervatione dimittitur. and the ſame Perſon (as many other Writers " of the middle and the lower Ages of the Church,) does by the way " explain this Word in another Place in a different manner; improperly indeed, but yet in a ſound Senſe. Miſſa dicitur quaſi Tranſmiſſio, eo quòd Preces & Oblationes fidelis populi, per miniſterium & " orationem ſacerdotis ad Deum tranſmittatur.——ſive quod nos mittat " ad Deum: But then they rather allude to the Word, than expreſs " its genuine and true Etymology.

" But the Word Miſſa, as it is uſed at preſent among the Papiſts, for " a true and proper Sacrifice of Chriſt offered in every Celebration for " the Living and the Dead, is never uſed among the Ancients. And " for this Reaſon the Name of Miſſa or Maſs is rejected by the " Church of England, which having exploded the Opinion of the " Sacrifice of the Maſs, does diſclaim the Uſe of the Word Miſſa in " the Modern, though not in the Ancient Senſe.

" Indeed in the Firſt Edition of the Common-Prayer Book under " Edward the Sixth, the Name of the Maſs (as the Liturgy was then " commonly called) was retained. But when Men who were leavened " with the Doctrine of the Papiſts, detorted it to a wrong Senſe, " it ſeemed good to the Biſhops, that in the Second Edition of the " Liturgy it ſhould be omitted. C The Table at the Communion-time having a fair white Linnen-Cloth upon it, ſhall ſtand in the Body of the Church, or in the Chancel where Morning and Evening Prayer be appointed (viz. by the Ordinary) to be ſaid, and the Prieſt ſtanding at the North-ſide of the Table ſhall ſay the Lord's Prayer, &c. There was much ado about the Poſture of the Table, and the Prieſts ſtanding at it in King Edward's time; for in the Second Year, the Altar ſtood ſtill in the uſual Place, and the Prieſt was appointed toſtand before the midſt of the Altar with his Face towards it, and this was confirmed by Act of Parliament. Notwithſtanding which Act, there were ſo many Exceptions taken, and Oppoſition made againſt that Order, (ſome ſtanding at the Weſt-ſide of the Altar, with their Faces turned towards the People, others at the Eaſt, others at the South, and others at the North;) that at laſt they agreed to ſet forth this Rule in the fifth of King Edward, in ſtead of the former, ſet forth in the ſecond Year, where the Tenor and Sequence of the Service was ordered after this manner; the Prieſt ſtanding afore the Altar, ſaith the Lord's Prayer and the Collect, the ſame that we have. Then is the Introit, or Pſalm of the Day, ſung by the Choir. The Kyrie Eleeſon thrice. The Prieſt begins Glory be to God on high. The Choir anſwers and ſings out the reſt. The Prieſt turns himſelf to the People, ſaying, Dominus vobiſcum, & Oremus. Then follows the Collect for the King, the Collect for the Day. The Epiſtle read (in a ſpecial Place appointed for it) by a Subdeacon. The Goſpel (Similiter) read by a Prieſt or Deacon. And at the naming of the Goſpel, the Choir and People anſwer Glory be to thee, O Lord; and when it is ended ——— Then the Creed the Prieſt beginning, I believe in One God, and the Choir ſinging the reſt. Next followeth the Exhortation, Dearly beloved in the Lord, ye that come to the Holy Communion, &c. which in Cathedral Churches, and other Places where there were daily Communions, was to be read once a Month, and in a Pariſh-Church once a Week upon the Sunday. And if the People were negligent to come to the Communion, upon Sundays and other Holidays; the Curate was to read another Exhortation the Sunday before the Communion, which (but for a little difference, and the beginning and ending) is the ſame with our ſecond Exhortation, Dearly Beloved, for as much as it is our Duty, &c. adding in the End, they that which ſatisfie themſelves with a general, and they that think it needful for them to make an auricular or private Confeſſion, ought not to find Fault with one another. Then follows the Offertory which is ſung, whilſt the People go up to offer at the Altar, and beſides go to put ſomewhat into the Poor Mans Box. Then they which are to communicate ſtay in the Choir, the Men on the right ſide, and the Women a-part on the left. Then the Prieſt (conſidering the number of the Communicants) preparcth ſo many Hoſts, (laying them upon the Corporas) and as much Wine (mingled with a little pure Water) as will ſerve the Communicants, and placeth the Paten and Chalice upon the Altar. After follows Dominus vobiſcum & ſurſum Corda, with the proper Prefaces, to the Sanctus, which the Choir is appointed to ſing. Next the Prieſt or the Deacon turning himſelf to the People, ſaith, Let us pray for the whole State of Chriſt's Church, (not militant here in Earth only which was afterwards added for fear of praying for the Dead) where at the end they eſpecially prayed for the preſent Communicants, they gave Thanks for God's Vertue ſhewed in all his Saints, eſpecially in the moſt vertuous and glorious Virgin Mary, the Mother of our Lord, the Patriarchs, Prophets, Apoſtles and Martyrs, whoſe Examples they deſired to follow in the holy Faith and Obedience. They commended to God alſo thoſe, that had died in the true Religion of Chriſt, praying that they might find Mercy and eternal Peace; and that at the general Reſurrection, we and all they might be ſaved. Then follows the Prayer of Conſecration, differing from ours only in theſe Words, Hear us we beſeech thee, O merciful Father, and by thy holy Spirit and Word, vouchſafe to bleſs and ſanctify theſe thy Gifts and and Creatures of Bread and Wine, that they may be made unto us the Body and Blood of thy beloved Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, who in the ſame night, &c. And at the Words took Bread, the Prieſt is appointed in the Margin to take the Paten into his hand, and likewiſe the Chalice at the Words Took the Cup (without any Elevation) making the ſign of the Croſs upon either, when he repeats the Words of the Inſtitution or Conſecration: Next follows the Prayer of Oblation, which with us is placed after the Communion or Participation, and it differs from it in divers Expreſſions; as in theſe, Wherefore, O Lord, heavenly Father, according to the Inſtitution of thy Son, our Lord, we thy humble Servants do here celebrate and remember before thy Divine Majeſty, that which he has commanded us to do, in theſe Holy and Bleſſed Myſteries, and calling to mind his Bleſſed Paſſion, his Mighty Reſurrection, and his Glorious Aſcenſion; we render unto thee, all poſſible Praiſe and Thankſgiving, for the innumerable Benefits procured and exhibited thereby unto us; beſeeching thee, that thou wouldſt mercifully accept this our Sacrifice of Praiſe, &c. And after the Words, Our bounden Duty and Service; And command theſe our Supplications and Prayers to be brought up before thy Divine Majeſty, by the Miniſtry of thy holy Angels, not weighing our Merits, &c. After this he ſayeth the Lord's Prayer, the Choir only anſwering, And deliver us from Evil, and the Prieſt premiſing, As our Lord hath taught and commanded us, we are bold to ſay, Our Father, &c. Prieſt. The Peace of the Lord be with you. Choir. And with thy Spirit. Prieſt. Chriſt our Paſchal Lamb, was offered up for us all, when he bore our Sins in his Body upon the Tree of the Croſs; for he is that true Lamb of God, that taketh away the Sins of the World, wherefore let us celebrate a Feaſt with Joy. Then followeth, You that do truly and earneſtly, &c. with the Confeſſion, Abſolution, (where the Biſhop is not named) and the Comfortable Sentences of Scripture.

Next

Next he ſaith, We do not preſume, &c. And then Communicateth himſelf, Miniſters, and People. And when he miniſtreth the Sacrament of Chriſt's Body, and the Sacrament of his Blood,, he ſaith only the two firſt Sentences, without the Addition of thoſe Words which in the fifth of King Edward were ſaid, and none elſe, Take and eat this in remembrance, &c. But in our Book, they are both joined together, as by the Act of Uniformity appointed. In the time of the Diſtribution the Choir ſingeth, Lamb of God that taketh, &c. have Mercy, &c. O Lamb of God, &c. Grant us thy Peace. And the Diſtribution ended, they ſing the Poſt-Communion; that is, ſome of theſe Verſes, If any Man will come after me, let him deny, &c. He that endureth unto the end ſhall be ſaved. Bleſſed be, &c. who hath viſited, &c. Bleſſed is that Servant, whom when his Lord cometh, he ſhall find ſo doing. Behold the hour cometh, and now is, when the true Worſhippers, &c. Behold thou art made whole, Sin no more, &c. or the like Sentences may be added.

Afterwards followed the Prayer of Thankſgiving, Almighty and everlaſting God, we moſt heartily Thank thee, &c. Then the Bleſſing, (where the Biſhop is not named) The Peace of God, &c. And all the People anſwer, Amen.

Rubr. Where there be no Singers, all is read. In the Week-Days, and when the Communion is delivered in private Houſes, the Prieſt may omit the Gloria in Excelſis, the Creed, the Homily, and one of the Exhorations.

Of the Altar or Communion Table.

*† IN King Edward's firſt Service-Book, the Word Altar was permitted to ſtand, as being the Name that Chriſtians for many Hundred Years had been acquainted withal. Therefore when there was ſuch pulling down of Altars, and ſetting up of Tables at the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, ſhe was fain to make an Injunction, to reſtrain ſuch ungodly Fury; (for which St. Chryſoſtom ſays, the Chriſtians in his time would have ſtoned a Man to Death, that ſhould but have laid his Hands on an Altar to deſtroy it, Hom. LIII. ad Pop. Antioch. Siquis vellet hoc Altare ſubruere, nonne illum lapidibus obrueretis? &c.) and appointed decent and comely Tables covered, to be ſet up again, in the ſame Place where the Altars ſtood; thereby giving an Interpretation of this Clauſe in our Communion-Book. For the Word Table here ſtands not excluſively, as if it might not be called an Altar, but to ſhew the Indifferency and Liberty of the Name; as of old it was called Menſa Domini, the one having reference to the Participation, the other to the Oblation of the Euchariſt. There are who contend now it was the intent and purpoſe of our Church at this Reformation, to pull down and wholly extinguiſh the very Name of an Altar; but all their Reaſon being only the matter of Fact, that Altars were then pulled down, and this Place of the Liturgy, that here it is called a Table: We anſwer, that the Matter of Fact proves nothing, being rather the Zeal of the People, that were newly come out of the Tyranny, that was uſed in Queen Mary's time. But if this were not by order of the Church, or according to the intent and meaning of the Church and State at the Reformation: How came it to paſs then, that from that Day to this, the Altars have continued in the Kings and Queens Houſholds after the ſame manner as they did before? They never dreamt there, of ſetting up any Tables in ſtead of them: And likewiſe in moſt Cathedral Churches, how was it that all things remained, as they did before, but only that the Court and the Governor of of thoſe Places—and therefore were more likely—to know the true intent and meaning of our Church, by letting the Altars ſtand ſtill as they had done before. And it will be worthy the noting that no Cathedral Church, had any pulling down, removing, or changing the Altar into a Table, no more than in the Court; but in ſuch Places only, where Deans, and Biſhops and Prebends were preferred, that ſuffered themſelves more to be led by the Faſhions which they had ſeen at Strasburg in Germany, and Geneva in France, and Zurick in Switzerland, than by the Orders of the Church of England eſtabliſhed, and continued in her Majeſty's Family; the likelieſt to underſtand the meaning of the Church and State of any other Place. Therefore they that will not either endure we ſhould have, or they who will not believe we have any Altar allowed and continued in our Church (howſoever as it is here, and as it is in moſt of the Fathers, ſometimes called a Table,) let them go to the Kings Court, and to moſt of our Cathedral Churches, and enquire how long they have ſtood there, and kept that Name only, as being indeed the moſt eminent, and the moſt uſual among the Chriſtians. The Greeks ever called it θυσιαστήριον, as the Hebrews called it Misbeach, which is properly an Altar to Sacrifice upon; the Latins called it Altare, from the Form or Site of it, becauſe it ſtood high in the uppermoſt part of the Church: or Ara quaſi Anſa, as Varro interprets the Word, becauſe the Prieſt was ever wont, at the time of his Miniſtration, to take hold of the Altar. ——araſque tenentem. So it was among the Jews and Heathens. But among the Chriſtians there is ſome Queſtion made, how long they have had Altars in uſe. For Philo Judæus de vit. Contempl. telling of the ancient Meetings and ſacred Offices of the Chriſtians, makes no mention of any Altars or Sacrifices that they had, nor Tertullian neither in his Apologeticus, where he writes of all ſuch Matters: And he read alſo, how the Chriſtians were upbraided with it, that they had neither Temples nor Altars. Cæcilius apud Minucium Felicem, ſo that it ſhould ſeem, that they had no Altars at all: But theſe Seemings are eaſily anſwered. And firſt, it is moſt certain, that ever ſince the Clementine Conſtitutions, (Lib. 8.) and the Canons of the Apoſtles were made, and Dionyſ. Areopag. wrote, (which are all three very ancient, though uncertain for their times) the Chriſtians uſed Altars. If the decretal Epiſtle of Evariſtus be true, there's a Canon for the Conſecration of Altars: But extra omnem aleam, we find it in Tertullian de Pœnitentia, where deſcribing the ancient Order of publick Penance in the Church, he ſays it was, presbyterii advolvi, ARIS adgeniculari, omnibus fratribus legationem ſuæ deprecationis injungere. After him St. Cyprian, Lib. 1. Ep. 9. Lib. 2. Ep. 2. Lib. 3. Ep. 13. Lib. 2. Ep. 5. makes mention of them; ſo Optatus, Lib. 6. contr. Parm. And after him all the Fathers and Writers with one uniform conſent to this Day. For the Objections, Philo and Tertullian are excluſive, and Cæcilius in Minucius Felix, ſaying that the Chriſtians had no Temples, as well as no Altars, it was only his ſurmiſe, becauſe the Chriſtians could not perform their Services publickly, as the Heathens did when they ruled the roaſt: And therefore they thought them to be Men without all Religion for want of Temples: But the Chriſtians had Temples (and ſo might have Altars as well) before that time, as is moſt manifeſt out of Tertullian, Lib. Contr. Valentinianos.

The Names of the PRIEST, and the ALTAR.

*† TWO Words much objected againſt by the Puritans, as being more proper to Jews than Chriſtians, ſeeing Chriſt hath aboliſhed the Ceremonies of the Law. For Anſwer whereunto we ſay and confeſs, That the Law had an end in Chriſt, as much of it as was Typical. But what? was the Law ſo aboliſhed with him, that after his Aſcenſion the Office of Prieſts became immediately wicked, and the very Name hateful, as importing the exerciſe of an ungodly Function? No, as long as the Glory of the Temple continued, and till the time of that final Deſolation was accompliſhed, the very Chriſtian Jews did continue with their Sacrifices, and other parts of Legal Service. That very Law, therefore, which our Law was to aboliſh, did not ſo ſoon become unlawful to be obſerved as ſome imagine; nor was it afterwards unlawful ſo far, that the very Name of an ALTAR, of PRIEST, of SACRIFICE itſelf, ſhould be baniſhed out of the World: For though God now does hate Sacrifice, whether it be Heathenish or Jewiſh, ſo that we cannot have the ſame things that they had but with Impiety; yet unleſs there be ſome greater Lett, than the only Evacuation of the Law of Moſes, the NAMES themſelves may I ſuppoſe be retained, without Sin, as St. Paul retained it ad Heb. in reſpect of the Proportion which things eſtabliſhed by our Saviour have unto them, which by him are abrogated.

And ſo throughout all the Writings of the ancient Fathers, we ſee that the Words which were do continue; the only Difference is, that whereas before they had a Literal, they now have a Metaphorical uſe, and are ſo many Notes of Remembrance unto us, that what they did ſignify in the Letter is accompliſhed in the Truth. And as no Man can deprive the Church of this Liberty, to uſe Names whereunto the Law was accuſtomed; ſo neither are we generally forbidden the uſe of things which the Law hath. The weightieſt which it commanded the Jews are prohibited, to us in the Goſpel; thoſe which are not prohibited, the Church by her Authority may, as occaſion ſerveth, reſume and command.

C† Vide quæ annotavimus ad Rubric. ante initium precum Matutinarum. For here is to be inſerted and repeated the Order there appointed, as well concerning the Ornaments of the Church, as of the Prieſt or Biſhop, and other Miniſters that celebrate the Holy Communion, viz. The Miniſter, at the time of the Communion, ſhall uſe ſuch Ornaments in the Church as were in uſe, by Authority of Parliament, in the ſecond Year (not the Fifth Year, when moſt of thoſe Ornaments were taken away) of the Reign of Edw. VI. And then by the ſame Authority this Order was in uſe, and therefore (by the Authority of Parliament in the Act of Uniformity made 1 Eliz. and ſet at the beginning of the Liturgy, § penult.) is ſtill required to be continued in the Church of England, viz. The Prieſt who ſhall (at the time of the Communion) execute the Miniſtry, ſhall put upon him a Veſture appointed for the Miniſtration, that is to ſay, a white Alb plain, with a Veſtment or Cope: And all other Prieſts and Deacons, who ſhall help him in that Miniſtration, ſhall have upon them likewiſe the Veſtments appointed for their Miniſtry, that is to ſay, Albs with Tunicles: But a Biſhop ſhall have upon him, beſides his Rochet, a Surplice or Alb, and a Cope and Veſtment, and alſo his Paſtoral Staff in his Hand, or elſe born or holden by his Chaplain: And the Preachers ſhall wear their Hoods, belonging to their ſeveral Degrees taken in either of the Univerſities of this Realm. See the Notes before the Morning Prayer. Upon the Table alſo, beſides the Linnen-Cloth, and other needful Furniture, were to be placed Two Lights, &c. Nempe peculiari, &c. "Now by this "Solemnity the Church had a mind to declare, that this was not "the doing an ordinary Action, but a ſolemn, ſacred and myſtical "one; to the end that the Minds of all Perſons might be intent up-"on it; and that they may be put in mind of the Dignity of ſo "great a Myſtery.

And therefore when all this Order, with ſome other Rites appointed in our Liturgy, were repreſented by the Scots (John Knox, and his Company, being then at Franckfort, where the Engliſh Church uſed them) to Mr. John Calvin at Geneva, he might have ſpared his hard and ſupercilious Cenſure that he gave of them, when he ſaid, Legi Anglicanam Liturgiam, ſicut vos eam deſcripſiſtis (which it is moſt likely they did the worſt way they could) in qua vidi quaſdam ineptias, tolerabiles tamen, &c. Epiſt. Francofurtenſ. ib. inſcripta. Sed negari non poteſt, &c. "But it cannot be denied, but that "Calvin, tho' otherways worthy of his praiſe, was too rigid a Cen-

" or of the Rites of the ancient Church. Yet he ſays of them, in another of his Books, as he ſays here of ours, That they may be tolerated, as long as they be not uſed to maintain any falſe Doctrine; from which he acquitteth both the Fathers and us. Calv. Inſt. Lib. 4. cap. 18. n. 20. Equidem (ait) cum pium & orthodoxum de toto myſterio ſive Sacramento ſenſum retinuiſſe eos videam, ullius impietatis damnare eos non ſuſtineo. Excuſari tamen non poſſe arbitror, quin aliquid in actionis modo peccaverint. Imitati enim ſunt potiùs Judaicum Sacrificandi morem, quàm aut ordinaverit Chriſtus, aut Evangelii ratio ferebat. Which he intends of the Words uſed in the ancient Church, Prieſt, Offering and Sacrifice, together with the Ornaments or Veſtments, that the Biſhops and Prieſts uſed, as here in our Church they are appointed to do: For he was jealous, leſt they might prove an occaſion of introducing worſe Matters, as indeed among the new Roman-Catholicks they have done many, not only falſe Doctrines, but ſuperſtitious and vain Ceremonies, where they make an account (if not theorically, yet practically) that moſt of their Religion doth conſiſt. A Fault that he need not have laid upon our Church, which had taken ſpecial Order againſt ſuch Abuſes of her better Intentions, as he might have ſeen in the Preface of Ceremonies, why ſome are aboliſhed, and ſome are retained among us. But, I doubt, the Scots ſent him not the Preface to read, and deſcribed all our Rites to him, after the moſt odious and ridiculous manner that they could imagine; for ſo have many of their Diſciples done ever ſince. Indeed, if we had founded ourſelves upon the ridiculous Rationale of Durandus, or put any Religion in them, (more than the obeying of a lawful Command given for better Order and Decency in the Church was Religion) he might have had the more reaſon to find fault with us; but herein he was miſtaken, and in our Affairs was not ſufficiently informed, otherways he would have kept his Ineptiæ (tolerabiles tamen) to himſelf. Interim equidem Papiſtæ, &c.

T. " In the mean time, the Papiſts in a fooliſh, theatrical and " ſuperſtitious manner, have brought into the preſent Maſs many " Utenſils, Veſtments, Actions, Motions and Winkings, to ſignify the " Myſteries of the Life and Death of Chriſt. For theſe things fill " the Books of the Writers of the later Ages of the Church, eſpecially of Durandus the Writer of the Rationale. " Standing at the Table.] Which was the Cuſtom of the Anci" ents, that all things which pertained to the Celebration of the " Lord's Supper, ſhould be ſaid at the Altar. Now in this Celebra" tion, there is hardly any difference between us and the Proteſtants in " Germany, but that among us the Prayers are ſaid by the Biſhop or " Miniſter at the Altar, but among them in the Desk: In which " Matter they do not agree with the Ancients.

C  The Prieſt.] This Term or Title of Prieſt, is here uſed throughout this whole Communion-Service, unleſs it be in ſuch parts of it which may be read upon Sundays, and Holidays, when there is no Communion, for then any other Miniſter may perform the Office: But the Sacrament of the Euchariſt is reſerved for the Prieſt, no other Miniſter of an inferior Order having any Commiſſion or Power given him, to meddle either in conſecrating the Elements, or abſolving the Penitents, that come to receive them.

Otherwhiles the Church of England calls thoſe that are Presbyters by the Name of Prieſts, and thoſe that are Deacons by the Name of Levites: Nor can there be any juſt Exception againſt theſe Appellations, which are given them only by Analogy and Alluſion to the Prieſts and Levites of the Old Teſtament; and there is a clear place of Scripture for it, Iſa. 66. 20. And they ſhall bring an Offering unto the Lord out of all the Nations, &c. And I will alſo take of them for Prieſts and for Levites, ſaith the Lord. The Prophet ſpeaking there of the Religious Service that was to be done under the New Teſtament. So does the Apoſtle accommodate the Name of Circumciſion to the Sacrament of Baptiſm, Col. 2. 11. and the Name of Paſſover, or Sacrifice, to the Euchariſt; Chriſt our Paſſover is offered for us, let us therefore keep our Feaſt: That is, our Euchariſt: And the Name of Altar, to the Table of the Lord, Heb. 13. We have an Altar: And the Name of Oblations to the giving of Alms. *Ibid. G † T. Our Father.] " There is a Conſtitution concerning " the Collectæ Orationes, Conc. Carthag. 3. cap. 23. That when there " is a ſtanding at the Altar, the Prayer ſhould be always directed to " the Father. This is done after the Example of Chriſt, who teach" ing his People to pray, directed the beginning of his Prayer to " his Father.

C † Amen.] " The People were wont immediately to follow " upon the Collect, with a ſolemn Acclamation with the word Amen. " Where obſerve, That Amen is ſometimes a Particle of Affirmation, " ſometimes of Conceſſion, and ſometimes of Wiſhing. It is a Particle " of Affirmation, when it is put at the beginning of a Clauſe in " Speech; as for inſtance, that which was ſo common in our Savi" our's Diſcourſes; Amen, Amen, dico vobis, Verily, verily I ſay " unto you. It is a Particle of Conceſſion, or Wiſhing, when it is put " in the end of a Clauſe; as Deut. 28. where, to all the Benedicti" ons which were given for the keeping of the Law, and all the Cur" ſes which were dealt out for the Violation of it, the People, in " token of their agreeing with thoſe Terms, cried out, Amen. It " is a Particle of Wiſhing, when it is uſed in Prayer; wherefore, " our Saviour Chriſt was pleaſed to cloſe the Lord's Prayer with " this word; and the Church following his Example, has concluded " all her Prayers in the ſame manner; as if ſhe ſhould ſay, Let it be " as we do deſire.

In Ord. Sarum hæc Oratio habetur, & Secunda eſt in Ordinario Miſſæ.

* † Then ſhall the Prieſt rehearſe diſtinctly all the Ten Commandments.] ℣. W ℣. The Prieſt, after the Collect, deſcends to the Door of the Septum, makes a low Adoration towards the Altar: Then turns to the People, and ſtanding in the Door, readeth the Ten Commandments (as from God) whilſt they lye proſtrate to the end, as to God ſpeaking.

C † THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.]

" I read in St. Cyprian, Epiſt. 33. That the Reader was wont to " be placed upon the Tribunal of the Church, or a kind of high Pul" pit, ſo as to be viewed by the whole Congregation; and there " read the PRÆCEPTA & Evangelium Domini: But whether, " or no, by theſe Præcepta be to be underſtood the Precepts of the " Decalogue, I am not altogether determined.

C  Then ſhall the Miniſter rehearſe diſtinctly (that is, with Pauſes between every one) all the Ten Commandments.] I do not find in any Liturgy, old or new, before this of the Fifth of Edw. 6. (here continued) that the Jews Decalogue was uſed in the Service of the Chriſtian Church: But it ſeems, That the Rehearſal of it in the beginning of the Communion, was appointed with the Peoples Anſwers, and craving Pardon and Grace to obſerve them, in ſtead of Confeſſion of Sins, always ſet in this place. It ſerves to actuate our Repentance, by calling to mind our Offences by Retail.

Then ſhall follow the Collect.]

℣. W ℣. Factâ adoratione ut priùs, Miniſter aſcendit & genu flectit. Bowing as before, the Miniſter goes up to the Altar, and kneels down.

" The Collect was ſo called, becauſe it collected the Deſires of the " People into one, or becauſe it was made by the People collected or " gathered together. See before, in the Title of Collect and Epiſtle.

C † The Prieſt ſtanding up.] See what we have before noted on the Lord's Prayer.

Let us pray.] Sacerdos indicit Orationem. " The Prieſt invites " the People to pray: And to this St. Auſtin had regard in his Epi" ſtle to Vitalis, where he mentions the Prieſt, ad Altare populum " exhortantis orare, at the Altar, exhorting the People to Prayer: " Indeed among the Greeks, in the Liturgy of St. James, and elſe" where, the Deacon does this: And there was ſomething like it in " the Worſhip of the Heathens, HOC AGE.

* † Immediately after the Collect, the Prieſt ſhall read the Epiſtle.] ℣. W ℣. Here the other Prieſt, or if there be none, he that executeth, deſcendeth to the Door, adoreth, and then turning readeth the Epiſtle and Goſpel.

In Cathedral Churches the Epiſtler is ſeldom a Prieſt; and therefore, as this Rubrick was ordained generally for all England, moſt Places having but one Prieſt to ſerve it; ſo for Cathedral Churches it was ordained, by the Advertiſement in Queen Elizabeth's time, (that

(that Authority being reſerved, notwithſtanding this Book, by an Act of Parliament) that there ſhould be an Epiſtler and a Goſpeller, beſides the Prieſt, for the more ſolemn Performance of the Divine Service.

* † And, the Epiſtle ended, he ſhall ſay the Goſpel. ]

In the reading the holy Goſpel (and never elſe) is Adoration made at the Name of Jeſus; for then only is it in its right Exaltation; and then Men ſtand in a poſture ready to make Reverence.

When the Goſpel is named, the People are to anſwer, Glory be to thee, O Lord. ] Which was appointed in King Edward's Service-Book, and is ſtill uſed, howſoever it came to be left out here. I think it was by the Printer's Negligence, for the Statute at the beginning of this Book ſays, nothing ſhall be altered but a few Words in the Litany, and a Clauſe at the delivery of the Sacrament: So that if it had pleaſed the Printer, this might have ſtood ſtill.

℄ †. Conc. Tolet. IV. Can. 11. Ut in Miſſâ laudes poſt Epiſtolam non decantentur decernimus, donec prædicetur Evangelium. Nam laudes ideo Evangelium ſequuntur, propter gloriam Chriſti, quæ per idem Evangelium prædicatur. Qui vero hunc ordinem perturbaverit, excommunicationis pœnam ſuſcipiat.

And this Advantage we have againſt the Roman Miſſal, that whereas we have a Goſpel immediately after the Epiſtle, and they have Tracts and Graduals between them, we are the nearer to Antiquity of the two; as may appear by this Canon, which was made on purpoſe againſt the Roman Order, then newly brought into the Church: For ſo Bern. Angien. c. 1. expounds it; Poſtea (ſays he) cum Gradualia, &c. inter Apoſtolicam & Evangeliam lectionem cæperunt frequentari, Hiſpani quaſi novitate rei perculſi, multum reſtiterunt, dicentes, in quibuſdam Hiſp. Eccleſiis laudes poſt Apoſtolum decantantur, priùs quam Evangelium prædicetur, quod eſt contra Canones, &c.

℄ † " Among the Ancients, the Goſpel immediately ſucceeded the " Epiſtle, or Reading out of the Propheſy, eſpecially in the Latin " Church, as it was decreed by the Fathers in the Fourth Council of " Toledo, Can. 11. The Greeks had another Cuſtom very ancient " among them, which was to mix ſome Verſes or Hymns with the " Epiſtle and Goſpel; Liturg. S. Chryſ. Which Cuſtom the Latin " Church afterward received very probably upon this Account, leaſt " in the greater Churches (where there were many of the Clergy to " officiate) the Choir ſhould be ſilent, all that time which the Deacon " or the Presbyter was going up the Steps of the Ambo to read the " Goſpel; whence it came to paſs, that theſe Verſes were called " Graduals: For the Ancients were wont to have ſome high places " in their Churches; from which they not only read the Goſpels, " but other Leſſons, S. Cypr. Ep. 33. See the Notes between the " Epiſtle and Goſpel, in the Firſt Sunday in Advent.

Tho' this was the Cuſtom in the Eaſtern Churches, and was brought here into Spain betimes, yet it was a long time before the Church of Rome would come to uſe it. Berno, Cap. 2. tells the Story, how he was at Rome with the Emperor Henry, which was about the Year 114. and then they uſed it not; and being asked by the Emperor the reaſon why they would not follow the Eaſtern Churches in ſo laudable a Cuſtom, their Anſwer was, That they needed no ſuch matter, being not ſo ſubject to Hereſy as other Churches were; which reaſon ſo little ſatisfied the Emperor, that he never left till he had got Pope Benedict. II. to put it in Miſſarum Solennis; and ever ſince that time it has held: And this is that which *Durand. Cur vero Concilium non adjecerit Ex Filio, ſed ſatis eſſe cenſuerit dicere, Qui ex Patre procedit, ratio eſt, quia eo tempore dubium non erat, an Spiritus Sanctus ex Filio procederet; idem enim Hæretici Macedoniani, contra quos Concilium

C It was a great work to ſettle ſuch Forms as might conclude and confirm, and bring to life alſo the reſtleſs Malice of Hereticks: And it was long in doing. The next work to that was to bring it into the Service: For ſo it was beſt commended to the Knowledge of God's People; and had this Order been better regarded, this new varniſh of old Hereſies, which prevaileth ſo far abroad, and at home too, would not have taken the People ſo much as it has done.

C The Epiſtle and Goſpel ended ſhall be ſaid the Creed.] In Dion. Areop. immediately after the Reading of the Goſpel (the Hearers and Penitents, &c. being diſmiſſed) follows the Creed, which he calleth the Catholick Hymn, ſaid and acknowledged by all the Congregation of the Church together, as S. Ambr. ſupr. Which is an Argument, that the Author is not more ancient than the Nicene Council; before which time we do not read, that the Creed was brought into the Publick Service of the Church; but then it was, the better to preſerve Men from Hereſy. Of the Creed there is no mention in Juſtin, Tertullian, or the Conſtitutions of the Apoſtles.

C After the Creed ſhall follow the Sermon.] This is one difference from the Maſs-book, where there is no Sermon there appointed; for they commonly have their Sermons in the Afternoon. But the Church of England hath reſtored the Sermon into the due place of it, after the reading of the Epiſtle and Goſpel, which in the ancient Church was the ſubject of the Sermon which followed. As for the Afternoon-Sermon, I am yet to learn, what place it had, or yet hath, by any Order, in the Publick Service of God; or by what command either of the Scripture, or the ancient Church, it is preſſed.

C After the Creed ſhall follow the Sermon or Homily.] From the Conſtitutions of the Apoſtles, the Cuſtom has been very general, to begin the Sermon, when the reading of the Epiſtle and Goſpel was done. The Creed was afterwards added and interſerted, becauſe of the Hereſies newly riſen. And hereupon it is, that Preachers among the Latin Church-writers are called Tractatores, becauſe, when they preached, they handled the Scriptures which were that Day read in the Church. So Optatus, Lib. 4. charged the Donatiſts, that their Faſhion was in preaching, to leave their Texts (Lectiones Dominicas & Evangelium) and to fall a-railing upon the Catholicks.

C After the Creed, if there be no Sermon, ſhall follow, &c.] In the time of King Edward and Queen Elizabeth, the Parſons or Vicars were not tied to preach above Four Sermons in the Year, per ſe aut per alium. Biſhop Grindal, in his Articles 1565. Art. 7, & 24.

Upon a Holiday, when there was no Sermon, the Biſhops appointed, That immediately after the Goſpel the Curates ſhould recite to their Pariſhioners, the Lord's Prayer, the Articles of the Faith, and the Ten Commandments in Engliſh, ib. Art. 10.

C And none ſhall be admitted to the Holy Communion, &c.] Nor ſhall they be admitted to be God-fathers or God-mothers at Baptiſm, or to be married, before they can ſay their Catechiſm, Can. ſet forth 1571. and Biſhop Grind. Art. 17. 1565.

C Curate ſhall declare whether there be any Holidays.] One reaſon whereof was, leſt the People ſhould obſerve any ſuch Days that had been formerly kept, and were now abrogated by Law: And therefore the Biſhops enquired in their Viſitations, whether the Curates bid any other Days than were appointed by the new Kalendar; or whether there was any more ringing or tolling of Bells, to call the People to Church upon Sundays, more than otherwiſe was commonly uſed upon every common Week-day; for then was the Bell rung or tolled to Church every Day of the Week, where the Curate was not negligent of his Duty. Arch-Biſhop Grind. Art. 8. 1576. for the whole Province.

C The Miniſter that delivereth the Cup, &c.] Arch-biſhop Grind. Art. 7. will not have any Chalice heretofore uſed at Maſs, nor any prophane Cup or Glaſs uſed at the Communion.

And if any of the Bread and Wine remain, the Curate, &c.] Which needeth not be underſtood of that Bread and Wine which was bleſſed and conſecrated, but of that which was brought to the Church, and not uſed for the Sacrament. And yet we read of ſome ſuch thing in the Conſtitutions of the Apoſtles, Lib. 8. cap. 31. Ἵνα περισσεύσας ὁ ἐπὶ τοῖς μυστικοῖς, &c. Let the Deacons diſtribute the remains of the Bleſſings at the Myſteries to the Clergy, according to the Mind of the Biſhop or Presbyters. To the Biſhop, Four parts; to a Presbyter, Three; to a Deacon, Two; to the reſt, Subdeacons, Readers, Singers, or Deaconeſſes, one part.

After the Creed.]

†. W †. Lectâ Confeſſione Nicenâ, the Prieſt adores, then he removes the Baſon from the Back of the Altar, to the forepart. The Biſhop aſcends with treble Adoration, and laſtly kneels down at the Altar.

Into his Hands the Prieſt from a by-ſtanding Table on the ſouth-ſide, reaches firſt the Wafer-bread, in a Caniſter cloſe covered and lined with Linnen. 2*dly*, The Wine in a Barrel on a Cradle with four Feet. Theſe the Biſhop offers in the Name of the whole Congregation upon the Altar.

Then he offers into the Baſon for himſelf, and after him the whole Congregation, and ſo betake themſelves to their proper and convenient Place of kneeling. Biſhops and Prieſts only within the Septum, Deacons at the Door, the Laiety without, the Prieſt (mean while) reading the peculiar Sentences for the Offertory, Solis miniſteriis ſacro deditis ad Altare ingredi & Communicare licet, Conc. Laod. Can. 19.

*† Homilies already ſet forth or hereafter.] It ſeems the Author of the Homilies wrote them in haſte, and the Church did wiſely to reſerve this Authority of correcting them, and ſetting forth others: For they have many Scapes in them in ſpecial, though they contain in general many wholeſome Leſſons for the People; in which Senſe our Miniſters do ſubſcribe unto them and no other.

For Sigebert in the Year "807. writes Carolus Imperator, &c. Charles the Emperor by the "Hand of Paulus Warnifridus his Deacon, making a Collection out of "the beſt Writings of the Catholick Fathers, made a Compilation of "Homilies, ſuited for the Feſtivals throughout the whole Circle of the "Year. Upon this or the like Account, the third Council of Turon "was convened by the Authority of Charles the Great, which ſpeaks "thus, Viſum eſt unanimitati noſtræ, &c. We are unanimouſly of Opinion, "that every Biſhop procure Homilies, containing neceſſary Admonitions, "by which his People may be inſtructed. And that he take care to "Tranſlate the ſame Homilies plainly into the Country-Latin; "(i. e. French;) Teutonick, (i. e. German) that all may more "eaſily underſtand the things which are ſaid. Thus Proviſion was "made for the two principal Nations, under the Government of "Charles. But though this work is attributed by Sigebertus, and "other ancient Writers to Paulus Diaconus, yet Sixtus Senenſis in "the fourth Book of his Library, attributes the ſame to our Country-"Alcuinus, Collegit, &c. he collected (ſays he,) and reduced into Order, by "the command of Charles the Great, the Homilies of the moſt famous "Doctors of the Church upon the Goſpels, which were read in Churches "all the Year round. He ſays, they were all in Number 209. but "where that Work lies hid, is uncertain.

C† "How neceſſary and ancient it is to read the Scriptures to "the People, we learn from Juſtin Martyr, Apol. 2. Upon that Day "which is called Sunday, there is an Aſſembly held of all that live in "the Towns and the Country, and the Commentaries of the Apoſtles, or "the Writings of the Apoſtles are read, as long as time will allow. "And afterwards the Reader ceaſing, the Preſident or Biſhop, makes a "Sermon, by which he inſtructs the People, and exhorts them to imitate "what is good.

C† "What we call Sermons, the Greeks call ὁμιλίας, Homilies. "The ancient Latins call them Tractatus; for with them tractare "is to teach the People. Hence Vincentius Lirinenſis, Cap. 9. Doctores "Tractatores nunc appellantur, &c. And Victor Uticenſis, Lib. 1. "Perſec. Vandal. De S. Auguſt. Libros confecerat, excerptis innumera-"bilibus Epiſtolis & Tractatibus popularibus, quas Greci ὁμιλίας vocant. "'Tis certain, that St. Auſtin's Sermons upon St. John do now bear "the Title of Tractatus; and ſo do thoſe which remain of Gaudentius Brixienſis. So St. Ambroſe in his 33d Epiſtle Poſt Lectiones atque Tractatum dimittuntur Catechumeni. See Optatus againſt the "Donatiſts, Lib. 4. Lectiones Dominicas incipitis, & Tractatus veſtros "ad noſtram injuriam explicatis, proferris Evangelium, & facitis ab-"ſenti fratri convitium; and I wiſh there were no-where found, "who do the like as the Donatiſts did. Now the Ancients who "made the Tractate or Sermon, were wont to ſpeak it after the "reading of the Pſalms, or the Prophets, Epiſtles or Goſpels, de-"livering this as an Expoſition upon it. And upon the ſolemn "Feſtival Days, as upon Eaſter, Whitſuntide, &c. as alſo upon the "Faſts, as Lent, the Embers and Vigils, both the Leſſons and the "Sermons were always adapted to the Times; although at other "times, whole Books of Scripture were tractated or handled in "order. And this we may learn from St. Auſtin's Preface to the "Epiſtles of S. John, wherein there is this Expreſſion, Meminit "ſanctitas veſtra Evangelium ſecundùm Johannem ex ordine Lectionum "nos ſolere tractare, ſed quia nunc interpoſita eſt ſolemnitas ſan-"ctorum dierum, quibus certas ex Evangelio Lectiones oportet in Ec-"cleſiâ recitari, quæ ita ſunt annua ut aliæ eſſe non poſſint: ordo ille "quem ſuſteperimus neceſſitate paululùm intermiſſus eſt, non omiſſus. "But concerning an ill Cuſtom which then obtained, for the Peo-"ple to cry out and applaud the Preacher, when he ſaid any thing "well and pleaſing. See St. Auſtin de Doctr. Chr. Lib. 4. Cap. 10. & "24. Hier. Ep. 2. ad Nepotian. Chryſoſt. Hom. 2. de Lazaro; where "he ſays, Pray be ſtill, O my Hearers, &c.

C† After

C † After ſuch Sermon, or Exhortation.] Which Exhortation is here underſtood, may be gathered from this Rubrick as it ſtood in the 2 Edw. where we read it thus, After the Creed ſhall follow the Homily, wherein, if the People be not exhorted to the worthy receiving, &c. then ſhall the Curate make this Exhortation, Dearly Beloved, &c. Which is another Argument that our Church intended a more frequent Celebration of the Communion, then we uſe either ourſelves or the People unto.

C † The Curate ſhall declare unto the People whether there be any Holidays.] Excepted againſt by the Puritans in the Survey. Quær. 51, 52.

* † Or Faſting-Days.] They that ſpeak ſo much againſt us, who put ſome part of our Religion in keeping Faſting-Days, as if we had nothing but a Politick uſe of keeping Lent, Fridays, and Saints-Eves, let them look well to this Place, where the Curate is bound to exhort the People earneſtly towards the Religious Obſervation of ſuch times, in abſtaining from their own wonted Diet, and beſtowing their Liberality upon the Poor. Certainly, if it be Religion to give Alms, it is Religion to keep Faſting-Days too, which are appointed by the Church to be ſpent in Prayer and Abſtinence. Jejunium, Eleemoſyna, & Oratio, went ever together as here they do. If Faſting-Days and Lent-time be but a Politick Obſervation, without any Religion in it at all, according to the conceit of ſome out of the Statute of 5 Eliz. and before that 2d and 3d of Ed. VI. 3. 12. what ſhould the Miniſter here meddle with it in the Church, the Place where all our Actions are, or ſhould be Religious; or what ſhould thoſe Religious Prayers, Epiſtle and Goſpel, upon the firſt Day of Lent do among us, ſeeing they all intend a Solemn and Religious preparing of the People, and the whole Church of Chriſt among us, to the due keeping of that time with Prayer and Abſtinence?

*† As Ember-Days are by the 31ſt Canon, a Preparation to the giving of Holy Orders; ſo the Eves of moſt Holidays may be more religiouſly performed: And therefore when the People had notice given them of the one, they were put in mind of the other too, Holidays and Faſting-Days together, Conc. Aurelian. Cap. 1. Presbyteri cum ſacras Feſtivitates populo annunciant, etiam jejunium vigiliare eos omnimodè ſervare moneant. Of the Ember Faſts. See Not. upon Ridley's View p. 76.

*† In what and with how much Care and Chriſtianity theſe Faſts have been heretofore obſerved, it may be noted out of the Second Council of Milain, Tit. 1. Sect. 22. In the Fourth Council of Milain is ſet down out of Leo, the Form of bidding theſe Faſts in the Church. Quartâ igitur feriâ, & ſabbato jejunemus frequentes in Eccleſiâ. Theſe Four Faſts at this preſent Day are obſerved in our Church, and are known to us by the Name of Ember-week. And (ſo we find it in Th. Becon) By opinion of much people, theſe dayes been called Ember-dayes, becauſe that our elder fathers would on theſe dayes, eat noe bread but Cakes made under aſhes or imbers, ſoe that by eating of them they reduced into their mindes that they were but aſhes, and ſo ſhould again, and wiſt not how ſoon. And that theſe Ember-Days were duly obſerved and devoutly by our Anceſtors, we may ſaid, be perſwaded out of the Law of King Canute, where Chap. 16. it is that every Man ſhould obſerve the Faſts that are commanded (whether it be Ember-Faſt or Lent-Faſt, or any other Faſt) with all earneſt Care. And if ignorance (as we call thoſe times,) could admit of ſuch Devotion, how much more would be expected, from this knowing Age, as we account it?

Of the Offertory.

C † "THE Miſſa Catechumenorum reached ſo far among the T "Ancients: After this the Catechumens go out of the " Church, and they that are under Penance. And they only remain " within, who are deſerving to behold the Sacred things, and to partake " of them, Dionyſ. Eccl. Hier. Cap. 3. Conc. Laod. Can. 19. For " this Reaſon the ancient Church did not receive the Offerings of " the Catechumens or Penitents, or of any other who were under " any notorious Crime: For it was a Symbol of perfect Communion " to offer with the other Faithful, they being wont to take a part of " each others Offering in the Euchariſt. See what we have noted " upon this Head in the laſt Benediction, at the diſmiſſion of the " Communicants.

" Indeed the firſt part of the Liturgy (which in the Latin " Churches was heretofore called the Miſſa Catechumenorum, becauſe " when this was ended they were diſmiſſed) was of common In- " ſtitution, that is, was freely permitted to all, as well Catechumens " as Penitents, nay, even Infidels and wicked Perſons, as the Regene- " rate, Faithful and the Pious. But the latter Part, which begins " with the Offertory, and follows afterwards to the laſt Diſmiſſion, " was called the Miſſa fidelium, and was of proper Inſtitution, be- " longing to the Faithful only, and to no others. And this latter Part was reckoned by the ancient Fathers of the Church, as it is ſtill by us, to be the more Noble, Holy, and Sacred Solemnity of the two; for in the former Part hitherto, there was only an Exerciſe of the common Miniſtery of Chriſt's Goſpel, whereby all Men, whoſoever they were, had their Inſtruction, and were exhorted to make Profeſſion of God's true Religion, and for that purpoſe, were admitted to all the former Parts of the Liturgy or Service of the Church. But when it came once to the latter part, wherein the Holy Communion was to be adminiſtred, that was reſerved only for ſuch as were already duly brought up in Piety, and prepared for the Reception thereof, according to the Rules and Inſtitution of Chriſt himſelf at his laſt Supper, which the Church was moſt careful and curious to obſerve.

C † In a King's Court, all manner of Perſons are nouriſhed according to their Degree and Condition, even thoſe have ſome Entertainment, that are but newly entred into his Family, not yet fit for any great or ſerious Employment; many diſorderly Perſons, or thoſe that are held in Priſon or Captivity for their Miſ-doings; all theſe have ſome Proviſion or other made for them at his Expence: But into his private Lodgings, into his Bed-Chamber, or to his own Table, none are admitted, but ſuch as are tried and approved Perſons, both for their Fidelity, and for their Abilities, which render them more acceptable to him, and more fit to do him Service. And after the like manner it is in the Church, where to the common Doctrine and Inſtructions of the Word of God, which is the Nouriſhment of the Souls of Men, and without which no ſpiritual Life can either be begun or continued in them, all Men are admitted, be they Catechumens or Penitents, or Excommunicate Perſons, or ſuch as be vitious and irregular in their Courſe of Life: But to Chriſt's own Table, into his Inner-Chamber, none are ſuffered to come, but thoſe that are Regenerate, and live a Godly Life according to his own Ordinances. For he accounteth all others, as not yet fitted, to ſerve him in ſo near a Capacity, or to partake of his greateſt Favours.

By this ſimilitude may we the better underſtand, what the Difference is between the Firſt and Second Part of this Eccleſiaſtical Liturgy.

C † T "When the Catechumens are diſmiſſed, ſome of the Clergy " ſtand before the Doors of the Temple, whilſt others do ſome proper " Duty incumbent upon them. After this OBLATION being made " by the People, they that are the principal Miniſters of the Order, " together with the Prieſts, place the HOLY BREAD and the " CUP OF BENEDICTION upon the Sacred Altars, Dionyſ. " Where by the principal Miniſters of the Order he underſtands the " Deacons; for 'tis their Buſineſs to diſpoſe the Materials of the " Sacred Celebration upon the Altar. Now theſe were the Elements " of the Bread and Wine, chiefly thoſe which were offered. The " Faithful thinking that there was always ſuch a neceſſity of offering " ſomething, which might be ſome way or other ſerviceable either " to the Sacrifice itſelf or its Miniſters, that Authors give us an " Account of ſome that run to a Well, to fetch at leaſt Water to " to offer. Onuphrius has obſerved this, out of Alcuinus and Ama- " larius. Aquam (ut ait Amalarius de ſuo tempore) offerebant " Cantores, aut alii eorum nomine: populus vero fidelis offerebat panem " & vinum.

C † "There was a Cuſtom in the ancient Church for the Faith- " ful in the Aſſemblies to offer Bread and Wine, not only for the " uſe of the Poor, but alſo for the Suſtenance of the Miniſters of " the Church, after there had been taken as much as ſufficed for the " Adminiſtration of the Euchariſt. Which Order and Cuſtom of the " ancient Church, is acknowledged and approved by Bullinger, one " of the Reformers in Switzerland, Lib. 3. de Orig. Error. Cap. 4. " Receptiſſimum fuit in Eccleſiis vetuſtis Cibum & Potum offerre in Cœ- " tu ſacro ad uſum Miniſtrorum & Pauperum; ex quibus deligebatur " etiam Panis & Vinum, quæ in Cœna Domini proponebantur. Unde " Sacramentum Euchariſtiæ, vocabatur Oblatio & Sacrificium, &c. " Which is the Reaſon that the Sentences appointed to be read for " the Offertory, refer ſome to the Poor, and ſome to the Miniſters " of the Church, that wait upon the Altar. And this is alſo the " Reaſon, that in the fifth Rule following the Collects after the " Offertory, it is appointed, If any of the Bread and Wine remain, " the Curate ſhall have it home to his own Houſe. From hence St. Cy- " prian in his Book de Oper. & El. chides a rich Matron thus, Locu- " ples & dives es, & dominicum celebrare te credis, quæ in Dominicum " ſine Sacrificio venis, quæ partem de ſacrificio, quod pauper obtulit " ſumis? For it is but reaſonable, that thoſe who partake of the Holy things, ſhould offer or contribute ſomething towards the providing what is neceſſary in order to them. Theſe are the Words of Irenæus, a very ancient Author likewiſe, Offerre igitur oportet Deo primitias ejus Creaturæ, quam Dominus docuit offerri in Eccleſia; ſicut & Moyſes ait, non apparebis vacuus ante conſpectum Domini Dei tui. —Non quaſi indigentem, ſed ut ipſi nec infructuoſi nec ingrati ſimus.

C † "This Cuſtom of Offering continued long in the Church, " which the Second Synod of Maſton, towards the Concluſion of " the Sixth Century, did confirm by the fourth Canon thereof. " Decernimus, ut omnibus Dominicis diebus Altaris Oblatio ab omnibus " viris & mulieribus offeratur, tam panis quam vini, ut cum Abel vel " cæteris juſtè offerentibus conſortes ſint. Of the ſame Oblation Ama- " larius Fortunatus in the Ninth Age makes mention, in his Book of " Eccleſiaſtical Offices, which he dedicated to Ludovicus Pius, Lib 3. " Cap. 19. Omnis Populus intrans Eccleſiam debet Sacrificium (panem " & vinum) Deo offerre. Only in Places where they had Choir- " Men, that ſung during the time of the Offertory, it was appointed " that one ſhould offer for them all.

Saying one or more of theſe Sentences following.] ☩ W ☩ Inſtead of theſe, read the peculiar Sentences for the Offertory, ut infra, and ſome of theſe immediately before the Benediction for the Poor.

C. So many as intend to be Partakers of the Holy Communion, ſhall, &c.] Clemens, who was St. Peter's Scholar, writeth thus in an quot populo ſufficere debeant, which is one Reaſon of giving up their Names.

St. Leo, writing to Dioscorus the Bishop of Alexandria, gave him this Advice, That where the Church was so little, that it was not able to receive all the whole People to communicate all together, then the Priest should minister two or three Communions in one Day, that as the People came in, and had once filled the Church, so they should receive the Communion, and afterwards give place to others.

And he said, of a truth I say unto you, that this poor Widow hath cast in more than they all: For they of their Superfluity cast into the Offerings of God; But she of her penury hath cast in all the Living that she had.*

Act. 24. 6. Now after many Years I came and brought Alms to my Nation and Offerings.

C † " Let us do good unto all Men, especially.] It is a necessary " Act of Kindness to relieve the Poor. C † And upon the Offering-days appointed.] The Four general Offering-days in the Church of England. It was one of the Injunctions set forth by the Authority of King Henry 8. in the Convocation of his Clergy, Anno 1536. to be generally observed in the Church of England; That the Feasts of the Nativity of our Lord, of the Nativity of St. John Baptist, and of St. Michael the Archangel, shall be accounted accepted, and taken for the Four general Offering-days. Which Order is among us in some Places still observed: And the King and Queen in their Chapel-Royal (or wherever they be at Church in those Days) never omit it; but arise from their Seat, and go in solemn manner to present their Offering, upon their Knees at God's Altar: And then is read by the Priest or Bishop attending, this Sentence here prescribed, 1 Cor. 9. They which minister about holy things live of the Sacrifice; and they which wait on the Altar, are partakers with the Altar: Even so hath God also ordained, that they who preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel.

℣. W ℣. And this is not to be forgotten, tho' it be forgone, that whosoever gave any Lands or Endowments to the Service of God, he gave it in formal Writing, as now-a-days between Man and Man, sealed and witnessed, and the tender of the Gift was super altare, and by the Donor upon his Knees.

* † And to give thanks for all Men.] We give thanks, not for our own, but also for the benefits of others; for by this means we may extinguish Envy, and tye the knot of Charity, making it more sincere; for you cannot envy them, for whose good things you thank God. And it is for this reason that the Priest, as the Elements lye before him, commands us to offer unto God thanks, for Blessings to the whole World, to those that are absent, those that are present, those that were before us, and those that are to come after us. Chrys. C  Pray for the whole State of Christ's Church militant, &c.] Those Words militant here upon Earth were added to exclude the Prayers that were used in the ancient Liturgies, and in the former Edition of this Liturgy, 2 Edw. 6. for them that have been before us, and are now Dead: But for the rest, all the Form of it is most Ancient and Apostolical. Next the Apostle (who wills Supplications and Prayers, and Thanksgivings to be made for all Men, especially for Kings and such as be in Authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceable Life in all Godliness and Honesty, which is the sum and subject of this whole Prayer) we find in the Constitutions of the Apostles (which was a Book made to declare the Customs of the Church before Constantine's time) this Prayer at large, first for the State of Christ's Church, and then for the particular Members of it, Lib. 8. cap. 10, 11, 12. chiefly for the Emperor and Powers of the World, that they may be at peace with us: So Tertullian, in his Apology, cap. 39. Oramus pro Imperatoribus, pro ministris eorum & potestatibus, pro statu seculi, & pro rerum quiete, & cap. 30. Precamur illis vitam prolixam, Imperium securum, Domum tutam, Exercitus fortes, Senatum fidelem, populum probum, orbem quietum, & quæcunq; Hominis & Cæsaris vota sunt: which certainly is the same Prayer that is appointed in the Constitutions of the Apostles, as before, and in Lib. 2. cap. 51. Let the Minister pray for the whole Church, and all the World, and the parts of it, for the Priests and Rulers, for the King, and for the general Peace; which is the reason that it is called in the Greek Liturgies, the Catholick or general Collect, and τὰ ἰσμικὰ. The Prayer for Peace. And it is the Source and Fountain of those Prayers, which were afterwards framed into the Form of our Litanies. S. Ambr. de Sacram. Lib. 4. cap. 4. saith, That this Prayer was always made before the Consecration of the Sacrament. Oratio præmittitur pro populo, pro Regibus, pro cæteris.

This Prayer for the State of Christ's Church was the Prayer before the Sermon of old time, consisting of several Exhortations to the People. S. Aug. Ep. 106. Quando audis Sacerdotem exhortantem populum Dei, ut orent. Et Ep. 118. Communis Oratio voce Diaconi indicit, &c. So it is no new thing to bid Prayers, or exhort the People to pray, as in the Preface to this Prayer for Christ's Church, and in the Form appointed for all Preachers before their Sermons.

Which Practice is the effect of the Apostles Instructions mentioned in the beginning of this Prayer (who by thy holy Apostle hast taught us, to make Prayers and Supplications, and to give thanks for all Men) 1 Tim. 2. 1. Where St. Ambrose, or he that wrote those excellent Commentaries, saith, Hæc Regula Ecclesiastica tradita est à Magistro Gentium, &c. This Ecclesiastical Rule is delivered to the Church by the Doctor of the Gentiles, which our Priests use; To make Supplication for all, praying for the Kings of this World, that they may hold all the Nations subject; that we being settled in peace, may be able to serve our God with Tranquillity and quiet of Mind; praying also for those that are trusted with high Power, that they may govern the Commonwealth in Justice and Truth, with abundance of all good things, that Trouble and Sedition being removed, Gladness of Heart may follow, &c. praying likewise for them that are in necessity, and giving of Thanks, &c.

Which chiefly contains the Particulars of that Form in our Service, and which was related out of the Apostles Constitutions.

C  And

C And to give thanks for all Men.] Understanding by Thanksgivings the Action of celebrating the Eucharist. But from hence the ancient Church, and the first Service-Book of Edw. 6. enlarged the Sense of All Men, to comprise the Dead as well as the Living.

C For all Men.] Not only for the Congregation present, but for all the Members of the Church and Christian Kingdoms, which are the same, which have been since called Litanies; and in the ancient Liturgies here was the place for them. Thanksgivings follow well, in reference to the Sacrament, from which it is called the Eucharist, because it was always consecrated with Thanksgiving; wherein Remembrance was made of all the Blessings of God's Providence, but especially that of our Lord and Saviour.

But how Thanks for all Men should stand here as a Preface, and then no thanks given for any Men in the process or end of the Prayer, nor no Eucharist follow (as upon Holidays, when there is no Communion none doth) I confess I cannot understand.

The Truth is, these Words were forgotten to be strucken out of the Preface, when in the process of this Prayer they struck out the Thanksgiving and Commemoration of the Saints and Apostles before us, who in King Edw. 6. time had the oversight of altering the Service-Book from the Form made in his Second Year, which last (all but for Ceremonies and a few other Alterations) is still our Pattern.

C Let us pray for the whole State.] The bidding of the Common-Prayers appointed before all Sermons in the Injunctions and Canons, is nothing else, but this Allocution to the People extended to Particulars. In the ancient Church, as appears by the Eighteenth Canon of the Council of Laodicea, there was an Order taken, for some Prayers to be made διὰ προσοντικῶν, by way of speaking to the People, from point to point directing them what to desire of God, and the People saying afterwards, Lord have mercy, as with us, Our Father, &c. Therefore in the Constitutions of the Apostles, are they called only Allocutions to the People. Lib. 8. cap. 10. Let us pray for the Peace and firm State of the World, That it may please God, &c. for the holy Catholick and Apostolick Church; for the Dioceses of all Bishops that God would give, &c. for the Deacons and Inferior Ministers; for the Married and the Continent; for those that give Alms and Oblations; That God would, &c. for the Sick and Needy; for them that are Imprisoned; for Travellers by Land and Sea, &c. And whosoever shall take notice of the Particulars there related, shall receive a very ancient, if not original Pattern and use of these Prayers, which have been since called Litanies, Prayers for the State of the Church, and Bidding the Common Prayers before Sermons.

C The Exhortation at certain times, when the Curate shall see the People negligent to come to the Holy Communion.] This was added 5 Edw. upon Buter's special Instance in his Censure, cap. 27. where he saith, "Modis omnibus instandum, ut qui præsentes sunt "communicent. Sed sunt qui in eo nobiscum sentiunt, quò autem "id obtineant, non veris utuntur rationibus. Alii enim eò rariùs "S. Cænam celebrant, ut in anno vix plures quam ter aut quater. "Alii populum qui ad prædicationem Evangelii & preces confluxit "omnem dimittunt, ut Cænam celebrent cum iis tantùm qui volunt "ea communicare. Nam ex eo quod Dominus usum hujus Sacramenti commendavit Discipulis suis, ad celebrandam solennem sui "inter nos memoriam, sanè à nobis celebrendam in omni solenni Conventu, hoc est, omni die Dominico. Item ex eo quòd Apostolus "1 Cor. 11. eandem Cænam omni frequentiori cœtui deputat: & "quòd Ecclesia Apostolica legitur ita fractione Panis perseverâsse, "ut in doctrina Apostolorum, Act. 2. apparet ergo Ecclesias priscas "illud ex certa Apostolorum Traditione accepisse, ut sacram cænam "singulis diebus Dominicis & Festis, immò quoties tota conveniebat "Ecclesia, exhiberent.

From whence came those Rules that were afterwards made, somewhat to this purpose at the end of the Communion.

Buter also, in the last Chapter of his Censure upon the Book, urged very earnestly for the Restitution of the Lands and Goods which Laymen had taken away from the Church, and which they bestowed upon their Pleasures of Hunting and Feasting, &c. threatning and forespeaking a general Calamity and Destruction that would come upon this Kingdom, unless such Restitution were made, worse than Germany, or Israel and Judah suffered. But in this Particular they never gave ear to him, which they did in altering and lessening the Service of the Church.

He moved here likewise for a Confession of Doctrine to be made, that there might be an Uniformity thereof throughout the whole Kingdom: Whereupon the Articles of Religion were drawn up in the Synod, 1552. To this he desired they would add a larger Catechism than that which was in the Book of Common Prayer; which Arch-Bishop Cranmer did, but it never obtained.

In the Form of Ordination of Ministers (which was then extant) he moved to have a stricter Examination of them for their Life and Manners, even from their Infancy, than was then required: Nor did he like the Trial of them by a Sermon, which was deceitful. But the ancient Constitutions and Canons had taken Order for this Matter before.

Last of all he moved, Quia Ecclesiarum Ministri facilius comparantur, quàm servantur, & in Officio perseverant, qui benè cæperunt: That there might be yearly Synods and Visitations kept to that purpose: But this also the old Constitutions of the Church had provided before.

He concludes, That, at the Commandment of Arch-Bishop Cranmer, he had made all these Censures upon the Book, Sed satis præcipitanter & crudè, for which he craves pardon, having had but a very short time to make this his Censure in. And he did it Nonis Januarii, 1551. at Cambridge, where he died 25 Days after, viz. prid. Calend. Mart. 1551.

*† If ye stand by as Gazers, and lookers on, &c. usq; ad, and give place to them that be godly disposed.] A religious Invective added here, against the lewd and irreligious Custom of the People then nursed up in Popery, to be present at the Communion, and to let the Priest communicate for them all: From whence arose that abuse of Private Masses; a Practice so repugnant to the Scripture, and to the use of the ancient Church, that at this Day not any but the Romish Church, throughout all the Christian World, are known to use it, as the Greek, Syrian, Armenian and Æthiopian Liturgies do testify: Nay, the Roman Liturgy itself is full against the Roman Practice. Omnes igitur fideles, qui ingrediuntur Ecclesiam & Scripturas audiunt (saith the Tenth Canon of the Apostles) non autem perseverant in Oratione, nec Sanctam Communionem percipiunt, velut inquietudines Ecclesiæ commonentes, convenit communione privari. Quicunq; est (says S. Chrysost. Hom. 3. in 1 Ep. ad Ephes.) qui mysteriorum non est particeps, is impudenter stat, & nimis audaciter. For tell me (says he) Siquis ad Convivium invitatus, manus laverit & accubuerit, & ad mensam paratus fuerit, deinde non fuerit ejus particeps, annon contumeliâ eum afficit, qui invitavit? Annon esset melius, eum ne adfuisse quidem? So that this Preface and Exhortation, seems to be taken out of St. Chrysostom's Words, they are in all points so like one to the other.

C† The holy Sacrament——the holy Mystery.] Sacramentum & mysterium idem sunt. Sacramentum tamen propriè dicitur illud quod videtur. Mysterium vero quod per id significatur.

To a most godly and heavenly feast.] S. Aug. Tract. 84. in Joh. Hoc est quod legitur in proverbiis Solomonis cap. 23. v. 1. Si sederis cœnare ad mensam potentis, considerans intellige quæ apponuntur tibi, & sic mitte manum tuam, sciens quia te alia oportet præparare. Quæ autem mensa est potentis, nisi unde sumuntur Corpus & sanguis ejus, qui animam suam posuit pro nobis? Et quid est ad eam sedere, nisi humiliter accedere? Et quid est considerire, & intelligere quæ apponuntur tibi, nisi dignè tantum gratiam cogitare? Et quid est sic mittere manum, ut scias quia talia Te oportet præparare, nisi quia pro nobis Christus passus est, relinquens nobis exemplum (1 Pet. 2. 21.) ita & nos sequamur vestigia ejus? Hoc est talia præparare.

C† Then let him come to me—and open his grief.] Hoc autem & eos qui Johannem adibant, (Mat. 3. 6.) fecisse credibile est, tum ut precibus ipsius apud Deum juvarentur (Jac. 5. 16.) tum ut instruerentur consilio ad speciales circumstantias accommodato (Luc. 3. 12, 14.) Quod autem disputant Viri eruditi, an Legibus Lev. 5. & Num. 5. 7. exigatur tantùm Confessio apud Deum, & eum cujus interest, an vero etiam apud Sacerdotem: Ea de re probabilis maximè videtur eorum Sententia, qui existimant etiam apud Sacerdotem factam aliquam particularem Culpæ Confessionem, in iis quæ cognita Capitis pœnam non adferebant, in cæteris sufficisse generalem. C† "Why Penitentiary Priests were introduced into the Church, "after the propagating of the Novatian Heresy, must elsewhere be "learned. But how they were abolished, and how again restored, "does belong to our present purpose. Under the Empire of Valentinian, Theodosius and Arcadius, there was a Woman of Quality at "Constantinople, who was enjoyned, in order to the Remission of a "Sin acknowledged and confessed to him, to Fast and Pray; and for "the better performance of this, she was wont to stay long in the "Church, and sometimes to be there good part of the Night, where "she was debauched by a Deacon. This Wickedness she revealed to "her Penitentiary in Confession; but the Penitentiary (notwithstanding Taciturnity was enjoined him by an ancient Canon) betrayed the Secret committed to him: Whereupon the Church-Discipline receiving much reproach, Nectarius, Bishop of Constantinople, "not only degraded the Deacon as a Fornicator, and turned the "Penitentiary as an impudent Person out of his Office, (which Punishment was revived and increased by the English Synod, 1604. "Can. 113.) but by the Advice of Eudæmon the Presbyter (that the "Church for the future might be free from all Reproach and Suspicion) abrogated the Office of the Penitentiary, and chose rather "that every one relying only upon his own Trust and Conscience, "should come to the Communion of the Sacred Mysteries, than that "again such a Disgrace to Religion, whether true or false, should "arise

" arise from the Penitentiary. Whose Example all other Bishops " at that time followed, (and at this Day the Church of England " follows) which has taken away the Necessity of private Confession, " only in the Case of sick Persons, but has not taken away a free Con- " fession; for so it often happens, that those things which were well " established and introduced, out of Indignation at some evil Action, " are with too great Severity abolished, as if the Laws themselves, " and not Men were Offenders, rather than Punishment inflicted " upon those who were Transgressors of the Laws. Thus the Ro- " mans abolished Kingly Power, Decemvirate, Dictatorship, and " the Office of the Tribunes, rather out of hatred of them who had " held those Offices, than that there was any ill or harm in the " Offices themselves. Wherefore it is not to be wondered at, (when " there happen Abuses on the contrary side,) that the same Laws " are again revived; since by these the Salus Populi, the Spiritual " Advan age of the People, is the only thing looked after. For " this Reason Penitentiaries were restored, but under no Necessity " or Obligation to make use of them before the Decree of Innocent " the Third, which Decree does not bind us English-men. As for " those of other Countries, let them look out for themselves. But " most certainly that Custom of the Inquisition in Spain is to be " blamed, where there are Scribes who lie hid to take Notes of " what Questions the Penitentiary asks, and what the guilty Person " answers. Upon which account, it was a good Saying that of the " Lacedemonian, who coming to be initiated into a Sect of Religion, " would not confess what Faults he had committed to the God, un- " less the Priest withdrew: But no Objection of this kind can " justly be made to the Church of England.

*† That he may receive —— the Benefit of Absolution.] ☩ W ☩. It is most expedient that this be read, to induce the People, that they bethink themselves of the soveraign Benefit of Absolution, by their Penitent Confession. Idem. Dr. White in his way to the Church, quotes all this latter Part of the Exhortation, shewing against the Slander of the Jesuites, that we abolish not, but willingly retain the Doctrine of Confession. §. 40. 231.

*† We provoke him to plague us with divers Diseases, &c.] Taken from St. Paul, 1 Cor. 11. For this, are many weak among you, and many die. " Si nos hodie diceremus propterea multos sacerdotes &c. " 290. trucidatos fuisse ab hæreticis, quia indignè tractabant Corpus " Christi, putarent Calvinistæ nos delirare. And so when the Dona- tists, the old Puritans of the Primitive Church, arose, and made so slight an account of God's Altars, and the Blessed Sacrament upon them, as that they over-turned and brake them down whersoever they came (just as our Puritans are wont to do) God sent many Judgments upon them. Among the rest, Optatus tells us one worth the remembring, Lib. 2. de Schism. Don. Omnia sacrosancta Episcopi vestra violarunt, jusserant Eucharistiam canibus fundi, non sine signo divini judicii: nam iidem Canes rabie accensi ipsos Dominos suos, quasi latrones Dominici Corporis reos, tanquam ignotos & inimicos dilaniârunt.

Judge therefore your selves,] He that willingly judgeth himself, lest against his Will he be judged of the Lord, veniat ad Antistites, per quos illi in Ecclesiâ Claves ministrantur, & à Præpositis Sacrorum accipiat satisfactionis suæ modum. S. Aug. Lib. Quinquag. vid. Chrys. Hom. III. in Cap. 1. ad Eph.

C† And be in perfect Charity with all Men.] Where Christian- Men are chiefly to be understood, as being all the Sons of one Father, God our Almighty Creator; and for all whom Christ our Blessed Saviour suffered Death upon the Cross, that all Men (for ought that he intended to the contrary) might come to Repentance, and and be saved by it.

Of the great Preparation that Christians are to make before they come to the receiving of the Blessed Sacrament.

*† THE veneration of the Holy Sacrament, has from all times and Ages, since Christ left the Celebration of it to his Apostles, been so great, that they which either carelesly came unto it, or negligently behaved themselves at it, were always accounted and punished as great Offenders, 1 Cor. 11. St. Paul tells us, that many became sick and weak, and Subject to divers Diseases, and that many died upon it, for that they came with such small Preparation unto it, and behaved themselves when they were there with such little Reverence. These are then the two things we are to look to, 1. Our Preparation before we presume to come. 2. Our Reverence when we are come.

For Preparation first, we find these things religiously observed among the Primitive and Old Christians. 1. That they were to abstain from all fleshly Thoughts, in so much that if they chanced to have but a hurtful Dream, it made them afraid to come. 2dly, That married Persons were found to keep themselves asunder for a while before, as St. Paul speaks of Prayer, 1 Cor. 7. And so St. Jerom being reprehended for what he wrote against Jovinian about Marriage, Quale bonum est Matrimonium, quod impedit sumptionem Corporis Christi, defends himself after this wise. Quid majus est, Orare, an accipere Corpus Christi? Utique Corpus Christi accipere. Si igitur per coitum impeditur quod minus est, quanto magis quod majus est? S. Hier. in Apol. pro libr. contr. Jov. Out of which place it is most evident, that it was the Custom of those Old and Holy Christians, that such as were married, had not the carnal use of one anothers Body for certain Days before they went to the Sacrament, that so they might retire and fit themselves the better, by being wholly and only employ'd, in spiritual and heavenly Meditations. Omnis homo ante sacram Communionem à propriâ Uxore abstinere debet tres aut quatuor aut octo diebus, Conc. Elib. Cap. cit. ab Ivone Lib. 1.

S. Chrys. Hom. III. in Cap. 1. ad Ephes. Quomodo stabis ad Tribunal Christi, qui pollutis manibus ac labris ad id audes accedere. Dic mihi, vellesne illotis ad sacrificium accedere? Non opinor; sed malles potius omnino non atceaere quam sordidis manibus. Et cum in re parvâ sis adeo religiosus, sordidam & immundam habens animam accedis & audes tangere?

C† Draw near and take this Holy Sacrament.] Which seems to be an inviting of the People, that are to communicate, to come into the Quire, where the Communion-Table is placed (in the Place where the Altar stood or within the Chancel, Injunct. of Queen Eliz. An. 1559.) or if other-whiles for more Convenience it be brought down at this time, and set in the Body of the Church, there People are hereby ordered to go out of their Pews or common Seats, or to approach towards it, for the celebrating of the Sacrament. But the Custom of calling on the Communicants into the Choir or Chancel of the Church, though it be no new thing, (having been formerly used, as it is also at this Day among the Roman and unre- formed Catholicks, and among both the Protestants in Germany) (Finitis post concionem precibus, qui communicaturi sunt in chorum progrediantur, & in genua procumbant. Agenda Julia sive Brunsvicensis) and other the reformed Churches else-where abroad;) yet anciently it was not so: For of old time, none of the People were permitted to come up, or tarry longer in the Choir, than whilst they presented their Orations to the Priest there at the Altar; and the Offertory being ended, they were to return into the Body of the Church, and there to receive the Blessed Sacrament, which the Priest and Deacon brought down unto them, Concil. Bracar. 1. An. 563. Intra sanctuarium Altaris ingredi ad communicandum non liceat Laicis viris aut mulieribus, nisi tantum Clericis, sicut & antiquis Canonibus Statutum est. Tolet. Conc. IV. post initium Sec. VII Can. 17. Sacerdos & Levita ante Altare communicent, in Choro Clerus, extra chorum Populus. And indeed this Custom continued long in the Church. See what we have noted before upon the Rubrick concerning Chancels, in the beginning of Morning-Prayer. " However it was lawful for the " People to enter in to offer the τὰ ἅγια the Gifts, but when they " were gone out again and settled in their Places, the Deacons " brought the ἅγια to them there after the Con ecration.

" Yea the Emperor Theodosius himself was prohibited by St. Am- " brose (though I think a little too morosely) to remain in the " Choir after the Offertory, Go out (says he) and stand with the " Laicks, for these inward Parts, O Emperor, are accessible only to the " Priests, Theod. *† Upon Chriſtmaſs-Day and ſeven Days after.] A plain Proof, that our Church intends to have the Communion celebrated every Day.

C† After which Prefaces ſhall follow.] Præfationem concludit Hymnus Triſagius, Triumphalis, Cherubicus (ita enim veteribus vocatur) in omnibus antiquis Liturgiis. The Proper Prefaces or thoſe Forms, by which Thanks were given to God, are always concluded with the Triſagium. Which becauſe it contains the, Εὐχαριστία and does that which our Lord did, before the Diſtribution and Reception, therefore the Church would by no means have it neglected. C.

*† So to eat the Fleſh of, &c. and to drink his Blood.] By this it may be known what our Church believeth, and teacheth of the Preſence of Chriſt's Body, and Blood in the Sacrament. Such as are Prophane may deride it, and move what harſh and unſavoury Queſtions they liſt about the eating of Chriſt's Body, as Berengarius and his Followers did; but we are of St. Cyprian's Spirit, *Quam præclarus eſt Calix iſte, quam religioſa hujus Potûs Ebrietas? For the ſame purpoſe were the Words in the form of Conſecration, altered from fiat nobis Corpus & Sanguis Domini, to what now they are. In like ſort, becauſe the very Term of Offering and Sacrifice, though well-uſed of old, and in a far different meaning from that Senſe wherein the Papiſts uſed them, ſeemed nevertheleſs to ſound their meaning, and therefore to give Offence, it is altered into another Expreſſion of Chriſt's precious Death only.

Of the Conſecration of the Elements.

*† That there is to be a certain Form of Words, wherewith the Sacrament is to be made and conſecrated, we make no doubt; and therefore it is but a Calumny of theirs, that ſay we do nothing elſe but recitare Hiſtoriam, tell the Story of Chriſt's Inſtitution, and ſo go to it. For we have firſt the Recitation of Chriſt's Command, to have his Death and Paſſion remembred, and then we have Prayer to perform it as we ought to do. After that, we have the Words of Conſecration, as fully and amply as any Prieſt whatſoever, can, or may uſe them. The Maſs-book hath no more than we have here; ſo that to make a Controverſy here betwixt us, where none is, ſounds more of the evil Spirit, the deſire of Contradiction, than of the good Spirit, the deſire of Peace and Unity.

The Prayer of Conſecration.

C† " This does conſiſt of the Commemoration of the one Sa- " crifice once offered by Chriſt upon the Croſs; the Hiſtory and the " Inſtitution of the Sacrament, together with Prayer, that together " with the Bread and Wine, we may communicate of the Body and " Blood of Chriſt. Gregory the Great, ſays, morem Apoſtolorum fuiſſe, ut ad ipſam ſolummodo Orationem Dominicam, oblationis Hoſtiam conſecraret. But whether any Credit be to be given to a Witneſs, who lived ſix Ages after the Inſtitution; or whether this be to be underſtood of Prayer only, excluſively of the Forms of Thankſgiving and Commemoration, or in ſome other Senſe: Moſt certainly Juſtin, who lived next to the Apoſtolical Age, (Apol. 2.) ſays, That the Biſhop when he Celebrates, Prays, and gives Thanks moſt heartily. And Walafrid Strabo de Reb. Eccl. cap. 12. ſpeaks thus, What we now perform with a great many Prayers, and Leſſons and Hymns, and the whole Office of the Conſecrations, all this the Apoſtles, and thoſe who ſucceeded them, 'tis probable very plainly performed with Prayers, and the Commemoration of our Lord's Paſſion, as he commanded. And we have a Tradition from our Forefathers, that the Maſſes were thus celebrated in former times, as we celebrate the Communion upon Eaſter-Eve, upon which Day in the Roman Church there are no ſet Maſſes; i. e. only ſaying the Lord's Prayer, and making a Commemoration of our Lord's Paſſion as he commanded; and thus they did communicate of our Lord's Body and Blood, whom reaſon obliged to it. Now to this Commemoration relates the Hiſtory of our Lord's Supper, together with his command of doing this in a perpetual remembrance of his Death, which is wont to be recited by us here.

*† By his own Oblation of himself.] Heb. 7. 27. For this he did once, when he offered up himself. Heb. 10. 12. Qui unâ pro peccatis oblatâ victimâ, in perpetuum sedet ad dextram Dei. And therefore Christ can be no more offered, as the Doctors and Priests of the Roman Party fancy it to be, and vainly think that every time they say Mass, they offer up and sacrifice Christ anew, as properly and truly as he offered up himself in his Sacrifice upon the Cross. And this is one of the Points of Doctrine, and the chief one, whereof the Popish Mass consisteth, abrogated and reformed here by the Church of England, according to the express Word of God.

Oblatus enim est quia voluit. Et ipse tradidit animam suam in mortem, Isa. 53. 12. Ego (inquit) pono animam meam à meipso & nemo tollit eam à me, Joh. 10. 18. Eph. 5. 5.

*† A Sacrifice.] Quod propriè acceptum semper supponit mortem & occisionem Christi. Sunt enim hæc duo de intrinsecâ ratione Sacrificii ad Cultum dei & remissionem peccatorum impetrandam, oblati. So that without shedding of his Blood, and killing him over-again, no proper Sacrifice can be made of him; which yet in their Masses the Roman Priests pretend every Day to do.

*† And sufficient.] Epistola igitur ad Heb. à Sacrificio Christi Iterationem, utpote Imperfectionis argumentum, planè removet. Et cum sciamus Christum suscitatum à mortuis non amplius mori, Rom. 6. 9. Hinc abundè constat Sacrificium ejus repeti non posse, atq; adeo non posse dari in Ecclesiâ Sacrificium, quod cum Sacrificio in cruce oblato specie idem sit, vel tale essentialiter quale illud fuit, vel de quo & Sacrificio Crucis univocè Sacrificium prædicetur. C.

*† Sufficient Sacrifice—of that his precious Blood.] This Word refers to the Sacrifice mentioned before, for we still continue and commemorate that Sacrifice which Christ once made upon the Cross: And this Sacrifice which the Church makes, as a Sacrifice is taken pro mactatione & occisione victimæ, is only Commemorative and Sacramental; for in that sense Christ only offered it really upon the Cross by his own Death: And so likewise, as it is taken for a visible Sacrifice, Christ only offered it; for here it is invisible: But as it is taken for a sufficient Sacrifice to take away the Sins of the World, so indeed it was offered upon the Cross, as having power in itself to abolish all Sin whatsoever; but it does not abolish any Man's Sins for all that, unless it be applied.

And the ways to apply it are divers; by Faith, by good Works, by the unbloody offering up of the same Sacrifice, by the receiving of his most precious Body and Blood.

For if we compare the Eucharist with the Sacrifice once made upon the Cross, with reference to the killing or destroying of the Sacrifice, or with reference to the visibility of it, in that Sense we call it only a Commemorative Sacrifice, as the Fathers do. Chrys. Hom. contr. Jud. part. 2. Sentent. Lib. 4. Dis. 12. But if we compare the Eucharist with Christ's Sacrifice made once upon the Cross, as concerning the Effect of it, we say that that was a sufficient Sacrifice; but withal that it is a true, real and Efficient Sacrifice, and both of them Propitiatory for the Sins of the whole World. And therefore in the Oblation following we pray, that it may prevail so with God, as that we and all the whole Church of Christ (which consists of more than those that are upon the Earth) may receive the Benefit of it. Neither do we call this Sacrifice of the Eucharist an Efficient Sacrifice, as if that upon the Cross wanted Efficacy; but because the force and virtue of that Sacrifice would not be profitable unto us, unless it were applied and brought into Effect by this Eucharistical Sacrifice, and other the holy Sacraments, and means appointed by God for that end: But we call it Propitiatory both this and that, because they have both force and virtue in them, to appease God's Wrath against this sinful World. Read Mald. de Sac. p. 323. Therefore this is no new Sacrifice, but the same which was once offered, and which is every Day offered to God by Christ in Heaven, and continueth here still on Earth, by a mystical Representation of it in the Eucharist. And the Church intends not to have any new Propitiation, or new Remission of Sins obtained, but to make that Effectual, and in act applied unto us, which was once obtained by the Sacrifice of Christ upon the Cross. Neither is the Sacrifice of the Cross, as it was once offered up there modo cruento, so much remembred in the Eucharist, though it be commemorated, as regard is had to the perpetual and daily offering of it by Christ now in Heaven in his everlasting Priesthood, and thereupon was, and should be still the Fuge Sacrificium observed here on Earth as it is in Heaven, the reason which the ancient Fathers had for their daily Sacrifice. S. Chrysost. in 10 Heb. In Christo semel oblata est hostia, ad salutem potens. Quid ergo nos? Nonne per singulos dies offerimus? Et si quotidiè offerimus, ad recordationem ejus oblationis fit. S. Aug. de Civ. Dei, Lib. 10. cap. 20. Ipse Sacerdos, & ipse Oblatio cujus rei Sacramentum quotidianum esse voluit Ecclesiæ Sacrificium.

C† And Satisfaction for the Sins of the whole World.] Quia pretii est immensi & infiniti. Which is the Doctrine of the Church of England, founded upon the Words of the Apostle, 1 John 2. 2. And he is the Propitiation for our Sins, and not for ours only, but for the Sins of the whole World.

*† That we receiving these thy Creatures of Bread and Wine, &c. may be Partakers of his blessed Body and Blood.] Together with the hallowed Elements of the Bread and Wine, we may receive the Body and Blood of Christ, which are truly exhibited in this Sacrament, the one as well as the other.

These Words, as I once conferred with a Papist, were mightily excepted against, because forsooth they must acknowledge no Bread and Wine, but a Desition of the Nature and Being of both. My Answer was, That here we term them so before Consecration, after that we call them so no more, but abstain from that Name, because our Thoughts might be wholly taken up with the Spiritual Food of Christ's Body and Blood. So in the Thanksgiving following we say, That hast vouchsafed to feed us with these holy Mysteries, and the Spiritual Food of the Body and Blood of thy Son, &c. In the mean-while we deny not the Bread and Wine to remain there still as God's Creatures. And I wonder the Papists should so contend for this same Desitio Panis & Vini, when-as in their own Service or Mass, they abstain not from these Words, THY CREATURES, after Consecration, as we do. See the Book, PER QUEM OMNIA DOMINE BONE CREAS! A certain Argument, that the Church of Rome never meant to teach that Doctrine, which private Men, the late Doctors and Schoolmen, have brought up and propagated.

C† A perpetual Memory.] Optima enim Beneficiorum Custos est ipsa memoria Beneficiorum, & perpetua gratiarum actio, quæ est Eucharistia. S. Chrys. Hom. 26. in S. Mat.

" It is peculiar to this Celebration, that the Death of our Lord is " commemorated therein, not by bare Words, as in other Prayers, " but also by certain sacred Symbols, Signs and Sacraments, which " according to St. Austin, are a sort of Verba visibilia. Nam dum frangitur hostia, dum Sanguis de Calice in ora fidelium funditur, quid aliud quam Domini Corporis in cruce Immolatio, ejusq; Sanguinis de latere Effusio designatur? Lib. 19. cont. Faust. cap. 16.

" There is indeed a Remembrance and a Prayer, both within and " without this most holy Sacrament; because the Body of Christ, " which was delivered to Death, is exhibited therein; and besides, " by Symbolical or Sacramental Actions, the Delivery of his Body, " and the Effusion of his Blood are figured out; therefore the Anci- " ents love to call the Commemoration peculiar to this Sacrament, a " Commemorative Sacrifice, and the Prayer, an Oblation. Both these " Words being taken not properly, but in an improper and large or " metaphorical Signification. It is a known Passage, that of S. Austin in his Epistle to Boniface, Die Dominico dicimus, Hodie Dominus resurrexit, cum ex quo surrexit tot anni transierunt, nempe dicitur illo die fieri, propter Sacramenti celebrationem, quod non illo die, sed jam olim factum est. Nonne semel immolatus est Christus in seipso? & tamen in Sacramento non solum per omnes Paschæ solennitates, sed omni die populis immolatur. " Now by the same Figure as Christ is said to " have risen that Day by which the Remembrance of his Resurrection " is celebrated, so is he said to be sacrificed in the Eucharist, because " therein the Memory of his Sacrifice is performed: And likewise " that place in Fulgentius is remarkable, de Fid. ad Pet. cap. 19. Firmissimè tenè Christum se pro nobis obtulisse Sacrificium & hostiam Deo, &c. cui Sacrificium panis & vini in fide & charitate, Sancta Ecclesia Catholica per universum orbem terræ offerre non cessat. Euseb. Demonstr. Evang. Lib. 2. sub finem. Ejus Sacrificii memoriam nobis tradidit, ut vice Sacrificii (ἀντὶ Θυσίας) semper offeramus. And again, Hujus Sacrificii memoriam in mensâ per Symbola celebrandam accepimus.

C† It pleased the Synod at Trent (not long after this Liturgy of ours was published) to lay their Curse (their Anathema) upon all them that held the Celebration of this Sacrament to be made a Commemoration only of Christ's Sacrifice upon the Cross, or that said it was not a true propitiatory Sacrifice, but a Sacrifice only of Praise and Thanksgiving, or that taught any more, that this Sacrifice profited none but those who communicate of it, and was not truly offered up for the Sins, Pains and Satisfactions of the Living and the Dead, Sess. 22. For thus they declared themselves in ambiguous Words, which as they may have a right and true Sense put upon them, so are they capable of a wrong and a false, if they intended them (as they did) against us: For we do not hold this Celebration to be so naked a Commemoration of Christ's Body given to Death, and of his Blood there shed for us; but that the same Body and Blood is present there in this Commemoration (made by the Sacrament of Bread and Wine) to all that faithfully receive it: Nor do we say, it is so made a Sacrifice of Praise and Thanksgiving, but that by our Prayers also added, we offer and present the Death of Christ to God, that for his Death's sake we may find Mercy, in which respect we deny not this Commemorative Sacrifice to be propitiatory. The receiving of which Sacrament, or participating of which Sacrifice exhibited to us, we say is profitable only to them that receive it, and participate of it; but the Prayers that we add thereunto in presenting the Death and Merits of our Saviour to God, is not only beneficial to them that are present, but to them that are absent also, to the dead and living both, to all true Members of the Catholick Church of Christ: But a true real presence and propitiatory Sacrifice of Christ, toties quoties, as this Sacrament is celebrated, which is the Popish Doctrine, and which cannot be done without killing of Christ so often again, we hold not; believing it to be a false and blasphemous Doctrine, founding ourselves upon the Apostles Doctrine, that Christ was sacrificed but once, and that now he dieth no more.

C† " Who in the same Night that he was betrayed, &c.] Because " it was the last Passover and a Feast, which he had a mind to cele- " brate with his Disciples, in the manner which was hitherto used, " and by which he might fulfil the Type of the ancient Pascha, and " institute a new Sacrament of his own Body and Blood for the Sal- " vation of the Faithful: Which because it was the future Remem- " brance of his Death, it was not convenient to be instituted, but in " the last Supper (when he was shortly to die) and that likewise " the Paschal Supper; That the Figure might be succeeded by the " Thing, and the Truth by the Type. All the Evangelists do accu- " rately

" rately describe the History of this Passover. Therefore after the " Passover was prepared and eaten by our Saviour with his Disci- " ples, in the same Night he was taken, and the next Day was " crucified.

" But there arises a great Question concerning the Night in which " our Saviour ate the Passover, and instituted his Sacrament: For " there is no doubt, but when Christ ate the Passover, it was not " commonly eaten by the Jews; for upon so solemn a Feast-day, it " could never have been lawful for them, nor could they ever have " thought to take a Man, to accuse and to execute him. But if they " had celebrated the Passover the same Evening with Christ, the fol- " lowing Day had been the first Day of unleavened Bread, the chiefest " Festival of all the Year. But the Jews did not enter into the Præto- " rium that Day on which Christ was crucified, lest they should be " defiled, and that they might eat the Passover, Joh. 18. 28. There- " fore they had not as yet eaten it, but Christ had eaten it; there- " fore Christ and the Jews did not eat it the same Day, or the same " Night.

" It is therefore a Question, Whether Christ violated the Law, " and celebrated the Passover upon another Day than that which was " commanded? Which does not seem likely, because this among other " Crimes was not objected to him by the Jews. But how can it be " that our Saviour should violate the Law, who came into the World " not to destroy the Law, but to fulfil? Or how should any one of " the Jews permit him to celebrate the Passover in his House upon " an unlawful Night. We shall not reckon up the various Opinions " of Interpreters concerning this matter, of which some are not of " great, others are of no Moment.

" Paulus Burgensis, a Man skilful in the Hebrew Learning, who " wrote above Two Hundred Years ago, was the first who laid down " that Opinion, which most learned Men now follow: For they say, " That if any Feast-day and usual Sabbath should follow immediately " upon one another, so that one must of necessity keep Two Feast-days, " one after another, then they had a Custom to make a Translation of " the Feasts, and to joyn two Festival Days into one: For we do keep " (say the Rabbins) two continual Feasts, upon the account of Herbs, " and of dead Persons: For it was not lawful to bury the Dead, or to " boil Herbs upon Festival Days: For in those hot Countries, espe- " cially in Spring and Autumn, the Carcases of the Dead could not " be kept for two Days together; neither could Food made out of " Herbs be preserved for several Days; therefore to redress this In- " convenience, they invented the Translation of Days, and brought it " into Custom among the Jews, not very agreeably indeed to the Di- " vine Law: But it is remarkable, that in the latter Ages the Tra- " dition of the Elders obtained so among them, as to gain the Force " of a Law. Indeed, we cannot find when this Translation of Festi- " vals was first instituted. There are some who ascribe it to the " time of the Babylonish Captivity. Now from hence this Question " is solved. When our Lord was to suffer, the Month fell out so, " that the usual Sabbath followed immediately the great Feast of Un- " leavened Bread; so that then two continual Sabbaths must be kept " one after the other: Therefore the Jews, according to the Custom " then received among them, made a Translation, and so join the " Feast and the Sabbath together. Vid. S. Joh. 19. 31. And that " Sabbath was an high day; namely, that which immediately follow- " ed the Day of our Lord's Crucifixion, because the Feast of Unlea- " vened Bread was thrown in upon that. But our Saviour, on the " contrary, was most observant of the Divine Law; nor would he " have the Institution, or Tradition of the Jews to be preferred be- " fore it: And therefore he for this reason does often blame the " Jews, as Mark 7. Hence S. Luke 22. 7. expressly says, Then came " the Day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover must be killed. The " Jews indeed killed it the Day afterwards, but not that Day, which " they ought to have done it on: Therefore S. John says expressly, " cap. 19. v. ult. It was the Preparation of the Jews. From this it " may be understood, that Christ did not anticipate the time of ce- " lebrating the Passover, as the Greeks were of opinion: And from " hence raised an Argument, that the Eucharist was not instituted and " celebrated with Unleavened, but with Leavened Bread; and there- " fore is so to be celebrated by us: Which Opinion, together with " some others, has engaged the Greek Church in an irreconcileable " Schism with the Latin: That the Jews did not transfer the Day, " but that Christ celebrated the Passover according to the Law, the " Jews according to the Tradition of their Ancestors. For this rea- " son, the Master of the Family did not wonder at this Action of " Christ, that in that Year, by the Decree of the Sanedrim, it might " be otherwise; neither did the Priests, who accused Christ, dare " to object this as a Crime against him, as knowing that Christ, " with his Disciples, did eat the Passover according to the Law. C.

C † Took Bread, and when he had given thanks, or (as we are wont to say, he had said Grace, and blessed it) he brake it.] " It " is worth while here to consider, what were most probably the pe- " culiar Rites belonging to this Sacred Feast, observed among the " Jews from their first coming into Palestine; without the knowledge " of which, the Evangelical History, and the Institution of this Sa- " crament, cannot be exactly understood. When the Feast of the " Passover drew near, from the Ninth to the Eleventh Hour, that is, " between the two Evenings, they killed the Lambs according to the " Law of Moses. Every particular Lamb was eaten by a particular " Company (these Companies Josephus Bell. Jud. Lib. VII. calls " θιασους, Brotherhoods;) and these θιασοι were not less than Ten " Men, and sometimes Twenty. Before they sat down to eat, they " washed their Feet: For because they lay upon Beds, they pulling " off their Shoes washed their Feet, because they might not dirty the " Carpets which they lay upon. This Custom Christ observed, " Joh. 13. Luke 7. 44. And when they were lain down, they eat " the whole Lamb with unleavened Bread. Supper being ended, " they rose up, and washing their Feet a second-time, prepare them- " selves for a second-course; in which, in stead of delicate Meats, " they have served in a Dish a Sallad of bitter Herbs, viz. Lettice " and Endive, whose Bitterness they allayed with a palatable sort " of Pickle. This may be collected out of the Ritual of the Passo- " ver quoted by Scaliger, de Emend. Tem. Lib. 6. The Rites of the " Second Course were these: The Master of the Family taking a " whole unleavened Loaf into his Hands, and dividing it into two " parts, blessed one of them in this manner: Blessed art thou, O Lord " our God, in eating of unleavened Bread. The other part he kept " hid under a Napkin to the end of the Feast; which being ended, " he (the same Master of the Family) taking out all that second " part, breaking it into as many pieces as there were Guests at the " Table; he himself first took a piece, and distributed the other pie- " ces to every one of the Company, as they lay along, with these " Words, This is the Bread of Affliction which our Forefathers ate in " the Land of Ægypt, whosoever hungreth let him come nigh, and pas- " chalize or eat the Passover. The former Benediction our Lord did " not change, neither was there any reason for the change of it. " Now the Evangelists do give a hint that it was spoken when they " say, He took the Bread and blessed it: But being about to institute " a Sacrament of his Body, he did not retain the latter Words, but " in lieu of them said, Take eat, this is my Body. Afterwards the " Master of the Family took the Cup, using this Benediction, Blessed " art thou, O Lord, who hast created the Fruit of the Vine; and ta- " sting of it, delivered it to the Person next to him, and he to ano- " ther, till it had gone round the whole Company. Our Saviour " did the like, but according to the nature of his new Institution " added, This is my Blood, &c. These things being done, the third " Psalm, with some other following, was sung; which solemn Hymn " the Jews do at this Day call the great Hallelujah: And so did our " Saviour with his Disciples, And when they had sung an Hymn, they " went out into the Mount of Olives, Matth. 26. 30. Now by what " has been said, those things which were done by our Saviour in his " last Supper, may better be understood. C.

C † Took Bread. Took the Cup.] At these Words the Priest was appointed, by the First Liturgy set forth in the First Year of King Edw. VI. to take the Bread and the Cup into his Hands (which is still observed among us;) but he was not appointed to make any Elevation of them, as the new Roman-Catholicks do at their Mass; where the Priest saying H. E. C. M. suddenly lifts up the Wafer over his Head, and afterwards the Chalice, that the People may all fall down upon their Knees, and worship them; which Rite neither we, nor any of the Reformed or Protestant Churches observe, but (in regard of the Peril of Idolatry) have wholly omitted it: Besides, it is but a Novelty as the Roman Priests now use it, for in the an- cient Fathers we do not read of any such Custom; and when after- wards this Rite of Elevation came into the Church, it was not a lifting up of the Bread and Wine (as soon as they were Sacramental- ly hallowed) over the Priest's Head; nor were the People then ap- pointed to fall down and adore them, as the very Body and Blood of Christ held up between the Priest's Fingers, and set down again upon the Table, which is more than any Priest of them all can do: But this only was the Order or Custom of the Church. After the Elements were consecrated: The Priest and the Deacon together held them in their Hands, and shewed them to the People, whom at the same time they admonished and invited, to approach and communicate thereof, saying to them, προσέλθετε. Sancta Sanctis. Siquis dignus sit, accedat & participet. In the Order of Sarum (heretofore used in the Church of England) the Priest is appointed only to elevate the con- secrated Elements, usq; ad frontem ut à populo videri possint, no men- tion of the People's Adore is at that time made: And other Eleva- tion and Ostension than this they had none. Nicol. Cabasil. in Exposit. Liturg. cap. 36. Sacerdos vivifico pane accepto & ostenso, ei qui dignè ipsius participes futuri sunt, vocat SANCTA (inquit) SANCTIS, propemodum dicens, Ecce Panis vitæ quem videtis (quod de ipso Corpore Christi naturali non potest) accurrite ergo, si- quis est Sanctus, & cap. 39. Ostentis Sanctis, vocat illos qui partici- pare voluerint. Which Order and Custom in effect is by us observed. Probably this manner of elevating and shewing the consecrated Ele- ments unto the People, was at first introduced to signify and excite the Elevation of their Minds; as at the Sursum Corda, we call upon the People to lift up their Hearts, and their Answer is, We lift them up unto the Lord. Which the Greek Church called the Ἀναφορὰ, (Anast. Serm. de Synaxi) that is, the Elevation. Afterwards in the Latin Church, they would have it to signify the Elevation of Christ upon the Cross. Rabanus Maurus, Lib. de Inst. Cler. Elevatio Sacerdotis & Diaconi Corporis & Sanguinis Christi (in Sacramento) Elevationem ejus ad crucem insinuat, pro totius mundi salute. Et Ivo Carnatensis Ep. 233. Cum panis & calix, adhibito Diacono, elevatur, Exaltatio Corpo- ris Christi in cruce commemoratur.

In all which there is not a word, tending to the People's Adora- tion of that Bread and that Cup, this being a late Device of the new Roman-Catholicks, after they had brought in their Novelty of Tran- substantiation.

*† This is my Body which is given for you, do this in remembrance of me.] The Words of Consecration. Liturg. Jacob. Bas. Chrys. Clem. Lib. 8. Const. cap. 13. his verbis utuntur. Justin Martyr, in 2 Apol. saith, That by the Word of God the Sacrament is made. So Irenæus, Lib. 4. cap. 34. and Lib. 5. initio, Panis cum percipit verbum Dei fit Corpus Christi. S. Aug. Lib. 5. contr. Faust. Man. cap. 13. Panis noster & Calix certâ consecratione fit mysticus nobis, non nascitur. Quapropter quod ita non fit, licet Calix & Panis sit, alimentum est Refectionis, non Sacramentum Religionis. And I doubt, whether the Puritans Sacrament at Geneva, or elsewhere, be not such an one or no; for they do boldly deny any Words of mystical Consecration at all.

Many Disputes there are by them made that have leisure, with what Words this Consecration is perfected; whether with the Prayers before, or the Prayers following: But we rest in that of S. Cypr. de Cæn. Dom. Ex quo dictum est, hæc est Caro mea, & hic est Calix meus. Quotiescunq; his verbis, & hâc fide actum est, panis iste substantialis, solenni benedictione sacratus, ad salutem hominis proficit. And so S. Ambr. Lib. 4. de sacram. cap. 4. Reliquis omnibus quæ dicuntur, Laus Deo defertur, petitur pro populo, &c. cum autem venitur ut conficiatur venerabile Sacramentum, jam non suis sermonibus utitur, sed sermonibus Christi. And these are the only Words we have of Christ. And S. Chrysostom yet more plainly, in Hom. de Juda Prod. Hoc est Corpus meum, his, inquit, verbis Proposita consecrantur. And when the Latins say, That the Sacrament was consecrated by Prayer, they mean not by every Prayer; but either mean the whole Action, or whole Service of the Church; or else they mean this Form of Consecration, which was always recited in the Form of Prayer as now it is. Mald. 133.

C† In ancient Liturgies, when the Priest had pronounced these Words, the People were wont to answer, Amen; which is a good Argument, that he did not softly mutter the Words to himself, as the Popish Priests have used of late to do; nor that any Bell needed to be rung, to give the People notice of it, as it is also a late Custom of theirs so to do: And that so they answered, appears also by S. Ambrose, Lib. 4. de Sacr. cap 5. Dicit tibi Sacerdos, CORPUS CHRISTI, & tu dicis Amen: Yet I suppose this should rather be referred to the Words of the Priest when he delivers the Sacrament, and not when he does consecrate it.

C† Likewise after Supper, &c.] Cum quæritur quare Sanguis divisim à Corpore consecratur, dic, quòd ratio potest sumi ex usu ad quem Sacramentum ordinatum est, quia manducatio ex cibo & potu consistit. Alia ratio potest sumi ex eo, quod per Sacramentum repræsentatur, quia in passione Sanguis Christi à Corpore divisus fuit. Linw. in glos. x simul de sum. Trin. c. Altiss.

C† Voluit Dominus Corpus & Sanguinem suum eo modo sumi, quin panem quoq & vinum, cum quibus exhibentur, eo modo tractari qui ad passionem animis fidelium imprimendam esset idoneus: Nempe voluit Sanguinem sensim, & Sanguinem à Corpore separatum accipi, & voluit benedictum panem, qui κοινωνία est Corporis, frangi, & vinum calici infusum effundi, ut ita & passio & Mors, ac Corporis cruciatus & Sanguinis effusio, repræsentarentur, & non modo menti, sed ipsis quoq; oculis per hujusmodi signa & actiones efficaciter ingenerentur. C.

Shed for you, and for many.] Tantundem valet pro multis atq; pro omnibus, sicut apud S. Paul. ad Rom. 5. Cum per unum hominem multi dicuntur esse constituti peccatores, multi accipiuntur pro omnibus. Mald. de Sacr. p. 136.

Do this in remembrance. Drink this in remembrance.] That is, of Christ put to Death, and sacrificed for us upon the Cross, which is the Sacrifice which he truly and properly once made, and whereof we only make a Commemoration or Representation, toties quoties, as often as we celebrate this his Sacrament, and observe the Precept which he gave us about it.

Quantum igitur abest, ut fractio panis, aut effusio vini, aut ipsa etiam mystica sumptio Corporis & Sanguinis Domini, sit verus cruciatus aut vera mors Domini, & separatio animæ à Corpore Dominico, tantum abest quoq; ut Sacrificium Eucharistiæ, sit veri proprii & stricti nominis Sacrificium, & non potiùs istud ab illo, ut imago à prototypo, non nisi extrinsecè denominetur. Solo vero Sacrificio pro nobis, &c. But as much as the breaking of Bread, or the pouring out of Wine, or the mystical taking of the Body and Blood of Christ, is far different from being the true Suffering and Death of our Lord, and the Separation of the Soul from our Lord's Body; so is the Sacrifice of the Eucharist far from being a Sacrifice of a proper and strict Nomination; and this denominated from that only extrinsecally, as the Image from its Prototype. Solo vero Sacrificio pro nobis Christi Sanguis effusus est, as S. Austin rightly says, Aug. Lib. adv. Leg. & Proph. cap. 18. Hujus autem Sacrificii caro & Sanguis (as the same S. Austin says, Lib. 20. contr. Faust. cap. 22.) ante adventum Christi per victimæ similitudinem promittebatur, in passione Christi per ipsam veritatem reddebatur, post adventum Christi per Sacramentum memoriæ celebratur: Et cap. 18. Unde jam Christiani peracti ejusdem Sacrificii memoriam celebrant Sacrosanctâ oblatione (precibus videlicet & repræsentatione fieri solitâ) & participatione Corporis & Sanguinis Christi (sine qua nunquam eo tempore Eucharistia celebrabatur.) Et Lib. Qu. 83. & 62. Holocausti sui imaginem ad memoriam Passionis suæ in Ecclesiâ celebrandam dedit. As Lanfrank, Algerus and Gratian quote out of the Sentences collected by Prosper. It follows in Algerus, Ergo etiam ipse Corpus suum fregit & tradidit, ut signaret, quod sponte suâ in passione faceret id pro nobis; quod etiam in Altari vice suâ incitantur Sacerdotes, ut id iidem repræsentent, Lib. 1. cap. 10. Hence S. Austin, ad Bon. Ep. 23. Nonne semel Christus immolatus est in semetipso, & tamen in Sacramento omni die immolatur, nec mentitur qui sit dicit, si enim Sacramenta quandam Similitudinem earum rerum quarum sunt Sacramenta non haberent, omnino Sacramenta non essent.

Hoc facite in commemorationem mei.] Quæ verba explicans S. Paul. 1 Cor. 11. 26. Quotiescunq; (inquit) panem hunc ederitis & poculum hoc biberitis, mortem Domini annunciatis usq; quò venerit. Nempe ipsa mors Domini verum est illud Sacrificium in Cruce semel oblatum: In Eucharistiâ est enim ejusdem Mortis atq; adeo Sacrificii memoratio. Rectè igitur appellatur à nobis oblata Eucharistia, Sacrificium Eucharisticum, & mortis Christi memorativum, sive Sacrificii Dominici repræsentativum. C.

*† Do this, as oft as ye shall drink it, in remembrance of me.] Here are the People to answer, Amen, according to all the ancient and modern Liturgies: From whence we gather, That the Priest did not deliver the Sacrament to any, or say, Take, eat, before the Communicants had professed their Faith of Christ's Body to be exhibited unto them. Dicit tibi sacerdos Corpus Christi, & tu dicis Amen, hoc est verum, non otiosè dicis Amen, sed jam confitens, quod accipias Corpus Christi. Ambr. de Sacr. Lib. 4. cap. 5. Ex ore in quo Amen in Sanctum protuleris. Tertull. de Spect. cap. 26. Quâ conscientiâ ad Eucharistiam Christi accedam, & respondebo Amen, cum de charitate dubitem porrigentis? Out of which Words it is plain, That when the Priest reached it, the People answered, Amen, or So it is: To which also divers Divines apply that of S. Paul, 1 Cor. cap. 14. How shall he answer Amen at thy giving of thanks? And Eusebius, Eccl. Hist. Lib. 7. cap. 8. tells the Story, how Dionysius, the Bishop of Alexandria, refused to baptize a certain Christian, of whom there was some doubt, whether he had been rightly baptized, or no; because, says he, it is enough that he hath so often received this holy Sacrament with true Christians, and with all the rest answered Amen to the Words of the Priest. So Leo, Serm. 6. de jejunio Sept. Mens. Hoc ore sumitur quod fide creditur, & frustrà ab ipsis Amen respondetur, à quibus contra id quod sumitur disputatur.

C† Then shall the Minister first receive.] Conc. Tolet. 4. Can. 17. Tunc Corporis & Sanguinis Domini Sacramentum sumatur, eo ordine, ut Sacerdotes & Levitæ ante Altare communicent, in Choro Clericus, extra chorum Populus.

And after the People.] Chrys. Hom. 18. in poster. ad Corinth. teaches, That as the Prayers, so the partaking of the Mysteries are common to the People with the Priest. Which is directly contrary to the solitary Masses of the Papists, where the Priest only takes the Mysteries. There is a time (says he) when the Priest does not differ from the People, as when we partake of the tremendous Mysteries; for all of us who are worthy do alike partake of it; not as it was under the old Law, thou shalt eat part as a Priest, and part as the People; for it was not lawful for the People to partake of those parts of the Sacrifice which belonged to the Priest: But now it is not so, one Body is proposed to all, and one Cup.

C Then shall the Priest, &c. deliver it to the other Ministers, that they may help the chief Minister (the Priest) when he delivereth the Bread, &c. and the Minister that delivereth the Cup, &c.] Here is an express Distinction between a Priest and a Deacon, who by the ancient Canons of the Church was not to deliver the Bread. Conc. Arelatens. cap. 2. 15. Anno Dom. 452. In secretario Diacono inter Presbyteros sedere non liceat, vel Corpus Christi, præsente Presbytero, tradere non præsumat. Quod si fecerit, ab officio Diaconatûs abscedat. Conc. Andegav. Anno 453. Diaconi Presbyteris noverint omni humilitate deferendum, Gelas. in Epist. ad Episcopos Lucaniæ, Anno 494. yet Crescon. cap. 94. Diaconos propriam constituimus servare mensuram, nec ultra tenorem paternis Canonibus deputatum quippiam tentare permittimus, nihil eorum penitùs suo ministerio applicare quæ primis ordinibus propriè decrevit antiquitas. Absq; Episcopo vel Presbytero baptizare non audeant, nisi (prædictis officiis longè constitutis) necessitas extrema compellat, &c. cap. 8. Non in Presbyterio residere, cum divina celebrantur, aut Ecclesiasticus habetur quicunq; tractatus. Sacri Corporis prærogationem sub conspectu Pontificis seu Presbyteri, nisi his absentibus, jus non habeant exercendi.

For the making of which Decrees, occasion was given, by the Frowardness and Pride of the Deacons, (especially of those in chief Cities) about the end of the Fortieth Year.

Against whom the Synod of Arles, Anno 314. was forced to make these Canons, cap. 15. De Diaconis, quos novimus multis in locis offerre, placuit minimè fieri debere. Cap. 18. De Diaconis Urbicis, ut non sibi tantùm præsumant, sed honorem Presbyteris reservent, ut sine conscientiâ ipsorum, nihil tale agant. Vid. Ep. S. Hier. ad Evagr.

C The Priest shall receive the Communion, and after deliver it to, &c.] In the time of the Communion it is ordered, in the Constitution of the Apostles, Lib. 8. That the 34th Psalm be sung, in regard of the special Words there referring to this Action; O taste and see how gracious the Lord is. In other of the Eastern Liturgies, the 23d, 42d, 118th, and 145th Psalms are prescribed to be sung; and these, by the Latin Liturgists, are called Communions, as the Thanksgivings that follow Postcommunion.

C† In their Hands.] The Church of Rome use to give it the People into their Mouths, which is not so ancient. It was the ancient Custom, Cuſtom, that the People took it from the Prieſt in their Hands, as may be gathered out of Tertullian, Lib. de Spectac. cap. de Mun. Eas manus quas ad Dominum extuleris, &c. and out of S. Greg. Nazianz. Orat. in Ser. Procidit ante Altare, ibiq; venerata eſt, deinde manibus etiam ſumpſit Euchariſtiam, & ad oculos cæteroſq; ſenſus admovit. From whence we have another Cuſtom of the Chriſtians, now alſo uſed among many, that they touched their Eyes, their Noſe, their Temples and Forehead, with the Sacrament, before they did eat it, as being confident that there was ſuch a Virtue and Force in it, that it would make all their Senſes the more happy by it, and leſs ſubject to evil Deſires: And theſe things Men did and do naturally, more than out of any Injunction; therefore Maldonat confeſſes, that in many places among the very Papiſts, where they have not the Sacrament delivered them, but are there only to ſee the Prieſts take it, the People uſe to lift up their Hands (when the Sacrament is lift up by the Prieſt) as earneſtly deſiring to have it given into their Hands; and then they put their Hands to their Mouth, and to their Eyes, as applying the virtue of it to them; which very thing might admoniſh the Prieſts and Governors of the Church, what an Injury they do to the People, in keeping that bleſſed Food from them, for which their very Bowels do ſo yearn with Devotion.

C † Kneeling.] Kneeling here, for all the Puritans Objection, hath reference as well to the Miniſter himſelf, as to the People and other Miniſters.

Porriguntur iis, qui ſeſe ut dignè acciperent, præparârunt, tum benedictus Panis, tum benedictus Calix, juxta Chriſti inſtitutionem & mandatum. Ipſi autem interèà dum accipiunt in genua procumbentes Chriſtum Dominum, qui præſens eis dignè edentibus & bibentibus adeſt, ſuúmq; Corpus manducandum, & ſanguinem bibendum exhibet, venerantur & adorant; non quidem Elementa in Sacramentum Sanctificata, quæ adoranda non ſunt, ſed ipſum Dominum & Deum noſtrum JESUM CHRISTUM. True it is, that the Body and Blood of Chriſt are ſacramentally and really (not feignedly) preſent, when the bleſſed Bread and Wine are taken by the Faithful Communicants; and as true it is alſo, that they are not preſent, but only when the hallowed Elements are ſo taken as in another Work (the Hiſtory of the Papal Tranſubſtantiation) I have more at large declared. Therefore whoſoever ſo receiveth them, at that time when he receiveth them, rightly doth he adore and reverence his Saviour there together with the Sacramental Bread and Cup, exhibiting his own Body and Blood unto him: Yet becauſe the Body and Blood is neither ſenſibly preſent (nor otherways at all preſent but only to thoſe who are duly prepared to receive them, and in the very act of receiving them and the conſecrated Elements together, to which they are Sacramentally in that act united) the Adoration is then and there given to Chriſt himſelf, neither is nor ought to be directed to any external ſenſible Object, ſuch as are the bleſſed Elements: But our Kneeling, and the outward Geſture of Humility and Reverence in our Bodies, is ordained only to teſtify and expreſs the inward Reverence and Devotion of our Souls towards our bleſſed Saviour, who vouchſafed to ſacrifice himſelf for us upon the Croſs, and now preſenteth himſelf to be united Sacramentally to us, that we may enjoy all the Benefits of his myſtical Paſſion, and be nouriſhed with the ſpiritual Food of his bleſſed Body and Blood unto Life eternal.

* He ſhall ſay to every one of the People. Serv. Book of K. Edward.

*† And when he delivereth the Bread he ſhall ſay, The Body of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt which was given for thee, &c.] After the Sacrifice is ended, let all in order receive our Lord's Body, with Shamefacedneſs and Fear, as coming to the Body of the King: Let the Women alſo, with their Heads veiled, come in order. Let the Biſhop give the Oblation, ſaying, THE BODY OF CHRIST; and let him that receiveth ſay, Amen. When the reſt receive, let the 33d Pſalm be ſaid. This was the Order, as appeareth by Clemens, Lib. 2. cap. 61. Lib. 8. cap. 20.

Blood of our Lord.] J. C. ? W ?. To this Prayer of the Prieſt every Communicant ſhould ſay Amen, and then, and not before, take the Sacrament of him. *Univerſam Eccleſiam, accepto Chriſti Sanguine, dicere aſſerit Auguſtinus ad Oroſium, Q. 49. C † Græcis Oratio Dominica ab omni Populo, Latinis à ſolo ſacerdote dicitur.

*† O Lord and heavenly Father.] In King Edward's firſt Service-Book, this Prayer was ſet before the delivery of the Sacrament to the People, and followed immediately after the Conſecration; and certainly, it was the better and more natural Order of the two; neither do I know whether it were the Printer's Negligence, or no, thus to diſplace it: For the Conſecration of the Sacrament being ever the firſt, it was always the uſe in all Liturgies, to have the Oblation follow (which is this) and then the Participation which goes before, and after all the Thankſgiving, which is here ſet before the Gloria in Excelſis; in regard whereof, I have always obſerved my Lord and Maſter Dr. Overall to uſe this Oblation in its right place, when he had conſecrated the Sacrament to make an Offering of it (as being the true Publick Sacrifice of the Church) unto God, that by the Merits of Chriſt's Death, which was now commemorated, all the Church of God might receive Mercy, &c. as in this Prayer; and when that was done, he did communicate the People, and ſo end with the Thankſgiving following hereafter. If Men would conſider the Nature of this Sacrament, how it is the Chriſtian's Sacrifice alſo, they could not chuſe but uſe it ſo too; for as it ſtands here it is out of its place. We ought firſt to ſend up Chriſt unto God, and then he will ſend him down unto us.

This our Sacrifice of praiſe, &c.] So the ancient Fathers were wont to call this Sacrifice, Sacrificium laudis & Gratiarum actionis; not excluſively, as if it were no other Sacrifice but that; for they called it alſo, Sacrificium Commemorationis, and Sacrificium Spiritûs, and Sacrificium Obſequii, &c. and which is more, Sacrificium verum & propitiatorium: All other ways but this the Euchariſt, or any other Sacrifice we make, are improperly, & ſecundùm quandam ſimilitudinem, called Sacrifices. The true and proper nature of a Sacrifice is, to be an Oblation of ſome real and ſenſible thing, made only to God, for the acknowledging of Man's Subjection to God, and of his ſupreme Dominion over Man, made by a lawful Miniſter, and performed by certain myſterious Rites and Ceremonies, which Chriſt and his Church have ordained. a. When we ſay it is an Oblation, we ſay Two things. 1. That the true Nature and Eſſence of a Sacrifice conſiſts only, tanquam in genere, in the offering of it; and therefore we do not ſay, that the killing of the thing to be ſacrificed, or any other Ceremony to be uſed about it, is a Sacrifice; for that is, and ever was called a Sacrifice, which belonged to the Prieſt's Office alone; now the Levites might kill the Sacrifice, but none could offer it except the Prieſt, Oblatio ergo eſt Genus Sacrificii. 2. That every Offering is not called a Sacrifice, but every Sacrifice is an Offering; for there were many things which private Men came to offer as Firſt-fruits, &c. which were not called Sacrifices. b. When we ſay, it is an Oblation of ſome ſenſible thing, it is to ſhew, That every act of our Religion, whereby we profeſs our Subjection unto God, is not properly called a Sacrifice in Scripture; for we confeſs, that by confeſſing of our Sins, by Prayer, by Praiſe, &c. which are no proper Sacrifices. c. As a part of that Worſhip which is due to God: And therefore, Exod. 22. there is a Command, That no Sacrifice be made but only to God alone; and it is ſo his due, that without it we hardly acknowledge him to be our God; and for that reaſon we profeſs it here in this Offertory, that it is our bounden Duty and Service ſo to do: Therefore as there never was, nor could be any Religion without a God; ſo there never was, nor can be any without a Sacrifice, being one of the chiefeſt Acts whereby we profeſs our Religion to him that we ſerve. d. The end of all Sacrifices: For though every Sacrifice had ſome ſpecial end whereunto it was made, yet there was none of them all, that had not this for their general Aim and Scope. e. To exclude many private Offerings, which in Scripture are called Sacrifices, but not properly. f. The General Form of a Sacrifice, which consisted always in some ceremonious offering of it, the better to express the Mystery contained in it; and therefore Tenths and First-Fruits, though they were offered unto God, yet because they were not offered Ritu Mystico, they were no proper Sacrifices.

But those which were properly called Sacrifices were three ways distinguished; in Matter, Form, and in the End. In Matter, either when the thing to be offered was alive, and it was called Victima; or else Res Solida, but not Viva, and it was called Immolatio (as the Heathens were wont to call their Sacrifices Immolationes à Molâ, or à Molendo;) or Res Liquida, and it was called Libamentum.

And besides these, we find in Scripture seven Appellations of a Sacrifice, by way of Analogy only, but not truly and properly. In Form, either when all the Sacrifice was consumed by Fire, and it was called Holocaustum; or part of it by the Fire, and it was called Hostia Pacifica. In the End, either when it was offered for the Profession of God's supreme Dominion, and it was called Holocaustum, which was all burnt, to signify that it was all and wholly from God, whatsoever Man enjoyed; or for the obtaining of Remission of Sins, and it was called the Sin-Offering; or for Thanksgiving after Victory, &c. and it was called Hostia Pacifica.

Therefore because the chief End of every Sacrifice was to acknowledge God's Majesty and Dominion over the World; Hence it is, that every act almost which did but shew that, was called in Scripture a Sacrifice in Analogy to the other. As 1. when Men submit themselves to God in their Souls: So Psal. 51. A broken Spirit is a Sacrifice to God. 2. When Men offered up their Bodies as lively Sacrifices, by keeping them pure and clean from Sin. 3. By taming and afflicting the Body, Heb. 11. Tanquam Holocausti hostiam accepit eos. 4. By Words, Immola Deo Sacrificium laudis, vitulos labiorum. 5. By works of Mercy, Heb. 13. for all which Sacrifices God is well-pleased. 6. The whole giving up a Man's self to God, Rom. 15. Phil. 2. 7. The Profession of all ministerial Functions in divine things, because by that Service, Men profess themselves to be Subjects and Servants unto God, Rom. 15. Obsequii mei oblationem. Now the Eucharist, though by way of Analogy it may be called a Sacrifice many of these ways, yet the true and real Nature of it in the Offertory, is to acknowledge God's Majesty and our Misery, and to appease his Wrath towards us, to get Blessings from him, to make Christ's bloody Sacrifice effectual unto us. See the Notes upon this Word, in the Words of the Consecration, fol. preced.

The People may offer it up all the improper ways, none but the Priest can offer it as a proper Sacrifice.

So that though it may Analogically be called a Sacrifice most of the seven ways, yet formally and truly it may be called a Sacrifice also, in the very natural Signification of a Sacrifice, for ought I know any harm should come on't: Not in strictness and rigour of Speech, for so was there never a Sacrifice, nor never shall be any, but Christ's alone.

See the Exposition of the place in Malac. apud Maldon. de Euch. p. 326. and of Psal. 110. Tu es Sacerdos, &c. both which the ancient Fathers with one consent understand of the Sacrifice of the Eucharist, and the Priests of the Gospel.

C † This our Sacrifice of Praise and Thanksgiving, i. e. this Sacrifice of our Eucharist. ] In which regard, and in divers other besides, the Eucharist may by Allusion, Analogy and extrinsecal Denomination, be fitly called a Sacrifice, and the Lord's Table an Altar; the one relating to the other; tho' neither of them can be strictly and properly so termed.

It is the Custom of Scripture, to describe the Service of God under the New Testament, be it either internal or external, by the Terms which otherways most properly belonged to the Old; as Immolation, Offering, Sacrifice and Altar. So the Evangelical Prophet Esay, foretelling the Glory and Amplitude of the Christian Church, speaketh of Gods Altar which shall be there, upon which an acceptable Offering shall be made, cap. 60. 4. &c. And the Apostle, Rom. 15. 16. I labour in the Gospel, that the Oblation of the Gentiles may be accepted, being sanctified of the Holy Ghost: And Phil. 1. 17. The Service and Sacrifice of their Faith: And Heb. 13. 10. We have an Altar whereof they (the Jews) are not worthy to eat. And indeed, the Sacrament of the Eucharist carries the Name of a Sacrifice; and the Table, whereon it is celebrated, an Altar of Oblation, in a far higher sense, than any of their former Sacrifices did, which were but the Types and Figures of those Services, that are performed in Recognition and Memory of Christ's one Sacrifice, once offered upon the Altar of his Cross. The Prophecy of Malachy, concerning the Church under the New Testament (My Name is great among the Gentiles, and they shall offer, or sacrifice unto me a pure Oblation, Mal. 1. 10.) applied by the Doctors of the Roman Church to their proper Sacrifice (as they call it) of the Mass, is interpreted and applied by the ancient Fathers, sometimes in general to all the Acts of our Christian Religion, and sometimes in particular to the Eucharist; that is, the Act of our Prayers and Thanksgiving for the Sacrifice of Christ once made for us upon the Cross, (as here we use in the Church of England) Hier. in hunc locum. Ut sciant carnalibus victimis spirituales successuras, & Thumiama, h. e. Sanctorum Preces Domino offerendas. Tertull. 3. cont. Marcion. cap. 22. *In omni loco Sacrificium mihi offertur, Gloriæ sc. The Church of England therefore herein followeth the holy Scripture, and the ancient Fathers. Gratiarum enim actiones & preces piorum S. Scriptura vocat Sacrificia. Psal. 50. 14. Sacrifica, vel immola Deo laudem. Hos. 14. 3. Reddemus vitulos labiorum nostrorum. Heb. 13. 15. Per Christum assiduè offeramus Sacrificium laudis. i. e. fructum labiorum confitentium nomini ejus, Apoc. 5. 8. Suffitus sunt Preces Sanctorum. Item, 8. 3. Dati sunt Angelo Suffitus multi, ut offerrent cum precibus Sanctorum omnium super Altare aureum, quod est ante Thronum. Psal. 140. 2. Dirigatur Oratio mea sicut Incensum, &c. *Hinc de Ecclesiâ Christianâ locutus S. * † That by the Merits and Death of thy Son Jesus Christ, and thro' Faith in his Blood, we and all thy whole Church, &c. ] This is a plain Oblation of Christ's Death once offered, and a representative Sacrifice of it, for the Sins, and for the Benefit of the whole World, of the whole Church; that both those which are here on Earth, and those that rest in the Sleep of Peace, being departed in the Faith of Christ, may find the effect and virtue of it. And if the Authority of the ancient Church may prevail with us, as it ought to do, there is nothing more manifest, than that it always taught as much: And it is no Absurdity to say, here is an Oblation made for all, when it is not only commemorated to have been once offered, but solemn Prayers are here also added, and a request made, that it may be effectual to all. S. Chrys. 18. Mat. Idcirco Altari assistens Sacerdos, pro universo orbe terrarum, pro absentibus atq; præsentibus, pro his qui ante nos fuerunt, pro his qui postea futuri sunt, Sacrificio illo proposito Deo nos gratias jubet offerre. Hom. 72. in Joh. Ideo in mysteriis invicem salutamus ut multi unum efficiamur, & communes pro cæteris preces effundimus, & pro infirmis, & terra, maris, & universis orbis finibus, Sacrificamus. And in this sense it is not only an Eucharistical, but a Propitiatory Sacrifice: And to prove it a Sacrifice Propitiatory, always so acknowledged by the ancient Church, there can be no better Argument, than that it was offered up, not only for the Living but for the Dead, and for those that were absent, for them that travelled, for Jews, for Hereticks, &c. who could have no other Benefit of it, but as it was a Propitiatory Sacrifice: And that thus they did offer it, read a whole Army of Fathers, apud Mald. de Sacr. p. 342. Nos autem ita comparati sumus, ut cum tam multis & magnis authoribus errore malimus, quam cum Puritanis verum dicere. Not that it makes any Propitiation as that of the Cross did, but only that it obtains and brings into act that Propitiation which was once made by Christ; and so we may speak of Prayer, for that is Propitiatory too. Why should we then make any Controversy about this? They love not the Truth of Christ, nor the Peace of the Church, that make these Disputes between the Church of Rome and Us, when we agree as Christian Churches should in our Liturgies: What private Mens Conceits are, what is that to the publick approved Religion of either Church, which is to be seen in their Liturgies best of all? For let the Schools have what Opinions and Doctrines they will, and let our new Masters frame themselves what Divinity they list, as long as neither the one, nor the other, can get their Fancies brought into the Service of the Church, honest Men may serve God with one Heart and one Soul, and never trouble themselves with the Opinions of them both.

C † That by the Merits and Death of, &c. ] Insigne admodum Sacrificii genus, &c. " A very excellent kind of Sacrifice is this: For " to beseech and pray to God the Father by Christ's Death and Me- " rits, is nothing else, but to offer Christ and Christ's Death and " Merits to God the Father: Therefore, in the Celebration of the " Sacrament of the Eucharist, God's Son and his Son's Death (which " is the most true Sacrifice) is represented by us to God the Father, " and by the same Representation, Commemoration and Obtestation, " is offered; and that (as will appear from what will be afterwards " said) for the Living and for the Dead, i. e. for the whole Church: " For as Christ himself, now he is in Heaven, does appear in the " Presence of God for us, making Intercession for us, Heb. 9. 24. Rom. " 8. 34. and does present and offer himself and his Death to God; " so also the Church upon Earth, which is his Body, when it be- " seeches God for his sake, and his Death, does also represent and " offer him, and his Death, and consequently that Sacrifice which " was performed on the Cross: For no one is so blind, as not to " see the difference between a proper Offering, which was once per- " formed by his Death on the Cross, and between an improper Offer- ing, which is now made either in Heaven, by that his Appearance " on our behalf, or here on Earth by Prayers and Representation, or " Obtestation or Commemoration, there being only the same common " Name for these, but a very wide difference in the things themselves.

" But

" But if any one does conſider the true Nature of a Sacrifice, he " will find, That to have the Live-thing which is offered to God " deſtroyed, is not a Sacrifice properly ſo called, but improperly on- " ly, and by external Denomination.

" It appears therefore how this may be called a Sacrifice, and how " it may not, which is to be obſerved; for if we take a Sacrifice " properly and formally, whether for the Action of Sacrificing (as it " is at this Day taken by the Roman Prieſts) then truly, although " by the Commemoration and Repreſentation it be the ſame numeri- " cal Sacrifice with that which was offered on the Croſs, yet the Acti- " on itſelf, or the Oblation which is now made by us in the Eucha- " riſt, agrees neither in Species nor Genus, with the Oblation and " Immolation which was on the Croſs: For there is no Form or " Reaſon of the Oblation given, which can be univocally predicated " of that; for upon the Croſs the Oblation was made by a true De- " ſtruction and Death of the live-thing, without which no Sacrifice " properly ſo called can be: But in our Euchariſt, there is a Sacrifice " made by Prayers, a Commemoration, and a Repreſentation, which " is not properly a Sacrifice: But nothing hinders, but that the Eu- " chariſt may be accounted and called the Commemorative Sacrifice " of the proper Sacrifice of the Death of Chriſt; which our Lord " himſelf hath taught us, when he ſaid, This do in remembrance of " me. C.

C † That we and all thy whole Church may obtain Remiſſion of our Sins, and all other Benefits of his Paſſion. ] Where by all the whole Church is to be underſtood, as well thoſe who have been heretofore, and thoſe who ſhall be hereafter, as thoſe that are now the preſent Members of it: And hereupon my Lord of Winchester, Biſhop Andrews, grounded his Anſwer to Cardinal Perron, when he ſaid, We have and offer this Sacrifice both for the Living and for the Dead, as well for them that are abſent, as thoſe that be preſent; or Words to this purpoſe, for I have not the Book now by me. And by all other Benefits of his Paſſion, is intended no leſs the Victory which we ſhall all have over Death and Sin at the laſt Day, that is, the Reſurrection of our Bodies from the Grave, and the Publick Acquittance which will then be given us from all our Sins (when Chriſt ſhall pronounce his final Sentence, and ſay, Come ye bleſſed, &c.) than the Remiſſion of Sins paſt now to be given us: So that the Virtue of this Sacrifice (which is here in this Prayer of Oblation commemorated and repreſented) doth not only extend itſelf to the Living, and thoſe that are preſent, but likewiſe to them that are abſent, and them that are already departed, or ſhall in time to come live and die in the Faith of Chriſt: " Which thing being obſerved, ſeveral Expreſſions of the Ancients, " concerning the Sacrifice and Oblation of the Church for the Living " and the Dead, (which otherways at firſt view may ſeem difficult) " may be cleared up and eaſily explained: For they thought of no- " thing leſs than of the Opus operatum of the Popiſh Maſs, and a Sa- " crifice properly ſo called, which the Romiſh Prieſts (not the Re- " formed) pretend and boaſt, tho' without ground, toties quoties to " offer up: But we with the Ancient Fathers aſſert and teach, That " in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, among the Ancients, there " was no other Oblation made for the Living and the Dead, but only " that the Prieſt or Presbyter ſtanding before the holy Table, prayed " to God for them for the ſake of Chriſt, and Chriſt's Paſſion and " Death.

" Therefore we do not depart from the Tradition of Antiquity, " and the Cuſtom of the Univerſal Church in this matter. C.

In the time of Ivo, Biſhop of Chartres, there was no other Interpretation made of the Roman Canon (as they called it) in the Maſs or Liturgy of the Latin Church, than what we make here, or practiſe in ours. *Adſcribam quæ huc faciunt illius verba, è Tract. de convenienția Novi & Veteris Sacrificii. And herein, in a ſpiritual Senſe, though not in regard of the Publick Offices of the Church, are all Prieſts, the whole Aſſembly of the People, as well as the chief Miniſter himſelf, (1 S. Pet. 2. 9.) Ye are a Royal Prieſthood, Rev. 1. 6. And hath made us Prieſts unto God.

" It will be worth while to hear ſome things out of S. Chryſoſtom, " concerning this matter; for in Hom. 18. on the ſecond Epiſtle to " the Corinthians, he teaches, That as the partaking of the Myſteries, " ſo likewiſe the Prayers and Thankſgivings are common to the Peo- " ple with the Prieſt. There is a time (ſays he) when the Prieſt " does not differ from the People, as when they enjoy the tremendous " Myſteries; for all do in like manner partake of, &c. prout ſuprà: " Nay, any one may ſee alſo in Prayers, that they are made by the Prieſt " and alſo by them, and all ſay the ſame Prayer, a Prayer full of Mercy. " But though all who are preſent do offer in the ſame manner, in " which alſo they pray, Men and Women, and all the faithful Peo- " ple; nevertheleſs it may be obſerved, that the προεδρος, who ſtands " before the holy Table, and pronounces the Words of the Prayer, " does in a principal and peculiar manner offer in the Name of them " all.

C † To offer unto thee any Sacrifice. ] The Celebration of this Sacrament may for divers Reaſons be called a Sacrifice; and we do acknowledge, that by the ancient Church it was ſo called; but yet we deny, that there is any reaſon why it ſhould be called a true Sacrifice, and properly ſo called, or ought to be ſo: For when we call any thing a true Sacrifice, we have regard to the formal reaſon of a Sacrifice, and not the final. For the end is to pay Worſhip and Obedience to God, and to do what God approves and accounts acceptable to him: For whatſoever Work is of this kind, is by S. Auſtin called a true Sacrifice: For ſo de Civ. Cap. 5. he with the Apoſtle calls Mercy a true Sacrifice, and acceptable to God. And Cap. 6. Omne opus quod agitur ut Sanctâ Societate inhæreamus Deo, verum Sacrificium eſt.

" So that by the Ancients and us, the Celebration of this Sacra- " ment is called a Sacrifice, yea a true Sacrifice in the manner we " have explained it in. Firſt, becauſe it is a ſenſible Rite, ſupply- " ing the place of ſenſible things. Secondly, becauſe when it is cele- " brated thoſe things are wont to be offered, which were uſed in Sa- " crifices, or at leaſt went to the uſe of the Miniſters of the Church, " or the Poor, which in ſcriptural Phraſe are called Sacrifices accep- " table to God. Thirdly, Becauſe therein Thanks are given to God " and Prayers are poured out, which in Scripture are ſtyled by the " Name of Sacrifice. Fourthly, Becauſe by theſe Prayers the Paſſion, " Death and Merits of Chriſt, are offered up to God the Father by " Commemoration and Repreſentation. As we ſhew'd before that " S. Auſtin ſpoke.

*† Thoſe holy Myſteries, with the ſpiritual Food of the moſt pretious Body and Blood, &c. ] Before Conſecration, we called them God's Creatures of Bread and Wine, now we do ſo no more after Conſecration; wherein we have the Advantage of the Church of Rome, who call them ſtill Creatures in their very Maſs after Conſecration; and yet they will be upbraiding us for denying the real Preſence, when-as we believe better than they: For after Conſecration we think no more of Bread and Wine, but have our Thoughts taken up wholly with the Body of Chriſt; and therefore we keep ourſelves to theſe Words only, abſtaining from the other (though the Bread remain there ſtill to the Eye) which they do not: And herein we follow the Fathers, who after Conſecration would not ſuffer it to be called Bread and Wine any longer, but the Body and Blood of Chriſt, *Iren. Rubrick. That the Litany ſhall be ſung upon Wedneſdays and Fridays, according to the King's Injunctions. That after the Litany, though there be no Communion, yet ſhall the Prieſt put upon him an Alb or Surplice, with a Cope, and ſay all that is appointed at the Communion, until he cometh to the Offertory, and ſo diſmiſs the People with the Bleſſing. That the Hoſt be of the uſual Matter and Form; that is, a Wafer, but without any Impreſſion upon it, ſomewhat broader and thicker than before, that at leaſt it may be broken into two parts; yet that no Man muſt think leſs to be received by him in that part, than in the whole. That the Prieſts ſhall bear the Charges of the Bread and Wine; and in lieu thereof, that the People ſhall offer every Sunday (during the time that the Offertory is ſung) the Price of the holy Loaf, which they were wont to find before, beſides their other wonted Oblations.

That, according to the King's Injunctions, the People be preſent at Service and Sermon, with Quietneſs and Reverence, and once in the Year at leaſt to communicate, otherwiſe to be puniſhed by the Cenſures of the Church: And that the Sacrament of the Lord's Body (when it is diſtributed) be given into the Peoples Mouths, and not into their Hands, (though it was otherwiſe uſed many Years after the Apoſtles times) leſt they ſhould carry it home, as they did otherways of old, and uſe it ſuperſtitiouſly.

Of all which Order ſo ſet forth in the ſecond Year of King Edw. 6. this was Bucer's firſt Cenſure, That, at his firſt coming into this Kingdom, he ſet himſelf diligently to know and ſtudy this Book, wherein he found all things purely reformed; and that in all the Ceremonies there was nothing, but what was either taken out of the Word of God, or was not any way againſt it, if they were rightly taken and candidly interpreted. But afterwards himſelf (as it ſeems) forgetting or neglecting his own Rule, he cenſures and finds fault with many Particulars as coming from the Papiſts, and tending to the Maintenance of Superſtition, and being contrary to God's Word; for which Reaſons he wiſhes Arch-biſhop Cranmer preſently to reform them: Which was the cauſe (together with Calvin's vehement Letters for a further Reformation) that a new Book was ſet out in the fifth and ſixth Years of King Edw. 6. a little before the Protector was Beheaded.

1. That the Veſtments and Garments might be taken away, being an occaſion of Superſtition.

2. That no part of the Communion-Service might be read upon Holidays, &c. when there was no Communion; the Order appointed by the Book being a dumb Shew, borrowed from the Roman Antichriſt.

3. That Morning and Evening Prayer ſhould not be read in one place, and the half Communion-Service at another; that is, at the Altar; nor that the one ſhould be ſaid in a Surplice only, and the other in a Cope; all which was a maſſing Faſhion.

4. That the Sacrament be not adminiſtred in private Houſes, nor in Chapels annexed to other Churches, nor in the Chapels of Noblemen, for fear of Superſtition.

5. That Liberty might be given to uſe Leavened and Common Bread, as well as Wafers and Unleavened; and that the Words, no leſs received in part than in the whole, might be omitted, for fear of Tranſubſtantiation.

6. That the Bread ſhould be Fragilis he likes well; and that there ſhould be Oblations in ſtead of the Holy Loaf, at the Offertory, which he calls, Officium gratæ Pietatis in Paſtorem & Eccleſiam.

7. That he likes not their Opinion, who think Chriſt is more received in the Sacrament of his Supper than in Baptiſm, and the Preaching of the Word; or that more Preparation is to be uſed for the one than the other, Ib. & c. 27.

8. That, inſtead of enjoining the People to receive once a Year at the leaſt, he would have an Exhortation made, to ſet before them the Greatneſs of their Fault, if they refuſed to communicate or went away from the Sacrament, ſo often as it was celebrated: Which was the occaſion of the firſt Exhortation of the fifth of King Edw. continued in our Book, We be come together, &c.

9. That it was a ſuperſtitious Practice, to give the Sacrament into the Peoples Mouths, and not into their Hands, which were one, as holy as the other; and that the People were as holy as the Prieſts, who took it into their Hands, and might ſee whether the People into whoſe Hands they are to give it, did eat the Sacrament or no; no leſs than if they gave it them into their Mouths; this manner of Receiving therefore to be altered.

10. That at the Offertory he would have a Collection for the Poor, after the Example of the Low-Countries; where, among the Reformed, none were ſuffered to beg.

11. That in the time of the Communion, the Men ſhould be placed on one part of the Choir, and the Women on the other, he likes well enough; becauſe it was an old Cuſtom, and that they ſhould not look upon one another; but then he would have the Table ſo placed, that both the one and the other might hear what was ſaid at it.

12. That the Miniſter ſhould be enjoined to provide no more Bread and Wine upon the Altar, than would ſerve the People that communicate, he miſliketh utterly; becauſe by this Injunction, Men would be brought to an Opinion, That what was left of the Elements, after the Communion is done, may not be put to any common uſe; but that (as of old, in the ancient Fathers time, they were wont to do) whatever remained was to be taken and eaten by the Communicants in the Church: Which becauſe it was like to confirm the Papiſts in their Conceit, That the Nature of the Bread and Wine were changed; and that Chriſt was inherent in the Elements themſelves: He urged to have it declared, That extra uſum Sacramenti, that is, when the Communion was ended, the Bread and Wine might be put to any common uſe.

13. That he would not have any Allowance granted, to uſe the Geſtures of Kneeling, Croſſing, Smiting the Breaſt, Holding-up the Hands, &c. as being Papiſtical, and tending to the upholding of the Maſs, which is an execrable thing.

14. That he likes not two Communions upon Chriſtmaſs-day Morning, as the uſe was then, though afore-times there were three; and his Reaſons are, 1. Becauſe we can ſhew no Scripture for any ſuch Practice. 2. Becauſe it makes People imagine, that this Feaſt is higher than other Feaſts; and therefore, that they are to communicate at no other time.

15. That though the Reading the Homilies be better than no Preaching at all, yet that Sermons are chiefly to be ſought after, and an able Preacher placed in every Church, for that he knoweth nothing abſolutely neceſſary to Salvation, but the Office of Preaching.

In the mean while, he would not have the Homilies ſo ſhort, nor divided into ſeveral Parts, but read out at large, as being at their full length ſhort enough for a Sermon-time; deſiring that other Homilies may be added (for them to read that cannot make better themſelves) of the ſame Heads which are now ſet forth in the ſecond Tome.

16. The ſinging of the Sanctus in the Choir he likes well, ſo it be not done (as in ſome places it was) whilſt the Prieſt was ſaying the Prayer for the whole State of Chriſt's Church.

17. In the Prayer for the State of Chriſt's Church he miſlikes the Commendation and Prayer for the Dead, becauſe there is no Precept or Example of it in the Scripture, though the ancient Fathers uſed it. Againſt this part of that Prayer alſo Calvin, in his Epiſtle to the Protector, wrote moſt earneſtly; and therefore Order was taken, in 5 Edw. to leave it out, becauſe it was an occaſion (though otherwiſe harmleſs) of bringing in many ſuperſtitious Conceits and Practices about Purgatory: In the mean-while Bucer deſires, That in ſtead of this Commendation and Prayer for the Dead, another Clauſe might be ſubſtituted, to beſeech Almighty God, That we following the holy Example of his Saints, in the conſtant Profeſſion of our Faith and Obedience, may, together with them and all others departed in the Faith of Chriſt, at his ſecond Coming, have a glorious Reſurrection, &c.

Which

Which is now uſed in the Form of Bidding the Prayers before Sermon, and in the Burial of the Dead. But he liketh not the Expreſſion here, Thoſe that reſt in the Sleep of Peace, ne daretur occaſio, &c. that occaſion might not be given, for ſome Men to pleaſe themſelves in their opinion, (as the Anabaptiſt and Socinian then did) that the Souls of the Dead ſlept till the Day of Judgment.

18. In the Prayer of Conſecration, he would have theſe Words of bleſſing and ſanctifying the Bread and Wine, that they might be made to us the Body and Blood of Chriſt, changed into theſe of bleſſing and ſanctifying us, that with true Faith we might receive the Body and Blood of Chriſt in theſe holy Myſteries, as heavenly Food. To which purpoſe they were afterwards altered, becauſe the former Words (as he ſaid) gave occaſion, to confirm Men in the Popiſh Conceit of Tranſubſtantiation; and becauſe we had no Precept nor Example from the Apoſtles to make any ſuch Prayer for the bleſſing of the Bread, &c. for that Chriſt's bleſſing of it in the Diſtribution to his Apoſtles, at his laſt Supper, was of no other kind, than the bleſſing of the Loaves and Fiſhes wherewith he fed the 5000.

19. Therefore he miſlikes alſo the making of any Croſſes (as the Book appointed) over the Bread and Wine; or that the Miniſter ſhould take the Bread and Wine into his Hands, when he read the Words of Inſtitution; becauſe by this Practice Men would think, That he ſaid theſe Words to the Bread and Wine, and not to the Communicants: And it ſhould ſeem that thereupon thoſe Directions in the Margin, for the Prieſts taking the Bread and Wine into his Hands, (when he ſays, took Bread, and took the Cup) were afterwards left out; and yet the uſe could not for all that be left off, it being a general Cuſtom among us to do ſo ſtill.

20. In the Prayer of Oblation, he diſlikes thoſe Words, And command our Prayers to be brought before thee, by the miniſtry of thy holy Angels, which he wiſheth to be changed into that Form we have after the Participation, which was then placed before it; becauſe the Prayers of the Faithful (as he inſtances in Cornelius) uſe to go up of themſelves alone, without the help of any Angels.

21. Thoſe Words in the Prayer, We do not preſume to come, &c. ſo to eat the Fleſh of thy dear Son, and to drink his Blood, he is not only content to let ſtand, but falls to ſome kind of intreating, that they may be continued, and remain unaltered, as fearing that upon the common Exceptions taken againſt them (which Exceptions he anſwers at large) they alſo would be changed or left out of the Book; for he knew very well, that this was the Intention of the Protector; and that for this reaſon Cranmer had ſent for his Cenſure upon the Book: And indeed, all things were preſently ordered and altered, according to his Mind and Cenſure.

By Bucer's Directions likewiſe was this Rubrick following added in the fifth of King Edw. (though not omitted in ours) after the Rubrick where the Curate is permitted, to take the Bread and Wine that remain to his own uſe.

" Although no Order can be ſo perfectly deviſed, but it may be " of ſome, either for their Ignorance or Infirmity, or elſe of Malice " or Obſtinacy, miſconſtrued, depraved and interpreted in a wrong " part; and yet becauſe brotherly Charity willeth, that ſo much as " conveniently may be, Offences ſhould be taken away; therefore we " willing to do the ſame, Whereas it is ordained in the Book of " Common Prayer, in the Adminiſtration of the Lord's Supper, that " the Communicant kneeling ſhould receive the holy Communion; " which thing being well-meant for a Signification of the humble and " grateful Acknowledgement of the Benefits of Chriſt given to the " worthy Receiver, and to avoid the Prophanation and Diſorder, " which about the holy Communion might enſue; leſt yet the ſame " Kneeling might be thought or taken otherwiſe, we do declare, That " it is not meant hereby, that any Adoration is done, or ought to be " done, either unto the Sacramental Bread and Wine there bodily " received, or unto any Real and Eſſential Preſence, there being of " Chriſt's natural Fleſh and Blood: For, as concerning the Sacra- " mental Bread and Wine, they remain ſtill in their natural Sub- " ſtances, and therefore may not be adored, for that were Idolatry, " to be abhorred of all Faithful Chriſtians: And as concerning the " natural Body and Blood of our Saviour Chriſt, they are in Heaven " and not here; for it is againſt the truth of Chriſt's natural Body, " to be in more places than one at the ſame time.

But by the Tenour of it, it ſeems to be no part of the Common-Prayer-Book.

C  The Bleſſing.] In the ſecond of King Edward it ended at theſe Words, in the knowledge and love of God, and his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. That which follows was added in the fifth of K. Edward.

*† Upon the Holidays, if there be no Communion, ſhall be ſaid all that is appointed at the Communion, until.] By all that follows it appears, That the Mind of the Church of England was and is to have a Communion and Commemorative Sacrifice of Chriſt's Death every Day, that the People will but come to it, and make up a ſufficient Number.

Under Holidays, Sundays are comprehended, for certainly Sundays are Holidays; and therefore it is but a peeviſh Cavil of the Puritans, to ask by what Warrant Men may read the ſecond Service upon Sundays.

The Words, If there be no Communion, &c. do not imply, That there ſhould be no Communion when they be read, (as we uſe now-a-days) but that though there be no Communion for want of devout Company, yet they ſhould be read: So that by the Authority of our Church, I cannot ſee how it will be avoided, but that every Church is bound daily to propound the Sacrament to the People, that ſuch as be diſpoſed might receive, and the fault not be laid upon the Church or the Prieſt that ſerves. And therefore upon theſe Holidays in King Edward's time, if the People were negligent to come to the Communion, the Curate was to read the Exhortation to them which begins, Dearly Beloved, foraſmuch, &c. And in Cathedral-Churches, and in other places like them, it was then appointed, that there ſhould be daily Communions, and ſo there were. See the Rubrick before the Exhortation there in King Edward's firſt Service-Book.

When the People firſt, and afterwards the Prieſts and Clergy, in ſome places gave over their Devotion, and neglected the old uſe of communicating every Day; yet the Prayers and Leſſons, and other Appendants of that holy Office, they omitted not, eſpecially ſuch as were in Orders. Socrates tells us in his Hiſtory, Lib. 5. cap. 21. That it was the Cuſtom of the Church of Alexandria ſo to do, yet upon every Thurſday and Friday alone. Durandus calls this the dry Maſs, Lib. 4. de div. Off. cap. 1. And the Ordo Romanus ſtiles it the Miſſa Nautica, as allowable to Men at Sea, where Storms and Tempeſts would not ſuffer them well to perfect the Celebration. It is mentioned alſo by Thomas of Walden, Lib. 6. Tit. 4. cap. 35. So that this Order and Ordination of our Church, is not altogether either without Cauſe, or without Example.

*† And there ſhall be no Celebration, &c. except there be a great number.] This was made againſt the Solitaria Miſſa that the Papiſts are now-a-days content withal. It was an abuſe ſpringing up about Charlemain's time (it ſeems) to have the Prieſt communicate and ſay Maſs, tho' there were none to celebrate with him. Therefore the Council of Nice then made a Canon againſt it. Nullus Presbyter ſolus Miſſam cantare valet rectè, ut nobis videtur. Quomodo enim dicet, Dominus vobiſcum, &c. They ſay yet, ut nobis videtur; fain would they have had the Abuſe amended, and yet the Communion not neglected for all that. They knew not well whether they ſhould forbid it abſolutely and ſimply, if there were no Company; as indeed, better were it to endure the Abſence of the People, than for the Miniſter to neglect the uſual and daily Sacrifice of the Church, by which all People, whether they be there or no, reap ſo much Benefit.

And this was the Opinion of my Lord and Maſter Dr. Overall.

C  And there ſhall be no Celebration of the Lord's Supper, except there be a good number to communicate with the Prieſt.] This Rubrick was made againſt private Maſſes, wherein the Prieſt only communicated alone by himſelf. S. Ambroſe (or another ſuch ancient Author under his Name) in illud S. Pauli, Alius alium expectate: Expectandum (inquit) ut multorum Oblatio ſimul celebretur, & omnibus miniſtretur. S. Hier. in 11 ad 1 Cap. ad Cor. Cœna Dominica omnibus debet eſſe communis, quia ille omnibus diſcipulis ſuis qui aderant æqualiter tradidit Sacramentum.

*† In the Primitive Church it is moſt plain, both by the Canons of the old Councils, Can. Apoſt. 10. and by the Writings of the ancient Fathers, That ſome part of the People at leaſt never failed to communicate with the Prieſt. And when the Multitude began to grow ſo negligent that, as they ſay, vel duo vel nemo, either few or none would come to aſſiſt the Miniſters, and to participate with them of the bleſſed Sacrament, how ill it was taken at their Hands, and how hardly cenſured, we may know, from that ſharp Increpation which S. Chryſoſtom uſed towards them in Chap. 1. ad Eph. Hom. 3. Ἐικῆ θυσία καθημερινὴ, &c. In vain is the daily Sacrifice, in vain do we ſtand at the Altar: There is no one that does participate. Yet when this lewd Cuſtom had ſo far prevailed, that the indevout People put the Prieſt to do his Office alone, there wanted not them, among the learned and religious Men, that condemned as well the one as the other, the Peoples wretchleſs Indevotion not to communicate with the Prieſt, and the Prieſt's Preſumption to communicate alone, terming ſuch a Communion to be no Communion at all, at leaſt an unlawful and imperfect Communion. Walafridus de rebus Eccl. cap. 22. circa finem. Quamvis cum ſoli Sacerdotes Miſſas celebrent, illos ejuſdem actionis eſſe co-operatores, pro quibus tunc celebrant; tamen fatendum eſt, illam eſſe legitimam Miſſam, cui interſunt Sacerdos, Reſpondens, Offerens, atq; Communicans, ſicut ipſa Compoſitio precum evidenti ratione demonſtrat.

Deniq; *Nam quoad Laicos illi non arctantur ad communicandum, niſi ter in anno, ut in Rubr. Cap. 20. Cum Chriſtianis & maximè Clericis omnes dies in ferias deputantur, videtur ratione pleniſſimum, ut per ſingulos dies ſacris occupemur officiis, & quando Mentis vel Corporis graviores maculæ non obſiſtunt, Panem & Sanguinem Dominicum, quibus ſanè vivere non poſſumus, jugiter ambiamus, imitantes Eccleſiæ Primitivæ Studium ſalutare, de quo in Act. Apoſtolorum legitur; Erant autem quotidie perſeverantes in Templo, & fractione Panis, cum exultatione & ſimplicitate cordis laudantes Deum. Item S. Cypr. Ep. 56. ita ſcribit, Idcirco quotidie Calicem Sanguinis Chriſti bibunt, ut poſſint & ipſi propter Chriſtum Sanguinem fundere. So it held in many places, and for many Years together: But in After-ages, the number of Chriſtian People waxing more, and their Piety leſs, they gave their Prieſts leave to communicate every Day by themſelves, ſerving their own Turn with once or twice a Week, and well if that; as upon the Saturday and Sunday; (whereof S. Auſtin tells us, Ep. 118. ad Jan.) nay, in proceſs of time, the very Prieſts themſelves in ſome Churches followed this Indevotion of the People, againſt whom was the ninth Canon made in the fourth Council of Toledo. Nonnullos Sacerdotum in Hiſpaniâ reperimus, qui Dominicam Orationem non quotidiè, ſed tantùm die Dominicâ dicunt.

dicunt. It was then accounted a Fault, which would now be held a good Chriſtian Vertue, if Prieſts might be ſo often ſeen to communicate: But whatever they did then in Spain, and we would be glad now to have done in England, it is well known, that the general Practice of the Church ever was, to have the Prieſt and Clerks, devoutly at their Office every Day, and to communicate of Chriſt's Sacrament as often. Microl. Cap. 46. Ad quotidiana Miſſarum Solennia non generaliter ab omnibus, ſed Religioſis convenitur, qui plus Spiritualibus negotiis, quàm Secularibus invigilant. Scriptor vetuſtus de divinis Off. apud Caſſandrum Liturg. cap. 33. In Dominicis tantùm & Feſtis diebus fideles, qui Secularibus ſolent occupari negotiis, conveniebant, ad audienda ſolennia: in diebus verò profeſtis Miniſtri & votis adſtricti intererant Miſſæ. Reg. Lib. 1. de Eccle. Diſcip. Ut Presbyter vel Diaconus, vel quilibet Eccleſiæ deputatus Clericus, ſi intra Civitatem fuerit, vel in loco quo Eccleſia eſt, aut vici, aut villæ, ad Eccleſiam ad Sacrificium quotidianum non venerit, Clericus non habeatur, ſi caſtigatus non emendaverit. Which holy Order was no doubt here regarded by our Church, when ſhe enjoined her Prieſts and Deacons to communicate every Sunday at leaſt, ſuppoſing it ought and ſhould be done by them oftener.

*† In Cathedral and Collegiate Churches. ] Odo Camerac. in Canonem. Cum primitùs Miſſæ ſine Collectâ (i. e. Collectione populi) non fierent, poſtea mos inolevit Eccleſiæ Solitarias, & maximè in Cœnobiis, fieri Miſſas. Solitariæ autem dicebantur, quæ ſolis Clericis præſentibus fiebant. And from hence was it, that the Collect, Epiſtles and Goſpels were appointed upon the Sundays and Holidays, and a Rubrick made at the beginning of this Service-Book, for the Collects, Epiſtles and Goſpels to ſerve all the Week long, that were uſed only on the Sunday, that is, at any time when there is a Communion on the Week-day: And certainly, though it be no fault to read the Collect, Epiſtles and Goſpels, either upon Sundays or Week-days; yet to read them, and not to go on with the Communion, is contrary to the intent of our Church, that if there were any Company, intended a Communion every Day, for continuing the daily Sacrifice in the Church, ever uſed till Calviniſm ſprung up, and leapt over into England.

C Receive the Communion every Sunday at the leaſt. ] S. Aug. Ep. 118. Alii quotidie communicant, alii certis diebus, alibi nullus dies intermittitur quo non offeratur, alibi Sabbato tantùm & Dominico. So that this difference notwithſtanding, it was the univerſal Cuſtom of the ancient Church to celebrate the Euchariſt, if not every Day, yet upon all Sundays howſoever, if not rather by conſequence, upon all Feſtivals and Days of ſolemn Aſſemblies. Act. 10. 7. On the firſt day of the Week the Diſciples aſſembled together to eat Bread (i. e. to celebrate the Euchariſt, as the Syriack tranſlates it.) In the mean time it is plain by this Rubrick, and that before, where it is ſaid, Upon the Holidays, if there be no Communion; and more plain by the Rubricks in the firſt Book of Edw. 6. which ſay, In Cathedral Churches, or other places where there be daily Communions, &c. If upon the Sunday or Holiday the People be negligent to come to the Communion, That our Church affected the Frequentation of this Service according to the Primitive Practice, ſo far as they thought it attainable; yet it ſeems by this laſt Rubrick, which abates much of the former, that they deſcended to Calvin 4. Inſt. 17. §. 43, & 46. where he ſays, he would have the Euchariſt celebrated at leaſt once a Week.

C And to take away Superſtition, it ſhall ſuffice that the Bread be as uſual. ] It is not here commanded, that no Unleavened or Wafer-bread be uſed, but it is ſaid only, that the other Bread ſhall ſuffice: So that though there was no neceſſity, yet there was a Liberty ſtill reſerved of uſing Wafer-bread, which was continued in divers Churches of the Kingdom, and Weſtminſter for one, till the 17th of King Charles.

The firſt uſe of common Bread was begun by Farel and Viret at Geneva, 1538. which ſo offended the People there, and their Neighbours at Lauſan and Bern, (who had called a Synod about it) that both Farel and Viret, and Calvin and all, were baniſhed for it from the Town, where afterwards the Wafer-bread being reſtored, Calvin thought fit to continue it, and ſo it is at this Day. Vid. vitam Calvini per Bezam ad An. 1538. & Ep. Calv.

*† And if any of the Bread and Wine remain, &c. ] Which is not to be underſtood of the Bread and Wine already conſecrated, but of that which remains without Conſecration, for elſe it were but a Prophanation of the holy Sacrament, to let the Curate have it to his own uſe. Quam indignè faciunt, qui hâc Rubricâ ad tantum facinus excuſandum abutuntur, ipſi viderint. It was Neſtorianiſm once to think, that if the conſecrated Bread were kept in craſtinum, it became common Bread again: If Th. p. 3. q. 72. a. 11. id. 2. quoteth S. Cyril of Alexandria right. Ep. ad Calv. vid. Mald. de Sacram. p. 120. There was order taken for it of old in the Church, which were well to be obſerved ſtill, that no more ſhould be brought, at leaſt conſecrated upon the Altar, than would ſuffice to communicate the People; and if any remained, that the Prieſt ſhould reverently receive it. Tanta in Altari Holocauſta offerantur, quanta Populo ſufficere debeant. Quod remanſerit (nempe ex holocauſtis & elementis conſecratis) non ſervetur in craſtinum, ſed cum timore & tremore Clericorum diligentiâ conſumetur. Clem. PP. Ep. 2.

*† Bread and Wine, &c. ] It is confeſſed by all Divines, That upon the Words of the Conſecration the Body and Blood of Chriſt is really and ſubſtantially preſent, and ſo exhibited and given to all that receive it, and all this not after a Phyſical and Senſual, but after an heavenly and inviſible, and incomprehenſible manner. But yet there remains this Controverſy among ſome of them, Whether the Body of Chriſt be preſent only in the uſe of the Sacrament, and in the act of eating, and not otherwiſe: They that hold the Affirmative, as the Lutherans, in Confeſſ. Sax. and all Calviniſts do, ſeem to me to depart from all Antiquity, which place the Preſence of Chriſt in the virtue of the Words of Conſecration and Benodiction uſed by the Prieſt, and not in the uſe of eating the Sacrament; for they tell us, that the virtue of that Conſecration is not loſt, though the Sacrament be reſerved either for ſick Perſons, or other: Whereupon Caſſander, Conſult. Ar. 10. ſaith, They are Mad, qui dicunt myſticam benedictionem Sacramenti ceſſare, aut virtutem ſuam amittere, ſiquæ reliquiæ remanſerint in dies futuros: Non enim mutabitur S. Corpus Chriſti, ſed virtus benedictionis, & vivificativa gratia jugis in ipſo eſt. And this did moſt of the Proteſtants grant and profeſs at firſt, though now the Calviniſts make Popiſh Magick of it in their licentious Blaſphemy.

C† To his own uſe. ] We read in Clemens, That after the Communion was done, the Deacons took up that which was left, and carried it into the Paſtophorium, the Room where the Prieſts were lodged. In Origen, That it was kept till the next Day. In S. Jerome, That, after the Communion, they that had eaten it in the Church, ſpent all that remained of the Oblations. In Heſychius, That, after the Example of the old Law, all that was left was caſt into the Fire. In Evagrius, That it was an ancient Cuſtom at Conſtantinople, that if any of the Sacrament remained, young Children were called from the School to eat it up; which was retained in France, as in Conc. Matiſcon. & Turon. held under Charlemain.

C† And if any of the Bread and Wine remain, the Curate ſhall have it. ] Which is to be underſtood of that Bread and Wine that the Church-wardens provided and carried into the Veſtry, and not of that which the Prieſt conſecrated for the Sacrament; for of this, if he be careful as he ought to be, to conſecrate no more than will ſuffice to be diſtributed unto the Communicants, none will remain: Yet if for lack of care they conſecrate more than they diſtribute, why may not the Curates have it to their own uſe, as well as be given to Children, (Conc. Matiſc. c. 2.) or be burnt in the Fire (Iſych. in Levit.) for though the Bread and Wine remain, yet the Conſecration of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Chriſt do not remain, longer than the holy Action itſelf remains, for which the Bread and Wine were hallowed; and which being ended, return to their former uſe again?

Of the frequent Receiving of the Holy Communion.

*† IN The Primitive Church, whilſt Chriſtians continued in their Strength of Faith and Devotion, they did every Day communicate, as we read in the Acts of the Apoſtles, & in Ep. Decret. Pap. Tom. 1. Conc. This Cuſtom continued in Africa unto S. (a) Cyprian's, and after him unto S. (b) Auſtin's time; in Milan, Rome and Spain, unto S. (c) Ambroſe, and S. (d) Jerome's time; inſomuch, that thoſe Words in the Pater noſter, Give us this Day our daily Bread, they interpreted of the Euchariſt, as being daily to be celebrated. But afterwards, when Charity grew cold, and Devotion waxed faint, this Cuſtom grew faint withal, and within a ſmall time began to be left off by little and little; and ſome for Careleſneſs, and other for a pretence of Reverence, would communicate but once every Week; the firſt not believing that Chriſt's Body was in the Sacrament, and therefore making no great Account of it. (Theod. Dial. III.) and the ſecond not accounting themſelves worthy of ſo often receiving it, and therefore abſtaining, they ſaid, for Reverence to the Sacrament, becauſe they would not make it too common: Others ſaid, which was the moſt likely, for love of themſelves, becauſe they might have a little more Liberty of Life, than the often receiving of Chriſt's Body would ſuffer them to have.

In the Eaſtern Church they grew to a worſe neglect betimes; which in After-ages began to come into the Latin Church too: They fell there from every Day to Sundays and Holidays only; (*Athan. ## On the Office of Baptiſm.

C PUBLICK BAPTISM, when the moſt number of People may come together. ] And therefore it is preſently afterwards ordered, That it ſhall be done in Service-time, after the Second Leſſon at Morning or Evening Prayer: But becauſe People uſed not ſo diligently to come to Service, Bucer in his Cenſure ſaid, It would be better to do it immediately after the Sermon, (for there were moſt People at that) wherein nevertheleſs he prevailed not; for theſe Rubricks we ſee continue ſtill.

The ancient Church was wont to adminiſter this Sacrament of Baptiſm, immediately before the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper; for that they were Gemina Eccleſiæ Sacramenta, the Twin-Sacraments, and therefore to go together.

It is the Cuſtom of divers Churches to do ſo ſtill. They both make a Communion among Chriſtians. Quis autem (ſays Bucer well) ſenſum aliquem Chriſtianæ teneat Communionis, qui non agnoſcat quantoperè deceat eos qui ſunt invicem Membra in Chriſto frequentes adeſſe, cum aliquis natus inter ipſos in æternam mortem debet in Eccleſiâ renaſci ad ſempiternam vitam, ſuſcipi inter Filios Dei, quo illi ſimul iſtud beneficium & à Deo pariter orent, & ut Chriſti Eccleſia per Miniſtrum und conferant; & ſicut ſingulorum ille Membrum ſit per hoc Sacramentum, ita à ſingulis quoq; tanquam Membrum recipiatur; & quiſq; ſe ei coram Domino devinciat, ad mutua Chriſtianæ Communionis Officia, & Corporalia & Spiritualia. Paulò pòſt. Naturâ enim docente ſolent homines eos, quos in honeſtum Collegium ſuſcipere decreverunt atq; Societatem, ut in Academiis, & multis aliis longè minoris momenti Societatibus hominum fieri videmus, id facere, cum Collegæ frequentiores convenerint; ut ita quaſi ab omnibus illi in Collegas recipiantur, & ſinguli officia Collegarum eis deferant, ad eaq; ita ſe publicè invicem adſtringant.

C PUBLICK BAPTISM. ] If we have here no Order about Chriſm, we are as ſafe as they were 300 and odd Years after Chriſt: For the firſt Canon which is pretended to be made about it, was in the Council which they ſay was held at Rome by Sylveſter. Conſtituit clarâ voce Sylveſter Urbis Romæ Epiſcopus, ut nemo Presbyter Chriſma conficeret quoniam Chriſtus à Chriſmate vocabatur. Where whatever becomes of Chriſm, it is but a wild and a very improbable reaſon, that he gives for this his Interdict. But Innocent I. would not permit a Prieſt to ſign in the Front (but in pectore only) with that hallowed Oyl, which yet the Church of Rome doth. And in the Council of Laodicea, cap. 48. Si à Domino Inſtituta, & indeſinenter adhibita per 4 ſecula, quid neceſſe erat novum Canonem condere?

*† Baptiſm in the old time not commonly miniſtred, but at two times in the Year. ] Tempus Baptiſmi congruum eſt Sabbatum Sanctum Paſchæ, & vigilia Pentecoſtes. De Conj. Diſt. 4. c. duo tempora, c. propriè, c. inquis, c. de Catechumenis v. ſiqui, &c. venerabilis. Sed hoc in pueris propter periculum non ſervatur ſecundum gloſſ. in d. c. venerabilis. Servari tamen debet in adultis, ut in eadem gloſſâ; ſed intellige, ubi mortis periculum non immineat, ut in cap. ſiqui eod. diſtinct. SACERDOTALE ROM. CAP. VII.

*† And People with the Children muſt be ready at the Font. ] The Rites of Baptiſm in the Primitive times were performed in Rivers and Fountains, where the Perſons to be Baptized ſtood up and received the Sacrament; which manner of Baptizing the ancient Church received from the Example of our Saviour, who was ſo Baptized by John in Jordan. And ſure this was convenient for that time, when their Converts were many, and Men of Years. A reaſon alſo may well be, for that thoſe Ages were otherwiſe unprovided of Fonts, and ſuch Conveniencies, which are now in uſe, which was the cauſe why this manner of Baptizing was uſed alſo in after-times, in ſuch Places where no Fonts were. So Bede tells us, That ſome here in England were Baptized in the River Swale in Yorkſhire, and he gives the ſame reaſon, Nondum enim Oratoria ſeu Baptiſteria, in ipſo exordio naſcentis ibi Eccleſiæ, poterant edificari, Eccl. Hiſt. Lib. 2. cap. 14. The Days we now live in have no other remainder of this manner of Baptizing, than the very Name; for hence it is that we call our very Veſſels, which contain Water for Baptiſm, FONTS or FOUNTAINS.

But this ancient Cuſtom (the Church growing to ſome ſettled Eſtate) was ſoon given over, and Fonts were erected in private Houſes; yet becauſe the violent Perſecutions in thoſe elder times barred the Chriſtians from that convenience, their next recourſe was to Woods and devious Places, and there they fitted themſelves with ſuch Baptiſterials as they could beſt provide. In more peaceable times they drew nearer, and made bold to build their Fonts at a little diſtance from the Church: Afterwards they obtained that they might be ſet in the Church-Porch, and at laſt got them into the Church: At the firſt in City-Churches only, where the Biſhop reſided, (we now call them Cathedrals) unleſs in caſe of neceſſity, and it was therefore called the Mother-Church; becauſe that as People in their Mother's Womb were born Men, ſo in the Fonts of Baptiſm, as in the Church's Womb, they were born Chriſtians.

In After-ages, when it was found that the Mother-Church was too far diſtant from ſome Villages, Conſideration was had of this Inconvenience, and from thence the Biſhop took occaſion to transfer the Right of Baptiſm and Burials to other Rural Churches, and this together with the Right of Tithes, made it a Parochial Church, ſuch as now we have. See Linwood. Provinc. Baptiſterium, in verb. Baptiſmalis Eccleſia. See Notes on Ridley's View.

C Which ſhall be baptized in this Water, &c. ] In Baptiſm, the Nature and Subſtance of Water doth ſtill remain, and yet it is not bare Water: It is changed, and made the Sacrament of Regeneration. It is Water conſecrated.

C Miniſter make this Exhortation to the God-Fathers, &c. ] Becauſe many Parents had not ſuch due care as they ought, in the godly bringing up their Children; ſo that many Children knew not whether they were Baptized or not: And many were never taught, what Covenant had been made between God and them in their Baptiſm; and becauſe many ſwerved away of old from Chriſtian Profeſſion, and became Pagans.

C† That they may be Baptized with Water. ] Ceremonia hæc etiam tempore Johannis Baptiſtæ neq; nova planè fuit, & vocationi Gentium præluſit. Tradunt enim Hebræi Inquilinos, qui nollent jus Civitatis Judaicæ adipiſci, non neceſſe habuiſſe circumcidi, ſed ablutos duntaxat fuiſſe, ut hoc modo ab Idolorum cultu recedere ſe oſtenderent. Atq; ita narrant multa hominum millia, Davidis & Solomonis temporibus abluta. Sed & nunc qui ad Judaiſmum veniunt, ab ipſis Baptizantur. Sunt & qui ſcribunt, temporibus Meſſiæ tantam fore turbam Converſorum, ut per Lavacrum, non per Circumciſionem, ſint admittendi. Cum verò peregrini abluti & non circumciſi ſolis legibus tenerentur, quas Deus toti hominum generi dederat, intellectu facile eſt, Ablutionem hanc fuiſſe inter vetera Inſtituta, orta, ut arbitror, poſt magnum Diluvium in memoriam purgati mundi. C† In Baptiſm the true and natural Element of Water is required, ſuch as John the Baptiſt uſed, when our Saviour came unto him, Matth. III. ſuch as Chriſt ſpake of, John III. 23. ſuch as the Apoſtles uſed, Acts VIII. 28. They went both into the Water; and Acts X. 47. Can any Man forbid Water, &c. whereupon S. Paul, Eph. V. 26. calls it Lavacrum aquæ. With thoſe Hereticks then, who refuſe to baptize with Water, we have nothing to do. S. Aug. Her. 69. tells us of them, Seleuciani & Hermiani Baptiſmum in aqua non accipiunt. The cauſe of their refuſal S. Auſtin tells not; and Daneus, in his Notes there, muſt needs be gueſſing at it: He ſays it was the Commonneſs and the Baſeneſs of that Element, which they thought was not anſwerable to the Dignity of ſo high a Sacrament. He ſhould have ſaid, it was becauſe they pretended, That John the Baptiſt, comparing Chriſt's Baptiſm and his own together, put a difference between the materia of them both; I baptize you with Water, but he with Fire. For ſo ſaid Philaſtrius concerning thoſe Hereticks, one that was a little better acquainted with Eccleſiaſtical Antiquities than Daneus was. Seleneus & Hermias (ſays he) Hæretici animas hominum de igne & ſpiritu eſſe exiſtimantes, noſtro Baptiſmo non utuntur, propter verbum hoc, quod dicit Johannes Baptiſta, ipſe vos Baptizabit in Spiritu & Igne. Iiſdem Baptiſtæ verbis in errorem abrepti ſunt Jacobitæ, qui non Baptizabant aquâ, ſed ignis aduſtione, nempe crucis figuram ardente ferro fronti imprimentes, as Bernardus Lunenburgenſis tells the Story; as if S. John the Baptiſt had meant the Elementary, and not the heavenly and ſpiritual Fire rather. Beſides theſe, Water has been refuſed in Baptiſm by the Pauliniani, Men that would admit no material thing in the Adminiſtration of the Sacrament, but perfected all with pronouncing the Words only, and not the Words of the Church neither, but Ego ſum aqua viva, and there ended. Euthym. Panopl. Par. 2. Tit. 22. Voſs.

For the Analogy betwixt Water purging our Bodies, and the Blood and Spirit of Chriſt purging our Souls, was this Sacrament inſtituted in that Element. S. Ambr. Lib. 1, & 2. de Sacr. S. Hier. Ep. ad Oceanum. Nec temerè eſt, quod Sapientiſſimus Deus hunc potiſſimum liquorem elegit, quando ut nihil eo eſt utilius ad vitam (ἄριστον μὲν ὕδωρ, ſays Pindarus) ita nec communius aut vulgatius eſt quicquam.

He therefore that ſhould luxuriouſly uſe Wine, to Chriſten withal, inſtead of Water, would ſin no leſs, than he that ſhould under the pretext of Abſtinence (as S. Auſtin ſaith the Aquarii did, Hier. 6. 4.) uſe Water in ſtead of Wine, for the Adminiſtration of the Euchariſt.

There is a frivolous Queſtion made, Whether it were not lawful to baptize a Man ready to die, in ſome other Liquor, if Water be not ſo readily at hand; as if Water were not ſo readily to be had, as any other Liquor whatſoever: Howſoever, if this caſe ſhould chance at any time to happen, it is the Opinion of moſt Divines, that the Sacrament were better to be omitted, God accepting the Will for the Deed, where it cannot poſſibly be done. Only Theodorus Beza thinks otherwiſe, and is ſo bold as to write and make bold with Chriſt's own Inſtitution in both the Sacraments. Ep. 2. ad Theodor. Filium. Non errat, qui pro panè & vino ſubſtituat ea quæ etſi non panem, ſimilem tamen alimoniæ analogiam habeant. Deſit etiam Aqua; ego certè quovis alio liquore non minùs rectè quàm aquâ Baptizarim, cum Baptiſmus alicubi differri amplius cum ædificatione non poſſit, nec debeat. And he ſays there are ſome ſuperſtitious School-men of his Mind,

Of Confirmation, or Laying on of Hands.

*† THE Nature of this holy Sacrament (for ſo we need not fear to call it in a right Senſe) will be the more eaſily underſtood, by the ſeveral Names it had of old, whereof two are here, Confeſſion, or Laying on of Hands. Impoſitio manuum, was the common Denomination of it among the Latins. The Greeks were wont to call it, τελείωσις, i. e. perfectio, as Di. Areop. cap. de Baptiſmo; and ſo the Latins ſometimes called it, S. Ambr. 2. de Sacram. c. 2. The Greeks were wont alſo to call it, σφραγίδα, i. e. obſignationem; and the Latins, Signaculum, as often S. Cyprian doth, and S. Auſtin. Beſides theſe Names, it was called Chriſma, Aug. 2. contr. Pet. c. 104. And laſt of all by S. Ambroſe, Lib. de iis qui myſteriis initiantur, cap. 8. it was called Confirmatio: He was the firſt who was obſerved to give it that Name, which afterwards in S. Leo, and S. Greg. came to be common. So that there is more in it than Calvin would have; who tells us, it is nothing elſe but a certain Publick Confeſſion of Faith made before the Biſhop, which Children could not do before in Baptiſm, but by Sureties; and that the Impoſition of Hands was uſed for nothing elſe, but Ne viderentur frigidè diſcedere ab eo; "Leſt they ſhould ſeem to depart from it coldly.

*† None hereafter ſhall be Confirmed, but ſuch as, &c.]

They were wont of old time to give Confirmation, and the Euchariſt, preſently after Baptiſm, even to Children themſelves; ſince it has been thought more expedient by the Church, That Children ſhould be firſt able to give an account of their Faith, atq; in eâ ne laudabilior eſt conſuetudo Eccleſiæ hodiernæ quàm veteris, ſaith Maldonat. de Sacr. pag. 115. And therefore it is a Fault, both among their Biſhops and ours, That Children are Confirmed, (all that come) without Diſtinction, before they come to the Years of Diſcretion. True it is, That of old Confirmation was adminiſtred to Children aſſoon as-ever they were baptized; but as the giving of the Euchariſt, ſo likewiſe the giving of Confirmation unto them, is now taken away by the conſent of the whole Weſtern-Church; and the rather becauſe Fathers, Godfathers and Curates, and others that have care of young Children, might hereby take occaſion to inſtruct them in the Profeſſion of Faith and Religion, which they made for them in their Baptiſm.

*† That by Impoſition of Hands and Prayer, they may receive Strength and Defence againſt all Temptations to Sin, and the Aſſaults of the World, &c.]

Maldonatus de Sacram. p. 107. requires no more for the uſe of this holy Ceremony, Quàm ut qui Baptizati erant, perficerentur, at Græci loquuntur, i. e. fierent integri quodammodo Chriſtiani, & ut acciperent Robur. Spir. Sanct. ad perfungenda omnia munera hominis Chriſtiani: This is here ſaid in Words as full as his. The Controverſy then, which the Church of Rome makes, is not to be made with our Church, but with them of the new Stamp at Geneva, with whom we have as little little to do as with the Papists themselves, where either these or those depart from the Tenet of Antiquity.

Eusebius Emissenus sets forth the Virtue of this Laying on of Hands to the full. Hom. in Die Pentecostes. Quod nunc in Confirmandis Neophytis, Manûs Impositio tribuit singulis, hoc tunc Spiritûs S. descensio in Credentium populo donavit universis. Spiritus S. in fonte plenitudinem tribuit ad Innocentiam, in Confirmatione augmentum præstat ad gratiam, quia in hoc modo totâ Ætate victuris inter invisibiles hostes & pericula gradiendum est; in Baptismo Regeneramur ad Vitam, post Baptismum confirmamur ad pugnam; in Baptismo alimur, post Baptismum roboramur.

‡ Not that Men have no such Strength given them in Baptism, but that they have more, and a new Strength given them in Confirmation; and indeed, the proper effect of Baptism is to make a Man a Christian, but the proper effect of Confirmation is to give him the Holy Ghost.

‡ From whence that Ceremony arose which is now used in the Church of Rome, Ut qui confirmatur cædatur Alapâ modestâ, cæremonia ista (saith Mald.) non est, ut opinor, Antiquissima, sed habet tamen accommodatam Significationem; incipit enim tunc qui confirmatur excipere ictus Adversariorum Spiritualium, de Sacram. p. 117.

C The Order for the Confirmation of Children.] 1 B. Edw. 6. Against this Word Children, Bucer took Exception; and therefore, in the second Book of King Edward, the Title was amended, and called Confirmation only. In our Book the Title was explained, after the Conference at Hampton-Court, for the Satisfaction of the Ministers there; who thought there was some Popish meaning in the Word Confirmation, as if it added Strength to the Sacrament of Baptism; or as if Baptism were not valid without it. Therefore the Title was put into these Terms; The Order of Confirmation, or Laying on of Hands upon Children baptized, and able to render an account of their Faith, according to the Catechism following: Which Catechism was then also augmented, upon those Ministers Complaint, that it was insufficient in not setting forth the Nature of the Sacraments.

This Note is not among those of Bp Cosins's first MSS. nor in his Additional Notes, but was sent me by Dr. Pickering, being taken out of a Common-Prayer-Book of his, written by his own Hand.

Confirmation.] Confirmation is, by the Church of Rome, that now is corrupted with many Errors and Novelties in Religion, held to be a SACRAMENT: But we, who by the Grace of God are now bred among the Reformed Churches, whereof this Church of England is, both for Doctrine and Discipline, the most Eminent and the most Pure, the most agreeable to Scripture and Antiquity of all others; We hold it to be NONE.

And yet we hold it to be a sacred and a solemn Action of Religion, which being accompanied with fervent Prayer, will be a special Means to convey the Graces of God's Holy Spirit, upon those Persons that have duly prepared themselves to receive it; that thereby they may be established in their Faith, and the better fitted to every good Word and Work, as all true Christians ought to be.

The Ancient Custom of the Church of Christ was, after the Persons were once Baptized, to add unto their Baptism, Imposition of Hands, with earnest Prayer for the Gifts of God's Graces to be bestowed upon them; whereby they might be confirmed and strengthned in that Holy Profession, which in the Sacrament of Baptism, they had first begun to make.

For our Means to obtain the Graces which God doth bestow, are our Prayers; and our Prayers to that Intent, are available as well for others, as for ourselves.

When we pray for others, we implore God's Blessing upon them for whom we pray, and thereby we do actually bless them, because our Prayers, and Imposition of Hands in those Prayers, are an especial Means ordained by God, to procure that Blessing from him upon them, whom by this solemn Rite we present unto him for that purpose.

So Israel blessed the Sons of Joseph, and Imposed his Hands upon them. And the like Custom was usually observed from the time of Moses to Christ, who used it himself, and his Apostles after him, as his Church hath done after them in all Ages.

And the reason why the Church hath always hitherto continued it, is from the great Benefit which every Member of the Church thereby enjoyeth, or may at least enjoy, if it be not their own Fault, and want of true Preparation that hindreth them.

And therefore the ancient Fathers and Bishops of the Church everywhere, in their Learned, Godly and Christian Writings, impute unto it those Gifts and Graces of the Holy Ghost, which doth not make Men and Women Christians, as they were at first in their Baptism; but when they are made such there, assisteth them in all Vertue, and armeth them the better against all the several Temptations of the World and the Devil, to resist the Vices of the Flesh.

When Baptism was at first administred to them of full Age, who in their Infancy were either Jews or Heathens, there was no reason to sever Confirmation from it: But when it was administred to Infants, though they might very well be admitted in the Family of Christ; yet forasmuch as to fight in the Army of God, and to discharge the Duties of a Christian Man or Woman, to bring forth the Fruits of their Religion, and to do the Works of the Holy Ghost, their time of Ability was not yet come, their Confirmation was deferred till they arrived to riper Years, that in the mean-while they might be seasoned with the Principles of true Religion, and a good Foundation laid betimes, for the better Direction of your Lives ever after.

For that which in our Baptism we first professed by others, being Infants without any Understanding of our own, when we come afterwards to acknowledge ourselves, what do we else but only bring to Ripeness that very Seed which was sown in us before? Whereunto Imposition of Hands and Prayer being added, our Warrant and Trust for the good effect thereof, is the same which the Patriarchs, the Prophets, the Apostles, and Men of God have Published and set before us.

Nor is there any cause that we should doubt of the Benefit, if it be not our own Fault; but truly there is great cause to make Complaint of the great and general Neglect of this Christian Duty. Let no Man take it in evil part, the small regard hereof hath done much harm in the Church of God, and the frequenting of it may do much good.

C Confirmation.] There is an old Canon in the first Arausican Council, De non iterandâ Chrismatis Benedictione; quia inter nos plerunt semel chrismari; where the Canon ended. The Addition that follows was added by others before Isid. Mercator's time, who first corrupted the Canon; but it bears the same sense: So that Chrisination in Confirmation (being had before in Baptism) was not accounted necessary in France, whatever it was at Rome.

C And that no Man shall think, &c. by deferring their Confirmation, &c.] Confirmation (though it be very behooveful) is not absolutely necessary to Salvation, being not of Christ's own Institution, as the Sacrament of Baptism is; for it was instituted only by the Church, in Imitation of the Apostles, as Cornelius the Pope, apud Euseb. (Lib. 5. cap. 36.) fetches the first original of it, ab Ecclesiæ Canone: And Gal. Antisiodorensis, Tract. 9. Lib. 4. and Vitriacus Oriental. Hist. cap. 39. write expressly, That it was instituted by the Church: So do Alexander Hales, par. 4. q. 9. and Bonaventure, 4 Dist. 7. q. 1, & 2. and Eugen. 4. Anno 1439. in his Monita to the Armenians, makes this to be one, That Confirmation was appointed in the Church in Imitation or in stead of the Imposition of Hands used by the Apostles, Acts 8. which abundantly prove it not to have been of Divine Right: But being long in use, before the Council of Laodicea, Anno 363. and then disapproved by the Faction of the Novatians, which inhabited Phrygia, and scorned it; there was a Canon then, and divers after, made to establish it. Socr. Lib. IV. cap. 17. Soz. Lib. VI. cap. 4. Lib. VII. cap. 18.

That Confirmation of Children after Baptism, was not accounted to be of absolute Necessity, it is plain from the use of old, in receiving some such to the Communion, and to sacred Orders also, who had never been confirmed, Anno 240. Novatian, after he was recovered of his Sickness, obtained no Confirmation of the Bishop; and yet within a while, Fabian the Pope made him Priest, Euseb. Lib. VI cap. 35. The Greeks, Russians, Armenians, Jacobites and Nestorians, use no other Confirmation than the Chrism in Baptism, which is sufficient; and therefore they have wrong done them by Guido de Perpiniano de Hæres. Art. 21. Johannes Sacranus Elucid. de Err. Ruth. cap. 2. Guadinus de Ruthen. Relig. Thevet. Cosmogr. Lib. XIX. cap. 12. and others, who affirm, That they admit not Confirmation, but abhor from it, and account it superfluous: For they have the same that was used in the ancient time, when those that were newly baptized, were brought to the Bishop to be consigned. Vid. Hier. adv. Luciser. cap. 4.

The Blow upon the Cheek there given by the Romanist, Antiquitatis totius authoritate cavet. Vid. Blond. Apol. p. 214, 215. The Romanists impose no Hands, but hold them up and over the Child. So the ancient use was abolished, and new Fashions brought in, without any Example of the Apostles in the Primitive Church. Tandem juris sui plenæq; potestatis conscia Anglicana Ecclesia, renovato veteris χειροθεσιας instituto, omnem Chrismatis confectionem atq; usum multis retrò seculis in superstitionem versum, facessere natura nihil religiosarum rerum adumbrationes typiq; humanitus efformati erant sepositis, in res ipsas typis illis à pia antiquitate designatas toto animo defixa, nullâ externæ Chrismationis fidelibus necessitate imposita, cælestibus doctrinæ Evangelicæ monitis Sanctisq; precibus redemptas mentes, ad commune Fidei certamen angere, ac invocato Spiritûs Sancti auxilio confirmare officii sui esse duxit.

Sirmondus himself, Ant. 2. Part. 1. cap. 7. describes those Men, that with Tho. Walden, Lib. II. cap. 13. imagine Chrismation to be Imposition of Hands, Quia, ut ait, ungendo imponitur manus. For the Abuses in selling the Chrism for Confirmation, the Greek Church broke from the Latin, abhorring their Avarice and Pride. Arund. Lib. II. cap. 9. for the Legates of the Pope carried the Chrism every Year from Rome to Constantinople, and there sold it too dear; 200 Hungarian Crowns for a little Cruet of Oil.

C They may with their own Mouth, and with their own consent, openly before the Church, ratify and confirm the same.] When the Children of Christians had learned Christ's Religion, they were brought to the Church, and presented to the Bishop, and professed openly their Faith, and said they would live and die in it. Then the Bishop and all the People prayed for them; and the Bishop, laying his Hands upon them, commended them to God. This was the ratifying of their Profession, made by others in their Name at their Baptism; and for that cause was it called Confirmation: For they promised, that neither Tribulation, nor Anguish, nor Persecution, nor Famine, nor Nakedness, nor Fire, nor Sword, nor Life, nor Death, should ever make them deny their Faith.

C Children, Servants, &c. which have not learnt their Catechism.] It seems by Bucer's Censure, that the former Order was to send them only who are not confirmed; but because many are confirmed young, and before they understand their Catechism at least, though peradventure they can repeat the Words of it, therefore he desires that they may still be sent to the Church, till the Curate shall think them fit (as being sufficiently instructed:) Hereupon the Words were somewhat altered.

C And whensoever the Bishop shall give knowledge for Children to be brought, &c.] Which Bucer says would be most conveniently done in their Visitations: And to that commonly did the Bishops ever since hold themselves. Which was much too seldom.

C And there shall be none admitted to the Communion, until such time as he can say the Catechism, and be confirmed.] Many can say their Catechism, and are confirmed at Seven Years old; Shall it be then in the power of the Curate to admit them also to the Communion? Non credo: But this shews, That they should not be confirmed so young as they use to be, but when they are of perfect Age, and ready to be admitted to the Holy Communion, which is between 14 and 16 Years of Age.

C Such as can say in their Mother-tongue the Articles of the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments; and can also answer the Questions, &c.] This was much faulted by Bucer, who would have none admitted to Confirmation upon a bare recital of the Words in the Catechism, till their Manners of Life and Sense, and Fruits also of Religion, had been manifested to the Church; making herein no difference between the old Competentes, and the Catechumeni, who had as yet no Baptism at all, and Children that were already baptized: Yet his Censure prevailed so far with the next Reformers of the Book, that they altered divers Passages in this Order of Confirmation: As by adding, when Children come to Years of Discretion, which Words were not in before; and by leaving out that, God-fathers and God-mothers may be released of their Promise which they made for them in Baptism; (as the Words were 2 Edw. 6.) and that they shall promise, that when they come to Age they shall endeavour, &c. Of perfect Age added as before, for Bucer's Exception.

C The Usage of the Church in times past.] In the second of King Edward, is Primitiva Ecclesia, at least so expressed in the Latin Copy.

C Then shall he be brought to the Bishop, by one who shall be God-father.] The former God-fathers and God-mothers being released, as it was ordered before in the Rubr. 2 Edw. 6.

C Then shall the Bishop lay his Hand upon every Child severally, saying, Defend, O Lord, &c.] Bucer had said, Cens. cap. 17. Oratio quidem rectè fit super pueros quâlibet ætate, & quicquid habent fidei, dum se patiuntur doceri Evangelium Christi.

And this seems to be rather a Prayer that may be said by any Minister, than a Confirmation that was reserved only to the Bishop: For in the second Year of King Edward this was the Form. Bishop.] Sign them, O Lord, with the sign of the holy Cross, that they may be thine for ever: Confirm and strengthen them with the Unction of thy Holy Spirit, that they may inherit thine eternal Kingdom. Resp.] Amen. Bishop.] N. I sign thee with the sign of the Holy Cross, and lay Hands upon thee, and Confirm thee, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Resp.] Amen.

All this was changed into a Prayer, and Imposition of Hands.

C The Bishop shall confirm, &c.] It seems that before the time of Arius, a Priest might have confirmed; but after his Heresy it was reserved to the Bishop, for the better Preservation of the Catholick Faith and Religion, whereof the Church would have a due Account first rendered to the Bishop, Lib. Pontif. in Sylvestro & Con. Rom. sub eod. vid. Conc. Arausc. Anno 441. Can. 1. where the Church of France admits a Priest to confirm in the absence of the Bishop: And post Ann. 700. Bede in Psal. 26. writes, That Confirmation (which is the same thing with Chrism at Baptism) propter arrogantiam tamen non concessa est singulis Sacerdotibus, sicut & multa alia.

Ætate Cypriani, Ep. 73. Præpositis Ecclesiæ oblati sunt baptizati, ut per eorum orationem & manûs impositionem, Spiritum Sanctum consequerentur; eundemq; morem in suis præpositis, annis post Cypriani Martyrium 150 Ecclesiam servâsse scripsit Augustinus (de Trin. Lib. 15. cap. 26.) Erant secundùm Canonem ab Episcopo consignandi quotquot diebus solennibus sacro lavacro tingebantur, ac si quis fidelis, non Diaconus, in infirmitatis necessitate, aut Diaconus regens plebem, sine Episcopo vel Presbytero, aliquos baptizaverat, Episcopus eos per manûs Impositionem perficere debebat, Conc. Elib. c. 38. & 77.

For that it is agreeable with the usage of the Church in times past, whereby it was ordained, &c.

Not the ancient, but the latter times; for of old they were wont to give both Confirmation and the Eucharist to Children newly baptized: We are beholden to the Church of Rome then for this Ordinance.

Of the Necessity of Confirmation, ult. Paragr. in Rubr. ante Offic. Confirm.

*† AND that no Man shall think, &c.]

However, Confirmation hath been always had in high Esteem in the Church, and hath many excellent and heavenly Effects flowing from it, which might make Christians the more desirous for themselves and their Children, to be made Partakers of it; and the more fearful, lest they wanted somewhat for their Salvation, if they had it not; yet the truth is, That the Church of God in all Ages never held it so absolutely necessary, as if without it Salvation might not be obtained. The Papists are accused to hold this Opinion, but for my part, I suppose they have some wrong done unto them. That which is alledged out of Gratian c. fideles & omnibus, is not to be understood of all things necessary to Salvation, as if they were not perfect without it; or of the Perfection and Substance, and Being of a Christian, as if Men were not so to be taken until they were confirmed; but of a Man's plenary and full Perfection in the Graces of the Holy Ghost, which without Confirmation he cannot ordinarily obtain; for his better Being, and his more powerful Strength, to resist the World, the Flesh, and the Devil: When learned Men therefore seem to tell us, and to say that there is a necessity of Confirmation, it is not simply and absolutely to be taken this, but ex Hypothesi, and upon Supposition only. If Men desire to be more perfect than others are, or to be more strongly armed against their spiritual Enemies: So Eusebius Emiss. Hom. de Pentecoste. Ac si continuò transituris sufficiant Regenerationis beneficia, victuris tamen necessaria sunt Confirmationis Auxilia: They who dye presently after Baptism, have all things needful to Salvation, they need not fear it; but they that are to live and to maintain a spiritual Combat against Sin and Satan, they have need of God's farther Graces, which are communicated to them by Imposition of Hands: So Baptism saves a Man that lives not long after; but Confirmation must help them that are to go on in the hard and strait ways of Christianity, or else they may hap to perish as they go: Therefore it is not here said, that Men of ripe Years, but that Children being baptized, and so dying while they are Children, have all things necessary to their Salvation; for afterwards there are many things needful, and among the rest this is a chief one, To be Confirmed, and to receive a more perfect Power of the Holy Ghost, for the resisting of the Temptations of Satan: So Eusеb. ubi supra, Regeneratio per se salvat mortem in pace sæculi recipiendos, Confirmatio armat & instruit ad Agones hujus mundi & prælia reservandos; when we read in the Acts of the Apostles, that those Samaritans which Philip baptized had not yet received the Holy Ghost, it is not simply to be understood this, as if by Baptism they had received no Fruits of the Spirit at all; but that they had not received the Fulness and Perfection of the Spirit, which is given by Confirmation. The Apostles received the Holy Ghost, both when they were baptized, and when they were ordained by Christ; yet we read, that after both these, the Holy Spirit was not yet given, because they were not then endued with the fulness of Ghostly Strength, which they had poured upon them at the Feast of Pentecost: Before, they were all so fearful, that they fled and ran away; after, they were so full of Courage, that no Death or Martyrdom could amaze them: And this is the Fruit of Confirmation. Euseb. ubi supra, in Baptismo per Christum redimimur, in Confirmatione verò per Spir. Sanctum dono sapientiæ, &c. illuminamur, ædificamur, erudimur, instruimur, consummamur. 1. The Spirit of Wisdom. 2. Understanding. 3. The Spirit of Counsel. 4. Of Ghostly Strength. 5. The Spirit of Knowledge. 6. True Godliness. 7. Of holy Fear. Septem dona Spiritûs Sancti. 1. Sapientia. 2. Intellectus. 3. Consilium. 4. Fortitudo. 5. Scientia. 6. Pietas. 7. Timor Domini.

*† Then the Bishop shall lay his Hand upon every Child severally, saying.]

Quatuor causæ sunt necessariæ ad integritatem hujus Sacramenti (saith Maldonat.) and here they be all; prima est materia, quam inter Apostolos non aliam fuisse legimus quàm externam Impositionem manuum, quæ ipsa etiam hodiè appellanda est materia, &c. Maldon. de Sacram. p. 113.

Secunda causa est forma Verborum. Tertia est Minister, which is the Bishop only; so Philip Baptized, but the Apostles Confirmed: And the seventh Canon of the second Council of Sevil prohibited any Priest to meddle about it, no less than at Ordination, &c. and S. Greg. Lib. 3. Ep. 9. Quarta est suscipiens, Baptizati autem omnes sunt capaces Confirmationis.

The Ceremonies used in Confirmation.

*† THere are divers Ceremonies used in the Confirmation of this Sacrament; two very ancient, Chrism, and the Cross; the other two more late, Gossips, and the Blow upon the Cheek: Three of these we omit, as not being necessary; yet being so significant, it were better we had them; neither were it any fault, for ought I see, if any Man should use them in our Church, more than it is to use the Fourth, of having God-fathers and God-mothers at the time of Confirmation; That we allow and approve, why not the rest as well? but for the Susceptores, it being a Custom of old, to Confirm instantly after Baptism, that so the Susceptores of one were the Susceptores of the other also; therefore the Custom still prevails with us, that such as are Confirmed should have Witnesses and Undertakers for them, as well as those which are Baptized among us.

The CATECHISM.

C Catechism.] Bucer found fault with the shortness of it, and therefore Arch-bishop Cranmer set forth a larger Catechism, and would have all Curates to use it; but it was never received by any Publick Authority into the Church: Nor his, nor Nowel's, which was afterwards set forth in Q. Elizabeth's time, and became the Pattern of many private Catechisms, which by their Variety and Novelty of Doctrine, have done much hurt.

In the Conference at Hampton-Court, great complaint was made by the Ministers there, That this publick short Catechism was defective in the Point of the Sacraments: Whereupon it was ordered, That the Bishops should make an Addition, and so they did; which by K. James his Authority only, was annexed to the former Catechism, which ended after the Answer following the Lord's Prayer. The Addition was first penned by Bishop Overall, (then Dean of Pauls) and allowed by the Bishops.

C The Curate shall diligently upon Sundays and Holidays, &c. instruct, &c.] It is not said here, That he shall do it upon every Sunday, and every Holiday; and therefore the Words are to be understood, as often as need requires, according to the largeness or number of Children in his Parish. In the Second of K. Edward he was limited to do it once in six Weeks, at least; against which Words (as being too large a time, and the Ministers in Germany doing it otherwhiles three times in a Week) Bucer took Exception; whereupon it was thus ordered in the Fifth of K. Edward, and set down in Terms indefinite; though he urged to have it singulis Festis.

De Sacramentis.

C† TWO only as generally necessary to Salvation. ] Quanquam enim interdum nomen hoc Sacramenti latiùs, ut solet & nostris etiam Scriptoribus Reformatis, adhibetur, quando tamen appositè & propriè loquuntur, non nisi duo, quæ Deus instituit, Baptismum & Cœnam Domini in Sacramentis nostris numerant, Lath. de Cap. Babyl. propriè (inquit) ea visum est vocare Sacramenta, quæ annexis signis promissa sunt; cætera, quia signis alligata non sunt, nuda promissa sunt, quò fit, ut si rigidè loqui velimus, tantum duo sunt in Ecclesiâ Dei Sacramenta Bapt. & Panis, cùm in his solis & institutum Divinitùs signum, & promissionem Remissionis peccatorum habeamus.

Cùm verò nomen Sacramenti variè sumatur, multisq; rebus accommodatur, mirum non est Lutherum aliosq; viros præstantissimos, de nomine minùs solicitos fuisse; atq; hinc est, quòd Lutherus duobus hisce Sacramentis pœnitentiam aliquando addidit, Calvinus in Colloquio Ratisbonensi, Anno 1541. septem esse Sacramenta non illibenter agnoverunt.

Commentum verò Pontificium, quod nec plura, nec pauciora sunt Sacramenta quàm septem propriè sic dicta (idq; de fide Catholicâ tenendum esse) certè veteri Ecclesiæ ignotum atq; inauditum fuit. Sin olim in Ecclesiâ receptum fuisset, id aliquis Patrum scriptis suis prodidisset, at nullus omnino est ex tam multis qui hunc Sacramentorum Septenarium numerum confirmavit.

Nec verò ante Hugonem de S. Victore & Petrum Lombardum hæc de Septenario numero Sacramentorum opinio percrebuit, cùm Lombardus ipse qui Patrum Testimonia diligenter collegit, hîc omnino nulla recitet.

Concilium verò nullum extat antiquius Florentino, A. 1439. in quo hic Septenarius numerus approbatur & sancitur. Atq; hæc sunt illa præclara Antiquitatis monumenta quibus ipsa causa contra Ecclesiam nostram à Pontificiis defenditur; verùm evinci potest clarissimis Patrum Testimoniis veterem Christi Ecclesiam non nisi duobus esse usam notis & perpetuis Sacramentis. Clem. Romanus (Recognit. Lib. 1.) non nisi Duo Sacramenta numerat. Justinus in Apol. 2. Duo tantum commemorat. Tertull. in L. contr. Marcionem & de Coronâ militis non nisi duo agnoscit. B. Cyprianus ait, tunc demùm planè Sanctificari & esse Filii Dei possunt, si utroq; Sacramento nascantur. Cyrillus Hieros. in Catechism. suis de duobus tantum Sacramentis scribit. S. Ambros. librum ex Instituto de Sacramentis Ecclesiasticis conscripsit, in quo Duo solummodo Sacramenta tractat. S. Augustinus de Symb. ad Catech. ait, hæc sunt Ecclesiæ gemina Sacramenta. Dionys. Areop. non Pœnitentiam, non Matrimonium, pro Sacramentis agnoscit, & Unctionem, non Infirmorum, sed Mortuorum celebrat. S. Greg. Mag. non nisi tria Sacramenta statuit. Bap. Chrisma, Corpus & Sanguinem Domini. Chrisma autem ad Baptismum pertinebat. Rabanus Maurus totidem ponit, Pascasius ingenuè scribit, sunt Sacramenta Christi in Ecclesiâ Catholicâ Baptismus, Corpus quoq; Domini & Sanguis; deniq; Bessarion Cardinalis (de Sacr. Euchar.) non est veritus confiteri, hæc duo sola Sacramenta in Evangeliis manifestè tradita legi.

His Testimoniis Duo Sacramenta comprobantur, septem verò nullis nisi recentissimis, planè nituntur; sed quid humana Testimonia perquirimus cùm divina sunt manifesta? Nam S. Paulus disertè docet, Israelitas re habuisse eadem Sacramenta quæ nobis Christus tradidit, 1 Cor. 10. 1. nulla autem nominat nisi Baptismum & Eucam Spiritualem; atq; ex Christi latere omnia N. T. Sacramenta fluxerunt, quemadmodum S. Aug. multis in locis confirmat. Reliqua autem quinq; nullâ ratione poterant ex Christi latere deduci.

Ita ait S. Aug. Tract.* 80. in S. Joh. accedat verbum ad Elementum & fit Sacramentum, quare in omni Sacramento requiritur Elementum.

An outward and visible Sign. ] This would be a little thought of, Whether by a visible Sign is meant a thing that may be seen, or not; for so the common Divinity runs now-a-days, and grounds itself upon S. Augustine's known Words, Accedat Verbum ad Elementum & fit Sacramentum. Whence they gather, that there can be but two Sacraments, because but two of them that are commonly called Sacraments have the outward Elements ordained by Christ. All the Matter then depending upon S. Augustine's Words, it would be thought on, Whether Maldonate gives not a sufficient Interpretation of them, or no, Lib. de p. 23. after this manner: Errat hîc Calvinus putans Sacramentum debere esse signum visibile, id est, quod visu percipiatur, quia Aug. ita definit. Item fallitur dum putat debere esse Elementum, quale est aqua: Nam cùm Aug. vocat Sacramentum visibile Signum, Visibile appellat generaliter quod sensibus percipitur, non enim visus est qui facit Sacramentum; & cùm dicit accedat Verbum ad Elementum, &c. primùm non loquitur nisi de Baptismo, ubi est Elementum Aquæ; deinde si loqueretur de omnibus Sacramentis, non vocaret tamen Elementum more Philosophorum, unum è quatuor, sed quicquid est quasi materia.

C† Ordained by Christ himself. ] Quæ, enim propria sunt Ecclesiæ Sacramenta, ea non nisi ab ipso Christo instituta esse, apud omnes in confesso est:

As a means whereby, &c. ] Quia Virtute Divinâ sanctificant, & gratiam conferunt.

* † For the continual remembrance of the Sacrifice, &c. ] Vide S. Aug. Tom. 6. contra Faust. Manich. Lib. 20. cap. 18. Dicit Apostolus, quæ immolant gentes, Dæmoniis immolant, & non Deo, non quod offerebatur, culpans: Sed quia illis offerebatur. Hæbræi autem in Victimis pecorum quas offerebant Deo multis & variis modis, sicut Re tantâ dignum erat, Prophetiam celebrabant futuræ Victimæ, quam Christus obtulit, unde jam Christiani peracti ejusdem Sacrificii memoriam Sacrosanctâ oblatione, & participatione Corporis & Sanguinis Christi celebrant.

* † Bread and Wine which the Lord hath commanded. ] Lege S. Aug. Tom. 6. contr. Faust. Manich. Lib. 20. cap. 13. This is the material part of the Sacrament, not Sanguis humanus, as Marcus the Heretick in Irenæus, Lib. 1. cap. 9. and as the Montanists, Cataphryges, & Pepurians, & S. Aug. de Hæres. cap. 27, & 28. & in Epiph. Hæres. 49. nor Beans and Cheese, as some of old, either for Poverty or Curiosity, were wont to bring unto the Priest to be consecrated; therefore in the third Canon of the Apostles thus it was ordained, Ne quis præter Panem & Vinum quicquam offeret: And so Conc. Afric. cap 4. Bracarens. 3. cap. 1. Sextâ Syn. generali cap. 28. it was decreed, That if any other thing but Bread and Wine were brought for Offerings by the People, it should not be consecrated for the Sacrament, but blessed only, and given to the People to carry away: that for Bread which is one part of the matter of this Sacrament.

Now for Wine, which is the other part, the Matter is somewhat more difficult; for cheapness of old some would have Milk, &c. which was condemned by ancient Councils; and some only Water, which Epiphanius says was the Heresy of the Ebionites, that began in Africa about S. Cyprian's time: Ep. 3. Lib. 2. is written wholly against them, and S. Chrysost. Hom. 53. in S. Mat. refers the Heresy from Christ's own Institution, Christus non bibebat aquam, sed Vinum: This were enough to free our Church from any heinous offence, though it uses not commonly to mix Water with Wine, as the Church of Rome doth; and yet we must confess the Custom is very ancient, consonant to the Figures of the Old Testament, which S. Cyprian, Ep. 3. Lib. 2. reckons up; and of the New, where Water and Blood issued out of Christ's Side; and agreeable (as there is great Probability) to Christ's own Practice, when he did first institute this holy Sacrament: For it is not so likely that he used Wine alone in his sacred Supper, both because it was the Custom of the Jews, diluere Vinum, as Prov. 9. bibite Vinum quod miscui vobis; and because all the Evangelists use the Name of Calix, quod nomen (saith Maldonate) significat Vinum conjunctum cum aquâ, juxta Ritum. The ancient Liturgies are all for Vinum cum Aqua mixtum; so Justin Martyr, Apol. 2. Iren. Lib. 4. cap. 57. & Lib. 5. initio. Cypr. Ep. 3. Lib. 2. Ambr. Lib. 5. de Sacram. cap. 1. Gennad. de Eccl. dogm. cap. 57. patres Concil. Trullan. and many others. Vide notas in Gennadium. Our Church forbids it not, for ought I know, and they that think fit may use it, as some most eminent among us do at this Day; yet for the Approbation of our most common Practice, which is to consecrate Wine alone without Water, we have all this on our side; the Greeks did it, Niceph. Callist. L. 118. cap. 53. Innocent. 3. Lib. 4. cap. 32. Durand. Lib. 4. d. 12. q. 5. Lomb. Lib. 4. d. 11. Bonav. ibid. neq; est de necessitate Sacramenti, saith Aquinas, p. 3. q. 74. Ar. 7. Euch. c. 11. Bernard. Ep. 69. Rab. Maurus de Euch. cap. 11. & alii.

* † What is the inward part or thing signified?

The Body and Blood of Christ which are verily and indeed taken, &c. ] Neither need there any fault be found with our Church, for thus distinguishing the outward Sign from the thing signified, the Bread from the Body of Christ; for Maldonate affirms, that the Church of Rome never said otherwise, de Sacram. p. 125. Respondendum est, nos nunquam dicere idem esse Sacramentum & rem Significatam, nam Sacramentum vocamus signum quod videtur, rem significatam, corpus Christi quod non videtur; which approves of our Doctrine, and condemns that gross Conceit of the ignorant Papists, that think they see and taste and chew the very Body of Christ corporally, which every Man abhors to conceive, even the best learned among the Papists as well as we: I cannot see where any real difference is betwixt us about this real Presence, if we would give over the Study of Contradiction, and understand one another aright. Maldonate de Sacr. p. 143. after a long Examination of the matter, concludes thus at last with us all, so the Words be not taken exclusivè, as the Puritans will take them, Corpus Christi sumitur à nobis Sacramentaliter, Spiritualiter, & Realiter, sed non Corporaliter; and so have I heard my Lord Overall preach it an hundred times.

C † Which are verily and indeed taken, &c. ] Verè quidem ac realiter à fidelibus, sed in Sacramento & modo nostris mentibus impervio. c.

The strengthning and refreshing of our Souls, &c. ] By nourishing our Faith, and assurance that our Sins are remitted; by giving us increase of Grace to lead a godly Life, and by confirming our Hope, that we shall hereafter come to Life eternal; which are all the true Food of our Souls, and without which they are dead, having no true spiritual Life in them at all. C.

* † As our Bodies are by the Bread and Wine. ] For Maldonate de Sacram. p. 126. Analogia autem est, quod sicut panis est præcipuum nutrimentum corporum, ita caro Christi est præcipuus cibus Animæ.

* † And there shall be none admitted to the holy Communion, till such time as he can say the Catechism, and be Confirmed. ]

So Dionys. Areop. Pontifex perficit eum Chrismate qui Baptizatus est, & reddit eum participem & capacem Eucharistiæ.

In Const. Johannis Pecham Archiepiscopi Cant. cap. de Sacr. Confirm. sic legitur, statuimus, ut nullus ad Sacramentum Corp. & Sang. Domini admittatur extra mortis Articulum, nisi fuerit confirmatus, vel nisi à Recep ione Confirmationis fuerit rationabiliter Impeditus: quod m. 6.

C  First the Banns must be asked. ] Bucer likes this Order very well, calling it Præceptum salutare, and would have no Dispensation granted to any. To this he wishes, that another Precept had been added, Ut Matrimonium non nisi in clara die, & frequenti Ecclesia consecrare liceat. To that a third, Ne rata habeantur eorum Conjugia, qui ea contraxerint, absq; eorum consilio & voluntate in quorum sunt Potestate, absq; piis & gravibus Arbitris; quo multa averterentur Stupra ad quæ Puellæ Pauperes & aliæ Mulieres nonnunquam falsâ Conjugii promissione pelliciuntur. In the first he was not heard: For Dispensations are still granted: For the second there was a Law of the Church before, Ut inter horas 8 & 12 ante meridiem in Ecclesia celebrentur Matrimonia. And so it is, or should be still observed. C If any Man can ſhew any juſt cauſe, &c. If either of them do know any Impediment. ] Theſe Words referred to the common known Impediments : But becauſe ſome of them were taken off by Law ; and for that there was no new Law made, concerning the Degrees of Conſanguinity and Affinity, (which Bucer urged very earneſtly) therefore Arch-biſhop Parker ſet forth a Table to that purpoſe ; for before his time, there was no Rule but what the Canon-Law preſcribed, with reference to the Law of God, which was made a Statute-Law here in the time of K. Henry 8.

The Order for the Viſitation of the Sick.

C WHEN he cometh he ſhall ſay kneeling down, Remember not, Lord, &c. ] In the ſecond of K. Edward it was, He ſhall ſay the 143*d Pſalm,* Hear my Prayer, O Lord, &c. And after this the Antiph. Remember not, &c. Ibid.

C If the Perſon viſited be very ſick, then the Curate may end his Exhortation here. ] This Rubrick was added in the fifth of King Edward; for before it needed not, becauſe they always ſent for the Prieſt in due time, before the Perſon was ſo very ſick.

C But Men muſt be often admoniſhed, (2 Edw.) Rich and great Men muſt be often admoniſhed in Sermons, to make their Wills, &c.

C Theſe Words before rehearſed, &c. ] A Rubrick added in 5 Edward.

C The Miniſter may not forget to move, &c ] Similiter ut ſuprà.

C Adding this, O Saviour, 2 Edw. this Anthem. ] Then in the ſecond of King Edward followed Extreme Unction, againſt which Bucer urged many Arguments, and earneſtly deſired to have omitted, as afterwards it was 5 Edw.

Yet ſome Order was taken about the Omiſſion of it before; for in the Form 2 Edw. at the end of it (apud Buc. Script. Aug.) there is this Rubrick, Si videtur commodum dicatur Pſal. 13. Uſq; quo Domine, &c. pro uſitatâ ante hæc tempora Unctione. But for all the reſt of the Order appointed in the Viſitation of the Sick, Bucer ſaith, that it is made ad Divinarum Scripturarum Regulam convenientiſſimè.

C If we anoint not not with the Oil, it is becauſe we doubt, whether it be lawful to continue that extraordinary and miraculous Cuſtom, that was well uſed in S. James's time. And herein we do no more than Decentius the Biſhop of Eugubium did, Anno Dom. 416. Mar. 19. who profeſſes ſo much Ignorance in that matter, that he wrote to Innocent the Firſt (then Pope of Rome) to be reſolved, Whether it were lawful for a Biſhop to Anoint the Sick, or no. Ep. 1. c. 3. ab Iſidoro de Off. Lib. 2. c. 26. deſcripte.

*† Here ſhall the ſick Perſon make a ſpecial Confeſſion. ]

The Church of England howſoever it holdeth not Confeſſion and Abſolution Sacramental, that is made unto and received from a Prieſt, to be ſo abſolutely neceſſary, as that without it there can be no Remiſſion of Sins; yet by this place it is manifeſt, what ſhe teacheth concerning the Virtue and Force of this ſacred Action. The Confeſſion is commanded to be ſpecial, the Abſolution is the ſame that the ancient Church, and the preſent Church of Rome uſeth, What would they have more? Maldonate, their greateſt Divine that I meet with, de Pœnit. p. 19. ſaith thus: Ego autem ſic reſpondendum puto non eſſe neceſſe, ut ſemper peccata remittantur per Sacramentum Pœnitentiæ, ſed ut ipſum Sacramentum naturâ ſuâ poſſit peccata remittere, ſi inveniat peccata, & non inveniat contrarium Impedimentum; and ſo much we acknowledge. Our if he feel his Conſcience troubled, is no more than his Si inveniat peccata; for if he be not troubled with Sin, what needs either Confeſſion or Abſolution? Venial Sins, that ſeparate not from the Grace of God, need not ſo much to trouble a Man's Conſcience. If he hath committed any mortal Sin, then we require Confeſſion of it to a Prieſt; who may give him, upon his true Contrition and Repentance, the Benefit of Abſolution; which takes effect according to his Diſpoſition that is abſolved; and therefore the Church of Rome adds to the Form of Abſolution, Quantum in me eſt, & de Jure poſſum, Ego te abſolvo; not abſolutely, leſt the Doctrine ſhould get head: That ſome of their ignorant People believe, that be the Party confeſſed never ſo void of Contrition, the very act of Abſolution forgives him his Sins. The truth is, That in the Prieſt's Abſolution there is the true Power and Virtue of Forgiveneſs, which will moſt certainly take effect, Niſi ponitur obex, as in Baptiſm.

This is that which the Puritans of our Days, and their Fathers the Novatians, old Puritans of the Primitive Church, deny. Novatiani dicebant fieri injuriam Deo, ſi Sacerdotes haberent remittendi peccata poteſtatem, Ambr. Lib. 1. de Pœn. cap. 2. They uſe to ſcoff at it, What, can he forgive me my Sins? which was the wont of all the old Hereticks, Mald. de Sacram. p. 242.

The Communion of the Sick.

C† Synodus Nicæna prima Can. 13. vocat hanc Corporis & Sanguinis Chriſti Sacramentalem Communionem, Τελειότατον καὶ ἀναγκαιότατον ἐφόδιον, ultimum & neceſſarium Viaticum, quo ſcilicet inſtructi Chriſtiani obirent. Ignatius in Epiſt. ad Epheſ. ita loquitur, ἵνα ἄμωμον κλῆσις ᾖ ἐστι φάρμακον ἀθανασίας, ἀντίδοτος τοῦ μὴ ἀποθανεῖν, ἀλλὰ ζῆν ἐν θεῷ διὰ Ἰησοῦ χριστοῦ καθαρτήριον ἀλεξίκακον; & Dionyſius cui Areopagita nomen tribuitur, hanc communionem vocat, Τελετὴν Τελετῶν, id eſt, præcipuam omnium, & ultimam rerum perfectionem, eo loquendi more quo Sanctum Sanctorum dicimus.

C Exhort their Pariſhioners to the receiving in the Church of the Holy Communion of the Body and Blood of our Lord. ] 2 Edw. That they ſhall often communicate of the Sacrament of the Altar.

C And having a convenient Place, &c. where the Curate may reverently miniſter, &c. with all things neceſſary, &c. he ſhall there miniſter the Holy Communion. ] But in the ſecond of King Edward, the Rubrick (in ſtead thereof) was this: And if the Communion be celebrated that Day in the Church, then ſhall the Prieſt reſerve ſo much of the Sacrament, as ſhall ſerve for the ſick Perſon, together with others in his Company; and firſt he ſhall communicate thoſe that go with him, and were preſent at the Sacrament in the Church; and after them he ſhall communicate to the Perſon that is ſick: But firſt ſhall the General Confeſſion be made, with the Abſolution, and the Collect, as in the Order of Communion is appointed. Yet if the ſick Perſon ſhall deſire the Communion upon any other Day, when it is not celebrated in the Church, then the Prieſt having a convenient place, &c. ut ſupra, ſhall celebrate the ſame after this manner, Pſal. 119. O praiſe the Lord all ye, &c. Lord have mercy, &c. Chriſt have, &c. Let us pray. Almighty, everlaſting God, &c. And after the Goſpel, Joh. 5. Prieſt. The Lord be with you. Anſw. And with thy Spirit. Prieſt. Lift up your Hearts, &c. uſq; ad finem. But if any Man, either by reaſon of Extremity of Sickneſs, or for lack of warning, &c. in 2 Edw. this was the Rubrick. But if the ſick Perſon be in Extremity, and ſhall deſire the Sacrament, either at the Evening, or in the Night-time, the Curate ſhall ſay to him, that his Faith and Deſire of the Sacrament is accepted for the receiving of it.

C When the ſick Perſon, &c. In the time of Plague, &c. ] Theſe two Rubricks, as being Caſus omiſſi before, were added in the fifth of King Edward. But in the Second there was this Addition, which in the Fifth was omitted. The Private Communion being ended, the Anthem ſhall be repeated, Remember not, O Lord, our Iniquities, &c. Lord, &c. Our Father, &c. Let us pray. O Lord look down, &c. With the firſt part of the Exhortation, and the Pſalm, In thee, O Lord, &c.

And of all this Order (even as it was in the ſecond Year of King Edward) Bucer gave his Cenſure, That it was altogether agreeable to the Word of God.

The Order for the Burial of the Dead.

C BIſhop Andrews calls it, Our Office of the Dead.

C And ſo go (either into the Church or) added 5 Edward.

C In

C In the midſt of Life we be in Death.] Here (2 Edw.) followed when the Prieſt caſteth Earth upon the Body (from whence we obſerve the Cuſtom ſtill, though in our Book another ſtanding by is appointed to do it) he ſaith, I commend thy Soul to Almighty God, and thy Body to the Grave; Earth to Earth, &c. In the mean while the Anthem was ſung, I heard, &c. And then, Let us pray. We commend into thy merciful Hands, O Lord, the Soul of this our Brother N. departed, and we commit his Body to the Ground, beſeeching thee to grant us Grace, that we may live in thy Fear, and abide in thy Love; that when the Day of Judgment ſhall come, which thou haſt committed to thy well-beloved Son, as well this our Brother, as we all may be found acceptable in thy ſight, &c. Then followed this Thankſgiving, We yield thee Thanks, O Almighty God, for this thy Servant, whom thou haſt delivered from the Miſery of this Life, the Body of Sin and Temptation: And as we believe that thou haſt placed his Soul, which he commended into thy Hands, in a place of Reſt, Light and Gladneſs; ſo we beſeech thee, that his Soul, together with the Souls of all thine Elect departed out of this Life, may with us and with them have the full Fruition of thy Promiſes, and be made perfect, by the glorious Reſurrection of thy Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. Then the Suffrages to be ſaid before or after the Burial. Pſal. 116. I am well pleaſed, &c. Pſal. 139. O Lord, thou haſt ſearched me, &c. All which, from the Anthem, I heard a Voice, &c. was omitted or altered (becauſe Bucer found fault with Prayer for the Dead) in the fifth of King Edward.

After the Leſſons, and the Pater noſter, (2 Edw.) followed theſe Verſes and Anſwers: Prieſt. Enter not into Judgment with thy Servant. Anſw. For in thy ſight ſhall no Man living be juſtified. Prieſt. From the Gates of Hell. Anſw. Deliver their Souls. Prieſt. I believe to ſee the Goodneſs of the Lord. Anſw. In the Land of the Living. Prieſt. O Lord, hear our Prayer. Anſw. And let our Cry come unto thee. Let us pray. O Lord, with whom do live the Spirits of the Dead, and with whom the Souls of them that be Elected, after they be delivered from the burden of the Fleſh, be in Joy and Felicity: Grant unto this thy Servant, that the Sins which he committed in this World may not be imputed unto him; but that he having overcome the Gates of Death and eternal Darkneſs, may for ever dwell with Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, in the Region of Light, where there is no Sorrow or Grief: And when the fearful Day of Judgment ſhall come, make him to riſe again with the Juſt and Elect, and to receive his Body again to Glory and Immortality; that being placed among the Choſen at the Right-hand of thy Son our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he may with them hear the moſt ſweet Voice of, Come ye bleſſed of my Father, &c. For which Bucer would, that the Prayer at the Communion ſhould be uſed.

Then the Communion followed, where the Introit was Pſal. 42. As the Hart deſireth the Water-brooks, &c. The Collect. O merciful God, &c. (the ſame with our laſt.) The Epiſtle. 1 Theſſ. 4. I would not have you, &c. The Goſpel. Joh. 6. Jeſus ſaid, &c. All that the Father, &c. All which was omitted or altered, 5 Edw. for the Reaſons next before ſpecified, and for Calvin's Letters to the Protector, Cranmer and Cheek.

The Spirits of them that depart in the Lord.] Before it was only the Spirits of the Dead. For thoſe that depart not in the Lord (ſays Bucer) i. e. in the Communion of the Church, (as they that are Excommunicated or Unchriſtned) are not to be buried by the Prieſt, in this Publick Form.

De Exequiis & Ritu Funebri.

† ET jam fama volans tanti præmunsial uctûs, totius urbis populum ad Exequias congregabat. Sonabant Pſalmi, & aurata tecta Templorum, reboans in ſublime quatiebat Allelulia. Hic juvenum chorus, ille ſenum, qui carmine laudes fœmineas & facta ferant. Non ſic Furius de Gallis, non Papyrius de Samnitibus, non Scipio de Numantiâ, non Pompeius de Pontigenibus triumphavit. Audio præcedentium turmas, & catervatim in Eccleſiis ejus multitudinem confluentem. Non plateæ, non porticus, non imminentia deſuper tecta capere poterant proſpectantes. Tum ſuos in unum populos Roma conſpexit. Favebant ſibi omnes in gloria pœnitentis. Nec mirum ſi de ejus ſalute homines exultarent, de cujus converſione Angeli lætabantur in Cælo. S. Hier. Epiſt.* 30. ad Oceanum de Fabiola.

* † The Prieſt meeting the Corpſe at the Church-ſtile, ſhall ſay; or elſe the Prieſt and Clerks ſhall ſing.]

The Puritans, in their Prophanation, uſe to tell us, That this Meeting of the Corps, and going along with it to the Grave, or to the Church, ſinging or ſaying theſe Sentences as we go, is rather a hollowing of the Air, than any edifying of ſuch as follow the Body, ſeeing the neareſt are full of Mourning, and to not diſpoſed; and the fartheſt off out of hearing, and ſo not able to attend, and the leſs becauſe they are all in paſſing untutor'd unchriſtian Men: By the ſame reaſon King David was much to blame, to carry up the Ark into the Tabernacle, ſome going before, and ſome behind, with Hymns and Songs of Glory, and Muſick of all ſorts, and all the People following after: If he had conſulted with theſe kind of Men, they would have told him, though he were never ſo near to God's own Heart, that it was a Matter of Superſtition, and tended to no Edification at all. I wonder what Flints ſuch Mens Souls are made on, that are no more affected with this orderly Proceſſion and ſolemn Muſick of the Choir in order, which the very Angels in Heaven are in love withal. It ſufficeth us, that the known benefit thereof to devout and quiet Chriſtians, doth countervail Millions of ſuch Inconveniencies as are ſurmiſed, though they were not only ſurmiſed, but found with all.

Aderant Hieroſolymorum, & aliarum urbium Epiſcopi, & Sacerdotum inferioris gradûs, ac Levitarum innumerabilis multitudo; omne Monaſterium Virginum, & Monachorum chori repleverant. Et hinc non ululatus, non planctus, uti inter ſeculi homines fieri ſolet, ſed Pſalmorum linguis diverſis examina concrepabant. Translataq; Epiſcoporum manibus, & cervicem feretro ſubjicientibus, cum alii Pontifices Lampadas præoſq; præferrent, alii choros Pſallentium ducerent, in mediâ Eccleſiâ ſpelunca Salvatoris eſt poſita. Tota ad funus ejus Paleſtinarum urbium turba convenit; Quem Monachorum latentium in remo cellula ſua tenuit? Quam Virginum cubiculorum ſecreta texerunt? Sacrilegium putabant, qui non tali fœminæ ultimum reddidiſſet officium. Hebræo, Græco, Latino, Syrioq; Sermone Pſalmi in ordine perſonabant, non ſolum triduo, donec ſubter Eccleſiam, & juxta ſpecum Domini conderetur, ſed per omnem Hebdomadam, cunctis, qui venerant, ſuum funus, & proprias credentibus lachrymas. S. Hier. Ep. 6. ad Euſtoch. de Paula Matre. Idem ferè ſcribit in Ep. ad Paulam de morte Breſillæ, dicens illum planctum quem Chriſtiani fecerunt propter Stephanum mortuum Act. 8. non fuiſſe tantùm lachrymas, ſed pompam & externos ritus. And that Chriſtians were always wont ſo to bury their Dead, is likewiſe to be ſeen by Clem. Ep. 1. and S. Dionyſ. Areop. Eccl. Hier. cap. ult. where all the Ceremonies then uſed are deſcribed.

D. S. Aug. Lib. Conf. 9. cap. 6. indicat ſolitum fuiſſe cantari pſalmum centeſimum primum; Miſericordiam & judicium cantabo tibi Domine: And in King Edward's firſt Service-book there be three Pſalms appointed to be ſung, either before or after the Burial of the Corps. Among other Ceremonies this was ever one, ut Pſalmi cantarentur & recitarentur Orationes pro mortuis, Clem. Lib. 6. Conſtit. cap. 30. And therefore S. Hierome calls it the ancient Cuſtom and Tradition of Chriſtians ſo to do. In vitâ P. Eremitæ obvoluto, inquit, & provoluto forâs corpore, Hymnos quoq; & Pſalmos de Chriſtianâ Traditione decantans conſtituebatur Antonius. The like we may read in Severus Sulpitius de obitu S. Martini, in S. Gr. Nyſſen. Orat. in funere Melotii: And in his Epiſtle to Olympias de obitu ſororis, in Euſeb. de fun. Conſtantini Lib. 4. ejus vitæ cap. 65, 66. in S. Chryſoſt. Hom. 4. in Epiſt. 1. ad Timoth. Hom. 70. ad populum Antioch. Theod. Lib. 5. Hiſt. cap. 36. in S. Aug. de Civ. Dei, Lib. 22. cap. 13. And ſo in the third Council of Toledo, Can. 21. it was decreed on this wiſe, Qui Divini vocatione ab hac vitâ recedunt, cum Pſalmis & Pſallentium vocibus debent ad Sepulchrum deferri, poſt in ſpe Reſurrectionis Chriſtianorum corporibus Divinorum Canticorum impenditur famulatus, poſt, ſic enim Chriſtianorum per omnem mundum Humari oportet corpora defunctorum.

* † The Earth ſhall be caſt upon the Body by ſome ſtanding by.] In King Edward's firſt Service-book it was here order'd, That the Prieſt ſhould caſt Earth upon the Corps; and though it be here altered, more for reſpect of the Prieſt's Office, which was thought too high a Function to take the Grave-maker's Spade in his Hand; yet the Cuſtom prevails in moſt Places at this Day; and ſtill the Prieſt uſes to caſt Earth upon the Corps, before the Clark or Sexton meddles with it; no great Fault, were it but to keep out that unchriſtian Fancy of the Puritans, that would have no Miniſter to bury their Dead, but the Corps to be brought to the Grave, and there put in by the Clark, or ſome honeſt Neighbour, and ſo back again without any more ado. And this Rubrick, appointing the Earth to be caſt upon the Body by ſome ſtanding by, has given them occaſion to plead for it, That there is no need of any Prieſt at a Burial: That he is not a Miniſter ordain'd for the Dead, but for the Living; and that he has work enough to look to them, with Praying, Preaching, and adminiſtring the Sacraments; with reading and ſtudying the Scriptures, &c. As if when a Man is once deceas'd, he belonged no more to the Communion of Saints, or the myſtical Body of Chriſt: But whatſoever their meaning was that altered this Rubrick, ſure it was not as theſe new Puritans Humours would have it; for the Prieſt is appointed here to do all the ſolemn Offices that belong to Burial, and ſo it was ever the Cuſtom of the Church. Semper adhibiti ſunt Sacerdotes (ſaith Maldonate de panit. p. 166.) ad ſepeliendos mortuos; and he proves it out of S. Ambr. Serm. 90. and out of Damaſus, in the Life of Marcellinus.

*† We give thee hearty thanks.] Before theſe Words, K. Edw. Service-book has on this manner, Grant unto this thy Servant, that the Sins which he committed in this World be not imputed unto him; but that he eſcaping the Gates of Hell, and Pains of Eternal Darkneſs, may evermore dwell in the Region of Light, &c. and when that dreadful Day of the General Reſurrection ſhall come, make him to riſe alſo with the Juſt, and receive this Body again to Glory, &c.

C† Beſeeching thee, that it may pleaſe thee ſhortly to accompliſh the number of thine Elect.] Here is a Prayer, and a Prayer for the Elect, that is, for all them who live and dye in the true Faith and Religion of Chriſt, we pray that God of his Goodneſs would accompliſh this number; for thoſe who are Elect and Dead cannot be made perfect, nor obtain all the gracious Promiſes of God made unto them, without us that be alive, and elected to the ſame Inheritance with them (Heb. 11. ult.) This Prayer, therefore, relates to them that are Dead in the Faith of Chriſt, as well as to ourſelves that make Profeſſion of it here in this Life.

C† And to haſten thy Kingdom.] Wherein we join our Prayers with the Souls that S. John (Rev. 6. 9, 10, 11.) ſaw under the Altar in his Viſion, ſaying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doſt thou not judge, &c. to whom is ſaid, they ſhould reſt yet a-while until their Fellow-ſervants alſo ſhould be perfected with them. And this was the reaſon, that in the ancient Church Prayers relating to the dead Saints were made, pro morâ finis, Tertull. Apol. c. 39. pro requie & tranquillitate animarum eorum qui placidè in Chriſto obdormierunt. S. Ambr. Orat. in Obit. Theod. fondly applied by the new Roman-Catholicks to the fetching out of Mens Souls from their feigned Pains of Purgatory, whereof the ancient Fathers never ſaid a word.

*† That we with this our Brother, and all other, &c.] † The Puritans think that here is Prayer for the Dead allow'd and practis'd by the Church of England, and ſo think I; but we are not both of one Mind in cenſuring the Church for ſo doing: They ſay, it is Popiſh and Superſtitious; I for my part eſteem it Pious and Chriſtian; the Body lies dead in the Grave, but by Chriſt's Power and God's Goodneſs, ſhall Men be raiſed up again; and the Benefit is ſo great, that ſure it is worth the praying for; becauſe then we may pray for what we ourſelves, or our deceaſed brethren as yet have not, therefore doth the Church pray for the perfect Conſummation of Bliſs both in Soul and Body, to be given to our Brethren departed: We believe the Reſurrection, yet may pray for it, as we do for God's Kingdom to come, &c. Beſides, Prayer for the Dead cannot be denied but to have been univerſally uſed of all Chriſtians, in the ancienteſt and pureſt Times of the Church, and by the Greek Fathers, who never admitted any Purgatory, no more than we need to do, and yet pray for the Dead notwithſtanding: What though their Souls be in Bliſs already, they may have a greater degree of Bliſs by our Prayers; and when their Bodies come to be raiſed, and joined to their Souls again, they ſhall be ſure of a better State, our Prayers for them then will not be in vain, were it but for that alone: And what if their Souls, for the ill Lives they led here on Earth, be in Torments in Hell, Licet nobis (ſaith Chryſoſt. Hom. 22. in Act.) lenius illis, ſi voluerimus, ſupplicium favere, ſi preces apud Deum pro illis faciamus.

† But by the leave of the learned Perſon, the Writer of theſe Notes, I take the liberty to obſerve, That Prayer for the Dead is not countenanced (as he ſuppoſes) by the Church of England; for ſhe has taken effectual care, to leave out every thing which may give any umbrage thereunto, in all her publick Books and Offices. Indeed, at the beginning of the Reformation, in Edw. VI's firſt Common-Prayer-Book, there was a Prayer for a happy Reſurrection of the Perſon, whom they charitably ſuppoſed to have died in Favour with God, without any regard to the Popiſh Doctrine of Purgatory; but becauſe this gave Offence to ſome Proteſtant Churches Abroad, that Prayer, and ſome other few Paſſages of the ſame Import, were expunged: So that whatever was the Doctrine of the Church of England concerning this point, at the firſt compiling of the Service-Book, it was not the Publick Doctrine afterwards: Nay, to make this Collect more unexceptionable, becauſe the Words which were then ſtanding in the Book, viz. That we with this our Brother, &c. were cavilled at, they were likewiſe ſtrucken out in the laſt Review, 1662. All that the Church prays for in this Collect, is the haſtening God's Kingdom of Glory, which our Saviour hath taught us in the Lord's Prayer to pray for.

Indeed it muſt be ſaid, That our Church has not openly condemned Prayer for the Dead, in the Commemorative way of the Ancients, nor a Deſire of the Improvement of the Bliſs of pious Souls, and that all faithful Perſons may find Mercy at the final Judgment (out of regard to thoſe venerable Perſons who practiſed the ſame) as ſhe has done the Popiſh Doctrine of Purgatory; ſo that Men are at Liberty to hold it as a private Theological Opinion, as this Author did, without blame; but they are not authorized to preach it to the People, there being no Ground for it in Scripture, nor from the Authentick Books of our National Church, which is ſo far from recommending it, that for 150 Years paſt ſhe has plainly diſcountenanced it.

C† That we with this our Brother, &c.] A ſpecial Prayer for the Perſon departed, as well as for ourſelves that remain behind, referring to a joyful Reſurrection, and to a perfect Conſummation of Body and Soul together in God's Eternal Kingdom of Glory; which being yet to come, we may lawfully pray for it, as we are likewiſe taught and commanded to do (no leſs for the Kingdom of Glory than the Kingdom of Grace) in the Lord's Prayer.

Adveniat Regnum tuum, Mat. 6. 10. And this manner of Prayer for the Dead, the Proteſtant and Reformed Churches have always uſed and maintained, even in Scotland itſelf, when they put a dead Body there into the Grave (of any one whom they believe to have been a faithful Profeſſor of the Goſpel) though they ſay nothing elſe, yet this they ſay, God ſend it, or we wiſh it a happy Reſurrection. His concordant quotidiana etiam noſtrorum, & bonorum omnium vota, quibus optamus, i.e. Deum precamur ut animabus fidelium defunctorum propitius eſſe velit, & in Paradiſum nunc pridem receptas quiete & gaudio mactare deinceps concedat; neq; eſt quod dicant nonnulli, hoc tantum eos optare, non autem rogare aut orare Deum ut tribuat, voces enim ipſæ aliud ſonant, & cum ipſa, niſi Divinâ benignitate (uti hîc in officio mortuorum loquimur) obtingere non poſſunt, quid aliud eſt optare a Deo iſta concedi, quam Deum rogare ut largiatur? Abſurdum enim fuerit optare a Deo aliquid donari, quod Deum ut donet rogare nolis. Sed audiamus Virum Egregium, & inter Proteſtantes, è primis Reformatoribus unum, Urbanum Regium, in libello de formulis cautè loquendi, edito anno ſuperioris ſæculi 44. Eorum certè qui in fide Chriſti obdormierunt memoria ſemper in Eccleſiâ Religioſè celebrata fuit. Quare vir Dei, Dr. Martinus Lutherus, in Æternum obſervandus præceptor noſter, non putat a Chriſtianâ Pietate alienum eſſe, ſi pro noſtris defunctis ſemel atq; iterùm ex liberâ Devotione oraverimus; Charitas enim Chriſtiana mirè efficax virtus eſt, nec ſe continet quin & provivis, & pro defunctis ſit ſolicita, ita ut & commembra noſtra ex hoc ſæculo emigrantia piâ prece commendet Chriſto Domino & Deo noſtro in Æternum benedicto; & hæc erat olim, & eſt nunc in Eccleſiâ Catholicâ memoria defunctorum, quæ evidens Teſtimonium eſt charitatis & fidei de glorioſâ carnis Reſurrectione; & quum ſit fructus fidei quæ per Charitatem operatur nemo eam rejiciet, niſi ſint Epicurei & Sadducæi. Subjungit Veterum Patrum dicta & exempla, è quibus antea aliqua recitavimus.

But from hence (be they either Wiſhes or Prayers which the Church makes for them that are departed out of this Life in the Faith of Chriſt) to imagine and conclude, as the new Roman-Catholicks do, that therefore their Souls are in Purgatory-pain, is a very vain Collection; for even in the Roman Canon itſelf they pray, Ut omnibus in Chriſto mortuis & quieſcentibus locum Refrigerii, lucis & pacis Deus indulgeat. Can it be ſaid, That thoſe Souls which are at reſt in Chriſt, are alſo tormented in the Pains of Purgatory? In all other Liturgies, Greek and Latin, Simpliciter oratur pro mortuis, ut quieſcant in ſinu Abrahæ, ut corpora eorum reſurgant ad Conſummationem Beatitudinis; but of bringing them out of Purgatory, or relieving them in their Pains there, they ſay nothing at all; for they knew of no ſuch Matter, neither did the Church of old teach the People to believe it.

Although therefore it cannot be exactly and diſtinctly declared, what Benefit the Dead receive by theſe Prayers which the Living make for them; yet if there be nothing elſe, there is this at leaſt in it, That hereby is declared the Communion and Conjunction which we have ſtill one with another, as Members of the ſame Body whereof Chriſt is the Head.

C† May have our perfect Conſummation and Bliſs, &c.] Hodiè quidem Pontificii, ut Beatarum Animarum invocationem ſtabiliant, ipſas jam tum perfectâ & quantâ obtingere unquam debent Beatitudine frui, & clarè Deum, & in Deo omnia, uſq; adeo deſideria mentis, & preces hominum ſuperſtitum videre aſſerunt; inanis tamen eſt conatus, nam Beati Angeli in cœlis ſemper vident faciem Patris qui eſt in cœlis, Mat. 14. 10. non tamen in Deo vident omnia, De die enim illâ & horâ quæ huic mundo ſuprema erit, nemo ſcit, ne Angeli quidem Cœlorum, Mat. 24. 36. Albeit therefore, as we may from hence most certainly affirm and conclude, That the Souls of the Faithful, after they are departed from their Bodies, be in Joy and Felicity, (as we acknowledge in the first part of this Prayer) yet because they are not in such a degree of that Joy and Felicity, as that they can have or receive no more than they have already; therefore in the latter part here of this our Prayer, we beseech God to give them a full and perfect Consummation of Bliss, both in Body and Soul, in his eternal Kingdom of Glory which is yet to come: And whatsoever the Effect and Fruit of this Prayer will be, though it be uncertain, yet hereby we shew that Charity which we owe to all those that are Fellow-Servants with us to Christ; and in this regard our Prayer cannot be condemned, being neither impious nor unfit for those that profess Christian Religion: For in like manner, if I should make a Prayer to God for my Father or Mother, for my Brother or Sister, for my Son or Daughter, or any other Friend of mine, who were travelling in a Journey; beseeching him, that he would prosper them in their Way, and keep them from all Danger and Sickness, till they should safely and happily arrive at their Journey's-end, and the Place where they desire to be; altho' at the same time, when I pray thus for them, peradventure they be arrived at the Place already (which I knew not) with all Safety, and met with no Dangers or Diseases by the way, whereby all my Prayer is prevented; yet the Solicitude and Charity, in the mean while, that I had for them, cannot be justly or charitably reprehended by any others. Vide quæ annotata sunt in Litania ad verba & in die Judicii.

The Collect.

*† IT would be known, why this Prayer is named the Collect more than all the rest; the Collect is to go before the Epistle and Gospel, and then the Communion or Sacrifice of the Church to follow: Thus it was appointed in King Edward's Service-book, (before Calvin's Letter to the Sacrilegious Duke of Somerset got it yielded up) That there should be a Celebration of the Sacrament at the Burial of the Dead, the Name of the Collect standing still with such reference thereunto; I know no reason, but that we might (taking the Advantage to shew, that our Church is not to be ruled by Calvin) use the old Custom still, and after the Burial of any Man go to the Sacrament: Sure it was the ancient Order of all Christians so to do, Conc. Carth. 3. Can. 29. Aug. in Euch. cap. 110. Whether it were to confirm Christians the better, in hope of our certain Resurrection after Death, signified by that Sacrament; or to offer up the Sacrifice of the Church unto God, to apply the Effect of Christ's Sacrifice to the Party deceased, for his Resurrection again at the last Day, and receiving his perfect Consummation, both of Soul and Body, in the Kingdom of Heaven, as in the Prayer before; which but by the virtue of Christ's Death, nor he that is Dead, nor he that is Alive, can have any hope to enjoy.

C † Collecta olim dicta ad Missam pro defunctis, quæ tamen Missa apud antiquos non erat in usu, adfertur Cochlæo pro hujusmodi missis S. Dionys. Eccl. Hier. cap. 7. *quibus inquit liceret Pœnitentibus & Energumenis adsistere, quod in aliis non licebat. Sed Dionys. loco per Cochl. adlegato non loquitur de missis, sed de nudis precibus, quales sunt istæ quas Eccles. Angl. retinuit: Deceptus est Cochl. per Dionys. interpretem, qui græcam vocem ἱερὰν, vertit Missam, & imperitiam suam, aut (quod pejus est) Impostu*ram prodidit.

C † O merciful God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. ] There was, in the first ordering of this Book set forth in the second Year of King Edward the Sixth, a Celebration of the Communion appointed at the Burial of some Persons; and this was the Collect then used. The Epistle, 1 Thess. 4. I would not, Brethren, that ye should be ignorant concerning them which are fallen asleep, &c. unto Wherefore comfort yourselves with these Words. The Gospel, Joh. 6. Jesus said to his Disciples, and the Jews, all that my Father hath given, &c. unto I will raise him up at the last Day.

At this Communion (which was kept to shew that the deceased Party di d in the common Faith, and Communion of all true Christians) there were Oblations made in solemn manner, either by the Parents or the Children, or the Kindred and Friends of such as so died; and at Funerals of Royal, Noble, and other great Persons, attended by the Heraulds, we have the Custom still; where, if those Heraulds stand in the Church to receive the Offerings, they usurp the Priest's Office. In the ancient Church the Communion was at this time celebrated for the same purpose, to declare by it, That the dead Person departed out of this Life in the publick Faith and Unity of the Catholick Church of Christ, from whence we learn what the reason was, that Monica, the Mother of S. Aug. so much desired to be remembred at the Altar after her Death, which was not (as the fond and ignorant sort of People among the new Roman-Catholicks imagine) to fetch her Soul so much the sooner out of Purgatory, (for the Papal Purgatory Fire was not then kindled or known;) but partly to testify her faithful Departure in the Religion and Communion of all other good Christians; and partly to have Praise and Thankgivings rendred to Almighty God, for her happy Departure out of this World to a better; and partly also, that by the Prayers of the Church made at the Celebration of the holy Eucharist, and by virtue of Christ's Death and Sacrifice therein commemorated, she might obtain a joyful Resurrection of her Body out of the Grave, and have her perfect Consummation of Glory both in Body and Soul in God's everlasting Kingdom. And in Testimony that the Church acknowledged all Persons, thus dying in the common and true Faith of Christ, to be of their Communion, the Oblations which their Parents or Friends presented in their Name were received by the Priests at the Altar; whereas it had not been lawful to receive them, if those Persons had not died in that Communion and Unity with the Catholick Church of God; or were Persons broken off, or excommunicated from the Body of it. Of those Oblations we read in S. Augustine's Book called his Enchirid. ad Laur. cap. 110. Cum Sacrificia (inquit) sive Altaris, sive quarumcunq; Eleemosynarum pro Baptizatis defunctis omnibus offerentur, pro valdè bonis gratiarum actiones sunt, pro non valde malis propitiationes sunt, (nempe ut resurgant, & misericorditer cum iis fiatin die Judicii quemadmodum in Eccl. Angl. Litaniâ preces fecimus, Libera nos domine in die Judicii) pro valdè malis si nullo sint adjumento mortuorum, qualescunq; tamen sunt vivorum consolationes, repetit ista Lib. Quæst. ad D. Q. 2. Item Lib de curâ pro mortuis, cap. 4. Quibus ad ista desunt parentes aut filii aut cognati, vel amici, ab unâ eis exhibentur piâ matre communi Ecclesiâ, addit tamen cap. ult. Non existimemus ad mortuos pro quibus curam gerimus hæc beneficia pervenire, nisi quod pro eis, sive Altaris, sive Orationum, sive Eleemosynarum Sacrificiis Supplicamus, quamvis non pro quibus fiunt, omnibus prosint, sed iis tantum quibus dum vivunt comparatur ut prosint, sed quia non discernimus qui sint, oportet ea pro Regeneratis omnibus facere, ut nullus eorum prætermittatur, ad quos hæc beneficia possint & debent pervenire, melius enim supererunt ista eis quibus nec obsunt nec prosunt, quam eis deerunt quibus prosunt. Receptus itaq; fuit mos Celebrandæ, quando corpora funerarentur, Eucharistiæ, cujus qui exequiis interant, participes facti, & hæc erat celebratio Sacramenti in Sepulturâ mortuorum, Aug. de funere Matris suæ Monicæ Lib. Confess. IX. cap. 12. Ecce corpus elatum est, imus & redimus sine lachrymis, nam neq; in iis precibus, quas tibi, O Deus, fundimus, cum offeretur pro ea Sacrificium pretii nostri, jam juxta Sepulchrum posito cadavere, priusquam deponeretur, sicut illic fieri solet, nec in iis precibus ego flevi, sed toto die graviter in occulto Mœstus eram. Et de Morte & de funeratione ipsius Augustini Possidius in ejus vitâ, Nobis astantibus obdormivit in pace cum patribus suis, enutritus in bonâ senectate, & nobis coram positis, pro Ejus commendanda Corporis depositione Sacrificium Eucha. Deo oblatum est & Sepultus est.

Conjungebantur itaq; Antiquitus Sacrificia, sive Gratiarum Actiones, oblationes, & orationes in defunctorum Sepulturis. Sed quia hæc postea, excogitato Purgatorii Commento, ad missas (quas vocant) pro defunctis inde extrahendis detorta sunt, & quæ liberæ erant observationes in necessariam conversæ fuere, ideo ab Ecclesiis omnibus Reformatis, adeoq; ipsâ nostrâ Anglicanâ post quartum An. Regis Edv. Sexti Celebratio Euchar. in funeratione Mortuorum omissa est, retentis interim gratiarum actionibus pro felici eorum ex hoc mundo decessu, orationibus pro beatâ eorum Resurrectione, & alicubi etiam oblationibus, quarum pauperes & ministri Sacrorum alerentur.

Talia quidem improbavit & damnavit Aërius, dicens, orare, vel offerre pro mortuis (verba sunt Aug. Lib. de Hæret. cap. 53.) non oportere, & propterea cum etiam insuper Arrianus esset, inter hæreticos & turbatores Ecclesiæ relatus est, plura de eo apud Epiph. Hær. 73. Sed nos (ut protestatur Apologia Augustanæ Confessionis Art. 3. de abusibus) orationes pro mortuis non prohibemus, nec nos Aërio patrocinamur. Quanquam quem fructum, quod Emolumentum defunctis hujusmodi preces conferant, difficile sit explicatu, ad contestandam tamen fidem spemq; Resurrectionis Christiani semper eas usurparunt. Et quid utilius (ait Epiphanius contra Aërium differens) quid opportunius quam superstites credere quod vivunt defuncti ἐν ἀναμαξίᾳ ὄντι, & non destituuntur existentiâ, sed sunt & vivunt apud Dominum? & pro justis memoriam facimus & pro peccatoribus, &c.

Nempe pro omnibus per Christum gratias agimus de felici eorum excessu, & precamur pro beata eorum Resurrectione, atq; hoc ipso omnibus non nisi per eum salutem obtingere profitemur.

Funeral-Banquets, and the Dole then used to be given to the Poor.

BEsides the devout Performance of these Exequies, with the solemn recital of Psalms, Prayers and Lessons here ordered, there is a Custom among Men, to give some moderate Banquet at home, unto those that accompany the Corps to the Grave. A Custom taken from the Jews, as they took it from Natural Reason; it being a Comfort of them whose Minds, through Natural Affection, use to be Pensive at such a time: And in reference to this spake the Prophet Jeremy, Jer. xvi. 7. that God would so grieve and vex the People, as Men should not give them the Cup of Consolation for their Father, or for their Mother: That it should not be at all as in peaceable times with others, who bringing their Ancestors to the Grave with weeping Eyes, have notwithstanding Means wherewith to comfort themselves with the Society of the Living: As Solomon said, Prov. xxxi. 6. Give Wine unto them that have grief of Heart. And hereupon arose Funeral-Sermons, that not only the Living might be instructed, but the Pensive, whom it concerned most, might have Words of Comfort ministred unto them.

There is another Custom of giving Alms to the Poor, at the times of Funerals, whereof Tertullian maketh mention, and other ancient Authors, calling such Feasts of the Poor Agapæ, Love-Feasts: And it is more plain in S. Chrys. Hom. 32. in Matth. Cur post mortem tuorum pauperes convocas? And so Paulinus, in Epitaph. ad Pammachium de morte Uxoris, commends his Devotion, for bestowing such large Alms upon the Poor, at that time. And S. Chrysostom again, Hom. 21. in Act. Licet nobis si voluerimus lenius illi (defuncto) supplicium facere, si preces apud Deum pro illo faciamus, si Eleemosynam demus.

Of the Churching of Women.

C  IF she be an unmarried Woman, the Form of Thanksgiving shall not be said for her; except she hath either before her Child-birth done her Pennance for her Fault, or shall then do it at her coming to be Churched, by Appointment of the Ordinary: Arch-bishop Grindal's Art. for Cant. Prov. 1576. It is to be done immediately before the Communion-Service, Bishop of Norwich, Art. 1536. If there be a Communion, she is to receive it.

C  The Churching.] In the Second of King Edward, the Title was, Purification or Churching of Women after Child-birth.

C  The Woman shall kneel down in a convenient place.] In the Second of King Edward the Rubrick was, The Woman shall kneel down before the entrance into the Choir, and the Priest standing by her, &c.

C  The Woman that cometh to give her Thanks, must offer the accustomed Offerings, &c. In the Second of King Edward this Rubrick was, The Woman shall offer the Chrism, which was put upon the Child at his Baptism, according as has been accustomed. Against which Bucer excepted, and therefore was it altered, 5 Edw. though to this Day they generally observe that Custom, in the North-parts of this Kingdom.

The Commination.

C  THE Commination to be used divers times in the Year, (in the second of Edw.) upon Ashwednesday.] Whereunto the Words following have reference at the beginning of Lent. Bucer Salutaris Ceremonia, sed non video, cur debeat exhiberi solùm uno die, & non sæpiùs saltem quater in anno. Hereupon was the Rubrick altered; and the Bishops in their Articles of Visitation, appointed to have it used four several times in the Year. So ready were they to observe Bucer's Directions, in almost every thing that he said.

C  To be used divers times, &c.] Which times were appointed by the Arch-bishop of Canterbury, in the Visitation of his Province, 1576. to be three times in the Year, viz. upon one of the three Sundays next before Easter, one of the two Sundays next before Pentecost, and one of the two Sundays next before Christmas, Art. 3.

C  In the Primitive Church there was a Godly Discipline, &c.] Cypriani ætate i. e. anno 250 & Seq. ad exomologesin veniebant & per manus Impositionem Episcopi & Cleri jus Communicationis accipiebant peccatores; nec in minoribus delictis, multo magis in gravissimis post pœnitentiam & exomologesin ullus ad Communicationem venire poterat, nisi prius illi ab Episcopo & Clero manus fuisset imposita. S. Cypr. Ep. 10, 11, 12. viz. Soz. Lib. 7. cap. 10.

C  Instead whereof, until the said Discipline may be restored.] Publicas peccatorum Exomologeses nostrâ Patrumq; ætate desiisse nemini mirum fuerit, qui Cabilone A. 813. congregatos Patres decreviisse memoriâ recoluerit, Pœnitentiam agere, juxta antiquam Canonum Constitutionem (jam sum) in plerisq; ab usu recessisse, &c. cap. 25.

C  Notorious Sinners were put to open Pennance, &c.] It was an ancient Order of the Church, that if any had openly offended, he should come openly to make an amends, and satisfy them whom he had offended. There he fell down upon his Knees, confessed his Fault, and wept and lamented for it; prayed the Church that they would forgive him, and that they would pray unto God to be merciful to him. Then the People fell down before God for him, their Hearts melted, their Eyes gushed out into Tears, they held up their Hands, prayed together for him, and gave thanks to God, that their Brother which had been lost was found again. And this was Satisfaction made to the Church; and to God it was acceptable. But this was never done, but when the Crime was notorious, and the Church had taken Offence at any Man's Doings that were openly Evil, and declared by the Judge to be notorious and scandalous.

C  The Priest shall go into the Pulpit.] "What S. Cyprian "has written, concerning Celerinus and Aurelius, the Readers do de- "note, That the Ancients were wont to have some more eminent or "higher Places in their Churches, from which not only the Gospels, "but some other Lessons were read, Cypr. Ep. 33. where, among "other things, he elegantly opposes the Pulpitum to the Catasta; "where he says, That in the last Aurelius was conspicuous to the "Gentile Multitude, and in the other to the Brethren. Now the "Catasta was a Place higher than ordinary, in which Slaves that "were to be sold were exposed to be viewed: Or the Pegma, in "which the guilty Person suffered Punishment. In which sense "S. Cyprian said, that Aurelius the Reader was conspicuous to the "Gentiles in that place, as in the Pulpit he was beheld by the "Church. Now Celerinus and Aurelius were Confessors. It is cal- "led by S. Cyprian, in the forecited place, Tribunal Ecclesiæ. Hunc "inquit (speaking of Celerinus) testimonio & miraculo Dei illustrem, "quid aliud quam super Pulpitum, i. e. super Tribunal Ecclesiæ, opor- "tebat imponi, ut loci altioris celsitate subnixus, & plebi universæ, pro "honoris sui charitate, conspicuus, legat præcepta & Evangelium Domini. "The Greeks called the Pulpit by the Name of the Ambo; for from "ἀμβαίνω, which signifies to ascend, is derived ἄμβων; who also call "by the Name of βῆμα, all that Place where the holy Table was "placed; and in which the Ministers of the holy Things, together "with their Bishop, had their place. C.

This Pulpit was wont of old time to be so placed and joyned to the Front of the Chancel (next to the Body of the Church) that the Priest might ascend up into it from his own Stall below, where he read the Morning and the Evening-Service. It is now got into the middle of the Church; and in some Places the Priest that is to preach, or do any other Office in it, has much ado to get thither through the Crowd of the People. And the Reformers of our Church in England, were not the first that placed it there, for their unreformed Predecessors had carried it thither before them, as in most Places Abroad the new Roman-Catholicks do now; which notwithstanding is otherwise than we find in the Custom of the ancient Church. In margine enim Cancellorum (that is, of the Chancels) locus editior ἄμβων seu Pulpitum appellabatur, quo Ministri seu Lectores Sacras Scripturas populo perlegebant. Episcopi seu Tractatores (i. e. Concionatores) exponebant.

C † That ye should answer to every Sentence, Amen.] Ubi observa hanc vocem esse particulam tantùm Affirmantis, non Optantis, ut in Conclusione Precum. Supra de Collectis.

C † Then shall all kneel upon their Knees.] Missale Sarum in Capite Jejunii. Deinde prosternant se Clerici in choro, & dicant septem Psalmos Pœnitentiales (quorum iste unus est qui hic sequitur) & hec omnia sine nota dicuntur tam a Sacerdote quam a Choro.

Veteres Christiani in Quadragesimâ, & omni tempore Pœnitentia dicato, orabant in Genibus. Et qui pœnitentiam agebant delictorum, intra præstituta tempora erant ὑποκλαυσιολιτ. postea συστάσιτ.

C † Lord have mercy upon us, &c.] All this, to the end of the first Collect following, is appointed in the Order of Sarum, upon the first Day of Lent.

C † Lead us not into Temptation. Answ. But deliver us, &c.] It is appointed in many places of this Book before, as here it is, That the Choir and the People shall subjoin, and say this last Petition of the Lord's Prayer themselves, as they were anciently used to do in the Latin Church. And the reason thereof is given by Hugo, de Sancto Victore, (de Offic. Eccl. Lib. 2. cap. 29.) Hoc Septimum Chorus succinit, in quo se oratsse cum Sacerdote ostendit, ad hoc enim fuerat invitatus, cum Sacerdos ante Orationem Dominicam diceret, Oremus.

C † Let us pray, O Lord, we beseech thee, &c.] Sarum. Et omnes Orationes dicuntur cum, Oremus, nisi prima tantùm quæ dicitur cum Dominus vobiscum.

Hæc Oratio habetur in Ord. Sarum ad Missam pro Peccatoribus.

C † Then shall the People say this that followeth after the Minister, Turn thou, &c.] Instead of this Prayer they were wont to absolve the People (as appears by the Order of Sarum) after this manner: Vertat se Sacerdos ad Populum, & extendens manum dicat super eos, sine nota, sed in audientia hoc modo.

Absolvimus vos, vice B. Petri Apostolorum Principis, cui collata est à Domino potestas ligandi atq; solvendi, & quantùm ad vos pertinet Accusatio & ad nos Remissio, sit vobis Omnipotens Deus vita & salus, & omnium Peccatorum vestrorum pius Indultor, qui vivit & regnat cum Deo Patre, &c.

Deinde resurgant omnes a Prostratione, osculantes terram vel formulas. Postea benedicantur, & distribuantur Cineres super capita Clericorum & Laicorum à dignioribus personis, dicendo,

Memento homo quod Cinis es, & in Cinerem reverteris, in nomine Patris, Filii & Spiritus S. Amen.

Particulars

Particulars to be Conſidered, Explained and Corrected, in the Book of COMMON PRAYER.

Whether or no theſe following Obſervations were drawn up by Dr. Coſins before the Reſtauration of King Charles, or afterwards upon the laſt Review of the C P. I cannot ſay; but this is plain, that thoſe Reviewers had very great Regard to theſe Remarks, they having altered moſt Things according as was therein deſired: And it is probable, that they were laid before the Board, Biſhop Coſins being one of the Principal Commiſſioners.

I. THE Proclamation lately added to the Book after the Conference at Hampton-Court, is no legal part thereof, and were better omitted; for the Act of Parliament prefixed to the Book, forbids any Addition thereunto.

II. In the Order betwixt the Preface and the Treatiſe of Ceremonies, it is allowed to all Men, to ſay the Morning and Evening Service privately in any Language (beſides the Engliſh) which they underſtand. Here an Explanation is wanting, Whether this word privately may not be extended to Colleges in either of the Univerſities, and ſome other Places, (as Weſtminſter, Eaton and Wincheſter Schools) for whoſe uſe Queen Elizabeth, in the ſecond Year of her Reign, cauſed the Common-Prayer-book to be ſet forth in Latin, as being the moſt proper Language for them.

III. In the ſame Order every Curate is enjoyned, to ſay the Morning and Evening Prayer daily in the Church, unleſs he be otherways reaſonably letted. Which requires an Explanation (againſt them that account themſelves reaſonably letted by any common and ordinary Affairs of their own) Whether any thing but Sickneſs or neceſſary Abſence Abroad ſhall be ſufficient to excuſe them from this Duty.

Altered now to The moſt part will be read every Year once.

IV. In order how the reſt of the Holy Scripture beſides the Pſalter, is appointed to be read, it is ſaid, That the old Teſtament ſhall be read through every Year once, except, &c. which in King Edward's firſt Service-Book was accordingly done; but afterwards, ſince the Leſſons were interpoſed for Sundays and Holidays, this Order cannot be obſerved, and therefore ought to be amended. It is alſo ſaid, That whenſoever any Proper Leſſons are appointed for the Sundays for any Feaſt-day, then ſhall the Leſſons appointed in the Kalendar for that Day of the Month be omitted. But here is no Proviſion made for the Feaſt-days that fell upon a Sunday, whether the Leſſons appointed for the Sunday or that Feaſt-day ſhall be taken: For want of which Proviſion, in ſome Places they read one Leſſon, and in other ſome another, according to the Curate's Choice; which breeds Diverſity in the Service, and is againſt the Uniformity intended in it by the Act of Parliament, and the Prefaces before-mentioned.

V. In the ſame Order there wants the like Proviſion for the Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel, when a Feaſt-day falls upon a Sunday, which of them ſhall be taken.

VI. In the laſt Clauſe in that Order, the firſt Word there Item ſeems to contradict the former Clauſe, which commandeth all Chapters to be read, from the beginning to the ending, where it is not otherwiſe expreſſed. This Item therefore ſhould rather be excepted only, that, &c.

In the laſt Review made Eccluſ. whereby the meaning is plain.

VII. In the Leſſons proper for Holidays there are divers appointed to be read out of Eccl. (as upon S. Stephen's-day, S. John's-day, Annunciation, S. Mark, S. Philip and Jacob, and S. Barnabe, beſides S. Peter, S. James, S. Bartholomew, S. Matthew, S. Michael, S. Luke) but whether it be Eccleſiaſtes or Eccleſiaſticus, it is not there ſpecified at large, which has occaſioned much diverſity in reading thoſe Leſſons; and therefore this ſhould be explained, for better Uniformity to be therein obſerved.

Set right in the laſt Review.

VIII. Upon the Feaſt of Circumciſion for the firſt Leſſon at Evenſong is appointed, Deut. 10. unto, And now Iſrael, whereas it ought to be beginning at, And now Iſrael, unto the end. For ſo it was ordered in the firſt Edition of this Book, which ſince that time the Printer's Negligence has thus diſordered, and appointed the firſt part of that Chapter to be read, that has no relation to the Day (as all the latter part of the Chapter has) and the Leſſon to end where it ſhould begin.

Now altered as it ſhould be.

IX. Upon the Feaſt of the Epiphany, for the firſt Leſſon at Morning-Prayer is appointed Iſ. XL. which is a Leſſon that has no relation to the Day. It ſhould be (as it was at firſt Printed, Iſ. LX. which altogether refers to the calling of the Gentiles this day remembred: But this Miſtake alſo came from the Printer's Negligence, by putting the X here before L, whereas it ought to follow it.

Agreed to in the laſt Review.

X. Upon Good-Friday for the Firſt Leſſon at Morning-Prayer, is appointed Gen. XXII. concerning the Sacrifice of Iſaac, which is all that refers to that Day, and therefore it would be adviſed, whether it were not fit here to order the end of that Leſſon of the 19th Verſe of that Chapter unto, And it came to paſs after theſe things, &c. All which following Verſes are not proper for that Day.

Now ſet right.

XI. Upon S. John Baptiſt's-Day, for the Second Leſſon at Mattens is appointed S. Mat. 13. which is an Error committed by the Printer's Negligence, ſince the firſt Edition of this Book, where it was S. Mat. III. for this is proper to S. John the Baptiſt, whereas the other refers nothing to him at all.

[Upon S. Bartholomew's-Day the Leſſons appointed out of Eccleſiaſticus againſt Women have been ſo offenſive, that it were better to be changed for others.

The XXVth of Eccleſiaſticus was changed for Eccluſ XXIV. but however it ſtands to be read in the courſe November 6, Altered in the laſt Review.

XII. Upon All-Saints-Day for the Second Leſſon at Morning-Prayer is appointed, Heb. XI. and XII. beginning at theſe words, Saints by Faith, which refers us to the Old Engliſh Bible (commonly called the Biſhop's Bible) and named in the Order before, how the Pſalms ought to be read. For in the new Tranſlation theſe words are not to be found, which cauſes many Curates to begin, ſome at one Verſe, and ſome at another That therefore there may be an Uniformity obſerved as well in this Leſſon, as in ſome others before, (upon the Day of St. Paul's Converſion, Second Leſſon at Matins, &c.) either the Verſe where to begin ought to be ſpecified, or the Biſhop's Bible uſed, which ſeems here to be only Authorized for the Publick Leſſons of the Church by the Act of Parliament prefixed before the Book of Common-Prayer.

In the laſt Review, Pſalm 48 is reſtored, but inſtead of Pſalm 67, Pſalm 68 is put, which has, I think, little relation to that Feſtival.

XIII. The proper Pſalms for Morning-Prayer upon Whitſunday are in ſome Books 45 and 47, in others, 47 and 68, which Numbers are miſtaken by the Negligence of the Printer; for in the firſt Edition of this Book, the Pſalms appointed, and the true Numbers are 48 and 67.

These Notes expunged in the laſt Review.

XIV. In the ends of the Months of Auguſt, October and November, there be three ſeveral Directions to alter certain Leſſons formerly appointed in Q. Elizabeth's time, which ſeems to be againſt the Act of Parliament, that forbiddeth any Alteration to be made in the Book. And theſe Alterations were only by the King's Order, A. 1604. at the Inſtance of Dr. Chadderton and Mr. Knewſtubbs, &c. in the Conference at Hampton-court, where they took Exceptions againſt the reading of Tob. V. and got the King's Conſent to change it for Exod. VI. (a Leſſon ſet altogether out of Order) upon the firſt Day of October, &c. But this was not legally changed.

XV. In the Months throughout the whole Kalendar, the Printer has ſet the Names of Februarii, Januarii, &c. Names of the Saints, without any diſtinction of Letter, or other Note of Difference from them, which has occaſioned many to ask what thoſe Saints, januarius, Februarius, &c. were; whereas they are to be only Notes of the old Roman Account, and put into a ſeveral Character from the reſt, as the Solſtices and Equinoctials are.

XVI. In thoſe Months there be ſome Saints put down whereof Queſtion is made, whether there were any ſuch Perſons or no (as S. Catharine and S. Faith) and the Conception of the Virgin Mary is mentioned, which was firſt put in by that Party among the Papiſts, who believed her to be conceived without Original Sin; a thing offenſive to ſome other Party among the Papiſts themſelves, as well as to all Proteſtants. And therefore it would be conſidered, whether theſe Particulars were not better left out of the Kalendar.

XVII. The Addition of the King's Birth-day, or the beginning of his Reign is not Authorized to be put there by Act of Parliament.

But now theſe is.

XVIII. In the Order what Days are to be obſerved for Holidays, and no other, there's no mention made of S. Paul's Converſion, and S. Barnabe's-Day, never the leſs are numbred before among the Holidays in this Book, where proper Leſſons are appointed for them as Holidays: And the like may be ſaid for Good-Friday, and other Days in the Paſſion-Week, all ſet under the Title of Holidays. So that here is ſome Explanation wanting to reconcile theſe two places of the Book together.

XIX. In the Rubrick before the Morning and Evening-Prayer, there is no Order, as what Hour the Service for Morning or Evening ſhall begin; for want whereof in moſt places, when the Morning is paſt, and when the Evening is not yet come thoſe Services are commonly begun; which in the Evening is croſs to thoſe words in the Third Collect for Grace, where we ſay to God, Who haſt ſafely brought us to the beginning of this Day, defend us in the ſame, &c. And in the ſame Rubrick, The Miniſter is appointed to uſe ſuch Ornaments in the Church, and at all times in his Miniſtration, as were in uſe in the Second Year of K. Edw. VI. according to the Act of Parliament. But what thoſe Ornaments of the Church and of the Miniſters were, is not here ſpecified, and they are ſo unknown to many, that by moſt they are neglected. Wherefore it were requiſite, that thoſe Ornaments uſed in the Second Year of K. Edward ſhould be here particularly named and ſet forth, that there might be no difference about them.

This is now done.

XX. After the Confeſſion is appointed, the Abſolution which ſome Miniſters read ſtanding, and ſome kneeling. For Uniformity herein it ſhould be declared what Poſture he ought to uſe: And the Poſture of Kneeling is not agreeable to it, becauſe it is no Prayer to God, but pronouncing ſo many words to the People.

XXI. The

It is now enacted.

XXI. The Words there (in the Rubrick) or Remission of Sins, were added at the Instance of the Ministers in the Conference at Hampton-Court, but it is no Legal Addition, for the Act of Parliament forbids it.

The People are now ordered to repeat it with the Minister.

XXII. In the Rubrick before the Lord's Prayer, the Minister is appointed to begin it; but the People are not appointed to say after him, as in Cathedral Churches, and most Places besides they use to do. To prevent all diversity therein, there wants here an Explanation to that purpose.

XXIII. The Gloria Patri, and the Venite exultemus, are appointed next to be said or sung; but whether by the Minister alone, or by him and the People alternatim, there is not here or any where else (in the Hymns and Psalms, following besides the Quicunq; vult) any Order given; which for an Uniformity herein, ought in this Place to be added.

An Exception on that Day for the Month is now made.

XXIV. In the Rubrick after the Venite exultemus, which is the 95*th* Psalm, in Order are appointed to be said for every Day of the Month, as they are set down in a Table before; whereupon the 19*th* Day of the Month are appointed the 95*th*, 96*th*, and 97*th*. If this Order be strictly observed, the 95*th* Psalm will be twice said over without any Intermission. Wherefore it were not amiss, that an Exception were here made of that Psalm for the 19*th* Day.

An Order for this is now made.

XXV. In the same Rubrick the Gloria Patri, &c. is appointed to be said at the end of every Psalm throughout the Year. There is a Difference between many, whether it ought to be said by vertue of this Order, at the end of every Portion of the 115*th* Psalm, which are appointed for so many Psalms upon the 24, 25, and 26 Days of the Month. For if it shall not be said before the whole Psalm is ended, it will not be said during three whole Days together: To avoid which doubt, an Explanation of the Rubrick is here needful.

An Order for this is now made.

XXVI. And it is needful to name the Jubilate after the Benedictus, and the Cantate Domino after the Magnificat, and the Deus misereatur after the Nunc dimittis; for else some Men shall be in a doubt, Whether they may repeat the Gloria Patri, &c. after these Psalms, or no.

XXVII. Before the Collects of Morning and Evening Prayer it is appointed, that the first Collect shall be that of the Day which is appointed at the Communion, and the Collect for Peace to be always the Second.

But when a Feast-day falls upon a Sunday, it is not said here which of the Collects appointed for either of those Days shall be read; or whether they may both be read one after another: Something therefore is wanting, to settle an Uniformity herein.

When the Communion Service is read this Collect is repeated the second time; which were fit to be so ordered, that at one and the same Service, or Assembly of the Church, it should be said but once, at the Communion-Service only.

This is now altered, the Sentences, Exhortation, &c. being Printed over again in the Evening Prayer.

XXVIII. At the beginning of Evening Prayer the Rubrick only is, That the Priest shall say Our Father, &c. which gives occasion to divers Curates to begin this Evening Prayer with Pater noster, and to omit what is before appointed to be said at the beginning both of Morning, and likewise of Evening Prayer, daily throughout the Year. That therefore the Sentences, the Exhortation and the Confession, with the Absolution following, (which are all but Preparatory to the Morning and Evening-Service) be never omitted; it is requisite, that in this place some Word of Direction or Reference were given to the former Rubrick.

Now it is ordered to be said only in the Morning.

XXIX. In the Rubrick before the Litany, there is no Appointment at what time of the Day, or after what part of the Service it ought to be said; so that a contentious Man may take his Liberty to say it after Even-Prayer, or at any time of the Day upon Sundays, Wednesdays and Fridays, &c. at his own choice, unless an Order be here added to confine him. Nor is the place of the Church here specified where it shall be said; though in the Rubrick before the Commination it is presumed, that a peculiar place is appointed for it? And in Queen Elizabeth's Injunctions, that appointed Place is said to be in the midst of the Choir, as in the Cathedral, and many other Churches, has been accustomed.

This now mended.

In the Litany, where we pray for the Catholick Church, the word universally is falsely printed; for it ought to be universal, as it is in the Latin Catholicon.

Now altered into Bishops, Priests and Deacons.

In the Petition for the Clergy, there is a Distinction between Bishops and Pastors, which are all one. Inferior Priests were never anciently called Pastors.

In the Petition for the Magistrates, that word would be altered or explained; for the Magistrate (as we now understand the word) is proper to none but the King.

Now confirmed by the Act of Uniformity.

XXX. The Prayer for the Queen, and the Royal Progeny, is not authorized by Act of Parliament, but first added by the Order and Commandment of King James, and since continued by King Charles with some Variation, agreeable to his own time and condition. Which to free it from any Exception that a Parliament might take against it, were not amiss to be here noted by a special Rubrick in the Margin.

Now confirmed by Law.

XXXI. The like ought to be added at the Thanksgiving for Rain, fair Weather, Plenty, Peace and Victory, with those two for deliverance from the Plague; all which are here inserted without any Legal Ordinance of Parliament (at the Instance of those Men that excepted against the Book, for want of these Thanksgivings, in the Conference at Hampton-Court) only by the Permission of King James.

XXXII. In the Rubrick upon the Sunday after Christmas, the same Collect is appointed to be read which was used upon Christmas-day. But if the Feast of Circumcision and this Sunday fall together, it will be a Question, which of the Collects ought to be read.

Now altered to as at this time.

It is likewise here ordered, That the same Collect shall be used upon every Day unto the Circumcision: But how can it be said in iisdem Terminis, and that said to be done upon this Day, which those following Days are not: And for Resolution herein, some Direction would here be added, because both cannot be used, being inconsistent together.

XXXIII. In the Rubrick after the Circumcision it is ordered, That if there fall any Sunday between that Day and the Epiphany, the same Collect, Epistle and Gospel shall be read, which was used upon the Day of Circumcision.

This Defect may be otherwise supplied, by appointing both a Collect, Epistle and Gospel more proper for that time.

XXXIV. For if the Epiphany shall fall upon Munday or Tuesday, &c. what Collect must be used for all the Days of the Week after? It is a great Incongruity to use the Collect of the Circumcision after the Epiphany is past: Therefore there wanteth an Order here, either to continue the Collect of the Epiphany all the Days of the Week following, or to make a new Collect for the Sunday before.

The new Translation is now made use of.

XXXV. In the Gospel upon the second Sunday after the Epiphany, there is a Translation of some Words commonly spoken in old time without Offence, but now in our Days not so fit to be used. The Words, therefore, And when Men be drunk, would be now rendered, And when Men have drunken well, according to the later Translation of our Bible.

This is now done accordingly.

XXXVI. After the fifth Sunday there it is appointed, That if there be a sixth, the same Collect, Epistle and Gospel shall be used which was read upon the fifth. But it were both fit and easy, rather to supply the Day with Collect, Epistle and Gospel proper to itself, than to suffer this Defect to stand still without need.

XXXVII. And if there be but three or four Sundays after the Epiphany, (as sometimes it will happen) the Epistle, Gospel and Collect upon the fifth referring to the great Epiphany of our Saviour at the end of the World, will be more proper for the third or fourth Sunday, than those which are appointed. There wants a Provision here to be made in that case.

XXXVIII. At Easter-day it is appointed, That instead of the Venite exultemus, two Anthems Christ rising and Christ is risen shall be used: But there is no Gloria Patri set to follow either of them, as after the Venite is ordered before: Therefore the Question is, Whether Glory be to the Father, &c. should not be here added, either after one or both of these Anthems.

Now altered into, As at this time.

XXXIX. Upon Munday and Tuesday in Whitsun-week, the same Collect is appointed which was read upon Whitsunday itself: But upon those two Days, and all the Week following, we cannot say, As upon this Day: Therefore there is a Direction here wanting, for the change of that word This Day into some other.

XL. In the end of the Twenty-fifth Sunday after Trinity it is ordered, That if there be any more Sundays before Advent, the Office omitted in the Sundays after the Epiphany shall be taken in to supply the same: But it will be easy and more fit to appoint Collects, Epistles and Gospels peculiar to this time, when the Sundays after Trinity exceed the number of Twenty-five.

This is now done accordingly.

And because the last Words of the Gospel appointed upon the Twenty-fifth Sunday refer to the Advent, or Coming of Christ into the World, next to follow, and to be remembred in the Church-Service; therefore it were requisite, that here a Rubrick should be added to make this Epistle and Gospel of the Twenty-fifth Sunday to be last of them all, both when there are more, and when there be fewer Sundays after Trinity.

This is now supplied.

XLI. At the Purification there wants an Epistle proper to its self, which might be easily supplied.

This is altered now by making use of the new Translation.

XLII. In the Collect upon S. John-Baptist's-day, the Word Pennance (which is now abused by the Papists) would be subject to no Offence if it were altered into our ordinary Word Repentance, now more usual with us than that of Pennance is, and more consonant to the later Translation of our Bibles.

Now altered into, The same thy Son.

On S. Matthew's-day there is in the Collect, Thy said Son, it were better that the Word said were left out.

This is now altered.

XLIII. In the first Rubrick before the Administration of the Holy Communion, the Order appointed for the Communicants to signify their Names to the Curates immediately after Morning Prayer, seems to cross the common Custom in all or most places of reading Morning-Service, and the Communion-Service, both at one time; for if they be read at once, without any Intermission, or due space of Hours between them, what time or convenience can the Communicants have to give in their Names, or the Curate to take them? Here, therefore, a Direction is wanting, what space of time is to be allowed between these two Services.

XLIV. In the second Rubrick there it is not clear, Whether the Curate may refuse an open and notorious evil Liver, nor who is to be accounted so

ſo notorious; which therefore requires here ſome Explanation, for the avoiding of Diſputes, Doubts and Contentions, at that time, between ſuch Communicants and the Curate, who otherwhiles challenges that power of refuſing or admitting a Communicant in that caſe by virtue of this Rubrick; the rather becauſe in the Rubrick immediately following it is ſaid, That he ſhall uſe the ſame Order with thoſe that are in Malice with one another, where he has power given him to refuſe the obſtinate Perſon.

XLV. In the fourth Rubrick there, which appoints the Table to be covered with a Linnen-Cloth only, and to ſtand in the Chancel or Body of the Church where Morning and Evening Prayers are ordered to be ſaid, ſomewhat is wanting to make it agree with the Injunctions of Queen Elizabeth ſtill in force, and the common Practice in moſt Churches. And ſomewhat alſo is wanting, for a Direction, when and where to ſet the Bread and Wine for the Communion upon the Table.

This is now ſpecified.

XLVI. In the Rubrick after the Tenth Commandment it is appointed, That then ſhall follow the Collect of the Day, with one of the two Collects there ſpecified for the King, the Prieſt ſtanding up and ſaying, Almighty, &c. But whether the Collect for the King, or the Collect for the Day, ſhall be firſt ſaid, is not there determined; which for avoiding Diſpute, and Diverſity therein, ſhould be further explained. And the Collect for the Day is always moſt properly uſed, together with the Epiſtle and Goſpel, whereunto many times it relateth.

But this firſt is now directed.

XLVII. At the reading of the Goſpel there is no Poſture appointed for the People, which gives many of them an occaſion, to refuſe the Poſture of ſtanding, as in all Places and Times it has been accuſtomed. This therefore it were requiſite to be here added.

But no Order for the ſecond.

Nor is there any other Order, after the naming of the Goſpel, for the People to ſay, Glory be to thee, O Lord, as has been likewiſe accuſtomed, and was ſpecially ordered in King Edward's time, together with, Thanks be given to God, at the end of the Goſpel. For Uniformity and Advancement of our Devotions herein, that Order would be fitly here renewed.

This is now appointed.

XLVIII. At the Nicene Creed there is likewiſe no Poſture of ſtanding, eſpecially here appointed; by reaſon of which Omiſſion, many People refuſe to ſtand, though at the other Creed of the Apoſtles, they are appointed to do it, as here likewiſe they ought to do; and at Athanaſius his Creed beſides; for all which, Proviſion may be made in their ſeveral Places.

There is a Table of Faſting-days now placed in the beginning of the Common Prayer

XLIX. In the Rubrick following the Nicene Creed, the Curate is ordered to bid the Faſting-days; which being not uſually known to every Curate, it would be here ſpecified what Days are appointed to be faſted by the Laws of the Kingdom, and Church of England, throughout the Year.

There is a Rubrick now for this.

L. In the Rubrick following the Sentences of the Offertory, The Church-wardens, or ſome other by them appointed, are ordered to gather the Devotions of the People, and to put the ſame into the poor Man's Box; which being ſeldom or never obſerved in moſt Churches, nor agreeing to the divers Sentences (before ſet down) would be otherwiſe here ordered or explained.

This Rubrick now expunged.

And the accuſtomed Offerings to the Curate are here appointed to be paid by every Man or Woman, after which done the Prieſt ſhall ſay, &c. Which if it ſhould be thus obſerved, and at this time when they come to receive the Communion, would breed a great diſturbance in the Church, and take up more time than can be allowed for that purpoſe: Wherefore it is needful, that ſome Alteration were made of this Rubrick; and that the Offerings or Devotions of the People then collected, ſhould be brought to the Prieſt, and by him preſented and laid upon the Altar, or Communion-Table, for ſuch uſes as be peculiarly named in the Sentences then read by him.

The Thankſgiving now inſerted.

LI. In the beginning of the Prayer for the State of Chriſt's Church Militant, there be theſe Words (ſet as a Preface to what is intended to follow, and to have Relation thereunto) Who haſt taught us to give Thanks for all Men; and accordingly, in the old Form of this Prayer ſet forth in King Edward's time, ſuch thanks were given, that one part of the Prayer might be correſpondent to the other: But here in our Form the Thankſgiving is omitted, and yet the Preface of giving Thanks is ſuffered to ſtand ſtill, being indeed forgotten to be put out. Therefore ought it either now to be taken away, or elſe the former or the like Thankſgiving ought to be added unto the Prayer; for otherwiſe we ſay to God in effect, That though he has taught us to give Thanks for all Men, yet we think fit to let it alone.

This is now altered.

LII. The firſt and ſecond Exhortations that follow, are more fit to be read ſome Days before the Communion, than at the very ſame time when the People are come to receive it: For firſt, they that tarry for that purpoſe are not negligent, and they that are negligent be gone, and hear it not. Then ſecondly, they that ſhould come to the Miniſter, for quieting of their Conſcience, and receiving the Benefit of Abſolution, have not then a ſufficient time to do it. Wherefore requiſite it is, That theſe two Exhortations ſhould be appointed to be read upon the Sunday, or ſome other Holiday before.

As likewiſe this.

LIII. Likewiſe in the third Exhortation, there be theſe Words appointed to be read ſomewhat out of due time: If any of you be a Blaſphemer of God, or a Slanderer of his Word, an Adulterer, or be in Malice or Envy, or in any other grievous Crime, bewail your Sins, and come not to this Holy Table, leſt after the taking of that holy Sacrament, the Devil enter into you as he did into Judas, &c. For is any Perſon who comes at that time purpoſely to receive the Communion, likely to diſcover himſelf (if he be guilty) in the preſence of all the Congregation, by riſing up and departing ſuddenly from it? Therefore this Clauſe were fitter to be omitted in this third Exhortation, and to be added to the ſecond, a Week or ſome Days at leaſt before the Communion is adminiſtred.

LIV. In the next Words which the Prieſt is to ſay unto them that come to the Holy Communion, they are invited to draw near. And though in many Places they uſe ſo to do, where they are to remove from their Seats, and to approach nearer to the Table in the Church or Chancel, for the taking of the Holy Sacrament; yet in other Places, where the Chapels are ſmall, and the Communicants ſo few that they are all fixed already, in their ſeveral places within the Chancel or Church near to the Table, before theſe Words come to be read unto them, there will be no need to have them remove, and therefore no need of any ſuch Words; for which reaſon, there would be a Proviſion here made to that purpoſe.

This is now ſeems to be altered, according to this propoſal; but the Rubrick is not very clear.

LV. In the Rubrick before the Confeſſion, there wants a Direction for the People to ſay the Words of that Confeſſion after the Miniſter, whereunto they are all invited by the Words before, Make your humble Confeſſion meekly kneeling.

The word Sacrifice was not put in, as by this Author was propoſed.

LVI. In the Prayer of Conſecration, where the Prieſt ſaith, To continue a perpetual Memory of his precious Death, here ſeems to want and Sacrifice— until his coming again: Which if added, would be more conſonant to the Nature of that holy Action, and the Words of the Catechiſm following, made and ſet forth for that purpoſe.

This is now altered.

LVII. Again at the Words there, He took Bread and he brake it, and he took the Cup, no Direction is given to the Prieſt, (as in King Edward's Service-Book there was, and as in moſt places it is ſtill in uſe) to take the Bread and Cup into his Hands, nor to break the Bread before the People; which is a needful Circumſtance belonging to this Sacrament; and therefore, for his better Warrant therein, ſuch a Direction ought here to be ſet in the Margin of the Book.

This ſeems to be altered, but ſtill the Rubrick is not very clear in this point.

LVIII. In the Prieſt's taking of the Sacrament to himſelf, there is no Direction, either for his kneeling when he takes it, or for the Words which he is then to ſay; which is therefore needful here to be added, leſt otherwiſe ſome contentious Miniſter might ſay, that he is not enjoyned to Kneel in this holy Action himſelf, or to ſay any Words at all, when he takes the Sacrament.

Proviſion is now made for this.

LIX. If there be any conſecrated Bread or Wine wanting, for the communicating of the People, here is no Order (as there ought to be) for the conſecrating of more, nor for the Words which the Prieſt ſhall uſe for that purpoſe, as in the firſt Form of the Communion ſet out in King Edward's time, and in the Canons of the Church is enjoyned. This therefore ſhould be here added.

LX. There wants likewiſe an Order, for the People to continue kneeling at their Prayers and Devotions (as is moſt meet) during all the time of the holy Action.

LXI. The Prayer of Oblation is here placed after the Participation and Diſtribution of the Sacrament made to the People, which in King Edward's firſt Service-Book, and in all other ancient Liturgies, is ſet before it, and next after the Prayer of Conſecration.

If it were ordered here, and the Prayer of Thankſgiving (Almighty and everlaſting God, we moſt heartily thank thee, &c.) appointed to follow for the Poſt-communion, it would be more conſonant, both to former Precedents, and the Nature of this holy Action.

LXII. At the Gloria in Excelſis, which is appointed to be ſaid or ſung, there is a Queſtion, Whether the People are to ſay it after or with the Miniſter, or no; where, for the avoiding any Diverſity herein, ſome Direction would be given.

LXIII. In the fourth Rubrick after the Communion, The Prieſts and Deacons of Cathedral and Collegiate Churches are enjoyned, to receive the Communion with the Prieſt every Sunday at the leaſt. Queſtions are here moved, Whether the Church did not hereby intend, to have the Communion adminiſtred in ſuch Places every Day of the Week, or oftener than once in the Week at the leaſt; and, Whether the Prieſt, who there waits in his Week, ought not to communicate oftener than every Sunday, or upon every Sunday at the leaſt. Which Queſtions would be in this Rubrick determined by ſome few Words added to it.

LXIV. In the next Rubrick it is ſaid, that at the Communion it ſhall ſuffice, that the Bread be ſuch as is uſual to be eaten, ſo it be the beſt and pureſt that may be gotten. It is queſtioned here, Whether by virtue of this Order any Church is reſtrained from their Cuſtom of uſing Wafers at the Sacrament, as in Weſtminſter, and many other Places, they have been always wont to do. To avoid Diſpute and Contention therein, an Order would be annexed for that purpoſe.

The word unconſecrated is now put in.

LXV. It is likewiſe here ordered, That if any of the Bread and Wine remain, the Curate ſhall have it to his own uſe. Which Words ſome Curates have abuſed, and extended ſo far to ſuppoſe, they may take all that remains of the conſecrated Bread and Wine itſelf home to their Houſes, and there eat and drink the ſame with their other common Meats

Meats; at leaſt the Roman-Catholicks take occaſion hereby, to lay this Negligence and Calumny upon the Church of England, whereas the Rubrick only intends it of ſuch Bread and Wine as remains unconſecrated, of that which was provided for the Pariſh (as appeareth by the Articles of Enquiry hereabouts in the Viſitations of divers Biſhops:) And therefore, for the better clearing of this particular, ſome Words are needful here to be added, whereby the Prieſt may be enjoyned to conſider the Number of them which are to receive the Sacrament, and to conſecrate the Bread and Wine in ſuch a near Proportion as ſhall be ſufficient for them; but if any of the conſecrated Elements be left, that he, and ſome others with him, ſhall decently eat and drink them in the Church, before all the People depart from it.

The Words, Shall alſo receive the Sacraments, now expunged.

LXVI. In the laſt Rubrick, there it is ordered and ſaid, That every Pariſhioner ſhall communicate at the leaſt three times in the Year, &c. and ſhall alſo receive the Sacraments, &c. according to the Order in this Book appointed. Where the word Sacrament in the plural Number being annexed to their communicating of the Lord's Supper, (which is one Sacrament already paſt, and ſuppoſed to have been taken by the People, who are likewiſe already baptized in another) occaſion is hereby given to think, that the Church of England alloweth of more Sacraments than Two. But this being contrary both to the Articles of Religion, and the Catechiſm here following, it is requiſite that in this place ſome Explanation be made of the word Sacraments, that there may be no difference between one place and another in our Book.

LXVII. The like Explanation ought to be made of thoſe Words in the Act of Parliament ſet at the beginning of this Book, where, in the ſecond Paragraph, it is ſaid, That all Miniſters ſhall be bounden to ſay and uſe— the Celebration of the Lord's Supper (which is one Sacrament) and Adminiſtration of each of the Sacraments, which is more than one beſides.

In the Adminiſtration of Baptiſm.

Altered now as was here propoſed.

IN the Prayer which is uſed for bleſſing the Water which is in the Font, before the Children (then brought to the Church) be baptized in it, there is this Expreſſion: Grant that all thy Servants, which ſhall be baptized this Water, may receive, &c. Where all thy Servants cannot be ſaid, when there is but one Child brought to the Font for that purpoſe. And therefore thoſe Words would be better changed into theſe, Grant that this Child (or theſe Children) which ſhall now be baptized.

At the ſigning the Child with the Sign of the Croſs, it is ſaid, We receive this Child into the Congregation of Chriſt's Flock. Which word Congregation both here, and in many other places of the Book, is a new word, never uſed by any former Liturgy, or ancient Writer in the Church. It were therefore requiſite for the avoiding that Exception, which the Roman-Catholicks with ſome Advantage to themſelves take againſt it, that where-ever this word is found in the whole Book (as in divers Collects and in the Goſpel upon S. Peter's-day it is) it may be altered, and put into the old uſual Expreſſion of the word, i. e. Church of Chriſt.

In the Exhortation to the God-fathers, &c. it is appointed, that the Children ſhall be taught the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Commandments, in the Engliſh Tongue. But ſuppoſe (as it often falls out) that Children of Strangers, which never intend to ſtay in England, be brought there to be baptized, ſhall they alſo be exhorted and enjoyned to learn thoſe Principles of Religion in the Engliſh Tongue? It would be freer from Exception if theſe Words were thus expreſſed, In the vulgar Tongue which they ſhall uſe.

The word Man now expunged.

There alſo it is ſaid, And all other things which a Chriſtian Man ought to know, &c. But ſuppoſe it be a Woman, or a Female-Child: Therefore that word Man were better left out, and the word Chriſtian only would then remain indefinite; as likewiſe the words His and Him (many times uſed in this Form of Adminiſtration of Baptiſm) ought rather to be changed into this Child, that they may refer either to Male or Female.

In Private Baptiſm.

IN the firſt Rubrick there, the Cauſe of the Neceſſity of baptizing in Private Houſes ought to be expreſſed; as, When the Child is in ſudden danger of Death, and not likely to live ſo long a time, that it may be brought to Publick Baptiſm in the Church; leſt otherwiſe every one take upon them to judge of this Cauſe and Neceſſity, at their Pleaſure.

But this is now confirmed by Law.

In the next Rubrick the lawful Miniſter is appointed in this urgent Cauſe to baptize the Child, which was added by King James his Direction only in the Conference at Hampton-Court, to avoid the baptizing by Midwives, or others, that were no lawful Miniſters ordained for that purpoſe. This Alteration was well, but it wanteth the Force of a Law, according to the Act of Uniformity prefixed to the Book.

It is not here ſaid, what ſhall be done in this caſe, when a lawful Miniſter cannot be found; or whether the Child ought to be baptized again or no, when only a Midwife, or ſome other ſuch hath baptized it before.

The uſe of the Croſs in Private Baptiſm is now enjoyned.

It is not here ordered, Whether the Child thus ſuddenly baptized, ſhall have the Sign of the Croſs made upon it, neither then, or when it is appointed to be afterwards brought into the Church, which for the avoiding of all ſcruple and queſtion in this caſe, ought to be ſupplied.

Nor is it ordered, at what diſtance of time the Child ſhall be brought into the Church, after it is privately baptized.

At the end of this Form of Baptiſm it is ſaid, And ſo forth as in Publick Baptiſm, where there is nothing more added, than what is here printed at large: This therefore ſeems to be an Error of the Printer.

In the Catechiſm.

ALL the Queſtions and Anſwers (after the Lord's Prayer) concerning the Sacraments, were added by the Order of King James, given in the Conference at Hampton-Court. They want only the Confirmation of a Law, without which the Miniſter is in danger of the Penalty ſet down in the Act of Uniformity.

This is now confirmed by Law.

At Confirmation.

THE place whereunto the Children ſhall be brought for their Confirmation, is left to the Appointment of the Biſhop. If the place were ordered to be none but the Church, and there the Office to be done with the Morning or Evening Prayer annexed, it would avoid the Offenſive Liberty that herein hath been commonly taken, to Confirm Children in the Streets, in the High-ways, and in the common Fields, without any ſacred Solemnity.

In the Form of Matrimony.

IN the firſt Rubrick the Miniſter is enjoyned, not to celebrate the Matrimony unleſs the Banes have been celebrated three ſeveral times; where, to ſecure him from the Penalty contained in the Act of Uniformity, it were requiſite that this Exception were added, And unleſs there be a Diſpenſation or Licenſe granted by the Biſhop in ſome ſpecial or urgent Cauſe, to celebrate the Marriage without the publiſhing of the Banns, as by other Laws yet in Force it is permitted him to do.

It is not here ordered, at what time of the Service this Form of Marriage ſhall be celebrated; nor at what time of the Year (according to other Laws) the Solemnization of Matrimony is prohibited.

The Impediments of Matrimony, or the juſt Cauſes why any Perſons may not be joyned together, are not here ſignified: For want whereof, or a Direction at leaſt that ſhould be given to ſeek them in the known Table ſet out for that purpoſe, and in other Books of the Law, the Curate is commonly ignorant of them, and unable to give any Reſolution herein, either to himſelf, or others whom it may concern.

This is now ſo altered.

The Man and Woman are appointed to take each other by the right hand, it ſhould be alſo, each other with the ſame Right-hand.

The Words here uſed by the Man to the Woman, when he ſaith, With my Body I thee worſhip, and with all my worldly Goods I thee endow, the former being not (as the Phraſe is now uſually underſtood) ſo conſonant to Religion or Reaſon, and the latter not ſo agreeable to Law or Cuſtom, require ſome Conſideration that they may be explained.

This now altered into the words, Live faithfully together.

The like Conſideration is to be had of thoſe Words, where the Miniſter ſaith and prayeth, That the Woman may be amiable as Rachel, wiſe as Rebecca, which are not ſo fit for all Perſons.

At the Communion of the Sick.

But now there is a Direction preſcribed, tho' I think not ſufficiently particular.

THE Collect, Epiſtle and Goſpel, is here eſpecially ordered; but what part of the Publick Order at the Communion is to be uſed, and what omitted, (as ſome part of it ſeems needful to be) is not here ſaid.

In the laſt Rubrick, there no leave is given to communicate the ſick Perſon without other Company, but in the times of contagious Sickneſs, when none can be procured to communicate with him. If there might be here ſome Indulgence given, that in caſe the ſick Perſon doth ſo earneſtly deſire the Sacrament, that he cannot be in a quiet ſtate of Mind without it, it may be delivered to him by the Miniſter, though there be no Contagion in the Sickneſs, when others cannot be gotten to communicate with him, it would be to the greater Satisfaction, both of him and the Miniſter, who is here reſtrained to that caſe only.

At the Churching of Women.

This Title has now the Authority of Law.

THE Title of Thankſgiving was here added by the King's Authority only, at the Conference in Hampton-Court, and wants the Confirmation of a Law.

The Miniſter is now limited to a particular Form.

In the Rubrick there, the Words, or ſuch like as the caſe ſhall require, ſeem to give too much a Liberty to the Miniſter, to alter and add at his Plea-ſure.

ſure. He were better to be confined, that an Uniformity therein might be obſerved.

The Woman is not appointed, in what Habit ſhe ſhall come to Church, for this purpoſe; nor in what time after her Recovery; which, for the avoiding of Queſtions, and too much liberty herein taken, requires here to be duly ordered.

At the Commination.

THis is appointed to be uſed at divers times in the Year, but thoſe times are not ſpecified; for want whereof, few know when to read it, and ſome read it not at all.

The following Account was tranſcribed from a Paper found in Biſhop Coſins's Library, in the Caſtle at Durham, written and ſigned by himſelf.

IT is true, that when I ſojourned lately in Paris, I contracted an Acquaintance with the venerable Prelate Cyril, Arch-biſhop of Trapezond, who came often to viſit me in my Lodgings at the Louvre, and the Palais-Royal; and had frequent Conference with me concerning the Condition and profeſſed Religion of the Greek, Romiſh and Engliſh Churches: In which Conferences his conſtant Aſſertion was, That the Rules of Faith and Religion profeſſed in the Greek Church, were the Holy Scriptures of God, and the firſt Six General Councils, together with the Canonical Epiſtles and approved Writings of the ancient Catholick Fathers and Biſhops of thoſe times: That the later Councils and Writers in the Latin or Roman Church, had many Novelties in them, both in Matters of Faith and Government, which the Greek Church would not receive; and that the Confeſſion of Faith, the Liturgy, and the Government eſtabliſhed in the Church of England, (which upon ſeveral Demands by him made, I repreſented moſt truly and faithfully to him) were conſonant to the Orthodox and Catholick Religion of the old Greek Fathers, with whom it was both his Duty and mine, and all others belonging to our Churches, therein to retain Communion and Unity together.

And it being further demanded by me, What Divine-Service they uſually had in the Greek Church, at the Celebration and Adminiſtration of the holy Communion; he anſwered, That upon Sundays, or the Lord's-days, they uſed S. Baſil's Liturgy, and upon the Week-days S. Chryſoſtom's, which they of the Roman Church call their Maſſes. And true it is, that I heard him ſay S. Chryſoſtom's Liturgy in a private Chapel at the Louvre, whereunto he was for that purpoſe, by ſome honourable Perſons, invited to ſay it before her Majeſty the Queen of England, and divers of her Attendants there, that they might ſee the manner of it. To the hearing of this Liturgy (which they called a Greek Maſs) his Highneſs the Duke of York was alſo invited, who was pleaſed to ſend and conſult me about it, whether he might be preſent at it, or no; and when I had told him, that it was much differing from the Roman Maſs, and that there was a private Cloſet adjoining to the Chapel, where he might hear and ſee what was done, without giving any Offence, or being preſent at it himſelf; he commanded me to wait upon him there, and to declare unto him the ſeveral Paſſages of that Liturgy, which I did, having S. Chryſoſtom's Liturgy in my Hand; and ſhewing him, as the Arch-biſhop proceeded in the Recital of it, the Differences between it and the Roman Maſs; whereof one was, that in this Greek Liturgy the Arch-biſhop called out to all that were preſent in the Chapel, to come forth and to communicate, though none of them ſo did, but his Deacon or Miniſter only, who there attended him, and to whom he gave the Sacrament (after he had communicated himſelf) in both kinds; neither of which Rites (being both eſſential to the holy Communion) are uſually obſerved among the Romaniſts: He told me alſo, when I conducted him to the Chamber of an honourable Perſon who was deſirous to ſee him, after the Liturgy was ended, That had his Auditors underſtood him as well as the common Greeks did in his own Country, it would not have been ſaid, as now it was, in an unknown Language to them; which is another Difference from the Roman Maſs, in regard of the vulgar People that cannot underſtand it.

True likewiſe it is, That here I propounded divers Queſtions to him (as at many other times I did, when he was pleaſed to come and viſit me in my own Lodging,) concerning the Pope's Supremacy, univerſal Obedience to the Church of Rome, Tranſubſtantiation, Invocation of Saints, Purgatory and Prayer for the Dead: But that he ſaid any thing (as the Epiſtler or Author of the Fiat Lux ſaid he did) to juſtify the Romiſh or Tridentine new and additional Articles of Faith, in all theſe Particulars, is ſo far from truth, that on the contrary he expreſſed himſelf, in all my Conferences with him, to be otherwiſe minded, and would not acknowledge either the Biſhop of Rome's Superiority and Juriſdiction over all other Churches, as it is now claimed by him; or that the Church of Rome was the Mother and Miſtreſs of the Greek Churches; or that they held either Tranſubſtantiation, or Invocation of Saints, to be an Article of their Faith; or that they prayed for the Dead, otherwiſe than in reference to their peaceable Reſt in the State of Death, and their happy Reſurrection to eternal Life; conſtantly denying the late invented Roman Purgatory; and always profeſſing himſelf to have been heretofore, and ſtill to continue a Diſciple and Follower of Cyrillus, the late Arch-biſhop of Conſtantinople, who made and conſecrated him a Biſhop, and whoſe Confeſſion of Faith is extant, agreeable to the Reformed Churches; for which his Adverſaries (ſome great Zealots among the Jeſuites, pretending other Matters that they had againſt him) never left their Proſecution of him, till they got him Strangled by the Command of the Viſier, and thrown into the Sea.

This is the Conference, and this is the Story that I had in Paris, from Cyril, Arch-biſhop of Trapezond.

Jo. Dureſme.

Omiſſions in the Various Readings of the Ancient Common-Prayer-Books.

THere have ſome Omiſſions hapned in the ſetting down the Various Readings of the Old Common-Prayer: And ſome Differences I have voluntarily neglected; as particularly thoſe that conſtantly vary the ſame way, viz. Mattens for Morning-Prayer, and the Evenſong for Evening-Prayer, in the firſt Book of King Edward: Presbyter for Miniſter or Prieſt, and Church for Congregation, in the Scotch Common-Prayer-Book. The Old Common-Prayer-Book follows the Old Tranſlation of the Bible, and the Scotch Liturgy the new Tranſlation of the Pſalms. Which changed for who, in ſome Hundreds of Places in the Laſt Review. To have punctually taken Notice of all theſe Variations, would have filled the Text full of Marginal References, to little purpoſe; making it, not only unſightly, but difficult to be read by Common Readers. But however, ſome Omiſſions which are remarkable, I have reſerved to be placed at the End of the Book.
